SYNONYMS: bear, endure, stand, abide, suffer, tolerate. These verbs are compared in the sense of withstanding or sustaining what is difficult or painful to undergo. Bear pertains broadly to capacity to withstand: “Man performs, engenders, so much more than he can or should have to bear. That’s how he finds that he can bear anything” (William Faulkner). Endure specifies a continuing capacity to face pain or hardship: “Human life is everywhere a state in which much is to be endured and little to be enjoyed” (Samuel Johnson). Stand implies resoluteness of spirit: The pain was too intense to stand. Actors who can’t stand criticism shouldn’t perform in public. Abide and the more emphatic suffer suggest resignation and forbearance: She couldn’t abide fools. He suffered their insults in silence. Tolerate, in its principal application to something other than pain, connotes reluctant acceptance despite reservations: “A decent... examination of the acts of government should be not only tolerated, but encouraged” (William Henry Harrison). See also Synonyms at convey produce bear² (bâr) n. 1. a. Any of various usually omnivorous mammals of the family Ursidae that have a shaggy coat and a short tail and walk with the entire lower surface of the foot touching the ground. b. Any of various other animals, such as the koala, that resemble a true bear. 2. A large, clumsy, or ill-mannered person. 3. a. One, such as an investor, that sells securities or commodities in expectation of falling prices. b. A pessimist, especially regarding business conditions. 4. Slang. Something that is difficult or unpleasant: The final exam was a bear. 5. Slang. A police officer, especially one using radar to apprehend speeding motorists. [Middle English bere, from Old English bera; see bher² in Appendix. Sense 3, probably from proverb To sell the bear's skin before catching the bear.] bear-a-ble (bâr'ə-bəl) adj. That can be endured: bearable pain; a bearable schedule. —bear'a-bil'i-ty n. —bear'a-bly adv.

Bear (bâr), Mount. A peak, 4,523.5 m (14,831 ft) high, in the Wrangell Mountains of southern Alaska near the British Columbia border.

bear-bait-ing (bâr'bā'tīng) n. The practice of setting dogs on a chained bear.

bear-ber-ry (bâr'bēr'ē) n. Any of certain mat-forming shrubs of the genus Arctostaphylos, especially A. uva-ursi, native to North America and Eurasia, having small leathery leaves, white or pinkish urn-shaped flowers, and red berrylike fruits. Also called kinnikinnick bear-cat (bâr'kăt') n. See binturong.

beard (bîrd) n. 1. The hair on a man's chin, cheeks, and throat. 2. A hairy or hairlike growth such as that on or near the face of certain mammals. 3. A tuft or group of hairs or bristles on certain plants, such as barley and wheat. 4. One that serves to divert suspicion or attention from another. — v. tr. beard-ed, beard-ing, beards. 1. To furnish with a beard. 2. To confront boldly. See Synonyms at defy. [Middle English berd, from Old English beard. See bhardh-ā- in Appendix.] —beard'ed adj. —beard'ed-ness n. —beard'less adj. —beard'less-ness n.

Beard (bîrd), Charles Austin. 1874-1948. American historian and educator who explored the economic aspects of history in works such as An Economic Interpretation of the Constitution (1913). His view that the document was based on its formulators' economic self-interests profoundly affected the study of American history.

Beard (bîrd), Daniel Carter. Known as "Dan." 1850-1941. American writer and illustrator. In 1905 he founded the Sons of Daniel Boone, which in 1910 became the first Boy Scout organization in the United States.

Beard (bîrd), James Andrew. 1903-1985. American cookery expert widely considered to be one of the foremost authorities on American cuisine.

Beard (bîrd), Mary Ritter. 1876-1958. American historian and feminist. She shared her husband Charles's economic view of history and collaborated with him on The Rise of American Civilization (first volume 1927), in which they characterized the Civil War as the "second American Revolution," perpetrated by Northern capitalists over Southern plantation owners for economic gain.

beard-ed iris (bîr'dīd ī'rīs) n. Any of various irises characterized by a conspicuous region of hairs or hairlike structures on the lower parts of the three outer drooping perianth segments.

bearded vulture (bîr'dīd vŭl'chər) n. See lammergeier.

Beard·more Glacier (bîrd/'môr' glâ/'shær, -môr') A valley glacier, about 418 km (260 mi) long, in the Queen Maud Mountains of Antarctica. It was discovered by the British explorer Sir Ernest Shackleton in 1908.

Beards·ley (bîrdz/'lē), Aubrey Vincent. 1872-1898. British illustrator whose black and white, often erotic drawings were both highly individual and typical of the art nouveau style.

beard·tongue or beard-tongue (bîrd/'tŭng') n. See penstemon. [After its bearded, tonguelike stamen.]

bear·er (bâr/'ær) n. 1. One that carries or supports, as: a. A porter. b. A pall-bearer. 2. One that holds a check or other redeemable note for payment. 3. A fruit- or flower-bearing plant.

bearer bond (bâr/'ær bönd) n. A bond payable to the holder.

bear grass (bâr gräs) n. 1. A western North American perennial herb (Xerophyllum tenax) in the lily family, having a dense clump of basal grasslike leaves and a tall stalk bearing a terminal raceme of small whitish flowers. 2. Any of several similar North American plants, especially species of the genera Nolina and Yucca.

bear hug (bâr hŭg) n. A rough, tight hug.

bear·ing (bâr/'ing) n. 1. The manner in which one carries or conducts oneself: the poise and bearing of a champion. 2. a. A machine or structural part that supports another part. b. A device that supports, guides, and reduces the friction of motion between fixed and moving machine parts. 3. Something that supports weight. 4. The part of an arch or beam that rests on a support. 5. a. The act, power, or period of producing fruit or offspring. b. The quantity produced; yield. 6. Direction, especially angular direction measured from one position to another using geographical or celestial reference lines. 7. Often bearings. Awareness of one's position or situation relative to one's surroundings: lost my bearings after taking the wrong exit. 8. Relevant relationship or interconnection: Those issues have no bearing on our situation. 9. Heraldry. A charge or device on a field.

SYNONYMS: bearing, manner, demeanor, mien, presence. These nouns pertain to a person's behavior as it reveals such distinctive personal qualities as his or her individuality or upbringing. Bearing, the most inclusive, applies to both physical posture and general conduct: has the erect bearing of a soldier. "That is Claudio. I know him by his bearing" (Shakespeare). Manner is a person's characteristic conduct or comportment: her pleasant, shy manner; their arrogant, overbearing manner. Demeanor is behavior that reveals to others one's personality or attitude: "The President's outward demeanor was genial and relaxed" (Edmund S. Muskie). Mien pertains to bearing especially as it reflects an inner state of mind: She maintained her serious mien until the interview was over. Presence denotes the quality of commanding respectful attention: “[Sir Thomas] More was a man of stately and handsome presence” (Horace Walpole).

bearing rein (bâr'îng rān) n. A rein for a horse; a checkrein.

bear-ish (bâr'îsh) adj. 1. Clumsy, boorish, and surly. 2. a. Causing, expecting, or characterized by falling stock-market prices. b. Pessimistic: “Whether or not the [Coast Guard] cutter’s presence made bearish the prospects of illicit trade in the outlying islands, there was a prompt mass migration of their inhabitants to the mainland” (Springfield MA Sunday Republican). —bear'ish-ly adv.

—bear'ish-ness n.

Bear Mountain (bâr moun'tən) A peak, 391.6 m (1,284 ft) high, of southeast New York overlooking the Hudson River. It is in a popular resort area.

Bé-arn (bā-ärn') A historical region and former province of southwest France in the western Pyrenees. The region was autonomous until 1620.

bé-ar-naise sauce (bâr-nāz' sôs, bā'är-, -ər-) n. A sauce of butter and egg yolks that is flavored with vinegar, wine, shallots, tarragon, and chervil. [From béarnaise, feminine of béarnais, of Béarn.]

Bear River (bâr rîv'ər) A river rising in northeast Utah and flowing about 563 km (350 mi) in a U-shaped course northwest through southwest Wyoming and southeast Idaho then south into Utah again. It empties into Great Salt Lake.

bear's breech (bârz brēch) n. See acanthus (n., sense 1).

bear's ear (bârz êr) n. See auricula (n., sense 1).

bear-skin (bâr'skîn') n. 1. Something, such as a rug, made from the skin of a bear. 2. A tall military hat made of black fur.

Be-as (bē'ās') A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of northern India rising in the Himalaya Mountains. It is one of the five rivers of the Punjab that form a major tributary of the Indus River.

beast (bēst) n. 1. a. An animal other than a human being, especially a large four-footed mammal. b. New England & Southern U.S. A large domestic animal, especially a horse or bull. 2. Animal nature as opposed to intellect or spirit: “So far the beast in us has insisted upon having its full say” (William Dean Howells). 3. A brutal, contemptible person. [Middle English beste, from Old French, from Latin bēstia.]

beast epic (bēst ěp'îk) n. A long, usually allegorical verse narrative in which the characters are animals with human feelings and motives.

beast-ings (bē'stîngz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Variant of beest-ings.

beast-ly (bēst'lē) adj. beast-li-er, beast-li-est. 1. Of or resembling a beast; bestial. See Synonyms at brute. 2. Very disagreeable; unpleasant. — adv. Chiefly British. To an extreme degree; very. —beast'li-ness n.

beast of burden (bĕst ūv būr'dn) n. pl. beasts of burden. An animal, such as a donkey, an ox, or an elephant, used for transporting loads or doing other heavy work.

beat (bēt) v. beat, beat-en (bēt'n) or beat, beat-ing, beats. — v. tr.

1. a. To strike repeatedly. b. To punish by hitting or whipping; flog. 2. a. To strike against repeatedly and with force; pound: waves beating the shore. b. To flap, especially wings. c. To strike so as to produce music or a signal: beat a drum. d. Music. To mark or count (time or rhythm) with the hands or with a baton. 3. a. To shape or break by repeated blows; forge: beat the glowing metal into a dagger. b. To make by pounding or trampling: beat a path through the jungle. 4. To mix rapidly with a utensil: beat two eggs in a bowl. 5. a. To defeat or subdue, as in a contest. b. To force to withdraw or retreat: beat back the enemy. c. To dislodge from a position: I beat him down to a lower price. 6. Informal. To be superior to or better than: Riding beats walking. 7. Slang. To perplex or baffle: It beats me; I don't know the answer. 8. Informal. a. To avoid or counter the effects of, often by thinking ahead; circumvent: beat the traffic. b. To arrive or finish before (another): We beat you home by five minutes. c. To deprive, as by craft or ability: He beat me out of 20 dollars with his latest scheme. — v. intr.

1. To inflict repeated blows. 2. To pulsate; throb. 3. Physics. To cause beating by superposing waves of different frequencies. 4. a. To emit sound when struck: The gong beat thunderously. b. To strike a drum. 5. To flap repeatedly. 6. To be victorious or successful; win. 7. To hunt through woods or underbrush in search of game. 8. Nautical. To sail in the direction from which the wind blows. — n.

1. A stroke or blow, especially one that produces a sound or serves as a signal. 2. A pulsation or throb. 3. Physics. A pulsation produced by beating. 4. Music. a. A regular, rhythmical unit of time. b. The gesture used by a conductor to indicate this unit of time. c. The symbol representing this unit of time. 5. The measured, rhythmical sound of verse; meter. 6. a. The area regularly covered by a reporter, a police officer, or a sentry: television's culture beat. b. The reporting of a news item obtained ahead of one's competitors. — adj. 1. Informal. Worn-out; fatigued. 2. Of, relating to, or being a beatnik: the beat generation.

—phrasal verbs. beat off. 1. To drive away. 2. Vulgar Slang. To masturbate.

beat out. Baseball. To reach base safely on (a bunt or ground ball). —idioms.

beat a retreat. To make a hasty withdrawal. beat around the bush (or beat about the bush). To fail to confront a subject directly. beat it. Slang. To leave hurriedly. beat the bushes. To make an exhaustive search. beat the drum (or beat the drums). To give enthusiastic public support or promotion: a politician who beats the drum for liberalism. to beat the band. With great vigor; in a fast and furious manner. [Middle English beten, from Old English bēaten. See bhau- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: beat, baste, batter, belabor, buffet, hammer, lambaste, pound, pummel, thrash. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to hit heavily and repeatedly with violent blows”: was mugged and beaten; basted him with a stick; was battered and bloodied in the prize ring; rioting students belabored by squads of police officers; buffeted him around the face with her open palm; hammered the opponent with his fists; lambasting a horse thief with a riding crop; troops being pounded with mortar fire; pummeled the bully soundly; an unruly child who was thrashed with a birch cane. See also Synonyms at defeat pulsate

- beat·en (bēt'n) adj. 1. Formed or made thin by hammering: beaten gold. 2. Worn by continuous use; familiar and much traveled: a village located well off the beaten path. 3. Totally worn-out; exhausted.
- beat·er (bē'tər) n. 1. One that beats, especially a device for beating: a carpet beater. 2. A person who drives wild game from under cover for a hunter.
- be·a·tif·ic (bē'ə-tīf'ik) adj. Showing or producing exalted joy or blessedness; angelic: a beatific smile. [Latin beātificus : beātus, happy, from past participle of beāre, to bless; see deu-² in Appendix + -ficus, -fic.] —be'a·tif'i·cal·ly adv.
- be·at·i·fy (bē-ăt'ə-fī') v. tr. be·at·i·fied, be·at·i·fy·ing, be·at·i·fies. 1. To make blessedly happy. 2. Roman Catholic Church. To proclaim (a deceased person) to be one of the blessed and thus worthy of public religious veneration in a particular region or religious congregation. 3. To exalt above all others. [French beatifier, from Late Latin beātificāre : Latin beātus, happy; see BEATIFIC + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —be·at'i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.
- beat·ing (bē'tɪŋ) n. 1. Punishment by whipping or flogging. 2. A sound defeat. 3. A throbbing or pulsation, as of the heart. 4. Physics. The periodic variation in amplitude of a wave produced by the superposition of two waves of different frequencies.
- be·at·i·tude (bē-ăt'ī-tōod', -tyōod') n. 1. Supreme blessedness or happiness. 2. Beatitude. Any of the declarations of blessedness made by Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount. 3. Beatitude. Used as a title and form of address for a patriarch in the Armenian Church or a metropolitan in the Russian Orthodox Church: Your Beatitude. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin beātītūdō, from beātus, happy. See BEATIFIC.]
- Beat·les (bēt'lz) A former British pop group comprising John Lennon, Ringo Starr, Paul McCartney, and George Harrison. The group first gained international fame in 1962 and disbanded in 1970.
- beat·nik (bēt'nīk) n. A person who acts and dresses with pointed, often exaggerated disregard for what is generally thought proper and who is given to radical and extravagant social criticism or self-expression. [From beat generation, a group of unconventional young people of the 1950's + -NIK.]

Bea-ton (bēt'n), Cecil Walter Hardy. 1904-1980. British photographer, diarist, and theatrical designer noted for his sets and costumes for My Fair Lady (stage, 1956; film, 1964).

Be-a-trix (bā'ə-trīks', bē'-), Born 1938. Queen of the Netherlands who ascended the throne in April 1980 after the abdication of her mother, Juliana.

Beat-tie (bā'tē, bē'-), James. 1735-1803. Scottish philosopher and poet best known as the author of The Minstrel (1771-1774), which detailed in Spenserian stanzas the evolution of poetic genius.

beat-up (bēt'üp') adj. Slang. Damaged or worn because of neglect or heavy use.

beau (bō) n. pl. beaus or beaux (bōz). 1. The boyfriend of a woman or girl. 2. A dandy; a fop. [French, from beau, bel, handsome, from Latin bellus. See deu-² in Appendix.]

Beau Brum-mell (bō brūm'əl) n. A dandy; a fop. [After George Bryan ("Beau") BRUMMELL.]

beau-coup (bō'kōō', bōō'-, bō-kōō') also boo-coo or boo-koo (bōō'-) Chiefly Southern U.S. adj. Many; much: beaucoup money. — n. pl.

beau-coups also beau-coos or boo-koos. An abundance; a lot. — adv. In abundance; galore: money beaucoup. [French : beau, bel, fine, handsome; see BEAU + coup, stroke; see COUP.]

Beau-fort (bō'fərt), Henry. 1377?-1447. English prelate and diplomat who was papal legate to a crusade against the Hussites (1427-1431) and crowned Henry VI king of France and England (1431).

Beau-fort (bō'fərt), Margaret Countess of Richmond and Derby. 1441-1509. English Lancastrian. She forged an alliance with the Yorkists through the marriage of her son Henry Tudor (later Henry VII) to Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the influential Woodville family.

Beaufort scale (bō'fərt skāl) n. A scale on which successive ranges of wind velocities are assigned code numbers from 0 (calm) to 12 (hurricane), corresponding to wind speeds of from less than 1 mile per hour (0-1 kilometer per hour) to over 74 miles per hour (over 117 kilometers per hour). [After Sir Francis Beaufort (1774-1857), British naval officer.]

Beaufort Sea (bō'fərt sē) A part of the Arctic Ocean north of northeast Alaska and northwest Canada extending from Point Barrow, Alaska, to the Canadian Arctic Archipelago. Covered with pack ice year-round, it was first explored in 1914.

beau geste (bō zhěst') n. pl. beaux gestes or beau gestes (bō zhěst').

1. A gracious gesture. 2. A gesture noble in form but meaningless in substance. [French : beau, noble + geste, gesture.]

Beau-har-nais (bō-är-nā'), Alexandre de. 1760-1794. French soldier who fought with Rochambeau's troops in the American Revolution and later in France with the French Revolutionary army. He was guillotined during the Reign of Terror.

Beau-har-nais (bō-är-nā'), Eugène de. 1781-1824. French soldier and statesman. Son of Alexandre and Josephine de Beauharnais, he was later adopted by Napoleon I and became viceroy and then heir apparent to the throne of Italy (1806).

Beau-har-nais (bō-är-nā'), Josephine de. 1763-1814. Empress of the French (1804-1809) as the wife of Napoleon I. Married first to Alexandre de Beauharnais, she wed Napoleon Bonaparte in 1796. The marriage was annulled (1809) because of her alleged infertility.

beau i-de-al (bō' ī-dē'əl) n. pl. beau ideals. 1. The concept of perfect beauty. 2. An idealized type or model: the beau ideal of an American army officer. [French beau idéal: beau, perfect + ideal, ideal.]

Beau-jo-lais¹ (bō'zhə-lā') A hilly region of east-central France west of the Saône River between Mâcon and Lyon. It is noted for its wine.

Beau-jo-lais² (bō'zhə-lā') n. A light red table wine. [After Beaujolais¹.]

Beau-mar-chais (bō-mär-shā'), Pierre Augustin Caron de. 1732-1799. French writer whose best-known works are the comic plays Le Barbier de Séville (1775) and Le Mariage de Figaro (1784), which inspired operas by Rossini and Mozart.

beau monde (bō mōnd', mōnd') n. pl. beaux mondes (bō mōnd') or beau mondes (bō mōndz'). The world of fashionable society. [French: beau, good + monde, world, society.]

Beau-mont (bō'mōnt') A city of southeast Texas north-northeast of Houston. A ship canal links the city with the Gulf of Mexico. Population, 114,323.

Beau-mont (bō'mōnt', -mənt), Francis. 1584-1616. English poet and playwright. He wrote his major works, including The Maid's Tragedy (1611), The Coxcomb (1612), and The Knight of Malta (1619), with John Fletcher.

Beau-mont (bō'mōnt'), William. 1785-1853. American surgeon whose Physiology of Digestion (1833) revolutionized the study of gastric digestion.

Beau-port (bō-pôrt') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Quebec City on the St. Lawrence River. Settled in 1634, it is one of the oldest communities in Canada. Population, 60,447.

Beau-re-gard (bō'rī-gärd', bō-rə-gär'), Pierre Gustave Toutant. 1818-1893. American Confederate general known for his flamboyant personal style and dashing but not always successful strategic campaigns. He ordered the bombardment of Fort Sumter in April 1861.

beaut (byōöt) n. Slang. Something outstanding of its kind: "When I make a mistake, it's a beaut!" (Fiorello H. La Guardia). [Short for BEAUTY.]

beau-te-ous (byōō'tē-əs) adj. Beautiful, especially to the sight.

—beau'te-ous-ly adv. —beau'te-ous-ness n.

beau-ti-cian (byōō-tīsh'ən) n. One skilled in giving cosmetic treatments.

beau-ti-ful (byōō'tə-fəl) adj. 1. Having qualities that delight the senses, especially the sense of sight. 2. Exciting intellectual or emotional admiration.

—beau'ti-ful-ly adv. —beau'ti-ful-ness n.

SYNONYMS: beautiful, lovely, pretty, handsome, comely, fair. All these adjectives apply to what excites aesthetic admiration. Beautiful, the most comprehensive, applies to what stirs a heightened response both of the senses (a beautiful child; beautiful country; a beautiful painting) and of the mind on its highest level (a persuasive and beautiful theory; a beautiful mathematical proof). Lovely applies to what inspires emotion rather than intellectual appreciation: “They were lovely, your eyes, but you didn’t know where to look” (George Seferis). “Every man feels instinctively that all the beautiful sentiments in the world weigh less than a single lovely action” (James Russell Lowell). What is pretty is beautiful but in a delicate or graceful way; the word rarely applies to what is imposing: a pretty face; a pretty song; a pretty room. Handsome stresses visual appeal by reason of conformity to ideals of form and proportion: a very large, handsome paneled library. “She is very pretty, but not so extraordinarily handsome” (Thackeray). Comely is usually restricted to wholesome physical attractiveness: “Mrs. Hurd is a large woman with a big, comely, simple face” (Ernest Hemingway). Fair in this context emphasizes visual appeal deriving from freshness or purity: “In the highlands, in the country places,/Where the old plain men have rosy faces,/And the young fair maidens/Quiet eyes” (Robert Louis Stevenson).

beautiful people also Beautiful People (byōō'tə-fəl pē'pəl) pl.n. Abbr.

bp, BP Wealthy, prominent people, especially those in international society.

beau-ti-fy (byōō'tə-fī') v. tr. intr. beau-ti-fied, beau-ti-fy-ing, beau-ti-fies.

To make or become beautiful. —beau'ti-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

—beau'ti-fi'er n.

beau-ty (byōō'tē) n. pl. beau-ties. 1. A delightful quality associated with harmony of form or color, excellence of craftsmanship, truthfulness, originality, or another property. 2. One that is beautiful, especially a beautiful woman. 3. A quality or feature that is most effective, gratifying, or telling: The beauty of the venture is that we stand to lose nothing. 4. An outstanding or conspicuous example: “Hammett’s gun went off. The shot was a beauty, just slightly behind the eyes” (Lillian Hellman). [Middle English beaute, from Old French biaute, from Vulgar Latin bellitās*, from Latin bellus, pretty. See deu-² in Appendix.]

beau-ty-ber-ry (byōō' tē-bēr'ē) n. Any of various shrubs of the genus Calli-carpa cultivated for their axillary clusters of showy, often lavender-pink to violet berrylike fruits.

beau·ty·bush (byōō'tē-bōōsh') n. A deciduous Chinese ornamental shrub (Kolkwitzia amabilis) cultivated for its profusion of showy pink flowers with yellow throats.

beauty mark (byōō'tē märk) n. See beauty spot (n., sense 1).

beauty parlor (byōō'tē pär'lər) n. An establishment providing women with services that include hair treatment, manicures, and facials. Also called beauty salon, beauty shop.

beauty quark (byōō'tē kwôrk) n. See bottom quark.

beauty salon (byōō'tē sə-lŏn') n. See beauty parlor.

beauty shop (byōō'tē shŏp) n. See beauty parlor.

beauty spot (byōō'tē spŏt) n. 1. A mole or birthmark. Also called beauty mark 2. A small black mark penciled or glued on a woman's face or shoulders to accentuate the fairness of her skin or to conceal a blemish.

Beau·vais (bō-vā') A town of northern France north-northwest of Paris. Its tapestry works, established in the 17th century, were destroyed in June 1940 during World War II. Population, 52,365.

Beau·voir (bō-vwār'), Simone de. 1908-1986. French writer, existentialist, and feminist whose works include The Second Sex (1949) and The Coming of Age (1970), a study of how different cultures view old age.

beaux (bōz) n. A plural of beau.

Beaux (bō), Cecilia. 1863-1942. American artist who excelled in portraits, especially those of women and children.

beaux-arts (bō-zär', -zärt') pl.n. The fine arts. [French : beau, fine + art, art.]

beaux es-prises (bō'zē-sprē') n. Plural of bel esprit.

beaux gestes (bō zhěst') n. A plural of beau geste.

beaux mondes (bō mônd') n. A plural of beau monde.

bea·ver¹ (bē'vər) n. 1. a. A large aquatic rodent of the genus Castor, having thick brown fur, webbed hind feet, a broad flat tail, and sharp incisors adapted for gnawing bark, felling trees, and constructing dams and underwater lodges.

b. The fur of this rodent. c. A top hat originally made of the underfur of this rodent. 2. A napped wool fabric, similar to felt, used for outer garments.

3. a. Offensive & Vulgar Slang. The female genitalia. b. Offensive & Vulgar Slang. A woman or girl. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a beaver or beavers: beaver fur; a beaver hat. 2. Constructed by beavers: beaver dams. — v. intr. bea·vered, bea·ver·ing, bea·vers. To work diligently and energetically. [Middle English bever, from Old English beofor. See bher-² in Appendix.]

bea·ver² (bē'vər) n. 1. A piece of armor attached to a helmet or breastplate to protect the mouth and chin. 2. The visor on a helmet. [Middle English bavier, from Old French baviere, child's bib, beaver, from bave, saliva.]

bea-ver-board (bē'vər-bōrd', -bōrd') n. A light, semirigid building material of compressed wood pulp, used for walls and partitions. [Originally a trademark.]

Bea-ver-brook (bē'vər-brōök'), First Baron Originally William Maxwell Aitken. 1879-1964. Canadian-born British publisher, financier, and politician. He founded his press empire on the Daily Express (1916) and the Evening Standard (1923), held many cabinet positions during the 1940's, and was a confidant of Winston Churchill.

Bea-ver-creek (bē'vər-krēk') A village of southwest Ohio, a residential suburb of Dayton. Population, 33,626.

Bea-ver-head Mountains (bē'vər-hēd' moun'tənz) A section of the Bitterroot Range in the Rocky Mountains along the Continental Divide on the border between eastern Idaho and southwest Montana. It rises to 3,343.1 m (10,961 ft) at Garfield Mountain.

Bea-ver River (bē'vər rīv'ər) 1. A river rising in central Alberta, Canada, and flowing about 491 km (305 mi) eastward into Saskatchewan then north to the headwaters of the Churchill River. 2. A name for the North Canadian River as it flows about 450 km (280 mi) through northwest Oklahoma.

Bea-ver-ton (bē'vər-tən) A city of northwest Oregon west of Portland. It was founded in 1868. Population, 53,310.

Be-bel (bā'bəl), (Ferdinand) August. 1840-1913. German socialist leader who was a cofounder and leader of the Social Democratic Party, organized in 1869.

be-bop (bē'bɒp') n. Music. Bop. [Imitation of a two-beat phrase in this music.]
—be'bop'per n.

be-calm (bī-kām') v. tr. be-calmed, be-calm-ing, be-calms. 1. To render motionless for lack of wind. 2. To make calm or still; soothe.

be-came (bī-kām') v. Past tense of become.

be-cause (bī-kōz', -kūz') conj. For the reason that; since. [Middle English. See BECAUSE OF.]

USAGE NOTE: A traditional rule holds that the construction the reason is because is redundant, and should be avoided in favor of the reason is that. The usage is well established, however, and can be justified by analogy to constructions such as His purpose in calling her was so that she would be forewarned of the change in schedule or The last time I saw her was when she was leaving for college. All three constructions are somewhat less than graceful, however. • When because follows a negated verb phrase, it should be preceded by a comma when the because clause explains why the event did not occur. He didn't marry her, because she was frivolous means roughly, "Her frivolity was his reason for not marrying her." When no comma is used, the because clause is understood as part of what is being negated.

He didn't marry her because she was frivolous means roughly, "His reason for marrying her was independent of her frivolity." See Usage Note at as¹.

because of (bĭ-kôz' ŭv) prep. On account of; by reason of. [Middle English bi cause of, by reason of : bi, by; see BY¹ + cause, reason; see CAUSE + of, of; see OF.]

bec-ca-fi-co (bĕk'ə-fĕ'kō) n. pl. bec-ca-fi-cos. A small songbird or warbler of various genera, especially the European garden warbler (Sylvia hortensis), that is eaten as a delicacy in Italy and France. [Italian : beccare, to peck (from becco, beak, from Latin beccus); see BEAK + fico, fig (from Latin fĭcus).]

bé·cha·mel sauce (bā'shə-mĕl' sôs) n. A white sauce of butter, flour, and milk or cream. [French sauce béchamel, after Louis de Béchamel (1603-1703), chief steward of Louis XIV.]

be·chance (bĭ-chāns') v. intr. tr. be·chanced, be·chanc·ing, be·chanc·es. Archaic. To happen or happen to.

bêche-de-mer (bĕsh'də-mâr') n. pl. bêches-de-mer (bĕsh'də-mâr'). See trepang. [French, alteration (influenced by bêche, grub), of biche-de-mer, from Portuguese bicho do mar : bicho, worm (from Late Latin bĕstulus, diminutive of Latin bĕstia, beast) + do, of the + mar, sea (from Latin mare); see mori- in Appendix.]

Bêche-de-Mer (bĕsh' də-mâr') n. See Bislama. [From the commercial importance of BÊCHE-DE-MER where the language is spoken.]

Bech·u·a·na (bĕch'ōō-ă'nə) n. pl. Bechuana or Bech·u·a·nas. See Tswana (n., sense 1).

Bech·u·a·na·land (bĕch-wă'nə-lănd', bĕch'ōō-ă'nə-) See Botswana.

beck¹ (bĕk) n. A gesture of beckoning or summons. —idiom. at (one's) beck and call. Ready to comply with any wish or command. [Middle English bek, from bekken, to beckon, alteration of bekenen. See BECKON.]

beck² (bĕk) n. Chiefly British. A small brook; a creek. [Middle English, from Old Norse bekkr. See bheg^w- in Appendix.]

Beck·er (bĕk'ər), Carl Lotus. 1873-1945. American historian noted for his analyses of philosophies in action. His works include Our Great Experiment in Democracy (1924).

Beck·er (bĕk'ər), George Ferdinand. 1847-1919. American geologist and physicist who did important survey work in the American West, South Africa, and the Philippines.

beck·et (bĕk'ĭt) n. Nautical. A device, such as a looped rope, hook and eye, strap, or grommet, used to hold or fasten loose ropes, spars, or oars in position. [Origin unknown.]

Beck·et (bĕk'ĭt), Saint Thomas à. 1118?-1170. English Roman Catholic martyr. Chancellor to Henry II after 1154, he was appointed archbishop of Canterbury (1162) and fell into disfavor with the king. Charged with misappropriating crown funds (1164), Becket fled the country. Upon his return (1170) he was embroiled in the controversy surrounding Henry's appointment of his son as archbishop of York and was murdered by four knights in Canterbury Cathedral. He was canonized in 1173.

Beck·ett (bĕk'ĭt), Samuel. 1906-1989. Irish-born writer whose novels include Murphy (1938) and Malone Dies (1951). Beckett is known to a wider audience for his absurdist plays, such as Waiting for Godot (1952) and Krapp's Last Tape (1959). He won the 1969 Nobel Prize for literature.

Beck·ford (bĕk'fərd), William. 1759?-1844. British writer and collector noted for his Arabian tale Vathek (1782), written in French, and for his magnificent residences.

Beck·ley (bĕk'lē) A city of southern West Virginia southeast of Charleston. It is a trade center in a coal-mining region. Population, 18,296.

Beck·mann (bĕk'män), Max. 1884-1950. German artist whose early expressionistic manner yielded to his lasting style, the painting of brutal, often grotesque figurative canvases, such as Night (1919).

Beck·nell (bĕk'nəl), William. 1796?-1865. American frontier explorer who established the Sante Fe Trail (1822), the main trading route to the American Southwest.

beck·on (bĕk'ən) v. beck·oned, beck·on·ing, beck·ons. — v. tr. 1. To signal or summon, as by nodding or waving. 2. To attract because of an inviting or enticing appearance: "a lovely, sunny country that seemed to beckon them on to the Emerald City" (L. Frank Baum). — v. intr. 1. To make a signaling or summoning gesture. 2. To be inviting or enticing. — n. A gesture of summons. [Middle English bekenen, from Old English bēcnan. See bhā¹ in Appendix.]
—beck'on·er n. —beck'on·ing·ly adv.

be·cloud (bī-kloud') v. tr. be·cloud·ed, be·cloud·ing, be·clouds. To darken with or as if with clouds; obscure: a development that beclouds the real issues.

be·come (bī-kŭm') v. be·came (-kām'), be·come, be·com·ing, be·comes. — v. intr. To grow or come to be: became more knowledgeable; will become clearer in the morning. — v. tr. 1. To be appropriate or suitable to: "It would not become me... to interfere with parties" (Jonathan Swift). 2. To show to advantage; look good with: The new suit becomes you. —phrasal verb. become of. To be the fate of; happen to: What has become of the old garden? [Middle English bicomen, from Old English becuman. See g^wā- in Appendix.]

be·com·ing (bī-kŭm'ĭng) adj. 1. Appropriate, suitable, or proper. 2. Pleasing or attractive to the eye. —be·com'ing·ly adv. —be·com'ing·ness n.

Bec·que·rel (bĕ-krĕl', bĕk'ə-rĕl') Family of French physicists, including Antoine César (1788-1878), one of the first investigators of electrochemistry; his son Alexandre Edmond (1820-1891), noted for his research on phosphorescence and spectroscopy; and his grandson Antoine Henri (1852-1908), who shared a 1903 Nobel Prize for fundamental work in nuclear physics.

bed (bĕd) n. 1. a. A piece of furniture for reclining and sleeping, typically consisting of a flat, rectangular frame and a mattress resting on springs. b. A bedstead. c. A mattress. 2. a. A place where one may sleep; lodging: found bed and board at an inn. b. Accommodations for a single person at a hospital or institution: a maternity ward with 30 beds. 3. A time at which one goes to sleep: drank milk before bed. 4. A place for lovemaking. 5. A marital relationship with its rights and intimacies. 6. a. A small plot of cultivated or planted land: a flower bed. b. An underwater or intertidal area in which a particular organism is established in large numbers: a clam bed; an oyster bed. 7. The bottom of a body of water, such as a stream. 8. A supporting, underlying, or securing part, especially: a. A layer of food surmounted by another kind of food: tomatoes on a bed of lettuce. b. A foundation of crushed rock or a similar substance for a road or railroad; a roadbed. c. A layer of mortar upon which stones or bricks are laid. 9. Printing. The heavy table of a printing press in which the type form is placed. 10. The part of a truck, trailer, or freight car designed to carry loads. 11. Geology. a. A rock mass of large horizontal extent bounded, especially above, by physically different material. b. A deposit, as of ore, parallel to local stratification. 12. A heap of material: a bed of wood chips. — v. bed-ded, bed-ding, beds. — v. tr. 1. To furnish with a bed or sleeping quarters: We bedded our guests down in the study. 2. To put or send to bed. 3. To have sexual relations with. 4. To plant in a prepared plot of soil. 5. To lay flat or arrange in layers. 6. a. To embed. b. To establish; base. — v. intr. 1. To go to bed. 2. Geology. To form layers or strata. — idioms. get into bed with. Slang. To become closely involved with another person or group, as in an intrigue: “The Israelis were experienced at [covert] work, but it was essential that the administration not get into bed with them on this” (Bob Woodward). go to bed with. To have sexual relations with. [Middle English, from Old English.]

B.Ed. abbr. Bachelor of Education.

Be·da (bĕ'də) See Bede.

bed-and-break-fast or bed and breakfast (bĕd'n-brĕk'fəst) n. Abbr. B & B A private residence, several rooms of which are set aside for overnight guests whose paid accommodations include breakfast. — bed'-and-break'fast adj.

be·daub (bĭ-dôb') v. tr. be-daubed, be-daub-ing, be-daubs. 1. To smear; soil. 2. To ornament in a vulgar, showy fashion.

be·daz·zle (bĭ-dăz'əl) v. tr. be-daz-zled, be-daz-zling, be-daz-zles. 1. To dazzle so completely as to make blind. 2. To please irresistibly; enchant.

—be-daz'zle-ment n.

bed-bug also bed bug (bĕd'bug') n. A wingless, odorous insect (Cimex lectularius) with a flat, reddish body that infests dwellings and bedding and feeds on human blood. Regional. Also called chinchRegional., chinch bug.

bed-chamber (bĕd'chām'bər) n. A bedroom.

bed check (bĕd chĕk) n. An inspection held at night in order to ensure that certain people, such as students or military personnel, are in bed as required by rules and regulations.

bed-clothes (bĕd'klōz', -klōthz') pl.n. Coverings, such as sheets and blankets, that are ordinarily used on a bed.

bed-ding (bĕd'ing) n. 1. Bedclothes. 2. Material, especially straw, on which animals sleep. 3. A bottom layer; a foundation. 4. Geology. Stratification of rocks into beds.

bedding plant (bĕd'ing plānt) n. A plant that has already been grown to blooming or near-blooming size before being planted out in a usually formal area for seasonal display of colorful flowers or foliage.

Bed-does (bĕd'ōz'), Thomas Lovell. 1803-1849. British poet whose often macabre works include The Bride's Tragedy (1822) and Death's Jest-Book (1850), published posthumously.

Bede (bĕd) also Bae-da or Be-da (bĕ'də), Known as "the Venerable Bede." 673?-735. Anglo-Saxon theologian and historian whose major work, Ecclesiastical History of the English Nation (731), written in Latin, remains an important source of ancient English history. He introduced the method of dating events from the birth of Christ.

be-deck (bĭ-dĕk') v. tr. be-decked, be-deck-ing, be-decks. To adorn or ornament in a showy fashion.

be-dev-il (bĭ-dĕv'əl) v. tr. be-dev-iled or be-dev-illed, be-dev-il-ing or be-dev-il-ling, be-dev-ils or be-dev-ils. 1. To torment mercilessly; plague. 2. To worry, annoy, or frustrate. 3. To possess with or as if with a devil; bewitch. 4. To spoil; ruin. —be-dev'il-ment n.

be-dew (bĭ-dōō', -dyōō') v. tr. be-dewed, be-dew-ing, be-dews. To wet with or as if with dew.

bed-fast (bĕd'făst') adj. Confined to bed; bedridden.

bed-fel-low (bĕd'fĕl'ō) n. 1. A bedmate. 2. One that is closely associated or allied with another: "Stupidity here makes an easy bedfellow, as always, with racial-ism" (Christopher Hitchens).

Bed-ford (bĕd'fərd) 1. A municipal borough of south-central England on the Ouse River west of Cambridge. It was the site of a British victory over the Saxons in 571. Population, 74,500. 2. A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 15,056. 3. A city of northern Texas northeast of Fort Worth. It was settled c. 1843. Population, 20,821.

Bed-ford (bĕd'fərd), Duke of. See John of Lancaster.

Bedford cord (bɛd'fərd kōrd) n. A heavy fabric with a lengthwise ribbed weave that resembles corduroy. [After Bedford, England.]

be-dight (bī-dīt') v. tr. be-dight or be-dight-ed, be-dight-ing, be-dights. Archaic. To dress or array. [Middle English bidighten : bi-, be- + dighten, adorn; see DIGHT.]

be-dim (bī-dīm') v. tr. be-dimmed, be-dim-ming, be-dims. To make dim.

be-di-zen (bī-dī'zən, -dīz'ən) v. tr. be-di-zened, be-di-zen-ing, be-di-zens. To ornament or dress in a showy or gaudy manner. [BE- + DIZEN.]

—be-di'zen-ment n.

bed-lam (bɛd'ləm) n. 1. A place or situation of noisy uproar and confusion.

2. Often Bedlam. Archaic. An insane asylum. [Middle English Bedlem, Hospital of Saint Mary of Bethlehem, an institution in London for the mentally ill.]

bed-lam-ite (bɛd'lə-mīt') n. A mentally ill person.

Bed-ling-ton terrier (bɛd'lɪŋ-tən tɛr'ē-ər) n. A dog of a breed developed in England, having a woolly grayish or brownish coat. [After Bedlington, a town of northeast England.]

Bed-loe's Island (bɛd'lōz ī'lənd) See Liberty Island.

bed-mate (bɛd'māt') n. One with whom a bed is shared.

bed molding (bɛd mōl'dɪŋ) n. 1. The molding between the corona and frieze of an entablature. 2. A molding below a projecting part.

Bed-norz (bɛd'nōrts), J. Georg. Born 1950. German physicist. He shared a 1987 Nobel Prize for pioneering research in superconductivity.

bed of roses (bɛd ðv rō'zɪz) n. A state of great comfort or luxury.

Bed-ou-in also Bed-u-in (bɛd'ō-ɪn, bɛd'wɪn) n. pl. Bedouin or Bed-ou-ins also Beduin or Be-du-ins. An Arab of any of the nomadic tribes of the Arabian, Syrian, Nubian, or Sahara deserts. [Middle English Bedoin, from Old French beduin, from Arabic badāwīn, pl. of badāwī, from badw, desert.]

bed-pan (bɛd'pän') n. A metal, glass, or plastic receptacle for the urinary and fecal discharges of persons confined to bed.

bed-plate (bɛd'plāt') n. A plate, frame, or platform serving as a base or support for a machine.

bed-post (bɛd'pōst') n. A vertical post at the corner of a bed.

be-drag-gle (bī-dräg'əl) v. tr. be-drag-gled, be-drag-gling, be-drag-gles. To make wet and limp. [BE- + DRAGGLE.]

be-drag-gled (bī-dräg'əld) adj. 1. a. Wet; limp. b. Soiled by or as if by having been dragged through mud. 2. Being in a condition of deterioration; dilapidated: a street of bedraggled tenements.

bed-rid-den (bɛd'rɪd'n) also bed-rid (-rɪd') adj. Confined to bed because of illness or infirmity. [Middle English bedreden, from Old English bedrida : bed, bed; see BED + rida, rider (from rīdan, to ride); see RIDE.]

bed-rock (běd'rök') n. 1. The solid rock that underlies loose material, such as soil, sand, clay, or gravel. 2. a. The very basis; the foundation: Ownership of land is the bedrock of democracy. b. The lowest point: personal finances that were at bedrock.

bed-roll (běd'rōl') n. A portable roll of bedding used especially by campers and others who sleep outdoors.

bed-room (běd'rōom', -rōom') n. Abbr. bdrm., BR A room in which to sleep. — adj. 1. Sexually suggestive: a bedroom comedy; bedroom eyes. 2. Relating to or inhabited by commuters: bedroom suburbs.

bed-side (běd'sīd') n. The side of a bed or the space alongside it. — adj. 1. Near a bed: a bedside table. 2. Of, relating to, or carried out near a bed: a physician's bedside conversation with a patient.

bedside manner (běd'sīd' măn'ər) n. The attitude and conduct of a physician in the presence of a patient.

bed-sit-ter (běd'sīt'ər) n. Chiefly British. A one-room apartment that serves as a bedroom and a living room. [From BED + SITTING ROOM.]

bed-so-ni-a (běd-sō'nē-ə) n. pl. bed-so-ni-ae (-nē-ī'). Any of a group of microorganisms of the genus Chlamydia that are obligate intracellular parasites and include the causative agents of trachoma, psittacosis, and lymphogranuloma venereum. [New Latin, after Sir Samuel P. Bedson (died 1969), British bacteriologist.]

bed-sore (běd'sôr', -sōr') n. A pressure-induced ulceration of the skin occurring in persons confined to bed for long periods of time. Also called decubitus ulcer bed-spread (běd'sprěd') n. A usually decorative covering for a bed.

bed-spring (běd'sprīng') n. One of the springs supporting the mattress of a bed. Often used in the plural.

bed-stead (běd'stěd') n. The frame supporting a bed.

bed-straw (běd'strô') n. Any of several weedy or ornamental plants of the genus Galium, having whorled leaves, clusters of small white or yellow flowers, and prickly stems. Also called cleavers [Short for Our Lady's Bedstraw, name for a plant of the genus Galium, whose foliage was used to stuff mattresses in medieval times.]

bed-time (běd'tīm') n. The time at which one goes to bed.

bedtime story (běd'tīm' stôr'ē) n. A story that is read or told to a child just before bedtime.

Bed-u-in (běd'ōo-īn, běd'wīn) n. Variant of Bedouin.

bed-wet-ting (běd'wět'īng) n. Enuresis, especially when occurring nocturnally during sleep. — bed wetter n.

Be-dzin (běn'jēn') A town of southern Poland northeast of Katowice. It was part of Russia from 1815 to 1919. Population, 77,100.

bee¹ (bē) n. 1. a. Any of several winged, hairy-bodied, usually stinging insects of the superfamily Apoidea in the order Hymenoptera, including both solitary and social species and characterized by sucking and chewing mouthparts for gathering nectar and pollen. b. A bumblebee. c. A honeybee. 2. A social gathering where people combine work, competition, and amusement: a quilting bee. —idiom. a bee in (one's) bonnet. An impulsive, often eccentric turn of mind; a notion. [Middle English, from Old English bēo; see bhei- in Appendix. Sense 2 perhaps also alteration of dialectal bean, voluntary help given to a farmer by his neighbors from Middle English bene, extra service by a tenant to his lord, from Old English bēn, prayer. See bhā-² in Appendix.]

bee² (bē) n. Nautical. A bee block. [Middle English be, a ring, from Old English bēag. See bheug- in Appendix.]

bee³ (bē) n. The letter b.

bee balm (bē bām) n. An aromatic eastern North American herb (Monarda didyma) in the mint family, having variously colored, tubular bilabiate flowers grouped in dense, showy heads. Also called bergamot

Bee-be (bē'bē), (Charles) William. 1877-1962. American naturalist, explorer, and author whose numerous expeditions include a record oceanic descent in a bathysphere he helped design (1934).

bee block (bē blök) n. Nautical. A piece of hardwood on either side of a bowsprit through which forestays are reeved.

bee-bread (bē'brəd') n. A brownish substance consisting of a mixture of pollen and honey and used by bees as food.

beech (bēch) n. 1. a. A deciduous tree of the genus Fagus having smooth, gray bark, alternate, simple leaves, and three-angled nuts enclosed in prickly burs. The best-known species are F. grandifolia of eastern North America and the European species F. sylvatica and its numerous cultivated forms. b. The wood of any of these trees, used for flooring, containers, plywood, and tool handles. 2. Any of several other woody plants, as in the genera Carpinus and Nothofagus. [Middle English beche, from Old English bēce. See bhāgo- in Appendix.]

Bee-cham (bē'chəm), Sir Thomas. 1879-1961. British conductor who founded the London Philharmonic (1932) and the Royal Philharmonic (1947) orchestras and helped popularize the works of Frederick Delius.

beech-drops or beech-drops (bēch'drōps') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A brownish eastern North American annual plant (Epifagus virginiana) having scalelike leaves and whitish tubular flowers with brown-purple stripes. It is parasitic on the roots of the beech tree.

Bee-cher (bē'chər) A city of east-central Michigan, a suburb of Flint. Population, 17,178.

Bee-cher (bē'chər), Lyman. 1775-1863. American cleric. A fiery preacher, moderate Calvinist theologian, and resolute abolitionist, he was the father of Catharine Esther Beecher (1800-1878), who promoted equal educational opportunities for women; Edward Beecher (1803-1895), a clergyman and educator noted for his abolitionist views and writings; and Henry Ward Beecher (1813-1887), a clergyman and newspaper editor famous for his abolitionist orations. Harriet Beecher Stowe was another of Lyman's children.

beech fern (bēch fûrn) n. Either of two woodland ferns with deeply cut triangular blades, Thelypteris hexagonoptera of eastern North America and T. phegopteris of North America and Eurasia.

beech mast (bēch măst) n. The nuts of the beech tree; beechnuts.

beech·nut (bēch'nŭt') n. The small, three-angled nut of a beech tree.

bee·eat·er (bē'ē'tər) n. Any of various chiefly tropical Old World birds of the family Meropidae that have brightly colored plumage and feed on bees and wasps.

beef (bēf) n. pl. beeves (bēvz) or beef. 1. a. A full-grown steer, bull, ox, or cow, especially one intended for use as meat. b. The flesh of a slaughtered full-grown steer, bull, ox, or cow. 2. Informal. Human muscle; brawn. 3. pl. beeves. Slang. A complaint. — v. intr. beefed, beef·ing, beeves. Slang. To complain. — phrasal verb. beef up. Informal. To make or become greater or stronger: beef up the defense budget. [Middle English, from Old French buef, from Latin bōs, bov-. See g^wou- in Appendix.]

beef·a·lo (bē'fə-lō') n. pl. beefalo or beef·a·los or beef·a·loes. A hybrid that results from a cross between the American buffalo, or bison, and beef cattle and is typically 8 buffalo and 8 bovine. Beefalo yields leaner beef than conventional breeds of cattle. Also called cattalo [BEEF + (BUFF)ALO.]

beef bour·gui·gnon (bēf bōr'gēn-yôn', -yôn') n. Braised beef cubes simmered in a seasoned red wine sauce with mushrooms, carrots, and onions. [French boeuf bourguignon, from Burgogne, Burgundy, a region of eastern France.]

beef·cake (bēf'kāk') n. Informal. Minimally attired men with muscular physiques, as in photographs or motion pictures. [BEEF + (CHEESE)CAKE.]

beef·eat·er (bēf'ē'tər) n. A yeoman of the British monarch's royal guard.

WORD HISTORY: Tourists in England who have seen the warders of the Tower of London and the Yeomen of the Guard know that these men dressed in 15th-century uniforms are called beefeaters. Not all tourists are aware, however, that the original use of the term (recorded in 1610) was pejorative, referring to a well-fed servant. In a work published before 1628 the word was also said to have been used contemptuously by the French for an Englishman or an English soldier. The word beefeater has thus risen in the world, for the well-fed, well-muscled beefeaters of today (this use was first recorded in 1671) are considered by many to be a national treasure.

beefed-up (bēft'ŭp') adj. Informal. Having been made greater or stronger: "Beefed-up sales efforts [by competitors] overwhelmed them" (Wall Street Journal).

bee fly (bē flī) n. Any of various flies of the family Bombyliidae that resemble bees, feed on nectar and pollen, and have larvae that are parasitic on bees, wasps, and other insects.

beef-steak (bēf'stāk') n. A slice of beef, such as one taken from the loin or the hindquarters, suitable for broiling or frying.

beefsteak fungus (bēf'stāk' fŭng'gəs) n. An edible fungus (Fistulina hepatica), growing on living tree trunks, such as oak and ash, and having a large, irregularly shaped reddish cap.

beef stro-ga-noff (bēf strō'gə-nôf', -nôf') n. Thinly sliced beef fillet sautéed and mixed with onions, mushrooms, sour cream, and herbs, often served on a bed of noodles or rice. [After Count Paul Stroganoff, 19th-century Russian diplomat.]

beef Well-ing-ton (bēf wēl'ing-tən) n. A fillet of beef covered with pâté de foie gras, encased in pastry, and baked. [Probably from the name Wellington.]

beef-wood (bēf'wōd') n. 1. Any of various Australian evergreen trees or shrubs of the genus Casuarina, having jointed stems, scalelike whorled leaves, and small fruits grouped in woody, conelike structures. 2. The wood of any of these plants, often used in construction. Also called Australian pine, casuarina.

beef-y (bē'fē) adj. beef-i-er, beef-i-est. 1. a. Muscular in build; brawny: a beefy wrestler. b. Substantial; filling: "a rather... beefy, densely colored wine" (Robert M. Parker, Jr.). 2. Filled with beef. —beef'i-ness n.

bee gum (bē gŭm) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. 1. A beehive located in a hollow tree or log. 2. Any beehive. [BEE¹ + gum, a hollowed-out log (from GUM¹).]

bee-hive (bē'hīv') n. A hive for bees.

bee-keep-er (bē'kē'pər) n. See apiarist. —bee'keep-ing n.

bee-line (bē'līn') n. A direct, straight course. [From the belief that a bee returns to its hive in a straight course.]

Be-el-ze-bub (bē-əl'zə-bŭb') n. Theology. 1. The Devil; Satan. 2. One of the fallen angels in Milton's Paradise Lost. Beelzebub was next to Satan in power. 3. An evil spirit; a demon. [Probably ultimately alteration of ba'al zebûl, exalted Baal : ba'al, Baal + zebûl, exalted.]

bee moth (bē môth) n. A moth (Galleria mellonella) that lays its eggs in beehives, where the larvae feed on the wax and debris of the honeycombs. Also called wax moth been (bĭn) v. Past participle of be.

beep (bēp) n. A sound or a signal, as from a horn or an electronic device. — v. intr. beeped, beep-ing, beeps. To make a beep. — v. tr. 1. To cause to make a beep. 2. To call, summon, or warn by means of a beeper. [Imitative.]

beep-er (bē'pər) n. 1. One that beeps. 2. A small portable electronic device that emits a beeping signal when the person carrying it is being paged. In this sense, also called pager bee plant (bē plānt) n. Any of numerous plants that attract bees for nectar or pollen.

beer (bîr) n. 1. a. A fermented alcoholic beverage brewed from malt and flavored with hops. b. A fermented beverage brewed by traditional methods that is then dealcoholized so that the finished product contains no more than 0.5 percent alcohol. c. A carbonated beverage produced by a method in which the fermentation process is either circumvented or altered, resulting in a finished product having an alcohol content of no more than 0.01 percent. 2. A beverage made from extracts of roots and plants: birch beer. [Middle English ber, from Old English bēor, from West Germanic, probably from Latin bibere, to drink. See pō(i)- in Appendix.]

Beer (bâr), Wilhelm. 1797-1850. German banker and astronomer who published maps of the moon and Mars.

Beer-bohm (bîr'bōm'), Sir Henry Maximilian. Known as "Max." 1872-1956. British caricaturist, writer, and wit whose Caricatures of Twenty-five Gentlemen appeared in 1896. He spent most of his later years in Italy.

Beer-naert (bâr'närt), Auguste Marie François. 1829-1912. Belgian diplomat active in the peace conferences at The Hague (1899 and 1907). He shared the 1909 Nobel Peace Prize.

Beers (bîrz), Clifford Whittingham. 1876-1943. American mental-health pioneer who as a patient discovered abysmal conditions in asylums. On his release he wrote an autobiography, A Mind That Found Itself (1908), and thereafter worked for international mental-health reforms.

Beer-she-ba (bîr-shē'bə, bër-shěv'ə) A city of southern Israel southwest of Jerusalem. In biblical times it marked the southern boundary of Palestine. Population, 114,300.

beer-y (bîr'ē) adj. beer-i-er, beer-i-est. 1. Smelling or tasting of beer: beery breath. 2. Affected or produced by beer: beery humor.

beest-ings also beast-ings (bē'stīngz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The first milk secreted by a mammal, especially a cow, after parturition; colostrum. [Middle English bestinggis, pl. of besting, from Old English bȳsting, from bēost, beestings.]

Bees-ton and Sta-ple-ford (bē'stən ənd stā'pəl-fərd) An urban district of central England, a suburb of Nottingham. Population, 65,400.

bees-wax (bēz'wāks') n. 1. The yellow to grayish-brown wax secreted by the honeybee for constructing honeycombs. 2. Commercial wax obtained by processing and purifying the crude wax of the honeybee and used in making candles, crayons, and polishes.

beet (bēt) n. 1. A biennial Eurasian plant (Beta vulgaris) grown as a crop plant for the edible roots and leaves. 2. The swollen root of this plant eaten as a vegetable, typically having reddish flesh. 3. The sugar beet. [Middle English bete, from Old English bēte, from Latin bēta.]

beet armyworm (bēt är'mē-wûrm') n. An armyworm (Spodoptera exigua) that feeds primarily on the foliage of alfalfa, beets, and other crops.

Bee-tho-ven (bā'tō'vən), Ludwig van. 1770-1827. German composer. The greatest composer of his day, he began to lose his hearing in 1801 and was deaf by 1819. His music, which formed a transition from classical to romantic composition, includes 9 symphonies, 5 piano concertos, a violin concerto, 32 piano sonatas, several other sonatas, 2 Masses, and an opera.

bee-tle¹ (bēt'l) n. 1. Any of numerous insects of the order Coleoptera, having biting mouthparts and forewings modified to form horny coverings that protect the underlying pair of membranous hind wings when at rest. 2. An insect resembling a member of the order Coleoptera. — v. intr. bee-tled, bee-ting, bee-tles. To make one's way or move like a beetle: "Chambermaids... beetled from bedroom to bedroom loaded with... champagne" (Vanity Fair). [Middle English betil, from Old English bitela, from bītan, to bite. See bheid- in Appendix.]

bee-tle² (bēt'l) adj. Jutting; overhanging: beetle brows. — v. intr. bee-tled, bee-ting, bee-tles. To jut; overhang: "The rocks often beetled over the road" (Washington Irving). [From Middle English bitel-brouwed, grim-browed : bitel, sharp (probably from Old English bitol*, biting, from Old English bite, bite); see BIT² + brouwed (from brow, brow); see BROW.]

bee-tle³ (bēt'l) n. 1. A heavy mallet with a large wooden head. 2. A small wooden household mallet. 3. A machine with revolving wooden hammers that gives fabrics a lustrous sheen. [Middle English betel, from Old English bȳtl. See bhau- in Appendix.]

beet leafhopper (bēt lēf'höp'ər) n. A small insect (Eutettix tenellus) that transmits a destructive viral disease to plants, especially sugar beets, in the United States.

bee-tle-weed (bēt'l-wēd') n. See galax.

bee tree (bē trē) n. 1. Any of various trees, such as the basswood, having nectar-rich flowers that are especially attractive to bees. 2. A hollow tree in which bees form nests.

beet-root (bēt'rōōt', -rōōt') n. Chiefly British. The edible root of the beet.

beetroot purple (bēt'rōōt' pûr'pəl) n. Color. A deep to very deep purplish red.

beeves (bēvz) n. A plural of beef.

bef. abbr. Before.

be·fall (bī-fôl') v. be·fell (-fēl'), be·fall·en (-fô'lən), be·fall·ing, be·falls.

— v. intr. To come to pass; happen. — v. tr. To happen to. See Synonyms at happen. [Middle English bifallen, from Old English befeallan, to fall.]

be·fit (bī-fīt') v. tr. be·fit·ted, be·fit·ting, be·fits. To be suitable to or appropriate for: formal attire that befits the occasion.

be·fit·ting (bī-fīt'ing) adj. Appropriate; suitable; proper. — be·fit'ing·ly adv.

be·fog (bī-fôg', -fög') v. tr. be·fogged, be·fog·ging, be·fogs. 1. To cover or obscure with or as if with fog. 2. To cause confusion in; muddle.

be·fool (bī-fōol') v. tr. be·fooled, be·fool·ing, be·fools. 1. To make a fool of. 2. To hoodwink; deceive.

be·fore (bī-fôr', -fôr') adv. 1. Earlier in time: They called me the day before.

2. In front; ahead. — prep. Abbr. bef. 1. Previous to in time; earlier than. 2. In front of. 3. In store for; awaiting: A young person's whole life lies before him.

4. Into or in the presence of: She asked that the visitor be brought before her.

5. Under the consideration or jurisdiction of: The case is now before the court.

6. In a position superior to: The prince is before his brother in the line of succession.

— conj. 1. In advance of the time when: See me before you leave. 2. Rather than; sooner than: I will die before I will betray my country. [Middle English bifore, from Old English beforan. See per¹ in Appendix.]

before Christ (bī-fôr' krīst) adv. Abbr. B.C. In a specified year of the pre-Christian era.

be·fore·hand (bī-fôr'händ', -fôr'-) adv. & adj. 1. In anticipation. 2. In advance; early.

be·fore·time (bī-fôr'tīm', -fôr'-) adv. Archaic. Formerly.

be·foul (bī-foul') v. tr. be·fouled, be·foul·ing, be·fouls. 1. To make dirty; soil. See Synonyms at contaminate. 2. To cast aspersions upon; speak badly of.

be·friend (bī-frēnd') v. tr. be·friend·ed, be·friend·ing, be·friends. To behave as a friend to.

be·fud·dle (bī-füd'l) v. tr. be·fud·dled, be·fud·dling, be·fud·dles. 1. To confuse; perplex. See Synonyms at confuse. 2. To stupefy with or as if with alcoholic drink.

beg (bĕg) v. begged, beg·ging, begs. — v. tr. 1. To ask for as charity: begged money while sitting in a doorway. 2. To ask earnestly for or of; entreat: begged me for help. 3. a. To evade; dodge: a speech that begged the real issues.

b. To take for granted without proof: beg the point in a dispute. — v. intr. 1. To solicit alms. 2. To make a humble or urgent plea. — phrasal verb. beg off.

To ask to be released from something, such as an obligation: We were invited to stay for dinner, but we had to beg off. [Middle English beggen, possibly from

Anglo-Norman begger, from Old French begart, lay brother, one who prays. See BEGGAR.]

SYNONYMS: beg, crave, beseech, implore, entreat, importune. These verbs mean to make an earnest request. Beg and crave apply to the act of asking in a serious and sometimes humble manner, especially for something one cannot claim as a right: I begged her to forgive me. The attorney craved the court's indulgence. Beseech emphasizes earnestness and often implies anxiety: Be silent, we beseech you. Implore intensifies the senses of urgent supplication and anxiety: The child, with tears in his eyes, implored his father not to be angry. Entreat pertains to persuasive pleading calculated to overcome opposition: "Ask me no questions, I entreat you" (Charles Dickens). Importune adds the sense of persistent and sometimes irksome pleading: The foundation was being importuned by fundraisers to contribute to new charities. See also Synonyms at cadge be·gan (bĭ-găn') v. Past tense of begin.

be·get (bĭ-gĕt') v. tr. be·got (-gŏt'), be·got·ten (-gŏt'n) or be·got,

be·get·ting, be·gets. 1. To father; sire. 2. To cause to exist or occur; produce: Violence begets more violence. [Middle English biyeten, bigeten, from Old English begetan. See ghend- in Appendix.] —be·get'ter n.

beg·gar (bĕg'ər) n. 1. One who solicits alms for a living. 2. An impoverished person; a pauper. 3. Informal. A man or a boy. — v. tr. beg·gared, beg·gar·ing, beg·gars. 1. To make a beggar of; impoverish. 2. To exceed the limits, resources, or capabilities of: beauty that beggars description. [Middle English, from Old French begart, ultimately from Middle Dutch beggaert, one who rattles off prayers.]

beg·gar·ly (bĕg'ər-lē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or befitting a beggar; very poor: a beggarly existence in the slums. 2. So mean, petty, or paltry as to deserve contempt. —beg'gar·li·ness n.

beg·gar's lice (bĕg'ərz līs) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. Any of several plants, such as the stickseed, having small, often prickly fruits that cling readily to clothing or animal fur. 2. The fruit of any of these plants.

beggar's purse (bĕg'ərz pûrs) n. A buckwheat crepe filled with caviar and crème fraîche, tied with strips of chives into the shape of a purse, and served as an appetizer.

beggar ticks also beggar's ticks (bĕg'ər tĭk's) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. a. Any of various weeds of the genus Bidens in the composite family, having heads of usually yellow flowers and small, dry fruits. Also called bur marigold, Spanish needles, sticktight, tickseed. b. The fruit of any of these plants, typically having barbed awns and clinging readily to clothing and animal fur. 2. Any of certain other plants or their clinging fruits, especially species of the tick trefoil.

beg-gar-y (bĕg'ə-rĕ) n. 1. Extreme poverty; penury. 2. The state or condition of being a beggar. 3. Beggars considered as a group.

be-gin (bĭ-gĭn') v. be-gan (-gǎn'), be-gun (-gŭn'), be-gin-ning, be-gins.

— v. intr. 1. To take the first step in performing an action; start. 2. To come into being: when life began. 3. To do or accomplish in the least degree: Those measures do not even begin to address the problem. — v. tr. 1. To take the first step in doing; start: began work. 2. To cause to come into being; originate. 3. To come first in: The numeral 1 begins the sequence. [Middle English biginnen, from Old English beginnan.]

SYNONYMS: begin, commence, start, initiate, inaugurate. These verbs are compared as they denote coming or putting into operation, being, or motion or setting about taking the first step, as in a procedure. Begin and commence are equivalent in meaning, though commence is more formal: began the race; a play that begins at eight o'clock; commenced her career as a scientist; festivities that commenced with the national anthem. Start is often interchangeable with begin and commence but can also imply setting out from a specific point, frequently following inaction: Stand and visit with me for a few minutes until the train starts. The telephone started ringing. Initiate applies to the act of taking the first steps in a process, without reference to what follows: The public hoped the government would initiate restrictions on imported goods. Inaugurate often connotes a formal beginning: “The exhibition inaugurated a new era of cultural relations between the Soviet Union and United States” (Serge Schmemmann).

Be-gin (bā'gĭn), Menachem. 1913-1992. Russian-born Israeli politician. He led (1943-1948) Irgun, the Zionist underground movement in Palestine. After the establishment of Israel, Begin became a political leader known for his hard-line views on the Arabs, but as prime minister (1977-1983) he strove to resolve the Arab-Israel conflict. He shared the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize with Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt.

be-gin-ner (bĭ-gĭn'ər) n. One who is just starting to learn or do something; a novice.

be-gin-ning (bĭ-gĭn'ĭng) n. 1. The act or process of bringing or being brought into being; a start. 2. The time when something begins or is begun: the beginning of the war. 3. The place where something begins or is begun: at the beginning of the road. 4. A source; an origin: What was the beginning of the dispute? 5. The first part: The front matter is at the beginning of the book. 6. Often beginnings. An early or rudimentary phase: the beginnings of human life on this planet.

SYNONYMS: beginning, birth, dawn, genesis, nascence, rise. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “the initial stage of a developmental process”: the beginning of a new era in computer technology; the birth of generative grammar; the dawn of civilization; the genesis of quantum mechanics; the nascence of classical sculpture; the rise and decline of an ancient city-state.

ANTONYM: end

beginning rhyme (bĭ-gĭn'ĭng rĭm) n. 1. Rhyme at the beginning of consecutive lines of verse. Also called initial rhyme 2. See head rhyme.

be-gird (bĭ-gŭrd') v. tr. be-girt (-gŭrt') or be-gird-ed, be-girt, be-gird-ing, be-girds. To encircle with or as if with a band.

be-gone (bĭ-gŏn', -gŏn') v. Used chiefly in the imperative to express an order of dismissal. [Middle English begone : be, imperative of ben, to be; see BE + gone, past participle of gon, to go; see GO¹.]

be-go-nia (bĭ-gŏn'yə) n. Any of various tropical or subtropical plants of the genus Begonia, widely cultivated as ornamentals for their usually asymmetrical, brightly colored leaves. [New Latin Begonia, genus name, after Michel Bégon (1638-1710), French governor in the West Indies.]

be-gor-ra (bĭ-gŏr'ə, -gŏr'ə) interj. Irish. Used as a mild oath. [Alteration of by God.]

be-got (bĭ-gŏt') v. Past tense and a past participle of beget.

be-got-ten (bĭ-gŏt'n) v. A past participle of beget.

be-grime (bĭ-grĭm') v. tr. be-grimed, be-grim-ing, be-grimes. To smear or soil with or as if with dirt.

be-grudge (bĭ-grŭj') v. tr. be-grudged, be-grudg-ing, be-grudg-es.

1. a. To envy the possession or enjoyment of: She begrudged his youth. b. To envy for the possession of: She begrudged him his youth. See Synonyms at envy.

2. To give or expend with reluctance: begrudged every penny spent.

—be-grudg'er n. —be-grudg'ing-ly adv.

be-guile (bĭ-gĭl') v. tr. be-guiled, be-guil-ing, be-guiles. 1. To deceive by guile; delude. See Synonyms at deceive. 2. To take away from by or as if by guile; cheat: a disease that has beguiled me of strength. 3. To distract the attention of; divert: "to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming" (Abraham Lincoln). 4. To pass (time) pleasantly. 5. To amuse or charm; delight. See Synonyms at charm. [Middle English bigilen : bi-, be- + gilen, to deceive; see GUILE.]

—be-guile'ment n. —be-guil'er n. —be-guil'ing-ly adv.

be-guine (bĭ-gĕn') n. 1. A ballroom dance similar to the rumba, based on a dance of Martinique and St. Lucia. 2. The music for this dance. [French (West Indies) béguine, from French béguin, hood, flirtation, from beguine, Beguine. See BEGUINE.]

Beg-uine (bā'gĕn', bā-gĕn') n. Roman Catholic Church. A member of any of several lay sisterhoods founded in the Netherlands in the 13th century. [Middle

English begine, from Old French beguine, from Middle Dutch beg-, root of beg-gaert, one who rattles off prayers.]

be·gum (bā'gəm, bē'-) n. 1. A Muslim woman of rank. 2. Used as a form of address for such a woman. [Urdu begam, from East Turkic begüm, first person sing. possessive of beg, master, mistress, from Old Turkic.]

be·gun (bĭ-gŭn') v. Past participle of begin.

be·half (bĭ-hăf', -hăf') n. Interest, support, or benefit. —idioms. in behalf of. For the benefit of; in the interest of. on behalf of. As the agent of; on the part of. [Middle English, from Old English be healfe, by (his) side : be, by, at; see BY¹ + healf, side, half; see HALF.]

USAGE NOTE: Traditionally, in behalf of and on behalf of have distinct senses. In behalf of means “for the benefit of,” as in We raised money in behalf of the earthquake victims. On behalf of means “as the agent of; on the part of,” as in The guardian signed the contract on behalf of the minor child. The two senses are quite close, however, and are often confused, even by reputable writers.

Be·han (bē'ən), Brendan Francis. 1923-1964. Irish writer whose early association with the Irish Republican Army and experiences in prison influenced his works, including the play The Quare Fellow (1954) and the autobiographical Borstal Boy (1958).

be·have (bĭ-hāv') v. be·haved, be·hav·ing, be·haves. — v. intr. 1. a. To conduct oneself in a specified way: The child behaved badly at the party. b. To conduct oneself in a proper way: I told the child to behave. 2. To act, react, function, or perform in a particular way: This fabric behaves well even in hot weather. — v. tr. 1. To conduct (oneself) properly: Did you behave yourself at the party? 2. To conduct (oneself) in a specified way: The witness behaved herself with great calmness. [Middle English behaven : be-, be- + have, have; see HAVE.]

be·hav·ior (bĭ-hāv'yər) n. 1. The manner in which one behaves. 2. Psychology. The actions or reactions of persons or things in response to external or internal stimuli. [Middle English behaviour, from behaven, to behave (on the model of haviour, behavior, from Old French avoir, from avoir, to have),. See BEHAVE.] —be·hav'ior·al adj. —be·hav'ior·al·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: behavior, conduct, deportment. These nouns all pertain to a person's actions as they constitute a means of evaluation by others. Behavior is the most general: time off for good behavior; on their best behavior; guilty of contemptible behavior. Conduct applies to actions considered from the standpoint of morality and ethics: “The fate of unborn millions will now depend... on the courage and conduct of this army” (George Washington). “Life, not the parson, teaches conduct” (Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.). Deportment more narrowly pertains to actions measured by a prevailing code of social behavior: “[Old Mr. Turveydrop] was not like anything in the world but a model of Deportment” (Charles Dickens).

behavioral medicine (bĭ-hāv'yər-əl mĕd'ī-sĭn) n. The application of behavior therapy techniques, such as biofeedback, relaxation training, and hypnosis, to the prevention and treatment of medical and psychosomatic disorders and to the treatment of undesirable behaviors, such as overeating and substance abuse. Also called behavior medicine behavioral psychophysics (bĭ-hāv'yər-əl sĭ'kō-fiz'iks) n. Psychology. A branch of psychology dealing primarily with the measurement of sensory capacities in nonaberrant animals.

behavioral science (bĭ-hāv'yər-əl sĭ'əns) n. A scientific discipline, such as sociology, anthropology or psychology, in which the actions and reactions of human beings and animals are studied through observational and experimental methods. —behavioral scientist n.

behavioral therapy (bĭ-hāv'yər-əl thĕr'ə-pĕ) n. See behavior therapy.

be-hav-i-or-ism (bĭ-hāv'yə-rĭz'əm) n. Psychology. A school of psychology that confines itself to the study of observable and quantifiable aspects of behavior and excludes subjective phenomena, such as emotions or motives. —be-hav'ior-ist n. —be-hav'ior-is'tic adj.

behavior medicine (bĭ-hāv'yər mĕd'ī-sĭn) n. See behavioral medicine.

behavior modification (bĭ-hāv'yər mōd'ə-fĭ-kā'shən) n. Psychology.

1. The use of basic learning techniques, such as conditioning, biofeedback, reinforcement, or aversion therapy, to alter human behavior. 2. See behavior therapy. —behavior modifier n.

behavior therapy (bĭ-hāv'yər thĕr'ə-pĕ) n. Psychology. A form of psychotherapy that uses basic learning techniques to modify maladaptive behavior patterns by substituting new responses to given stimuli for undesirable ones. Also called behavioral therapy, behavior modification. —behavior therapist n.

be-hav-i-our (bĭ-hāv'yər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of behavior.

be-head (bĭ-hĕd') v. tr. be-head-ed, be-head-ing, be-heads. To separate the head from; decapitate. [Middle English biheden, from Old English behēafđian : be-, away from; see BE- + hēafod, head; see HEAD.]

be-held (bĭ-hĕld') v. Past tense and past participle of behold.

be-he-moth (bĭ-hĕ'məθ, bĕ'ə-məθ) n. 1. Something enormous in size or power. 2. Often Behemoth. Bible. A huge animal, possibly the hippopotamus, described in the Old Testament. [Hebrew bēhēmôt, intensive pl. of bēhēmâ, beast.]

be-hest (bĭ-hĕst') n. 1. An authoritative command. 2. An urgent request: I called the office at the behest of my secretary. [Middle English bihest, vow, from Old English behǣs. See kei² in Appendix.]

be·hind (bĭ-hīndʹ) adv. 1. In, to, or toward the rear: We walked behind. 2. In a place or condition that has been passed or left: I left my gloves behind. 3. In arrears; late: I fell behind in my payments. 4. Below the standard level; in or into an inferior position: Don't fall behind in class. 5. Slow: My watch is running behind. 6. Archaic. Yet to come. — prep. 1. At the back of or in the rear of: He sat behind her. 2. On the farther side or other side of; beyond: The broom is behind the door. 3. In a place or time that has been passed or left by: Their worries are behind them. 4. a. Later than: The plane was behind schedule. b. Used to indicate deficiency in performance: behind us in technological development. 5. a. Hidden or concealed by: hatred hidden behind a bland smile. b. In the background of; underlying: Behind your every action is self-interest. 6. In a position of support; at the back of: The leaders have the army behind them. 7. In pursuit of: The police were hard behind the escapees. — n. Informal. The buttocks. [Middle English bihinde, from Old English behindan. See ko- in Appendix.]

be·hind·hand (bĭ-hīndʹhändʹ) adj. 1. Being in arrears. 2. Being behind time; slow. See Synonyms at tardy. — be·hindʹhandʹ adv.

be·hind-the-scenes (bĭ-hīndʹthə-sēnzʹ) adj. Done, maintained, or held in secret.

be·hold (bĭ-hōldʹ) v. be·held (-hēldʹ), be·hold·ing, be·holds. — v. tr.

1. a. To perceive by the visual faculty; see: beheld a tiny figure in the distance. b. To perceive through use of the mental faculty; comprehend: “Behold the man of the future” (Jerry Adler). 2. To look upon; gaze at: We beheld a beautiful vista before us. See Synonyms at see¹. — v. intr. Used in the imperative for the purpose of calling attention. [Middle English biholden, from Old English bealdan: be-, be- + haldan, to hold; see HOLD¹.] — be·holdʹer n.

be·hold·en (bĭ-hōlʹdən) adj. Owing something, such as gratitude, to another; indebted. [Middle English biholden, past participle of biholden, to observe. See BEHOLD.]

be·hoof (bĭ-hōōfʹ) n. Benefit; advantage: a sitting room that had been converted to a bedroom on my behoof. [Middle English bihove, from Old English behōf. See kap- in Appendix.]

be·hoove (bĭ-hōōvʹ) v. be·hooved, be·hoov·ing, be·hooves. — v. tr. To be necessary or proper for: It behooves you at least to try. — v. intr. To be necessary or proper. [Middle English behōven, from Old English behōfian. See kap- in Appendix.]

Beh·ring (bârʹrĭng, bĕrʹ-, bāʹrĭng), Emil Von. 1854-1917. German physiologist. He won a 1901 Nobel Prize for work on serum immunization against diphtheria and tetanus.

Behr·man (bârʹmən), S(amuel) N(athaniel). 1893-1973. American playwright whose works include The Second Man (1927) and No Time for Comedy (1939).

Bei-der-becke (bī'dər-bĕk'), Leon Bismark. Known as "Bix." 1903-1931.

American jazz composer and musician. A self-taught pianist and cornet player, he was the first white musician to be recognized by Black musicians as a luminary of the jazz world.

beige (bāzh) n. 1. Color. A light grayish brown or yellowish brown to grayish yellow. 2. A soft fabric of undyed, unbleached wool. — adj. Color. Light grayish-brown or yellowish-brown to grayish-yellow. [French, fine woolen fabric left in its natural color, from Old French bege, perhaps from Old Italian bambagia, cotton wool, from feminine of Late Latin bombax. See BOMBAST.]

bei-gnet also bai-gnet or bei-gné or bang (běn-yā') n. Southern Louisiana.

1. A square doughnut with no hole: "a New Orleans coffeehouse selling beignets, an insidious Louisianian cousin of the doughnut that exists to get powdered sugar on your face" (Los Angeles Times). 2. A seafood fritter. [French, fritter, of Celtic origin.]

REGIONAL NOTE: New Orleans, Louisiana, has been a rich contributor of French loan words and local expressions to American English. One variety of speech in this city is so distinctive that it has a name: yat. Many of the words, such as beignet, café au lait, faubourg, lagniappe, and krewe, reflect the New World French cuisine and culture characterizing this city and much of southern Louisiana. Other words reflect distinctive physical characteristics of the city: banquette, a raised sidewalk, and camelback and shotgun, distinctive architectural styles found among New Orleans houses.

Bei-king (bā'jǐng') also Pe-king (pē'kǐng', pā'-) Formerly (1928-1949)

Pei-ping (pā'pǐng'). The capital of China, in the northeast part of the country. Founded c. 700 B.C., it is a major commercial, industrial, and cultural center. The Inner City contains the Imperial, or Forbidden, City. Population, 5,860,000.

be-ing (bē'ing) n. 1. The state or quality of having existence. See Synonyms at existence. 2. a. Something, such as an object, an idea, or a symbol, that exists, is thought to exist, or is represented as existing. b. The totality of all things that exist. 3. a. A person: "The artist after all is a solitary being" (Virginia Woolf). b. All the qualities constituting one that exists; the essence. c. One's basic or essential nature; personality.

Bei-ra (bā'rə) A city of east-central Mozambique on the Mozambique Channel, an arm of the Indian Ocean. It is a commercial center and a popular resort. Population, 230,744.

Bei-rut¹ (bā-rōot') The capital and largest city of Lebanon, in the western part of the country on the Mediterranean Sea. Founded by the Phoenicians, it was an important Greek and Roman trade center. The city has long been the scene of bitter factional fighting. Population, 509,000.

Bei-rut² (bā-rōot', bā'rōot') n. A place or situation characterized by ongoing, widespread, highly destructive strife: "Right now, [this state] is the Beirut of the medical malpractice system, with all the players in an angry state of turmoil and factionalism" (Hatfield MA Valley Advocate).

Beis-sel (bī'səl), Johann Konrad. 1690-1768. German-born religious leader and hymn writer whose works influenced American hymnody.

Be-ja (bā'jə) n. pl. Beja. 1. A member of a people living primarily as pastoral nomads in the area between the Nile River and the Red Sea. 2. The Cushitic language of the Beja.

be-je-sus (bī-jē'zəs, -jā'-) n. Slang. Used as an intensive: The bear scared the bejesus out of us. [Alteration of by Jesus.] be-jew-eled (bī-jōō'əld) adj. Decorated with or as if with jewels.

Bé-ké-sy (bā'kā-shē), Georg von. 1899-1972. Hungarian-born American physiologist. He won a 1961 Nobel Prize for discoveries concerning the mechanisms of stimulation within the cochlea.

bel (běl) n. Abbr. b, B Ten decibels. [After Alexander Graham BELL.] be-la-bor (bī-lā'bər) v. tr. be-la-bored, be-la-bor-ing, be-la-bors. 1. To attack with blows; hit, beat, or whip. See Synonyms at beat. 2. To assail verbally. 3. To discuss repeatedly or at length; harp on: Don't belabor the point.

be-la-bour (bī-lā'bər) v. Chiefly British. Variant of belabor.

Bel-a-rus (běl'ə-rōōs', běl'ə-rōōs') also Be-lo-rus-sia (běl'ō-rūsh'ə-) or Bye-lo-rus-sia (byěl'ō) Also known as White Rus-sia (rūsh'ə). A country of eastern Europe east of Poland, south of Lithuania and Latvia, and north of Ukraine. Colonized originally by the Slavs, it was controlled at various times by Lithuania and Poland and was a constituent republic of the U.S.S.R from 1922 to 1991. Minsk is the capital. Population, 9,942,000.

Be-las-co (bə-lās'kō), David. 1853-1931. American playwright and theatrical producer known for his realistic stage settings and innovative lighting effects. Among his productions were Madame Butterfly (1900) and Laugh, Clown, Laugh (1923).

be-lat-ed (bī-lā'tīd) adj. Having been delayed; done or sent too late: a belated birthday card. [BE- + LATED.] —be-lat'ed-ly adv. —be-lat'ed-ness n.

Be-lau (bə-lou') also Pa-lau (pā-, pə-) or Pe-lew (pə-lōō', pē-) A group of volcanic islands and islets in the Caroline Islands of the western Pacific Ocean. When the Carolines became part of the Federated States of Micronesia in 1978, Belau chose to form a republic in free association with the United States, which is responsible for its defense until 1996.

be-lay (bī-lā') v. be-layed, be-lay-ing, be-lays. — v. tr. 1. Nautical. To secure or make fast (a rope, for example) by winding on a cleat or pin. 2. To secure (a mountain climber, for example) at the end of a length of rope. 3. To cause to stop. — v. intr. 1. To be made secure. 2. Used in the imperative as an order to stop: Belay there! — n. 1. The securing of a rope on a rock or other projection during mountain climbing. 2. An object, such as a rock, to which a mountain climber's rope can be secured. [Middle English bileggen, to surround, from Old English beleggan. See legh- in Appendix.]

Be-la-ya (bĕl'ə-yə) A river of southwest Russia rising in the Ural Mountains and flowing about 1,416 km (880 mi) generally northwest to the Kama River.

be-lay-ing pin (bĭ-lā'ing pĭn) n. Nautical. A short, removable wooden or metal pin fitted in a hole in the rail of a boat and used for securing running gear.

bel can-to (bĕl kăn'tō) n. Music. A style of operatic singing characterized by rich tonal lyricism and brilliant display of vocal technique. [Italian : bel, bello, beautiful + canto, singing.]

belch (bĕlch) v. belched, belch-ing, belch-es. — v. intr. 1. To expel gas noisily from the stomach through the mouth; burp. 2. To erupt or explode. 3. To gush forth. — v. tr. 1. To expel (gas) noisily from the stomach through the mouth; burp. 2. To eject violently. [Middle English belchen, from Old English bealcettan, or from bealcian*; akin to bealcan.] — belch n.

bel-dam or bel-dame (bĕl'dəm, -dām) n. An old woman, especially one who is considered ugly. [Middle English, grandmother : bel, indicating respect (from Old French bel, fine, from Latin bellus); see deu-² in Appendix + dame, lady; see DAME.]

be-lea-guer (bĭ-lē'gər) v. tr. be-lea-guered, be-lea-guer-ing, be-lea-guers. 1. To harass; beset: We are beleaguered by problems. 2. To surround with troops; besiege. See Synonyms at besiege. [Probably Dutch belegeren : be-, around (from Middle Dutch bie); see ambhi in Appendix + leger, camp; see legh- in Appendix.] — be-lea'guer-ment n.

Be-lém (bə-lĕm', -lān') Formerly Pa-rá (pə-rā'). A city of northern Brazil on the Pará River. It is the chief port and commercial center of the vast Amazon River basin. Population, 933,287.

bel-em-nite (bĕl'əm-nīt') n. A cone-shaped, fossilized internal shell of any of an extinct genus of cephalopods related to the cuttlefish. [New Latin belemnītēs, from Greek belemnōn, dart. See g^welə- in Appendix.]

bel es-prit (bĕl' ě-sprĕ') n. pl. beaux es-prite (bō'zĕ-sprĕ'). A cultivated, highly intelligent person. [French : bel, fine + esprit, mind.]

Bel-fast (bĕl'făst', bĕl-făst') The capital and largest city of Northern Ireland, in the eastern part of the country on Belfast Lough, an inlet of the North Channel of the Irish Sea. Conflict between Protestants and Catholics has divided the city since the 19th century. Population, 318,600.

Bel-fort (bĕl-fôr') A city of northeast France commanding the strategic Belfort Gap between the Vosges and the Jura Mountains, thus dominating the land approaches from France, Germany, and Switzerland. Population, 51,206.

bel-fry (běl'frē) n. pl. bel-fries. 1. A bell tower, especially one attached to a building. 2. The part of a tower or steeple in which bells are hung. [Middle English belfrei, from Old North French belfroi, alteration of Old French berfrei, berfroi. See bhergh-² in Appendix.] —bel/fried adj.

WORD HISTORY: The words bell and belfry seem obviously related, but in fact the bel- portion of belfry had nothing to do with bells until comparatively recently. Belfry goes back to a compound formed in prehistoric Common Germanic. It is generally agreed that the second part of this compound is the element ·frij-, meaning “peace, safety.” The first element is either ·bergan, “to protect,” which would yield a compound meaning “a defensive place of shelter,” or ·berg-, “a high place,” which would yield a compound meaning “a high place of safety, tower.” Whatever the meaning of the original Germanic source, its Old French descendant berfrei, which first meant “siege tower,” came to mean “watchtower.” Presumably because bells were used in these towers, the word was applied to bell towers as well. The Old North French alteration belfroi, which reminded English speakers of their native word belle (our bell), entered Middle English with the sense “bell tower,” first recorded in 1272.

Belg. abbr. Belgian; Belgium.

Bel-gae (běl'gī', -jē') pl.n. A people who formerly inhabited northeast Gaul and areas of southeast England. Belgium is named for them. [Latin.]

Bel-gaum (běl-goum') A town of southwest India south-southeast of Kolhapur. It is an agricultural market town. Population, 274,430.

Bel-gian (běl'jən) adj. Abbr. Belg. Of or relating to Belgium or its people or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Belgium. 2. Any of a breed of characteristically large, reddish-brown or chestnut-colored draft horses.

Belgian Con-go (běl'jən kōng'gō) See Zaire.

Belgian East Af-ri-ca (běl'jən ēst āf'rī-kə) The former Belgian trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi, now divided into the independent countries of Rwanda and Burundi.

Belgian endive (běl'jən ěn'dīv') n. The endive.

Belgian hare (běl'jən hār) n. A large reddish-brown rabbit of a domestic breed developed in England from Belgian stock.

Belgian Mal-in-ois (běl'jən māl'ən-wā') n. See Belgian sheep dog (n., sense 2).

Belgian sheep dog (běl'jən shēp dôg) n. 1. Any of a breed of hardy black sheep dogs developed in Belgium. 2. Any of a breed of working dogs closely related to the Belgian sheep dog. In this sense, also called Belgian Malinois, Belgian Tervuren.

Belgian Ter-vu-ren (bĕl'jən tĕr-vyōōr'ən, tər-) n. See Belgian sheep dog (n., sense 2).

Bel-gic (bĕl'jĭk) adj. 1. Of or relating to Belgium or the Belgians. 2. Of or relating to the Belgae.

Bel-gium (bĕl'jəm) Abbr. Belg. A country of northwest Europe on the North Sea. It has long been a strategic crossroads of Europe and the scene of heavy fighting in numerous wars. The country is culturally divided into Dutch-speaking Flanders to the north of Brussels and French-speaking Wallonia to the south. Brussels is the capital and the largest city. Population, 9,858,017.

Bel-go-rod (bĕl'gə-rōd', byĕl'gə-rət) A city of southwest Russia on the Donets River. It is a transportation and industrial center. Population, 280,000.

Bel-grade (bĕl'grād', -grād', bĕl-grād') also Be-o-grad (bĕ'ô-grād) The capital and largest city of Serbia and of Yugoslavia, in the north-central part of Serbia at the confluence of the Danube and Sava rivers. Founded in the 3rd century B.C., it has been the primary city of Serbia since the 12th century. Population, 936,200.

Bel-gra-vi-a (bĕl-grā'vĕ-ə) A fashionable residential district of southwest London, England, centered on Belgrave Square. It was laid out in the 1820's.

Be-li-al (bĕ'lĕ-əl, bĕl'yəl) n. 1. Bible. A personification of wickedness and ungodliness alluded to in the Old and New Testaments. 2. One of the fallen angels who rebelled against God in Milton's Paradise Lost.

be-lie (bĭ-lī') v. tr. be-liked, be-ly-ing, be-lies. 1. To picture falsely; misrepresent: "He spoke roughly in order to belie his air of gentility" (James Joyce). 2. To show to be false: Their laughter belied their outward grief. 3. To be counter to; contradict: At first glance, life at the boarding school seemed to belie all the bad things I had heard about it. [Middle English bilien, from Old English belēogan, to deceive with lies. See leugh- in Appendix.] —be-li'er n.

be-lief (bĭ-lĕf') n. 1. The mental act, condition, or habit of placing trust or confidence in another. 2. Mental acceptance of and conviction in the truth, actuality, or validity of something. 3. Something believed or accepted as true, especially a particular tenet or a body of tenets accepted by a group of persons. [Middle English bileve, alteration (influenced by belyfan, belēfan, to believe;); see BELIEVE, of Old English gelēafa. See leubh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: belief, credence, credit, faith. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "mental acceptance of the truth, actuality, or validity of something": a statement unworthy of belief; an idea steadily gaining credence; testimony meriting credit; put no faith in a liar's assertions. See also Synonyms at opinion be-liev-a-ble (bĭ-lĕ'və-bəl) adj. Capable of eliciting belief or trust. See Synonyms at plausible. —be-liev'a-bil'i-ty n. —be-liev'a-bly adv.

ANTONYM: disbelief

be-lieve (bĭ-lēv') v. be-liked, be-liev-ing, be-lieves. — v. tr. 1. To accept as true or real: Do you believe the news stories? 2. To credit with veracity: I believe you. 3. To expect or suppose; think: I believe they will arrive shortly. — v. intr. 1. To have firm faith, especially religious faith. 2. To have faith, confidence, or trust: I believe in your ability to solve the problem. 3. To have confidence in the truth or value of something: We believe in free speech. 4. To have an opinion; think: They have already left, I believe. [Middle English bileven, from Old English belȳfan, belēfan, gelēfan. See leubh- in Appendix.] — be-liev'er n.

be-like (bĭ-lĭk') adv. Archaic. Probably; perhaps. [Probably be- (from *BY*¹) + *LIKE*², what is likely; see LIKE.]

Bel-i-sar-i-us (bĕl'ĭ-sâr'ē-əs), 505?-565. Byzantine general under Emperor Justinian I who led campaigns against the barbarians in North Africa and Italy.

be-lit-tle (bĭ-lĭt'l) v. tr. be-lit-tled, be-lit-ting, be-lit-tles. 1. To represent or speak of as contemptibly small or unimportant; disparage: a person who belittled our efforts to do the job right. 2. To cause to seem less than another or little: The size of the office tower belittles the surrounding buildings. See Synonyms at decry. — be-lit'tle-ment n. — be-lit'tler n.

Be-li-tung (bə-lē'tōŋ) also Bil-li-ton (bə-lē'tŏn') An island of western Indonesia in the Java Sea between Sumatra and Borneo. It has important tin mines.

Be-lize (bə-lēz') 1. or Formerly Brit-ish Hon-du-ras (brĭt'ĭsh hŏn-dŏr'əs, -dyŏr'-) A country of Central America on the Caribbean Sea. A British colony in the late 19th century, it became self-governing in 1964 and independent in 1981. Belmopan is the capital. Population, 145,353. 2. Also Belize City. The largest city of Belize, in the eastern part of the country on the Caribbean Sea at the mouth of the Belize River. It was devastated by a hurricane in 1961. The capital was moved to Belmopan in 1970. Population, 39,771.

bell¹ (bĕl) n. 1. A hollow metal instrument, usually cup-shaped with a flared opening, that emits a metallic tone when struck. 2. Something resembling this hollow metal instrument in shape or sound, as: a. Music. The round, flared mouth of a wind instrument. b. bells. Music. A percussion instrument consisting of metal tubes or bars that emit tones when struck. c. A hollow, usually inverted vessel, such as one used for diving deep below the surface of a body of water. d. The corolla of a flower: "In a cowslip's bell I lie" (Shakespeare). 3. Nautical. a. A stroke on a hollow metal instrument to mark the hour. b. The time indicated by the striking of this instrument, divided into half hours. — v. belled, bell-ing, bells. — v. tr. 1. To put a bell on. 2. To cause to flare like a bell. — v. intr. To assume the form of a bell; flare. — idiom. bell the cat. To perform a daring act. [Middle English belle, from Old English.]

bell² (bĕl) n. The bellowing or baying cry of certain animals, such as a deer in rut or a beagle on the hunt. — v. intr. belled, bell-ing, bells. To utter long, deep, resonant sounds; bellow. [From Middle English bellen, to bellow, from Old English bellan.]

Bell (běl) A city of southern California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 34,365.

Bell (běl), Alexander Graham. 1847-1922. Scottish-born American inventor of the telephone. The first demonstration of electrical transmission of speech by his apparatus took place in 1876. Bell also invented the audiometer, an early hearing aid, and improved the phonograph.

Bell (běl), (Arthur) Clive (Howard). 1881-1964. British critic who proposed his aesthetic theory of significant form in Art (1914).

Bell (běl), John. 1797-1869. American politician from Tennessee who was speaker of the House of Representatives (1834-1835) and later a senator (1847-1859). He fought unsuccessfully to prevent the Civil War.

Bel·la Coo·la (běl'ə kōō'lə) n. pl. Bella Coola or Bel·la Coo·las. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting the coast of British Columbia along the Bella Coola River, a short stream flowing westward into a channel of Queen Charlotte Sound. b. A member of this people. 2. The Salishan language of the Bella Coola.

bel·la·don·na (běl'ə-dōn'ə) n. 1. A poisonous Eurasian perennial herb (Atropa belladonna) having usually solitary, nodding, purplish-brown, bell-shaped flowers and glossy black berries. Also called deadly nightshade 2. An alkaloidal extract or tincture derived from this plant and used in medicine. [Italian : bella, feminine of bello, beautiful (from Latin bellus); see deu-² in Appendix + donna, lady; see DONNA.]

belladonna alkaloids (běl'ə-dōn'ə əl'kə-loid'z) pl.n. A group of alkaloids, including atropine and scopolamine, found in plants such as belladonna and jimsonweed. They are used in medicine to dilate the pupils of the eyes, dry respiratory passages, prevent motion sickness, and relieve cramping of the intestines and bladder.

belladonna lily (běl'ə-dōn'ə līl'ē) n. A bulbous, perennial southern African herb (Amaryllis belladonna), having showy umbels of large, trumpet-shaped flowers that appear in the fall after the spring leaves die back. Also called amaryllis Bel·la·my (běl'ə-mē), Edward. 1850-1898. American writer and utopian socialist who publicized his political views through his popular novel Looking Backward (1888).

Bel·la·ry (bə-lār'ē) A town of south-central India north-northwest of Bangalore. It is a trade and administrative center. Population, 201,579.

Bel·lay (bə-lā', bě-lā'), Joachim du. 1522?-1560. French poet. A founder of a group of poets known as the Pléiade, he wrote sonnets, satires on literary conventions, and a manifesto of the group's poetic principles.

bell-bird (bĕl'bûrd') n. Any of various tropical American birds of the family Cotingidae, having a characteristic bell-like call.

bell-bot-tom (bĕl'böt'əm) adj. Having legs that flare out at the bottom: bell-bottom trousers.

bell-bot-toms (bĕl'böt'əmz) pl.n. Trousers with legs that flare at the bottom.

bell-boy (bĕl'boi') n. A bellhop.

bell buoy (bĕl bōō'ē) n. Nautical. A buoy fitted with a warning bell that is activated by the movement of the waves.

bell captain (bĕl kăp'tən) n. The supervisor of a group of bellhops.

belle (bĕl) n. A popular, attractive girl or woman, especially the most attractive one of a group: the belle of the ball. [French, beautiful, belle, from Latin bella, feminine of bellus. See deu-² in Appendix.]

Bel-leau Wood (bĕ-lō' wōōd, bĕl'ō) A forested area of northern France east of Château-Thierry. In World War I it was the site of a hard-fought victory over the Germans (June 1918) and now contains a cemetery dedicated to the Americans who died in the battle.

belle é-poque (bĕl ā-pŭk') n. An era of artistic and cultural refinement in a society, especially in France at the beginning of the 20th century. [French : belle, beautiful + époque, era.]

Belle Fourche (bĕl' fōōsh') A river rising in northeast Wyoming and flowing about 467 km (290 mi) to the Cheyenne River in western South Dakota.

Belle Glade (bĕl glād) A city of southeast Florida on Lake Okeechobee west of West Palm Beach. It was rebuilt after a hurricane in 1928. Population, 16,177.

Belle Isle, Strait of. (bĕl īl) A channel between southeast Labrador and northwest Newfoundland, Canada. It is the northern entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Bel-ler-o-phon (bə-lĕr'ə-fən, -fŏn') n. Greek Mythology. The Corinthian hero who, with the aid of the winged horse Pegasus, slew the Chimera.

belles-let-tres (bĕl-lĕt'rə) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. Literature regarded for its aesthetic value rather than its didactic or informative content. 2. Light, stylish writings, usually on literary or intellectual subjects. [French : belles, fine + lettres, letters, literature.]

bel-let-rist (bĕl-lĕt'rist) n. A writer of belles-lettres. —bel-let'rist n. —bel'le-tris'tic (bĕl'ī-tris'tik) adj.

Belle-ville (bĕl'vil') 1. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, near Lake Ontario east-northeast of Toronto. Founded in 1790, it is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 34,881. 2. A city of southwest Illinois southeast of East St. Louis. It is in a coal-mining region and has diverse industries. Population, 42,785.

3. A town of northeast New Jersey on the Passaic River near Newark. It was settled by the Dutch c. 1680. Population, 34,213.

Belle-vue (bĕl'vyōō') 1. A city of eastern Nebraska, a suburb of Omaha on the Missouri River. Population, 30,982. 2. A city of west-central Washington on Lake Washington opposite Seattle. It is a manufacturing and residential community. Population, 73,903.

bell-flow-er (bĕl'flou'ər) n. 1. Any of various herbs of the genus Campanula, native chiefly to the Northern Hemisphere and often having showy, bell-shaped, violet or blue flowers. 2. Any of several other plants, especially one with bell-shaped flowers.

Bell-flow-er (bĕl'flou'ər) A city of southern California, a suburb in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area. Population, 61,815.

Bell Gardens (bĕl gār'dnz) A city of southern California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 42,355.

bell-hop (bĕl'hŏp') n. A person employed by a hotel to assist guests, as by carrying luggage and doing errands. [Probably short for bell-hopper.]

bel-li-cose (bĕl'i-kōs') adj. Warlike in manner or temperament; pugnacious. See Synonyms at belligerent. [Middle English, from Latin bellicōsus, from bellicus, of war, from bellum, war.] —bel/li-cose'ly adv. —bel/li-cos'i-ty (-kōs'i-tē), bel/li-cose'ness n.

bel-lig-er-ence (bə-līj'ər-əns) n. A hostile or warlike attitude, nature, or inclination; belligerency.

bel-lig-er-en-cy (bə-līj'ər-ən-sē) n. 1. The state of being at war or being engaged in a warlike conflict. 2. Belligerence.

bel-lig-er-ent (bə-līj'ər-ənt) adj. 1. Inclined or eager to fight; hostile or aggressive. 2. Of, pertaining to, or engaged in warfare. — n. One that is hostile or aggressive, especially one that is engaged in war. [Latin belligerāns, belligerant- present participle of belligerāre, to wage war, from belliger, warlike : bellum, war + gerere, to make.] —bel-lig'er-ent-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: belligerent, bellicose, pugnacious, contentious, quarrelsome. These adjectives are compared as they mean having or showing an eagerness to fight. Belligerent may specify actual engagement in combat (tried to arrange a truce between the belligerent nations), or it may refer to a tendency to hostile behavior (A belligerent reporter badgered the President for the facts). Bellicose and pugnacious suggest a natural disposition to fight: “All successful newspapers are ceaselessly querulous and bellicose. They never defend anyone or anything if they can help it; if the job is forced upon them, they tackle it by denouncing someone or something else” (H.L. Mencken). A retired litigator misses the challenge to her pugnacious intellect. Contentious implies chronic argumentativeness: “His style has been described variously as abrasive and contentious, overbearing and pompous” (Victor Merina). Quarrelsome suggests bad temper and a perverse readiness to bicker and quarrel: “On the days they worked they were good-natured and cheerful, and... they spent the evening jollily; but on our idle days they were mutinous and quarrelsome” (Benjamin Franklin).

bell-ing (běl'ing) n. Pennsylvania & West Virginia & Ohio. See shivaree. See Regional note at shivaree. [From BELL¹.]

Bel-ling-ham (běl'ing-hăm') A city of northwest Washington on Bellingham Bay south of the British Columbia, Canada, border. It is a port of entry with shipbuilding and processing industries. Population, 52,179.

Bel-lings-hau-sen (běl'ingz-hou'zən), Fabian Gottlieb von. 1778-1852. Russian naval officer and explorer who led an expedition that circumnavigated Antarctica (1819-1821).

Bellingshausen Sea (běl'ingz-hou'zən sē) An arm of the southern Pacific Ocean off the coast of Antarctica extending from Alexander I Island to Thurston Island.

Bel-li-ni (bə-lē'nē) Family of Venetian painters, including Jacopo (1400?-1470?), most of whose works have been lost, and his two sons, Gentile (1429?-1507) and Giovanni (1430?-1516). Giovanni, the most illustrious of the three, profoundly influenced the Venetian school of painting with his interest in light and color. His works include Saint Francis in Ecstasy.

Bel-li-ni (bə-lē'nē), Vincenzo. 1801-1835. Italian composer whose operas include La Sonnambula and Norma (both 1831).

bell jar (běl jār) n. A cylindrical glass vessel with a rounded top and an open base, used to protect and display fragile objects or to establish a vacuum or a controlled atmosphere in scientific experiments.

bell-man (běl'mən) n. 1. A bellhop. 2. A town crier.

bell metal (běl mět'l) n. An alloy of tin and copper used to make bells.

Bell-more (běl'môr', -mōr') An unincorporated town of southeast New York on southwest Long Island. It is primarily residential. Population, 16,438.

Bel-lo (běl'yô) A town of northwest-central Colombia, a suburb of Medellín. Population, 198,183.

Bel-loc (běl'ök', -ək), Hilaire. 1870-1953. French-born British writer. Considered a master of light English prose, he was also known widely for his droll verse, especially The Bad Child's Book of Beasts (1896).

Bel-lo-na (bə-lō'nə) n. Roman Mythology. The goddess of war.

bel-low (běl'ō) v. bel-lowed, bel-low-ing, bel-lows. — v. intr. 1. To make the deep roaring sound characteristic of a bull. 2. To shout in a deep voice. — v. tr. To utter in a loud, powerful voice. See Synonyms at shout. — n. 1. The roar of a large animal, such as a bull. 2. A very loud utterance or other sound. [Middle English belwen, perhaps from Old English belgan, to be enraged, and bylgan, to bellow.] — bel/low-er n.

Bel·low (běl'ō), Saul. Born 1915. Canadian-born American writer whose novels, including The Dangling Man (1944) and Humboldt's Gift (1975), often concern an alienated individual within an indifferent society. He won the 1976 Nobel Prize for literature.

bel·lows (běl'ōz, -əz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. a. An apparatus for producing a strong current of air, as for sounding a pipe organ or increasing the draft to a fire, consisting of a flexible, valved air chamber that is contracted and expanded by pumping to force the air through a nozzle. b. Something, such as the pleated windbag of an accordion, that resembles this apparatus. 2. The lungs. [Middle English belowes, from Old English belgas, pl. of belg. See bhelgh- in Appendix.]

Bel·lows (běl'ōz), George Wesley. 1882-1925. American artist noted for his energetic paintings of sporting scenes, such as Stag at Sharkey's (1909).

bell pepper (běl pəp'ər) n. 1. An annual pepper (Capsicum annuum) widely cultivated for its edible fruit. 2. The large, crisp, bell-shaped red, yellow, or green fruit of this plant.

Bell's Law (bělz lô) n. Anatomy. 1. An axiom stating that the anterior or ventral roots of the spinal nerves are motor and the posterior or dorsal roots are sensory. 2. The neurological law that, in any reflex arc, nerve impulses are conducted in only one direction. [After Sir Charles Bell (1774-1842), Scottish anatomist.]

bells of Ire-land (īr'lənd ÷v īr'lənd) n. An annual western Asian plant (Moluccella laevis) in the mint family, grown for its long stems covered with persistent shell-shaped calyxes. It is especially popular in flower arrangements.

Bell's palsy (bělz pōl'zē) n. A unilateral facial muscle paralysis of sudden onset, resulting from trauma, compression, or infection of the facial nerve and characterized by muscle weakness and a distorted facial expression. [After Sir Charles Bell (1774-1842), Scottish anatomist.]

bell-weth·er (běl'wēth'ər) n. One that serves as a leader or as a leading indicator of future trends: "The degree to which the paper is censored is a political bell-wether" (Justine De Lacy). [Middle English bellewether, wether with a bell hung from its neck, leader of the flock : belle, bell; see BELL¹ + wether, wether; see WETHER.]

Bell-wood (běl'wōd') A village of northeast Illinois, a residential and manufacturing suburb of Chicago. Population, 20,241.

bell-wort (běl'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of various perennial plants of the genus Uvularia in the lily family, native to eastern North America and having solitary, nodding, yellow bell-shaped flowers. Also called merry-bells bel·ly (běl'ē) n. pl. bel·lies. 1. See abdomen (n., sense 1). 2. The underside of the body of certain vertebrates, such as snakes and fish. 3. Informal. a. The stomach. b. An appetite for food. 4. The womb; the uterus. 5. a. A part that bulges or protrudes: the belly of a sail. b. Anatomy. The bulging, central part of a muscle. 6. A deep, hollow interior: the belly of a ship. — v. intr. tr. bel·lied, bel·ly·ing, bel·lies. To bulge or cause to bulge. See Synonyms at bulge. [Middle English beli, from Old English belg, bag. See bhelgh- in Appendix.]

bel·ly·ache (běl'ē-āk') n. 1. Pain in the stomach or abdomen; colic. 2. Slang. A whining complaint. — v. intr. bel·ly·ached, bel·ly·ach·ing, bel·ly·aches. Slang. To complain, especially in a whining manner. — bel'ly·ach'er n.

bel·ly·band (běl'ē-bänd') n. 1. A band passed around the belly of an animal to secure something, such as a saddle. 2. An encircling band for holding in a baby's protruding navel.

bel·ly·but·ton (běl'ē-büt'n) n. Informal. The navel; the umbilicus.

belly dance (běl'ē dāns) n. A dance in which the performer makes sinuous hip and abdominal movements. — bel'ly·dance' (běl'ē-dāns') v. — belly dancer n.

belly flop (běl'ē flöp) n. Informal. A dive in which the front of the body hits flat against a surface, especially of water. — bel'ly·flop' (běl'ē-flöp') v.

bel·ly·ful (běl'ē-fööl') n. Informal. An undesirable or unendurable amount: a bellyful of criticism.

bel·ly·land (běl'ē-länd') v. intr. bel·ly--land·ed, bel·ly--land·ing, bel·ly·lands. To land an aircraft on its underside without aid of landing gear. — belly landing n.

belly laugh (běl'ē läf) n. A deep laugh.

bel·ly·up (běl'ē-ŭp') adj. Informal. Bankrupt: The company is belly-up.

belly wash (běl'ē wösh) n. Slang. A soft drink, especially soda.

Bel·mont (běl'mönt') 1. A city of western California, a residential suburb midway between San Francisco and San Jose. Population, 24,127. 2. A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 24,720.

Bel·mont (běl'mönt'), Alva Erskin Smith Vanderbilt. 1853-1933. American socialite and suffragist who won acceptance into New York's high society through extravagant spending and entertaining. She later promoted women's suffrage and was president of the National Women's Party (1921-1933).

Bel·mont (běl'mönt'), August. 1816-1890. German-born American banker, public official, and art collector who secured financial support for President Abraham Lincoln from European businessmen during the Civil War.

Bel·mon·te (běl-môn'tā), Juan. 1892-1962. Spanish matador who introduced modern bullfighting techniques and completed 109 corridas.

Bel·mo·pan (běl'mō-pän') The capital of Belize, in the north-central part of the country. It became the capital in 1970 after a hurricane devastated Belize City (1961). Population, 2,935.

Bel·oeil (bə-līl', běl-œy') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, on the Richelieu River northeast of Montreal. It has varied light industries. Population, 17,540.

Be-lo Ho-ri-zon-te (běl'ō hōr'ī-zōn'tē, bě'lōō ô'rī-zōn'thī) A city of eastern Brazil north of Rio de Janeiro. An important manufacturing and marketing center, it was built (1895-1897) as the first of Brazil's planned communities. Population, 1,780,855.

Be-loit (bə-loit') A city of southern Wisconsin on the Illinois border south-southeast of Madison. Beloit College was founded in 1846. Population, 35,573.

bel-o-ne-pho-bi-a (běl'ə-nə-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of sharply pointed objects, especially needles. [Greek belonē, needle; see g^welə- in Appendix + -PHOBIA.]

be-long (bī-lōng', -lōng') v. intr. be-longed, be-long-ing, be-longs.

1. a. To be proper, appropriate, or suitable: A napkin belongs at every place setting. b. To be in an appropriate situation or environment: That plant belongs outdoors. 2. a. To be a member of a group, such as a club. b. To fit into a group naturally: No matter what I did, I just didn't belong. 3. To be the property of: "The earth belongs to the living" (Thomas Jefferson). 4. To be a part of something else: These blades belong to the food processor. [Middle English bilongen : probably bi-, be- + longen, to belong (probably from long, dependent, from Old English gelang, along, depending); see del¹ in Appendix.]

Be-long-er (bī-lōng'ər, -lōng'-) n. Caribbean. A Black native-born island resident: "Resentment for what many Belongers consider Britain's parsimonious attitude has rekindled a 13-year-old debate in the islands" (Maclean's).

be-long-ing (bī-lōng'ɪŋ, -lōng'-) n. 1. Often belongings. Personal items that one owns; possessions. 2. Close, secure relationship: a sense of belonging.

Be-lo-rus-sia (běl'ō-rūsh'ə) See Belarus.

Bel-o-rus-sian (běl'ō-rūsh'ən, byēl'-) adj. Of or relating to Belarus or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Belarus. 2. The Slavic language of the people of Belarus.

be-lov-ed (bī-lŭv'ɪd, -lŭvd') adj. Dearly loved. [Middle English biloved, past participle of beloven, to love : bi-, be- + loven, to love; see LOVE.] — be-lov'ed n.

be-low (bī-lō') adv. 1. In or to a lower place; beneath. 2. a. On or to a lower floor; downstairs. b. Nautical. On or to a lower deck. 3. In a later part of a given text: figures quoted below. 4. Farther down, as along a slope or valley. 5. In or to hell or Hades. 6. On earth. 7. a. In a lower rank or class. b. Below zero in temperature: 40° below. — prep. 1. Underneath; beneath. 2. Lower than, as on a graduated scale. 3. Unsuitable to the rank or dignity of: Such petty behavior is below me. [Middle English bilooche : bi, by; see BY¹ + loghe, low; see LOW¹.] be-low-ground (bī-lō'ground') adv. & adj. Into or under the ground.

Bel-sen (běl'zən) In full Ber-gen-Bel-sen (bûr'gən-běl'sən, bër'gən-běl'zən). A village of northern Germany north of Hanover. It was the site of a Nazi concentration camp during World War II.

Bel-shaz-zar (běl-shăz'ər) Son of Nebuchadnezzar II and last king of Babylon, who in the Old Testament was warned of his doom by handwriting on the wall that was interpreted by Daniel.

belt (bělt) n. 1. a. A flexible band, as of leather or cloth, worn around the waist to support clothing, secure tools or weapons, or serve as decoration.

b. Something that resembles this type of band: a belt of trees. 2. An encircling route. 3. A seat belt. 4. A continuous band or chain for transferring motion or power or conveying materials from one wheel or shaft to another. 5. A band of tough reinforcing material beneath the tread of a tire. 6. A geographic region that is distinctive in a specific respect: “This is America’s rural poverty belt” belt-ed, belt-ing, belts. 1. To encircle; gird. 2. To attach with or as if with an encircling band. 3. To mark with or as if with an encircling band. 4. Slang. To strike forcefully; punch. 5. Slang. To sing in a loud and forceful manner: belt out a song. 6. Slang. To swig (an alcoholic beverage). — idioms. below the belt.

(Charles Kuralt). See Synonyms at area. 7. Slang. A powerful blow; a wallop.

8. Slang. A strong emotional reaction. 9. Slang. A drink of hard liquor. — v. tr.

Not according to the rules; unfairly. tighten (one’s) belt. To begin to exercise thrift and frugality. under (one’s) belt. In one’s possession or experience: “By his mid-teens, Liszt had three years of intensive concertizing under his belt” (Musical Heritage Review). [Middle English, from Old English, ultimately from Latin balteus.]

Bel-tane (běl'tān, -tən) n. 1. An ancient Celtic feast marked by the lighting of bonfires and the performance of various rites of purification. 2. May 1, the day on which this feast was held. [Middle English, from Scottish Gaelic bealltainn.]

belt highway (bělt hī'wā') n. See beltway.

belt-ing (běl'tĩng) n. 1. Belts considered as a group. 2. The material used to make belts.

belt-tight-en-ing (bělt' tīt'n-ĩng) n. Increased thrift and frugality; a reduction in spending.

belt-way (bělt'wā') n. A high-speed highway that encircles or skirts an urban area. Also called belt highway be-lu-ga (bə-lōō'gə) n. 1. See white whale. 2. A large white sturgeon (Huso huso) of the Black and Caspian seas, whose roe is processed into caviar. In this sense, also called beluga sturgeon, whitefish. [Russian byelukha, white whale, and byeluga, sturgeon byelĭ, white; see bhel⁻¹ in Appendix + -uga, -ukha, augmentative suff..]

Be-lu-kha (bə-lōō'kə, byě-lōō'KHƏ) A peak, 4,508.8 m (14,783 ft) high, of the Altai Mountains between south-central Russia and Kazakhstan near the Mongolian border. It is the highest elevation in the range.

bel-ve-dere (běl'vĩ-dîr') n. A structure, such as an open, roofed gallery or a summerhouse, situated so as to command a view. Also called gazebo [Italian : bel, bello, beautiful (from Latin bellus); see deu-² in Appendix + vedere, to see, view (from Latin vidēre, to see); see weid- in Appendix.]

Bel·ve·dere Park (bĕl'vī-dîr' pärk) A city of northwest Georgia, a suburb of Atlanta. Population, 18,089.

Bel·vi·dere (bĕl'vī-dîr') A city of northern Illinois east of Rockford. It is a manufacturing center in a farming region. Population, 15,176.

Be·ly (byĕ'lē, bĕ'-), Andrei. Pen name of Boris Nikolaevich Bugaev. 1880-1934. Russian writer. A symbolist, he produced ornate, complex novels, such as The Silver Dome (1910) and Kotik Letayev (1918).

Bel·zo·ni (bĕl-zō'nē, -tsô'-), Giovanni Battista. 1778-1823. Italian explorer and Egyptologist who discovered and opened ancient Egyptian tombs and temples, often sending the recovered artifacts to England.

be·ma (bĕ'mə) n. pl. be·ma·ta (-mə-tə). 1. Judaism. The platform from which services are conducted in a synagogue. Also called almemar. 2. Eastern Orthodox Church. The area of a church in which the altar is located; the sanctuary. [Ultimately from Greek bēma, step, platform. See g^wā- in Appendix.]

Bem·ba (bĕm'bə) n. A Bantu language spoken in Zambia. Also called Chibemba.

be·med·aled or be·med·alled (bĭ-mĕd'ld) adj. Decorated with or wearing medals.

Be·mel·mans (bĕ'məl-mənz, bĕm'əl-), Ludwig. 1898-1962. Austrian-born American illustrator and writer of children's books, such as Madeleine (1939), and adult fiction, including Hotel Splendide (1940), which was based on his experiences in the hotel and restaurant business.

be·mire (bĭ-mīr') v. tr. be·mired, be·mir·ing, be·mires. 1. To soil with mud. 2. To cause to sink into mud.

be·moan (bĭ-mōn') v. tr. be·moaned, be·moan·ing, be·moans. 1. To mourn over; lament. 2. To express pity or grief for. [Middle English bimonen, alteration (influenced by mone, moan); see MOAN, of bimenen, from Old English bemānan : be-, be- + mānan, to complain of; see mei·no- in Appendix.]

be·muse (bĭ-myōōz') v. tr. be·mused, be·mus·ing, be·mus·es. 1. To cause to be bewildered; confuse. See Synonyms at daze. 2. To cause to be engrossed in thought. —be·mus'ed·ly (-myōō'zĭd-lē) adv. —be·muse'ment n.

ben (bĕn) Scots. n. The inner room or parlor of a house with two rooms. — adv. Inside; within. — prep. Within. [Middle English, variant of binne, within, from Old English binnan. See en in Appendix.]

Ben·a·cer·raf (bĕn-ăs'ər-əf), Baruj. Born 1920. Venezuelan-born American pathologist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for discoveries concerning the relationship of cell structure to organ transplants and diseases.

Be·na·res (bə-när'əs, -ēz) See Varanasi.

Be-na-ven-te y Mar-tí-nez (běn'ə-vě'n'tē ē mār-tē'nəs, bē'nä-vě'n'tē ē mār-tē'něth), Jacinto. 1866-1954. Spanish playwright. He won the 1922 Nobel Prize for literature for his subtly satirical plays.

Ben Bel-la (běn bēl'ə), Ahmed. Born 1919. Algerian revolutionary leader. Active in the Algerian nationalist movement after World War II, he became independent Algeria's first prime minister (1962) and its first elected president (1963) but was ousted in a coup (1965).

Bence-Jones protein (běns'jōnz' prō'tēn') n. A protein occurring in the serum and urine of patients with certain diseases, especially multiple myeloma. [After Henry Bence-Jones (1813-1873), British physician.]

bench (běnch) n. 1. A long seat, often without a back, for two or more persons. 2. Nautical. A thwart in a boat. 3. Law. a. The seat for judges in a courtroom. b. The office or position of a judge. c. Often Bench. The judge or judges composing a court. 4. a. A seat occupied by a person in an official capacity. b. The office of such a person. 5. A strong worktable, such as one used in carpentry or in a laboratory. 6. A platform on which animals, especially dogs, are exhibited. 7. Sports. a. The place where the players on a team sit when not participating in a game. b. The reserve players on a team. 8. a. A level, narrow stretch of land interrupting a declivity. b. A level elevation of land along a shore or coast, especially one marking a former shoreline. — v. tr. benched, bench-ing, bench-es. 1. To furnish with benches. 2. To seat on a bench. 3. To show (dogs) in a bench show. 4. Sports. To keep out of or remove from a game: benched the goalie for fighting. [Middle English, from Old English benc.] bench-er (běn'chər) n. 1. One that sits on a bench. 2. Chiefly British. A member of the inner or higher bar who acts as a governor of one of the Inns of Court. 3. One, such as a magistrate, who occupies a bench.

Bench-ley (běnch'lē), Robert Charles. 1889-1945. American humorist, critic, and actor whose works, including the film How to Sleep (1935) and the book My Ten Years in a Quandary (1936), often pitted an average American against the complexities of modern life.

bench-mark (běnch'märk') n. 1. A standard by which something can be measured or judged: "Inflation... is a great distorter of seemingly fixed economic ideas and benchmarks" (Benjamin M. Friedman). See Synonyms at standard. 2. Often bench mark. A surveyor's mark made on a stationary object of previously determined position and elevation and used as a reference point in tidal observations and surveys. — v. tr. bench-marked, bench-mark-ing, bench-marks. To measure (a rival's product) according to specified standards in order to compare it with and improve one's own product. [From the use of the mark as a place to insert an angle iron that serves as a support for a leveling rod.]

bench press (běnch prĕs) n. Sports. A lift that is executed from a horizontal position on a bench, in which the weight is lifted from the chest to arm's length and then lowered back to the chest.

bench-press (běnch'prĕs') v. tr. bench--pressed, bench--press-ing, bench--press-es. Sports. To lift (barbells, for example) from a horizontal position on a bench.

bench show (běnch shō) n. An indoor exhibition of small animals, especially a competitive dog show. [From the benches or platforms on which the dogs are displayed.]

bench-warm-er (běnch'wôr'mər) n. Sports. A substitute player.

bench warrant (běnch wôr'ənt) n. Law. A warrant issued by a judge or court ordering the apprehension of an offender.

bend¹ (běnd) v. bent (běnt), bend-ing, bends. — v. tr. 1. To bring (something) into a state of tension: bend a bow. 2. a. To cause to assume a curved or angular shape: bend a piece of iron into a horseshoe. b. To force to assume a different direction or shape, according to one's own purpose: "Few will have the greatness to bend history itself, but each of us can work to change a small portion of events" (Robert F. Kennedy). 3. To cause to swerve from a straight line; deflect. 4. To render submissive; subdue. 5. To apply (the mind) closely: "The weary naval officer goes to bed at night having bent his brain all day to a scheme of victory" (Jack Beatty). 6. Nautical. To fasten: bend a mainsail onto the boom. — v. intr. 1. a. To deviate from a straight line or position: The lane bends to the right at the bridge. b. To assume a curved, crooked, or angular form or direction: The saplings bent in the wind. 2. To incline the body; stoop. 3. To make a concession; yield. 4. To apply oneself closely; concentrate: She bent to her task. — n. 1. a. The act or fact of bending. b. The state of being bent. 2. Something bent: a bend in the road. 3. bends. Nautical. The thick planks in a ship's side; wales. 4. bends. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A manifestation of decompression sickness that is caused by the formation of nitrogen bubbles in the blood and tissues after a rapid reduction in the surrounding pressure and is characterized by pain in the joints and abdomen. —idioms. around the bend. Slang. Insane; crazy. bend (someone's) ear. Slang. To talk to at length, usually excessively. [Middle English benden, from Old English bendan. See bhendh- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: bend, crook, curve, round. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to swerve or cause to swerve from a straight line": bent his knees and knelt; crooks her little finger when she holds a teacup; claws that curve under; rounding the lips to articulate an "o."

ANTONYM: straighten

bend² (běnd) n. 1. Heraldry. A band passing from the upper dexter corner of an escutcheon to the lower sinister corner. 2. Nautical. A knot that joins a rope to a rope or another object. [Middle English, from Old English bend, band,, and from Old French bende, band (of Germanic origin); see bhendlh- in Appendix.]

Bend (běnd) A city of central Oregon at the eastern foot of the Cascade Range east of Eugene. Lumbering and tourism are important to its economy. Population, 20,469.

Ben Day also ben-day or Ben-day (běn-dā') n. A method of adding a tone to a printed image by imposing a transparent sheet of dots or other patterns on the image at some stage of a photographic reproduction process. [After Benjamin Day.]

bend-er (běn'dər) n. 1. One that bends: a bender of iron bars; a bender of the truth. 2. Slang. A drinking spree.

Ben-de-ry (běn-dě'rē, bĭn-dyě'rē) A city of southern Moldavia on the Dniester River near Odessa. A historically strategic gateway to Bessarabia, the city has been controlled at various times by Turkey, Russia, Romania, and the Soviet Union. Population, 122,000.

Ben-di-go (běn'dī-gō') A city of southeast Australia north-northwest of Melbourne. It was founded in 1851 during the Australian gold rush. Population, 31,841.

bend sinister (běnd sĭn'ĩ-stər) n. Heraldry. A band passing from the upper sinister corner of an escutcheon to the lower dexter corner.

be-neath (bĭ-nēth') adv. 1. In a lower place; below. 2. Underneath. — prep. 1. Lower than; below. 2. Covered or concealed by: The earth lay beneath a blanket of snow. 3. Under the force, control, or influence of. 4. a. Lower than, as in rank or station. b. Unworthy of; unbecoming: It was beneath me to beg. [Middle English binethe, from Old English beneoþan : be, by; see BY¹ + neoþan, below.]

ben-e-dict (běn'ĩ-dĭkt') n. A newly married man who was previously considered a confirmed bachelor. [After Benedick, a character in Much Ado About Nothing by Shakespeare.]

Ben-e-dict XIV (běn'ĩ-dĭkt'), Originally Prospero Lambertini. 1675-1758. Pope (1740-1758) who condemned the use of native rituals by Indian and Chinese converts to Catholicism.

Ben-e-dict XV (běn'ĩ-dĭkt'), Originally Giacomo della Chiesa. 1854-1922. Pope (1914-1922) who sponsored World War I relief efforts and sought to mediate peace.

Ben-e-dict (běn'ĩ-dĭkt'), Ruth Fulton. 1887-1948. American anthropologist noted for her study of Native American and Japanese cultures.

Ben-e-dic-tine (běn'ĩ-dĭk'tĭn, -tēn') n. Roman Catholic Church. A monk or nun belonging to the order founded by Saint Benedict of Nursia. — Ben'e-dic'-tine adj.

ben·e·dic·tion (běn'ī-dīk'shən) n. 1. A blessing. 2. An invocation of divine blessing, usually at the end of a church service. 3. Often Benediction. Roman Catholic Church. A short service consisting of prayers, the singing of a Eucharistic hymn, and the blessing of the congregation with the host. [Middle English benediccioun, from Old French benedicion, from Latin benedictiō, benedictiōn-, from benedictus, past participle of benedicere, to bless : bene, well; see deu-² in Appendix + dīcere, to speak; see deik- in Appendix.] —ben'e-dic'tive, ben'e-dic'to-ry (-dīk'tə-rē) adj.

Benedict of Nur-si-a (běn'ī-dīkt' ūv nūr'shē-ə, -shə), Saint. A.D.480?-547?. Italian monk who as founder of the Benedictine order (c. 529) is considered the patriarch of Western monasticism.

Ben·e·dic't's solution (běn'ī-dīkts sə-lōō'shən) n. A solution of sodium citrate, sodium carbonate, and copper sulfate that changes from blue to yellow or red in the presence of reducing sugars, such as glucose. Also called Benedict's reagent [After Stanley Rossiter Benedict (1884-1936), American chemist.]

Benedict's test (běn'ī-dīkts tĕst) n. A laboratory test using Benedict's solution to detect sugar in a sample.

Ben·e·dic·tus (běn'ī-dīk'təs) n. 1. A canticle that begins Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini ("Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord"). 2. A canticle that begins Benedictus Dominus Deus Israel ("Blessed be the Lord God of Israel"). [Latin, past participle of benedīcere, to bless. See BENEDICTION.]

ben·e·fac·tion (běn'ə-fāk'shən, běn'ə-fāk'-) n. 1. The act of conferring aid of some sort. 2. A charitable gift or deed. [Late Latin benefactiō, benefactiōn-, from Latin benefactus, past participle of benefacere, to do a service : bene, well; see deu-² in Appendix + facere, to do; see dhē- in Appendix.]

ben·e·fac·tor (běn'ə-fāk'tər) n. One that gives aid, especially financial aid. [Middle English, from Late Latin, from Latin benefacere. See BENEFACTION.]

ben·e·fac·tress (běn'ə-fāk'trīs) n. A woman who gives aid, especially financial aid.

be·nef·ic (bə-nĕf'ik) adj. Beneficent. [Latin beneficus : bene, well; see BENEFACTION + -ficus, -fic.]

ben·e·fice (běn'ə-fīs) n. 1. Ecclesiastical. a. A church office endowed with fixed capital assets that provide a living. b. The revenue from such assets. 2. A landed estate granted in feudal tenure. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin beneficium, benefit, from beneficus, benefic. See BENEFIC.] —ben'e-fice v.

be·nef·i·cence (bə-nĕf'ī-səns) n. 1. The state or quality of being kind, charitable, or beneficial. 2. A charitable act or gift. [Latin beneficentia, from beneficus, beneficent-, benefic. See BENEFIC.]

be·nef·i·cent (bə-nĕf'ī-sənt) adj. 1. Characterized by or performing acts of kindness or charity. 2. Producing benefit; beneficial. [Probably from BENEFI-

CENCE, on the model of such pairs as BENEVOLENT, BENEVOLENCE.]

—be·nef'i-cent·ly adv.

ben·e-fi·cial (běn'ə-fīsh'əl) adj. 1. Producing or promoting a favorable result; advantageous. 2. Law. Receiving or having the right to receive proceeds or other advantages. [Middle English, from Old French beneficial, from Late Latin beneficiālis, from Latin beneficium, benefit. See BENEFICE.] —ben'e-fi'cial·ly adv. —ben'e-fi'cial·ness n.

SYNONYMS: beneficial, profitable, advantageous. These adjectives apply to what promotes benefit or gain. Beneficial is said of what enhances well-being: a temperate climate beneficial to the health; an arms limitation agreement beneficial to all countries. Profitable refers to what yields material gain or useful compensation: profitable speculation on the stock market; a profitable meeting to resolve difficulties. Something advantageous affords improvement in relative position or in chances of success: signed a contract that is advantageous to our company; found it socially advantageous to entertain often and well.

ben·e-fi·ci-ar·y (běn'ə-fīsh'ē-ēr'ē, -fīsh'ə-rē) n. pl. ben·e-fi·ci-ar·ies. 1. One that receives a benefit: I am the beneficiary of your generosity. 2. The recipient of funds, property, or other benefits, as from an insurance policy or will. 3. Ecclesiastical. The holder of a benefice. [Medieval Latin beneficiārius, holder of a feudal benefice, from Latin, soldier granted privileges, from beneficium, benefit. See BENEFICE.] —ben'e-fi'ci-ar'y adj.

ben·e-fit (běn'ə-fīt) n. 1. a. Something that promotes or enhances well-being; an advantage. b. Help; aid. 2. A payment made or an entitlement available in accordance with a wage agreement, an insurance policy, or a public assistance program. 3. A public entertainment, performance, or social event held to raise funds for a person or cause. 4. Archaic. A kindly deed. — v. ben·e-fit·ed also ben·e-fit·ted, ben·e-fit·ing also ben·e-fit·ting, ben·e-fits also ben·e-fits. — v. tr. To be helpful or useful to. — v. intr. To derive benefit: You will benefit from her good example. [Middle English, from Old French bienfait, good deed, from Latin benefactum, from benefacere, to do a service. See BENEFACTION.]

SYNONYMS: benefit, capitalize, profit. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to derive advantage from something”: benefited from the stock split; capitalized on her adversary's blunder; profiting from experience.

benefit of clergy (běn'ə-fīt ūv klŭr'jē) n. 1. The authorized sanction of a religious rite: cohabiting without benefit of clergy. 2. Exemption from trial or punishment in a civil court, given to the clergy in the Middle Ages.

benefit of the doubt (běn'ə-fīt ūv thē daut) n. A favorable judgment granted in the absence of full evidence.

Be·ne·lux (běn'ə-lüks') An economic union of Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg, originally established as a customs union in 1948.

Be·neš (běn'ěsh'), Eduard. 1884-1948. Czechoslovakian politician who was foreign minister (1918-1935) and president (1935-1938) until the German occupation forced him to flee the country. On his return he was again elected president (1946) but resigned after refusing to sign a Communist constitution (1948).

Be·nét (bī-nā'), William Rose. 1886-1950. American writer and editor whose works include poetry, novels, and The Reader's Encyclopedia (1948). His brother Stephen Vincent Benét (1898-1943), also a writer, is best known for his Civil War narrative poem John Brown's Body (1928).

Be·ne·ven·to (běn'ə-věnt'tō) A city of southern Italy northeast of Naples. In ancient times it was an important trade center on the Appian Way. Population, 51,900.

be·nev·o·lence (bə-něv'ə-ləns) n. 1. An inclination to perform kind, charitable acts. 2. a. A kindly act. b. A gift given out of generosity. 3. A compulsory tax or payment exacted by some English sovereigns without the consent of Parliament.

be·nev·o·lent (bə-něv'ə-lənt) adj. 1. Characterized by or suggestive of doing good. 2. Of, concerned with, or organized for the benefit of charity. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin benevolēns, benevolent- : bene, well; see deu-² in Appendix + volēns, present participle of velle, to wish; see wel-¹ in Appendix.] —be·nev·o·lent·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: benevolent, charitable, eleemosynary, philanthropic. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "of, concerned with, providing, or provided by charity": a benevolent fund; a charitable foundation; eleemosynary relief; philanthropic contributions. See also Synonyms at kind¹ Ben·fleet (běn'flēt') An urban district of southeast England on an inlet of the Thames estuary east of London. Population, 86,000.

B.Eng. abbr. Bachelor of Engineering.

Ben·gal (běn-gôl', běng-, běn'gəl, běng'-) A region of eastern India and Bangladesh. It was a province of India until 1947, when the eastern part became East Pakistan, and later (1971) Bangladesh, and the western section was included in independent India. —Ben'ga·lese' (běn'gə-lěz', -lēs', běng'-) adj. & n.

Bengal, Bay of. An arm of the Indian Ocean bordered by Sri Lanka and India on the west, Bangladesh on the north, and Burma and Thailand on the east.

Ben·ga·li (běn-gô'lē, běng-) adj. Of or relating to Bengal or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Bengal. 2. The modern Indic language of West Bengal and Bangladesh.

ben-ga-line (běng'gə-lēn') n. A fabric having a crosswise ribbed effect made of silk, wool, or synthetic fibers. [French, from Bengale, Bengal.]

Bengal light (běn-gôl'lit) n. 1. A colored flare or light. 2. A blue light, formerly used for signaling.

Ben-ga-si (běn-gă'zē, bēng-) See Benghazi.

Beng-bu (bŭng'boō') also Peng-pu (pŭng'pōō') A city of eastern China northwest of Nanjing. It was a government base during the civil war (1946-1949). Population, 425,000.

Ben-gha-zi also Ben-ga-si (běn-gă'zē, bēng-) A city of northeast Libya on the Gulf of Sidra. Inhabited since Greek and Roman times, it is a major port and was a capital of Libya from 1951 to 1972. Population, 367,600.

B. Engr. abbr. Bachelor of Engineering.

B. Eng. Sci. abbr. Bachelor of Engineering Science.

Ben Gur-ion (běn gōor'ē-ən), David. Originally David Grün. 1886-1973.

Polish-born Israeli political leader. Active in the Zionist movement, he founded the Mapai Party in 1930 and organized the resistance against the British after World War II. Upon Israel's independence, he became prime minister (1948-1953 and 1955-1963).

Be-ni (bě'nē) A river of central and northwest Bolivia rising in the Andes and flowing about 1,599 km (994 mi) to the Mamoré River.

Be-ni-cia (bə-nē'shə) A city of western California on an inlet of San Francisco Bay north-northeast of Oakland. It was the state capitol from 1853 to 1854. Population, 24,437.

be-night-ed (bī-nī'tid) adj. 1. Overtaken by night or darkness. 2. Being in a state of moral or intellectual darkness; unenlightened. —be-night'ed-ly adv. —be-night'ed-ness n.

be-nign (bī-nīn') adj. 1. Of a kind and gentle disposition. 2. Showing gentleness and mildness. See Synonyms at kind¹. 3. Tending to exert a beneficial influence; favorable: the benign influence of pure air. See Synonyms at favorable. 4. Medicine. Of no danger to health; not recurrent or progressive; not malignant: a benign tumor. [Middle English benigne, from Old French, from Latin benignus. See genə- in Appendix.] —be-nign'ly adv.

be-nig-nan-cy (bī-nīg'nən-sē) n. pl. be-nig-nan-cies. Benignity.

be-nig-nant (bī-nīg'nənt) adj. 1. Favorable; beneficial. 2. Kind and gracious. —be-nig'nant-ly adv.

be-nig-ni-ty (bī-nīg'nī-tē) n. pl. be-nig-ni-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being kind and gentle. 2. A kindly or gracious act.

Be-nin (bə-nīn', bě-nēn') 1. A former kingdom of western Africa, now part of Nigeria. It flourished from the 14th to the 17th century. 2. or Formerly

Da-ho-mey (də-hō'mē, də-ô-mā') A country of western Africa. Originally made up of several ancient kingdoms colonized by France, it became independent in 1960. Porto-Novo is the capital and Cotonou the largest city. Population, 3,567,000. 3. Also Benin City. A city of southern Nigeria on the Benin River, about 161 km (100 mi) long. The city is known for its bronze works of art. Population, 161,700.

Benin (bə-nĭn', bĕ-nĕn'), Bight of. A wide indentation of the Gulf of Guinea in western Africa.

ben-i-son (bĕn'ĭ-zən, -sən) n. A blessing; a benediction. [Middle English, from Old French beneison, from Latin benedictiō, benedictiōn-, praising. See BENEDICTION.]

ben-ja-min (bĕn'jə-mən) n. See benzoin (n., sense 1). [Alteration of benjoin, bewegwyne, early forms of BENZOIN.]

Ben-ja-min (bĕn'jə-mən) In the Old Testament, the younger son of Jacob and Rachel and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

Ben-ja-min (bĕn'jə-mən), Asher. 1773-1845. American architect particularly noted for his books, such as The American Builder's Companion (1806), which popularized late colonial and Greek Revival designs throughout New England.

Ben-ja-min (bĕn'jə-mən), Judah Philip. 1811-1884. British-born American politician who served as Confederate secretary of war (1861-1862) and secretary of state (1862-1865).

Ben Lo-mond (bĕn lō'mənd) A mountain, 973.6 m (3,192 ft) high, of south-central Scotland on the eastern shore of Loch Lomond.

ben-net (bĕn'ĭt) n. Herb bennet.

Ben-nett (bĕn'ĭt), (Enoch) Arnold. 1867-1931. British writer whose plays and novels, such as The Old Wives' Tale (1908), were influenced by the French realists and depict life among the lower middle classes.

Ben-nett (bĕn'ĭt), Floyd. 1890-1928. American aviator and Arctic explorer who piloted with Richard E. Byrd the first flight over the North Pole (1926).

Ben-nett (bĕn'ĭt), James Gordon. 1795-1872. American journalist and publisher who founded and edited (1835-1867) the New York Herald. His son James Gordon Bennett (1841-1918) succeeded him as editor (1867), founded the Paris edition of the Herald, and funded expeditions and sporting events.

Ben-nett (bĕn'ĭt), Richard Bedford Viscount Bennett. 1870-1947. Canadian prime minister (1930-1935) who convened the 1932 economic conference in Ottawa.

Ben Ne-vis (bĕn nĕ'vĭs, nĕv'ĭs) The highest mountain of Great Britain, rising to 1,343.8 m (4,406 ft) in the Grampian Mountains of western Scotland.

Ben-ning-ton (bĕn'ĭng-tən) A town of southwest Vermont west of Brattleboro. It is a tourist center and the seat of Bennington College (established 1925). Population, 16,451.

ben-ny (bĕn'ĕ) n. pl. ben-nies. Slang. An amphetamine tablet taken as a stimulant. [From BENZEDRINE.]

Ben·ny (běn'ē), Jack. 1894-1974. American comedian known for his delayed comic delivery and for his shows on radio (1932-1955) and television (1950-1965), which featured sketches based on his fictitious miserliness, constant age of 39, and inexpert violin playing.

Be·noît de Sainte-Maure (bən-wā' də sānt-môr'), fl. 12th century. French trouvère whose Roman de Troie was a source for later works set during the Trojan War, such as Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde.

Ben·sen·ville (běn'sən-vil') A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 17,767.

bent¹ (běnt) v. Past tense and past participle of bend¹. — adj. 1. Altered from an originally straight or even condition: pieces of bent wire. 2. Determined to take a course of action: I was bent on going to the theater. 3. Chiefly British. Corrupt; venal. — n. 1. A tendency, disposition, or inclination: "The natural bent of my mind was to science" (Thomas Paine). 2. A transverse structural member or framework used for strengthening a bridge or trestle.

bent² (běnt) n. 1. Bent grass. 2. The stiff stalk of various grasses. 3. An area of grassland unbounded by hedges or fences. [Middle English, from Old English beonet (attested only in place names).]

Bent (běnt), Charles. 1799-1847. American pioneer and fur trader who with his brother William (1809-1869) established Bent's Fort (1832), a principal trading post in the early Southwest.

bent grass also bent·grass (běnt'grās') n. Any of various usually weedy grasses of the genus Agrostis native to chiefly temperate regions. Some are grown for pasture, turf, or putting greens on golf courses.

Ben·tham (běn'thəm), Jeremy. 1748-1832. British writer, reformer, and philosopher who systematically analyzed law and legislation, thereby laying the foundations of utilitarianism.

Ben·tham·ism (běn'thə-miz'əm) n. Philosophy. The utilitarian philosophy of Jeremy Bentham, holding that pleasure is the chief end of life and that the greatest happiness for the greatest number should be the ultimate goal of human beings. — Ben'tham·ite' (-mīt') n.

ben·thos (běn'thōs') n. 1. The collection of organisms living on or in sea or lake bottoms. 2. The bottom of a sea or a lake. [Greek.] — ben'thic (-thīk), ben·thon'ic (běn-thōn'ik) adj.

Ben·tinck (běn'tīngk), William Henry Cavendish Third Duke of Portland. 1738-1809. British politician who served as prime minister (1783 and 1807-1809) and home secretary (1794-1801).

Bent·ley (běnt'lē), Richard. 1662-1742. English cleric and classical scholar noted for his Letter to Dr. John Mill (1691) and Dissertation upon the Epistles of Phalaris (1699).

ben·to (běn'tō) n. Variant of obento.

Ben·ton (běn'tən) A city of central Arkansas southwest of Little Rock. There are bauxite deposits in the area. Population, 18,177.

Ben·ton¹ (běn'tən), Thomas Hart. Called "Old Bullion." 1782-1858. American legislator. A U.S. senator (1821-1851) and representative (1853-1855) from Missouri, he staunchly opposed the use of paper currency.

Ben·ton² (běn'tən), Thomas Hart. 1889-1975. American artist whose paintings and murals, such as The History of Missouri, were executed in a flat, realistic style known as regionalism and portrayed life in the Midwest and South.

ben·ton·ite (běn'tə-nīt') n. An absorbent aluminum silicate clay formed from volcanic ash and used in various adhesives, cements, and ceramic fillers. [After Benton Formation (formerly Fort Benton Formation) of the Rock Creek district in eastern Wyoming.] —ben·ton·it'ic (-nīt'ik) adj.

bent·wood (běnt'wōd') n. Wood that has been steamed until pliable and then bent into shape. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a bentwood rocker; bentwood chairs.

Be·nue (bān'wā) also Bin·ue (bīn'-) A river of western Africa rising in Cameroon and flowing about 1,078 km (670 mi) to the Niger River in central Nigeria.

be·numb (bī-nūm') v. tr. be·numbed, be·numb·ing, be·numbs. 1. To make numb, especially by cold. 2. To make inactive; dull: "The anesthetic afternoon benumbs, sickens our senses" (Karl Shapiro). See Synonyms at daze. [Middle English binomen, from past participle of binimen, to take away, from Old English beniman : be-, away; see BE- + niman, to take; see NUMB.] —be·numb'·ment n.

Ben·xi (būn'shē') also Pen·ki (-jē') A city of northeast China south-southeast of Shenyang. It was founded as a metallurgical center in 1915. Population, 678,500.

Benz (běnts), Karl Friedrich. 1844-1929. German automobile pioneer credited with manufacturing the first vehicle powered with an internal-combustion engine, patented in 1886.

benz- pref. Variant of benzo-.

benz·al·de·hyde (běn-zāl'də-hīd') n. A normally colorless aromatic oil, C₆H₅CHO, obtained naturally, as from the bitter almond, or made synthetically and used in perfumes and as a solvent and a flavoring.

ben·zal·ko·ni·um chloride (běn'zāl-kō'nē-əm klōr'īd') n. A yellow-white powder prepared in an aqueous solution and used as a detergent, fungicide, bactericide, and spermicide. [BENZ(O)- + ALK(YL) + (AMM)ONIUM.]

Ben·ze·drine (běn'zī-drēn') A trademark used for a brand of amphetamine.

ben·zene (běn'zēn', běn-zēn') n. Abbr. BHC A clear, colorless, highly refractive flammable liquid, C₆H₆, derived from petroleum and used in or to manufacture a wide variety of chemical products, including DDT, detergents, insecticides, and motor fuels. Also called benzine, benzol.

- benzene hexachloride (běn'zēn' hěk'sə-klōr'īd') n. Abbr. BHC A musty-smelling crystalline substance, $C_6H_6Cl_6$, prepared by the chlorination of benzene, occurring in several isomeric forms, and used as a powerful insecticide.
- benzene ring (běn'zēn' rīng) n. The hexagonal ring structure in the benzene molecule, C_6H_6 , and its substitutional derivatives, each vertex of which is occupied and distinguished by a carbon atom.
- ben·zi·dine (běn'zī-dēn') n. A yellowish, white, or reddish-gray crystalline powder, $NH_2C_6H_4C_6H_4NH_2$, used in dyes and to detect blood stains. [BENZ(ENE) + -ID(E) + -INE².]
- ben·zim·id·az·ole (běn'zə-mī-dǎž'ōl', -mīd'ə-zōl') n. A crystalline compound, $C_7H_6N_2$, that is used in organic synthesis and inhibits the growth of certain microorganisms.
- ben·zine (běn'zēn', běn-zēn') also ben·zin (běn'zīn) n. 1. A colorless, flammable, liquid mixture of hydrocarbons obtained in distilling petroleum, used in cleaning and dyeing and as a motor fuel. 2. See benzene.
- benzo- or benz- pref. Benzene; benzoic acid: benzophenone. [From BENZOIN.]
- ben·zo·ate (běn'zō-āt') n. A salt or ester of benzoic acid.
- benzoate of soda (běn'zō-āt' ūv sō'də) n. See sodium benzoate.
- ben·zo·caine (běn'zə-kān') n. A white, odorless, tasteless crystalline ester, ethyl-para-aminobenzoate ($C_6H_4NH_2CO_2C_2H_5$), used as a local anesthetic.
- ben·zo·di·az·e·pine (běn'zō-dī-ǎž'ə-pēn', -pīn) n. Any of a group of chemical compounds with a common molecular structure and similar pharmacological effects, used as antianxiety agents, muscle relaxants, sedatives, and hypnotics. [BENZO- + DIAZEP(AM) + -INE².]
- ben·zo·ic acid (běn-zō'īk ǎs'īd) n. An aromatic white crystalline acid, C_6H_5COOH , used to season tobacco and in perfumes, dentifrices, and germicides. [From BENZOIN.]
- ben·zo·in (běn'zō-īn, -zoin') n. 1. A balsamic resin obtained from certain tropical Asian trees of the genus Styrax and used in perfumery and medicine. Also called benjamin, gum benjamin, gum benzoin. 2. A white or yellowish crystalline compound, $C_{14}H_{12}O_2$, derived from benzaldehyde. [French benjoin, and Italian benzoino both from Arabic lubān jāwīy, frankincense of Java.]
- ben·zol (běn'zōl', -zōl', zōl') n. See benzene. [BENZ(O)- + -OL¹.]
- ben·zo·phe·none (běn'zō-fī-nōn', -fē'nōn) n. A white crystalline compound, $C_6H_5COC_6H_5$, used in perfumery and in medicine. Also called diphenylketone
- ben·zo·py·rene (běn'zō-pī'rēn', -pī-rēn') n. A yellow, crystalline, aromatic hydrocarbon, $C_{20}H_{12}$, that is a carcinogen found in coal tar and cigarette smoke.
- ben·zo·yl (běn'zō-īl') n. The univalent radical $C_6H_5ICO^-$, derived from benzoic acid.

benzoyl peroxide (běn'zō-īl' pə-rōk'sīd') n. A flammable white granular solid, (C₆H₅CO)₂O₂, used as a bleaching agent for flour, fats, waxes, and oils, as a polymerization catalyst, and in pharmaceuticals.

ben·zyl (běn'zīl, -zēl') n. The univalent radical C₆H₅CH₂-, derived from toluene.

Be·o·grad (bě'ô-grād) See Belgrade.

Be·o·wulf (bā'ə-wōōlf') n. The legendary hero of an anonymous Old English epic poem believed to have been composed in the early eighth century. Beowulf slays the monster Grendel and its mother, becomes king of the Geats, and dies fighting a dragon.

be·queath (bī-kwēth', -kwēth') v. tr. be·queathed, be·queath·ing, be·queaths. 1. Law. To leave or give (property) by will. 2. To pass (something) on to another; hand down: bequeathed to their children a respect for hard work.

[Middle English biquethen, from Old English becwethan : be-, be- + cwethan, to say; see g^wet- in Appendix.] —be·queath'al, be·queath'ment n.

—be·queath'er n.

be·quest (bī-kwēst') n. 1. The act of giving, leaving by will, or passing on to another. 2. Something that is bequeathed; a legacy. [Middle English biquest (influenced by biquethen, to bequeath) : bi-, be- + quist, will (from Old English cwis, as in andcwis, answer); see g^wet- in Appendix.]

Bé·ran·ger (bā-rāN-zhā'), Pierre Jean de. 1780-1857. French poet whose politically colored lyrics, such as “Le Roi d'Yvetot,” were set to popular folk tunes.

Be·rar (bā-rār', bə-) A region of west-central India. It was one of the early kingdoms of the Deccan.

be·rate (bī-rāt') v. tr. be·rat·ed, be·rat·ing, be·rates. To rebuke or scold angrily and at length. See Synonyms at scold.

Ber·ber (būr'bər) n. 1. A member of a North African, primarily Muslim people living in settled or nomadic tribes from Morocco to Egypt. 2. Any of the Afro-Asiatic languages of the Berbers. [Arabic Barbar.] —Ber'ber adj.

ber·ber·ine (būr'bə-rēn') n. A bitter-tasting yellow alkaloid, C₂₀H₁₉NO₅, obtained from several plants such as goldenseal and having medical uses as an antipyretic and antibacterial agent. [New Latin Berberis, barberry genus (from Medieval Latin berberis, barberry, from Arabic barbārīs) + *-INE*².]

ber·ceuse (bēr-sœz') n. pl. ber·ceuses (-sœz'). Music. 1. A lullaby. 2. A soothing composition. [French, feminine of berceur, cradle rocker, from bercer, to rock, from Vulgar Latin bertiāre*.]

Berch·tes·ga·den (bërk'təs-gäd'n, bërkH'-) A town of southeast Germany in the Bavarian Alps. It is a popular winter and summer resort. The site of Adolf Hitler's wartime villa is on a peak overlooking the town. Population, 8,126.

ber·dache (bər-dāsh') n. Among certain Native American peoples, a person, usually a male, who assumes the sexual identity and is granted the social status of the opposite sex. [North American French, from French bardache, catamite, from Italian dialectal bardascia, from Arabic bardaj, slave, from Persian bardah, prisoner, from Middle Persian vartak, from Old Iranian varta-*. See welə- in Appendix.] —ber-dach'ism n.

Ber-dya-ev (bər-dyā'yəf), Nikolai Aleksandrovich. 1874-1948. Russian philosopher whose spiritual ideals undercut his Marxist leanings and led to his expulsion from the Soviet Union (1922). His works include The Spiritual Crisis of the Intelligentsia (1910).

Be-re-a (bə-rē'ə) A city of northeast Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland. Population, 19,051.

be-reave (bī-rēv') v. tr. be-reaved or be-reft (-rēft'), be-reav-ing, be-reaves. 1. To leave desolate or alone, especially by death: "Cry aloud for the man who is dead, for the woman and children bereaved" (Alan Paton). 2. Archaic. To take (something valuable or necessary), typically by force. [Middle English bireven, to deprive, from Old English berēafian. See reup- in Appendix.] —be-reave'ment n. —be-reav'er n.

be-reaved (bī-rēvd') adj. Suffering the loss of a loved one: the bereaved family. — n. One or those bereaved: The bereaved has entered the church. The bereaved were comforted by their friends.

be-reft (bī-rēft') v. A past tense and a past participle of bereave. — adj. 1. a. Deprived of something: They are bereft of their dignity. b. Lacking something needed or expected: "Today's graduates seem keenly aware that the future is bereft of conventional expectations" (Bruce Weber). 2. Suffering the death of a loved one; bereaved: the bereft parents.

Ber-en-gar-i-a (bēr'ən-gâr'ē-ə), 1165-1230. Castilian-born queen of England as the wife of Richard I.

Ber-e-ni-ce's Hair (bēr'ə-nī'sēz hâr) n. See Coma Berenices.

Ber-en-son (bēr'in-sən), Bernard also Bernhard. 1865-1959. Lithuanian-born American art critic and historian particularly noted for his writings on the Italian Renaissance, including Venetian Painters of the Renaissance (1894).

be-ret (bə-rā, bēr'ā') n. 1. A round, soft, brimless cap that fits snugly and is often worn angled to one side. 2. Beret. A Green Beret. [French béret, from French dialectal berret, and from Old Provençal berret, cap both from Late Latin birrus, hooded cloak. See BIRETTA.]

be-ret-ta or ber-ret-ta (bə-rēt'ə) n. Variants of biretta.

Be-re-zi-na (bə-rě'zī-nə, byə-ryě-zyī-nä') A river of Belarus rising in the northwest and flowing about 611 km (380 mi) generally southward to the Dnieper River.

Be-rez-ni-ki (bə-rěz'nī-kē, byə-ryôz'nyī-kē') A city of western Russia on the Kama River. It is an important industrial center. Population, 195,000.

berg (bûrg) n. A mass of floating or stationary ice; an iceberg.

Berg (běrg, bėrk), Alban. 1885-1935. Austrian composer. A pupil of Arnold Schönberg, he applied an atonal manner to classical forms in works such as the opera Wozzeck (1925) and Violin Concerto (1935).

Berg (bũrg), Paul. Born 1926. American chemist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for developing methods for mapping the structure and function of DNA.

Ber-ga·ma (bər-gä'mə, bũr'gə-) A town of western Turkey north of Izmir. It occupies the site of ancient Pergamum. Population, 34,716.

Ber-ga·mo (běr'gə-mō') A city of northern Italy in the foothills of the Alps northeast of Milan. Originally a Gallic settlement, it later became a Lombard duchy. Population, 121,846.

ber-ga·mot (bũr'gə-mōt') n. 1. a. A small tree (Citrus aurantium subsp. bergamia) commercially grown chiefly in southern Italy for its sour citrus fruits, the rinds of which yield an aromatic oil. Also called bergamot orange b. The oil itself, used extensively in perfumery. Also called bergamot oil 2. See bee balm.

[French bergamote, from Italian bergamotta, from Turkish dialectal beg-armudu, bey's pear : beg, bey; see BEY + armud, pear + -u, possessive suff..]

Ber-ge·n (bũr'gən, bėr'-) A city of southwest Norway on inlets of the North Sea. Founded c. 1070, it was the largest and most important city of medieval Norway. Population, 207,232.

Ber-ge·n-Bel·sen (bũr'gən-běl'sən, bėr'gən-běl'zən) See Belsen.

Ber-ge·n-field (bũr'gən-fēld') A borough of northeast New Jersey east of Paterson. It has varied light industries. Population, 24,458.

Ber-ger (běr'gər), Hans. 1873-1941. German psychiatrist and pioneer in electroencephalography.

Bergh (bũrg), Henry. 1811-1888. American reformer who founded the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (1866).

Ber-gisch-Glad·bach (běr'gış-glät'bäk', -bākH') A town of western Germany near Cologne. Chartered in 1856, it is an industrial center. Population, 100,749.

Ber-gi·us (běr'gē-əs), Friedrich. 1884-1949. German chemist. He shared a 1931 Nobel Prize for the development of methods for high-pressure treatment of chemicals.

Ber-g·man (bũrg'mən), Ingmar. Born 1918. Swedish director whose critically acclaimed films, such as The Silence (1963) and Fanny and Alexander (1983), are characterized by slow pace, laconic dialogue, and heavy use of symbolism to explore the psychological states of the characters.

Ber-g·man (bũrg'mən), Ingrid. 1915-1982. Swedish actress who won an Academy Award in 1944 for Gaslight, in 1956 for Anastasia, and in 1974 for Murder on the Orient Express.

Ber-g·mann's rule (bũrg'mənz rōōl) n. Ecology. The principle holding that in a warm-blooded, polytypic, wide-ranging animal species, the body size of the members of each geographic group varies with the average environmental temperature. According to this principle, warm-blooded animals living in cold climates tend to be larger than animals of the same species living in warm climates. [After Karl Bergmann (died 1865), German biologist.]

Berg-son (bĕrg'sən, bĕrg-sŏn'), Henri Louis. 1859-1941. French philosopher and writer whose widely influential works, including Creative Evolution (1907) and The Creative Mind (1934), largely concern the importance of intuition as a means of attaining knowledge and the élan vital present in all living things. He won the 1927 Nobel Prize for literature.

Berg-son-ism (bĕrg'sə-nĭz'əm) n. The philosophy of Henri Bergson, which asserts that the flow of time personally experienced is free and unrestricted rather than measured on a clock and contends that all living forms arise from a persisting natural force, the élan vital. —Berg-so/ni-an (-sŏ'nĕ-ən) adj. & n.

Berg-strom (bĕrg'strəm), Sune Karl. Born 1916. Swedish biochemist and physician. He shared a 1982 Nobel Prize for research on prostaglandins.

Ber-i-a (bĕr'ĕ-ə), Lavrenti Pavlovich. 1899-1953. Soviet secret police chief (1938-1953) during the brutal regime of Joseph Stalin. In the power struggle following Stalin's death, Beria was convicted of conspiracy and executed.

ber-i-ber-i (bĕr'ĕ-bĕr'ĕ) n. A disease caused by a deficiency of thiamine, endemic in eastern and southern Asia and characterized by neurological symptoms, cardiovascular abnormalities, and edema. [Sinhalese, reduplication of beri, weakness.]

Ber-ing (bĭr'ĭng, bĭr'-, bĕr'- bā'rĭng), Vitus. 1681-1741. Danish navigator and explorer who in 1728 sailed through the Bering Strait, proving (though he did not realize it at the time) that Asia and North America are separate continents.

Bering Sea (bĭr'ĭng sĕ) A northward extension of the Pacific Ocean between Siberia and Alaska, lying north of the Aleutian Islands and connected with the Arctic Ocean by the Bering Strait. It was first explored in the 17th century.

Bering Standard Time (bĭr'ĭng stān'dərd tīm) n. Standard time in the 11th time zone west of Greenwich, England, reckoned at 165° west and used, for example, in the Midway Islands. Also called Bering Time [After the Bering (Sea), or Bering (Strait).]

Bering Strait (bĭr'ĭng strāt) A narrow stretch of water separating Alaska from Siberia and connecting the Arctic Ocean with the Bering Sea. It is believed that during prehistoric times the strait formed a land bridge by which the original inhabitants of North America arrived from Asia.

Bering Time (bĭr'ĭng tīm) n. See Bering Standard Time.

Berke-le-ian-ism (bĕrk'lĕ-ə-nĭz'əm, bĭr'-) n. George Berkeley's philosophy of subjective idealism, which holds that material objects have no independent being but exist only as concepts in God's mind and as perceptions of those concepts in other minds. —Berke/le-ian adj. & n.

Berke·ley (bûrk'lē) 1. A city of western California on San Francisco Bay north of Oakland. Founded as Oceanview on land purchased from a Spanish family in 1853, it was renamed Berkeley in 1866. A branch of the University of California is here (established 1872). Population, 102,724. 2. A city of eastern Missouri, an industrial suburb of St. Louis. Population, 15,922.

Berke·ley (bûrk'lē), Busby. 1895-1976. American choreographer and film director noted for lavish, synchronized dance routines in films such as 42nd Street (1933).

Berke·ley (bârk'lē, bûrk'-), George. 1685-1753. Irish prelate and philosopher whose basic theory, directed against the materialism of Thomas Hobbes, is that to be is to perceive or to be perceived. His works include Treatise Concerning the Principles of Human Knowledge (1710).

Berke·ley (bûrk'lē, bârk'-), Sir William. 1606-1677. English colonial governor of Virginia (1641-1649 and 1660-1677) whose policies led to Bacon's Rebellion (1676).

ber·ke·li·um (bər-kē'lē-əm, bûrk'lē-əm) n. Symbol Bk A synthetic transuranic radioactive element having 9 isotopes with mass numbers from 243 to 250 and half-lives from 3 hours to 1,380 years. Atomic number 97; melting point 986°C; valence 3, 4. [After Berkeley, California.]

Berk·ley (bûrk'lē) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 18,637.

Berk·shire (bûrk'shîr', -shər) n. One of a domestic breed of medium-sized black swine with white markings on the feet, legs, and face. [After Berkshire, a county of south-central England.]

Berkshire Hills (bûrk'shîr' hîlz) also Berk-shires (bûrk'shîrz', -shərz) A region of wooded hills in western Massachusetts rising to 1,064.8 m (3,491 ft). There are numerous resorts, state parks, and forests in the area.

Ber·lich·ing·en (bër'likH-ïng'ən), Götz or Gottfried von. 1480-1562. German knight and folk hero known as the subject of Goethe's play Götz von Berlichingen (1773).

ber·lin (bər-lîn') n. 1. Berlin wool. 2. Often berline. A four-wheeled closed carriage having an open, hooded seat behind. [After Berlin, Germany.]

Ber·lin 1. (bûr-lîn') The capital and largest city of Germany, in the northeast part of the country. Divided between 1945 and 1990 into East Berlin and West Berlin, it was the center of the Prussian state and after 1871 was the capital of the German Empire. The division of the city grew out of the zones of occupation established at the end of World War II. The Berlin Wall, a wire and concrete barrier, was erected by the East German government in August 1961 and dismantled in November 1989. Population, 3,034,118. 2. (bûr'lîn) A city of central Connecticut, an industrial suburb of Hartford. Population, 16,787.

Ber-lin (bûr-lîn'), Irving. Originally Israel Baline. 1888-1989. Russian-born American songwriter who wrote more than 1,500 songs, including "Alexander's Ragtime Band" (1911), and several musical comedies, such as Top Hat (1935) and Annie Get Your Gun (1946).

ber-line (bær-lîn') n. Variant of berlin (n., sense 2).

Ber-lin-er (bûr'lə-nər), Emile. 1851-1929. German-born American inventor who greatly improved the telephone and invented the gramophone (1887).

Berlin wool (bær-lîn' wōōl) n. A light wool yarn used in making clothing, especially gloves.

Ber-li-oz (bër'lī-ōz', -ōs'), (Louis) Hector. 1803-1869. French composer and leading representative of romanticism in French music. His works include Symphonie Fantastique (1830), Romeo and Juliet (1839), and the opera The Trojans (1855-1858).

ber-m also ber-*me (bûrm) n. 1. a. A narrow ledge or shelf, as along the top or bottom of a slope. b. The shoulder of a road. c. A raised bank or path, such as one along a canal. 2. A terrace formed by wave action along the backshore of a beach. 3. A mound or bank of earth placed against the wall of a building to provide protection or insulation. 4. A ledge between the parapet and the moat in a fortification. [French berme, from Dutch berm, from Middle Dutch bærm, berme.]

Ber-me-jo (bær-mā'hō, bër-) A river of northern Argentina rising near the Bolivian border and flowing about 1,046 km (650 mi) generally southeast to the Paraguay River at the Paraguay border.

Ber-mu-da (bær-myōō'də) A self-governing British colony comprising about 300 coral islands in the Atlantic Ocean southeast of Cape Hatteras. The first settlement was made in 1609 by British colonists shipwrecked on their way to Virginia. Tourism is crucial to its economy. Hamilton, on Bermuda Island, the largest in the archipelago, is the capital. Population, 56,000. —Ber-*mu-di-an, Ber-*mu-dan adj. & n.

Bermuda bag (bær-myōō'də bæg) n. An oval handbag with wooden handles and decorative removable covers.

Bermuda buttercup (bær-myōō'də bût'ər-kŭp') n. A southern African herb (Oxalis pes-caprae) having umbels of bright yellow flowers and compound leaves with three leaflets.

Bermuda grass (bær-myōō'də grās) n. A mat-forming perennial grass (Cynodon dactylon), widespread in warm regions and important as a lawn and pasture grass in the southern United States. It is also common as a weed. Also called scutch grass Bermuda lily (bær-myōō'də līl'ē) n. See Easter lily.

Bermuda onion (bær-myōō'də ūn'yən) n. Any of several varieties of mild-flavored onions shaped like a flattened sphere.

Bermuda petrel (bər-myōō'də pět'rəl) n. See cahow.

Bermuda rig (bər-myōō'də rĭg) n. Nautical. A fore-and-aft rig distinguished by a tall triangular mainsail and a sharply raked mast, widely used on cruising and racing vessels. Also called Marconi rig

Ber-mu-das (bər-myōō'dəz) pl.n. Bermuda shorts.

Bermuda shorts (bər-myōō'də shôrts) pl.n. Short pants that end slightly above the knee.

Bern or Berne (bûrn, bĕrn) The capital of Switzerland, in the west-central part of the country on the Aare River. Founded as a military post in 1191, it became part of the Swiss Confederation in 1353 and its capital in 1848. Population, 140,600.

Ber-na-dette of Lourdes (bûr'nə-dĕt' ūf loōrd, loōrdz), Saint Originally Marie Bernarde Soubirous. 1844-1879. French peasant girl whose visions of the Virgin Mary led to the establishment of the shrine at Lourdes, France.

Ber-na-dotte (bûr'nə-dôt'), Count Folke. 1895-1948. Swedish diplomat who as a leader of the Swedish Red Cross (1943-1948) helped save thousands of people from Nazi concentration camps. As United Nations mediator in Palestine (1948) he attempted to end Israeli-Arab hostilities but was assassinated by Israeli terrorists.

Ber-na-nos (bĕr-nä-nôz'), Georges. 1888-1948. French writer whose novels, including The Diary of a Country Priest (1936), concern the opposing forces of God and Satan.

Ber-nard (bĕr-nâr'), Claude. 1813-1878. French physiologist noted for his study of the digestive and nervous systems.

Ber-nar-din de Saint-Pierre (bĕr-nâr-dăn' də sǎn-pyĕr'), Jacques Henri. 1737-1814. French writer whose works, including the novel Paul et Virginie (1787), praise nature and lament civilization.

Ber-nard of Clair-vaux (bər-nārd' ūv klâr-vō', bĕr-nâr'; klâr-vō'), Saint. 1090-1153. French monastic reformer and political figure. Widely known for his piety and mysticism, he was instrumental in the condemnation of Peter Abelard and in rallying support for the Second Crusade.

Berne (bûrn, bĕrn) See Bern.

Ber-nese Alps (bûr'nĕz ălps, -nĕs, bûr-nĕz', -nĕs') A range of the Alps in central Switzerland rising to 4,276.7 m (14,022 ft).

Ber-nese mountain dog (bûr'nĕz moun'tən dôg, -nĕs, bûr-nĕz', -nĕs') n. Any of a Swiss breed of large, muscular dogs having a soft, silky black coat with russet or tan markings on the forelegs, over each eye, and on both sides of a white chest. The dogs were formerly used for draft.

Bern-hardt (bûrn'härt', bĕr-nâr'), Sarah. Originally Henrietta Rosine Bernard. Known as "the Divine Sarah." 1844-1923. French actress. Considered the romantic and tragic actress of her day, she first achieved fame for her performance in Phèdre (1874).

Ber-ni-ci-a (bər-nīsh'ē-ə, -nīsh'ə, bër-) A sixth-century A.D. Anglian kingdom in present-day northeast England. It was later part of the kingdom of Northumbria.

Ber-ni-na Alps (bər-nē'nə əlps, bër-) A mountain group of southeast Switzerland in the Rhaetian Alps on the Swiss-Italian border. The highest elevation is Piz Bernina, rising to 4,051.6 m (13,284 ft). Bernina Pass connects Switzerland and Italy by road and rail.

Ber-ni-ni (bər-nē'nē, bër-), Giovanni Lorenzo or Gianlorenzo. 1598-1680. Italian sculptor, painter, and architect. An outstanding exponent of the Italian baroque, he is noted for his flowing, dynamic sculpture, such as Apollo and Daphne (1622-1624), and his designs for many churches, including Saint Peter's Basilica.

Ber-noul-li (bər-nōō'lē) Family of Swiss mathematicians and scientists, including Jakob or Jacques (1654-1705), an important theorist of ordinary calculus and the calculus of variations. His brother Johann or Jean (1667-1748) developed integral and exponential calculus. Johann's son Daniel (1700-1782) anticipated the law of conservation of energy, did pioneering work in the molecular theory of gases, and contributed to probability theory and the theory of differential equations.

Bernoulli distribution (bər-nōō'lē dīs'trə-byōō'shən) n. See binomial distribution. [After Jakob BERNOULLI.]

Bernoulli effect (bər-nōō'lē ĭ-fěkt') n. The phenomenon of internal pressure reduction with increased stream velocity in a fluid. [After Daniel BERNOULLI.]

Ber-noul-li's law (bər-nōō'lēz lô) n. Statistics. See law of large numbers. [After Jakob BERNOULLI.]

Bernoulli trial (bər-nōō'lē trī'əl) n. Statistics. An experiment having only two possible outcomes, usually denoted success and failure, with the properties that the probability of occurrence of each outcome is the same in each trial and the occurrence of one excludes the occurrence of the other in any given trial. [After Jakob BERNOULLI.]

Bern-stein (bûrn'stīn', -stēn'), Leonard. 1918-1990. American conductor and composer who has written numerous choral and symphonic works but is best known for his musical comedies, including West Side Story (1957).

Bern-storff (bërn'shtôrf), Count Johann Heinrich von. 1862-1939. German diplomat who as ambassador to the United States (1908-1917) warned his government against the use of unrestricted submarine warfare, a practice that precipitated American entry into World War I.

Ber-ra (bĕr'ə), Lawrence Peter. Known as "Yogi." Born 1925. American baseball player and manager. Considered among the best catchers in baseball history, he played for the New York Yankees from 1946 to 1963.

ber-ried (bĕr'ēd) adj. 1. Having or bearing berries: berried branches; a berried plant. 2. Resembling a berry or berries: "an off-dry, berried flavor" (New York Times). 3. Bearing eggs. Used especially of egg-bearing crustaceans or fishes: a berried lobster.

ber-ry (bĕr'ē) n. pl. ber-ries. 1. a. Botany. An indehiscent fruit derived from a single ovary and having the whole wall fleshy, such as the grape or tomato. b. A small, juicy, fleshy fruit, such as a blackberry or raspberry, regardless of its botanical structure. 2. The small, dark egg of certain crustaceans or fishes. — v. intr.

ber-ried, ber-ry-ing, ber-ries. 1. To hunt for or gather berries: went berrying in July. 2. To bear or produce berries. [Middle English berye, from Old English berie. See bhā¹ in Appendix.]

Ber-ry (bĕ-rē') A historical region and former province of central France. Purchased by the French crown in 1101, it became an independent duchy in 1360 and reverted to the crown in 1601.

Ber-ry (bĕr'ē), Charles Edward Anderson. Known as "Chuck." Born 1926. American musician and singer considered among the earliest and most influential rock 'n' roll performers.

Ber-ry-man (bĕr'ē-mən), John. 1914-1972. American poet whose dramatic, personal, and complex works include Homage to Mistress Bradstreet (1956) and the collection 77 Dream Songs (1964).

ber-seem (bĕr-sēm') n. A yellowish-flowered annual clover (Trifolium alexandrinum), native to the Mediterranean region and Asia and grown for forage in warm areas such as Florida. Also called Egyptian clover [Arabic birsīm, from Coptic bersīm.]

ber-serk (bĕr-sûrk', -zûrk') adj. 1. Destructively or frenetically violent: a berserk worker who started smashing all the windows. 2. Mentally or emotionally upset; deranged: berserk with grief. 3. Informal. Unrestrained, as with enthusiasm or appetite; wild: berserk over chocolates. — n. 1. One that is violent, upset, or unrestrained. 2. A berserker. —ber-serk' adv. —ber-serk'ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: When we say that we are going berserk, we may not realize how extreme a state this might be. Our adjective comes from the noun berserker, or berserk, which is from the Old Norse word berserkr, "a wild warrior or champion." Such warriors wore hides of bears, which explains the probable origins of berserkr as a compound of ·bera, "bear," and serkr, "shirt, coat." These berserkers became frenzied in battle, howling like animals, foaming at the mouth, and biting the edges of their iron shields. Berserker is first recorded in English in the early 19th century, long after these wild warriors ceased to exist.

ber-serk-er (bər-sûr'kær, -zûr'-) n. One of a band of ancient Norse warriors legendary for their savagery and reckless frenzy in battle. [Old Norse berserkr : *bera, feminine of björn, bear; see bher⁻² in Appendix + serkr, shirt.]

berth (bûrth) n. 1. Sufficient space for a ship to maneuver; sea room: kept a clear berth of the reefs. 2. A space for a ship to dock or anchor: a steamship moored to its berth at the pier. 3. a. Employment on a ship: sought an officer's berth in the merchant marine. b. A job: a comfortable berth as head of the department. 4. a. A built-in bed or bunk, as on a ship or a train. b. A place to sleep or stay; accommodations: found a berth in a nearby hotel. 5. A space where a vehicle can be parked, as for loading. — v. berthed, berth-ing, berths. — v. tr. 1. To bring (a ship) to a berth. 2. To provide with a berth. — v. intr. To come to a berth; dock. — idiom. a wide berth. Ample space or distance to avoid an unwanted consequence: gave their angry colleague a wide berth. [Middle English birth; perhaps akin to beren, to bear. See BEAR¹.]

ber-tha (bûr'thə) n. A wide, deep collar, often of lace, that covers the shoulders of a dress. [French berthe, after Bertha (died 783), Carolingian queen as the wife of Pepin the Short.]

Ber-the-lot (bër-tə-lō'), Pierre Eugène Marselin. 1827-1907. French chemist and public official who was a founder of thermochemistry, studied explosives, and was the first to synthesize organic compounds.

Ber-til-lon (bûr'tl-ôn', bër-tē-yôn'), Alphonse. 1853-1914. French anthropologist and criminologist who devised the Bertillon system (1880).

Bertillon system (bûr'tl-ôn' sîs'təm) n. A system formerly used for identifying persons by means of a detailed record of body measurements, physical description, and photographs. The Bertillon system was superseded by the more accurate procedure of fingerprinting. [After Alphonse BERTILLON.]

Ber-wyn (bûr'wîn) A city of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 45,426.

ber-yl (bër'əl) n. A transparent to translucent glassy mineral, essentially aluminum beryllium silicate, $\text{Be}_3\text{Al}_2\text{Si}_6\text{O}_{18}$, occurring in hexagonal prisms and constituting the chief source of beryllium. Transparent varieties in white, green, blue, yellow, or pink are valued as gems. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin bēryllus, from Greek bērullos, from bērullion, from Prakrit veruliya, from Pali veḷuriya; perhaps akin to Tamil veḷiru, or viḷar, to whiten, become pale.] — ber'yl-line (-ə-lîn, -lîn') adj.

be-ryl-li-um (bə-rîl'ē-əm) n. Symbol Be A high-melting, lightweight, corrosion-resistant, rigid, steel-gray metallic element used as an aerospace structural material, as a moderator and reflector in nuclear reactors, and in a copper alloy used for springs, electrical contacts, and nonsparking tools. Atomic number 4; atomic weight 9.0122; melting point 1,278°C; boiling point 2,970°C; specific gravity 1.848; valence 2. [From BERYL.]

Ber-ze-li-us (bər-zē'lē-əs, bĕr-sā'lē-ōōs'), Baron Jöns Jakob. 1779-1848.

Swedish chemist who published a table of atomic weights (1828); contributed to electrochemical theory; discovered cerium (1803), zirconium (1824), and titanium (1825); and isolated silicon (1823).

Bes (bĕs) n. Mythology. The Egyptian god of music and revelry.

Be-san-çon (bĭ-zāN-sōN') A city of eastern France east of Dijon. It is an industrial center noted for the manufacture of clocks and watches. Population, 113,283.

Bes-ant (bĕz'ənt), Annie Wood. 1847-1933. English theosophist, philosopher, and political figure who advocated home rule and educational reforms in India.

be-seech (bĭ-sĕch') v. tr. be-sought (-sôt') or be-seech, be-seech-ing, be-seech-es. 1. To address an earnest or urgent request to; implore: beseech them for help. 2. To request earnestly; beg for: beseech help. See Synonyms at beg. [Middle English bisechen, from Old English besēcan: be-, be- + sēcan, to seek; see SEEK.] —be-seech'er n.

be-seem (bĭ-sēm') v. tr. be-seemed, be-seem-ing, be-seems. Archaic. To be appropriate for; befit. [Middle English bisemen: bi-, be- + semen, to seem; see SEEM.]

be-set (bĭ-sĕt') v. tr. be-set, be-set-ting, be-sets. 1. To attack from all sides. 2. To trouble persistently; harass. See Synonyms at attack. 3. To hem in; surround: "the mountains which beset it round" (Nathaniel Hawthorne). 4. To stud, as with jewels. [Middle English bisetten, from Old English besettan. See sed- in Appendix.] —be-set'ment n.

be-set-ting (bĭ-sĕt'ing) adj. Constantly troubling or attacking.

be-shrew (bĭ-shrōō') v. tr. be-shrewed, be-shrew-ing, be-shrews.

Archaic. To invoke evil upon; curse. [Middle English bishrewen: bi-, be- + shrew, wicked person; see SHREW.]

be-side (bĭ-sīd') prep. 1. At the side of; next to. 2. a. In comparison with: a proposal that seems quite reasonable beside the others. b. On an equal footing with: has earned a place beside the best performers in the business. 3. In addition to: "Many creatures beside man live in communities" (Stuart Chase). See Usage Note at besides. 4. Except for. See Usage Note at besides. 5. Not relevant to: a remark that was beside the point. — adv. Archaic. 1. In addition. 2. Nearby. —idiom. beside (oneself). In a state of extreme excitement or agitation: They were beside themselves with glee. [Middle English biside, from Old English be sīdan: be, by; see BY¹ + sīde, side.]

be-sides (bĭ-sīdz') adv. 1. In addition; also. 2. Moreover; furthermore. See Synonyms at also. 3. Otherwise; else: has been to Mexico but nowhere besides.

— prep. 1. In addition to. 2. Except for; other than. [Middle English : biside, at the side; see BESIDE + -es, adv. suff.; see -s³.]

USAGE NOTE: In modern usage the senses “in addition to” and “except for” are conveyed more often by besides than beside. Thus: He had few friends besides us. See Usage Note at together.

be-siege (bĭ-sĕj') v. tr. be-sieged, be-sieg-ing, be-sieg-es. 1. To surround with hostile forces. 2. To crowd around; hem in. 3. To harass or importune, as with requests: Reporters besieged the winner for interviews. 4. To cause to feel distressed or worried: She was besieged by problems. [Middle English *besege*n, probably (with substitution of bi-, be-), from *assege*n, from Old French assegier, from Vulgar Latin assedicāre* : Latin ad-, ad- + Vulgar Latin sedicāre*, to sit (from Latin sedĕre); see SIEGE.] —be-siege/ment n. —be-sieg'er n.

SYNONYMS: besiege, beleaguer, blockade, invest, siege. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to surround with hostile forces”: besiege a walled city; a beleaguered settlement; blockaded the harbor; investing a fortress; a castle sieged by foot soldiers and cavalry.

Bes-kids (bĕs'kĭdz', bĕs-kĕdz') A mountain range of the western Carpathians extending about 322 km (200 mi) along the Polish-Slovakian border and rising to 1,726 m (5,659 ft) at Babia Góra. The range is divided into the East Beskids and the West Beskids.

be-smear (bĭ-smĭr') v. tr. be-smear-ed, be-smear-ing, be-smears. To smear. [Middle English bismeorwen, to make filthy, from Old English besmirwan, to besmear : be-, be- + smierwan, to smear.]

be-smirch (bĭ-smĭrch') v. tr. be-smirched, be-smirch-ing, be-smirch-es. 1. To stain; sully: a reputation that was besmirched by slander. 2. To make dirty; soil. —be-smirch'er n. —be-smirch/ment n.

be-som (bĕ'zəm) n. 1. A bundle of twigs attached to a handle and used as a broom. 2. Sports. The broom used to sweep the ice from the path of a curling stone. [Middle English, from Old English besma.]

besom pocket (bĕ'zəm pŏk'ĭt) n. A flapless pocket trimmed with welting or reinforced stitching. [besom, reinforcement around pocket opening.]

be-sot (bĭ-sŏt') v. tr. be-sot-ted, be-sot-ting, be-sots. To muddle or stupefy, as with alcoholic liquor or infatuation. [BE- + sot, to stupefy (from sot, fool); see SOT or from assot, to befool (from Old French assoter, from sot, foolish).]

be-sought (bĭ-sŏt') v. A past tense and a past participle of beseech.

be-spake (bĭ-spāk') v. Archaic. A past tense of bespeak.

be-spat-ter (bĭ-spăt'ər) v. tr. be-spat-tered, be-spat-ter-ing, be-spat-ters.

To spatter with or as if with mud: “a thoughtful, anti-activist judge being bespattered with charges of racism, sexism, hypocrisy and dishonesty” (William Safire).

be-speak (bĭ-spēk') v. tr. be-spoke (-spōk'), be-spo-ken (-spō'kən) or be-spoke, be-speak-ing, be-speaks. 1. To be or give a sign of; indicate. See Synonyms at indicate. 2. To engage, hire, or order in advance. See Synonyms at book. 3. To foretell; portend: fearful weapons that bespeak great loss of life. 4. Archaic. To speak to; address. [Middle English bispeken, to speak out, from Old English besprecan, to speak about.]

be-spec-ta-cled (bĭ-spĕk'tə-kæld) adj. Wearing eyeglasses.

be-spoke (bĭ-spōk') v. Past tense and a past participle of bespeak.

be-spo-ken (bĭ-spō'kən) v. A past participle of bespeak.

be-sprent (bĭ-sprĕnt') adj. Archaic. Sprinkled over. [Middle English bispreint, past participle of bisprengen, to besprinkle, from Old English bisprengan : be-, be- + sprengan, to sprinkle.]

be-sprin-kle (bĭ-sprĭng'kəl) v. tr. be-sprin-kled, be-sprin-king, be-sprin-kles. To sprinkle. [Probably from Middle English bisprenklen, from bisprengen. See BESPARENT.]

Bes-sa-ra-bi-a (bĕs'ə-rā'bĕ-ə) A region of Moldavia and western Ukraine. As the gateway from Russia into the Danube River valley, it was for centuries an invasion route from Asia to Europe. The region became part of Russia in 1812 but declared itself independent in 1918 and later voted for union with Romania, which was forced to cede it to the U.S.S.R. in 1940. —Bes'sa-ra-bi-an adj. & n.

Bes-sel (bĕs'əl), Friedrich Wilhelm. 1784-1846. Prussian astronomer who recalculated the orbit of Halley's comet (1804), verified by parallax the distance from the earth to the twin star 61 Cygni (1838), and developed a class of mathematical functions based on his study of planetary perturbation.

Bes-se-mer (bĕs'ə-mər) A city of north-central Alabama south-southwest of Birmingham. Founded as a mining town, it was named after Sir Henry Bessemer. Population, 33,497.

Bes-se-mer (bĕs'ə-mər), Sir Henry. 1813-1898. British inventor and metallurgist who received more than 100 patents, most notably for the Bessemer process.

Bessemer converter (bĕs'ə-mər kən-vûr'tər) n. A large pear-shaped container in which molten iron is converted to steel by the Bessemer process.

Bessemer process (bĕs'ə-mər prŏs'ĕs') n. A method for making steel by blasting compressed air through molten iron to burn out excess carbon and impurities. [After Sir Henry BESSEMER.]

Bes-sie (bĕs'ē) n. An award given annually since 1984 by the Dance Theater Workshop in New York City for achievement in dance and the performing arts. [After Bessie Schönberg (born 1906), German-born American dance teacher.]

best (běst) adj. Superlative of good. 1. Surpassing all others in excellence, achievement, or quality; most excellent: the best performer; the best grade of ore. 2. Most satisfactory, suitable, or useful; most desirable: the best solution; the best time for planting. 3. Greatest; most: He spoke for the best part of an hour. — adv. Superlative of well². 1. In a most excellent way; most creditably or advantageously. 2. To the greatest degree or extent; most: “He was certainly the best hated man in the ship” (W. Somerset Maugham). — n. 1. One that surpasses all others. 2. The best part, moment, or value: The best is still to come. Let’s get the best out of life. 3. The optimum condition or quality: look your best. She was at her best in the freestyle competition. 4. One’s nicest or most formal clothing. 5. The supreme effort one can make: doing our best. 6. One’s warmest wishes or regards: Give them my best. — v. tr. best-ed, best-ing, bests. To get the better of; beat: “I’m a rough customer, I expect, but I know when I’m bested” (Nathanael West). — idioms. at best. 1. Interpreted most favorably; at the most: no more than 40 people at best in attendance. 2. Under the most favorable conditions: has a top speed of 20 miles per hour at best. for the best. With an ultimately positive or preferable result. get the best of (or have the best of). To outdo or outwit; defeat: My opponent got the best of me in the debate. [Middle English, from Old English betst. See bhad- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: According to rule, better should be used in comparisons between two things: Which house of Congress has the better (not best) attendance record? In certain fixed expressions, however, best is used idiomatically for comparisons between two: Put your best foot forward. May the best man win! See Usage Note at better¹. See Usage Note at rather.

Best (běst), Charles Herbert. 1899-1978. American-born Canadian physiologist noted for his work on the discovery and application of insulin.

best boy (běst boi) n. The chief assistant to the gaffer on a movie or television set.

best-case (běst'kas') adj. Most favorable; optimum: “the best-case scenario of a mild recession” (Business Week).

be-stead (bī-stěd') Archaic. v. tr. be-stead-ed or be-stead, be-stead-ing, be-steads. 1. To be of service to; aid. 2. To be of use to; avail. — adj. Having been placed; located. [Probably BE- + STEAD, to help. Adj., from Middle English bistad, placed bi-, be- + -stad (ultimately from Old Norse staddr, placed, past participle of stedhja, to stop, from staddr, place); see stā- in Appendix.]

bes-tial (běs'chəl, bēs'-) adj. 1. Beastly. 2. Marked by brutality or depravity. See Synonyms at brute. 3. Lacking in intelligence or reason; subhuman. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin bēstiālis, from Latin bēstia, beast.] — bes'tial-ly adv.

bes-ti-al-i-ty (bēs'chē-āl'ī-tē, bēs'-) n. pl. bes-ti-al-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being an animal or like an animal. 2. Conduct or an action marked by depravity or brutality. 3. Sexual relations between a human being and an animal.

bes-ti-ar-y (bēs'chē-ēr'ē, bēs'-) n. pl. bes-ti-ar-ies. 1. A medieval collection of stories providing physical and allegorical descriptions of real or imaginary animals along with an interpretation of the moral significance each animal was thought to embody. A number of common misconceptions relating to natural history were preserved in these popular accounts. 2. A modern version of such a collection. [Medieval Latin bēstiārium, from Latin bēstia, beast.]

be-stir (bī-stūr') v. tr. be-stirred, be-stir-ring, be-stirs. To cause to become active; rouse: finally bestirred himself to look for work. [Middle English bistiren : probably bi-, be- + stiren, to rouse; see *STIR*¹.]

best man (bĕst mǎn) n. The bridegroom's chief attendant at a wedding.

be-stow (bī-stō') v. tr. be-stowed, be-stow-ing, be-stows. 1. To present as a gift or an honor; confer: bestowed high praise on the winners. 2. To apply; use: "On Hester Prynne's story... I bestowed much thought" (Nathaniel Hawthorne). 3. To store or house. [Middle English bistowen : bi-, be- + stowen, to place; see STOW.] —be-stow/a-ble adj. —be-stow'al, be-stow'ment n.

be-strew (bī-strō') v. tr. be-strewed, be-strewed or be-strewn (-strōn'), be-strew-ing, be-strews. 1. To strew (a surface) with things so as to cover it: The crowd bestrewed the streets with confetti. 2. To lie scattered over or about: Books and papers bestrewed the desk. [Middle English bistrewen, from Old English bestrēowian : be-, be- + strēowian, to strew; see STREW.]

be-stride (bī-strīd') v. tr. be-strode (-strōd'), be-strid-den (-strīd'n), be-strid-ing, be-strides. 1. To sit or stand on with the legs astride; straddle. 2. To dominate by position; tower over: "Hitler's ghost, the specter that... bestrides mid-twentieth-century history" (Economist). 3. Archaic. To step or stride across. [Middle English bistriden, from Old English bestrīdan : be-, be- + strīdan, to mount a horse; see STRIDE.]

best-sell-er (bĕst'sĕl'ər) n. A product, such as a book, that is among those sold in the largest numbers. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: bestseller lists; a bestseller candidate. —best/sell'er-dom n. —best/sell'ing adj.

bet (bĕt) n. 1. An agreement usually between two parties that the one who has made an incorrect prediction about an uncertain outcome will forfeit something stipulated to the other; a wager. 2. An amount or object risked in a wager; a stake. 3. One on which a stake is or can be placed: Our team is a sure bet to win. 4. a. A plan or an option considered with regard to its probable consequence: Your best bet is to make reservations ahead of time. b. Informal. A view; an opinion: My bet is that the rain will hold off. — v. bet or bet-ted, bet-ting, bets. — v. tr.

1. To stake (an amount, for example) in a bet. 2. To make a bet with: I bet them that we would be first. 3. To make a bet on (a contestant or an outcome). 4. To maintain confidently, as if making a bet: I bet they were surprised by the news. — v. intr. To make or place a bet. — idiom. you bet. Informal. Of course; surely. [Origin unknown.]

SYNONYMS: bet, ante, pot, stake, wager. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something valuable risked on an uncertain outcome”: placed a 50-dollar bet on a horse in the first race; raising the ante in a poker game; won the whole pot in bridge; defeated her opponent and took the stakes; laid a wager on who would get the role.

bet. abbr. Between.

be·ta (bā'tə, bē'-) n. 1. The second letter of the Greek alphabet. 2. The second item in a series or system of classification. 3. A mathematical measure of the sensitivity of rates of return on a portfolio or a given stock compared with rates of return on the market as a whole. A high degree of such sensitivity indicates moderate or high price volatility. 4. Physics. a. A beta particle. b. A beta ray.

5. Chemistry. a. The second position from a designated carbon atom in an organic molecule at which an atom or a radical may be substituted. b. An isomeric variation of a chemical compound. Used in combination: beta-estradiol. [Greek bēta, from Canaanite bēt, house. See BETH.]

be·ta·ad·re·ner·gic (bā'tə-äd'rə-nûr'jĭk, bē'-) adj. Of, relating to, or being a beta-receptor.

beta-adrenergic block-ing agent (bā'tə-äd'rə-nûr'jĭk blök'ĭng ā'jənt) n. See beta-blocker.

beta-adrenergic receptor (bā'tə-äd'rə-nûr'jĭk rĭ-sĕp'tər) n. See beta-receptor.

be·ta·block·er (bā'tə-blök'ər, bē'-) n. Physiology. A drug, such as propranolol, that opposes the excitatory effects of norepinephrine released from sympathetic nerve endings at beta-receptors and is used for the treatment of angina, hypertension, arrhythmia, and migraine. Also called beta-adrenergic blocking agent be·ta·car·o·tene (bā'tə-kār'ə-tĕn', bē'-) n. One of the isomeric forms of carotene that is widely distributed in nature.

beta cell (bā'tə sĕl) n. Physiology. 1. Any of the insulin-producing cells of the islets of Langerhans in the pancreas. 2. Any of the basophilic chromophil cells located in the anterior lobe of the adenohypophysis.

be·ta·en·dor·phin (bā'tə-ĕn-dôr'fĭn, bē'-) n. An endorphin produced by the pituitary gland that is a potent pain suppressant.

beta globulin (bā'tə glōb'yə-līn) n. Biochemistry. A type of globulin in blood plasma that in electrically charged solutions exhibits colloidal mobility between that of the alpha and gamma globulins.

be-ta-ine (bē'tə-ēn', -īn) n. 1. A sweet crystalline alkaloid, $C_5H_{11}NO_2$, occurring in sugar beets and other plants and used in the treatment of muscular degeneration. 2. Any of several alkaloids with similar structures. [Latin bēta, beet + -INE².]

be-take (bī-tāk') v. tr. be-took (-tōök'), be-tak-en (-tā'kən), be-tak-ing, be-takes. 1. To cause (oneself) to go or move. 2. Archaic. To commit. [Middle English bitaken: bi-, be- + taken, to take; see TAKE.]

be-ta-meth-a-son (bā'tə-mēth'ə-sōn', bē'-) n. A synthetic glucocorticoid, $C_{22}H_{29}FO_5$, that occurs as a white crystalline powder and is used as a topical anti-inflammatory agent for the treatment of dermatological conditions. [BETA + METH(YL) + (PREDNI)S(OL)ONE.]

be-ta-naph-thol (bā'tə-nāf'thōl', -thōl', -nāp'-) n. An isomeric form of naphthol, $C_{10}H_7OH$, occurring as white crystals and used in making antioxidants, pigments, and dyes.

Be-tan-court (bē'tän-kōōr', -kōrt'), Romulo. 1908-1981. Venezuelan political leader who founded the National Democratic Party (1935), spent several years in exile, and twice served as president (1945-1948 and 1959-1964).

be-ta-ox-i-da-tion (bā'tə-ōk'sī-dā'shən, bē'-) n. Biochemistry. The oxidative degradation of saturated fatty acids in which two-carbon units are sequentially removed from the molecule with each turn of the cycle.

beta particle (bā'tə pār'tī-kəl) n. A high-speed electron or positron, especially one emitted in radioactive decay.

beta ray (bā'tə rā) n. A stream of beta particles, especially of electrons.

be-ta-re-cep-tor (bā'tə-rī-sēp'tər, bē'-) n. A site in the autonomic nervous system in which inhibitory responses occur when adrenergic agents, such as norepinephrine and epinephrine, are released. Activation of beta-receptors causes various physiological reactions, such as relaxation of the bronchial muscles and an increase in the rate and force of cardiac contraction. Also called beta-adrenergic receptor beta rhythm (bā'tə rīth'əm) n. See beta wave.

be-ta-tron (bā'tə-trōn', bē'-) n. A magnetic induction electron accelerator capable of accelerating electrons to energies of several hundred million electron volts.

beta wave (bā'tə wāv) n. The second most common waveform occurring in electroencephalograms of the adult brain, characteristically having a frequency from 13 to 30 cycles per second. It is associated with an alert waking state but can also occur as a sign of anxiety or apprehension. Also called beta rhythm be·tel (bēt'/l) n. An evergreen Indo-Malayan climbing or trailing shrub (Piper betle), having usually ovate leaves used to wrap betel nuts. [Portuguese, from Malayalam vettila, verřila, from Tamil verřilai.]

Be·tel·geuse (bēt'/l-jōoz', bēt'/l-jōez') n. A bright-red intrinsic variable star, 527 light-years from Earth, in the constellation Orion. [French Bételgeuse, probably from Arabic bayt al-jauzā.]

betel nut or also be·tel·nut (bēt'/l-nüt') n. The seed of the betel palm, chewed with betel leaves, lime, and flavorings as a mild stimulant. Also called areca nut betel palm (bēt'/l päm) n. A tropical Asian feather-leaved palm (Areca catechu) cultivated for its seeds. Also called catechu bête noire (bēt nwär') n. One that is particularly disliked or that is to be avoided: "Tax shelters had long been the bête noire of reformers" (Irwin Ross). [French : bête, beast + noire, black.]

beth (bēt) n. The second letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew bêt, from bayit, house.]

be·than·e·chol (bě-thän'/i-kôl', -köl') n. A cholinergic drug, C₇H₁₇CLN₂O₂, that acts principally by stimulating the parasympathetic nervous system and is used in the form of its chloride to treat abdominal distention and urinary retention. [Perhaps beth (blend of BETA, and METHYL) + -ANE + CHOL(INE).]

Beth·a·ny (běth'ə-nē) 1. A village of ancient Palestine at the foot of the Mount of Olives near Jerusalem. According to the New Testament, it was the site of the resurrection of Lazarus. 2. A city of central Oklahoma west of Oklahoma City. It was settled in 1906. Population, 20,075.

Be·the (bā'tə), Hans Albrecht. Born 1906. German-born American physicist. He won a 1967 Nobel Prize for research on the energy production of stars.

beth·el (běth'əl) n. 1. A hallowed or holy place. 2. a. A chapel for seafarers. b. Chiefly British. A Nonconformist chapel, especially a Baptist or Methodist one. [Hebrew bêt'el, house of God : bêt, house + 'el, God.]

Beth·el (běth'əl) 1. (also bēth'ël') A town of ancient Palestine north of Jerusalem. It is now a major archaeological site. 2. A town of southwest Connecticut southeast of Danbury. It has varied light industries. Population, 17,541.

Bethel Park (běth'əl pärk) A borough of southwest Pennsylvania, an industrial suburb of Pittsburgh. Population, 33,823.

Be·thes·da (bə-thěz'də) An unincorporated city of west-central Maryland, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. The National Institutes of Health and Naval Medical Center are here. Population, 62,936.

be·think (bī-thīngk') v. be·thought (-thôt'), be·think·ing, be·thinks. — v. tr. 1. To cause (oneself) to reflect on or consider. 2. To remind (oneself); remember. See Synonyms at remember. — v. intr. Archaic. To meditate; ponder. [Middle English bithinken, from Old English bethencan. See tong- in Appendix.]

Beth-le-hem (běth'lī-hěm', -lē-əm) 1. A town in the West Bank south of Jerusalem. It is the traditional birthplace of Jesus. Population, 25,000. 2. A city of eastern Pennsylvania on the Lehigh River north-northwest of Philadelphia. It is an important steel-producing center. Population, 71,428.

Beth-mann-Holl-weg (bět'mən-hōl'vāg', -män-), Theobald von. 1856-1921. German politician who as chancellor (1909-1917) was opposed to but unable to prevent unrestricted submarine warfare during World War I.

be-thought (bī-thōt') v. Past tense and past participle of bethink.

Beth-page (běth-pāj') An unincorporated village of southeast New York on southwest Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,761.

Beth-sa-i-da (běth-sā'ī-də) A town of ancient Palestine on the northeast shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Be-thune (bə-thōn', -thyōn'), Mary McLeod. 1875-1955. American educator who sought improved racial relations and educational opportunities for Black Americans. She was part of the U.S. delegation to the first United Nations meeting (1945).

be-tide (bī-tīd') v. be-tid-ed, be-tid-ing, be-tides. — v. tr. To happen to. — v. intr. To take place; befall. See Synonyms at happen. [Middle English bitiden : bi-, be- + tiden, to happen (from Old English tīdan); see TIDE².]

be-times (bī-tīmz') adv. 1. In good time; early: "A beneficent microclimate brings out the camellias betimes" (John Russell). 2. Once in a while; on occasion. 3. Archaic. Quickly; soon. [Middle English bitimes : bi, by; see BY¹ + time, time; see TIME + -es, adv. suff.; see -s³.]

bê-tise (bā-tēz') n. pl. bê-tises (-tēz'). 1. Stupidity; folly: "The bêtise of our human community is everywhere" (Thornton Wilder). 2. A stupid or foolish act or remark. [French, from bête, beast, fool, foolish, from Old French beste, beast. See BEAST.]

Bet-je-man (běch'ə-mən), Sir John. 1906-1984. British poet and poet laureate (1972-1984) whose often nostalgic works, in collections such as A Few Late Chrysanthemums (1955), praise the English countryside. He also wrote widely on Victorian architecture.

be-to-ken (bī-tō'kən) v. tr. be-to-kened, be-to-ken-ing, be-to-kens. To be or give a sign or portent of. See Synonyms at indicate. [Middle English bitokenen : bi-, be- + toknen, to signify (from Old English tācnian); see deik- in Appendix.]

bet-o-ny (bět'n-ē) n. pl. bet-o-nies. 1. Any of several plants of the widespread genus Stachys in the mint family, especially S. officinalis, native chiefly to Europe and having spikes of usually reddish-purple flowers. It was once popular in herbal medicine. Also called woundwort 2. The lousewort. [Middle English, from Old

French betoine, from Medieval Latin betōnia, both from Latin vettōnica, probably from Vettōnēs, an ancient Iberian tribe.]

be-took (bī-tōōk′) v. Past tense of betake.

be-tray (bī-trā′) v. tr. be-trayed, be-tray-ing, be-trays. 1. a. To give aid or information to an enemy of; commit treason against: betray one's country. b. To deliver into the hands of an enemy in violation of a trust or allegiance: betrayed Christ to the Romans. 2. To be false or disloyal to: betrayed their cause; betray one's better nature. 3. To divulge in a breach of confidence: betray a secret. 4. To make known unintentionally: Her hollow laugh betrayed her contempt for the idea. 5. To reveal against one's desire or will. See Synonyms at reveal¹. 6. To lead astray; deceive. See Synonyms at deceive. [Middle English bitrayen : bi-, be- + trayen, to betray (from Old French trair, from Latin trādere, to hand over); see TRADITION.] —be-tray'al n. —be-tray'er n.

be-troth (bī-trōth′, -trōth′) v. tr. be-trothed, be-troth-ing, be-troths. 1. To promise to give in marriage: was betrothed to a member of the royal family. 2. To promise to marry. [Middle English bitrouthen : bi-, be- + trouth, troth (from Old English trēowth); see deru- in Appendix.]

be-troth-al (bī-trōth′thəl, -trōth′thəl) n. 1. The act of betrothing or the fact of being betrothed. 2. A mutual promise to marry; an engagement: announced their betrothal the next day.

be-trothed (bī-trōthd′, -trōtht′) adj. Engaged to be married. — n. A person to whom one is engaged to be married.

Bet-si-a-mi-tes (bět′sē-ə-mē′tēz) A river rising in the highlands of eastern Quebec, Canada, and flowing about 386 km (240 mi) generally southeast to the St. Lawrence River.

bet-ta (bět′ə) n. Any of various species of small, brightly colored, long-finned freshwater fishes of the genus Betta, found in southeast Asia. [New Latin Betta, genus name.]

Bet-tel-heim (bět′l-hīm′), Bruno. 1903-1990. Austrian-born American psychologist noted for his studies of children and education. His works include Love is Not Enough (1950) and The Uses of Enchantment (1976).

Bet-ten-dorf (bět′n-dôrf′) A city of eastern Iowa, an industrial suburb of Davenport on the Mississippi River. Population, 28,132.

bet-ter¹ (bět′ər) adj. Comparative of good. 1. Greater in excellence or higher in quality than another of the same class, set, or kind. 2. More useful, suitable, or desirable than another or others: found a better way to go; a suit with a better fit than that one. 3. More highly skilled or adept than another or others: I am better at math than English. 4. Greater or larger: argued for the better part of an hour. 5. More advantageous or favorable than others; improved: a better chance of success. 6. Healthier or more fit than before: The patient is better today. — adv. Comparative of well². 1. In a more excellent way. 2. a. To a greater extent or degree: better suited to the job; likes it better without sauce. b. To greater advantage; preferably: a deed better left undone. 3. More: It took me better than a year to recover. — n. 1. One that is greater in excellence or higher in quality than another or others. 2. A superior, as in standing, competence, or intelligence. — v. bet-tered, bet-ter-ing, bet-ters. — v. tr. 1. To make better; improve: trying to better conditions in the prison; bettered myself by changing jobs. See Synonyms at improve. 2. To surpass or exceed. — v. intr. To become better. — idioms. for the better. Resulting in or aiming at an improvement: Her condition took a turn for the better. had better. Usage Problem. Ought to; must: We had better go before the storm becomes worse. think better of. To change one's mind about (a course of action) after reconsideration. [Middle English, from Old English betera. See bhad- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The phrase had better is acceptable, as long as the had or its contraction is preserved: You had better do it or You'd better do it, but not You better do it. See Usage Note at best. See Usage Note at rather.

bet-ter² (bět'ər) n. Variant of bettor.

better half (bět'ər həf) n. Informal. One's spouse. [From my better half, the larger part of me, that is, a close friend.]

bet-ter-ment (bět'ər-mənt) n. 1. An improvement over what has been the case: financial betterment. 2. Law. An improvement beyond normal upkeep and repair that adds to the value of real property.

bet-ter-off (bět'ər-ôf', -ôf') adj. Being in a better or more prosperous condition.

Bet-ter-ton (bět'ər-tən), Thomas. 1635?-1710. English actor of the Restoration theater who also wrote popular adaptations of dramas.

bet-tor also bet-ter (bět'ər) n. One that bets or places a bet.

be-tween (bī-twēn') prep. Abbr. bet. 1. a. In or through the position or interval separating: between the trees; between 11 o'clock and 12 o'clock.

b. Intermediate to, as in quantity, amount, or degree: It costs between 15 and 20 dollars. 2. Usage Problem. Connecting spatially: a railroad between the two cities.

3. Usage Problem. Associating or uniting in a reciprocal action or relationship: an agreement between workers and management; a certain resemblance between the two stories. 4. a. By the combined effort or effect of: Between them they succeeded. b. In the combined ownership of: They had only a few dollars between them. 5. As measured against. Often used to express a reciprocal relationship: choose between riding and walking. — adv. In an intermediate space, position, or time; in the interim. — idioms. between you and me. In the strictest confidence. in between. In an intermediate situation: My roommates disagreed and I was caught in between. in between times. During an intervening period; in the meantime: has written several books and teaches in between times. [Middle English bitwene, from Old English betwēonum. See dwo- in Appendix.]

—between/ness n.

USAGE NOTE: According to a widely repeated but unjustified tradition, “between is used for two, and among for more than two.” It is true that between is the only choice when exactly two entities are specified: the choice between (not among) good and evil, the rivalry between (not among) Great Britain and France. When more than two entities are involved, however, or when the number of entities is unspecified, the choice of one or the other word depends on the intended sense. Between is used when the entities are considered as distinct individuals; among, when they are considered as a mass or collectivity. Thus in the sentence The bomb landed between the houses, the houses are seen as points that define the boundaries of the area of impact (so that we presume that none of the individual houses was hit). In The bomb landed among the houses, the area of impact is considered to be the general location of the houses, taken together (in which case it is left open whether any houses were hit). By the same token, we may speak of a series of wars between the Greek cities, which suggests that each city was an independent belligerent, or of a series of wars among the Greek cities, which allows as well the possibility that the belligerents were shifting alliances of cities. For this reason, among is most appropriate to indicate inclusion in a group: She is among the best of our young sculptors. There is a spy among you (this last is arguably appropriate even when there are only two addressees; certainly between would be impossible). Between is the preferred choice when the entities are seen as determining the limits or endpoints of a range: The plane went down somewhere between Quito, Lima, and La Paz. The truck driver had obviously been drinking between stops.

be·tween·brain (bĭ-twĕn'brān') n. See diencephalon.

be·tween·times (bĭ-twĕn'tīmz') adv. At or during pauses: “She took such tiny bites and set her fork down on her plate betweentimes” (Anne Tyler).

be·twixt (bĭ-twĭkst') adv. & prep. Between. —idiom. betwixt and between. In an intermediate position; neither wholly one thing nor another.

[Middle English bitwixt, from Old English betwix. See dwo- in Appendix.]

Beu·lah (byōo'lə) n. 1. Bible. The land of Israel in the Old Testament. 2. The land of peace described in John Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

beurre blanc (būr' blängk', boer blän') n. A sauce made with butter, shallots, and vinegar or lemon juice, often served with seafood. [French : beurre, butter + blanc, white, not browned.]

Beuys (boiz, bois), Joseph. 1921-1986. German artist who attempted to convey his highly politicized views through sculpture, drawings, and performance art.

BeV abbr. Billion electron volts.

Bev-an (bĕvʹən), Aneurin. 1897-1960. Welsh-born British politician who as minister of health (1945-1951) was the chief architect of the National Health Service.

bev-el (bĕvʹəl) n. 1. The angle or inclination of a line or surface that meets another at any angle but 90°. 2. Two rules joined together as adjustable arms used to measure or draw angles of any size or to fix a surface at an angle. In this sense, also called bevel square — v. bev-eled or bev-elled, bev-el-ing or bev-el-ling, bev-els or bev-els. — v. tr. To cut at an inclination that forms an angle other than a right angle: beveled the edges of the table. — v. intr. To be inclined; slant. [Possibly from Old French bevel*, perhaps from baif, open-mouthed, from baer, to gape, from Vulgar Latin badāre*.]

bevel gear (bĕvʹəl gîr) n. Either of a pair of gears with teeth surfaces cut so that they can connect unparallel gear shafts.

bevel square (bĕvʹəl skwâr) n. See bevel (n., sense 2).

bev-er-age (bĕvʹər-ij, bĕvʹrĭj) n. Any one of various liquids for drinking, usually excluding water. [Middle English, from Old French beverage, from beivre, to drink, from Latin bibere. See pō(i)- in Appendix.]

Bev-er-idge (bĕvʹər-ĭj, bĕvʹrĭj), Albert Jeremiah. 1862-1927. American politician and historian. A U.S. senator from Indiana (1899-1911), he is best known for his historical works, most notably The Life of John Marshall (1916-1919).

Bev-er-idge (bĕvʹər-ĭj, bĕvʹrĭj), Sir William Henry First Baron Beveridge of Tuggal. 1879-1963. British economist who proposed (1942) a comprehensive social security system for all British citizens.

Bev-er-ly (bĕvʹər-lĕ) A city of northeast Massachusetts northeast of Boston. It was settled in 1626. The schooner Hannah, the first ship of the Continental Navy, was outfitted here (1775). Population, 38,195.

Beverly Hills (bĕvʹər-lĕ hĭlz) A city of southern California surrounded by Los Angeles. It adjoins Hollywood and is famous as a fashionable residential area for show business personalities. Population, 31,971.

Bev-in (bĕvʹĭn), Ernest. 1884-1951. British labor leader and politician who served as minister of labor (1940-1945) and foreign minister (1945-1951) and was instrumental in postwar diplomacy, notably the NATO treaty of 1949.

bev-y (bĕvʹĕ) n. pl. bev-ies. 1. A group of animals or birds, especially larks or quail. 2. A group or an assemblage: a bevy of beauties. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman bevee.]

be-wail (bĭ-wālʹ) v. tr. be-wailed, be-wail-ing, be-wails. 1. To cry over; lament: bewail the dead. 2. To express sorrow or unhappiness over: “bewailing the possible effects of double-digit unemployment” (Washington Post). [Middle English biwailen : bi-, be- + wailen; see WAIL.] — be-wail'er n. — be-wail'-ment n.

be·ware (bĭ-wâr') v. be·warded, be·war·ing, be·wares. — v. tr. To be on guard against; be cautious of: “Beware the ides of March” (Shakespeare). — v. intr. To be cautious; exert caution: We had to beware of the icy patches on the road. Beware of the dog. [Middle English ben war : ben, to be; see BE + war, on one’s guard; see WARE².]

be·whisk·ered (bĭ-hwĭs'kærd, -wĭs'-) adj. Having whiskers.

be·wigg·ed (bĭ-wĭgd') adj. Wearing a wig.

be·wil·der (bĭ-wĭl'dər) v. tr. be·wil·dered, be·wil·der·ing, be·wil·ders.

1. To confuse or befuddle, especially with numerous conflicting situations, objects, or statements. See Synonyms at puzzle. 2. To cause to lose one’s bearings; disorient: The twists and turns in the cave soon bewildered us. —be·wil·dered·ly adv. —be·wil·dered·ness n. —be·wil·der·ing·ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: The word bewilder is probably used much more commonly in its figurative sense “to confuse” than in its literal sense “to cause to lose one’s bearings; disorient.” Yet the latter sense is most likely the clue to the original source of this word. Bewilder, first recorded in 1684, is made up of the prefix be-, here meaning “completely,” and the verb wilder, meaning “to cause to lose one’s way,” first found in 1613. Wilder may in turn be a back-formation from wilderness, a much older word than wilder. Users of English might have erroneously thought that wilderness was derived from an older verb wilder, which they then used with reference to the loss of one’s way that can occur in a wilderness.

be·wil·der·ment (bĭ-wĭl'dər-mənt) n. 1. The condition of being confused or disoriented. 2. A situation of perplexity or confusion; a tangle: a bewilderment of lies and half-truths.

be·witch (bĭ-wĭch') v. tr. be·witched, be·witch·ing, be·witch·es. 1. To place under one’s power by or as if by magic; cast a spell over. 2. To captivate completely; entrance. See Synonyms at charm. [Middle English biwicchen : probably bi-, be- + wicche, witch; see WITCH.] —be·witch'er n. —be·witch'er·y n.

be·witch·ing (bĭ-wĭch'ĭng) adj. Enchanting as if with a magic spell; fascinating. —be·witch'ing·ly adv.

be·witch·ment (bĭ-wĭch'mənt) n. 1. a. The act of bewitching. b. The power to bewitch. c. The state of being bewitched. 2. A bewitching spell.

be·wray (bĭ-rā') v. tr. be·wrayed, be·wray·ing, be·wrays. Archaic. To disclose or betray. [Middle English biwreien : bi-, be- + wreien, to accuse (from Old English wrēgan).]

bey (bā) n. 1. A provincial governor in the Ottoman Empire. 2. a. A ruler of the former kingdom of Tunis. b. Used as the title for such a ruler. 3. Used formerly as a title for various Turkish and Egyptian dignitaries. [Turkish, from Old Turkic beg, ruler, prince.]

beyond (bē-ōnd', bī-yōnd') prep. 1. On the far side of; past: Just beyond the fence. 2. Later than; after: beyond midnight. 3. To a degree that is past the understanding, reach, or scope of: an evil beyond remedy. 4. To a degree or amount greater than: rich beyond his wildest dreams. 5. In addition to: asked for nothing beyond peace and quiet. — adv. 1. Farther along or away. 2. In addition; more: wanted her share but nothing beyond. — n. 1. That which is past or to a degree greater than knowledge or experience; the unknown: "Sputnik, the first satellite to enter the great beyond of space" (Dale Russakoff). 2. The world beyond death; the hereafter. [Middle English biyonde, from Old English begeondan : be, by; see BY¹ + geondan, on the far side of; see i- in Appendix.]

bez-ant (běz'ənt, bə-zānt') n. 1. See solidus (n., sense 1). 2. Architecture. A flat disk used as an ornament. [Middle English besant, from Old French, from Medieval Latin Bȳzantius, from Latin, of Byzantium.]

bez-el (běz'əl) n. 1. A slanting surface or bevel on the edge of a cutting tool, such as a chisel. 2. The upper, faceted portion of a cut gem, above the girdle and below the table. 3. A groove or flange designed to hold a beveled edge, as of a watch crystal or a gem. [Probably French dialectal; akin to French biseau, from bis, two times, from Latin. See dwo- in Appendix.]

Bé-ziers (bāz-yā') A city of southern France southwest of Montpellier. An ancient Gallic fortress, it is an industrial center with an important trade in wines. Population, 76,647.

be-zique (bə-zēk') n. Games. A card game similar to pinochle that is played with a deck of 64 cards. [French bésigue, possibly from Italian bazzica, a kind of card game.]

be-zoar (bē'zōr', -zōr') n. A hard indigestible mass of material, such as hair, vegetable fibers, or fruits, found in the stomachs or intestines of animals, especially ruminants, and human beings. It was formerly considered to be an antidote to poisons and to possess magic properties. [Middle English bezear, stone used as antidote to poison, probably from Old French bezahar, gastric or intestinal mass used as antidote to poison, from Arabic bāzahr, from Persian pādzahr : pād-, protector (from Avestan pātar-); see pā- in Appendix + zahr, poison (from Middle Persian); see g^when- in Appendix.]

Bez-wa-da (běz-wā'də) See Vijayawada.

bf abbr. also b.f. or bf. 1. Board foot. 2. Boldface.

b.f. or B/F abbr. Accounting. Brought forward.

B.F.A. abbr. Bachelor of Fine Arts.

BG or B.G. abbr. Brigadier general.

bg. abbr. 1. Background. 2. Bag.

BGH abbr. Bovine growth hormone.

B-girl (bē'gûrl') n. A woman employed by a bar to encourage customers to spend money freely. [B(AR)¹ + GIRL.]

BH abbr. Bill of health.

BHA (bē'āch-ā') n. A white, waxy phenolic antioxidant, C₁₁H₁₆O₂, used to preserve fats and oils, especially in foods. [B(UTYLATED) H(YDROXY)A(NISOLE).]

Bha-gal-pur (bā'gəl-pōor') A city of northeast India on the Ganges River north-northwest of Calcutta. It has remains of Buddhist monasteries. Population, 225,062.

Bha-ga-vad-Gi-ta (bā'gə-vād-gē'tə) n. Hinduism. A sacred Hindu text that is incorporated into the Mahabharata, an ancient Sanskrit epic. It takes the form of a philosophical dialogue in which Krishna instructs the prince Arjuna in ethical matters and the nature of God. [Sanskrit bhagavad-gītā, song of the Blessed One (Krishna) : bhagavant-, fortunate, blessed (from bhagaḥ, good fortune); see bhag- in Appendix + gītā, song (from gāyati, he sings).]

bhak-ti (būk'tē) n. Hinduism. The devotional way of achieving salvation, emphasizing the loving faith of a devotee for a deity and open to all persons irrespective of sex or caste. [Sanskrit bhaktiḥ, devotion, from bhajati, to apportion. See BHAGAVAD-GITA.]

bhang also bang (bäng) n. A preparation from the leaves and seed capsules of the cannabis plant, smoked, chewed, eaten, or infused and drunk to obtain mild euphoria. [Ultimately from Sanskrit bhaṅgā.]

Bhat-pa-ra (bät-pä'rə) A city of northeast India on the Hooghly River north of Calcutta. Once a center of Sanskrit learning, it is now part of a vast industrial complex. Population, 260,761.

Bhav-na-gar (bou-nūg'ər, bāv-) A city of western India on the Gulf of Cambay south of Ahmadabad. It is a manufacturing center and major port. Population, 307,121.

BHC abbr. Benzene hexachloride.

bhd. abbr. Bulkhead.

Bhi-lai-na-gar (bī-lī'nə-gər) or Bhi-lai (bī-lī') A city of east-central India east of Nagpur. It is the site of a large state-owned steel industry built with Soviet assistance. Population, 290,090.

Bhn. abbr. Brinell hardness number.

Bho-lan Pass (bō-län' pās) See Bolan Pass.

Bho-pal¹ (bō-päl') A city of central India north-northwest of Nagpur. Founded in the early 18th century, it is an industrial and trade center. In 1984 a toxic gas leak at an insecticide plant killed more than 2,000 people. Population, 671,018.

Bho-pal² (bō-päl') n. An industrial disaster, especially in a developing country, that causes significant damage to the surrounding population and environment: "How inevitable... were future Bhopals?" (Fergus M. Bordewich).

B-ho-ri-zon (bē'hə-rī'-zən) n. In ABC soil, the second or subsurface zone of soil made of clay and oxidized materials and organic matter obtained from the A-horizon by leaching; subsoil. Also called zone of accumulation, zone of illuviation.

bhp or b.hp. abbr. Brake horsepower.

BHT (bē'āch-tē') n. A crystalline phenolic antioxidant, C₁₅H₂₄O, used to preserve fats and oils, especially in foods. [B(UTYLATED) H(YDROXY)T(OLUENE).]

Bhu. abbr. Bhutan.

Bhu-ba-nes-war (bōō'bə-nēsh'wər) A city of east-central India southwest of Calcutta. It is known for its Hindu and Buddhist shrines. Population, 219,211.

Bhu-tan (bōō-tān', -tān') Abbr. Bhu. An isolated country of central Asia in the eastern Himalaya Mountains. Great Britain and India have long exerted influence over the kingdom. Thimbu is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,232,000.

Bhu-tan-ese (bōō'tə-nēz', -nēs') adj. Of or relating to Bhutan or its people, language, or culture. — n. pl. Bhutanese. 1. A native or inhabitant of Bhutan. 2. The Sino-Tibetan language of Bhutan.

Bhut-to (bōō'tō), Benazir. Born 1953. Pakistani politician. She served as prime minister from 1988 to 1990 and was reelected in 1993.

Bhut-to (bōō'tō), Zulfikar Ali. 1928-1979. Pakistani politician who formed the Pakistan People's Party (1967) and became president (1971) and prime minister (1973). In 1977 he was deposed by a coup d'état and later executed.

bi (bī) Slang. n. pl. bi's. A bisexual person. — adj. Bisexual.

Bi The symbol for the element bismuth.

bi¹ or bin- pref. 1. a. Two: biform. b. Both: binaural. c. Both sides, parts, or directions: biconcave. 2. a. Occurring at intervals of two: bicentennial. b. Usage Problem. Occurring twice during: biweekly. 3. a. Containing twice the proportion of a specified chemical element or group necessary for stability: bicarbonate. b. Containing two chemical atoms, radicals, or groups: biphenyl. [Latin bis, bi-, twice,, and bīnī, two by two; see dwo- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Bimonthly and biweekly mean “once every two months” and “once every two weeks.” For “twice a month” and “twice a week,” the words semi-monthly and semiweekly should be used. Since there is a great deal of confusion over the distinction, a writer is well advised to substitute expressions like every two months or twice a month where possible. However, used as nouns to denote “a publication that appears every two months,” the words with bi- are unavoidable.

bi² pref. Variant of bio-.

BIA abbr. Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Bi·a·fra (bē-ăf'rə, -ă'frə) A region of eastern Nigeria on the Bight of Biafra, an arm of the Gulf of Guinea stretching from the Niger River delta to northern Gabon. It formed a secessionist state from May 1967 to January 1970. —Bi·a·f·ran adj. & n.

Bi·ak (bē-yăk') The largest of the Schouten Islands of Indonesia, off the northwest coast of New Guinea. In World War II it was the scene of heavy fighting from May 27 to June 20, 1944.

bi·a·ly (bē-ă'lē) n. pl. bia·lys. A flat, round baked roll topped with onion flakes. [After Bialystok.]

Bia·ly·stok (bē-ă'lī-stôk', byă'wī-) A city of northeast Poland near the border of Belarus. About half the city's population was killed by Nazi occupation forces (1941-1944). Today it is an industrial and transportation center. Population, 245,400.

bi·an·nu·al (bī-ăn'yōō-əl) adj. Happening twice each year; semiannual.
—bi·an·nu·al·ly adv.

Biar·ritz (bē'ə-rīts', bē'ə-rīts') A city of southwest France on the Bay of Biscay near the Spanish border. It is a fashionable resort. Population, 26,598.

bi·as (bī'əs) n. 1. A line going diagonally across the grain of fabric: Cut the cloth on the bias. 2. Usage Problem. a. A preference or an inclination, especially one that inhibits impartial judgment. b. An unfair act or policy stemming from prejudice. 3. A statistical sampling or testing error caused by systematically favoring some outcomes over others. 4. Sports. a. A weight or irregularity in a ball that causes it to swerve, as in lawn bowling. b. The tendency of such a ball to swerve. 5. The fixed voltage applied to an electrode. — adj. Slanting or diagonal; oblique: a bias fold. — v. tr. bi·ased or bi·assed, bi·as·ing or bi·as·sing, bi·as·es or bi·as·ses. 1. To influence in a particular, typically unfair direction; prejudice. 2. To apply a small voltage to (a grid). [French biais, slant, from Provençal, perhaps ultimately from Greek epikarsios, slanted.]

SYNONYMS: bias, color, jaundice, prejudice, warp. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to influence unfavorably or detrimentally”: past experiences that have biased his outlook; behavior that has colored my opinion of her; a view of campaign promises that have become jaundiced; lying that has prejudiced the public against the administration; bitterness that has warped your judgment. See also Synonyms at incline predilection

USAGE NOTE: In its sense of “a preference or an inclination,” bias can, in principle, be used with equal appropriateness for an inclination that is beneficial or for one that is adverse. But in a development similar to the one undergone by discrimination, bias has come to be used most commonly when it is believed that some injustice is involved. Thus, 90 percent of the Usage Panel accepts the sentence The court's ruling provided a strong endorsement of affirmative action pro- grams as a means to counter the effect of decades of racial bias in police hiring practices. Moreover, it has become increasingly acceptable to use bias to refer not just to an unfair preference but to an unfair act or policy based on such a preference, as in “The report also notes ‘remarkably consistent’ biases in administration R & D budget requests. These included emphasis on military R & D and civil basic research” (Christian Science Monitor).

bi-ased also bi-assed (bī'æst) adj. Usage Problem. Marked by or exhibiting bias; prejudiced: gave a biased account of the trial. See Usage Note at bias.

bi-as-ply tire (bī'æs-plī' tīr) n. A pneumatic tire having crossed layers of ply cord running diagonally to the tread.

bi-ath-lon (bī-āth'lən, -lŏn') n. Sports. A competition that combines events in cross-country skiing and rifle shooting. [BI-¹ + Greek athlon, prize of contest.]

—bi-ath'lete (-lēt) n.

bi-ax-i-al (bī-āk'ī-sē-əl) adj. Having two axes. —bi-ax'i-al'i-ty (-āl'ī-tē) n.

—bi-ax'i-al-ly adv.

bib (bīb) n. 1. A piece of cloth or plastic secured under the chin and worn, especially by small children, to protect the clothing while eating. 2. a. The part of an apron or pair of overalls worn over the chest. b. Bibbed overalls worn while skiing. — v. tr. intr. bibbed, bib-bing, bibs. To drink or to indulge in drinking. [Probably from Middle English bibben, to drink heartily, from Latin bibere. See pō(i)- in Appendix.]

bib. or Bib. abbr. Biblical.

Bib. abbr. Bible.

bib and tucker (bīb ənd tŭk'ər) n. Informal. Clothing: put on my best bib and tucker for the reception.

bibb (bīb) n. 1. Nautical. A bracket on the mast of a ship to support the trestle-trees. 2. A bibcock. [Alteration of BIB.]

bibbed (bībd) adj. Having a bib: bibbed overalls.

bib-ber (bīb'ər) n. A tippler; a drinker. [From BIB.]

Bibb lettuce (bīb lēt'əs) n. A kind of lettuce forming a small, loose head and having tender, dark green leaves. [After Jack Bibb, 19th-century American vegetable grower.]

bib-cock (bīb'kŏk') n. A faucet with a nozzle that is bent downward; a bibb. [Probably BIB + COCK¹.] bi-be-lot (bē'bə-lŏ', bē-blŏ') n. 1. A small decorative object; a trinket. 2. A miniature book, especially one that is finely crafted. [French, from Old French beubelet, from a reduplication of bel, beautiful, from Latin bellus, handsome. See BELLE.]

bibl. or Bibl. abbr. Biblical.

Bi·ble (bī'bəĭ) n. 1. a. Abbr. B., Bib. The sacred book of Christianity, a collection of ancient writings including the books of both the Old Testament and the New Testament. b. Abbr. B., Bib. The Hebrew Scriptures, the sacred book of Judaism. c. A particular copy of a Bible: the old family Bible. d. A book or collection of writings constituting the sacred text of a religion. 2. Often bible. A book considered authoritative in its field: the bible of French cooking. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin biblia, from Greek, pl. of biblion, book diminutive of biblos, papyrus, book, from Bublos, Byblos.]

BOOKS OF THE BIBLE

Books of the Hebrew Scriptures appear as listed in the translation by the Jewish Publication Society of America. Books of the Christian Bible appear as listed in the Jerusalem Bible, a 1966 translation of the 1956 French Roman Catholic version. The Old Testament books shown in italics are considered apocryphal in most Christian churches, but they are accepted as canonical in the Roman Catholic Church, the Eastern Orthodox Churches, and the Armenian and the Ethiopian Oriental Orthodox Churches. The Christian Old Testament parallels the Hebrew Scriptures with the exception of these books.

THE TORAH

Genesis Exodus
Leviticus Numbers
Deuteronomy

THE PROPHETS

Joshua Judges
I Samuel
II Samuel
I Kings

II Kings
Isaiah
Jeremiah
Ezekiel Hosea
Joel
Amos Obadiah

Jonah
Micah Nahum
Habakkuk
Zephaniah
Haggai
Zechariah
Malachi

THE WRITINGS

Psalms
Proverbs Job
Song of Songs
Ruth

Lamentations
Ecclesiastes
Esther
Daniel Ezra
Nehemiah
I Chronicles
II Chronicles

BOOKS OF THE BIBLE

OLD TESTAMENT

Exodus	Ecclesiastes
Leviticus	Song of Songs (Song of Solomon)
Numbers	Wisdom of Solomon
Deuteronomy	Ecclesiasticus
Joshua	Isaiah
Judges	Jeremiah
Ruth	Lamentations
I Samuel	Baruch
II Samuel	Ezekiel
I Kings	Daniel
II Kings	Hosea
I Chronicles	Joel
II Chronicles	Amos
Ezra	Obadiah
Nehemiah	Jonah
Tobit	Micah
Judith	Nahum
Esther	Habakkuk
I Maccabees	Zephaniah
II Maccabees	Haggai
Job	Zechariah
Psalms	Malachi
Proverbs

NEW TESTAMENT

Mark	I Timothy
Luke	II Timothy
John	Titus
Acts of the Apostles	Philemon
Romans	Hebrews
I Corinthians	James
II Corinthians	I Peter
Galatians	II Peter
Ephesians	I John
Philippians	II John
Colossians	III John
I Thessalonians	Jude
II Thessalonians	Revelation

Bible belt (bī'bəl bēlt) n. Those sections of the United States, especially in the South and Middle West, where Protestant fundamentalism is widely practiced.

—Bible belter n.

Bible paper (bī'bəl pā'pər) n. A thin, strong, opaque printing paper used for Bibles and reference books. Also called India paper

Bible Table Books of the Hebrew Scriptures appear as listed in the translation by the Jewish Publication Society of America. Books of the Christian Bible appear as listed in the Jerusalem Bible, a 1966 translation of the 1956 French Roman Catholic version. The Old Testament books shown in italic are considered apocryphal in most Christian churches, but they are accepted as canonical in the Roman Catholic Church, the Eastern Orthodox Churches, and the Armenian and the Ethiopian Oriental Orthodox Churches. The Christian Old Testament parallels the Hebrew Scriptures with the exception of these books.

Christian Books of the Bible.

bib·li·cal also Bib·li·cal (bĭb'lĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Abbr. bib., Bib., bibl., Bibl. Of, relating to, or contained in the Bible. 2. Being in keeping with the nature of the Bible, especially: a. Suggestive of the personages or times depicted in the Bible. b. Suggestive of the prose or narrative style of the King James Bible. [From Medieval Latin biblicus, from Late Latin biblia, Bible. See BIBLE.] —Bib/li·cal·ly adv.

Bib·li·cist (bĭb'lĭ-sĭst) n. 1. An expert on the Bible. 2. One who interprets the Bible literally. —Bib/li·cism n.

biblio- pref. Book: bibliophile. [From Greek biblion, book. See BIBLE.]

bib·li·o·film (bĭb'lē-ō-fĭlm') n. A type of microfilm used especially to photograph the pages of books.

bibliog. abbr. Bibliographer; bibliography.

bib·li·og·ra·pher (bĭb'lē-ōg'rə-fər) n. Abbr. bibliog. 1. One trained in the description and cataloging of printed matter. 2. One who compiles a bibliography.

bib·li·og·ra·phy (bĭb'lē-ōg'rə-fē) n. pl. bib·li·og·ra·phies. Abbr. bibliog. 1. A list of the works of a specific author or publisher. 2. a. A list of writings relating to a given subject: a bibliography of Latin American history. b. A list of writings used or considered by an author in preparing a particular work. 3. a. The description and identification of the editions, dates of issue, authorship, and typography of books or other written material. b. A compilation of such information. —bib/li·o·graph/i·cal (-ə-grăf'ĭ-kəl), bib/li·o·graph'ic (-ĭk) adj. —bib/li·o·graph/i·cal·ly adv.

bib·li·ol·a·try (bĭb'lē-ōl'ə-trē) n. 1. Excessive adherence to a literal interpretation of the Bible. 2. Extreme devotion to or concern with books.

—bib/li·ol'a·ter n. —bib/li·ol'a·trous adj.

bib·li·o·man·cy (bĭb'lē-ə-măn'sē) n. pl. bib·li·o·man·cies. Divination by interpretation of a passage chosen at random from a book, especially the Bible.

bib·li·o·ma·ni·a (bĭb'lē-ə-mā'nē-ə, -măn'yə) n. An exaggerated liking for the acquisition and ownership of books. —bib/li·o·ma'ni·ac' (-ăk') n.

—bib/li·o·ma·ni'a·cal (-mə-nĭ'ə-kəl) adj.

bib·li·o·phile (bĭb'lē-ə-fĭl') also bib·li·o·phil (-fĭl') or bib·li·oph·i·list (bĭb'lē-ōf'ə-lĭst) n. 1. A lover of books. 2. A collector of books.

—bib/li·oph'i·lism n. —bib/li·oph'i·lis'tic adj.

bib·li·o·pole (bĭb'lē-ə-pōl') also bib·li·op·o·list (bĭb'lē-ōp'ə-lĭst) n. A dealer in rare books. [Latin bibliopōla, bookseller, from Greek bibliopōlēs: biblio-, biblio- + pōlein, to sell; see pel⁴ in Appendix.] —bib/li·o·pol'ic (-pōl'ĭk), bib/li·o·pol'i·cal adj.

bib·li·o·the·ca (bīb'lē-ə-thē'kə) n. 1. A collection of books; a library. 2. A catalog of books. [Latin bibliothēca, from Greek bibliothēkē : biblio-, biblio- + thēkē, case; see dhē- in Appendix.] —bib'li·o·the'cal adj.

bib·li·o·ther·a·py (bīb'lē-ō-thēr'ə-pē) n. A form of supportive psychotherapy in which carefully selected reading materials are used to assist a subject in solving personal problems or for other therapeutic purposes.

bib·li·ot·ics (bīb'lē-ōt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Examination of written documents to determine authorship or authenticity.

bib·u·lous (bīb'yə-ləs) adj. 1. Given to or marked by the consumption of alcoholic drink: a bibulous fellow; a bibulous evening. 2. Very absorbent, as paper or soil. [From Latin bibulus, from bibere, to drink. See pō(i)- in Appendix.]

—bib'u·lous·ly adv. —bib'u·lous·ness n.

bi·cam·er·al (bī-kām'ər-əl) adj. Composed of or based on two legislative chambers or branches: a bicameral legislature. [BI-¹ + Latin camera, chamber; see CAMERA + -AL¹.] —bi·cam'er·al·ism n.

bi·car·bon·ate (bī-kär'bə-nāt', -nīt) n. The radical group HCO₃⁻ or a compound, such as sodium bicarbonate, containing it.

bicarbonate of soda (bī-kär'bə-nāt' ūv sō'də) n. See baking soda.

bi·cau·dal (bī-kôd'l) adj. Zoology. Having two tails.

bice blue (bīs blōō) n. Color. A moderate blue. [Middle English bis, blue-gray (sense uncertain), from Old French bis, dark (in azur bis, dark blue,, and vert bis, dark green).]

bice green (bīs grēn) n. Color. A moderate yellow green. [. See BICE BLUE.]

bi·cel·lu·lar (bī-sěl'yə-lər) adj. Having two cells.

bi·cen·ten·a·ry (bī'sěn-těn'ə-rē, bī-sěn'tə-nēr'ē) n. pl. bi·cen·ten·a·ries. See bicentennial. —bi'cen·ten'a·ry adj.

bi·cen·ten·ni·al (bī'sěn-těn'ē-əl) adj. 1. Happening once every 200 years. 2. Lasting for 200 years. 3. Relating to a 200th anniversary. — n. A 200th anniversary or its celebration. Also called bicentenary bi·cen·tric (bī-sěn'trīk) adj. Having two centers. —bi'cen·tric'i·ty (-trīs'ī-tē) n.

bi·ceph·a·lous (bī-sěf'ə-ləs) adj. Zoology. Having two heads.

bi·ceps (bī'sěps') n. pl. biceps or bi·ceps·es (-sěp'siz). 1. A muscle with two heads or points of origin. 2. a. The large muscle at the front of the upper arm that flexes the forearm. Also called biceps brachii b. The large muscle at the back of the thigh that flexes the knee joint. Also called biceps femoris [Latin, two-headed : bi-, two; see BI-¹ + caput, head; see kaput- in Appendix.]

biceps bra·chi·i (bī'sěps' brā'kē-ī', -kē-ē', brāk'-ē-ī', -ē-ē') n. See biceps (n., sense 2a). [New Latin biceps brāchii : biceps, biceps + Latin brāchii, genitive of brāchium, arm.]

biceps fem·o·ris (bī'sěps' fěm'ər-īs) n. See biceps (n., sense 2b). [New Latin : biceps, biceps + Latin femoris, genitive of femur, thigh.]

Bi·chat (bē-shā'), Marie François Xavier. 1771-1802. French anatomist who pioneered the histological study of organs.

bi·chlo·ride (bī-klōr'īd, -klōr'-) n. See dichloride.

bichon frisé (bē-shōn' frē-zā', frēz, bē'shōn) n. pl. bi·chons fri·sés (bē-shōn' frē-zā', frēz, bē'shōn). Any of a European breed of small, sturdy dogs, originating in the Mediterranean area and having a thick, wavy white coat, drooping ears, and an upwardly curved tail. [French : bichon, lapdog + frisé, curly.]

bi·chro·mate (bī-krō'māt', -mīt) n. See dichromate.

bi·cip·i·tal (bī-sīp'ī-tl) adj. 1. Having two heads or points of origin, as a muscle. 2. Of or relating to a biceps. [From New Latin biceps, bicipit-, biceps. See BICEPS.]

bick·er (bīk'ər) v. intr. bick·ered, bick·er·ing, bick·ers. 1. To engage in a petty, bad-tempered quarrel; squabble. See Synonyms at argue. 2. To flicker; quiver: “and bicker like a flame” (Robert Browning). — n. A petty quarrel; a squabble. [Middle English bikeren, to attack.] — bick'er·er n.

bi·coas·tal or bi·coast·al (bī-kō'stəl) adj. 1. Relating to both the east and west coasts of the United States, as: a. Traveling frequently between coasts as part of a business or living arrangement: “the early generation of bicoastal airline commuters” (Elizabeth Mehren). b. Located or developed chiefly along the two coasts: a bicoastal economy. 2. Coast-to-coast: bicoastal telephone calls.

bi·col·or (bī'kūl'ər) or bi·col·ored (-ərd) adj. Having two colors, as an animal.

bi·con·cave (bī'kōn-kāv', bī-kōn'kāv') adj. Concave on both sides or surfaces: a biconcave lens. — bi'con·cav'i·ty (-kāv'ī-tē) n.

bi·con·vex (bī'kōn-věks', bī-kōn'vēks') adj. Convex on both sides or surfaces: a biconvex disk. — bi'con·vex'i·ty (-vēk'sī-tē) n.

bi·cor·nu·ate (bī-kōr'nyōō-īt, -āt') also bi·corn (bī'kōrn') adj. 1. Having two horns or horn-shaped parts. 2. Shaped like a crescent. [From BI-¹ + Latin cornū, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix.]

bi·cul·tur·al (bī-kūl'chər-əl) adj. Of or relating to two distinct cultures in one nation or geographic region: bicultural education. — bi·cul'tur·al·ism n.

bi·cus·pid (bī-kūs'pīd) adj. Having two points or cusps, as the crescent moon. — n. A bicuspid tooth, especially a premolar. [New Latin bicuspis, bicuspid- : Latin bi-, two; see BI-¹ + Latin cuspis, sharp point.]

bicuspid valve (bī-kūs'pīd vālv) n. See mitral valve.

bi·cy·cle (bī'sīk'əl, -sī-kəl, -sī'kəl) n. 1. A vehicle consisting of a light frame mounted on two wire-spoked wheels one behind the other and having a seat, handlebars for steering, brakes, and two pedals or a small motor by which it is driven. 2. An exercise bicycle. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a bicycle shop; bicycle paths. — v. intr. bi·cy·cled, bi·cy·cling, bi-cy-cles. To ride or travel on a bicycle. [Probably BI-¹ + -cycle (on the model of TRICYCLE, three-wheeled coach).] — bi/cy-cler (-klər), bi/cy-clist (-klɪst) n.

bicycle motocross (bī'sɪk'əl mō'tō-krōs') n. Abbr. BMX Sports. A cross-country bicycle race, especially one involving young people riding bicycles designed for rough terrain.

bi-cy-clic (bī-sī'klɪk, -sɪk'lɪk) also bi-cy-cli-cal (-sī'klɪ-kəl, -sɪk'lɪ-) adj.

1. Consisting of or having two cycles. 2. Botany. Composed of or arranged in two distinct whorls, as the petals of a flower. 3. Chemistry. Containing molecules consisting of two fused rings.

bid (bɪd) v. bade (bād, bād) or bid, bid-den (bɪd'n) or bid, bid-ding, bids.

— v. tr. 1. To issue a command to; direct. See Synonyms at command. 2. To utter (a greeting or salutation). 3. To invite to attend; summon. 4. past tense and past participle. bid. Games. To state one's intention to take (tricks of a certain number or suit in cards): bid four hearts.

5. past tense and past participle. bid. To offer or propose (an amount) as a price. 6. past tense and past participle. bid. To offer (someone) membership, as in a group or club: "glancing around to be sure that he had been bid by a society that he wanted" (Louis Auchincloss). — v. intr.

1. past tense and past participle. bid. To make an offer to pay or accept a specified price: decided not to bid on the roll-top desk. 2. past tense and past participle. bid.

To seek to win or attain something; strive. — n. 1. a. An offer or proposal of a price. b. The amount offered or proposed: They lost the contract because their bid was too high. 2. An invitation, especially one offering membership in a group or club. 3. Games. a. The act of bidding in cards. b. The number of tricks or points declared. c. The trump or no-trump declared. d. The turn of a player to bid.

4. An earnest effort to win or attain something: made a bid for the presidency.

—phrasal verbs. bid in. To outbid on one's own property at an auction in order to raise the final selling price. bid up. To increase the amount bid: bid up the price of wheat. —idioms. bid defiance. To refuse to submit; offer resistance to. bid fair. To appear likely. [Middle English bidden, to ask, command

(from Old English biddan); see g^whedh- in Appendix, Middle English beden, to offer, proclaim (from Old English bēodan); see bheudh- in Appendix.]

—bid'der n.

b.i.d. abbr. Latin. Bis in die (twice a day).

bi-dar-ka (bī-där'kə) n. A one- or two-hole kayak used by the Aleut and various Alaskan Eskimo groups. [Russian baidarka, diminutive of baidara.]

bid-da-ble (bɪd'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Games. Strong enough to be bid. Used of a hand of cards. 2. Following directions or obeying commands; docile. See Synonyms at obedient.

Bid-de-ford (bɪd'ə-fərd) A city of southwest Maine on the Saco River southwest of Portland. The first permanent settlement was established in 1630. Population, 20,710.

bid·den (bĭd'n) v. A past participle of bid.

bid·ding (bĭd'ŋ) n. 1. A demand that something be done; a command. 2. A request to appear; a summons. 3. Bids considered as a group, as at an auction or in card games: The bidding was higher than expected.

Bid·dle (bĭd'l), Francis. 1886-1968. French-born American jurist and public official who was U.S. attorney general (1941-1945) and a judge at the Nuremberg trials (1945-1946).

Bid·dle (bĭd'l), John. 1615-1662. English theologian and founder of English Unitarianism who was several times imprisoned for his rejection of Trinitarian doctrine.

Bid·dle (bĭd'l), Nicholas. 1786-1844. American financier and scholar who was president of the Bank of the United States (1822-1839).

bid·dy¹ (bĭd'ē) n. pl. bid·dies. A hen; a fowl. [Origin unknown.]

bid·dy² (bĭd'ē) n. pl. bid·dies. Slang. A woman, especially a garrulous old one. [Nickname for Bridget.]

Bid·dy Basketball (bĭd'ē bās'kĭt·bōl') A service mark used for organized children's basketball games.

bide (bĭd) v. bid·ed or bode (bōd), bid·ed, bid·ing, bides. — v. intr. 1. To remain in a condition or state. 2. a. To wait; tarry. b. To stay: bide at home.

c. To be left; remain. — v. tr. past tense. bided. To await; wait for. — idiom.

bide (one's) time. To wait for further developments. [Middle English biden, from Old English bīdan. See bheidh- in Appendix.]

bi·den·tate (bī·dĕn'tāt') adj. Having two teeth or toothlike parts.

bi·det (bē·dā') n. A fixture similar in design to a toilet that is straddled for bathing the genitals and the posterior parts. [French, bidet, pony, probably from Old French bider, to trot.]

bi·di·a·lec·tal (bī'dī-ə-lĕk'təl) adj. Using two dialects of the same language. — bi'di-a-lec'tal-ism n. — bi'di-a-lec'tal-ist n.

bi·don·ville (bē'dōn·vēl') n. A shantytown on the outskirts of a city, especially in France or North Africa. [French : bidon, gas can, oil drum (from Old French, bottle, tankard, probably of Scandinavian origin) + ville, town; see VILLAGE.]

Bie·der·mei·er (bē'dər·mī'ər) adj. Of or relating to a type of furniture developed in Germany during the first half of the 19th century and modeled after French Empire styles. [After Gottlieb Biedermeier, the unsophisticated imaginary author of poems written by Ludwig Eichrodt (1827-1892) and others.]

Biel (bēl) also Bi·enne (bē-ĕn') A city of northwest Switzerland at the northeast end of the Lake of Biel at the foot of the Jura Mountains. It is noted for its clocks. Population, 52,600.

Bie·le·feld (bē'lə·fĕlt') A city of northwest Germany east of Münster. It is an industrial center long known for its fine linens. Population, 301,460.

Biel-la (bē-ĕl'ə) A city of northwest Italy west-northwest of Milan. It is a manufacturing center famous for its textiles. Population, 53,572.

Biel-sko-Bia-la (byĕl'skô-byä'lä, -byä'wä) A city of southern Poland south of Katowice. Founded in the 13th century, it passed to Austria in 1772 and was returned to Poland in 1919. Population, 174,100.

Bi-enne (bē-ĕn') See Biel.

bi-en-ni-a (bī-ĕn'ē-ə) n. A plural of biennium.

bi-en-ni-al (bī-ĕn'ē-əl) adj. 1. Lasting or living for two years. 2. Happening every second year. 3. Botany. Having a life cycle that normally takes two growing seasons to complete. — n. 1. An event that occurs every two years. 2. Botany. a. A plant that normally requires two seasons to complete its life cycle, growing usually as a rosette in the first season and producing flowers and fruits and then dying in the second season. b. A perennial plant, such as the English daisy, cultivated as a biennial. —bi-en'ni-al-ly adv.

bi-en-ni-um (bī-ĕn'ē-əm) n. pl. bi-en-ni-ums or bi-en-ni-a (-ĕn'ē-ə). A two-year period. [Latin : bi-, two; see *BI-*¹ + annus, year; see at- in Appendix.]

Bien-ville (byĕn'vīl', byăN-vĕl'), Sieur Jean Baptiste Lemoyne de. 1680-1768. French colonial administrator who as governor of Louisiana founded New Orleans (1718).

bier (bîr) n. 1. A stand on which a corpse or a coffin containing a corpse is placed before burial. 2. A coffin along with its stand: followed the bier to the cemetery. [Alteration (influenced by French bière, coffin, from Old French biere, bier, of Germanic origin), of Middle English ber, from Old English bēr. See bher¹ in Appendix.]

Bierce (bîrs), Ambrose Gwinett. 1842-1914?. American writer whose caustic wit and sense of realistic horror characterize his works, including In the Midst of Life (1891-1892) and The Devil's Dictionary (1906).

Bier-stadt (bîr'stăt', -shtăt'), Albert. 1830-1902. German-born American landscape painter whose romanticized works include Domes of the Yosemite (1864).

Bierstadt, Mount. A peak, 4,288.3 m (14,000 ft) high, of north-central Colorado in the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains.

bi-fa-cial (bī-fā'shəl) adj. 1. Having two faces, fronts, or façades. 2. Having two opposing surfaces that are alike.

biff¹ (bīf) Informal. v. tr. biffed, biff-ing, biffs. To strike or punch. — n. A blow or punch. [From English biff, interjection, probably of imitative origin.]

biff² (bīf) n. Upper Midwest. Variant of biffy.

bif-fy (bīf'ē) also biff (bīf) n. pl. bif-fies also biffs. Upper Midwest. 1. An outdoor toilet; an outhouse. 2. An indoor toilet. [Perhaps alteration of PRIVY.]

bi-fid (bī'fid) adj. Forked or cleft into two parts: a bifid petal. —bi-fid'i-ty (-fid'ī-tē) n. —bi'fid-ly adv.

bi·fi·lar (bī-fī'lər) adj. Fitted with or involving the use of two threads or wires.

—bi·fi'lar·ly adv.

bi·flag·el·late (bī-flāj'ə-līt, -lāt') adj. Having two flagella: a biflagellate protozoan.

bi·fo·cal (bī-fō'kəl, bī'fō'-) adj. 1. Having two focal lengths. 2. Having one section that corrects for distant vision and another that corrects for near vision, as an eyeglass lens. 3. Embodying two distinct and often conflicting goals, interests, or courses of action: “a smoothly functioning bifocal mind” (John McPhee). “A bifocal monetary policy... has kept one eye on the money supply and the other on interest rates” (Edward Meadows). — pl.n. also bi·fo·cals (bī-fō'kəlz, bī'fō'-) Eyeglasses with bifocal lenses. —bi·fo'cal·ism n.

bi·fo·caled (bī-fō'kæld) adj. Wearing bifocals: “the thin, bifocaled woman” (Los Angeles Times).

bi·fo·li·o·late (bī-fō'lē-ə-lāt', -līt) adj. Botany. Having two leaflets.

bi·form (bī'fōrm') adj. Having a combination of features or qualities of two distinct forms. [Latin biformis : bi-, two; see BI-¹ + forma, form; see FORM.]

bi·func·tion·al (bī-fūŋk'shə-nəl) adj. 1. Having two functions: bifunctional neurons. 2. Chemistry. Having or involving two functional groups or binding sites: bifunctional reagents.

bi·fur·cate (bī'fər-kāt', bī-fûr'-) v. bi·fur·cat·ed, bi·fur·cat·ing, bi·fur·cates. — v. tr. To divide into two parts or branches. — v. intr. To separate into two parts or branches; fork. — adj. (-kāt', -kīt) Forked or divided into two parts or branches, as the Y-shaped styles of certain flowers. [Medieval Latin bifurcāre, bifurcāt-, to divide, from Latin bifurcus, two-pronged : bi-, two; see BI-¹ + furca, fork.] —bi'fur·cate'ly adv. —bi'fur·ca'tion n.

big (bĭg) adj. big·ger, big·gest. 1. Of considerable size, number, quantity, magnitude, or extent; large. See Synonyms at large. 2. a. Of great force; strong: a big wind; in a big rage. b. Obsolete. Of great strength. 3. Grown-up; adult. 4. Pregnant: big with child. 5. Filled up; brimming over: felt big with love. 6. Having or exercising considerable authority, control, or influence: a big official; a big chief. 7. Conspicuous in position, wealth, or importance; prominent: a big figure in the peace movement. 8. Of great significance; momentous: a big decision; a big victory. 9. Informal. Self-important; cocky: You're too big for your own good. 10. Loud and firm; resounding: a big voice. 11. Bountiful; generous: had a big heart. — adv. 1. In a pretentious or boastful way: talked big about the new job. 2. Informal. a. With considerable success: made it big with their recent best-selling album. b. In a thorough or unmistakable way; emphatically: failed big at the box office. —idiom. big on. Enthusiastic about; partial to: “The Japanese are big on ranking things and deciding which is Number One” (James Fallows). [Middle English, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —big'gish adj.

—big'ly adv. —big'ness n.

big-a-mous (bĭg'ə-məs) adj. 1. Involving bigamy. 2. Guilty of bigamy.

—big'a-mous-ly adv.

big-a-my (bĭg'ə-mē) n. pl. big-a-mies. Law. The criminal offense of marrying one person while still legally married to another. [Middle English bigamie, from Old French, from Medieval Latin bigamia, from Late Latin bigamus, twice married : Latin bi-, two; see BI-¹ + Greek gamos, marriage; see -GAMOUS.]

—big'a-mist n.

bi-ga-rade (bē'gä-räd') n. 1. See sour orange. 2. A rich sauce served with duck, consisting of thickened duck stock flavored with the rind of bitter oranges, lemon juice, and sugar. [French, from Provençal bigarrado, from past participle of bigarrar, to variegate, from Old French bigarrer : bi-, two (from Latin bi-); see BI-¹ + garrer, to variegate (from garre, of two colors).]

big band (bĭg bänd) or Big Band n. A large dance or jazz band usually featuring improvised solos by lead players.

big bang (bĭg bäng) n. The cosmic explosion that marked the origin of the universe according to the big bang theory.

big bang theory (bĭg bäng thē'ə-rē) n. A cosmological theory holding that the universe originated approximately 20 billion years ago from the violent explosion of a very small agglomeration of matter of extremely high density and temperature.

big beat (bĭg bēt) n. Music. Popular music, especially rock 'n' roll, having a strong backbeat.

Big Bend (bĭg bënd) A region of southwest Texas on the Mexican border in a triangle formed by a bend in the Rio Grande. The area includes deep river canyons, desert wilderness, mountains rising to 2,386.6 m (7,825 ft), archaeological remains, and rare forms of plant and animal life.

Big Black River (bĭg blāk rĭv'ər) A river rising in north-central Mississippi and flowing about 531 km (330 mi) generally southwest to the Mississippi River below Vicksburg.

Big Blue River (bĭg blōō rĭv'ər) A river rising in southeast Nebraska and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) east and southeast to the Kansas River in northeast Kansas near Manhattan.

big brother (bĭg brŭth'ər) n. 1. An older brother. 2. A man who assumes the role of an older brother, as by providing guidance or protection. 3. a. also Big Brother. An omnipresent, seemingly benevolent figure representing the oppressive control over individual lives exerted by an authoritarian government. b. A state, an organization, or a leader regarded in this manner. [Sense 3, after Big Brother, a character in the novel Nineteen Eighty-Four by George Orwell.] —big'-broth'er-ly (bĭg'brŭth'ər-lē) adj. & adv.

Big Brother-ism (bĭg brŭth'ə-rĭz'əm) n. Authoritarian efforts at total control, as of a person or nation: “the frightening totalitarian Big Brotherism that launched the privacy scare” (Newsweek).

big bucks (bĭg bŭks) pl.n. Slang. A large amount of money: worked for big bucks in a large corporation.

big business (bĭg bĭz'nĭs) n. Commercial operations organized and financed on a large scale: clashes between labor and big business.

big daddy or Big Daddy (bĭg dād'ē) n. Slang. 1. One that is predominant, as in size, influence, or priority: “The big daddy of them all has always been the Frankfurt Fair” (Saturday Review). 2. One that exercises a paternalistic authority or control.

big deal (bĭg dēl) n. Slang. 1. Something of great importance or consequence: made a big deal out of getting there on time; losing one penny was no big deal. 2. An important person: She was a big deal in local politics. —big'-deal' (bĭg'dēl') adj.

Big Di-o-mede Island (bĭg dī'ə-mēd' ī'lənd) See Diomed Islands.

Big Dipper (bĭg dĭp'ər) n. A cluster of seven stars in the constellation Ursa Major, four forming the bowl and three the handle of a dipper-shaped configuration. Also called Charles's Wain, Plow.

Big-e-low (bĭg'ə-lō'), Erastus Brigham. 1814-1879. American inventor of power looms used in the manufacture of fabrics and carpets. He was a founder of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (1861).

Big-e-low (bĭg'ə-lō'), John. 1817-1911. American writer and diplomat. An owner (1848-1861) of the New York Evening Post, he was ambassador to France (1861-1866), where he found the manuscript of Benjamin Franklin's autobiography, which he later edited and published (1868).

bi-gem-i-nal (bī-jēm'ə-nəl) adj. Occurring in pairs; doubled or twinned: a bigeminal pulse. [Possibly from Late Latin bigeminus, doubled : Latin bi-, two; see BI⁻¹ + Latin geminus, double.]

bi-gem-i-ny (bī-jēm'ə-nē) n. Medicine. 1. An association in pairs. 2. An abnormal pulse characterized by two beats in rapid succession followed by a pause.

big enchilada or Big Enchilada (bĭg ɛn'chə-lä'də) n. Slang. 1. One who is in charge: “[the President's] big enchilada on both foreign and domestic policy” (Mary McGrory). 2. Something of the highest value or importance: “[The team] won the big enchilada in 1980 and 1982” (Scott Ostler). [On the model of such expressions as, big cheese.] bi-ge-ner-ic (bī'jə-nēr'ĭk) adj. 1. Relating to a hybrid that results from a cross between plants of different genera. 2. Having the characteristics of two different genera.

big-eye (bĭg'ī') n. Any of several small, tropical marine fishes of the family Priacanthidae, having large eyes and reddish scales.

Big-foot (bĭg'fōōt') n. A very large, hairy, humanlike creature purported to inhabit the Pacific Northwest and Canada. Also called Sasquatch [From the size of the footprints believed to belong to it.]

big game (bĭg gām) n. 1. Large animals or fish hunted or caught for sport. 2. Informal. An important objective. —big'-game' (bĭg'gām') adj.

big-ge-ty (bĭg'ĭ-tē) adj. Informal. Variant of biggity.

big-gie (bĭg'ġē) n. Slang. 1. A very important person: “hassles between executive biggies” (New York). 2. Something that is considered big or important: Her new movie is expected to be a biggie.

big-gi-ty also big-ge-ty (bĭg'ĭ-tē) adj. Informal. Self-important; conceited. [Probably alteration of BIG + -Y¹.]

big gun (bĭg gŭn) n. Slang. One that is powerful or influential: The big guns for the prosecution were its expert witnesses.

big-head (bĭg'hĕd') n. 1. Informal. Conceit; egotism. 2. Also big head. Any of various diseases of animals, especially rams, characterized by swelling of the head, face, or neck. —big'/head'/ed adj. —big'/head'/ed-ness n.

big-heart-ed (bĭg'hār'tĭd) adj. Generous; kind. —big'-heart'/ed-ly adv. —big'-heart'/ed-ness n.

big-horn (bĭg'hôr'n') n. pl. bighorn or big-horns. A wild sheep (Ovis canadensis) of the mountains of western North America, the male of which has massive, curved horns. Also called mountain sheep, Rocky Mountain sheep.

Big-horn Mountains (bĭg'hôr'n' moun'tənz) A section of the Rocky Mountains of northern Wyoming and southern Montana rising to 4,018.4 m (13,175 ft) at Cloud Peak in Wyoming.

Bighorn River (bĭg'hôr'n' rĭv'ər) A river rising in west-central Wyoming and flowing about 742 km (461 mi) north to join the Yellowstone River in southern Montana northeast of Billings.

big house (bĭg hous) n. Slang. A penitentiary.

bight (bīt) n. 1. a. A loop in a rope. b. The middle or slack part of an extended rope. 2. a. A bend or curve, especially in a shoreline. b. A wide bay formed by such a bend or curve. [Middle English, bend, angle, from Old English byht. See bheug- in Appendix.]

big league (bĭg lēg) n. 1. Sports. A major league. 2. Informal. The most prestigious level of accomplishment. —big leaguer n.

big-league (bĭg'lēg') adj. 1. Sports. Major-league. 2. Informal. Outstanding or influential in one's field: a big-league politician; one of the big-league banking institutions.

big lie (bĭg lī) n. Intentional distortion of the truth, especially for political or official purposes: released falsified documents to bolster the big lie that no government troops were involved in the other country's internal problems.

big money (bĭg mŭn'ē) n. Slang. 1. A large amount of money, as in profits or salary: made big money on the transaction. 2. A large-scale commercial enterprise. —big'-mon'ey (bĭg'mŭn'ē) adj.

big-mouth (bĭg'mouth') n. 1. Slang. A loud-mouthed or gossipy person. 2. Any of various fishes having unusually large mouths.

big-mouthed (bĭg'mouthd', -moutht') adj. 1. Slang. Speaking loudly or indiscreetly; loud-mouthed. 2. Having a large mouth.

Big Mud-dy River (bĭg mŭd'ē rĭv'ər) A river of southwest Illinois flowing about 217 km (135 mi) to the Mississippi River north-northwest of Cairo.

big-name (bĭg'nām') adj. Informal. 1. Widely recognized or acclaimed; famous: a big-name performer; a big-name college. 2. Of or involving one that is widely recognized or acclaimed: big-name politics.

big-no-ni-a (bĭg-nō'nē-ə) n. An evergreen, tendril-bearing woody vine (Bignonia capreolata), native chiefly to the southeast United States and having showy red-orange, trumpet-shaped flowers. Also called cross vine [New Latin Bignonia, genus name, after Jean Paul Bignon (died 1743), French royal librarian.]

bigos (bē'gōs) n. A Polish stew made with meat and cabbage, traditionally simmered for several days before serving. [Polish.]

big-ot (bĭg'ət) n. One who is strongly partial to one's own group, religion, race, or politics and is intolerant of those who differ. [French, from Old French.]

WORD HISTORY: A bigot may have more in common with God than one might think. Legend has it that Rollo, the first duke of Normandy, refused to kiss the foot of the French king Charles III, uttering the phrase bi got, his borrowing of the assumed Old English equivalent of our expression by God. Although this story is almost certainly apocryphal, it is true that bigot was used by the French as a term of abuse for the Normans, but not in a religious sense. Later, however, the word, or very possibly a homonym, was used abusively in French for the Beguines, members of a Roman Catholic lay sisterhood. From the 15th century on Old French bigot meant “an excessively devoted or hypocritical person.” Bigot is first recorded in English in 1598 with the sense “a superstitious hypocrite.”

big-ot-ed (bĭg'ə-tĭd) adj. Being or characteristic of a bigot: a bigoted person; an outrageously bigoted viewpoint. —big'ot-ed-ly adv. —big'ot-ed-ness n.

big-ot-ry (bĭg'ə-trē) n. The attitude, state of mind, or behavior characteristic of a bigot; intolerance.

Big San-dy Creek (bĭg sǎn'dē krĕk) A river rising in central Colorado and flowing about 322 km (200 mi) east-northeast and southeast to the Arkansas River.

big shot (bĭg shŏt) n. Slang. An important or influential person. —big-shot', big'-shot' (bĭg'shŏt') adj.

Big Sioux River (bĭg sōō rĭv'ər) A river rising in northeast South Dakota and flowing about 676 km (420 mi) southward, partly along the South Dakota-Iowa border, to the Missouri River at Sioux City, Iowa.

Big Spring (bĭg sprĭng) A city of west-central Texas west-southwest of Abilene. It is a trade center in an agricultural region. Population, 23,093.

big stick (bĭg stĭk) n. A display or threat, especially of military force: a foreign policy that relied on the big stick. —big/stick' (bĭg'stĭk') adj.

Big Sur (bĭg sŭr) A rugged, picturesque resort region along the Pacific coast of California south of Carmel and Monterey.

big-tick-et (bĭg'tĭk'ĭt) adj. Informal. Having a high price or cost: big-ticket items such as cars and stereos; a big-ticket government program.

big-time or big-time (bĭg'tĭm') adj. Informal. Significant or important; major: a big-time comedian.

big time (bĭg tĭm) n. Informal. The most prestigious level of attainment in a competitive field: made it to the big time with his latest film. —big/-time' adj. —big/-tim'er n.

big toe (bĭg tō) n. The largest and innermost toe of the human foot.

big top (bĭg tŏp) n. 1. The main tent of a circus. 2. The circus.

big tree (bĭg trē) n. See giant sequoia.

big wheel (bĭg hwĕl) n. Slang. A very important person.

big-wig (bĭg'wĭg') n. Slang. A very important person.

Bi-har (bē-hār') A region of east-central India crossed by the Ganges River. Buddha spent his early days in the area.

Bi-ha-ri (bĭ-hā'rē) n. pl. Bihari or Bi-ha-ris. 1. A native or inhabitant of Bihar. 2. The Indic language of the Bihari.

bi-jou (bē'zhōō') n. pl. bi-joux (-zhōō', -zhōōz'). A small, exquisitely wrought trinket. [French, from Breton bizou, jeweled ring, from biz, finger.]

bi-jou-te-rie (bē-zhōō'tə-rē) n. 1. A collection of trinkets or jewelry.

2. Decoration. [French, from bijou, piece of jewelry. See BIJOU.]

bi-joux (bē'zhōō', -zhōōz') n. Plural of bijou.

bi-ju-gate (bĭ'jə-gāt', -gĭt, -bĭ-jōō'-) also bi-ju-gous (bĭ'jə-gəs, bĭ-jōō'-) adj. Botany. Relating to a pinnate leaf with two pairs of leaflets.

Bi-ka-ner (bē'kə-nĭr', -nār') A city of northwest India in the Thar Desert near the Pakistan border west-southwest of Delhi. It has several 16th-century Rajput palaces built of red sandstone. Population 253,174.

bike (bīk) n. 1. A bicycle. 2. A motorcycle. 3. A motorbike. — v. intr. biked, bik-ing, bikes. To ride a bike. [Shortening and alteration of BICYCLE.]

bik-er (bī'kər) n. 1. One who rides a bicycle or a motorbike. 2. A motorcyclist, especially a member of a motorcycle gang.

bike-way (bīk'wā') n. A bicycle lane or path.

bi-ki-ni (bī-kē'nē) n. 1. a. A very brief, close-fitting two-piece bathing suit worn by women. b. A very brief, close-fitting bathing suit worn by men. 2. Often bikinis. Brief underpants that reach to the hips rather than to the waist. [French, after Bikini.] —bi-ki-'nied (-nēd) adj.

Bi-ki-ni (bī-kē'nē) An atoll in the Ratak Chain of the Marshall Islands in the west-central Pacific Ocean. The area was the site of U.S. nuclear tests between 1946 and 1958, including the first aerial detonation of a hydrogen bomb (May 21, 1956).

bi-la-bi-al (bī-lā'bē-əl) adj. 1. Pronounced or articulated with both lips, as the consonants b, p, m, and w. 2. Relating to both lips. — n. A bilabial sound or consonant. —bi-la'bi-al-ly adv.

bi-la-bi-ate (bī-lā'bē-īt, -āt') adj. Botany. Having two lips, as the corollas of the snapdragon.

bil-an-der (bī'lən-dər, bī'lən-) n. Nautical. A small two-masted sailing vessel, used especially on canals in the Low Countries. [Dutch billander, probably from binlander, inlander, from binnenlander : binnen, within (from Middle Dutch); see en in Appendix + land, land; see lendh- in Appendix.]

bi-lat-er-al (bī-lăt'ər-əl) adj. 1. Having or formed of two sides; two-sided. 2. Affecting or undertaken by two sides equally; binding on both parties: a bilateral agreement; bilateral negotiations. 3. Having or marked by bilateral symmetry. —bi-lat'er-al-ism n. —bi-lat'er-al-ly adv. —bi-lat'er-al-ness n.

bilateral symmetry (bī-lăt'ər-əl sīm'ī-trē) n. Symmetrical arrangement, as of an organism or a body part, along a central axis, so that the body is divided into equivalent right and left halves by only one plane.

bi-lay-er (bī'lā'ər) n. A structure, such as a film or membrane, consisting of two molecular layers: a phospholipid bilayer.

Bil-ba-o (bīl-bä'ō, -bou') A city of northern Spain near the Bay of Biscay. Founded c. 1300, it is a major port and industrial center. Population, 397,541.

bil-ber-ry (bīl'bēr'ē) n. See blueberry. [bil-, probably of Scandinavian origin; see bhel-² in Appendix + BERRY.]

bil-bo¹ (bīl'bō) n. pl. bil-boes. An iron bar to which sliding fetters are attached, formerly used to shackle the feet of prisoners. [Origin unknown.]

bil-bo² (bīl'bō) n. pl. bil-boes. Archaic. A sword, especially one having a well-tempered blade. [After Bilbao.]

Bil·bo (bīl'bö), Theodore Gilmore. 1877-1947. American politician. As Mississippi governor (1916-1920 and 1928-1932) and U.S. senator (1935-1947), he was known for his filibuster techniques and his belief in white supremacy.

bil·dungs·ro·man (bīl'dōngz-rō-män', -dōngks-) or Bil·dungs·ro·man n. A novel whose principal subject is the moral, psychological, and intellectual development of a usually youthful main character. [German : Bildung, formation (from Middle High German bildunge, from Old High German bildungs, from bilodi, form, shape) + Roman, novel (from French, a story in the vernacular, novel); see ROMAN.]

bile (bīl) n. 1. A bitter, alkaline, brownish-yellow or greenish-yellow fluid that is secreted by the liver, stored in the gallbladder, and discharged into the duodenum and aids in the emulsification, digestion, and absorption of fats. Also called *gall*¹ 2. Bitterness of temper; ill humor; irascibility. 3. Either of two bodily humors, black bile or yellow bile, in medieval physiology. [French, from Latin bilis.]

bile acid (bīl äs'īd) n. Any of the liver-generated steroid acids, such as cholic acid, that commonly occur in the bile in combination with glycine and taurine as sodium salts.

bile duct (bīl dükt) n. Any of the excretory passages in the liver that carry bile to the hepatic duct, which joins with the cystic duct to form the common bile duct opening into the duodenum.

bile salt (bīl sōlt) n. 1. Any of the sodium salts of the bile acids occurring in bile. 2. A mixture, such as a commercial preparation derived from the bile of the ox, that is used medicinally as a hepatic stimulant or laxative.

bi·lev·el or bi·lev·el (bī'lēv'əl) adj. 1. Having or existing on two levels: a bi-level passenger coach; a bi-level marketing campaign. 2. Divided vertically into two ground-floor levels: a bi-level home. — n. A dwelling that is divided vertically into two ground-floor levels.

bilge (bīlj) n. 1. Nautical. a. The rounded portion of a ship's hull, forming a transition between the bottom and the sides. b. The lowest inner part of a ship's hull. 2. Bilgewater. 3. Slang. Stupid talk or writing; nonsense. 4. The bulging part of a barrel or cask. — v. bilged, bilg-ing, bilg-es. — v. intr.

1. Nautical. To spring a leak in the bilge. 2. To bulge or swell. — v. tr. Nautical. To break open the bilge of. [Probably alteration of BULGE.] — bilg'y adj.

bilge keel (bīlj kēl) n. Nautical. Either of two beams or fins fastened lengthwise along the outside of a ship's bilge to inhibit heavy rolling.

bilge water (bīlj wō'tər) n. 1. Water that collects and stagnates in the bilge of a ship. 2. Slang. Nonsense.

bil·har·zi·a (bīl-här'zē-ə) n. See schistosome. [New Latin Bilharzia, genus name, after Theodor Bilharz (1825-1862), German physician.]

bil·har·zi·a·sis (bīl'här-zī'ə-sīs) n. See schistosomiasis. [BILHARZ(IA) + -IASIS.]

bil·i·ar·y (bĭl'ē-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to bile, the bile ducts, or the gallbladder. 2. Transporting bile.

biliary cirrhosis (bĭl'ē-ēr'ē sĭ-rō'sĭs) n. A progressive inflammatory disease of the liver characterized by obstruction of the bile duct.

bi·lim·bi (bə-lĭm'bē) n. 1. An evergreen tree (Averrhoa bilimbi), native to tropical Asia and grown for its edible fruits. 2. The small, sour, greenish or yellowish cucumber-shaped fruit of this tree, eaten as a pickle or used in relishes and various dishes. [New Latin, species name, ultimately from Malay bĕlimbing from Malay belimbing.]

bi·lin·e·ar (bĭ-lĭn'ē-ər) adj. Mathematics. Linear with respect to each of two variables or positions. Used of functions or equations.

bi·lin·gual (bĭ-lĭng'gwəl) adj. 1. a. Using or able to use two languages, especially with equal or nearly equal fluency. b. Using two languages in some proportion in order to facilitate learning by students who have a native proficiency in one language and are acquiring proficiency in the other: bilingual training; bilingual education. 2. Of, relating to, or expressed in two languages: a bilingual dictionary. — n. A person who uses or is able to use two languages, especially with equal fluency. — bi·lin'gual·ism n. — bi·lin'gual·ly adv.

bil·ious (bĭl'yəs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or containing bile; biliary.

2. a. Characterized by an excess secretion of bile. b. Relating to, characterized by, or experiencing gastric distress caused by a disorder of the liver or gallbladder. c. Appearing as if affected by such a disorder; sickly. 3. Resembling bile, especially in color: a bilious green. 4. Having a peevish disposition; ill-humored. — bil'ious·ly adv. — bil'ious·ness n.

bil·i·ru·bin (bĭl'ī-rōō'bĭn, bĭl'ī-rōō'-) n. A reddish-yellow bile pigment, $C_{33}H_{36}N_4O_6$, derived from the degradation of heme. [Latin bĭlis, bile + ruber, red; see reudh- in Appendix + -IN.]

bil·i·ver·din (bĭl'ī-vŭr'dĭn, bĭl'ī-vŭr'-) n. A green pigment, $C_{33}H_{34}N_4O_6$, occurring in bile and sometimes formed by oxidation of bilirubin. [German : Latin bĭlis, bile + German verd- (from French verdir, to make green); see VER·DANT.] bilk (bĭlk) v. tr. bilked, bilk·ing, bilks. 1. a. To defraud, cheat, or swindle: made millions bilking wealthy clients on art sales. b. To evade payment of: bilk one's debts. 2. To thwart or frustrate: "Fate... may be to a certain extent bilked" (Thomas Carlyle). 3. To elude. — n. 1. One who cheats. 2. Obsolete. A hoax or swindle. [Perhaps an alteration of BALK.] — bilk'er n.

bill¹ (bĭl) n. 1. An itemized list or statement of fees or charges. 2. A statement or list of particulars, such as a theater program or menu. 3. The entertainment offered by a theater. 4. A public notice, such as an advertising poster. 5. a. A piece of legal paper money: a ten-dollar bill. b. Slang. One hundred dollars. 6. a. A bill of exchange. b. Obsolete. A promissory note. 7. a. A draft of a proposed law presented for approval to a legislative body. b. The law enacted from such a draft: a bottle bill in effect in three states; the GI Bill. 8. Law. A document presented to a court and containing a formal statement of a case, complaint, or petition. — v. tr. billed, bill-ing, bills. 1. To present a statement of costs or charges to. 2. To enter on a statement of costs or on a particularized list. 3. a. To advertise or schedule by public notice or as part of a program. b. To declare or describe officially; proclaim: a policy that was billed as an important departure for the administration. [Middle English bille, from Norman French, from Medieval Latin billa, alteration of bullā, seal on a document, from Latin, bubble.]

—bill/a-ble adj.

bill² (bīl) n. 1. The horny part of the jaws of a bird; a beak. 2. A beaklike mouth part, such as that of a turtle. 3. The visor of a cap. 4. Nautical. The tip of the fluke of an anchor. — v. intr. billed, bill-ing, bills. To touch beaks together. [Middle English, from Old English bile.]

bill³ (bīl) n. 1. A billhook. 2. A halberd or similar weapon with a hooked blade and a long handle. [Middle English bil, from Old English bill.]

bil-la-bong (bīl'ə-bōng', -bōng') n. Australian. 1. A dead-end channel extending from the main stream of a river. 2. A streambed filled with water only in the rainy season. 3. A stagnant pool or backwater. [Wiradhuri (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) bila, river + -ban, watercourse filled only after rain.]

bill-board¹ (bīl'bōrd', -bōrd') n. 1. A panel for the display of advertisements in public places, such as alongside highways or on the sides of buildings. 2. The advertisement or message posted on such a panel. 3. An introductory list of highlights from the program or text that follows, as in a broadcast or magazine. — v. tr. bill-board-ed, bill-board-ing, bill-boards. To advertise or proclaim on or as if on a billboard: billboarded as the workers' candidate. [BILL¹ + BOARD.]

bill-board² (bīl'bōrd', -bōrd') n. Nautical. A ledge on the bow of a ship on which the bill of an anchor rests when the anchor is secured to the cathead. [BILL² + BOARD.]

bill-bug (bīl'bŭg') n. Any of several weevils, especially of the genera Calendra or Sitophilus, whose larvae feed on plants such as corn and other cereal grasses. [BILL² + BUG.]

bill-er (bīl'ər) n. One that bills, as: a. A clerk who prepares bills. b. A machine used in preparing bills.

Bille-ric-a (bīl-rīk'ə, bēl'ə-) A town of northeast Massachusetts south of Lowell. Settled in 1637, it is primarily residential. Population, 37,609.

bil-let¹ (bīl'it) n. 1. a. Lodging for troops. b. A written order directing that such lodging be provided. 2. A position of employment; a job. 3. Archaic. A short letter; a note. — v. bil-let-ed, bil-let-ing, bil-lets. — v. tr. 1. a. To lodge (soldiers). b. To serve (a person) with a written order to provide lodging for soldiers. 2. To assign lodging to. — v. intr. To be quartered; lodge. [Middle

English, official register, from Old French billette, from bullette, diminutive of bulle, document, from Medieval Latin bullā, document, seal. See BILL¹.]

bil·let² (bīl'īt) n. 1. A short, thick piece of wood, especially one used as firewood. 2. One of a series of regularly spaced, log-shaped segments used horizontally as ornamentation in the moldings of Norman architecture. 3. a. A small, usually rectangular bar of iron or steel in an intermediate stage of manufacture. b. A small ingot of nonferrous metal. 4. a. The part of a harness strap that passes through a buckle. b. A loop or pocket for securing the end of a buckled harness strap. [Middle English, from Old French billette, diminutive of bille, log, from Vulgar Latin bilīa*, possibly of Celtic origin.]

bil·let-doux (bīl'ā-dōō') *n. pl. bil·lets-doux (bīl'ā-dōōz'). A love letter. [French : billet, short note; see BILLET¹ + doux, sweet (from Latin dulcis).]*

bill·fish (bīl'fīsh') n. pl. billfish or bill·fish-es. 1. Any of various fishes of the family Istiophoridae, such as a marlin or sailfish, having an elongated, swordlike or spearlike snout and upper jaw. 2. Any of various other fishes having long, pointed jaws.

bill·fold (bīl'fōld') n. A folding pocket-sized case for carrying paper money, small personal documents, and sometimes change.

bill·head (bīl'hēd') n. A sheet of paper with a business name and address printed at the top, used for billing costs or charges.

bill·hook (bīl'hōök') n. An implement with a curved blade attached to a handle, used especially for clearing brush and for rough pruning.

bil·liard (bīl'yərd) Games. n. See carom (n., sense 2a).

bil·liards (bīl'yərdz) *pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Games. 1. A game played on a rectangular cloth-covered table with raised cushioned edges, in which a cue is used to hit three small, hard balls against one another or the side cushions of the table. 2. One of several similar games, sometimes using a table with pockets, as in pool. [French billard, from bille, log. See BILLET².]*

bill·ing (bīl'īng) n. 1. The relative importance of performers as indicated by the position and type size in which their names are listed on programs, theater marquees, or advertisements: top billing. 2. Advertising; promotion: The product needed better billing to outsell its competition. 3. Often billings. The total amount of business done in a specific period, as by an advertising agency or a law firm.

Bil·lings (bīl'īngz) A city of southern Montana on the Yellowstone River east-southeast of Helena. A trade and manufacturing center, it is the largest city in the state. Population, 81,151.

Bil·lings (bīl'īngz), Josh. See Henry Wheeler Shaw.

Bil·lings (bīl'īngz), William. 1746-1800. American composer whose hymns, including "Chester," were among the most popular and influential musical works composed in early America.

bil·lings·gate (bīl'ingz-gāt', -gīt) n. Foul, abusive language. [After Billingsgate, a former fish market in London, England.]

bil·lion (bīl'yən) n. Abbr. b. 1. The cardinal number equal to 10^9 . 2. Chiefly British. The cardinal number equal to 10^{12} . 3. An indefinitely large number. [French, a million million : blend of bi-, second power; see BI⁻¹ and MILLION.] —bil'ion adj. & pron.

bil·lion·aire (bīl'yə-nâr', bīl'yə-nâr') n. A person whose wealth amounts to at least a billion dollars, pounds, or the equivalent in other currency. [BILLION + (MILLION)AIRE.]

bil·lionth (bīl'yənθ) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number one billion in a series. 2. One of a billion equal parts. —bil'lionth adj. & adv.

Bil·li·ton (bə-lē'tŏn') See Belitung.

bill of attainder (bīl ũv ə-tān'dər) n. pl. bills of attainder. A legislative act pronouncing a person guilty of a crime, usually treason, without trial and subjecting that person to capital punishment and attainder. Such acts are prohibited by the U.S. Constitution.

bill of entry (bīl ũv ěn'trē) n. pl. bills of entry. Abbr. B/E A listing of goods received at a customhouse as imports or for export.

bill of exchange (bīl ũv ĩks-chānj') n. pl. bills of exchange. Abbr. B/E A written order directing that a specified sum of money be paid to a specified person.

bill of fare (bīl ũv fâr) n. pl. bills of fare. 1. A list of dishes offered; a menu. 2. A list of items or events in a presentation; a program.

bill of goods (bīl ũv gŏodz) n. pl. bills of goods. 1. A consignment of items for sale. 2. Informal. A plan, promise, or offer, especially one that is dishonest or misleading: "The salesman himself... is often depicted as the ultimate sucker, who has fallen for his own cheesy bill of goods" (Walter Goodman).

bill of health (bīl ũv hēlθ) n. pl. bills of health. Abbr. BH 1. A certificate stating whether there is infectious disease aboard a ship or in a port of departure, given to the ship's master to present at the next port of arrival. 2. Informal. An attestation as to condition, especially a favorable one: gave the structure a clean bill of health in spite of its age.

bill of lading (bīl ũv lā'dĩng) n. pl. bills of lading. Abbr. B/L A document issued by a carrier to a shipper, listing and acknowledging receipt of goods for transport and specifying terms of delivery.

bill of particulars (bīl ũv pər-tĭk'yə-lərz) n. pl. bills of particulars. Law. An itemization of charges, claims, or counterclaims in an action.

bill of rights (bīl ũv rĭts) n. pl. bills of rights. 1. A formal summary of those rights and liberties considered essential to a people or group of people: a consumer bill of rights. 2. Also Bill of Rights. The first ten amendments to the U.S. Constitution, added in 1791 to protect certain rights of citizens. 3. Also Bill of Rights. A declaration of certain rights of subjects, enacted by the English Parliament in 1689.

bill of sale (bīl ūv sāl) n. pl. bills of sale. Abbr. B.S. A document that attests a transfer of the ownership of personal property.

bil·lon (bīl'ən) n. 1. An alloy of gold or silver with a greater proportion of another metal, such as copper, used in making coins. 2. An alloy of silver with a high percentage of copper, used in making medals and tokens. [French, from Old French, ingot, from bille, log. See BILLET².]

bil·low (bīl'ō) n. 1. A large wave or swell of water. 2. A great swell, surge, or undulating mass, as of smoke or sound. — v. bil·lowed, bil·low·ing, bil·lows. — v. intr. 1. To surge or roll in billows. 2. To swell out or bulge: sheets billowing in the breeze. — v. tr. To cause to billow: wind that billowed the sails. [From Old Norse bylgja, a wave. See bhelgh- in Appendix.]

—bil'low·i·ness n. —bil'low·y adj.

bill·post·er (bīl'pō'stər) n. One that posts notices, posters, or advertisements. Also called billsticker —bill'post'ing n.

bil·ly¹ (bīl'ē) n. pl. bil·lies. A billy club. [Short for BILLY CLUB.]

bil·ly² (bīl'ē) n. pl. bil·lies. Australian. A metal pot or kettle used in camp cooking. [Probably short for billypot, from Billy, nickname for William.]

billy club (bīl'ē klüb) n. A short wooden club, especially a police officer's club. [Perhaps alteration of bully club*; see BULLY¹, or from BILLET².]

bil·ly·cock (bīl'ē-kōk') n. Chiefly British. A felt hat with a low, rounded crown, similar to a derby. [Perhaps alteration of bullycocked: BULLY¹ + COCK¹.]

billy goat (bīl'ē gōt) n. Informal. A male goat.

Bil·ly the Kid (bīl'ē thē kīd) See William H. Bonney.

bi·lo·bate (bī-lō'bāt') also bi·lo·bat·ed (-bā'tīd) or bi·lobed (bī'-lōbd') adj. Divided into or having two lobes: a bilobate leaf.

bi·lob·u·lar (bī-lōb'yə-lər, -lō'byə-) adj. Having two lobules.

bi·lo·ca·tion (bī'lō-kā'shən) n. Existence or the ability to exist simultaneously in two places.

bi·loc·u·lar (bī-lōk'yə-lər) also bi·loc·u·late (-līt, -lāt') adj. Divided into or containing two chambers.

Bi·lox·i¹ (bə-lūk'sē, -lōk'-) n. pl. Biloxi or Bi·lox·is. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting territory around Biloxi Bay in southeast Mississippi on the Gulf of Mexico. b. A member of this people. 2. The extinct Siouan language of the Biloxi.

Bi·lox·i² (bə-lūk'sē, -lōk'-) A city of southeast Mississippi on a peninsula between Biloxi Bay and Mississippi Sound on the Gulf of Mexico. Old Biloxi was settled by the French in 1699. Population, 46,319.

bil·tong (bīl'tōng', -tōng') n. South African. Narrow strips of meat dried in the sun. [Afrikaans : bil, buttock (from Middle Dutch bille); see bhel-² in Appendix + tong, tongue (from Middle Dutch tonghe); see dng̃hū- in Appendix.]

bi·man·u·al (bī-măn'yōō-əl) adj. Using or requiring the use of both hands.
—bi·man'u·al·ly adv.

bi·max·il·lar·y (bī-măk'sə-lěr'ē) adj. Relating to or affecting both jaws.

bim·bo (bīm'bō) n. pl. bim·bos. 1. Offensive Slang. A woman, especially one who is perceived as vacuous or as having an exaggerated interest in sexuality: “Bimbos had become major role models for young girls everywhere” (Ellen Goodman). 2. Slang. A vacuous person: “a male bimbo... who even has to be tutored... in the clichés that comprise the basic interview” (George F. Will). [Perhaps from Italian bimbo, baby.]

bi·mes·tri·al (bī-mēs'trē-əl) adj. 1. Occurring every two months; bimonthly. 2. Lasting two months. [From Latin bimēstris : bi-, two; see BI-¹ + mēnsis, month; see mē-² in Appendix.]

bi·me·tal·lic (bī'mə-tăl'ik) adj. 1. Consisting of two metals, often bonded together and having different rates of thermal expansion. 2. Of, based on, or using the principles of bimetallism.

bi·met·al·lism (bī-mēt'l-iz'əm) n. 1. The use of a monetary standard consisting of two metals, especially gold and silver, in a fixed ratio of value. 2. The doctrine advocating bimetallism. —bi·met'al·list n. —bi·met'al·lis'tic adj.

bi·mil·le·nar·y (bī-mīl'ə-něr'ē, bī'mə-lěn'ə-rē) n. pl. bi·mil·le·nar·ies. A bimillennium. —bi·mil'le·nar'y adj.

bi·mil·len·ni·um (bī'mə-lěn'ē-əm) n. pl. bi·mil·len·ni·ums or bi·mil·len·ni·a (-lěn'ē-ə). 1. A span of 2,000 years. 2. A 2,000th anniversary. —bi'mil·len'ni·al adj. —bi'mil·len'ni·al·ly adv.

Bim·i·nis (bīm'ə-nēz) A group of small islands of the western Bahamas in the Straits of Florida. According to legend, the islands are the site of the Fountain of Youth sought by Juan Ponce de León.

bi·mod·al (bī-mōd'l) adj. 1. Having two distinct statistical modes. 2. Designed for operation on either railroads or highways. Used of vehicles. —bi'mo·dal'i·ty (bī'mō-dăl'ī-tē) n.

bi·mo·lec·u·lar (bī'mə-lěk'yə-lər) adj. Relating to, consisting of, or affecting two molecules. —bi'mo·lec'u·lar·ly adv.

bi·month·ly (bī-mūnth'lē) adj. 1. Happening every two months. 2. Happening twice a month; semimonthly. — adv. 1. Once every two months. 2. Twice a month; semimonthly. — n. pl. bi·month·lies. A bimonthly publication. See Usage Note at bi-¹.

bi·mor·phe·mic (bī'môr-fē'mik) adj. Consisting of two morphemes.

bin (bĭn) n. A container or enclosed space for storage. — v. tr. binned, bin-ning, bins. To place or store in a bin. [Middle English binne, from Old English, probably of Celtic origin.]

bin- pref. Variant of bi-¹. bi-nal (bĭ'nəl) adj. Twofold; double. [New Latin bĭnālis, twin, from Latin bĭnī, two by two. See dwo- in Appendix.]

bi-na-ry (bĭ'nə-rĕ) adj. 1. Characterized by or consisting of two parts or components; twofold. 2. Of or relating to a system of numeration having 2 as its base. 3. Chemistry. Consisting of or containing only molecules consisting of two kinds of atoms. 4. Of or employing two comparatively nontoxic chemicals that combine to produce a deadly poison: binary weapons; a binary nerve gas. 5. Music. Having two sections or subjects. — n. pl. bi-na-ries. Something that is binary, especially a binary star. [Middle English binarie, from Late Latin bĭnārius, from Latin bĭnī, two by two. See dwo- in Appendix.]

binary cod-ed decimal (bĭ'nə-rĕ kō'dĭd dĕs'ə-məl) n. Abbr. BCD, bcd Computer Science. A code in which a string of four binary digits represents a decimal number.

binary digit (bĭ'nə-rĕ dij'ĭt) n. Either of the digits 0 or 1, used in the binary number system.

binary fission (bĭ'nə-rĕ fĭsh'ən) n. A method of asexual reproduction that involves the splitting of a parent cell into two approximately equal parts.

binary number system (bĭ'nə-rĕ nŭm'bər sĭs'təm) n. A method of representing numbers in which only the digits 0 and 1 are used. Successive units are powers of 2. Also called binary system binary operation (bĭ'nə-rĕ ɔp'ə-rā'shən) n. An operation, such as addition, that is applied to two elements of a set to produce a third element of the set.

binary star (bĭ'nə-rĕ stār) n. A stellar system consisting of two stars orbiting about a common center of mass and often appearing as a single visual or telescopic object. Also called double star binary system (bĭ'nə-rĕ sĭs'təm) n. See binary number system.

bi-na-tion-al (bĭ-nāsh'ə-nəl, -nāsh'nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or involving two nations.

bin-au-ral (bĭ-nôr'əl, bĭn-ôr'-) adj. 1. a. Having or relating to two ears.

b. Having to do with the perception of sound with both ears: binaural hearing.

2. Of or relating to sound transmission from two sources, which may vary acoustically, as in tone or pitch, to give a stereophonic effect. — bin-au'ral-ly adv.

bind (bĭnd) v. bound (bound), bind-ing, binds. — v. tr. 1. To tie or secure, as with a rope or cord. 2. To fasten or wrap by encircling, as with a belt or ribbon. 3. To bandage: bound up their wounds. 4. To hold or restrain with or as if with bonds. 5. To compel, obligate, or unite: bound by a deep sense of duty; bound by a common interest in sports. 6. Law. To place under legal obligation by contract or oath. 7. To make certain or irrevocable: bind the deal with a down payment. 8. To apprentice or indenture: was bound out as a servant. 9. To cause to cohere or stick together in a mass: Bind the dry ingredients with milk and eggs. 10. To enclose and fasten (a book or other printed material) between covers. 11. To furnish with an edge or border for protection, reinforcement, or ornamentation. 12. To constipate. 13. To form a chemical bond with. — v. intr. 1. To tie up or fasten something. 2. To stick or become stuck: applied a lubricant to keep the moving parts from binding. 3. To be uncomfortably tight or restricting, as clothes. 4. To become compact or solid; cohere. 5. To be compelling or unifying: the ties that bind. 6. To form a chemical bond. — n. 1. a. The act of binding. b. The state of being bound. c. Something that binds. d. A place where something binds: a bind halfway up the seam of the skirt. 2. Informal. A difficult, restrictive, or unresolvable situation: found themselves in a bind when their car broke down. 3. Music. A tie, slur, or brace. — phrasal verbs. bind off. To cast off in knitting. bind over. Law. To hold on bail or place under bond. [Middle English binden, from Old English bindan. See bhendh- in Appendix.]

bind-er (bīn'dər) n. 1. One that binds, especially a bookbinder. 2. Something, such as a cord, used to bind. 3. A notebook cover with rings or clamps for holding sheets of paper. 4. Something, such as the latex in certain paints, that creates uniform consistency, solidification, or cohesion. 5. a. A machine that reaps and ties grain. b. An attachment on a reaping machine that ties grain in bundles. 6. Law. A payment or written statement making an agreement legally binding until the completion of a formal contract, especially an insurance contract.

bind-er-y (bīn'də-rē) n. pl. bind-er-ies. A place where books are bound.

bind-ing (bīn'dɪŋ) n. 1. The action of one that binds. 2. Something that binds or is used as a binder. 3. The cover that holds together the pages of a book. 4. A strip sewn or attached over or along an edge for protection, reinforcement, or ornamentation. 5. Sports. Fastenings on a ski for securing the boot. — adj. 1. Serving to bind. 2. Uncomfortably tight and confining. 3. Imposing or commanding adherence to a commitment, an obligation, or a duty: binding arbitration; a binding agreement. — bind'ing-ly adv. — bind'ing-ness n.

binding energy (bīn'dɪŋ ɛn'ər-jē) n. 1. The net energy required to decompose a molecule, an atom, or a nucleus into its components. 2. The net energy required to remove an atomic electron to an infinitely remote position from its orbit.

bin-dle-stiff (bīn'dl-stɪf') n. A hobo, especially one who carries a bedroll. [English bindle, bundle (probably from German dialectal bindel, from Middle High German bündel, from binden, to bind, from Old High German binten); see bhendh- in Appendix + STIFF.] bind-weed (bīnd'wēd') n. 1. Any of various trailing or twining, often weedy plants of the genera Calystegia and Convolvulus, having white, pink, or purple bell-shaped or funnel-shaped flowers. 2. Any of various similar trailing or twining plants, such as the black bindweed.

bine (bīn) n. The flexible twining or climbing stem of certain plants, such as the hop, woodbine, or bindweed. [Alteration of BIND, vine.]

Bi-net-Si-mon scale (bī-nā'sē-mōn' skāl, -sī'mən) n. An evaluation of the relative mental development of children by a series of psychological tests of intellectual ability. Also called Binet scale, Binet-Simon test, Binet test. [After Alfred Binet (1857-1911) and Théodore Simon (1873-1961), French psychologists.]

Bing (bīng), Sir Rudolf. Born 1902. Austrian-born impresario who managed (1950-1972) the Metropolitan Opera in New York City.

Bing cherry (bīng chēr'ē) n. A variety of cherry with juicy, sweet, deep red to nearly black fruit. [Perhaps after an employee of the cherry's originator.]

binge (bīnj) n. 1. A drunken spree or revel. 2. a. A period of unrestrained, immoderate self-indulgence. b. A period of excessive or uncontrolled indulgence in food or drink: an eating binge. — v. intr. binged, bing-ing or binge-ing, bing-es. 1. To be immoderately self-indulgent and unrestrained: "The story is like a fever dream that a disturbed and imaginative city-dweller might have after binging on comics" (Lloyd Rose). 2. To engage in excessive or uncontrolled indulgence in food or drink. [Dialectal binge, to soak.] — bing'er n.

SYNONYMS: binge, fling, jag, orgy, spree. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "a period of uncontrolled self-indulgence": a gambling binge; had a fling between commencement and graduate school; a crying jag; an eating orgy; a shopping spree.

binge-eat-ing syndrome (bīnj'ē'tīng sīn'drōm') n. See bulimia (n., sense 2).

binge-purge syndrome (bīnj'pûrj' sīn'drōm') n. See bulimarexia.

binge-vom-it syndrome (bīnj'vōm'īt sīn'drōm') n. See bulimarexia.

Bing-ham (bīng'əm), George Caleb. 1811-1879. American painter noted for his portraits and genre paintings of the American frontier.

Bing-ham-ton (bīng'əm-tən) A city of south-central New York near the Pennsylvania border south-southeast of Syracuse. It was settled in 1787. Population, 53,008.

bin-go (bīng'gō) n. pl. bin-gos. Games. A game of chance in which each player has one or more cards printed with differently numbered squares on which to place markers when the respective numbers are drawn and announced by a caller. The first player to mark a complete row of numbers is the winner. — interj. Used to express the sudden occurrence of an event or completion of an action. [Origin unknown.]

bin-na·cle (bĭn'ə-kəl) n. Nautical. A case that supports and protects a ship's compass, located near the helm. [Alteration of Middle English bitakille, from Old Spanish bitácula, or from Old Portuguese bitácola both from Latin habitāculum, habitation, from habitāre, to inhabit. See ghabh- in Appendix.]

Bin-nig (bĭn'ĭk), Gerd. Born 1947. German physicist. He shared a 1986 Nobel Prize for designing an electron microscope able to scan individual atoms.

bin-oc·u·lar (bə-nök'yə-lər, bĭ-) adj. 1. Relating to, used by, or involving both eyes at the same time: binocular vision. 2. Having two eyes arranged to produce stereoscopic vision. — n. An optical device, such as a pair of field glasses or opera glasses, designed for simultaneous use by both eyes and consisting of two small telescopes joined with a single focusing device. Often used in the plural.

—bin-oc'·u·lar'i·ty (-lär'ĭ-tē) n. —bin-oc'·u·lar·ly adv.

bi·no·mi·al (bĭ-nō'mē-əl) adj. Consisting of or relating to two names or terms. — n. 1. Mathematics. A polynomial with two terms. 2. Biology. A taxonomic name in binomial nomenclature. [From New Latin binōmius, having two names : BI-¹ + French nom, name (from Latin nōmen); see NOMINAL.] —bi·no'mi·al·ly adv.

binomial distribution (bĭ-nō'mē-əl dĭs'trə-byōō'shən) n. The frequency distribution of the probability of a specified number of successes in an arbitrary number of repeated independent Bernoulli trials. Also called Bernoulli distribution binomial nomenclature (bĭ-nō'mē-əl nō'mən-klā'chər) n. The scientific naming of species whereby each species receives a Latin or Latinized name of two parts, the first indicating the genus and the second being the specific epithet. For example, Juglans regia is the English walnut; Juglans nigra, the black walnut.

binomial theorem (bĭ-nō'mē-əl thē'ər-əm) n. Mathematics. A theorem that specifies the expansion of a binomial to any power without requiring the explicit multiplication of the binomial terms.

bint (bĭnt) n. Chiefly British & Offensive. A woman or girl: "As the R.A.F. friend would have put it, you could never tell with these foreign bints" (Kingsley Amis). [Arabic, daughter.]

bin·tu·rong (bĭn-tōōr'ông, -ông) n. A civet (Arctictis binturong) of southeast Asia with a long, prehensile tail. Also called bearcat [Malay běnturong, binturong.]

bi·nu·cle·ar (bĭ-nōō'klē-ər, -nyōō'-) adj. Variant of binucleate.

binuclear family (bĭ-nōō'klē-ər fām'ə-lē) n. The extended family, usually consisting of two separate households, formed by the children and subsequent spouses of the partners in a divorce.

bi·nu·cle·ate (bĭ-nōō'klē-ĭt, -āt', -nyōō'-) also bi·nu·cle·at·ed (-ā'tĭd) or bi·nu·cle·ar (-klē-ər, -nyōō'-) adj. Having two nuclei.

Bin·ue (bĭn'wā) See Benue.

bi·o (bī'ō) n. pl. bi·os. Informal. 1. A biography. 2. A biographical sketch or outline. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: bio cards; bio information.

bio- or bi- pref. 1. Life; living organism: biome. 2. Biology; biological: biophysics. [Greek, from bios, life. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

bio·ac·cu·mu·la·tion (bī'ō-ə-kyōm'γə-lā'shən) n. The accumulation of a substance, such as a toxic chemical, in various tissues of a living organism: the bioaccumulation of mercury in fish. — bi'ō-ac-cu/mu-la'tive adj.

bi·o·a·cous·tics (bī'ō-ə-kōō'stīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of sounds produced by or affecting living organisms, especially those sounds involved in communication.

bi·o·ac·tive (bī'ō-āk'tīv) adj. Of or relating to a substance that has an effect on living tissue: bioactive compounds.

bi·o·ac·tiv·i·ty (bī'ō-āk-tīv'ī-tē) n. The effect of a given agent, such as a vaccine, upon a living organism or on living tissue.

bi·o·as·say (bī'ō-ās'ā', -ā-sā') n. Determination of the strength or biological activity of a substance, such as a drug or hormone, by comparing its effects with those of a standard preparation on a test organism.

bi·o·as·tro·nau·tics (bī'ō-ās'trə-nō'tīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the biological and medical effects of space flight on living organisms. — bi'ō-as'tro-nau'ti-cal adj.

bi·o·a·vail·a·bil·i·ty (bī'ō-ə-vā'lə-bīl'ī-tē) n. The degree to which a drug or other substance becomes available at the physiological site of activity after administration.

bi·o·bib·li·og·ra·phy or bi·o·bib·li·og·ra·phy (bī'ō-bīb'lē-ōg'rə-fē) n. pl. bi·o·bib·li·og·ra·phies. A book or article combining an account of a person's life with a discussion of works written by or about that person.

Bí·o·Bí·o (bē'ō-bē'ō) A river of central Chile flowing about 386 km (240 mi) generally northwest from the Andes to the Pacific Ocean near Concepción.

bi·o·cat·a·lyst (bī'ō-kăt'l-īst) n. A substance, especially an enzyme, that initiates or modifies the rate of a chemical reaction in a living body; a biochemical catalyst. — bi'ō-cat'a-lyt'ic (-kăt'l-īt'īk) adj.

bi·o·ce·nol·o·gy (bī'ō-sə-nōl'ə-jē) n. Ecology. The study of communities in nature and of interactions among their members.

bi·o·ce·no·sis also bi·o·coe·no·sis (bī'ō-sī-nō'sīs) or bi·o·ce·nose (-sē'nōs) n. pl. bi·o·ce·no·ses (-sēz). A group of interacting organisms that live in a particular habitat and form an ecological community.

biochemical oxygen demand (bī'ō-kēm'ī-kəl ōk'sī-jən dī-mānd') n. Abbr. B.O.D. Microbiology. The amount of oxygen required by aerobic microorganisms to decompose the organic matter in a sample of water, such as that polluted by sewage. It is used as a measure of the degree of water pollution. Also called biological oxygen demand bi·o·chem·is·try (bī'ō-kēm'ī-strē) n. 1. The study of the chemical substances and vital processes occurring in living organisms; biological chemistry; physiological chemistry. 2. The chemical composition of a particular living system or biological substance: viral biochemistry. —bi'·o·chem'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj., n. —bi'·o·chem'i·cal·ly adv. —bi'·o·chem'ist n.

bi·o·chip (bī'ō-chīp') n. Computer Science. A computer chip made from organic molecules rather than silicon or germanium.

bi·o·cide (bī'ə-sīd') n. A chemical agent, such as a pesticide, that is capable of destroying living organisms. —bi'·o·cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

bi·o·cli·ma·tol·o·gy (bī'ō-klī'mə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The study of the effects of climatic conditions on living organisms. —bi'·o·cli·mat'ic (-klī-măt'īk) adj.

bio·coe·no·sis (bī'ō-sī-nō'sīs) n. Variant of biocenosis.

bi·o·com·pat·i·bil·i·ty (bī'ō-kəm-păt'ə-bīl'ī-tē) n. The property of being biologically compatible by not producing a toxic, injurious, or immunological response in living tissue: As a result of its strength and biocompatibility, the material is often used in medical devices. —bi'·o·com·pat'i·ble adj.

bi·o·con·ver·sion (bī'ō-kən-vûr'zhən, -shən) n. The conversion of organic materials, such as plant or animal waste, into usable products or energy sources by biological processes or agents, such as certain microorganisms.

bi·o·de·grad·a·ble (bī'ō-dī-grā'də-bəl) adj. Capable of being decomposed by biological agents, especially bacteria: a biodegradable detergent.

—bi'·o·de·grad'a·bil'ity n. —bi'·o·deg'ra·da'tion (-dēg'rə-dā'shən) n.

—bi'·o·de·grade' v.

bi·o·di·ver·si·ty (bī'ō-dī-vûr'sī-tē) n. The variety of organisms found within a specified geographic region.

bi·o·dy·nam·ic (bī'ō-dī-năm'īk, -dī-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the study of the effects of dynamic processes, such as motion or acceleration, on living organisms.

2. Of or relating to a system of organic crop cultivation: biodynamic farming.

bi·o·dy·nam·ics (bī'ō-dī-năm'īks, -dī-) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The study of the effects of dynamic processes, such as motion or acceleration, on living organisms. 2. The science of the force or energy of living matter and physiological processes. 3. A method of organic gardening and crop cultivation in which certain factors, such as planetary and seasonal cycles, are considered.

bi·o·e·lec·tric (bī'ō-ī-lēk'trīk) also bi·o·e·lec·tri·cal (-trī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or having to do with the electric current generated by living tissue. 2. Of or relating to the effects of electricity on living tissue.

bi·o·e·lec·tric·i·ty (bī'ō-ī-lēk-trīs'ī-tē, -ē'lēk-) n. An electric current that is generated by living tissue, such as nerve and muscle.

bi·o·e·lec·tron·ics (bī'ō-ī-lĕk-trŏn'iks, -ē-lĕk-) n. (used with a sing. verb).

1. The application of the principles of electronics to biology and medicine.
2. The study of the role of intermolecular electron transfer in physiological processes. —bi'ō·e·lec·tron'ic adj.

bi·o·en·er·get·ics (bī'ō-ĕn'ər-jĕt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb).

1. Biochemistry. The study of the flow and transformation of energy in and between living organisms and between living organisms and their environment.
2. Psychology. A therapeutic approach that incorporates breathing, movement, body exercises, psychotherapy, and free expression of feelings to enhance self-awareness and well-being and relieve physical and emotional tension.

—bi'ō·en·er·get'ic adj.

bi·o·en·gi·neer·ing (bī'ō-ĕn'jə-nîr'ing) n. 1. The application of engineering principles to the fields of biology and medicine, as in the development of aids or replacements for defective or missing body organs. Also called biomedical engineering 2. Genetic engineering. —bi'ō·en'gi·neer' n.

bi·o·en·vi·ron·men·tal (bī'ō-ĕn-vī'rĕn-mĕn'tl, -vī'ərn-) adj. Having to do with the relationship between the environment and living organisms: Bioenvironmental engineers are studying the effects of toxic chemicals on life in the area.

bi·o·eth·ics (bī'ō-ĕth'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the ethical and moral implications of new biological discoveries and biomedical advances, as in the fields of genetic engineering and drug research. —bi'ō·eth'i·cal adj.

—bi'ō·eth'i·cist (-ĭ-sĭst) n.

bi·o·feed·back (bī'ō-fĕd'băk') n. The technique of using monitoring devices to furnish information regarding an autonomic bodily function, such as heart rate or blood pressure, in an attempt to gain some voluntary control over that function. It may be used clinically to treat certain conditions, such as hypertension and migraine headache.

bi·o·fla·vo·noid (bī'ō-flā'və-noid') n. Any of a group of biologically active substances found in plants and functioning in the maintenance of the walls of small blood vessels in mammals.

biog. abbr. Biographer; biographical; biography.

bi·o·gas (bī'ō-găs') n. A mixture of methane and carbon dioxide produced by bacterial degradation of organic matter and used as a fuel.

bi·o·gen·e·sis (bī'ō-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs) also bi·og·e·ny (bī-ŏj'ə-nĕ) n. 1. The principle that living organisms develop only from other living organisms and not from nonliving matter. 2. Generation of living organisms from other living organisms. 3. See biosynthesis. 4. The supposed recurrence of the evolutionary stages of a species during the embryonic development and differentiation of a member of that species. In this sense, also called recapitulation —bi'ō·ge·net'ic (-jə-nĕt'ik), bi'ō·ge·net'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —bi'ō·ge·net'i·cal·ly adv.

biogenetic law (bī'ō-jə-nět'ik lô) n. The theory that the stages in an organism's embryonic development and differentiation correspond to the stages of evolutionary development characteristic of the species. Also called Haeckel's law, recapitulation theory.

bi·o·gen·ic (bī'ō-jěn'ik) adj. 1. Produced by living organisms or biological processes. 2. Necessary for the maintenance of life processes.

biogenic amine (bī'ō-jěn'ik ə-mēn') n. Any of a group of naturally occurring, biologically active amines, such as norepinephrine, histamine, and serotonin, that act primarily as neurotransmitters and are capable of affecting mental functioning.

bi·og·e·nous (bī'øj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Originating from living things.
2. Producing life.

bi·og·e·ny (bī'øj'ə-nē) n. Variant of biogenesis.

bi·o·ge·o·chem·is·try (bī'ō-jē'ō-kēm'ī-strē) n. The study of the relationship between the geochemistry of a region and the animal and plant life in that region.
—bi'·o·ge'·o·chem'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj.

bi·o·ge·og·ra·phy (bī'ō-jē-өг'·rə-fē) n. The study of the geographic distribution of organisms. —bi'·o·ge·og'·ra·pher n. —bi'·o·ge'·o·graph'ic (-jē'ə-gräf'ik), bi'·o·ge'·o·graph'ic·al (-ī-kəl) adj.

bi·og·ra·phee (bī-өг'·rə-fē', bē-) n. The subject of a biography.

bi·og·ra·pher (bī-өг'·rə-fər, bē-) n. Abbr. biog. One who writes, composes, or produces biography.

bi·o·graph·i·cal (bī'ə-gräf'ī-kəl) also bi·o·graph·ic (-gräf'ik) adj. Abbr.

biog. 1. Containing, consisting of, or relating to the facts or events in a person's life. 2. Of or relating to biography as a literary form. —bi'·o·graph'ic·al·ly adv.

bi·og·ra·phy (bī-өг'·rə-fē, bē-) n. pl. bi·og·ra·phies. Abbr. biog. 1. An account of a person's life written, composed, or produced by another: a film biography of Adlai Stevenson; an oral biography. 2. Biographies considered as a group, especially when regarded as a genre. 3. The writing, composition, or production of biographies: a career entirely devoted to biography. [Late Greek biographia: Greek bio-, bio- + Greek -graphia, -graphy.]

bi·o·haz·ard (bī'ō-hăz'ərd) n. 1. A biological agent, such as an infectious microorganism, or a condition that constitutes a threat to human beings, especially in biological research or experimentation. 2. The potential danger, risk, or harm from exposure to such an agent or condition.

bi·o·in·or·gan·ic (bī'ō-īn'ôr-găn'ik) adj. Of or having to do with inorganic compounds and their role in biochemical processes.

bi·o·in·stru·men·ta·tion (bī'ō-īn'strə-mēn-tā'shən) n. 1. Use of instruments for the recording or transmission of physiological information, such as breathing rate or heart rate. 2. The instruments so used.

Bi·o·ko (bē-ō'kō) Formerly Fer·nan·do Po (fər-nān'dō pō'). An island of Equatorial Guinea in the Gulf of Guinea.

biol. abbr. 1. Biological; biology. 2. Biologist.

bi·o·log·i·cal (bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl) also bi·o·log·ic (-lōj'ik) adj. Abbr. biol. 1. Of, relating to, caused by, or affecting life or living organisms. 2. Having to do with biology. 3. Related by blood: the child's biological parents; his biological sister. — n. A preparation, such as a drug, a vaccine, or an antitoxin, that is synthesized from living organisms or their products and used medically as a diagnostic, preventive, or therapeutic agent. —bi'·o·log'·i·cal·ly adv.

biological clock (bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl klɔk) n. An innate mechanism in living organisms that controls the periodicity or rhythm of various physiological functions or activities.

biological control (bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl kən-trōl') n. Control of pests through the use of organisms that are natural predators, parasites, or pathogens.

biological half-life (bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl hāf'lif') n. Biology. See half-life (n., sense 2a).

biological oxygen demand (bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl ɔk'si-jən dī-mānd') n. See biochemical oxygen demand.

biological warfare (bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl wôr'fâr') n. Abbr. BW The use of disease-producing microorganisms, toxic biological products, or organic biocides to cause death or injury to humans, animals, or plants.

bi·ol·o·gy (bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. Abbr. biol. 1. The science of life and of living organisms, including their structure, function, growth, origin, evolution, and distribution. It includes botany and zoology and all their subdivisions. 2. The life processes or characteristic phenomena of a group or category of living organisms: the biology of viruses. 3. The plant and animal life of a specific area or region. [German Biologie : Greek bio-, bio- + Greek -logia, -logy.] —bi·ol'·o·gist n.

bi·o·lu·mi·nes·cence (bī'ō-lōō'mə-nēs'əns) n. Emission of visible light by living organisms such as the firefly and various fish, fungi, and bacteria. —bi'·o·lu'mi·nes'cent adj.

bi·ol·y·sis (bī-ōl'ī-sīs) n. 1. Death of a living organism or tissue caused or accompanied by lysis. 2. The decomposition of organic material by living organisms, such as microorganisms. —bi'·o·lyt'ic (bī'ə-līt'ik) adj.

bi·o·mark·er (bī'ō-mār'kər) n. Medicine. a. See marker (n., sense 9). b. A specific physical trait used to measure or indicate the effects or progress of a disease or condition: Biomarkers of aging include thinning of the hair and diminished elasticity of the skin.

bi·o·mass (bī'ō-mās') n. 1. The total mass of living matter within a given unit of environmental area. 2. Plant material, vegetation, or agricultural waste used as a fuel or energy source.

bi·o·ma·ter·i·al (bī'ō-mə-tīr'ē-əl) n. A biocompatible material that is used to construct artificial organs, rehabilitation devices, or prostheses and replace natural body tissues. [BIO(COMPATIBLE) + MATERIAL.]

bi·o·math·e·mat·ics (bī'ō-măth'ə-măt'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The application of mathematical principles to biological processes.

—bi'ō-math'e-mat'i-cal adj. —bi'ō-math'e-ma-ti'cian (-mə-tīsh'ən) n.

bi·ome (bī'ōm') n. A major regional or global biotic community, such as a grassland or desert, characterized chiefly by the dominant forms of plant life and the prevailing climate.

bi·o·me·chan·ics (bī'ō-mī-kăn'īks) n. 1. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the mechanics of a living body, especially of the forces exerted by muscles and gravity on the skeletal structure. 2. (used with a pl. verb). The mechanics of a part or function of a living body, such as of the heart or of locomotion.

—bi'ō-me-chan'i-cal adj. —bi'ō-me-chan'i-cal·ly adv.

biomedical engineering (bī'ō-mēd'ī-kəl ěn'jə-nīr'ing) n. See bioengineering.

bi·o·med·i·cine (bī'ō-mēd'ī-sīn) n. 1. The branch of medical science that deals with the ability of human beings to tolerate environmental stresses and variations, as in space travel. 2. The application of the principles of the natural sciences, especially biology and physiology, to clinical medicine. —bi'ō-med'ī-cal (-ī-kəl) adj.

bi·o·me·te·or·ol·o·gy (bī'ō-mē'tē-ə-rōl'ə-jē) n. The study of the relationship between atmospheric conditions, such as temperature and humidity, and living organisms.

bi·o·met·rics (bī'ō-mēt'riks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The statistical study of biological phenomena. —bi'ō-met'ric, bi'ō-met'ri-cal adj.

—bi'ō-met'ri-cal·ly adv.

bi·om·e·try (bī-ōm'ī-trē) n. Biometrics.

bi·on·ic (bī-ōn'īk) adj. 1. Of or relating to bionics. 2. Having anatomical structures or physiological processes that are replaced or enhanced by electronic or mechanical components. 3. Having extraordinary strength, powers, or capabilities; superhuman. [BI(O)- + (ELECTR)ONIC.]

bi·on·ics (bī-ōn'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Application of biological principles to the study and design of engineering systems, especially electronic systems. [BI(O)- + (ELECTR)ONICS.]

bi·o·nom·ics (bī'ə-nōm'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). See ecology (n., sense 1a). [From French bionomique, pertaining to ecology, from bionomie, ecology : Greek bio-, bio- + Greek -nomia, -nomy.] —bi'ō-nom'ic, bi'ō-nom'ī-cal adj.

—bi'ō-nom'ī-cal·ly adv.

-bi·ont (bī'ōnt') suff. Living organism; mode of living: symbiont. [BI(O)- + -ONT.]

bi·o·or·gan·ic (bī'ō-ôr-găn'ik) adj. Of or having to do with organic compounds and their role in biochemical processes.

bi·o·phys·ics (bī'ō-fīz'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The science that deals with the application of physics to biological processes and phenomena.

—bi'·o·phys'i·cal adj. —bi'·o·phys'i·cal·ly adv. —bi'·o·phys'i·cist n.

bi·o·pic (bī'ō-pīk') n. A film or television biography, often with fictionalized episodes.

bi·o·pol·y·mer (bī'ō-pŏl'ə-mər) n. A macromolecule, such as a protein or nucleic acid, that is formed in a living organism.

bi·o·proc·ess (bī'ō-prŏs'ĕs, -prŏ'sĕs) n. a. A technique that produces a biological material, such as a genetically engineered microbial strain, for commercial use. b. Production of a commercially useful chemical or fuel by a biological process, such as microbial fermentation or degradation. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: bioprocess technology; the bioprocess market. — v. tr. bi·o·proc·essed, bi·o·proc·ess·ing, bi·o·proc·ess·es. To prepare, produce, or treat (a substance) by means of a bioprocess.

bi·op·sy (bī'ŏp'sē) n. pl. bi·op·sies. The removal and examination of a sample of tissue from a living body for diagnostic purposes. —bi·op'sic (bī-ŏp'sīk), bi·op'tic (-tīk) adj.

bi·o·psy·chic (bī'ō-sī'kīk) adj. 1. Having to do with the relationship between psychological and biological phenomena. 2. Involving both psychological and biological phenomena.

bi·o·psy·chol·o·gy (bī'ō-sī-kŏl'ə-jē) n. See psychobiology (n., sense 1).

bi·o·re·ac·tor (bī'ō-rē-ăk'tər) n. 1. A container, such as a large fermentation chamber, for growing living organisms that are used in the industrial production of substances such as pharmaceuticals, antibodies, or vaccines. 2. A living organism, such as a bacterium or yeast, that is used in the biotechnological production of substances such as pharmaceuticals, antibodies, or vaccines.

bi·o·re·gion (bī'ō-rē'jən) n. An area constituting a natural ecological community with characteristic flora, fauna, and environmental conditions and bounded by natural rather than artificial borders. —bi'·o·re'gion·al adj.

bi·o·re·gion·al·ism (bī'ō-rē'jə-nə-līz'əm) n. The belief that social organization and environmental policies should be based on the bioregion rather than on a region determined by political or economic boundaries. —bi'·o·re'gion·al·ist n.

bi·o·re·search (bī'ō-rī-sûrch', -rē'sûrch) n. Research in the biological sciences.

bi·o·rhythm (bī'ō-rīth'əm) n. An innate, cyclical biological process or function. —bi'·o·rhyth'mic (-rīth'mīk) adj.

bi·o·sat·el·lite (bī'ō-săt'l-īt') n. An artificial, recoverable satellite that is designed to carry and support humans, animals, or other living organisms.

bi·o·sci·ence (bī'ō-sī'əns) n. See life science. —bi'·o·sci'en·tif'ic (-sī'ən-tif'ik) adj. —bi'·o·sci'en·tist n.

bi·o·scope (bī'ə-skōp') n. An early movie projector.

bi·os·co·py (bī'ōs'kə-pē) n. pl. bi·os·co·pies. Medical examination of a body to determine the presence or absence of life.

bi·o·sen·sor (bī'ō-sĕn'sər, -sôr) n. 1. A device that detects, records, and transmits information regarding a physiological change or process. 2. A device that uses biological materials to monitor the presence of various chemicals in a substance.

-biosis suff. A way of living: parabiosis. [From Greek biōsis, way of life, from bioun, to live, from bios, life. See BIO-.]

bi·o·so·cial (bī'ō-sō'shəl) adj. Of or having to do with the interaction of biological and social forces: the biosocial aspects of disease. —bi'·o·so'cial·ly adv.

bi·o·sphere (bī'ə-sfîr') n. 1. The part of the earth and its atmosphere in which living organisms exist or that is capable of supporting life. 2. The living organisms and their environment composing the biosphere. —bi'·o·spher'ic (-sfîr'ik, -sfēr'-) adj.

bi·o·sta·tis·tics (bī'ō-stə-tis'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Application of statistics to the analysis of biological and medical data.

bi·o·syn·the·sis (bī'ō-sîn'thī-sīs) n. Formation of a chemical compound by a living organism. Also called biogenesis —bi'·o·syn·thet'ic (-thĕt'ik) adj. —bi'·o·syn·thet'i·cal·ly adv.

bi·o·sys·tem·at·ics (bī'ō-sis'tə-măt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The use of data obtained from cytogenetic, biochemical, and other experimental studies to assess the taxonomic relationships of organisms or populations, especially within an evolutionary framework. —bi'·o·sys'tem·at'ic adj.

bi·o·ta (bī-ō'tə) n. The combined flora and fauna of a region. [New Latin, from Greek biotē, way of life, from bios, life. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

bi·o·tech (bī'ō-tĕk') n. Informal. Biotechnology.

bi·o·tech·nol·o·gy (bī'ō-tĕk-nŏl'ə-jē) n. 1. The use of microorganisms, such as bacteria or yeasts, or biological substances, such as enzymes, to perform specific industrial or manufacturing processes. Applications include the production of certain drugs, synthetic hormones, and bulk foodstuffs as well as the bioconversion of organic waste and the use of genetically altered bacteria in the cleanup of oil spills. 2. a. The application of the principles of engineering and technology to the life sciences; bioengineering. b. See ergonomics (n., sense 2).

—bi'·o·tech'ni·cal (-nī-kəl) adj. —bi'·o·tech'no·log'i·cal (-nə-lŏj'ī-kəl) adj.

bi·o·te·lem·e·try (bī'ō-tĕ-lĕm'ī-trē) n. The monitoring, recording, and measuring of a living organism's basic physiological functions, such as heart rate, muscle activity, and body temperature, by the use of telemetry techniques.

bi·o·ther·a·py (bī'ō-thēr'ə-pē) n. pl. bi·o·ther·a·pies. Treatment of disease with biologicals, such as certain drugs, vaccines, or antitoxins.

bi·ot·ic (bī-ōt'ik) adj. 1. Of or having to do with life or living organisms.

2. Produced or caused by living organisms. [Probably Greek biōtikos, from biōtos, life, from bioun, to live, from bios, life. See g^wei- in Appendix.]

-biotic suff. A mode of living: endobiotic. [Probably New Latin -biōticus, from Greek biōtikos. See BIOTIC.]

biotic potential (bī-ōt'ik pə-těn'shəl) n. An estimate of the maximum capacity of living things to survive and reproduce under optimal environmental conditions.

bi·o·tin (bī'ə-tin) n. A colorless crystalline vitamin, C₁₀H₁₆N₂O₃S, of the vitamin B complex, essential for the activity of many enzyme systems and found in large quantities in liver, egg yolk, milk, and yeast. [Greek biōtos, life; see BIOTIC + -IN.]

bi·o·tite (bī'ə-tīt') n. A dark-brown to black mica, K₂(Mg,Fe,Al)₆(Si,Al)₈O₂₀(OH)₄, found in igneous and metamorphic rocks.

[After Jean Baptiste Biot (1774-1862), French physicist.] —bi·o·tit'ic (-tīt'ik) adj.

bi·o·tope (bī'ə-tōp') n. An area that is uniform in environmental conditions and in its distribution of animal and plant life. [BIO- + Greek topos, place.]

bi·o·trans·for·ma·tion (bī'ō-trāns'fər-mā'shən) n. Chemical alteration of a substance within the body, as by the action of enzymes.

bi·o·tron (bī'ə-trōn') n. A climate-control chamber used for studying a living organism's response to specific environmental conditions.

bi·o·type (bī'ə-tīp') n. A group of organisms having the same genotype.

—bi·o·typ'ic (-tīp'ik) adj.

bi·pa·ren·tal (bī'-pə-rěn'tl) adj. Of or derived from two parents: biparental inheritance.

bip·a·rous (bīp'ər-əs) adj. Zoology. Producing two offspring in a single birth.

bi·par·ti·san (bī-pär'tī-zən, -sən) adj. Of, consisting of, or supported by members of two parties, especially two major political parties: a bipartisan resolution. —bi·par'ti·san·ism n. —bi·par'ti·san·ship' n.

bi·par·tite (bī-pär'tīt') adj. 1. Having or consisting of two parts. 2. a. Having two corresponding parts, one for each party: a bipartite contract. b. Having two participants; joint: a bipartite agreement. 3. Botany. Divided into two portions almost to the base, as certain leaves. [Latin bipartītus, past participle of bipartīre, to divide into two parts : bi-, two; see BI-¹ + partīre, to part (from pars, a share); see perə-² in Appendix.] —bi·par'tite'ly adv. —bi·par'ti'tion (-tīsh'ən) n.

bi·ped (bī'pēd') n. An animal with two feet. — adj. also bi·ped·al (bī'pēd'l) Having two feet; two-footed. [Latin bipēs, biped-, two-footed : bi-, two; see BI-¹ + pēs, foot; see PEDESTRIAN.]

bi·phen·yl (bī-fĕn'əl, -fĕ'nəl) n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₁₂H₁₀, used as a heat-transfer agent, in fungicides, and in organic synthesis. Also called diphenyl bi·pin·nate (bī-pĭn'āt') adj. Botany. Decomound. —bi·pin'ate'ly adv.

bi·plane (bī'plān') n. An airplane having two pairs of wings fixed at different levels, especially one above and one below the fuselage.

bi·pod (bī'pōd') n. A stand having two legs, as for the support of an instrument or weapon.

bi·po·lar (bī-pō'lər) adj. 1. Relating to or having two poles. 2. Relating to or involving both of the earth's polar regions. 3. Having two opposite or contradictory ideas or natures: the bipolar world of the postwar period. 4. Biology. Having two poles or opposite extremities: a bipolar neuron. 5. Psychology. Relating to a major affective disorder that is characterized by episodes of mania and depression. —bi'po·lar'i·ty (-lār'ī-tē) n.

bipolar disorder (bī-pō'lər dīs-ôr'dər) n. Psychiatry. See manic-depressive illness.

bipolar illness (bī-pō'lər ĩ'l'nĭs) n. Psychiatry. See manic-depressive illness.

bi·po·ten·ti·al·i·ty (bī'pə-tĕn'shĕ-ăl'ī-tē) n. 1. a. The capacity to act, function, or develop in either of two possible ways. b. The capacity to function either as a male or a female. 2. The condition of having both male and female reproductive organs; hermaphroditism.

bi·pro·pel·lant (bī'prə-pĕl'ənt) n. A two-component rocket propellant, such as liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, fed separately to the combustion chamber as fuel and oxidizer. Also called dipropellant bi·quad·rat·ic (bī'kwō-drăt'ĭk) Mathematics. adj. Of or relating to the fourth degree. — n. An algebraic equation of the fourth degree.

bi·quar·ter·ly (bī-kwôr'tər-lē) adj. Happening or appearing two times during each three-month period of a year. —bi·quar'ter·ly adv.

bi·ra·cial (bī-rā'shəl) adj. Of, for, or consisting of members of two races. —bi·ra'cial·ism n.

bi·ra·mous (bī-rā'məs) adj. Consisting of or having two branches, as the appendages of an arthropod.

birch (bûrch) n. 1. a. Any of various deciduous trees or shrubs of the genus Betula, native to the Northern Hemisphere and having unisexual flowers in catkins, alternate, simple, toothed leaves, and bark that often peels in thin papery layers. b. The hard, close-grained wood of any of these trees, used especially in furniture, interior finishes, and plywood. 2. A rod from a birch, used to administer a whipping. — v. tr. birched, birch·ing, birch·es. To whip with or as if with a birch. [Middle English, from Old English birce. See bheræg- in Appendix.]

Birch·er (bûr'chər) also Birch·ist (-chĭst) or Birch·ite (-chĭt') n. A member or supporter of the John Birch Society, an anti-Communist organization founded in 1958. [After John Birch (died 1945), American missionary and intelligence officer.] —Birch·ism n. —Birchist, Birchite adj.

birch partridge (bûrch pār'trij) n. See ruffed grouse.

bird (bûrd) n. 1. a. Any of the class Aves of warm-blooded, egg-laying, feathered vertebrates with forelimbs modified to form wings. b. Such an animal hunted as game. c. Such an animal, especially a chicken or turkey, used as food: put the bird in the oven. 2. See clay pigeon. 3. Sports. See shuttlecock. 4. Slang. A rocket, guided missile, satellite, or airplane. 5. Slang. A person, especially one who is odd or remarkable: a sly old bird. 6. Chiefly British. A young woman. 7. Slang. a. A loud sound expressing disapproval; a raspberry. b. Discharge from employment: lost a big sale and nearly got the bird. 8. An obscene gesture of anger, defiance, or derision made by pointing or jabbing the middle finger upward. — v. intr. bird·ed, bird·ing, birds. 1. To observe and identify birds in their natural surroundings. 2. To trap, shoot, or catch birds. —idiom. for the birds. Objectionable or worthless. [Middle English, from Old English brid, young bird.] —bird·ing n.

bird·bath (bûrd'băth', -băth') n. A basin filled with water for birds to drink and bathe in.

bird·brain (bûrd'brān') n. Slang. A person regarded as silly or stupid.
—bird·brained' adj.

bird·cage (bûrd'kāj') n. 1. A cage for birds. 2. Slang. The controlled air traffic space near an airport.

bird·call (bûrd'kôl') n. 1. The song or cry of a bird. 2. a. An imitation of the song or cry of a bird. b. A small device for producing this sound.

bird cherry (bûrd chĕr'ē) n. Any of several cherry trees, especially the Eurasian Prunus padus, having clusters of white flowers and small black fruits.

bird colonel (bûrd kûr'nəl) n. Slang. A full colonel. [From the eagle of the insignia.]

bird dog (bûrd dôg) n. 1. A dog used to hunt game birds; a gun dog.
2. Informal. One that bird-dogs.

bird·dog also bird·dog (bûrd'dôg', -dôg') v. bird·-dogged, bird·-dog·ging, bird·-dogs. Informal. — v. intr. To follow a subject of interest, such as a person or trend, with persistent attention. — v. tr. 1. To observe or follow closely; monitor: Police bird-dogged the suspect's movements. 2. To seek out (talent or clients, for example): bird-dogs recruits for the team.

bird·er (bûr'dər) n. 1. A bird watcher. 2. a. A breeder of birds. b. A hunter of birds.

bird feed or bird·feed (bûrd'fēd') n. Food given to birds, especially dried food of mixed seeds.

bird feeder also bird-feed-er (bûrd'fē'dər) n. An outdoor container for bird feed, used to attract wild birds.

bird-foot violet (bûrd'fōōt' vī'ə-līt) n. Variant of bird's-foot violet.

bird-house (bûrd'hous') n. 1. A box with one or more small entry holes, made as a nesting place for birds. 2. An aviary.

bird-ie (bûr'dē) n. 1. Informal. A small bird. 2. Sports. a. One stroke under par for a hole in golf. b. See shuttlecock. — v. tr. bird-ied, bird-ie-ing, bird-ies. Sports. To shoot (a hole in golf) in one stroke under par.

bird-lime (bûrd'līm') n. 1. A sticky substance that is smeared on branches or twigs to capture small birds. 2. Something that captures or ensnares. — v. tr. bird-limed, bird-lim-ing, bird-limes. 1. To smear with birdlime. 2. To catch with or as if with birdlime.

bird louse (bûrd lous) n. See biting louse.

bird-man (bûrd'mən) n. 1. (also -mān') One, such as an ornithologist, who works with birds. 2. Slang. An aviator.

bird of paradise (bûrd ūv pǎr'ə-dīs') n. pl. birds of paradise. 1. Any of various birds of the family Paradisaeidae, native to New Guinea and adjacent islands, usually having brilliant plumage and long tail feathers in the male.

2. Any of several southern African herbs of the genus Strelitzia, especially S. reginae, having orange and blue flowers grouped above a boat-shaped bract.

bird of passage (bûrd ūv pās'ij) n. pl. birds of passage. 1. A migratory bird. 2. A person who moves from place to place frequently.

bird of prey (bûrd ūv prā) n. pl. birds of prey. Any of various predatory carnivorous birds such as the eagle or hawk.

bird pepper (bûrd pēp'ər) n. 1. A variety of pepper (Capsicum annum var. glabriusculum) that includes the wild forms native to the southern United States and Mexico south to Colombia. 2. The small, pungent fruit of this plant.

bird-seed (bûrd'sēd') n. A mixture of various kinds of seeds used for feeding birds, especially caged birds.

Birds-eye (bûrd'zī'), Clarence. 1886-1956. American inventor who received more than 300 patents, most notably for methods of quick-freezing food.

bird's-eye (bûrdz'ī') n. 1. A fabric woven with a pattern of small diamonds, each having a dot in the center. 2. The pattern of such a fabric. — adj.

1. Marked with a spot or spots resembling a bird's eye or eyes, as the bird's-eye maple or a blue flower having a small circular yellow center. 2. Derived from or as if from an altitude or distance; comprehensive: a bird's-eye survey; a bird's-eye view.

bird's-eye maple (bûrdz'ī' mā'pəl) n. A form of wood, chiefly of the sugar maple, that is patterned with small rounded figures and is especially popular for making musical instruments.

bird's-foot trefoil (bûrdz'fōōt' trē'foil') n. A perennial Old World herb (Lotus corniculata) in the pea family, having golden-yellow flowers and clusters of pods arranged like the claws of a bird.

bird's-foot violet (bûrdz'fōōt' vī'ə-līt) also bird-foot violet (bûrd'fōōt' vī'ə-līt) n. An eastern North American violet (Viola pedata) having large blue or purple flowers and palmately divided leaves that are shaped somewhat like a bird's foot.

bird-shot (bûrd'shōt') n. A small lead shot for shotgun shells.

bird's-nest fern (bûrdz'nĕst' fûrn) n. An Old World tropical fern (Asplenium nidus), having undivided leaves arranged in a clump resembling a bird's nest and popular as a houseplant.

bird's-nest fungus (bûrdz'nĕst' fŭng'gəs) n. Any of various fungi having a cuplike body containing several round, egglike structures that enclose the spores.

bird watcher or bird-watch-er also bird-watch-er (bûrd'wōch'ər) n. A person who observes and identifies birds in their natural surroundings. —bird watching n.

bi-re-frin-gence (bī'rī-frīn'jəns) n. The resolution or splitting of a light wave into two unequally reflected waves by an optically anisotropic medium such as calcite or quartz. Also called double refraction —bi're-frin'gent adj.

bi-reme (bī'rēm') n. An ancient galley equipped with two tiers of oars on each side. [Latin birēmis: bi-, two; see BI⁻¹ + rēmus, oar; see erə- in Appendix.]

bi-ret-ta also be-ret-ta or ber-ret-ta (bə-rĕt'ə) n. A stiff square cap with three or four ridges across the crown. Birettas are worn especially by Roman Catholic clergy and are black for priests, purple for bishops, and red for cardinals. [Italian berretta, from Old Provençal berret, cap, from Late Latin birrus, hooded cloak, probably of Celtic origin.]

bi-ri-a-ni (bī'rĕ-ā'nĕ) n. Variant of biryani.

birk (bûrk) n. Scots. Birch. [Middle English birk, from Old English birce. See BIRCH.]

Bir-ken-head (bûr'kən-hĕd') A borough of northwest England at the mouth of the Mersey River near Liverpool. It has extensive docks and is a shipbuilding center. Population, 341,000.

birk-ie (bûr'kē) Scots. n. A man, especially one who is spirited and energetic. — adj. Lively; spirited; cocky. [Possibly akin to Middle English berken, to bark, from Old English beorcan.]

bird (bûrl) v. birded, bird-ing, birds. — v. tr. To cause (a floating log) to spin rapidly by rotating with the feet. — v. intr. 1. To participate in birding. 2. To spin. — n. A whirring noise; a hum. [Blend of *BIRR*¹, and WHIRL.] —bird'er n.

bird-ing (bûr'ling) n. A game of skill, especially among lumberjacks, in which two competitors try to balance on a floating log while spinning it with their feet. Also called logrolling

Bir-ming-ham (bûr'mĩng-hăm') 1. (also -əm) A city of central England northwest of London. It is a major industrial center and transportation hub. Population, 1,022,300. 2. A city of north-central Alabama northeast of Tuscaloosa. The largest city in the state, it is in a mining and industrial region. Population, 265,968. 3. A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 19,997.

Bir-ney (bûr'nē), James Gillespie. 1792-1857. American politician and abolitionist who sought to end slavery through political channels and moral argumentation.

birr¹ (bûr) n. 1. A whirring sound. 2. Strong forward momentum; driving force. — v. intr. birred, birring, birrs. To make a whirring sound. [Middle English bir, favorable wind, from Old Norse byrr. See bher⁻¹ in Appendix.]

birr² (bîr) n. pl. birr or birrs. A basic unit of currency in Eritrea and Ethiopia. See Table at currency. [Probably of Amharic origin.]

birth (bûrth) n. 1. a. The emergence and separation of offspring from the body of the mother. b. The act or process of bearing young; parturition: the mare's second birth. c. The circumstances or conditions relating to this event, as its time or location: an incident that took place before my birth; a Bostonian by birth.

2. a. The set of characteristics or circumstances received from one's ancestors; inheritance: strong-willed by birth; acquired their wealth through birth. b. Origin; extraction: of Swedish birth; of humble birth. c. Noble or high status: persons of birth. 3. A beginning or commencement. See Synonyms at beginning. — v. tr. birthed, birth-ing, births. Chiefly Southern U.S. 1. To deliver (a baby).

2. To bear (a child). [Middle English, probably of Scandinavian origin. See bher⁻¹ in Appendix.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Until recently, the use of birth as a verb meaning “to bear (a child)” has been confined to Southern speech: “Heap o' good it do a woman to birth a mess o' young uns and raise 'em and then have 'em all go off to oncet” (Marjorie K. Rawlings). Recently, however, the nonstandard Southern usage has coincided with widespread usage of verbs derived from nouns, such as parent, network, and microwave. Birth in this new usage is most commonly found in its present participial form and is used as an adjective in the compound birthing room.

birth canal (bûrth kə-năl') n. The passageway through which the fetus is expelled during parturition, leading from the uterus through the cervix, vagina, and vulva.

birth certificate (bûrth sər-tĭf'ĩ-kĭt) n. An official record of the date and place of a person's birth, usually including the names of the parents.

birth control (bûrth kæn-trōl') n. Voluntary limitation or control of the number of children conceived, especially by planned use of contraceptive techniques.

birth control pill (bûrth kæn-trōl' pīl) n. See oral contraceptive.

birth·day (bûrth'dā') n. 1. The day of one's birth. 2. The anniversary of one's birth. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a birthday cake; birthday parties.

birthday suit (bûrth'dā' sōt) n. The state of being nude; nakedness.

birth defect (bûrth dē'fēkt') n. A physiological or structural abnormality that develops at or before birth and is present at the time of birth, especially as a result of faulty development, infection, heredity, or injury. Also called congenital anomaly birth family (bûrth fām'ə-lē) n. A family consisting of one's biological as opposed to adoptive parents and their offspring.

birth father also birth·fa·ther (bûrth'fä'thər) n. A biological father.

birth·ing (bûr'thīng) adj. Having to do with or used during birth: a birthing counselor. — n. The act of giving birth.

birthing center (bûr'thīng sēn'tər) n. A medical facility, often associated with a hospital, that is designed to provide a comfortable, homelike setting during childbirth and that is generally less restrictive than a hospital in its regulations, as in permitting midwifery or allowing family members or friends to attend the delivery.

birthing room (bûr'thīng rōom) n. An area of a hospital or outpatient medical facility equipped for labor, delivery, and recovery and designed as a natural, homelike environment. See Regional note at birth.

birth·mark (bûrth'märk') n. A mole or blemish present on the skin from birth; a nevus.

birth mother also birth·moth·er (bûrth'müth'ər) n. A biological mother.

birth pang (bûrth päng) n. 1. Often birth pangs. One of the repetitive pains occurring in childbirth. 2. birth pangs. Difficulty or turmoil associated with a development or transition: the birth pangs of an emergent democracy.

birth parent also birth·par·ent (bûrth'pâr'ənt, -pâr'-) n. A biological parent.

birth·place (bûrth'plās') n. Abbr. bp., bpl The place where someone is born or where something originates.

birth·rate also birth rate (bûrth'rāt') n. The ratio of total live births to total population in a specified community or area over a specified period of time. The birthrate is often expressed as the number of live births per 1,000 of the population per year. Also called natality birth·right (bûrth'rīt') n. 1. A right, possession, or privilege that is one's due by birth. See Synonyms at right. 2. A special privilege accorded a first-born.

birth·root (bûrth'rōot', -rōot') n. See trillium.

birth-stone (bûrth/'stôn') n. A gemstone associated with a particular month and customarily worn by persons born during that month.

birth trauma (bûrth trou/'mə) n. 1. A physical injury sustained by an infant during birth. 2. The psychological shock experienced by an infant during birth.

birth-wort (bûrth/'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of several herbs or woody vines of the genus Aristolochia having showy, malodorous, purplish-brown to yellowish flowers with peculiar or unusual shapes. The European species A. clematitis was used as a folk medicine to aid childbirth.

bi-ry-a-ni also bi-ri-a-ni (bĩ'rē-ă'nē) n. An Indian dish containing meat, fish, or vegetables and rice flavored with saffron or turmeric. [Hindi, or Urdu.]

bis (bĩs) adv. Music. Again; twice. Used as a direction to repeat a passage. — interj. Used to request an additional performance. [French, or Italian both from Latin, twice. See dwo- in Appendix.]

Bis-cay (bĩs/'kā), Bay of. An arm of the Atlantic Ocean indenting the western coast of Europe from Brittany in northwest France southward to northwest Spain.

Bis-cayne Bay (bĩs-kān/'bā, bĩs/'kān') A narrow inlet of the Atlantic Ocean in southeast Florida. Miami and Miami Beach are on the northern shore.

bis-cot-to (bĩ-skôt'ō, bē-skôt'tô) n. pl. bis-cot-ti (bĩ-skôt'ē, bē-skôt'tē). A crisp Italian cookie flavored with anise and often containing almonds or filberts. [Italian, from Medieval Latin bis coctus, twice cooked. See BISCUIT.]

bis-cuit (bĩs/'kĩt) n. pl. bis-cuits. 1. A small cake of shortened bread leavened with baking powder or soda. 2. Chiefly British. a. A thin, crisp cracker. b. A cookie. 3. Color. A pale brown. 4. pl. biscuit. Clay that has been fired once but not glazed. In this sense, also called *bisque*² [Middle English bisquit, from Old French biscuit, from Medieval Latin bis coctus: Latin bis, twice; see dwo- in Appendix + Latin coctus, past participle of coquere, to cook; see pek^w- in Appendix.]

bise (bēz) n. A cold north wind of the Swiss Alps and nearby regions of France and Italy. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

bi-sect (bĩ/'sēkt', bĩ-sēkt') v. bi-sect-ed, bi-sect-ing, bi-sects. — v. tr. To cut or divide into two parts, especially two equal parts. — v. intr. To split; fork. — bi-sec'tion n. — bi-sec'tion-al adj. — bi-sec'tion-al-ly adv.

bi-sec-tor (bĩ/'sēk'tər, bĩ-sēk't-) n. Something that bisects, especially a ray that bisects an angle.

bi-se-ri-ate (bĩ-sēr'ē-īt, -āt') adj. Arranged in two rows or in two cycles: a biseriate perianth composed of both a calyx and a corolla.

bi-ser-rate (bĩ-sēr'āt') adj. 1. Botany. Having serrations that are themselves serrated; doubly serrate: a biserrate leaf margin. 2. Zoology. Serrated on both sides: biserrate antennae.

bi-sex-u-al (bĩ-sēk/'shōō-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to both sexes. 2. a. Having both male and female reproductive organs; hermaphroditic. b. Botany. Denoting a single flower that contains functional staminate and pistillate structures; perfect. 3. Of, relating to, or having a sexual orientation to persons of either sex. — n. 1. A bisexual organism; a hermaphrodite. 2. A bisexual person. — bi'-sex-u-al'i-ty (-äl'ī-tē) n. — bi-sex'u-al-ly adv.

Bish-kek (bīsh'kĕk, bēsh-) Formerly Frun-ze (frōon'zə). The capital of Kirghiz, in the north-central part on the Chu River. Population, 604,000.

bish-op (bīsh'əp) n. 1. A high-ranking Christian cleric, in modern churches usually in charge of a diocese and in some churches regarded as having received the highest ordination in unbroken succession from the apostles. 2. Abbr. B, bp. Games. A usually miter-shaped chess piece that can move diagonally across any number of unoccupied spaces. 3. Mulled port spiced with oranges, sugar, and cloves. [Middle English, from Old English bisceope, from Vulgar Latin ebiscopus*, from Late Latin episcopus, from Late Greek episkopos, from Greek, overseer : epi-, epi- + skopos, watcher; see spek- in Appendix.]

Bish-op (bīsh'əp), Elizabeth. 1911-1979. American poet noted for her spare, largely descriptive works, such as “Filling Station” (1965).

Bish-op (bīsh'əp), James Alonzo. 1907-1987. American writer. A syndicated columnist for 27 years, he also wrote several popular histories, such as The Day Lincoln Was Shot (1955).

Bish-op (bīsh'əp), J. Michael. Born 1936. American microbiologist. He shared a 1989 Nobel Prize for discovering a sequence of genes that can cause cancer when mutated.

bish-op-ric (bīsh'ə-prīk) n. 1. The office or rank of a bishop. 2. The diocese of a bishop. [Middle English bishoprik, from Old English bisceoprīce, the diocese of a bishop : bisceop, bishop; see BISHOP + rīce, realm; see reg- in Appendix.]

bish-op's cap (bīsh'əps kăp) n. See miterwort.

bishop's weed (bīsh'əps wēd) n. 1. See goutweed. 2. A chiefly Mediterranean annual plant (Ammi magus) in the parsley family, grown as a source of psoralens used in medicine and as an ornamental for its compound umbels of small white flowers.

Bisk (bīsk, bēsk) See Biysk.

Bis-la-ma (bīs-lä'mə) n. A lingua franca that combines Malay and English, spoken in the southwest Pacific, especially in the Papua New Guinea area. Also called Beach-la-Mar, Bêche-de-Mer. [Pidgin, or native variant of BÊCHE-DE-MER.]

Bis-marck (bīz'märk') The capital of North Dakota, in the south-central part of the state on hills overlooking the Missouri River. It was originally a camp for laborers building the Northern Pacific Railroad. Population, 49,256.

Bis-marck (bīz'märk'), Prince Otto Eduard Leopold von. Called “the Iron Chancellor.” 1815-1898. Creator and first chancellor of the German Empire (1871-1890). Instrumental in victory over Austria (1866) and the creation of the North German Confederation (1867), he instituted during his chancellorship sweeping social reforms by which he sought to stop the advance of German socialism. —Bis-marck'i-an adj.

Bismarck Archipelago (bīz'märk' är'kə-pěl'ə-gō') A group of volcanic islands and islets of Papua New Guinea in the southwest Pacific Ocean. The islands were discovered by Dutch explorers in the early 1700's.

Bismarck Sea (bīz'märk' sē) A section of the southwest Pacific Ocean north-east of New Guinea and northwest of New Britain. During World War II it was the site of a major naval battle (March 2-3, 1943) in which the Japanese fleet was completely destroyed.

bis-muth (bīz'məth) n. Symbol Bi A white, crystalline, brittle, highly diamagnetic metallic element used in alloys to form sharp castings for objects sensitive to high temperatures and in various low-melting alloys for fire-safety devices. Atomic number 83; atomic weight 208.980; melting point 271.3°C; boiling point 1,560°C; specific gravity 9.747; valence 3, 5. [Obsolete German Bismut, from New Latin bisemūtum, alteration of Medieval Latin wismutum, from obsolete German Wismut: Middle High German wise, meadow (from Old High German wisa) + Mut, Muth, claim to a mine (from muten, to stake a claim, demand, from Middle High German muoten, from Old High German, from muot, mind, spirit); see mē¹ in Appendix.] —bis'muth-al adj.

bi-son (bī'sən, -zən) n. 1. A bovine mammal (Bison bison) of western North America, having large forequarters, a shaggy mane, and a massive head with short, curved horns; a buffalo. 2. An animal (B. bonasus) of Europe, similar to but somewhat smaller than the bison; a wisent. [Latin bisōn, of Germanic origin; akin to Old High German wisunt.]

bisque¹ (bīsk) n. 1. a. A rich, creamy soup made from meat, fish, or shellfish. b. A thick cream soup made of puréed vegetables. 2. Ice cream mixed with crushed macarons or nuts. [Perhaps from French dialectal, sour soup, from Biscaye, Bay of Biscay.]

bisque² (bīsk) n. 1. See biscuit (n., sense 4). 2. Color. a. A pale orange-yellow to yellowish gray. b. A color ranging in various industries from moderate yellowish pink to grayish yellow. [From BISCUIT.]

bisque³ (bīsk) n. Sports. An advantage allowed an inferior player in certain games, such as a free point in tennis, an extra turn in croquet, or an additional stroke in golf. [French.]

Bis-sau (bī-sou') The capital and largest city of Guinea-Bissau, on an estuary of the Atlantic Ocean. Founded by the Portuguese in 1687, the city has been a free port since 1869. Population, 109,486.

Bis-sell (bīs'əl), George Henry. 1821-1884. American oilman who founded the first petroleum company in the United States (1854).

bis-sex-tile (bī-sěk'stīl, -stīl', bī-) adj. 1. Of or relating to a leap year. 2. Of or relating to the extra day falling in a leap year. — n. A leap year. [Late Latin bis- sextilis, containing an intercalary day, from Latin bissextus, an intercalary day : bi-, twice; see BI⁻¹ + sextus, sixth, because the sixth day before the Calends of March (February 24) occurred twice every leap year; see SEXT.]

bi-state (bī'stāt') adj. Of, relating to, or involving two states: bistate cooperation in combating crime.

bis-ter or bis-tre (bīs'tər) n. 1. A water-soluble, yellowish-brown pigment.

2. Color. A grayish to yellowish brown. [French bistre.] —bis'tered adj.

bis-tort (bīs'tôrt') n. 1. A Eurasian perennial herb (Polygonum bistorta) having cylindrical spikes of usually pink flowers and a rhizome used as an astringent in folk medicine. 2. Any of certain related plants of the genus Polygonum. [French bistorte, from Old French, from Medieval Latin bistorta* : Latin bis, twice; see BIS + torta, past participle of torquēre, to twist; see *TORQUE*¹.]

bis-tou-ry (bīs'tə-rē) n. pl. bis-tou-ries. A long, narrow surgical knife for minor incisions. [French bistouri, perhaps from Italian dialectal bistori, from bistorino, of Pistoia, from Pistōrium, Pistoia.]

bis-tre (bīs'tər) n. Variant of bister.

bis-tro (bē'strō, bīs'trō) n. pl. bis-tros. 1. A small bar, tavern, or nightclub.

2. A small, informal restaurant serving wine. [French bistro, or bistrot, tavern owner, tavern.]

WORD HISTORY: According to a popular story, bistro came into existence as a French word when Russian soldiers entered Parisian restaurants and cafés after the fall of Napoleon in 1815 shouting “bystro, bystro,” Russian for “quickly, quickly.” Bistros seem to have been named not for this desire for quick service but possibly for a commodity to be found in at least some of them, since the French word bistro may be related to the word bistouille, “raw spirits, rotgut.” Another possibility is that the word bistro comes from the dialectal word bistraud, “young cowherd.” In Standard French the term may have come to mean “wine merchant’s helper” and then “an establishment selling wine.” Although the French word bistro is first recorded in 1884, evidence for the English word bistro is not found until the early 1920’s.

bi-sul-cate (bī-sŭl'kāt') adj. Cleft or cloven, as a hoof.

bi-sul-fate (bī-sŭl'fāt') n. The univalent inorganic acid group HSO_4 or a salt of sulfuric acid containing it.

bi-sul-fide (bī-sŭl'fid') n. See disulfide.

bi-sul-fite (bī-sŭl'fit') n. The univalent inorganic acid group HSO_3 or a salt of sulfurous acid containing it.

bit¹ (bīt) n. 1. A small portion, degree, or amount: a bit of lint; a bit of luck. 2. A brief amount of time; a moment: Wait a bit. 3. a. A short scene or episode in a theatrical performance. b. A bit part. 4. An entertainment routine given regularly by a performer; an act. 5. Informal. a. A particular kind of action, situation, or behavior: got tired of the macho bit. b. A matter being considered: What's this bit about inflation? 6. Informal. An amount equal to 8 of a dollar: two bits.

7. Chiefly British. A small coin: a threepenny bit. — idioms. a bit. To a small degree; somewhat: a bit warm. bit by bit. Little by little; gradually. [Middle English bite, morsel, from Old English bita. See bheid- in Appendix.]

bit² (bīt) n. 1. The sharp part of a tool, such as the cutting edge of a knife or ax.

2. A pointed and threaded tool for drilling and boring that is secured in a brace, bitstock, or drill press. 3. The part of a key that enters the lock and engages the bolt and tumblers. 4. The tip of the mouthpiece on a pipe or a cigarette or cigar holder. 5. The metal mouthpiece of a bridle, serving to control, curb, and direct an animal. 6. Something that controls, guides, or curbs. — v. tr. bit-ted, bit-ting, bits. 1. To place a bit in the mouth of (a horse, for example). 2. To check or control with or as if with a bit. 3. To make or grind a bit on (a key).

— idiom. have the bit in one's teeth (or take the bit in one's teeth). To be uncontrollable, as a horse is when it clenches its teeth on the bit; to cast off or refuse restraint. [Middle English bite, from Old English, act of biting. See bheid- in Appendix.]

bit³ (bīt) n. Computer Science. 1. A single character of a language having just two characters, as either of the binary digits 0 or 1. 2. A unit of information equivalent to the choice of either of two equally likely alternatives. 3. A unit of information storage capacity, as of memory. [Blend of B(INARY), and (DIG)IT.]

bit⁴ (bīt) v. Past tense and a past participle of bite.

bi-tar-trate (bī-tär'trät') n. The group C₄H₅O₆⁻ or a salt of tartaric acid containing it.

bitch (bĭch) n. 1. A female canine animal, especially a dog. 2. Offensive. a. A woman considered to be spiteful or overbearing. b. A lewd woman. 3. Slang. A complaint. 4. Slang. Something very unpleasant or difficult. — v. bitched, bitch-ing, bitch-es. Slang. — v. intr. To complain; grumble. — v. tr. To botch; bungle. [Middle English bicche, from Old English bicce.]

bitch-er-y (bĭch'ə-rē) n. Malicious remarks or spiteful behavior: "the rapidly escalating and darkening volley of nasty political bitchery" (Joe Brown).

bitch goddess (bĭch göd'is) n. Material success.

bitch-y (bĭch'ē) adj. bitch-i-er, bitch-i-est. Slang. Malicious, spiteful, or overbearing. — bitch/i-ly adv. — bitch/i-ness n.

bite (bīt) v. bit (bīt), bit-ten (bĭt'n) or bit, bit-ing, bites. — v. tr. 1. To cut, grip, or tear with or as if with the teeth. 2. a. To pierce the skin of with the teeth, fangs, or mouthparts. b. To sting with a stinger. 3. To cut into with or as if with a sharp instrument: The sword bit straight through the wooden shield. 4. To grip, grab, or seize: bald treads that couldn't bite the icy road; bitten by a sudden desire to travel. 5. To eat into; corrode. 6. To cause to sting or be painful: cold that bites the skin; a conscience bitten by remorse. — v. intr. 1. To grip, cut into, or injure something with or as if with the teeth. 2. To have a stinging effect. 3. To have a sharp taste. 4. To take or swallow bait. 5. To be taken in by a ploy or deception: tried to sell the Brooklyn Bridge, but no one bit. — n. 1. The act of biting. 2. A skin wound or puncture produced by an animal's teeth or mouthparts: the bite of an insect. 3. a. A stinging or smarting sensation. b. An incisive, penetrating quality: the bite of satire. 4. An amount removed by or as if by an act of biting: Rezoning took a bite out of the town's residential area. 5. a. An amount of food taken into the mouth at one time; a mouthful. b. Informal. A light meal or snack. 6. The act or an instance of taking bait: fished all day without a bite; an ad that got a few bites but no final sales. 7. a. A secure grip or hold applied by a tool or machine upon a working surface. b. The part of a tool or machine that presses against and maintains a firm hold on a working surface. 8. Dentistry. The angle at which the upper and lower teeth meet; occlusion. 9. The corrosive action of acid upon an etcher's metal plate. 10. Slang. An amount of money appropriated or withheld: trying to avoid the tax bite. — idioms. bite off more than one can chew. To decide or agree to do more than one can finally accomplish. bite the bullet. Slang. To face a painful situation bravely and stoically. bite the dust. Slang. 3. To fall dead, especially in combat. 4. To be defeated. 5. To come to an end. bite the hand that feeds (one). To repay generosity or kindness with ingratitude and injury. [Middle English biten, from Old English bītan. See bheid- in Appendix.] — bit'a·ble, bite'a·ble adj. — bit'er n.

SYNONYMS: bite, champ, gnaw. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to seize and tear or grind something with the teeth”: bite into a ripe tomato; horses champing grain; a dog gnawing a bone.

bite·plate also bite plate (bīt'plāt') n. A removable dental appliance, fabricated of wire and plastic, that is worn in the palate and used as a diagnostic or therapeutic aid in orthodontics or prosthodontics.

bite·wing (bīt'wīng') n. A dental x-ray film with a central projection on which the teeth can close, holding it in position for the radiographic examination of several upper and lower teeth simultaneously.

Bi·thyn·i·a (bī-thīn'ē-ə) An ancient country of northwest Asia Minor in present-day Turkey. Originally inhabited by Thracians, it was absorbed into the Roman Empire by the end of the first century B.C. — Bi-thyn'i-an adj. & n.

bit·ing (bīt'īng) adj. 1. Causing a stinging sensation. 2. Capable of gripping and affecting or wounding: a biting aphorism. See Synonyms at incisive. — bit'ing·ly adv.

biting louse (bīt'īng lous) n. Any of several small, wingless, biting insects of the order Mallophaga that are external parasites on birds. Also called bird louse biting midge (bī'tīng mĭj) n. See punkie.

bi·tok (bē'tōk) n. A dish made from ground meat mixed with milk, bread, and onions to form patties that are fried and served with a sour-cream sauce. [Russian, from French bifteck (haché), (ground) beef, from BEEFSTEAK.]

Bi-to-la (bēt'l-yä', bē'tōl-yä') A city of southern Macedonia near the Greek border. It was a major agricultural center in Roman times and an important military and commercial center in the 15th and 16th centuries. Population, 72,900.

bit part (bit pärt) n. A small or insignificant role, as in a play or movie, usually having a few spoken lines.

bit-stock (bit'stök') n. A handle used to secure and turn a drilling or boring bit; a brace.

bitt (bit) Nautical. n. A vertical post, usually one of a pair, set on the deck of a ship and used to secure ropes or cables. — v. tr. bitt-ed, bitt-ing, bitts. To wind (a cable) around a bitt. [Perhaps of Dutch or Low German origin; akin to Old Norse biti, crossbeam.]

bit-ten (bit'n) v. A past participle of bite.

bit-ter (bit'er) adj. bit-ter-er, bit-ter-est. 1. Having or being a taste that is sharp, acrid, and unpleasant. 2. Causing a sharply unpleasant, painful, or stinging sensation; harsh: enveloped in bitter cold; a bitter wind. 3. Difficult or distasteful to accept, admit, or bear: the bitter truth; bitter sorrow. 4. Proceeding from or exhibiting strong animosity: a bitter struggle; bitter foes. 5. Resulting from or expressive of severe grief, anguish, or disappointment: cried bitter tears. 6. Marked by resentment or cynicism: "He was already a bitter elderly man with a gray face" (John Dos Passos). — adv. In an intense or harsh way; bitterly: a bitter cold night. — v. tr. bit-tered, bit-ter-ing, bit-ters. To make bitter. — n. 1. That which is bitter: "all words... /Failing to give the bitter of the sweet" (Tennyson). 2. bitters. A bitter, usually alcoholic liquid made with herbs or roots and used in cocktails or as a tonic. 3. Chiefly British. A sharp-tasting beer made with hops. [Middle English, from Old English. See bheid- in Appendix.] — bit'ter-ly adv. — bit'ter-ness n.

SYNONYMS: bitter, acerbic, acrid. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "unpleasantly sharp or pungent in taste or smell": a bitter cough syrup; acerbic barberries; acrid resin.

bitter almond (bit'er ä'mənd) n. A variety of almond (Prunus dulcis var. amara) having kernels that yield an oil consisting mostly of benzaldehyde and some hydrocyanic acid. The detoxified oil can be used for flavoring.

bitter aloes (bit'er äl'ōz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). See aloe (n., sense 3).

bitter apple (bit'er äp'əl) n. See colocynth.

bit-ter-brush (bīt'ər-brūsh') n. A shrub of the genus Purshia, especially P. tridentata of western North America.

bitter cress (bīt'ər krēs) n. Any of several herbs of the genus Cardamine in the mustard family, having racemes of white, pink, or purplish flowers, usually divided leaves, and pods that dehisce explosively.

bitter end (bīt'ər ěnd) n. 1. A final, painful, or disastrous extremity.

2. Nautical. The inboard end of a chain, rope, or cable, especially the end of a rope or cable that is wound around a bitt. [English bitter, bitt (BITT + -ER¹) + END. Sense 1, influenced by BITTER.]

bit-ter-end-er or bit-ter-end-er (bīt'ər-ěn'dər) n. One who persists in an action, attitude, or state despite difficult circumstances, until it becomes impossible to continue.

bitter gourd (bīt'ər gōrd) n. See balsam pear (n., sense 2).

bit-tern¹ (bīt'ərn) n. Any of several wading birds of the genera Botaurus and Ixobrychus, having mottled, brownish plumage and a deep, booming cry in the male. [Middle English bitour (with -n perhaps from HERON), from Old French butor, possibly from Vulgar Latin buti-taurus*: Latin būtiō, buzzard + Latin taurus, bull (after its cry); see tauro- in Appendix.]

bit-tern² (bīt'ərn) n. The bitter water solution of bromides, magnesium, and calcium salts remaining after sodium chloride is crystallized out of seawater.

[From BITTER.]

bit-ter-nut (bīt'ər-nŭt') n. A hickory tree (Carya cordiformis) of eastern North America, having thin-shelled nuts with bitter kernels.

bitter orange (bīt'ər ôr'ĭnj) n. See sour orange.

bit-ter-root (bīt'ər-rōōt', -rōōt') n. A perennial herb (Lewisia rediviva), native to western North America and having showy pink or whitish flowers and an edible, fleshy root.

Bit-ter-root Range (bīt'ər-rōōt' rānj, -rōōt') A rugged chain of the Rocky Mountains along the Idaho-Montana border. It rises to 3,474.9 m (11,393 ft) at Scott Peak.

Bitterroot River (bīt'ər-rōōt' rĭv'ər) A river rising in southwest Montana and flowing about 193 km (120 mi) northward to the Clark Fork River near Missoula.

bit-ter-sweet (bīt'ər-swĕt') n. 1. A woody vine of the genus Celastrus, especially the North American species C. scandens and the eastern Asian species C. orbiculata, having small, round, yellow-orange fruits that open at maturity to expose red seeds. Also called staff tree 2. See bittersweet nightshade.

3. Color. A dark to deep reddish orange. — adj. 1. Bitter and sweet at the same time: bittersweet chocolate. 2. Producing or expressing a mixture of pain and pleasure: a movie with a bittersweet ending. 3. Color. Dark to deep reddish-orange. [After its roots, which are said to taste bitter, then sweet when chewed.]

bittersweet nightshade (bīt'ər-swēt' nīt'shād') n. A poisonous climbing or trailing plant (Solanum dulcamara) native to Eurasia and a widespread weed in North America, having violet flowers with recurved corolla lobes and red berries. Also called bittersweet, deadly nightshade. [After its roots, which are said to taste bitter, then sweet when chewed.]

bit·ty (bīt'ē) adj. bit·ti·er, bit·ti·est. 1. Informal. Tiny. 2. Chiefly British. Composed of small segments lacking cohesion; fragmented: “The play finally jerks its disjointed and bitty way to an arbitrary conclusion” (Martin Hoyle).

—bit·ti·ness n.

bi·tu·men (bī-tōō'mən, -tyōō'-, bī-) n. Any of various flammable mixtures of hydrocarbons and other substances, occurring naturally or obtained by distillation from coal or petroleum, that are a component of asphalt and tar and are used for surfacing roads and for waterproofing. [Middle English bithumen, a mineral pitch from the Near East, from Latin bitūmen, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

—bi·tu·mi·noid' (-mə-noid') adj.

bi·tu·mi·nize (bī-tōō'mə-nīz', -tyōō'-, bī-) v. tr. bi·tu·mi·nized, bi·tu·mi·niz·ing, bi·tu·mi·niz·es. To treat with bitumen. —bi·tu·mi·ni·za·tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.

bi·tu·mi·nous (bī-tōō'mə-nəs, -tyōō'-, bī-) adj. 1. Like or containing bitumen. 2. Of or relating to bituminous coal.

bituminous coal (bī-tōō'mə-nəs kōl) n. A mineral coal with a high percentage of volatile matter that burns with a smoky yellow flame. Also called soft coal bi·va·lent (bī-vā'lənt) adj. 1. Chemistry. Divalent. 2. Biology. Consisting of a pair of homologous, synapsed chromosomes, as occurs during meiosis; double. — n. Biology. A pair of homologous, synapsed chromosomes associated together during meiosis. —bi·va'lence, bi·va'len·cy n.

bi·valve (bī'vālv') n. A mollusk, such as an oyster or a clam, that has a shell consisting of two hinged valves. — adj. 1. Having a shell consisting of two hinged valves. 2. Consisting of two similar separable parts. —bi'valved' adj.

bi·var·iate (bī-vâr'ē-īt, -āt') adj. Mathematics. Having two variables: bivariate binomial distribution.

biv·ou·ac (biv'ōō-āk', biv'wāk') n. A temporary encampment often in an unsheltered area. — v. intr. biv·ou·acked, biv·ou·ack·ing, biv·ou·acs also biv·ou·acks. To camp in a bivouac. [French, from German dialectal beiwacht, supplementary night watch : bei-, beside (from Middle High German bi-, from Old High German); see ambhi in Appendix + Wacht, watch, vigil (from Middle High German wahte, from Old High German wahta); see weg- in Appendix.]

Bi·wa (bē'wä) A lake of southern Honshu, Japan, west of Nagoya. It is the largest lake in the country and a popular scenic resort area.

bi·week·ly (bī-wēk'lē) adj. 1. Happening every two weeks. 2. Happening twice a week; semiweekly. — n. pl. bi·week·lies. A publication issued every two weeks. — adv. 1. Every two weeks. 2. Twice a week; semiweekly. See Usage Note at bi¹.

bi-yearly (bī-yîr'lē) adj. 1. Happening every two years. 2. Happening twice a year; semiyearly. — adv. 1. Every two years. 2. Twice a year; semiyearly.

Bi-yisk (bē'isk, bēsk) or Bisk (bisk, bēsk) A city of south-central Russia east-southeast of Barnaul. It was founded as a fortress in 1709. Population, 226,000.

biz (biz) n. Slang. Business.

bi-zarre (bī-zär') adj. Strikingly unconventional and far-fetched in style or appearance; odd. See Synonyms at fantastic. [French, from Spanish bizarro, brave, probably from Basque bizar, beard.] —bi-zarre/ly adv. —bi-zarre/ness n.

Bi-zer-te (bī-zûr'tē, bē-zért') A city of northern Tunisia on the Mediterranean Sea northwest of Tunis. It was founded by the Phoenicians and is today a major port and naval base. Population, 62,856.

Bi-zet (bē-zā'), Alexandre César Léopold. Known as "Georges Bizet." 1838-1875. French composer known especially for his opera Carmen (1875).

bi-zon-al (bī-zō'nəl) adj. Of or relating to the affairs of a zone under the joint administration of two powers.

B.J. abbr. Bachelor of Journalism.

Björn-son (byûrn'sən), Björnstjerne. 1832-1910. Norwegian writer who sought to revive the literary language and character of Norway. His works include the novel The Fisher Girl (1868) and the epic poem Arnljot Gelline (1870). He won the 1903 Nobel Prize for literature.

Bk The symbol for the element berkelium.

bk. abbr. 1. Bank. 2. Book.

bkg. abbr. Banking.

bkgd. abbr. Background.

bklr. abbr. Printing. Black letter.

bkpg. abbr. Bookkeeping.

bkpt. abbr. Bankrupt.

bks. abbr. 1. Barracks. 2. Books.

bl. abbr. 1. Barrel. 2. Black. 3. Blue.

B.L. abbr. 1. Bachelor of Laws. 2. Bachelor of Letters. 3. Bachelor of Literature.

B/L abbr. Bill of lading.

B.L.A. abbr. Bachelor of Liberal Arts.

blab (blăb) v. blabbed, blab-bing, blabs. — v. tr. To reveal (secret matters) especially through indiscreet or unreserved talk. — v. intr. 1. To reveal secret matters. 2. To chatter thoughtlessly or indiscreetly. See Synonyms at gossip. — n. 1. An incessant or indiscreet talker. 2. Lengthy chatter. [Middle English blabben, to talk foolishly, back-formation from blaberen.] —blab/by adj.

blab·ber (blăb'ər) v. intr. blab·bered, blab·ber·ing, blab·bers. To chatter; babble. — n. 1. Idle chatter. 2. A blabbermouth. [Middle English blaberen.] blab·ber·mouth (blăb'ər-mouth') n. Informal. One who talks indiscreetly or incessantly.

black (blăk) Abbr. bl., blk. adj. black·er, black·est. 1. Color. Being of the color black, producing or reflecting comparatively little light and having no predominant hue. 2. Having little or no light: a black, moonless night. 3. Often Black. a. Of, relating to, or belonging to a racial group having brown to black skin, especially one of African origin: the Black population of South Africa. b. Of, relating to, or belonging to an American ethnic group descended from African peoples having dark skin; African American; Afro-American: “When the history books are written in future generations, the historians will... say, ‘There lived a great people—a black people—who injected new meaning and dignity into the veins of civilization’” (Martin Luther King, Jr.). “Despite the exposure, being young, gifted and Black in the corridors of power has its trying moments” (Ebony). 4. Very dark in color: rich black soil; black, wavy hair. 5. Soiled, as from soot; dirty: feet black from playing outdoors. 6. Evil; wicked: the pirates’ black deeds. 7. Cheerless and depressing; gloomy: black thoughts. 8. Marked by anger or sullenness: gave me a black look. 9. Often Black. Attended with disaster; calamitous: the stock market crash on Black Friday. 10. Deserving of, indicating, or incurring censure or dishonor: “Man... has written one of his blackest records as a destroyer on the oceanic islands” (Rachel Carson). 11. Wearing clothing of the darkest visual hue: the black knight. 12. Served without milk or cream: black coffee. 13. Appearing to emanate from a source other than the actual point of origin. Used chiefly of intelligence operations: black propaganda; black radio transmissions. 14. Disclosed, for reasons of security, only to an extremely limited number of authorized persons; very highly classified: black programs in the Defense Department; the Pentagon’s black budget. 15. Chiefly British. Boycotted as part of a labor union action. — n. 1. Color. a. The achromatic color value of minimum lightness or maximum darkness; the color of objects that absorb nearly all light of all visible wavelengths; one extreme of the neutral gray series, the opposite being white. Although strictly a response to zero stimulation of the retina, the perception of black appears to depend on contrast with surrounding color stimuli. b. A pigment or dye having this color value. 2. Complete or almost complete absence of light; darkness. 3. Clothing of the darkest hue, especially such clothing worn for mourning. 4. Often Black. a. A member of a racial group having brown to black skin, especially one of African origin. b. An American descended from peoples of African origin having brown to black skin; an African American; an Afro-American: “Many blacks and Hispanics cannot borrow money from banks on subjective grounds” (Jesse Jackson). 5. Something that is colored black. 6. Games. a. The black-colored pieces, as in chess or checkers. b. The player using these pieces. — v. tr. blacked*, black-ing, blacks*. 1. To make black: blacked their faces with charcoal. 2. To apply blacking to: blacked the stove. 3. Chiefly British. To boycott as part of a labor union action. — v. intr. To become black. —phrasal verb. black out. 1. a. To lose consciousness or memory temporarily: blacked out at the podium. b. To suppress (a fact or memory, for example) from conscious recognition: blacked out many of my wartime experiences. 2. To prohibit the dissemination of, especially by censorship: blacked out the news issuing from the rebel provinces. 3. To extinguish or conceal all lights that might help enemy aircraft find a target during an air raid. 4. To extinguish all the lights on (a stage). 5. To cause a failure of electrical power in: Storm damage blacked out much of the region. 6. a. To withhold (a televised event or program) from a broadcast area: blacked out the football game on local stations. b. To withhold a televised event or program from: will black out the entire state to increase ticket sales for the game. —idiom. in the black. On the credit side of a ledger; prosperous. [Middle English blak, from Old English blæc. See bhel⁻¹ in Appendix.] —black'ish adj. —black'ly adv. —black'ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Black is often capitalized in its use to denote persons, though the lowercased form black is still widely used by authors of all races: “Together, blacks and whites can move our country beyond racism” (Whitney Moore Young, Jr.). Use of the capitalized form has the advantage of acknowledging the parallel with other ethnic groups and nationalities, such as Italian and Sioux. It can be argued that black is different from these other terms because it was derived from an adjective rather than from a proper name. However, a precedent exists for the capitalization of adjectives used to denote specific groups, as in the Reds and the Whites (of the Russian Civil War) or the Greens (the European political party). The capitalization of Black does raise ancillary problems for the treatment of the term white. Orthographic evenhandedness would seem to require the use of the uppercase form White, but this form might be taken to imply that whites constitute a single ethnic group, an issue that is certainly debatable. On the other hand, the use of the lowercase form white in the same context as the uppercase form Black will obviously raise questions as to how and why the writer has distinguished between the two groups. There is no entirely happy solution to this problem. In all likelihood, uncertainty as to the mode of styling of white has dissuaded many publications from adopting the capitalized form Black. See Usage Note at color.

Black (blāk), Hugo La Fayette. 1886-1971. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1937-1971). He was noted for his ardent support of civil rights.

Black (blāk), Sir James Whyte. Born 1924. British pharmacologist. He shared a 1988 Nobel Prize for developing drugs to treat heart disease and stomach and duodenal ulcers.

Black (blāk), Joseph. 1728-1799. British chemist who rediscovered carbon dioxide (1756) and formulated the concepts of latent heat and specific heat.

Black (blāk), Shirley Temple. Born 1927?. American actress and public official. As Shirley Temple she was an immensely popular child actress of the 1930's, starring in films such as Bright Eyes (1934). As an adult she has held several diplomatic positions, including ambassador to Ghana (1974-1976).

black alder (blāk ôl'dər) n. 1. A deciduous shrub or small tree (Ilex verticillata), the most widespread of North American hollies, growing in many variable forms from Minnesota to Texas and Georgia. Also called winterberry 2. A Eurasian alder tree (Alnus glutinosa) that is sometimes cultivated in North America, especially for its ability to grow in soils too wet for many other trees.

black-a-moor (blāk'ə-mōor') n. Offensive. A dark-skinned person, especially a person from northern Africa. [BLACK + -a-, of unknown origin + MOOR.]

black-and-blue (blāk'ən-blōo') adj. Discolored from coagulation of blood below the surface of the skin.

black-and-tan (blāk'ən-tăn') adj. 1. Having a black coat with tannish markings. Used of a dog. 2. Involving, recognizing, or admitting Black and white people equally: a black-and-tan organization.

Black and Tan (blāk ənd tăn) n. pl. Black and Tans. A member of the Royal Irish Constabulary, a force of British soldiers sent to Ireland to suppress the Sinn Fein rebellion of 1919 to 1921. [From the color of their uniform.]

black-and-tan coonhound (blāk'ən-tăn' kōon'hound') n. Any of an American breed of large, strong coonhounds that have pendulous ears and a short black coat with tan markings above the eyes and on the chest, legs, and muzzle.

black-and-tan terrier (blāk'ən-tăn' tēr'ē-ər) n. See Manchester terrier.

black and white (blāk ənd hwīt) n. Abbr. BW, b/w 1. Writing or print: saw their words in black and white. 2. A visual medium, as in photography or print-making, employing only black and white or black, white, and values of gray: a film shot in black and white; a painting reproduced in black and white.

black-and-white (blāk'ən-hwīt', -wīt') adj. 1. Partially black and partially white: a black-and-white cow. 2. Being in writing or print: black-and-white proof. 3. a. Rendered in black and white or in achromatic colors: a black-and-white drawing. b. Of or relating to the reproduction or presentation of visual images in black and white: black-and-white television; black-and-white photography. 4. Expressing, recognizing, or based on two mutually exclusive sets of ideas or values: black-and-white categories; a black-and-white point of view.

Black Angus (blāk äng'gəs) n. See Aberdeen Angus.

black art (bläk ärt) n. Black magic; witchcraft.

black-a-vised (bläk'ə-vīst', -vīzd') adj. Having a dark complexion. [From dialectal black a vice: BLACK + dialectal a, of (from Middle English, unstressed variant of of); see OF + vice, face (from Old French vis, face, from Latin vīsus, past participle of vidēre, to see); see weid- in Appendix.]

black bag job also black-bag job (bläk'bäg' jöb) n. Slang. An act of entry, search, and sometimes removal or photographing of property, conducted by federal investigators without a warrant.

black·ball (bläk'bôl') n. 1. A negative vote, especially one that blocks the admission of an applicant to an organization. 2. A small black ball used as a negative ballot. — v. tr. black·balled, black·ball·ing, black·balls. 1. To vote against, especially to veto the admission of. 2. To shut out from social or commercial participation; ostracize or boycott. —black'ball'er n.

SYNONYMS: blackball, blacklist, boycott, ostracize. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to exclude from social, professional, or commercial activities”: blackballed from membership in the club; the movie industry blacklisting suspected Communists; winegrowers hiring union grape pickers for fear of being boycotted; ostracized by the community for immoral activities.

ANTONYM: admit

black bass (bläk bäs) n. Any of several North American freshwater game fishes of the genus Micropterus.

black bear (bläk bâr) n. 1. The common North American bear (Euarctos or Ursus americanus) that lives in forests, is omnivorous, and has a glossy black or dark brown coat. 2. Any of several black or dark brown Asiatic bears, especially Selenarctos thibetanus, with a pointed snout, a black coat, and a white, V-shaped mark on the chest.

Black·beard (bläk'bîrd') See Edward Teach.

black belt (bläk bëlt) n. 1. a. The rank of expert in a martial art such as judo or karate. b. The black sash that symbolizes this rank of proficiency. c. A person who has attained this rank. 2. A region of rich, black soil. 3. Often Black Belt. An area having a predominantly Black population.

black·ber·ry (bläk'bër'ē) n. 1. Any of various shrubs of the genus Rubus, having usually prickly stems, compound leaves, and an aggregate fruit of small drupelets. 2. The fruit of these plants, usually black, purple, or deep red.

blackberry lily (bläk'bër'ē lîl'ē) n. A medicinal Chinese perennial herb (Belamcanda chinensis) having sword-shaped leaves, usually orange showy flowers with red spots, and dehiscent fruits with shiny seeds in clusters resembling blackberries. Also called leopard flower black bile (blāk bīl) n. One of the four humors of medieval physiology, supposed to cause melancholy.

black bindweed or black-bind-weed (blāk'bind'wēd') n. A twining annual vine (Polygonum convolvulus), native to Eurasia but widespread as a weed and having heart-shaped leaves and clusters of small, greenish-white flowers.

black birch (blāk būrch) n. 1. See sweet birch. 2. See river birch.

black-bird (blāk'bûrd') n. 1. Any of various New World birds of the family Icteridae, such as the grackle or red-winged blackbird, the male of which has black or predominantly black plumage. 2. An Old World songbird (Turdus merula), the male of which is black with a yellow bill. In this sense, also called merle black-board (blāk'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A smooth, hard, dark-colored panel for writing on with chalk.

black-bod-y (blāk'böd'ē) n. A theoretically perfect absorber of all incident radiation.

black book (blāk böök) n. A book containing names of people and organizations to blacklist.

black box (blāk böks) n. 1. a. A device or theoretical construct with known or specified performance characteristics but unknown or unspecified constituents and means of operation. b. Something that is mysterious, especially as to function. 2. The flight recorder, as on a military or commercial aircraft, that documents preflight checks, in-flight procedures, and the landing.

black bryony (blāk brī'ə-nē) n. A poisonous, perennial twining herb (Tamus communis), native to Eurasia and sometimes grown as an ornamental for its red berries.

black-buck (blāk'bŭk') n. An antelope (Antilope cervicapra) of India that inhabits open grasslands and in the male has long, spiraled horns and a black coat with white underparts.

Black-burn (blāk'bûrn') A borough of northwest England north-northwest of Manchester. The city's textile industry dates to the early 17th century. Population, 141,700.

Blackburn, Mount. A peak, 5,039.5 m (16,523 ft) high, of the Wrangell Mountains in southern Alaska.

black-cap (blāk'kăp') n. 1. See black raspberry (n., sense 1). 2. a. A small European warbler (Sylvia atricapilla), the male of which is gray with a black crown. b. Any of various other black-crowned birds, such as the chickadee.

black cherry (blāk chěr'ē) n. 1. a. A deciduous North American tree (Prunus serotina) having drooping, elongate clusters of white flowers and blackish, somewhat poisonous fruits. b. The close-grained, reddish-brown wood of this tree, used especially for furniture, cabinets, and musical instruments. 2. Any of various dark-fruited kinds of cherry.

black-cock (blāk'kōk') n. The male of the black grouse.

black cod (blāk kōd) n. See sablefish.

black cohosh (blāk kō'hōsh') n. An eastern North American perennial herb (Cimicifuga racemosa) having large, pinnately compound leaves and racemes of small white flowers. Also called black snakeroot black comedy (blāk kōm'i-dē) n. Comedy that uses black humor.

Black Country (blāk kŭn'trē) A highly industrialized region of west-central England centered on Birmingham. It was named for the grime accumulated from factory smoke and other industrial pollutants.

black cow (blāk kou) n. Chicago. A float made with root beer and vanilla ice cream. See Regional note at milk shake. [BLACK + COW¹ (from the ice cream used in making it).]

black crappie (blāk krōp'ē) n. An edible North American sunfish (Pomoxis nigromaculatus) having dark mottled coloring. Also called calico bass, strawberry bass.

black cumin (blāk kŭm'in) n. An annual Eurasian herb (Nigella sativa) having bluish-white flowers and pungent black seeds used as a seasoning in Asian cuisines.

black-damp (blāk'dämp') n. A noncombustible gas that consists of a mixture of carbon dioxide and nitrogen, found in mines after fires or explosions and incapable of supporting life. Also called chokedamp [BLACK + DAMP, gas.]

Black Death (blāk dēth) n. A form of bubonic plague, caused by the bacillus Yersinia (or Pasturella) pestis, that was pandemic throughout Europe and much of Asia in the 14th century. [From the dark splotches it causes on its victims.]

black diamond (blāk dī'ə-mənd) n. 1. See carbonado². 2. Also black diamonds. Coal.

black diet (blāk dī'it) n. Deprivation of all food and water as a form of prison punishment and torture, usually resulting in death of the prisoners.

black duck (blāk dŭk) n. A common duck (Anas rubripes) of the northeast United States and Canada, characterized by black or dusky brown plumage and often found in saltwater marshes.

black economy (blāk ĭ-kōn'ə-mē) n. A sizable hidden segment of a country's economy that operates on numerous unreported private cash transactions.

black-en (blāk'ən) v. black-ened, black-en-ing, black-ens. — v. tr. 1. To make black. 2. To sully or defame: a scandal that blackened the mayor's name.

3. To coat (fish or meat, for example) with pepper and other spices and then sear in a hot skillet, thereby producing meat that is black on the outside but tender on the inside. — v. intr. To become dark or black: The day blackened into night.

—black'en-er n.

Black English (blāk ĭng'glīsh) n. The range of varieties of English spoken by American Black people.

USAGE NOTE: In linguistic usage Black English refers to the entire range of varieties of English spoken by American Black people of any educational or social level. When reference is made to the nonstandard varieties of English used by certain Black speakers, the preferred terms are Vernacular Black English or Black English Vernacular.

Black·ett (blāk'īt), Baron Patrick Maynard Stuart. 1897-1974. British physicist. He won a 1948 Nobel Prize for contributions to the study of cosmic radiation.

black eye (blāk ī) n. 1. A bruised discoloration of the flesh surrounding the eye. 2. A dishonored reputation; a bad name.

black-eyed pea (blāk'īd' pē) n. See cowpea.

black-eyed Su·san (blāk'īd' sōō'zən) n. 1. Any of several North American herbs of the genus Rudbeckia in the composite family, especially R. hirta, having hairy stems and leaves and showy flower heads with orange-yellow rays and dark purple or brown centers. 2. A tropical African twining herb (Thunbergia alata) cultivated for its showy, usually yellow to orange tubular flowers with dark purple centers.

black·face (blāk'fās') n. 1. Makeup for a conventionalized comic travesty of Black people, especially in a minstrel show. 2. An actor wearing such makeup in a minstrel show.

black·fish (blāk'fish') n. pl. blackfish or black·fish·es. 1. Any of various dark-colored fishes, such as: a. A small, edible, freshwater fish (Dallia pectoralis) that inhabits streams and ponds of Alaska and Siberia and is noted for its ability to withstand freezing. b. See tautog. 2. See pilot whale.

black flag (blāk fläg) n. A Jolly Roger.

black-flag (blāk'fläg') v. tr. black--flagged, black--flag-ging, black·flag·s. Sports. To signal (the driver of a racing car) to proceed immediately to the pits.

black fly (blāk flī) n. Any of various small, dark-colored biting flies of the family Simuliidae, the larvae of which attach to rocks in running streams. Also called buffalo gnat

Black·foot (blāk'foōt') n. pl. Blackfoot or Black·feet (-fēt'). 1. a. A Native American confederacy located on the northern Great Plains, composed of the Blackfoot, Blood, and Piegan tribes. Traditional Blackfoot life was based on nomadic buffalo hunting. b. A member of this confederacy. 2. a. The northernmost tribe of the Blackfoot confederacy, inhabiting central Alberta. b. A member of this tribe. 3. The Algonquian language of the Blackfoot, Blood, and Piegan. 4. See Sihasapa. —Black'foot' adj.

- black-foot-ed albatross (blāk'fōōt'īd əl'bə-trōs') n. An albatross (Diomedea nigripes) of the Pacific coastal islands that is blackish and dusky with black feet and legs and a whitish face.
- black-footed ferret (blāk'fōōt'īd fēr'īt) n. A North American weasel (Mustela nigripes) that is yellowish above, mixed with brown on the head and neck, and has a blackish mask and feet. It is related to the European polecat.
- Blackfoot Sioux (blāk'fōōt' sōō) n. pl. Blackfoot Sioux. See Sihasapa.
- Black Forest (blāk fôr'īst) A mountainous region of southwest Germany between the Rhine and Neckar rivers. It is a year-round resort area that is famous for its clock and toy industries.
- black frost (blāk frōst) n. A dry freeze without the protective formation of hoarfrost that results in the internal freezing and death of vegetation.
- black gold (blāk gōld) n. Informal. Petroleum.
- black grouse (blāk grōus) n. A Eurasian game bird (Lyrurus tetrix) with black plumage and white wing markings in the male and brownish, barred plumage in the female.
- black-guard (bläg'ərd, -ərd') n. 1. A thoroughly unprincipled person; a scoundrel. 2. A foul-mouthed person. — v. tr. black-guard-ed, black-guard-ing, black-guards. To abuse verbally; revile. — black-guard-ism n. — black-guard-ly adj. & adv.
- black gum (blāk gŭm) n. See sour gum.
- Black Hand (blāk händ) n. A secret society organized for acts of terrorism and blackmail that was active in the United States in the early 20th century.
- black haw (blāk hô) n. Either of two deciduous plants (Viburnum lentago or V. prunifolium), native to the eastern United States and having clusters of white flowers and blue-black berrylike fruits.
- Black Hawk (blāk hōk), Originally Makataimeshekiakiak. 1767-1838. Sauk leader. Resenting an 1804 treaty that ceded all Sauk and Fox lands east of the Mississippi River to the United States, he led 1,000 Fox and Sauk warriors in the Black Hawk War (1832).
- black-head (blāk'hĕd') n. 1. Medicine. A plug of keratin and sebum within a hair follicle that is blackened at the surface. Also called comedo 2. An infectious disease of turkeys and some wildfowl that is caused by a protozoan (Histomonas meleagridis) and results in lesions of the intestine and liver. Also called enterohepatitis, histomoniasis, infectious enterohepatitis. 3. Any of various birds, such as the scaup, with dark head markings.
- black heroin (blāk hĕr'ō-īn) n. A dark, sticky, extremely potent and highly addictive form of heroin, the purity of which is often as high as 60 to 70 percent.
- Black Hills (blāk hīlz) A group of rugged mountains of southwest South Dakota and northeast Wyoming rising to 2,208.8 m (7,242 ft) at Harney Peak. The Black Hills are a major recreational area.

black hole (blāk hōl) n. 1. An extremely small region of space-time with a gravitational field so intense that nothing can escape, not even light. 2. A great void; an abyss: The government created a bureaucratic black hole that swallows up individual initiative.

black horehound (blāk hōr'hound') n. A Eurasian perennial herb (Ballota nigra) in the mint family, having hairy, strong-smelling foliage and clusters of pinkish-purple flowers.

black humor (blāk hyōō'mər) n. 1. The juxtaposition, as in writing or drama, of morbid or absurd elements with comical or farcical ones, especially so as to produce a shocking or disturbing effect. 2. The literary genre employing this technique. —black humorist n.

black ice (blāk īs) n. A thin, nearly invisible coating of ice, as on the surface of a road or a sidewalk, that is usually caused by freezing mist and is extremely hazardous.

black·ing (blāk'īng) n. 1. See lampblack. 2. A preparation, such as a shoe or stove polish, that is used to impart a black color.

black·jack (blāk'jāk') n. 1. A leather-covered bludgeon with a short, flexible shaft or strap, used as a hand weapon. 2. The blackjack oak. 3. Games. A card game in which the object is to accumulate cards with a higher count than that of the dealer but not exceeding 21. In this sense, also called twenty-one, vingt-et-un. 4. Sphalerite. — v. tr. black·jacked, black·jack·ing, black·jacks. 1. To hit or beat with a leather-covered bludgeon. 2. To coerce by threats. [BLACK + JACK.]

blackjack oak (blāk'jāk' ōk) n. A deciduous oak tree (Quercus marilandica), native mostly to the southeastern United States and having blackish bark and leaves with three shallow lobes at the widened apex.

black knot (blāk nōt) n. A disease of the plum, the cherry, and related plants caused by the fungus Apiosporina morbosa and resulting in black, knotlike swellings on the branches.

black lead (blāk lēd) n. See graphite.

black·leg (blāk'lēg') n. 1. An infectious, usually fatal bacterial disease of cattle and sometimes of sheep, goats, and swine, caused by Clostridium chauvoe and characterized by gas-containing swellings in the musculature. 2. A bacterial or fungal disease of certain plants, such as the cabbage and potato, that causes the stems to turn black at the soil line. 3. One who cheats at cards; a cardsharp. 4. Chiefly British. A worker who is opposed to trade unions; a scab.

black letter (blāk lēt'ər) n. Abbr. bklr. Printing. A heavy typeface with very broad counters and thick, ornamental serifs. Also called gothic, Old English.

black light (blāk līt) n. Invisible ultraviolet or infrared radiation. Black light causes fluorescent materials to emit visible light and is used to take pictures in the dark.

black-light trap (blāk'lit' trāp) n. An insect trap that attracts a wide variety of insects by the use of a form of black light.

black-list (blāk'list') n. A list of persons or organizations that have incurred disapproval or suspicion or are to be boycotted or otherwise penalized. — v. tr.

black-list-ed, black-list-ing, black-lists. To place on or as if on a blacklist. See Synonyms at blackball. —black'list'er n.

black locust (blāk lō'kəst) n. A deciduous tree (Robinia pseudoacacia) in the pea family, native to the eastern and central United States and having alternate, pinnately compound leaves, spiny stipules, and hanging clusters of fragrant, creamy-white flowers.

black lung (blāk lüŋ) n. Pneumoconiosis caused by the long-term inhalation of coal dust. Also called anthracosis black magic (blāk māj'ik) n. Magic practiced for evil purposes or in league with supposed evil spirits; witchcraft.

black-mail (blāk'māl') n. 1. a. Extortion of money or something else of value from a person by the threat of exposing a criminal act or discreditable information. b. Something of value extorted in this manner. 2. Tribute formerly paid to freebooters along the Scottish border for protection from pillage. [BLACK + MAIL³.] —black'mail' v. —black'mail'er n.

Black Ma-ri-a (blāk mə-rī'ə) n. A patrol wagon. [BLACK + the name Maria.]

black market (blāk mär'kit) n. 1. The illegal business of buying or selling goods or currency in violation of restrictions such as price controls or rationing.

2. A place where these illegal operations are carried on. —black'-mar'ket (blāk'mär'kit) adj. —black'-mar'ket-er, black'-mar'ket-er' (-mär'kī-tēr')

n. —black'-mar'ket-er'ing n.

black-mar-ket (blāk'mär'kit) v. tr. black-mar-ket-ed, black-mar-ket-ing, black-mar-kets. To trade (something) in the black market.

black mass (blāk mäs) n. 1. A travesty of the Roman Catholic Mass, ascribed to reputed worshipers of Satanism. 2. Black Mass. Informal. A Requiem Mass.

black measles (blāk mē'zəlz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A severe form of measles characterized by dark, hemorrhagic skin eruptions. Also called hemorrhagic measles black medic or black medick (blāk mēd'ik) n. A cloverlike Eurasian plant (Medicago lupulina) in the pea family, having dense clusters of small yellow flowers and black pods. It is cultivated for forage. Also called nonesuch [BLACK + MEDIC¹.]

black money (blāk mün'ē) n. Income, as from illegal activities, that is not reported to the government for tax purposes.

Black-more (blāk'môr', -mōr'), Richard Doddridge. 1825-1900. British writer of romance and adventure novels, most notably Lorna Doone (1869).

Black Mountains (blāk moun'tənz) A range of the Blue Ridge in western North Carolina rising to 2,038.6 km (6,684 ft) at Mount Mitchell.

Black·mun (blāk'mən), Harry Andrew. 1908-1994. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1970-1994).

Black Muslim (blāk müz'ləm) n. A member of a chiefly Black American group, the Nation of Islam, that professes Islamic religious beliefs.

black mustard (blāk müs'tərd) n. A weedy, annual Eurasian plant (Brassica nigra) in the mustard family, having racemes of yellow flowers and pungent seeds formerly used to prepare the condiment mustard.

Black Nationalist (blāk nāsh'ə-nə-līst) n. A member of a group of militant Black people who urge separatism from white people and the establishment of self-governing Black communities. —Black Nationalism n.

black nightshade (blāk nīt'shād') n. A poisonous, annual Eurasian plant (Solanum nigrum), widespread as a weed and having clusters of white, star-shaped flowers and usually blackish berries.

black oak (blāk ōk) n. A deciduous North American tree (Quercus velutina) having divided leaves with pointed lobes, a blackish outer bark, a yellowish inner bark, and durable wood.

black·out (blāk'out') n. 1. The concealment or extinguishment of lights that might be visible to enemy aircraft during an air raid. 2. Lack of illumination caused by an electrical power failure. 3. a. The sudden extinguishment of all stage lights in a theater to indicate the passage of time or to mark the end of an act or a scene. b. A short, comic vaudeville skit that ends with lights off. 4. A temporary loss of memory or consciousness. 5. a. A suppression, as of news, by censorship. b. Restriction or prohibition of telecasting a sports event in order to ensure ticket sales.

SYNONYMS: blackout, faint, swoon, syncope. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a temporary loss of consciousness”: suffers blackouts at high altitudes; fell in a dead faint at the sight of the cadaver; sank to the ground in a swoon; was taken to the emergency room in a state of syncope.

Black Panther (blāk pän'thər) n. A member of an organization of militant Black Americans.

black pepper (blāk pēp'ər) n. The small, dark, unripe fruit of the pepper plant (Piper nigrum), used whole or ground as a pungent spice.

black·poll (blāk'pōl') n. A North American warbler (Dendroica striata), the male of which has a black cap. [BLACK + POLL, head.]

Black·pool (blāk'pōl') A borough of northwest England on the Irish Sea north of Liverpool. It is a popular seaside resort. Population, 148,700.

black poplar (bläk pöp'lär) n. A Eurasian shade tree (Populus nigra) with spreading branches.

Black Power (bläk pou'ər) n. A movement among Black Americans emphasizing racial pride and social equality through the creation of Black political and cultural institutions: “Black Power... calls for black people to consolidate behind their own, so that they can bargain from a position of strength” (Stokely Carmichael and Charles Hamilton).

black pudding (bläk pööd'ŋ) n. A French black sausage made of pork and seasoned pig's blood. Also called boudin noir black racer (bläk rä'sər) n. A North American blacksnake (Coluber constrictor) commonly found in the eastern United States.

black raspberry (bläk räz'bër'ē) n. 1. A prickly eastern North American shrub (Rubus occidentalis) having an aggregate, edible, juicy, purple-black fruit. Also called blackcap 2. The fruit of this plant.

black rat snake (bläk rät snäk) n. A North American blacksnake (Elaphe obsoleta) that resembles the black racer.

Black River (bläk rīv'ər) 1. or Or in China Ba-bian Jiang (bä'byän' jyäng') and in Vietnam Song Da (sông' dä'). A river of southeast Asia rising in southern China and flowing about 805 km (500 mi) generally southeast to the Red River in northern Vietnam. 2. A river rising in southeast Missouri and flowing about 483 km (300 mi) to the White River in northeast Arkansas. 3. A river of northern New York rising in the Adirondack Mountains and flowing about 193 km (120 mi) to Black River Bay, an inlet of Lake Ontario. 4. A river rising in central Wisconsin and flowing about 257 km (160 mi) generally southwest to the Mississippi River at La Crosse.

Black Rod (bläk röd) n. The chief usher of the British House of Lords. [After the rod carried as symbol of the office.]

black rot (bläk röt) n. Any of several fungal or bacterial plant diseases resulting in dark brown to black discoloration and decay of affected plant parts.

black salsify (bläk säl'sə-fē) n. A European plant (Scorzonera hispanica) in the composite family, having heads of yellow ray flowers and a large, edible, fleshy root.

black sa-po-te (bläk sə-pō'tē, -tā) n. 1. A tropical American tree (Diospyros digyna) closely related to the persimmon, having edible, olive-green fruit that blackens when ripe and has a soft, chocolate-brown pulp. 2. The fruit of this plant. [BLACK + American Spanish zapote, persimmonlike fruit (from Nahuatl tzapotl).]

Blacks-burg (bläks'bûrg') A town of southwest Virginia in the Allegheny Mountains west of Roanoke. Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University (established 1872) is located here. Population, 34,590.

Black Sea (blāk sē) An inland sea between Europe and Asia. It is connected with the Aegean Sea by the Bosphorus, the Sea of Marmara, and the Dardanelles.

black sheep (blāk shēp) n. A member of a family or other group who is considered undesirable or disreputable.

Black Shirt (blāk shûrt) n. A member of a fascist party organization having a black shirt as part of its uniform, especially an Italian fascist.

black skimmer (blāk skīm'ər) n. A skimmer (Rynchops niger) of North and South America that is black above and white below and has a scissorlike bill, bright red legs and feet, and dark brown eyes with vertical pupils.

black-smith (blāk'smith') n. 1. One that forges and shapes iron with an anvil and hammer. 2. One that makes, repairs, and fits horseshoes. [From the color of iron.] —black'smith'ing n.

black-snake (blāk'snāk') n. 1. Any of various dark-colored, chiefly nonvenomous snakes, such as the black racer or the black rat snake of North America.

2. A long, tapering, braided rawhide or leather whip with a snapper on the end.

black snakeroot (blāk snāk'rōōt') n. See black cohosh.

black spot (blāk spōt) n. Any of various fungal or bacterial diseases of plants, resulting in small black spots on the leaves or on other parts.

black spruce (blāk sprōōs) n. A northern North American spruce (Picea mariana) having blue-green needles and small egg-shaped cones.

Black-stone (blāk'stōn', -stən), Sir William. 1723-1780. British jurist and educator who wrote Commentaries on the Laws of England (1765-1769), the most comprehensive single treatment of the body of English law.

black-strap (blāk'strāp') n. A dark, very thick molasses, especially a residual product of sugar refining that is used in the manufacture of industrial alcohol and as an ingredient in cattle feed. [From its color and texture.]

black studies also Black Studies (blāk stüd'ēz) pl.n. Studies that deal with Afro-American culture.

black-tailed deer (blāk'tāld' dîr) also black-tail deer (-tāl') n. See mule deer.

black tar (blāk tār) n. Slang. Black heroin.

black tea (blāk tē) n. A dark tea prepared from fresh tea leaves that have been fully fermented before being dried.

black-thorn (blāk'thōrn') n. A thorny, deciduous Eurasian shrub (Prunus spinosa), having white flowers and small, bluish-black, plumlike fruits used chiefly for flavoring alcoholic beverages such as sloe gin. Also called sloe black tie (blāk tī) n. 1. A black bow tie worn with a dinner jacket.

2. Semiformal evening wear typically for men, usually requiring a dinner jacket.

—black'-tie' (blāk'tī') adj.

black-top (blāk'töp') n. A bituminous material, such as asphalt, used to pave roads. — v. tr. black-topped, black-top-ping, black-tops. To pave with a bituminous material.

Black-town (blāk'toun') A city of southeast Australia, a suburb of Sydney. Population, 192,200.

Black Vol-ta (blāk vōl'tə, vōl'-, vōl'-) A river of western Africa rising in western Burkina Faso and flowing about 1,352 km (840 mi) to the White Volta in Ghana.

black vomit (blāk vöm'it) n. 1. Dark vomit consisting of digested blood and gastric contents. 2. Severe yellow fever with symptomatic regurgitation of dark vomited matter.

black vulture (blāk vül'chər) n. A carrion-eating bird (Coragyps atratus) of central North America and South America, having black plumage and a bald, black head.

black walnut (blāk wōl'nüt') n. 1. An eastern North American tree (Juglans nigra), having dark brown wood and a deeply furrowed nut enclosed in a globose, aromatic husk. 2. The wood of this tree, used especially for veneer, cabinets, furniture, and gunstocks. 3. The nut of this tree, having an edible kernel used especially in confections.

Black War-ri-or River (blāk wōr'ē-ər rīv'ər, wōr'-) A river rising in north-central Alabama and flowing about 286 km (178 mi) generally southwest to the Tombigbee River.

black-wash (blāk'wōsh', -wōsh') v. tr. black-washed, black-wash-ing, black-wash-es. To bring from concealment; disclose. [BLACK + (WHITE)WASH.]

black-wa-ter fever (blāk'wō'tər fē'vər, -wōt'ər) n. A serious, often fatal complication of chronic malaria, characterized by the passage of bloody, dark red or black urine.

Black-well (blāk'wēl', -wəl), Antoinette Louisa Brown. 1825-1921.

American social reformer. The first formally appointed (1852) woman pastor in America, she advocated abolition, temperance, and women's rights.

Black-well (blāk'wēl', -wəl), Elizabeth. 1821-1910. British-born American physician who was the first woman to be awarded a medical doctorate in modern times (1849). She founded (1853) an infirmary for women and children in New York City that her sister Emily Blackwell (1826-1910), also a physician, directed (1869-1910) and built into an accredited medical school.

black widow (blāk wīd'ō) n. A poisonous New World spider (Latrodectus mactans), the female of which produces extremely toxic venom and has a black, shiny body with red markings. [From the fact that the female eats its mate.]

Black-wood (blāk'wōd'), William. 1776-1834. Scottish publisher and editor (1817-1834) of Blackwood's Magazine, a Tory literary review that published Wordsworth and Shelley among others.

blad·der (blăd'ər) n. 1. a. Anatomy. Any of various distensible membranous sacs, such as the urinary bladder or the swim bladder, that serve as receptacles for fluid or gas. b. An item resembling one of the membranous sacs in animals: the bladder of a football. 2. Botany. Any of various hollow or inflated saclike organs or structures, such as the floats of certain seaweeds or the specialized traps of bladderworts. 3. Pathology. A blister, pustule, or cyst filled with fluid or air; a vesicle. [Middle English bladdre, from Old English blædre. See bhlē- in Appendix.]

bladder campion (blăd'ər kămp'pē-ən) n. A weedy Eurasian perennial herb (Silene vulgaris) having white flowers with deeply notched petals and a balloon-like, inflated calyx.

bladder fern (blăd'ər fûrn) n. Any of various ferns of the widespread genus Cystopteris, having pinnately compound fronds and often growing in rocky areas. [After its bladder-like indusium.]

blad·der·nose (blăd'ər-nōz') n. See hooded seal.

blad·der·nut (blăd'ər-nüt') n. 1. Any of various deciduous shrubs or small trees of the genus Staphylea, native to north temperate regions and having opposite compound leaves and terminal panicles of white flowers and bladderlike fruits. 2. The fruit of such a plant.

bladder worm (blăd'ər wûrm) n. The bladderlike, encysted larva of the tapeworm that is characteristic of the cysticercus stage.

blad·der·wort (blăd'ər-wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of various mostly aquatic carnivorous plants of the genus Utricularia, having small, specialized, urn-shaped bladders that trap minute insects and crustaceans.

bladder wrack (blăd'ər rāk) n. Any of certain rockweeds, especially the widely distributed Fucus vesiculosus, having forked, brownish-green branches with gas-filled bladders.

blad·der·y (blăd'ə-rē) adj. 1. Resembling or like a bladder. 2. Possessing a bladder or bladders.

blade (blād) n. 1. The flat-edged cutting part of a sharpened weapon or tool. 2. a. A sword. b. A swordsman. 3. A dashing youth. 4. A flat, thin part or section: the blade of an oar; the blade of a food processor. 5. The metal runner of an ice skate. 6. A wide flat bone or bony part. 7. The flat upper surface of the tongue just behind the tip. 8. Botany. The expanded part of a leaf or petal. The term is often loosely used to include the entire leaf of grasses and similar plants. [Middle English, from Old English blæd. See bhel-³ in Appendix.] —blad'ed adj.

blade apple (blād äp'əl) n. See Barbados gooseberry. [From the shape of its leaves.]

blaff (bläf) n. Caribbean. A West Indian stew consisting of fish or occasionally pork, seasonings such as lime and garlic, and often fruits and vegetables. [Probably from Dominican English braff, from BROTH.]

blag-ging (bläg'ing) n. Caribbean. Informal talk, usually among men, occurring in a public place: “the street corner, the rum shop, the crossroads, wherever hanging out, or... blagging, takes place” (Roger D. Abrahams). [From French blaguer, to talk through one’s hat, from blague, bladder, pouch, of Germanic origin, ultimately from Latin bulga, leather bag. See BULGE.]

Bla-go-vesh-chensk (blä'gə-věsh'chěnsk, blə-gə-vyěsh'chísk) A city of eastern Russia at the confluence of the Amur and Zeya rivers. It is a port and railroad hub. Population, 195,000.

blah (blä) Informal. n. 1. Worthless nonsense; drivel. 2. blahs. A general feeling of discomfort, dissatisfaction, or depression: “Monday morning Oscar woke up with the blahs” (New Yorker). — adj. 1. Dull and uninteresting. 2. Low in spirit or health; down: sat around all day feeling blah. [Imitative of meaningless talk.] — blah adv.

blain (blān) n. A skin swelling or sore; a blister; a blotch. [Middle English, from Old English blegen.]

Blaine (blān) A city of eastern Minnesota, an industrial suburb of St. Paul. Population, 28,558.

Blaine (blān), James Gillespie. Known as “the Plumed Knight.” 1830-1893. American politician. A U.S. representative (1863-1876) and senator (1876-1881) from Maine, he was U.S. secretary of state (1881 and 1889-1892) and lost the 1884 presidential election to Grover Cleveland.

Blair (blâr), John. 1732-1800. American jurist who was a member of the Constitutional Convention (1787) and served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1789-1796).

Blair (blâr), Montgomery. 1813-1883. American lawyer and public official who represented Dred Scott before the U.S. Supreme Court (1857) and served as postmaster general (1861-1864).

Blake (blāk), James Herbert. Known as “Eubie.” 1883-1983. American pianist and composer noted for his popular songs and Broadway productions, such as Shuffle Along (1921), which included “I’m Just Wild about Harry.”

Blake (blāk), Robert. 1599-1657. English admiral who was a Parliamentarian during the English Civil War and pursued the Royalist fleet to the Mediterranean Sea, where he defeated it (1650).

Blake (blāk), William. 1757-1827. British poet and artist whose paintings and poetic works, such as Songs of Innocence (1789) and The Marriage of Heaven and Hell (c. 1790), have a mystical, visionary quality.

blam-a-ble also blame-a-ble (blä'mə-bəl) adj. Deserving blame; culpable. See Synonyms at blameworthy. — blam'a-ble-ness n. — blam'a-bly adv.

blame (blām) v. tr. blamed, blam-ing, blames. 1. To hold responsible. 2. To find fault with; censure. 3. To place responsibility for (something): blamed the crisis on poor planning. — n. 1. The state of being responsible for a fault or an error; culpability. 2. Censure; condemnation. —idiom. to blame.

1. Deserving censure; at fault. 2. Being the cause or source of something: A freak storm was to blame for the power outage. [Middle English blamen, from Old French blasmer, blamer, from Vulgar Latin blastēmāre*, alteration of Late Latin blasphēmāre, to reproach. See BLASPHEME.] —blam'er n.

SYNONYMS: blame, fault, guilt. These nouns are compared in the sense of responsibility for an offense. Blame stresses censure or punishment for a lapse or misdeed for which one is held accountable: The police laid the blame for the accident squarely on the driver's shoulders. Fault is culpability for causing or failing to prevent the occurrence of something detrimental: The student failed the examination, but not through any fault of his teacher. Guilt applies to serious, willful breaches of conduct and stresses moral culpability: The case was dismissed because the prosecution did not have sufficient evidence of the defendant's guilt. See also Synonyms at criticize blame-a-ble (blā'mə-bəl) adj. Variant of blamable.

blamed (blāmd) adv. & adj. Informal. Used as an intensive: drove so blamed slow that we were late; called me a blamed fool.

blame-ful (blām'fəl) adj. Deserving of blame; blameworthy. See Synonyms at blameworthy. —blame'ful-ly adv. —blame'ful-ness n.

blame-less (blām'līs) adj. Free of blame or guilt; innocent. —blame'less-ly adv. —blame'less-ness n.

blame-wor-thy (blām'wûr'thē) adj. blame-wor-thi-er, blame-wor-thi-est. Deserving blame; reprehensible. —blame'wor'thi-ness n.

SYNONYMS: blameworthy, blamable, blameful, censurable, culpable, guilty, reprehensible. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “meriting reproof or punishment”: blameworthy if not criminal behavior; blamable but understandable resentment; blameful capriciousness; censurable misconduct; culpable negligence; secret guilty deeds; reprehensible arrogance.

ANTONYM: blameless

Blanc (blān), Louis. 1811-1882. French political theorist whose writings, most notably Organization of Work (1839), are among the most influential early socialist treatises.

Blanc (blängk, blän), Mont. The highest peak of the Alps, rising to 4,810.2 m (15,771 ft) in the Savoy Alps of southeast France on the Italian border.

Blan-ca Peak (bläng'kə pēk) A mountain, 4,375.2 m (14,345 ft) high, in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of southern Colorado. It is the highest elevation in the range.

blanc fixe (blängk' fiks', blän fēks') n. Powdered barium sulfate used as a base for watercolor pigments and as a filler in paper. [French : blanc, white + fixe, fixed.]

blanch (blänch) also blench (blēnch) v. blanched also blenched, blanch-ing also blench-ing, blanch-es also blench-es. — v. tr. 1. To take the color from; bleach. 2. To whiten (a growing plant or plant part) by covering to cut off direct light. 3. To whiten (a metal) by soaking in acid or by coating with tin. 4. a. To scald (almonds, for example) in order to loosen the skin. b. To scald (food) briefly, as before freezing or as a preliminary stage in preparing a dish. 5. To cause to turn white or become pale. — v. intr. To turn white or become pale: Their faces blanched in terror. [Middle English blaunchen, to make white, from Old French blanchir, from blanche, feminine of blanc, white, of Germanic origin. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] — blanch'er n.

Blan-chard (blän-shär'), Jean Pierre François. 1753-1809. French aeronaut who was the first to cross the English Channel by balloon (1785). He invented and demonstrated a parachute the same year.

blanc-mange (blə-mänj', -mänzh') n. A flavored and sweetened milk pudding thickened with cornstarch. [Middle English blankmanger, a dish made with almond milk, from Old French blanc mangier : blanc, white (of Germanic origin); see bhel-¹ in Appendix + mangier, to eat, food (from Latin manducāre); see MAN-GER.]

bland (bländ) adj. bland-er, bland-est. 1. Characterized by a moderate, unperturbed, or tranquil quality, especially: a. Pleasant in manner; smooth: a bland smile. b. Not irritating or stimulating; soothing: a bland diet. c. Exhibiting no personal worry, embarrassment, or concern: told a series of bland lies. 2. Dull and insipid: a bland little drama. [Latin blandus, caressing, flattering. See mel-¹ in Appendix.] — bland'ly adv. — bland'ness n.

Bland (bländ), James Alan. 1854-1911. American composer of popular songs, including "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" (1878).

bland-i-fy (blän'də-fi') v. tr. bland-i-fied, bland-i-fy-ing, bland-i-fies. Informal. To make bland. — blan'di-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

Blan-ding (blän'dīng), Sarah Gibson. 1898-1985. American educator and president of Vassar College (1946-1964).

blan-dish (blän'dish) v. tr. blan-dished, blan-dish-ing, blan-dish-es. To coax by flattery or wheedling; cajole. [Middle English blandishen, from Old blank (blängk) adj. blank-er, blank-est. 1. a. Devoid of writing, images, or marks: a blank page; a blank screen. b. Containing no information; unrecorded or erased: a blank tape; a blank diskette. 2. Not completed or filled in: a blank questionnaire. 3. Not having received final processing; unfinished: a blank key. 4. a. Lacking expression; expressionless: “Although his gestures were elaborate, his face was blank” (Nathanael West). See Synonyms at empty. b. Appearing or seeming to appear dazed or confused: greeted me with a blank stare. 5. Devoid of thought or impression: a blank mind. 6. Devoid of activity, interest, or distinctive character; empty: tried to fill the blank hours of the day. 7. Absolute; complete: a blank refusal. — n. 1. An empty space or place; a void: During the exam my mind was a blank. 2. a. An empty space on a document to be filled in. b. A document with one or more such spaces. 3. A manufactured article of a standard shape or form that is ready for final processing, as by stamping or cutting: a key blank. 4. A blank cartridge. 5. Something worthless, such as a losing lottery ticket. 6. A mark, usually a dash (—), indicating the omission of a word or of a letter or letters. 7. The white circle in the center of a target; a bull’s eye. — v. blanked, blank-ing, blanks. — v. tr. 1. To remove, as from view; obliterate: “At times the strong glare of the sun blanked it from sight” (Richard Wright). 2. To block access to: blank off a subway tunnel. 3. Sports. To prevent (an opponent) from scoring. 4. To punch or stamp from flat stock, especially with a die. — v. intr. 1. To become abstracted: My mind blanked out for a few seconds. 2. To fade away: The music gradually blanked out. [Middle English, white, having spaces to be filled in, from Old French blanc, white, of Germanic origin. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —blank'ly adv. —blank'ness n.

French blandir, blandiss-, from Latin blandīrī, from blandus, flattering. See mel-¹ in Appendix.] —blan'dish-er n. —blan'dish-ment n.

blank cartridge (blängk kär'trij) n. A gun cartridge with a charge of powder but no bullet.

blank check (blängk chĕk) n. 1. A signed check with no amount to be paid filled in. 2. Total freedom of action; carte blanche.

blank endorsement (blängk ĕn-dōrs'mənt) n. An endorsement on a check or negotiable note that names no payee, making it payable to the bearer. Also called endorsement in blank blan-ket (bläng'kĭt) n. 1. A large piece of woven material used as a covering for warmth, especially on a bed. 2. A layer that covers or encloses: a thick blanket of snow. — adj. 1. Applying to or covering all conditions or instances: a blanket insurance policy. 2. Applying to or covering all members of a class: blanket sanctions against human-rights violators. — v. tr. blan-ket-ed, blan-ket-ing, blan-kets. 1. To cover with or as if with a blanket: leaves that blanket the ground. 2. To cover so as to inhibit, suppress, or extinguish: blanketed the grease fire with sand. 3. To apply to generally and uniformly without exception: high telephone service charges that blanketed our region. [Middle English, from Old French, an unbleached soft cloth, from blanc, white, of Germanic origin. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

blanket flower (bläng'kīt flou'ər) n. See gaillardia.

blanket stitch (bläng'kīt stīch) n. A buttonhole stitch used for edging around heavy material.

blan·ket·stitch (bläng'kīt-stīch') v. tr. blan·ket--stitched, blan·ket--stitch·ing, blan·ket--stitch·es. To sew with a buttonhole stitch.

blank verse (blängk vûrs) n. Verse consisting of unrhymed lines, usually of iambic pentameter.

Blan·tyre (blän-tīr') A city of southern Malawi. It is the largest city and chief commercial center of the country. Population, 229,000.

blare (blâr) v. blared, blar·ing, bles. — v. intr. To sound loudly and stridently: a stereo blaring in the next apartment. — v. tr. 1. To cause to sound loudly and stridently: Don't blare the stereo. 2. To proclaim loudly and flamboyantly: headlines blaring the scandal. — n. 1. A loud, strident noise. 2. Flamboyance. [Middle English bleren.]

blar·ney (blär'nē) n. 1. Smooth, flattering talk. 2. Deceptive nonsense. [After the Blarney Stone in Blarney Castle, Blarney, Ireland.] —blar'ney v.

Blar·ney (blär'nē) A village of southern Ireland near Cork. Blarney Castle (dating from the 15th century) is the site of the Blarney Stone, said to impart powers of eloquence and persuasion.

Blas·co I·bá·ñez (blä'skō ē-bän'yās, -ē-vän'yēth), Vicente. 1867-1928.

Spanish writer of naturalistic novels concerning his homeland, such as The Cabin (1898), and several highly popular but less literary novels, including The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse (1916).

bla·sé (blä-zā') adj. 1. Uninterested because of frequent exposure or indulgence. 2. Unconcerned; nonchalant: had a blasé attitude about housecleaning. 3. Very sophisticated. [French, from past participle of blaser, to cloy, from French dialectal, to be chronically hung over, probably from Middle Dutch blāsen, to blow up, swell. See bhlē- in Appendix.]

blas·pHEME (bläs-fēm', bläs'fēm') v. blas·phemed, blas·phem·ing, blas·phemes. — v. tr. 1. To speak of (God or a sacred entity) in an irreverent, impious manner. 2. To revile; execrate. — v. intr. To speak blasphemy. [Middle English blasfemen, from Old French blasfemer, from Late Latin blasphēmāre, from Greek blasphēmein: blas-, of unknown meaning + phēmē, speech; see bhā-² in Appendix.] —blas·phem'er (bläs-fē'mər, bläs'fə-) n.

blas·phe·mous (bläs'fə-məs) adj. Impiously irreverent. See Synonyms at profane. [Middle English blasfemous, from Late Latin blasphēmus, from Greek blasphēmos, from blasphēmein, to blaspheme. See BLASPHEME.]

—blas'phe·mous·ly adv. —blas'phe·mous·ness n.

blas·phe·my (bläs'fə-mē) n. pl. blas·phe·mies. 1. a. A contemptuous or profane act, utterance, or writing concerning God or a sacred entity. b. The act of claiming for oneself the attributes and rights of God. 2. An irreverent or impious act, attitude, or utterance in regard to something considered inviolable or sacrosanct. [Middle English blasfemie, from Late Latin blasphēmia, from Greek, from blasphēmein, to blaspheme. See BLASPHEME.]

blast (bläst) n. 1. a. A very strong gust of wind or air. b. The effect of such a gust. 2. A forcible stream of air, gas, or steam from an opening, especially one in a blast furnace to aid combustion. 3. a. A sudden loud sound, especially one produced by a stream of forced air: a piercing blast from the steam whistle. b. The act of producing such a sound: gave a blast on his trumpet. 4. a. A violent explosion, as of dynamite or a bomb. b. The violent effect of such an explosion, consisting of a wave of increased atmospheric pressure followed immediately by a wave of decreased pressure. c. An explosive charge. 5. Botany. Any of several plant diseases of diverse causes, resulting in sudden death of buds, flowers, foliage, or young fruits. 6. A destructive or damaging influence. 7. A powerful hit, blow, or shot. 8. A violent verbal assault or outburst: The candidate leveled a blast at her opponent. 9. Slang. A highly exciting or pleasurable experience or event, such as a big party. — v. blast-ed, blast-ing, blasts. — v. tr. 1. To knock down or shatter by or as if by explosion; smash. 2. To play or sound loudly: The referees blasted their whistles. 3. a. To hit with great force: The batter blasted the ball to right field. b. To kill or destroy by hitting or shooting. 4. To have a harmful or destructive effect on. 5. To cause to shrivel, wither, or mature imperfectly by or as if by blast or blight: crops that were blasted by frost. 6. To make or open by or as if by explosion: blast a tunnel through the mountains. 7. To criticize or attack vigorously. — v. intr. 1. To use or detonate explosives. 2. To emit a loud, intense sound; blare: speakers blasting at full volume. 3. To wither or shrivel or mature imperfectly. 4. To criticize or attack with vigor. 5. To shoot. 6. Electronics. To distort sound recording or transmission by overloading a microphone or loudspeaker. — phrasal verb. blast off. To take off, as a rocket. — idiom. full blast. At full speed, volume, or capacity: turned the radio up full blast; played the stereo at full blast. [Middle English, from Old English blæst. See bhlē- in Appendix.] — blast'er n.

SYNONYMS: blast, blight, dash, nip, wreck. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to have a pernicious, destructive, or ruinous effect on something”: prospects for peace blasted; blighted hopes; dashed ambitions; plans that were nipped in the bud; a wrecked life.

blast- pref. Variant of blasto-.

-blast suff. An immature, embryonic stage in the development of cells or tissues: erythroblast. [From Greek blastos, bud.]

blast cell (blăst sĕl) n. 1. A precursor of a human blood cell. 2. An immature, undifferentiated cell. [-BLAST + CELL.]

blast-ed (blăst'ĭd) adj. 1. Used as an intensive: I hate these blasted flies.
2. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk. 3. Blighted, withered, or shriveled.

blas-te-ma (blă-stĕ'mə) n. pl. blas-te-mas or blas-te-ma-ta (-mə-tə). 1. The formative, undifferentiated material from which cells are formed. 2. A mass of embryonic cells from which an organ or a body part develops, either in normal development or in the regeneration of a lost body part. [Greek blastēma, offspring, sprout, from blastos, bud.] —blas-te'mal, blas'te-mat'ic (blăst'tə-măt'ĭk), blas-te'mic (blă-stĕ'mĭk) adj.

blast furnace (blăst fûr'nĭs) n. A furnace in which combustion is intensified by a blast of air.

-blastic suff. Having a specified number or kind of formative elements such as buds, germs, cells, or cell layers: meroblastic. [From -BLAST.]

blasto- or blast- pref. Bud; germ; budding; germination: blastocyst. [From Greek blastos, bud.]

blas-to-coel or blas-to-coele (blăst'tə-sĕl') n. The fluid-filled, central cavity of a blastula. Also called segmentation cavity —blas'to-coe'lic adj.

blas-to-cyst (blăst'tə-sĭst') n. Embryology. The modified blastula that is characteristic of placental mammals. Also called blastodermic vesicle —blas'to-cys'tic adj.

blas-to-derm (blăst'tə-dûrm') n. Embryology. 1. The layer of cells that develops on the surface of the yolk in an avian or reptilian egg and gives rise to the germinal disk from which the embryo develops. 2. The layer of cells formed by the cleavage of a fertilized mammalian egg. It later divides into the three germ layers from which the embryo develops. —blas'to-der'mic, blas'to-der-mat'ic (-dər-măt'ĭk) adj.

blastodermic vesicle (blăst'tə-dûr'mĭk vĕs'ĭ-kəl) n. See blastocyst.

blas-to-disk or blas-to-disc (blăst'tə-dĭsk') n. See germinal disk.

blast-off also blast-off (blăst'ôf', -ôf') n. The launch, especially of a rocket.

blas-to-gen-e-sis (blăst'tə-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs) n. 1. The theory that inherited characteristics are transmitted from parent to offspring by germ plasm. 2. Reproduction of an organism by budding. 3. The transformation of small lymphocytes into larger undifferentiated cells that are capable of undergoing mitosis.

—blas'to-gen-et'ic (-jə-nĕt'ĭk), blas'to-gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk) adj.

blas-to-ma (blă-stō'mə) n. pl. blas-to-mas or blas-to-ma-ta (-mə-tə). A neoplasm composed of immature and undifferentiated cells.

blas·to·mere (bläs'tə-mîr') n. Embryology. Any of the cells resulting from the cleavage of a fertilized ovum during early embryonic development.

—blas'to·mer'ic (-mîr'ik, -mër'-) adj.

blas·to·my·cete (bläs'tə-mī'sēt, -mī-sēt') n. Any of various yeastlike, budding fungi of the genus Blastomyces that cause diseases in humans and animals.

blas·to·my·cin (bläs'tə-mī'sin) n. A preparation that is derived from a culture of the fungus Blastomyces dermatitidis and is injected intracutaneously as a diagnostic test for blastomycosis.

blas·to·my·co·sis (bläs'tō-mī-kō'sis) n. A fungal infection caused by a blastomycete and characterized by multiple inflammatory lesions of the skin, mucous membranes, or internal organs.

blas·to·pore (bläs'tə-pôr', -pôr') n. Embryology. The opening of the archenteron. [BLASTO- + PORE².] —blas'to·por'ic, blas'to·por'al (-pôr'əl, -pôr'-) adj.

blas·to·sphere (bläs'tə-sfîr') n. See blastula.

blas·to·spore (bläs'tə-spôr', -spôr') n. A fungal spore produced by budding.

blas·tu·la (bläs'chə-lə) n. pl. blas·tu·las or blas·tu·lae (-lē'). Embryology. An early embryonic form produced by cleavage of a fertilized ovum and consisting of a spherical layer of cells surrounding a fluid-filled cavity. Also called blastosphere [New Latin, from Greek blastos, bud.] —blas'tu·lar adj. —blas'tu·la'tion (-lā'shən) n.

blat (blät) v. blat·ted, blat·ting, blats. — v. tr. To utter without thinking; blurt. — v. intr. 1. To cry, especially like a sheep; bleat. 2. To make a harsh or raucous noise. [Imitative.] —blat n.

bla·tant (blät'nt) adj. 1. Unpleasantly loud and noisy: “There are those who find the trombones blatant and the triangle silly, but both add effective color” (Musical Heritage Review). See Synonyms at vociferous. 2. Usage Problem. Totally or offensively conspicuous or obtrusive: a blatant lie. [From Latin blatīre, to blab (on the model of words such as RAMPANT).] —bla'tan·cy n. —bla'tant·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: It is natural that blatant and flagrant are often confused, since the words overlap in meaning. Both attribute conspicuousness and offensiveness to certain acts. But blatant emphasizes the failure to conceal the act: a blatant appeal to vanity; a blatant attempt to whitewash his country's misdeeds. Flagrant, on the other hand, tends to emphasize a serious wrongdoing in the offense itself: flagrant child abuse; a flagrant violation of human rights. Certain contexts may admit either word depending on what is meant: a violation of international law might be either blatant or flagrant. But writers who refer to the blatant torturing of animals or the flagrant liberal bias of the media have implied something other than what they presumably intended. In the first case, the writer is probably more troubled by the enormity of the mistreatment of animals than by the failure to conceal it, so that flagrant would have been the better choice. In the second case, by contrast, the writer probably wants to draw attention to a moral failing in the media's unapologetic refusal to hide its bias, rather than to the iniquity of the bias itself, an implication that would have been conveyed more successfully by blatant. Blatant should not be used to mean simply "obvious," as in the blatant danger of such an approach.

Blatch·ford (bläch/'fərd), Samuel. 1820-1893. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1882-1893).

blath·er (bläth/'ər) also bleth·er (blëth/'-) v. intr. blath·ered, blath·er·ing, blath·ers. To talk nonsensically. — n. Nonsensical talk. [Old Norse bladhra. See bhlē- in Appendix.] — blath'er·er n.

blath·er·skite (bläth/'ər-skīt') n. 1. A babbling, foolish person. 2. Blather. [BLATHER + dialectal skite, a contemptible person (from Middle English shit, from Old English); see SHIT.]

Bla·vat·sky (blə-vät/'skē, -vät'-), Helena Petrovna Hahn. 1831-1891. Russian-born theosophist who founded (1875) the Theosophical Society in New York City and wrote books of occult lore, such as Isis Unveiled (1877).

blax·ploi·ta·tion (bläk'sploi-tā'shən) n. Exploitation of Black people, especially in the American film industry, by casting them in negative, stereotypical roles and by failing to depict in the films the realities of Black life. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: blaxploitation movies; the blaxploitation genre. [Blend of BLACK, and EXPLOITATION.]

blaze¹ (blāz) n. 1. a. A brilliant burst of fire; a flame. b. A destructive fire. 2. A bright or steady light or glare: the blaze of the desert sun. 3. A brilliant, striking display: flowers that were a blaze of color. 4. A sudden outburst, as of emotion: a blaze of anger. 5. blazes. Used as an intensive: Where in blazes are my keys? — v. blazed, blaz·ing, blaz·es. — v. intr. 1. To burn with a bright flame. 2. To shine brightly. 3. To be resplendent: a garden blazing with flowers. 4. To flare up suddenly: My neighbor's temper blazed. 5. To shoot rapidly and continuously: Machine guns blazed. — v. tr. To shine or be resplendent with: eyes that blazed hatred. [Middle English blase, from Old English blāse. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] — blaz'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: blaze, flame, flare, flash, glare, incandescence, glow. These nouns denote bright light, especially when it is a visible sign of combustion. Blaze stresses intensity of burning and implies brilliance of illumination: We warmed our hands near the blaze of the campfire. Flame pertains to a jet or tongue of fire: The paper burned with a yellow and blue flame and then disintegrated. Flare applies to a dazzling but unsteady burst of light: Flares of brilliant red shot up from the smokestack. Flash denotes a sudden momentary burst: The flash of strobe lights and the insistent beat of the music made the disco a favorite gathering place for young people. Glare emphasizes intensely and often intolerably bright light: The glare of the oncoming headlights temporarily blinded me. Incandescence suggests the brilliance of something white-hot: "When heated to incandescence in the furnace of stars, each element marks the spectrum of light it emits with a characteristic set of lines" (Malcolm W. Browne). Glow stresses light in the absence of visible flame; it particularly suggests steadiness of radiation without intense brilliance: When the electric stove is turned on, the burners give off a red glow.

blaze² (blāz) n. 1. A white or light-colored spot on the face of an animal, such as a horse. 2. A mark cut or painted on a tree to indicate a trail. — v. tr.

blazed, blaz-ing, blaz-es. 1. To mark (a tree) with or as if with blazes. 2. To indicate (a trail) by marking trees with blazes. [Of Germanic origin.]

blaze³ (blāz) v. tr. blazed, blaz-ing, blaz-es. To make known publicly; proclaim: Headlines blazed the news. [Middle English blasen, from Middle Dutch blāsen, to blow up, swell. See bhlē- in Appendix.]

blaz-er (blā'zər) n. A lightweight, often striped or brightly colored sports jacket having pockets and notched lapels.

blaz-ing star (blā'zɪŋ stār) n. 1. A rhizomatous dioecious herb (Chamaelirium luteum) in the lily family, having long racemes of small flowers. Also called devil's bit 2. Any of various North American plants of the genus Liatris in the composite family, having small, discoid flower heads grouped in a dense raceme or panicle. Also called button snakeroot, gay feather. 3. A biennial plant (Mentzelia laevicaulis) of western North America, having large, star-shaped, pale-yellow flowers.

bla-zon (blā'zən) v. tr. bla-zoned, bla-zon-ing, bla-zons. 1. Heraldry. a. To describe (a coat of arms) in proper terms. b. To paint or depict (a coat of arms) with accurate detail. 2. To adorn or embellish with or as if with a coat of arms: "the stars and moons and suns blazoned on that sacred wall" (G.K. Chesterton).

3. To proclaim widely. — n. 1. Heraldry. a. A coat of arms. b. The description or representation of a coat of arms. 2. An ostentatious display. [Probably from Middle English blasoun, shield, from Old French blason.] —bla'zon-er n.

—bla'zon-ment n.

bla-zon-ry (blā'zən-rē) n. pl. bla-zon-ries. 1. Heraldry. a. The art of properly and accurately describing or representing armorial bearings. b. A coat of arms.

2. An ostentatious display.

bld. abbr. 1. Blood. 2. Printing. Boldface.

bldg. abbr. Building.

bldr. abbr. Builder.

bleach (blēch) v. bleached, bleach-ing, bleach-es. — v. tr. 1. To remove the color from, as by means of chemical agents or sunlight. 2. To make white or colorless. — v. intr. To become white or colorless. — n. 1. A chemical agent used for bleaching. 2. a. The act of bleaching. b. The degree of bleaching obtained. [Middle English blechen, from Old English blācan. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

bleach·er (blē'chər) n. 1. One that bleaches or is used in bleaching. 2. Often bleachers. An often unroofed outdoor grandstand for seating spectators.

[Sense 2, from comparing a person's exposure to the sun when sitting on them with the exposure of linens bleaching on a clothesline.]

bleach·ing powder (blē'chīng pou'dər) n. A powder containing calcium chloride and calcium hypochlorite, used in solution as a bleach. Also called chloride of lime, chlorinated lime.

bleak¹ (blēk) adj. bleak·er, bleak·est. 1. a. Gloomy and somber; dreary: "Life in the Aran Islands has always been bleak and difficult" (John Millington Synge). b. Providing no encouragement; depressing: a bleak prospect. 2. Cold and cutting; raw: bleak winds of the North Atlantic. 3. Exposed to the elements; unsheltered and barren: the bleak, treeless regions of the high Andes. [Middle English bleik, pale, from Old Norse bleikr, white. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]
—bleak'ly adv. —bleak'ness n.

bleak² (blēk) n. pl. bleak or bleaks. A small European freshwater fish of the genus Alburnus that is related to the carp and has silvery scales used in the manufacture of artificial pearls. [Middle English bleke, probably alteration (influenced by bleke, pale); see BLEAK¹, of blay*, from Old English blāge.]

blear (blīr) v. tr. bleared, blear·ing, blears. 1. To blur or redden (the eyes). 2. To blur; dim. — adj. Bleary. [Middle English bleren.]

blear-eyed (blīr'id') adj. Variant of bleary-eyed.

blear·y (blīr'ē) adj. blear·i·er, blear·i·est. 1. Blurred or dimmed by or as if by tears: bleary eyes. 2. Vaguely outlined; indistinct. 3. Exhausted; worn-out.
—blear'i·ly adv. —blear'i·ness n.

blear·y·eyed (blīr'ē-īd') also blear-eyed (blīr'id') adj. 1. With eyes blurred or reddened, as from exhaustion or lack of sleep. 2. Dull of mind or perception.

bleat (blēt) n. 1. a. The characteristic cry of a goat or sheep. b. A sound similar to this cry. 2. A whining, feeble complaint. — v. bleat·ed, bleat·ing, bleats. — v. intr. 1. To utter the characteristic cry of a goat or sheep. 2. To utter a sound similar to this cry, especially a whine. — v. tr. To utter in a whining way. [Middle English blet, from bleten, to bleat, from Old English blātan.]
—bleat'er n.

bleb (blēb) n. 1. A small blister or pustule. 2. An air bubble. [Probably alteration of BLOB.] —bleb'by adj.

bleed (blēd) v. bled (blēd), bleed·ing, bleeds. — v. intr. 1. To emit or lose blood. 2. To be wounded, especially in battle. 3. To feel sympathetic grief or anguish: My heart bleeds for the victims of the air crash. 4. To exude a fluid such as sap. 5. To pay out money, especially an exorbitant amount. 6. a. To run together or be diffused, as dyes in wet cloth. b. To undergo or be subject to such a diffusion of color: The madras skirt bled when it was first washed. 7. To show through a layer of paint, as a stain or resin in wood. 8. To be printed so as to go off the edge or edges of a page after trimming. — v. tr. 1. a. To take or remove blood from. b. To extract sap or juice from. 2. a. To draw liquid or gaseous contents from; drain. b. To draw off (liquid or gaseous matter) from a container. 3. a. To obtain money from, especially by improper means. b. To drain of all valuable resources: “Politicians... never stop inventing illicit enterprises of government that bleed the national economy” (David A. Stockman). 4. a. To cause (an illustration, for example) to bleed. b. To trim (a page, for example) so closely as to mutilate the printed or illustrative matter. — n. 1. Illustrative matter that bleeds. 2. a. A page trimmed so as to bleed. b. The part of the page that is trimmed off. [Middle English bleden, from Old English blēdan, from blōd, blood. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: It seems only common sense that bleed should be related to blood, but one needs some knowledge of historical linguistics to understand the relationship fully. In prehistoric Common Germanic, the hypothetical predecessor of Germanic languages such as English, German, and Swedish, the word ·blōdha-, “blood,” the ancestor of our word blood, is assumed to have existed. From this noun was derived the verb ·blōdhjan, “to bleed.” A change of sound then came into play in Old English, that is, the j, pronounced like the y in your, caused the vowel ō, pronounced as in go, to become pronounced like the ö in German schön. Later in Old English this ō changed to ē, pronounced like the a in labor, eventually becoming like the e in bee by 1500. By this change, as well as others, ·blōdhjan became Modern English bleed.

bleed·er (blē’dər) n. 1. A person, such as a hemophiliac, who bleeds freely or is subject to frequent hemorrhages. 2. a. Slang. A blood vessel from which there is uncontrolled bleeding. b. A blood vessel severed by trauma or surgery that requires cautery or ligature to arrest the flow of blood. 3. A person who draws blood from another; a phlebotomist.

bleed·ing heart (blē’dɪŋ härt) n. 1. Any of various perennial herbs of the genus Dicentra, especially the Old World D. spectabilis, having arching clusters of showy, pink to red or sometimes white, heart-shaped flowers. 2. A person who is considered excessively sympathetic toward those who claim to be underprivileged or exploited. — bleed’ing-heart’ (-härt’) adj.

bleep (blēp) n. A brief high-pitched sound, as from an electronic device. — v. bleeped, bleep·ing, bleeps. — v. intr. To emit a bleep or bleeps. — v. tr. To edit out (spoken material) from a broadcast or recording, especially by replacing with an electronic sound: The station bleeped out the expletives from the taped interview. [Imitative.] —bleep'er n.

blem-ish (blēm'ish) v. tr. blem-ished, blem-ish-ing, blem-ish-es. To mar or impair by a flaw. — n. An imperfection that mars or impairs; a flaw or defect. [Middle English blemisshen, from Old French blesmir, blemir, blemiss-, to make pale, of Germanic origin. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —blem'ish-er n.

SYNONYMS: blemish, imperfection, fault, defect, flaw. All of these nouns denote loss or absence of perfection. Blemish applies to something, such as a blotch, that is held to mar the appearance or impair the character of a thing: Cosmetics are often used to conceal facial blemishes. “Industry in art is a necessity—not a virtue—and any evidence of the same, in the production, is a blemish” (James McNeill Whistler). Imperfection and fault apply more comprehensively to any deficiency or shortcoming: “A true critic ought to dwell rather upon excellencies than imperfections” (Joseph Addison). “His independence and love of the English were his only faults” (David Livingstone). Defect denotes a serious functional or structural shortcoming: “Ill breeding... is not a single defect, it is the result of many” (Henry Fielding). Flaw refers to an often small but always fundamental weakness: Flaws in emeralds greatly reduce their value. Experiments revealed a very basic flaw in the theory.

blench¹ (blēnch) v. intr. blenched, blench-ing, blench-es. To draw back or shy away, as from fear; flinch. See Synonyms at recoil. [Middle English blenchen, from Old English blencan, to deceive. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —blench'er n.

blench² (blēnch) v. Variant of blanch.

blend (blënd) v. blend-ed or blent (blënt), blend-ing, blends. — v. tr.

1. To combine or mix so that the constituent parts are indistinguishable from one another: “He has no difficulty blending his two writing careers: novels and films” (Charles E. Claffey). 2. To combine (varieties or grades) to obtain a mixture of a particular character, quality, or consistency: blend tobaccos. — v. intr. 1. To form a uniform mixture; intermingle: “The smoke blended easily into the odor of the other fumes” (Norman Mailer). 2. To become merged into one; unite. 3. To create a harmonious effect or result: picked a tie that blended with the jacket. See Synonyms at mix. — n. 1. a. The act of blending. b. Something, such as an effect or a product, that is created by blending: “His face shows, as he stares at the fire, a blend of fastidiousness and intransigence” (John Fowles). See Synonyms at mixture. 2. Linguistics. A word produced by combining parts of other words, as smog from smoke and fog. [Middle English blenden, probably from Old Norse blanda, blend-. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

blende (blënd) n. 1. Any of various shiny minerals composed chiefly of metallic sulfides. 2. See sphalerite. [German, from blenden, to deceive (because it resembles lead ore), from Middle High German blenden, from Old High German blentan, to blind, deceive. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.]

blend-ed whiskey (blēn'dīd hwīs'kē) n. Whiskey that is either a blend of two or more straight whiskeys or a blend of whiskey and neutral spirits.

blend-er (blēn'dər) n. One that blends, especially an electrical appliance with whirling blades for chopping, mixing, or liquefying foods.

blend-ing inheritance (blēn'dīng ĩn-hēr'ĩ-təns) n. Genetics. The inheritance pattern of a system involving incomplete dominance, whereby characters are inherited in heterozygous individuals that show the effects of both alleles. As a result the inherited characters in the offspring are intermediate between those of the parents.

blen-ny (blēn'ē) n. pl. blen-nies. Any of several widely distributed, chiefly marine fishes that are primarily of the families Blenniidae and Clinidae and have small, elongated, often scaleless bodies. [Latin blennius, a kind of sea fish, from Greek blennos, slime, blenny. See mel-¹ in Appendix.]

blent (blēnt) v. A past tense and a past participle of blend.

ble-o-my-cin (blē'ə-mī'sĭn) n. An antibiotic that is obtained from cultures of the bacterium Streptomyces verticillus and used in the form of its sulfate for the treatment of various neoplasms. [bleo-, of unknown meaning + -MYCIN.]

blephar- pref. Variant of blepharo-.

bleph-a-ri-tis (blēf'ə-rī'tĭs) n. Inflammation of the eyelids.

blepharo- or blephar- pref. 1. Eyelid; eyelids: blepharospasm. 2. Cilium; flagellum: blepharoplast. [Greek, from Greek blepharon, eyelid.]

bleph-a-ro-plast (blēf'ər-ə-plăst') n. A basal body in certain flagellated protozoans that consists of a minute mass of chromatin embedded in the cytoplasm at the base of the flagellum.

bleph-a-ro-plas-ty (blēf'ər-ə-plăs'tē) n. Plastic surgery of the eyelids.

bleph-a-ro-spasm (blēf'ə-rō-spăz'əm) n. Spasmodic winking caused by the involuntary contraction of an eyelid muscle.

Blé-riot (blā'rē-ō, blā-ryō'), Louis. 1872-1936. French inventor and aviator who was the first to cross the English Channel by airplane (1909).

bles-bok (blēs'bök') n. pl. blesbok or bles-boks. A South African antelope (Damaliscus albifrons) having curved horns and a large white mark on its face. [Afrikaans : bles, white mark on an animal's face (from Middle Dutch); see bhel-¹ in Appendix + bok, buck (from Middle Dutch boc).]

bless (blēs) v. tr. blessed or blest (blěst), bless-ing, bless-es. 1. To make holy by religious rite; sanctify. 2. To make the sign of the cross over so as to sanctify. 3. To invoke divine favor upon. 4. To honor as holy; glorify: Bless the Lord. 5. To confer well-being or prosperity on. 6. To endow, as with talent. [Middle bless-ed (blēs'ɪd) also blest (blēst) adj. 1. a. Worthy of worship; holy. b. Held in veneration; revered. 2. Blessed. Roman Catholic Church. Used as a title before the name of one who has been beatified. 3. Bringing happiness, pleasure, or contentment. 4. blessed. Used as an intensive: I don't have a blessed dime. —bless'ed-ly adv. —bless'ed-ness n.

English blessen, from Old English blētsian, to consecrate. See bhel-³ in Appendix.] —bless'er n.

Blessed Sacrament (blēs'ɪd sāk'rə-mənt) n. Roman Catholic Church. The consecrated host.

blessed thistle (blēs'ɪd θɪs'təl) n. An annual, yellow-flowered, thistlelike Mediterranean herb (Cnicus benedictus) in the composite family, used in herbal medicine.

Blessed Virgin Mary (blēs'ɪd vûr'jɪn mâr'ē) n. Abbr. B.V.M. The Virgin Mary.

bless-ing (blēs'ɪŋ) n. 1. The act of one that blesses. 2. A short prayer said before or after a meal. 3. Something promoting or contributing to happiness, well-being, or prosperity; a boon. 4. Approbation; approval: This plan has my blessing.

blest (blēst) v. A past tense and a past participle of bless. — adj. Variant of blessed.

bleth-er (blēth'ər) v. & n. Variant of blather.

bleu cheese (blō chēz) n. See blue cheese. [French, blue, from Old French. See BLUE.]

blew¹ (blō) v. Past tense of blow¹.

blew² (blō) v. Past tense of blow³.

Bli-da (blē'də) A town of northern Algeria at the foot of the Atlas Mountains southwest of Algiers. It was built on the site of a Roman military base. Population, 136,033.

Bligh (blī), William. 1754-1817. British naval officer who as captain of the H.M.S. Bounty was set adrift by his mutinous crew during a voyage to Tahiti (1789).

blight (blīt) n. 1. a. Any of numerous plant diseases resulting in sudden conspicuous wilting and dying of affected parts, especially young, growing tissues. b. The condition or causative agent, such as a bacterium, fungus, or virus, that results in blight. 2. An extremely adverse environmental condition, such as air pollution. 3. Something that impairs growth, withers hopes and ambitions, or impedes progress and prosperity. — v. blight-ed, blight-ing, blights. — v. tr. 1. To cause (a plant, for example) to undergo blight. 2. To have a deleterious effect on; ruin. See Synonyms at blast. — v. intr. To suffer blight. [Origin unknown.]

blight-er (blī'tər) n. Chiefly British. A fellow, especially one held in low esteem.

blimp (blĭmp) n. A nonrigid, buoyant airship. Modern blimps use helium instead of hydrogen to maintain buoyancy. [Perhaps from LIMP.]

Blimp (blĭmp) n. Chiefly British. A pompous, reactionary, ultranationalistic person. [After Colonel Blimp, a cartoon character invented by David Low (1891-1963).] —Blimp'ish adj.

blin (blĭn) n. pl. bli·ni (blē'nē, blĭn'ē). A small, light pancake served with hot melted butter, sour cream, and various other garnishes such as caviar or lox. [Russian, from Old Russian mlinŭ, blinŭ. See melə- in Appendix.]

blind (blĭnd) adj. blind·er, blind·est. 1. a. Sightless. b. Having a maximal visual acuity of the better eye, after correction by refractive lenses, of one-tenth normal vision or less (20/200 or less on the Snellen test). c. Of, relating to, or for sightless persons. 2. a. Performed or made without the benefit of background information that might prejudice the outcome or result: blind taste tests used in marketing studies. b. Performed without preparation, experience, or knowledge: made a blind stab at answering the question. c. Performed by instruments and without the use of sight: blind navigation. 3. Unable or unwilling to perceive or understand: blind to a lover's faults. 4. Not based on reason or evidence; unquestioning: put blind faith in their leaders. 5. Slang. Drunk. 6. Independent of human control: blind fate. 7. a. Difficult to comprehend or see; illegible. b. Incompletely or illegibly addressed: blind mail. c. Hidden from sight: a blind seam. d. Screened from the view of oncoming motorists: a blind driveway. e. Secret or otherwise undisclosed: a blind item in a military budget. 8. Closed at one end: a blind socket; a blind passage. 9. Having no opening: a blind wall. 10. Botany. Failing to produce flowers or fruits: a blind bud. — n.

1. Something, such as a window shade or a Venetian blind, that hinders vision or shuts out light. 2. A shelter for concealing hunters, especially duck hunters. 3. Something intended to conceal the true nature, especially of an activity; a subterfuge. — adv. 1. a. Without seeing; blindly. b. Without the aid of visual reference: flew blind through the fog. 2. Without forethought or provision; unawares: entered into the scheme blind. 3. Informal. Into a stupor: drank themselves blind. 4. Used as an intensive: Thieves in the bazaar robbed us blind. — v. tr. blind·ed, blind·ing, blinds. 1. To deprive of sight: was blinded in an industrial accident. 2. To dazzle: skiers temporarily blinded by sunlight on snow. 3. To deprive of perception or insight: prejudice that blinded them to the merits of the proposal. 4. To withhold light from: Thick shrubs blinded our downstairs windows. [Middle English, from Old English. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —blind·'ing·ly adv. —blind'ly adv. —blind'ness n.

blind alley (blĭnd əl'ē) n. 1. An alley or passage that is closed at one end. 2. A mistaken, unproductive undertaking.

blind date (blīnd dāt) n. 1. A social engagement between two persons who have not previously met, usually arranged by a mutual acquaintance. 2. Either of the persons participating in such a social engagement.

blind-er (blīn'dær) n. 1. blinders. A pair of leather flaps attached to a horse's bridle to curtail side vision. Also called blinkers 2. Something that serves to obscure clear perception and discernment.

blind-fish (blīnd'fīsh') n. pl. blindfish or blind-fish-es. Any of various small fishes, such as the cavefish, that have rudimentary, nonfunctioning eyes and inhabit the waters of caves and underground streams.

blind-fold (blīnd'fōld') v. tr. blind-fold-ed, blind-fold-ing, blind-folds.

1. To cover the eyes of with or as if with a bandage. 2. To prevent from seeing and especially from comprehending. — n. 1. A bandage to cover the eyes.

2. Something that serves to obscure clear perception. [From Middle English blindfolde, past participle of blindfellen, to strike blind, cover the eyes, from Old English geblindfellian : blind, blind; see BLIND + fellian, to strike down.] — blind-fold'ed adj.

blind gut (blīnd güt) n. 1. A digestive cavity having only one opening. 2. See cecum (n., sense 2).

blind-man's buff (blīnd'mänz' бүf) n. Games. A game in which a blindfolded player tries to catch and identify one of the other players. Also called blindman's bluff [buff, short for BUFFET².]

blind pig (blīnd pīg) n. Pacific Northwest. See blind tiger.

blind pool (blīnd pōōl) n. A start-up company that sells stock in a public offering without specifying how the investors' money will be spent.

blind side (blīnd sīd) n. 1. The side on which one's vision, especially the peripheral vision, is limited or obstructed. 2. The side away from which one is directing one's attention.

blind-side or blind-side (blīnd'sīd') v. tr. blind--sid-ed, blind--sid-ing, blind--sides. 1. To hit or attack on or from the blind side. 2. To catch or take unawares, especially with harmful or detrimental results: "The recent recession, with its wave of corporate cost-cutting, blind-sided many lawyers" (Aric Press).

blind spot (blīnd spōt) n. 1. Anatomy. The small, circular, optically insensitive region in the retina where fibers of the optic nerve emerge from the eyeball. It has no rods or cones. Also called optic disk 2. A part of an area that cannot be directly observed under existing circumstances. 3. An area where radio reception is weak or nonexistent. 4. A subject about which one is markedly ignorant or prejudiced: "Of course, all of us... have our crotchets and our blind spots. I abhor novels written in the present tense" (Mordecai Richler).

blind staggers (blīnd stäg'ærz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). See stagger (n., sense 3).

blind tiger (blīnd tī'gər) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. & Chiefly Midland U.S. A place where alcoholic beverages are sold illegally; a speakeasy. Regional. Also called blind pig [After the early custom of exhibiting animal curiosities in speak-easies.]

blind trust (blīnd trūst) n. A financial arrangement in which a person, such as a high-ranking elected official, avoids possible conflict of interest by relegating his or her financial affairs to a fiduciary who has sole discretion as to their management. The person choosing the trust also gives up the right to information regarding the status of the assets.

blind-worm (blīnd'wŭrm') n. See slowworm. [From its small eyes.]

bli-ni (blē'nē, blīn'ē) n. Plural of blin.

blink (blīŋk) v. blinked, blink-ing, blinks. — v. intr. 1. To close and open one or both of the eyes rapidly. 2. To look through half-closed eyes, as in a bright glare; squint. 3. To shine with intermittent gleams; flash on and off. 4. a. To be startled or dismayed. b. To waver or back down, as in a contest of wills: “This was the first genuine, direct confrontation between this administration and the Soviets. It was the U.S.A. that blinked” (Zbigniew Brzezinski). 5. To look with feigned ignorance: a mayor who blinks at the corruption in city government. — v. tr. 1. To cause to blink. 2. To hold back or remove from the eyes by blinking: blinked back the tears. 3. To refuse to recognize or face: blink ugly facts. 4. To transmit (a message) with a flashing light. — n. 1. The act or an instance of rapidly closing and opening the eyes or an eye. 2. An instant: I'll be back in a blink. 3. Scots. A quick look or glimpse; a glance. 4. A flash of light; a twinkle. 5. See iceblink (n., sense 1). — idiom. on the blink. Out of working order. [Probably Middle English blinken, to move suddenly, variant of blenchen. See BLENCH¹.]

SYNONYMS: blink, nictitate, twinkle, wink. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to open and close the eyelids or an eyelid rapidly”: a dog blinking lazily at the fire; reptiles nictitating; twinkled, then laughed and responded; winking conspiratorially at his chum.

blink-er (blīŋ'kər) n. 1. One that blinks, especially a light that blinks in order to convey a message or warning. 2. blinkers. See blinder (n., sense 1). — v. tr. blink-ered, blink-er-ing, blink-ers. To put blinders on.

blink-ered (blīŋ'kərd) adj. Subjective and limited, as in viewpoint or perception: “He grasped the meaning of a blinkered youth” (Benjamin DeMott). “The characters have a blinkered view and, misinterpreting what they see, sometimes take totally inexpedient action” (Pauline Kael).

blintz (blīnts) also blin-tze (blīn'tsə) n. A thin, rolled blin, usually filled with cottage cheese, that is folded and then sautéed or baked and often served with sour cream. [Yiddish blintse, from Belorussian blintsy, pl. of blinets diminutive of blin, pancake, from Old Russian mlinŭ, blinŭ. See melə- in Appendix.]

blip (blĭp) n. 1. A spot of light on a radar or sonar screen indicating the position of a detected object, such as an aircraft or a submarine. Also called *pip*³ 2. A high-pitched electronic sound; a bleep. 3. A temporary or insignificant phenomenon, especially a brief departure from the normal: “The decline in the share of GNP going to health... appears to be a one-time blip in the historic trend rather than the start of a new trend” (Atlantic). — v. tr. blipped, blip-ping, blips. To bleep. [Imitative.]

bliss (blĭs) n. 1. Extreme happiness; ecstasy. 2. The ecstasy of salvation; spiritual joy. — phrasal verb. bliss out. Slang. To go into a state of ecstasy. [Middle English blisse, from Old English bliss, from blīths, from blīthe, joyful. See BLITHE.] — bliss’ful adj. — bliss’ful-ly adv. — bliss’ful-ness n.

Bliss (blĭs), Tasker Howard. 1853-1930. American army officer and diplomat who was the army chief of staff (1917-1918) during World War I and a delegate to the peace negotiations at the war’s end.

bliss-out or bliss-out (blĭs’out’) n. Slang. Ecstasy; bliss.

blis-ter (blĭs’tər) n. 1. a. A local swelling of the skin that contains watery fluid and is caused by burning or irritation. b. A similar swelling on a plant. 2. a. A raised bubble, as on a painted or laminated surface. b. A rounded, bulging, usually transparent structure, such as one used for observation on certain aircraft or for display and protection of packaged products. — v. blis-tered, blis-tering, blis-ters. — v. tr. 1. To cause a blister to form on. 2. To reprove harshly. — v. intr. To break out in or as if in blisters. [Middle English, probably from Old French blestre, of Germanic origin.] — blis’ter-y adj.

blister beetle (blĭs’tər bēt’l) n. Any of various soft-bodied beetles of the family Meloidae, such as the cantharis, that secrete a substance capable of blistering the skin. Also called meloid blister copper (blĭs’tər kŏp’ər) n. An almost pure copper produced in an intermediate stage of copper refining. [From its blistered appearance.]

blis-ter-ing (blĭs’tər-ĭng) adj. 1. Intensely hot: a blistering sun. 2. Harsh; severe: blistering criticism. 3. Very rapid: a blistering pace. 4. Producing a blister or blisters: a blistering agent. — blis’ter-ing-ly adv.

blister pack (blĭs’tər pāk) n. A form of displaying and packaging an item of merchandise in which the merchandise is sealed into a transparent plastic blister backed by foil or cardboard. Also called bubble pack blister rust (blĭs’tər rüst) n. Any of several diseases of pine trees caused by certain fungi of the genus Cronartium, resulting in conspicuous blistering and often dieback of affected areas.

B.Lit. abbr. Latin. Baccalaureus Litterarum (Bachelor of Literature).

blithe (blīth, blīth) adj. blith-er, blith-est. 1. Carefree and lighthearted.

2. Lacking or showing a lack of due concern; casual: spoke with blithe ignorance of the true situation. See Synonyms at jolly. [Middle English, from Old English blīthe.] —blithe/ly adv. —blithe/ness n.

blith-er (blīth'ər) v. intr. blith-ered, blith-er-ing, blith-ers. To blather. [Alteration of BLATHER.]

blithe-some (blīth'səm, blīth'-) adj. Cheerful; merry. —blithe/some-ly adv. —blith/some-ness n.

B.Litt. abbr. Latin. Baccalaureus Litterarum (Bachelor of Literature).

blitz (blīts) n. 1. a. A blitzkrieg. b. A heavy aerial bombardment. 2. An intense campaign: a media blitz focused on young voters. 3. Football. A defensive play in which one or more linebackers or defensive backs charge through the line of scrimmage at the snap in an attempt to overwhelm the quarterback, especially in a passing situation. In this sense, also called red-dog — v. blitzed, blitz-ing, blitz-es. — v. tr. 1. To subject to a blitz. 2. Football. To rush (the quarterback) in a blitz. — v. intr. Football. To carry out a blitz. [Short for BLITZKRIEG.]

blitz-krieg (blīts'krēg') n. A swift, sudden military offensive, usually by combined air and mobile land forces. [German : Blitz, lightning (from Middle High German blitze, from bliczen, to flash, from Old High German blēcchazzen); see bhel-¹ in Appendix + Krieg, war (from Middle High German kriec, from Old High German chrēg, stubbornness); see g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

Blitz-stein (blīts'stīn'), Marc. 1905-1964. American composer whose works include operas, such as Triple Sec (1928), and musical plays, including The Cradle Will Rock (1937).

bliv-it (blīv'īt) n. Slang. 1. Something annoying, superfluous, or pointless. 2. Something difficult or impossible to name. [Origin unknown.]

Blix-en (blēk'sən, blīk'-), Baroness Karen. See Isak Dinesen.

bliz-zard (blīz'ərd) n. 1. a. Meteorology. A violent snowstorm with winds blowing at a minimum speed of 35 miles (56 kilometers) per hour and visibility of less than one-quarter mile (400 meters) for three hours. b. A very heavy snowstorm with high winds. 2. A torrent; a superabundance: The White House received a blizzard of phone calls. [Origin unknown.]

blk. abbr. 1. Black. 2. Block. 3. Bulk.

bloat (blōt) v. bloat-ed, bloat-ing, bloats. — v. tr. 1. To cause to swell up or inflate, as with liquid or gas. 2. To cure (fish) by soaking in brine and half-drying in smoke. — v. intr. To become swollen or inflated: "Government had bloated out of control" (Lance Morrow). — n. 1. A swelling of the rumen or intestinal tract of cattle and domestic animals that is caused by excessive gas formation following fermentation of ingested watery legumes or green forage.

2. An excess or surfeit, as of employees, expenses, or procedures: corporate bloat.

[From Middle English blout, soft, puffed, from Old Norse blautr, soft, soaked. See bhleu- in Appendix.]

bloat-ed (blō'ŭd) adj. 1. Being much bigger than desired: a bloated bureaucracy; a bloated budget. 2. Medicine. Swollen or distended beyond normal size by fluid or gaseous material.

bloat-er¹ (blō'tər) n. A large mackerel or herring, lightly smoked and salted. [From obsolete dialectal blout, a soft, moist cured fish, probably from BLOAT.]

bloat-er² (blō'tər) n. A small whitefish (Coregonus hoyi) of the Great Lakes and the lakes of eastern Canada.

blob (blŏb) n. 1. A soft, amorphous mass. 2. A daub, as of color. — v. tr. blobbed, blob-bing, blobs. To splash or daub with blobs; splotch. [From Middle English blober, bubble.]

bloc (blŏk) n. 1. A group of nations, parties, or persons united for common action: nations in the Communist bloc. 2. An often bipartisan coalition of legislators acting together for a common purpose or interest: the farm bloc in the U.S. Senate. [French, from Old French, block. See BLOCK.]

Bloch (blŏk, blŏk, blŏKH), Ernest. 1880-1959. Swiss-born American composer noted for his chamber music, such as Quintet for Piano and Strings (1923), and for works with Jewish themes, including Israel Symphony (1916).

Bloch (blŏk, blŏk, blŏKH), Felix. 1905-1983. Swiss-born American physicist. He shared a 1952 Nobel Prize for work concerning the measurement of magnetic fields in atomic nuclei.

Bloch (blŏk, blŏk, blŏKH), Konrad Emil. Born 1912. German-born American biochemist. He shared a 1964 Nobel Prize for research on cholesterol and fatty acid metabolism.

block (blŏk) n. Abbr. blk. 1. a. A solid piece of a hard substance, such as wood, having one or more flat sides. b. Such a piece used as a construction member or as a support. c. Such a piece upon which chopping or cutting is done: a butcher's block. d. Such a piece upon which persons are beheaded. e. A small wooden or plastic cube used as a building toy: a set of blocks. f. Printing. A large amount of text. g. Sports. A starting block. 2. A stand from which articles are displayed and sold at an auction: Many priceless antiques went on the block. 3. A mold or form on which an item is shaped or displayed: a hat block. 4. A substance, such as wood or stone, that has been prepared for engraving. 5. a. A pulley or a system of pulleys set in a casing. b. An engine block. 6. A bloc. 7. A set of like items, such as shares of stock, sold or handled as a unit. 8. A group of four or more unseparated postage stamps forming a rectangle. 9. Canadian. A group of townships in an unsurveyed area. 10. a. A usually rectangular section of a city or town bounded on each side by consecutive streets. b. A segment of a street bounded by consecutive cross streets and including its buildings and inhabitants. 11. A large building divided into separate units, such as apartments. 12. A length of railroad track controlled by signals. 13. The act of obstructing.

14. Something that obstructs; an obstacle. 15. a. Sports. An act of bodily obstruction, as of a player or ball. b. Football. Legal interference with an opposing player to clear the path of the ball carrier. 16. Medicine. Interruption, especially obstruction, of a normal physiological function: nerve block.

17. Psychology. Sudden cessation of speech or a thought process without an immediate observable cause, sometimes considered a consequence of repression.

18. Slang. The human head: threatened to knock my block off. 19. A blockhead. — v. blocked, block-ing, blocks. — v. tr. 1. To shape into a block or blocks.

2. To support, strengthen, or retain in place by means of a block. 3. To shape, mold, or form with or on a block: block a hat. 4. a. To stop or impede the passage of or movement through; obstruct: block traffic. b. To shut out from view: a curtain blocking the stage. 5. To indicate broadly without great detail; sketch: block out a plan of action. 6. Sports. To impede the movement of (an opponent or the ball) by physical interference. 7. Medicine. To interrupt the proper functioning of (a nervous, muscular, or other physiological process), especially by the use of anesthesia. 8. Psychology. To fail to remember. 9. To run (trains) on a block system. — v. intr. Sports. To obstruct the movement of an opponent.

—idiom. out of the blocks. From a starting position, as in a race or contest: The company has in the past been slow out of the blocks to adapt to consumer tastes. [Middle English blok, from Old French, from Middle Dutch.] —block'er n.

SYNONYMS: block, hide, obscure, obstruct, screen, shroud. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cut off from sight”: trees that block the view; a road hidden by brush; mist that obscures the mountain peak; skyscrapers obstructing the sky; a fence that screens the alley; a face shrouded by a heavy veil. See also Synonyms at hinder¹ obstacle block·ade (blökād') n. 1. The isolation of a nation, an area, a city, or a harbor by hostile ships or forces in order to prevent the entrance and exit of traffic and commerce. 2. The forces used to effect this isolation. — v. tr. block·ad·ed, block·ad·ing, block·ades. To set up a blockade against. See Synonyms at besiege. —block·ad'er n.

Block (blök), Herbert Lawrence. Known as “Herblock.” Born 1909. American editorial cartoonist whose witty works have appeared in the Washington Post and more than 200 other papers nationwide. He won a Pulitzer Prize in 1942 and in 1954.

block·ade·run·ner (blökād'rün'ər) n. One that penetrates or evades a blockade. —block·ade'-run'ning n.

block·age (blök'ij) n. 1. The act of obstructing. 2. An obstruction.

block and tackle (blök ənd tāk'əl) n. An apparatus of pulley blocks and ropes or cables used for hauling and hoisting heavy objects.

block·bust·er (blök'büs'tər) n. 1. Informal. Something, such as a film or book, that sustains widespread popularity and achieves enormous sales. 2. A high-explosive bomb used for demolition purposes. 3. One that engages in the practice of blockbusting.

block·bust·ing (blök'büs'tīng) n. Informal. The practice of persuading white homeowners to sell quickly and usually at a loss by appealing to the fear that minority groups and especially Black people will move into the neighborhood, causing property values to decline. The property is then resold at inflated prices.

block grant (blök gränt) n. An unrestricted federal grant, as to a locality.

block·head (blök'hēd') n. A person regarded as very stupid; a dolt.

block·house (blök'hous') n. 1. A military fortification constructed of sturdy material, such as concrete, and designed with ports for defensive firing or observation. 2. A heavily reinforced building used for launch operations of missiles and space launch vehicles. 3. A fort made of squared timbers with a projecting upper story.

block·ish (blök'ish) adj. Resembling a block, as in shape. —block'ish·ly adv.
—block'ish·ness n.

Block Island (blök ī'lənd) An island off southern Rhode Island at the eastern entrance to Long Island Sound. Visited by Dutch explorers in 1614, it was settled in 1661.

block letter (blök lēt'ər) n. Printing. 1. A letter printed or written sans serif. 2. A sans-serif style of type.

block plane (blök plān) n. A small plane used by carpenters for cutting across the grain of wood.

block signal (blök sīg'nəl) n. A fixed signal at the entrance to a railroad block, indicating whether or not trains may enter.

block system (blök sīs'təm) n. A system for controlling and safeguarding the flow of railway trains in which track is divided into blocks, each controlled by automatic signals.

block·y (blök'ē) adj. block·i·er, block·i·est. Blockish.

Bloem·ber·gen (blōōm'bûr-gən), Nicolaas. Born 1920. Dutch-born American physicist. He shared a 1981 Nobel Prize for developing technologies to study complex forms of matter.

Bloem·fon·tein (blōōm'fōn-tān') A city of central South Africa east-southeast of Kimberley. It is unofficially called the judicial capital of the country because the appellate division of the national supreme court sits here. Population, 102,600.

Blois (blwä) A town of central France on the Loire River northeast of Tours. It was the seat of the powerful counts of Blois and a favorite residence of French royalty. Population, 47,243.

Blok (blök), Aleksandr Aleksandrovich. 1880-1921. Russian poet. Considered Russia's greatest symbolist poet, he is particularly noted for his lyrics, verse dramas, and long poem The Twelve (1918).

bloke (blök) n. Chiefly British. A fellow; a man. [Origin unknown.]

blond also blonde (blönd) adj. blond-er, blond-est. 1. Having fair hair and skin and usually light eyes: blond Scandinavians. 2. Of a flaxen or golden color or of any light shade of auburn or pale yellowish brown: blond hair. 3. Light-colored through bleaching: blond furniture. — n. 1. A person with fair hair and skin and usually light eyes. 2. Color. A light yellowish brown to dark grayish yellow. [Middle English blounde, from Old French blonde, of Germanic origin. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —blond/ish adj. —blond/ness n.

USAGE NOTE: It is usual in English to treat blond as if it required gender marking, as in French, spelling it blonde when referring to women and blond elsewhere. But this practice is in fact a relatively recent innovation, and some have suggested that it has sexist implications and that the form blond should be used for both sexes. There is certainly a measure of justice to the claim that the two forms are not used symmetrically. Since English does not normally mark adjectives according to the gender of the nouns they modify, it is natural to interpret the final -e as expressing some additional meaning, perhaps because it implies that hair color provides a primary category of classification for women but not men. This association of hair color and a particular perception of feminine identity is suggested in phrases such as dumb blonde and Is it true blondes have more fun? or in Susan Brownmiller's depiction of Hollywood's "pantheon of celebrated blondes who have fed the fantasies of men and fueled the aspirations of women." The corresponding masculine form blond, by contrast, is not ordinarily used to refer to men in contexts in which hair color is not specifically at issue; there is something arch in a reference to Leslie Howard, Robert Redford, and other celebrated blonds. See Usage Note at brunette.

blood (blüd) n. Abbr. bld. 1. a. The fluid consisting of plasma, blood cells, and platelets that is circulated by the heart through the vertebrate vascular system, carrying oxygen and nutrients to and waste materials away from all body tissues. b. A functionally similar fluid in animals other than vertebrates. c. The juice or sap of certain plants. 2. A vital or animating force; lifeblood. 3. Bloodshed; murder. 4. Temperament or disposition: a person of hot blood and fiery temper. 5. a. Descent from a common ancestor; parental lineage. b. Family relationship; kinship. c. Descent from noble or royal lineage: a princess of the blood.

d. Recorded descent from purebred stock. e. National or racial ancestry.

6. a. A dandy. b. Slang. A youth who is a member of a city gang. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a blood transfusion; a Red Cross blood drive. — v. tr. blood-ed, blood-ing, bloods. 1. To give (a hunting dog) its first taste of blood. 2. To subject (troops) to experience under fire: “The measure of an army is not known until it has been blooded” (Tom Clancy). — idiom. in cold blood. Deliberately, coldly, and dispassionately. [Middle English blod, from Old English blōd. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

Blood (blüd) n. pl. Blood or Bloods. 1. A tribe of the Blackfoot confederacy inhabiting southern Alberta. 2. A member of this tribe.

blood agar (blüd ā'gär') n. Microbiology. A nutrient culture medium that is enriched with whole blood and used for the growth of certain strains of bacteria.

blood alcohol concentration (blüd ä'l'kə-höl' kōn'sən-trā'shən) n. Abbr. BAC The concentration of alcohol in the blood, expressed as the weight of alcohol in a fixed volume of blood and used as a measure of the degree of intoxication in an individual. The concentration depends on body weight, the quantity and rate of alcohol ingestion, and the rates of alcohol absorption and metabolism.

Also called blood alcohol level blood bank (blüd bängk) n. 1. A place where whole blood or plasma is typed, processed, and stored for future use in transfusion. 2. Blood or plasma stored in such a place.

blood·bath also blood bath (blüd'bäth', -bäth') n. Savage, indiscriminate killing; a massacre.

blood boost·ing or blood-boost·ing (blüd'bōō'sting) n. See blood doping.

blood-brain barrier (blüd'brän' bär'ē-ər) n. A physiological mechanism that alters the permeability of brain capillaries, so that some substances, such as certain drugs, are prevented from entering brain tissue, while other substances are allowed to enter freely.

blood brother (blüd brüth'ər) n. 1. A brother by birth. 2. One of two individuals who vow mutual fidelity and trust by a ceremony involving the mingling of each other's blood. — blood brotherhood n.

blood cell (blüd sěl) n. Any of the cells contained in blood; an erythrocyte or leukocyte; a blood corpuscle.

blood clot (blüd klöt) n. Physiology. A semisolid, gelatinous mass of coagulated blood that consists of red blood cells, white blood cells, and platelets entrapped in a fibrin network.

blood count (blüd kount) n. 1. The number of red blood cells, white blood cells, and platelets in a definite volume of blood. 2. The determination of such a count. 3. Complete blood count.

blood·cur·dling (blŭd'kŭrd'ling) adj. Causing great horror; terrifying.

—blood'cur'dling·ly adv.

blood dop·ing or blood-dop·ing (blŭd'dŏ'ping) n. The process of transfusing an athlete with a quantity of blood that has been previously removed from the same athlete, allowing the buildup of extra red blood cells by the body in the interim. The goal of this controversial technique is to increase the oxygen-carrying capacity of the blood and athletic endurance. Also called blood boosting, blood packing.

blood·ed (blŭd'id) adj. 1. Having blood or a temperament of a specified kind. Used only in combination: a cold-blooded reptile; a hot-blooded person.

2. Thoroughbred: blooded breeding stock.

blood feud (blŭd fyŏd) n. A feud involving the members of a family or clan.

blood fluke (blŭd flŏk) n. See schistosome.

blood group (blŭd grŏp) n. Any of several immunologically distinct, genetically determined classes of human blood that are based on the presence or absence of certain antigens and are clinically identified by characteristic agglutination reactions. Also called blood type blood·guilt (blŭd'gilt') n. The fact or state of being guilty of murder or bloodshed.

blood heat (blŭd hēt) n. The normal temperature (about 37.0°C or 98.6°F) of human blood.

blood·hound (blŭd'hound') n. 1. One of a breed of hounds with a smooth coat, drooping ears, sagging jowls, and a keen sense of smell. 2. Informal. A relentless pursuer.

blood·less (blŭd'lis) adj. 1. Deficient in or lacking blood. 2. Pale and anemic in color: smiled with bloodless lips. 3. Achieved without bloodshed: a bloodless coup. 4. Lacking vivacity or spirit: a long, bloodless speech. 5. Devoid of human emotion or feeling: charts of bloodless economic indicators. —blood'less·ly adv. —blood'less·ness n.

blood·let·ting (blŭd'lēt'ing) n. 1. Bloodshed. 2. The removal of blood, usually from a vein, as a therapeutic measure. 3. The laying off of personnel or the elimination of resources. —blood'let'ter n.

blood lily (blŭd lil'ē) n. Any of several bulbous plants of the African genus Haemanthus grown for their dense clusters of red, white, or pink flowers with protruding stamens.

blood·line (blŭd'līn') n. Direct line of descent; pedigree.

blood meal (blŭd mēl) n. The dried and powdered blood of animals, used in animal feeds and as a nitrogen-rich fertilizer for plants.

blood·mo·bile (blŭd'mə-bēl') n. A motor vehicle equipped for collecting blood from donors. [BLOOD + (AUTO)MOBILE.]

blood money (blūd mŭn'ē) n. 1. Money paid by a killer as compensation to the next of kin of a murder victim. 2. Money gained at the cost of another's life or livelihood.

blood pack·ing or blood-pack·ing (blūd' pāk'ĭng) n. See blood doping.

blood plasma (blūd plāz'mə) n. The pale yellow or gray-yellow, protein-containing fluid portion of the blood in which the blood cells and platelets are normally suspended.

blood platelet (blūd plāt'līt) n. See platelet.

blood poi-son·ing (blūd poi'zə-nĭng) n. 1. See septicemia. 2. See toxemia.

blood pressure (blūd prĕsh'ər) n. Abbr. BP, B.P. The pressure exerted by the blood against the walls of the blood vessels, especially the arteries. It varies with the strength of the heartbeat, the elasticity of the arterial walls, the volume and viscosity of the blood, and a person's health, age, and physical condition.

blood profile (blūd prō'fĭl') n. See complete blood count.

blood red (blūd rĕd) n. Color. A moderate to vivid red. —blood'-red' (blūd'rĕd') adj.

blood relation (blūd rĭ-lā'shən) n. A person who is related to another by birth rather than by marriage. —blood relationship n.

blood·root (blūd'rōōt', -rōōt') n. A perennial wildflower (Sanguinaria canadensis), native to forests in eastern North America and having a fleshy rootstock exuding a poisonous red sap, a single lobed leaf, and a solitary white flower in early spring. Also called red puccoon blood serum (blūd sĭr'əm) n. See serum (n., sense 1).

blood·shed (blūd'shĕd') n. The shedding of blood, especially the injury or killing of human beings.

blood·shot (blūd'shōt') adj. Red and inflamed as a result of locally congested blood vessels: bloodshot eyes. [From obsolete bloodshotten : BLOOD + shotten, suffused, past participle of SHOOT.]

blood·stain (blūd'stān') n. A stain caused by blood. — v. tr.

blood-stained, blood-stain·ing, blood-stains. To stain with blood.

blood·stone (blūd'stōn') n. A variety of deep-green chalcedony flecked with red jasper. Also called heliotrope blood·stream also blood stream (blūd'strēm') n. The flow of blood through the circulatory system of an organism.

blood·suck·er (blūd'sŭk'ər) n. 1. An animal, such as a leech, that sucks blood. 2. An extortionist or a blackmailer. 3. A person who is intrusively or overly dependent upon another; a parasite. —blood'suck'ing adj.

blood sugar (blūd shōōg'ər) n. 1. Sugar in the form of glucose in the blood. 2. The concentration of glucose in the blood, measured in milligrams of glucose per 100 milliliters of blood.

blood test (blūd tĕst) n. 1. An examination of a sample of blood to determine its chemical, physical, or serologic characteristics. 2. A serologic test for certain diseases, such as syphilis or AIDS.

blood-thirst-y (blūd'thîr'stē) adj. 1. Eager to shed blood. 2. Characterized by great carnage. —blood/thirst/i-ly adv. —blood/thirst/i-ness n.

blood type (blūd tîp) n. See blood group.

blood typ-ing or blood-typ-ing (blūd'tî'pîng) n. The process of identifying an individual's blood group by serologic testing of a sample of blood.

blood vessel (blūd vēs'əl) n. An elastic tubular channel, such as an artery, a vein, or a capillary, through which the blood circulates.

blood-worm (blūd'wûrm') n. 1. Any of various red, segmented marine worms of the genera Polycirrus and Enoplobranchus that have bright red bodies and are often used for bait. 2. The freshwater larvae of certain midges that are red as a result of the high hemoglobin content of their blood.

blood-y (blūd'ē) adj. blood-i-er, blood-i-est. 1. Stained with blood. 2. Of, characteristic of, or containing blood. 3. Accompanied by or giving rise to bloodshed: a bloody fight. 4. Bloodthirsty. 5. Suggesting the color of blood; blood-red. 6. Used as an intensive: "Everyone wants to have a convict in his bloody family tree" (Robert Hughes). — adv. Used as an intensive: bloody well right. — v. tr. blood-ied, blood-y-ing, blood-ies. 1. To stain, spot, or color with or as if with blood. 2. To make bleed, as by injuring or wounding: The troops were bloodied in the skirmish. —blood/i-ly adv. —blood/i-ness n.

SYNONYMS: bloody, gory, sanguinary, sanguineous. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "attended by or causing bloodshed": a bloody battle; a gory murder; a sanguinary struggle; a sanguineous victory.

bloody mary also Bloody Mary (blūd'ē mâr'ē) n. pl. bloody marys or bloody mary's. A cocktail usually made of vodka, tomato juice, and seasonings.

[After MARY I.]

blood-y-mind-ed (blūd'ē-mîn'dĭd) adj. 1. Ready and willing to accept bloodshed or to resort to violence: "forging alliances with bloody-minded tyrants" (Lewis H. Lapham). 2. Chiefly British. Perversely cantankerous: "The... unions... have never been as bloody-minded about demarcation as the shipbuilders" (Spectator). —blood/y-mind'ed-ness n.

bloom¹ (blōm) n. 1. a. The flower of a plant. b. Something resembling the flower of a plant: "Her hair was caught all to one side in a great bloom of frizz" (Anne Tyler). 2. a. The condition of being in flower: a rose in full bloom. b. A condition or time of vigor, freshness, and beauty; prime: "the radiant bloom of Greek genius" (Edith Hamilton). 3. A fresh, rosy complexion: "She was short, plump, and fair, with a fine bloom" (Jane Austen). 4. a. A waxy or powdery whitish to bluish coating sometimes occurring on the surface of plant parts, such as on the fruits of certain plums. b. A similar coating, as on newly minted coins. c. Chemistry. See efflorescence (n., sense 3a). 5. Glare that is caused by a shiny object reflecting too much light into a television camera. 6. A visible, colored area on the surface of bodies of water caused by excessive planktonic growth. — v. bloomed, bloom-ing, blooms. — v. intr. 1. a. To bear a flower or flowers. b. To support plant life in abundance: rains that made the yard bloom. 2. To shine; glow. 3. To grow or flourish with youth and vigor. 4. To appear or expand suddenly: White vapor bloomed from the side of the rocket's fuel tank. — v. tr. 1. To cause to flourish. 2. Obsolete. To cause to flower. [Middle English blom, from Old Norse blōm. See bhel-³ in Appendix.] — bloom'y adj.

SYNONYMS: bloom, blossom, efflorescence, florescence, flower, flush, prime. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a condition or time of greatest vigor and freshness”: beauty in its full bloom; classical sculpture in its blossom; the efflorescence of humanitarianism; the florescence of baroque music; in the flower of her womanhood; in the flush of his popularity; the prime of life.

bloom² (blōom) n. 1. A bar of steel prepared for rolling. 2. A mass of wrought iron ready for further working. [Middle English blome, lump of metal, from Old English blōma. See bhel-³ in Appendix.]

bloom-er¹ (blōō'mər) n. 1. a. A plant that blooms. b. A person who attains full maturity and competence: a late bloomer. 2. Slang. A blunder.

bloom-er² (blōō'mər) n. 1. A costume formerly worn by women and girls that was composed of loose trousers gathered about the ankles and worn under a short skirt. 2. bloomers. a. Wide, loose trousers gathered at the knee and formerly worn by women and girls as an athletic costume. b. Girls' underpants of similar design. [After Amelia Jenks BLOOMER.]

Bloom-er (blōō'mər), Amelia Jenks. 1818-1894. American social reformer who founded and edited the feminist newspaper Lily (1849-1855), wrote about unjust marriage laws and women's suffrage, and advocated a new style of dress for women.

Bloom-field (blōōm'fēld') 1. A town of north-central Connecticut, a suburb of Hartford. Population, 19,483. 2. A town of northeast New Jersey, an industrial and residential suburb of Newark. It was settled c. 1660. Population, 45,061.

Bloom-field (blōōm'fēld'), Leonard. 1887-1949. American linguist who introduced a behavioristic approach to linguistics in his text Language (1933).

bloom-ing (blōō'mīng) adv. & adj. Chiefly British. Used as an intensive: a blooming hot day; a blooming idiot. [Probably a euphemism for BLOODY.]

Bloom-ing-ton (blōō'mīng-tən) 1. A city of central Illinois east-southeast of Peoria. It is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 51,972. 2. A city of south-central Indiana south-southwest of Indianapolis. Indiana University (established 1820) is located here. Population, 60,633. 3. A city of eastern Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 86,335.

Blooms-bur-y (blōōmz/'bēr'-ē, -bə-rē, -brē) A residential district of north-central London, England, famous for its associations with members of the intelligentsia, including Virginia Woolf, E.M. Forster, and John Maynard Keynes, in the early 20th century.

bloop (blōōp) Baseball. n. A blooper. — v. tr. blooped, bloop-ing, bloops. To hit (a ball) into the air just beyond the infield. — adj. Hit just beyond the infield.

bloop-er (blōō/'pər) n. 1. Informal. A clumsy mistake, especially one made in public; a faux pas. 2. Baseball. a. A weakly hit ball that carries just beyond the infield. b. A high pitch that is lobbed to the batter. [From BLOOP, to make the high-pitched sound of interference in a radio signal, and from the sound made by hitting a ball weakly.]

Bloor (blōōr), Ella Reeve. Known as “Mother Bloor.” 1862-1951. American labor organizer and political radical who was a founder (1919) and central committee member of the Communist Labor Party.

blos-som (blōs/'əmə) n. 1. A flower or cluster of flowers. 2. The condition or time of flowering: peach trees in blossom. 3. A period or condition of maximum development. See Synonyms at bloom¹. — v. intr. blos-somed, blos-som-ing, blos-soms. 1. To come into flower; bloom. 2. To develop; flourish: The child blossomed into a beauty. [Middle English, from Old English blōstm. See bhel⁻³ in Appendix.] — blos/som-y adj.

blos-som-end rot (blōs/'əmə-ēnd' rōt) n. A disease, especially of tomato, pepper, squash, or melon, caused by a deficiency of calcium and characterized by brown or black decay at the distal part of the fruit.

blot¹ (blōt) n. 1. A spot or a stain caused by a discoloring substance: a blot of paint. 2. A stain on one's character or reputation; a disgrace. See Synonyms at stain. — v. blot-ted, blot-ting, blots. — v. tr. 1. To spot or stain, as with a discoloring substance. 2. To bring moral disgrace to. 3. To obliterate (writing, for example). 4. To make obscure; hide: clouds blotting out the moon. 5. To destroy utterly; annihilate: War blotted out their traditional way of life. 6. To soak up or dry with absorbent material. — v. intr. 1. To spill or spread in a spot or stain. 2. To become blotted, soaked up, or absorbed. [Middle English.]

blot² (blōt) n. 1. Games. An exposed piece in backgammon. 2. Archaic. A weak point. [Possibly from Low German blat, naked, unprotected.]

blotch (blōch) n. 1. A spot or blot; a splotch. 2. A discoloration on the skin; a blemish. 3. Any of several plant diseases caused by fungi and resulting in brown or black dead areas on leaves or fruit. — v. tr. intr. blotched, blotch-ing, blotch-es. To mark or become marked with blotches. [Probably blend of BLOT¹, and BOTCH.] —blotch/i-ly adv. —blotch/i-ness n. —blotch/y adj.

blot-ter (blöt'ər) n. 1. A piece or pad of blotting paper. 2. A book containing daily records of occurrences or transactions: a police blotter.

blot-ting paper (blöt'ing pā'pər) n. Absorbent paper used to blot a surface by soaking up excess ink.

blot-to (blöt'ō) adj. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk.

blouse (blous, blouz) n. 1. A woman's or child's loosely fitting shirt that extends to the waist or slightly below. 2. A loosely fitting garment resembling a long shirt, worn especially by European workmen. 3. The service coat or tunic worn by the members of some branches of the U.S. armed forces. — v. intr. tr.

bloused, blous-ing, blous-es. To hang or cause to hang loosely and fully. [French, possibly alteration (influenced by blousse, wool scraps, of Germanic origin), of obsolete French blaude, from Old French bliaut, probably of Germanic origin.]

blou-son (blou'sōn', blōō'zōn') n. A woman's garment, such as a dress or blouse, with a fitted waistband over which material blouses. [French, diminutive of blouse, blouse. See BLOUSE.]

blow¹ (blō) v. blew (blō), blown (blōn), blow-ing, blows. — v. intr.

1. To be in a state of motion. Used of the air or of wind. 2. To move along or be carried by or as if by the wind: Her hat blew away. 3. To expel a current of air, as from the mouth or from a bellows. 4. To produce a sound by expelling a current of air, as in sounding a wind instrument or a whistle. 5. To breathe hard; pant.

6. To storm: It blew all night. 7. To melt or otherwise become disabled. Used of a fuse. 8. To burst suddenly: The tire blew. 9. To spout moist air from the blow-hole. Used of a whale. 10. Informal. To boast. 11. Slang. To go away; depart.

— v. tr. 1. To cause to move by means of a current of air. 2. To expel (air) from the mouth. 3. To cause air to be expelled suddenly from: blew a tire. 4. To drive a current of air on, in, or through: blew my hair dry after I shampooed it. 5. To clear out or make free of obstruction by forcing air through: constantly blowing his nose in allergy season. 6. To shape or form (glass, for example) by forcing air or gas through at the end of a pipe. 7. Music. a. To cause (a wind instrument) to sound. b. To sound: a bugle blowing taps. 8. a. To cause to be out of breath.

b. To allow (a winded horse) to regain its breath. 9. To demolish by the force of an explosion: An artillery shell blew our headquarters apart. 10. To lay or deposit eggs in. Used of certain insects. 11. To melt or otherwise disable (a fuse).

12. Slang. a. To spend (money) freely and rashly. See Synonyms at waste. b. To spend money freely on; treat: blew me to a sumptuous dinner. 13. Vulgar Slang. To perform fellatio on. 14. a. Slang. To spoil or lose through ineptitude.

See Synonyms at botch. b. To cause (a covert intelligence operation or operative) to be revealed and thereby jeopardized: a story in the press that blew their cover; an agent who was blown by the opposition. 15. Slang. To depart (a place) in a great hurry: Let's blow this city no later than noon. — n. 1. The act or an instance of blowing. 2. a. A blast of air or wind. b. A storm. 3. Informal. An act of bragging. 4. Slang. Cocaine. —phrasal verbs. blow away. Slang.

1. To kill by shooting, especially with a firearm. 2. To affect intensely; overwhelm: That concert blew me away. blow in. Slang. To arrive, especially when unexpected. blow off. To relieve or release (pressure); let off. blow out. 5. To extinguish or be extinguished by a gust of air: blow out a candle. 6. To fail, as an electrical apparatus. 7. To erupt in an uncontrolled manner. Used of a gas or oil well. blow over. To subside, wane, or pass over with little lasting effect: The storm blew over quickly. The scandal will soon blow over. blow up. 9. To come into being: A storm blew up. 10. To fill with air; inflate: blow up a tire. 11. To enlarge (a photographic image or print). 12. To explode: bombs blowing up. 13. To lose one's temper. —idioms. blow a gasket. Slang. To explode with anger. blow hot and cold. To change one's opinion often on a matter; vacillate. blow off steam. To give vent to pent-up emotion. blow (one's) cool. Slang. To lose one's composure. blow (one's) mind. Slang. To affect with intense emotion, such as amazement, excitement, or shock. blow (one's) top (or blow (one's) stack). Informal. Informal. To lose one's temper. [Middle English blowen, from Old English blāwan. See bhlē- in Appendix.]

blow² (blō) n. 1. A sudden hard stroke or hit, as with the fist or an object. 2. An unexpected shock or calamity. 3. An unexpected attack; an assault. [Middle English blaw.]

blow³ (blō) n. 1. A mass of blossoms: peach blow. 2. The state of blossoming. — v. intr. tr. blew (blō), blown (blōn), blow-ing, blows. To bloom or cause to bloom. [From Middle English blowen, to bloom, from Old English blōwan. See bhel⁻³ in Appendix.]

blow-back (blō'bāk') n. 1. The backpressure in an internal-combustion engine or a boiler. 2. Powder residue that is released upon automatic ejection of a spent cartridge or shell from a firearm. 3. The effect caused by recirculation into the source country of disinformation previously planted abroad by that country's intelligence service in an effort to mislead the government of another country.

blow-by-blow (blō'-bī-blō') adj. Exhibiting great detail: a blow-by-blow description of the accident.

blow-dry (blō'drī') v. tr. blow--dried, blow--dry-ing, blow--dries. To dry and often style (hair) with a hand-held dryer. —blow dryer n.

blow-er (blō'ər) n. 1. One that blows, especially a mechanical device, such as a fan, that produces a current of air. 2. Slang. A braggart. 3. Chiefly British. A telephone.

blow-fish (blō'fīsh') n. pl. blowfish or blow-fish-es. See puffer.

blow-fly (blō'flī') n. Any of several flies of the family Calliphoridae that deposit their eggs in carcasses or carrion or in open sores and wounds.

blow-gun (blō'gūn') n. A long, narrow pipe through which darts or pellets may be blown. Also called blowpipe blow-hard (blō'härd') n. Informal. A boaster or braggart.

blow-hole (blō'hōl') n. 1. An opening or one of a pair of openings for breathing, located on the top of the head of cetaceans, such as whales and dolphins. The blowhole is opened by muscles upon surfacing and closed by the pressure of water upon diving. 2. A hole in ice to which aquatic mammals, such as dolphins, come to breathe. 3. A vent to permit the escape of air or other gas.

blow-job (blō'jōb') n. Vulgar Slang. The act or an instance of fellatio.

blown¹ (blōn) v. Past participle of blow¹. — adj. 1. Swollen or inflated; distended. 2. Out of breath; panting. 3. Flyblown. 4. Formed by blowing: blown glass.

blown² (blōn) v. Past participle of blow³.

blow-off (blō'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. Something, such as a gas, that is blown off. 2. A device or channel for blowing off something.

blow-out (blō'out') n. 1. a. A sudden rupture or bursting, as of an automobile tire. b. The hole made by such a rupture. 2. A sudden escape of a confined gas or liquid, as from a well. 3. Slang. A large party or other social affair: "Lunch was a billion-calorie blowout beside the pool, accompanied by folkloric dancing" (Vanity Fair).

blow-pipe (blō'pīp') n. 1. A metal tube in which a flow of gas is mixed with a controlled flow of air to concentrate the heat of a flame, used especially in the identification of minerals. 2. See blowgun. 3. A long, narrow iron pipe used to gather, work, and blow molten glass.

blow-sy (blou'zē) adj. Variant of blowzy.

blow-torch (blō'tôrch') n. A portable burner for mixing gas and oxygen to produce a very hot flame, used for soldering, welding, and glass blowing.

blow-up (blō'ŭp') n. 1. An explosion. 2. An outburst of temper. 3. A photographic enlargement.

blow-y (blō'ē) adj. blow-i-er, blow-i-est. Windy or breezy.

blow-zy also blow-sy (blou'zē) adj. blow-zi-er also blow-si-er, blow-zi-est also blow-si-est. 1. Having a coarsely ruddy and bloated appearance.

2. Disheveled and frowzy; unkempt: blowzy hair. [From obsolete blowze, beggar wench.] — blow'zi-ly adv. — blow'zi-ness n.

BLS abbr. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

B.L.S. abbr. Bachelor of Library Science.

BLT (bē'ēl-tē') n. pl. BLT's or BLTs. A bacon, lettuce, and tomato sandwich.

blub-ber¹ (blŭb'ər) v. blub-bered, blub-ber-ing, blub-bers. — v. intr. To sob noisily. See Synonyms at cry. — v. tr. 1. To utter while crying and sobbing.

2. To make wet and swollen by weeping. — n. A loud sobbing. [Middle English bluberen, to bubble, from bluber, foam.] — blub/ber-er n. — blub/ber-ing-ly adv.

blub·ber² (blüb'ər) n. 1. The thick layer of fat between the skin and the muscle layers of whales and other marine mammals, from which an oil is obtained.

2. Excessive body fat. 3. A large sea nettle or medusa. — adj. Swollen and protruding: blubber cheeks. [Middle English bluber, foam.] — blub/ber-y adj.

blu·cher (blōō'chər, -kər) n. 1. A high shoe or half boot. 2. A shoe having the vamp and tongue made of one piece and the quarters lapping over the vamp.

[After Gebhard Leberecht von BLÜCHER.]

Blü·cher (blōō'kər, -chər, -KHƏr), Gebhard Leberecht von Prince of Wahlstatt. 1742-1819. Prussian field marshal whose leadership of the Prussian army was crucial in the campaigns against Napoleon.

bludg·eon (blŭj'ən) n. A short, heavy club, usually of wood, that is thicker or loaded at one end. — v. tr. bludg·eoned, bludg·eon-ing, bludg·eons.

1. To hit with or as if with a heavy club. 2. To overcome by or as if by using a heavy club. See Synonyms at intimidate. [Origin unknown.] — bludg/eon-er, bludg/eon-eer' (-ə-nîr') n.

WORD HISTORY: The origin of some words is simply not known, and bludgeon is one such word. An interesting suggestion is that this word for a club used as a weapon comes from cant, the secret jargon of people such as thieves and beggars, and is related to the word blood. We do know that bludgeon is first recorded in a dictionary in 1730, while its first recorded use in running text (1755) is simple and to the point: "These villains... knocked him down with a bludgeon."

blue (blōō) n. 1. Abbr. bl. Color. The hue of that portion of the visible spectrum lying between green and indigo, evoked in the human observer by radiant energy with wavelengths of approximately 450 to 490 nanometers; any of a group of colors that may vary in lightness and saturation, whose hue is that of a clear daytime sky; one of the additive or light primaries; one of the psychological primary hues.

2. a. A pigment or dye imparting this hue. b. Bluining. 3. a. An object having this hue. b. Dress or clothing of this hue: The ushers wore blue. 4. a. A person who wears a blue uniform. b. blues. A dress blue uniform, especially that of the U.S. Army. 5. Often Blue. a. A member of the Union Army in the Civil War. b. The Union Army. 6. A bluefish. 7. A small blue butterfly of the family Lycaenidae. 8. a. The sky. b. The sea. — adj. blu-er, blu-est. 1. Color. Of the color blue. 2. Bluish or having parts that are blue or bluish, as the blue spruce and the blue whale. 3. Having a gray or purplish color, as from cold or contusion. 4. Wearing blue. 5. a. Gloomy; depressed. See Synonyms at depressed. b. Dismal; dreary: a blue day. 6. Puritanical; strict. 7. Aristocratic; patrician.

8. Indecent; risqué: a blue joke; a blue movie. — v. tr. intr. blued, blu-ing, blues. To make or become blue. — idioms. blue in the face. To the point or at the point of extreme exasperation: I argued with them until I was blue in the face. into the blue. At a far distance; into the unknown. out of the blue.

3. From an unexpected or unforeseen source: criticism that came out of the blue.
4. At a completely unexpected time: arrived out of the blue. [Middle English blue, bleu, from Old French bleu, of Germanic origin. See bhel¹ in Appendix.]

—blue'ly adv. —blue'ness n.

blue angel (blōō ān'jəl) n. Slang. A blue devil.

blue baby (blōō bā'bē) n. An infant born with cyanosis as a result of a congenital cardiac or pulmonary defect that causes inadequate oxygenation of the blood.

blue-back salmon (blōō'bāk' sām'ən) n. See sockeye salmon.

blue-beard (blōō'bīrd') n. A man who first marries and then murders one wife after another. [After Blue Beard, translation of French Barbe Bleue, a character in a story by Charles Perrault (1628-1703).]

blue-bell (blōō'běl') also blue-bells (-bēlz') n. 1. Any of several bulbous plants of the genus Endymion in the lily family, native to western Europe and northwest Africa and having racemes of usually blue to pink bell-shaped flowers. Also called wood hyacinth 2. Any of numerous plants of the genus Mertensia, especially the Virginia bluebells. 3. See harebell. 4. Any of several other plants having bluish, usually bell-shaped flowers.

blue-ber-ry (blōō'bēr'ē) n. 1. Any of numerous plants of the genus Vaccinium, having white to reddish, urn-shaped or tubular flowers and edible blue to blue-black berries. 2. The fruit of any of these plants. Also called bilberry blue-bill (blōō'bīl') n. See scaup.

blue-bird (blōō'bīrd') n. Any of several North American songbirds of the genus Sialia, having blue plumage and usually a rust-colored breast in the male.

blue-black (blōō'blāk') adj. Color. Very dark blue.

blue blood also blue-blood (blōō'blūd') n. 1. Noble or aristocratic descent. 2. A member of the aristocracy. [Translation of Spanish sangre azul: sangre, blood + azul, blue (probably from the visible veins of fair-complexioned aristocrats).] —blue'-blood'ed adj.

blue-bon-net (blōō'bōn'īt) n. 1. Either of two annual lupines (Lupinus texensis and L. subcarnosus), native to Texas and having palmately compound leaves and light blue flowers. Also called Texas bluebonnet 2. a. A broad, blue woolen cap worn in Scotland. b. A person wearing such a cap.

blue book also blue-book (blōō'bōök') n. 1. An official list of persons in the employ of the U.S. government. 2. A book listing the names of socially prominent people. 3. A blank notebook with blue covers in which to write the answers to examination questions.

blue-bot-tle (blōō'bōt'1) n. Any of several flies of the genus Calliphora that have a bright metallic-blue body and breed in decaying organic matter.

blue box also blue-box (blōō'bōks') n. Slang. An electronic device having a tone pulsator that prevents telephone equipment from registering long-distance charges.

blue catfish (blōō kăt'fīsh') n. A large, bluish freshwater catfish (Ictalurus furcatus) of the Mississippi River valley, often weighing more than 45 kilograms (100 pounds). Also called blue cat blue cheese (blōō chēz) n. A semisoft cheese made of cow's milk and having a greenish-blue mold and flavor similar to Roquefort cheese. Also called bleu cheese blue chip (blōō chīp) also blue-chip-per (blōō'chīp'ər) n. 1. A stock that sells at a high price because of public confidence in its long record of steady earnings.

2. An extremely valuable asset or property. 3. Games. A blue poker chip of high value. —blue'-chip' adj.

blue-coat (blōō'kōt') n. A person who wears a blue uniform, especially a police officer. —blue'coat'ed adj.

blue cohosh (blōō kō'hōsh') n. A perennial herb (Caulophyllum thalictroides) of eastern North America, having a ternately compound leaf, small yellow-green or purplish flowers, and blue berrylike seeds.

blue-col-lar (blōō'kōl'ər) adj. Of or relating to wage earners, especially as a class, whose jobs are performed in work clothes and often involve manual labor. —blue'-col'lar n.

blue crab (blōō krăb) n. An edible, bluish swimming crab (Callinectes sepibus) that has a wide distribution along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts of North America.

blue-curls also blue curls (blōō'kûrlz') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Any of several North American plants of the genus Trichostema in the mint family, having clusters of mostly bluish or purplish flowers with long, curved stamens.

blue devil (blōō dēv'əl) n. 1. Slang. A blue capsule or tablet containing barbiturate amobarbital or its sodium derivative. 2. blue devils. Informal. A feeling of depression; despondency.

blue-eyed grass (blōō'īd' grăs) n. Any of various New World perennial herbs of the genus Sisyrinchium having grasslike leaves and small blue, white, or yellow flowers.

blue-eyed Mary (blōō'īd' mâr'ē) n. An annual North American herb (Collinsia verna) having bicolored flowers with two lips. Also called innocence Blue-field (blōō'fēld') A city of southern West Virginia in the Allegheny Mountains south-southeast of Charleston. It is a trade and shipping center in a coal-mining region. Population, 16,060.

blue-fin tuna (blōōfīn' tōō'nə) n. A very large tuna (Thunnus thynnus) of temperate waters. It is an important commercial and eating variety.

blue-fish (blōō'fish') n. pl. bluefish or blue-fish-es. 1. A voracious food and game fish (Pomatomus saltatrix) of temperate and tropical waters of the Atlantic and Indian oceans. 2. Any of various fishes that are predominantly blue, such as the pollack.

blue flag (blōō fläg) n. Any of several irises having blue or blue-violet flowers, especially Iris versicolor of eastern North America.

blue flu (blōō flōō) n. A sickout, especially by uniformed police officers. [From the blue color of most police officers' uniforms.]

blue fox (blōō föks) n. 1. An arctic fox whose fur is bluish gray during a color phase typically occurring in the summer or extending throughout the year.

2. The fur of such a fox.

blue-gill (blōō'gĭl') n. A common edible sunfish (Lepomis macrochirus) of North American lakes and streams.

blue-grass (blōō'gräs') n. 1. Also blue grass. Any of various grasses of the genus Poa, including many valuable lawn and pasture plants, such as Kentucky bluegrass, and also some weeds. 2. Music. A type of folk music that originated in the southern United States, typically played on banjos and guitars and characterized by rapid tempos and jazzlike improvisation.

Blue-grass also Blue-grass Country or Blue-grass Region (blōō'gräs') A region of central Kentucky noted for its lushly growing bluegrass and the breeding of thoroughbred horses.

blue-green alga (blōō'grēn' älgə) n. See cyanobacterium.

blue grouse (blōō grous) n. A wildfowl (Dendragapus obscurus) of western North America, having predominantly gray plumage. Also called dusky grouse, sooty grouse.

blue gum (blōō gŭm) n. A tall timber tree (Eucalyptus globulus) of Australia, having smooth, bluish deciduous bark, and lance-shaped aromatic leaves.

blue heaven (blōō hēv'ən) n. Slang. A blue devil.

blue heron (blōō hēr'ən) n. Any of several varieties of heron with blue or blue-gray plumage.

blue-ing (blōō'ing) n. Variant of bluing.

blue-ish (blōō'ish) adj. Variant of bluish.

Blue Island (blōō ī'lənd) A city of northeast Illinois, a residential and industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 21,203.

blue-jack-et (blōō'jäk'it) n. An enlisted person in the U.S. or British Navy; a sailor.

blue jay (blōō jā) n. A North American bird (Cyanocitta cristata) having a crested head, predominantly blue plumage, and a harsh, noisy cry.

blue-jeaned (blōō'jēnd') adj. 1. Wearing blue jeans. 2. Characteristic or suggestive of blue jeans: a blue-jeaned look and a down-home attitude.

blue jeans also blue-jeans (blōō'jēnz') pl.n. Clothes, especially pants, made of blue denim.

blue law (blōō lô) n. 1. A law designed to regulate Sunday activities, such as shopping in retail stores. 2. One of a body of laws in colonial New England designed to enforce certain moral standards and particularly to prohibit specified forms of entertainment or recreation on Sundays.

Blue Lodge (blōō lõj) n. A Freemasonry lodge in which the first three degrees, bearing blue decorations, are conferred.

blue moon (blōō mōōn) n. Informal. A relatively long period of time: I haven't seen you in a blue moon.

Blue Mountains (blōō moun'tənz) A range of northeast Oregon and south-east Washington consisting of an uplifted, eroded part of the Columbia Plateau. It rises to 2,777.3 m (9,106 ft) at Rock Creek Butte in Oregon.

Blue Nile (blōō nīl) A river of northeast Africa. It is the chief headstream of the Nile and flows about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) from northwest Ethiopia to Sudan. At Khartoum it merges with the White Nile to form the Nile River proper.

blue-nose (blōō'nōz') n. A puritanical person: "Bluenoses demand restraint against the porn and violence that are the staple of popular culture" (Charles Krauthammer). —blue-nosed' adj.

blue note (blōō nōt) n. Music. A flatted note, especially the third or seventh note of a chord, in place of an expected major interval. [From its use in blues music.]

blue-pen-cil (blōō'pēn'səl) v. tr. blue-pen-ciled also blue-pen-cilled, blue-pen-cil-ing also blue-pen-cil-ling, blue-pen-cils also blue-pen-cils. To edit, revise, or correct with or as if with a blue pencil.

blue pe-ter (blōō pē'tər) n. Nautical. A blue flag with a white square in the center, flown to signal that a ship is ready to sail. [From the fact that it represents the letter P in the International Code of Symbols.]

blue pike (blōō pīk) n. A freshwater food and game fish (Strizostedion vitreum glaucum) found in the Great Lakes. It is a variety of the walleye. Also called blue pikeperch, blue walleye.

blue-plate (blōō'plāt') adj. Being a main course of a restaurant meal usually offered at a special price: a blue-plate lunch. [Perhaps from the blue-patterned plate on which such meals were originally served.]

blue-point also blue point (blōō'point') n. A type of small oyster found chiefly in eastern coastal waters and usually eaten raw. [After Blue Point, a locality on Great South Bay, Long Island, New York.]

blue point (blōō point) n. A variety of a domestic cat, especially the Siamese, with a bluish-white coat and darker bluish-gray points.

blue-print (blōō'prīnt') n. 1. A photographic reproduction, as of architectural plans or technical drawings, rendered as white lines on a blue background. Also called cyanotype 2. A detailed plan of action. See Synonyms at plan. — v. tr.

blue-print-ed, blue-print-ing, blue-prints. 1. To make a blueprint of. 2. To lay a plan for.

blue racer (blōō rā'sər) n. A bluish-green, harmless variety (Coluber constrictor flaviventris) of the blacksnake, found in the central United States.

blue ribbon (blōō rīb'ən) n. 1. An emblem, badge, or rosette made of blue ribbon that is awarded as the first prize in a competition. 2. An award or honor given for excellence. —blue'-rib'bon (blōō'rīb'ən) adj.

blue-ribbon jury (blōō'rīb'ən jūr'ē) n. Law. A jury whose members have been selected for their special qualifications, such as higher education, that supposedly enable them to deal with complex legal issues. Also called blue-ribbon panel, special jury.

Blue Ridge also Blue Ridge Mountains (blōō rij) A range of the Appalachian Mountains extending from southern Pennsylvania to northern Georgia. It rises to 2,038.6 m (6,684 ft) at Mount Mitchell in the Black Mountains of western North Carolina.

blue runner (blōō rŭn'ər) n. See runner (n., sense 16).

blues (blōōz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. A state of depression or melancholy: The blues has finally gotten me today. I really have the blues today.

2. Music. A style of music evolved from southern Black American secular songs and usually distinguished by slow tempo and flatted thirds and sevenths. [Short for BLUE DEVILS.] —blues'man n. —blues'y adj.

blue shark (blōō shärk) n. A pelagic shark (Prionace glauca) of tropical and temperate oceans that is a brilliant dark blue on top. It occasionally attacks people.

blue shift (blōō shift) n. A decrease in the wavelength of radiation emitted by an approaching celestial body as a consequence of the Doppler effect. [From the fact that the shorter wavelengths of light are at the blue end of the visible spectrum.]

blue-sky (blōō'skī') adj. Unrealistic and impractical: blue-sky marketing plans; blue-sky corporate planners.

blue-sky law (blōō'skī' lô) n. A law designed to protect the public from buying fraudulent securities.

Blue Springs (blōō sprīngz) A city of western Missouri, a suburb of Kansas City. Population, 40,153.

blue spruce (blōō sprōōs) n. A Rocky Mountain tree (Picea pungens) having silvery-blue or blue-green, four-angled, needlelike leaves and cylindrical cones. It is extensively cultivated as an ornamental. Also called Colorado blue spruce blues-rock (blōōz'rōrk') n. Music. A style of music that combines blues and rock 'n' roll.

blue-stem (blōō'stēm') n. Any of several chiefly North American grasses of the genera Andropogon, Bothriochloa, and Schizachyrium, some of which are important prairie grasses.

blue-stock-ing (blōō'stōk'īng) n. A woman with strong scholarly or literary interests. [After the Blue Stocking Society, a nickname for a predominantly female literary club of 18th-century London.] —blue/stock'ing adj.

blue-stone (blōō'stōn') n. 1. A bluish-gray sandstone used for paving and building. 2. A stone similar to this kind of sandstone.

blue streak (blōō strēk) n. Informal. 1. Something moving very fast. 2. A rapid and seemingly interminable stream of words. [Probably in allusion to a bolt of lightning.]

blue-tongue (blōō'tūng') n. A viral disease of sheep and cattle that is transmitted by biting insects and is characterized by fever, the formation of oral lesions, and swelling and cyanosis of the lips and tongue.

blu-ets (blōō'īts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Any of several herbs of the genus Hedyotis, especially the low-growing H. caerulea of eastern North America, which has blue flowers with yellow centers. Also called Quaker-ladies [Middle English, from bleu, blue. See BLUE.]

blue vitriol (blōō vīt'rē-ōl') n. A blue, crystalline hydrous solution of copper sulfate, $\text{CuSO}_4 \cdot 5\text{H}_2\text{O}$, one of the most important industrial copper salts, used in insecticides, germicides, and hair dyes and in the processing of leather and textiles.

blue walleye (blōō wōl'ī') n. See blue pike.

blue-weed (blōō'wēd') n. A biennial Eurasian plant (Echium vulgare) naturalized as a weed in eastern North America and having usually blue flowers.

blue whale (blōō hwāl) n. A very large whalebone whale (Sibbaldus musculus) having a bluish-gray back, yellow underparts, and several ventral throat grooves. It is considered the largest living animal, sometimes reaching a length of 30.5 meters (100 feet). Also called sulphur-bottom bluff¹ (blŭf) v. bluffed, bluff-ing, bluffs. — v. tr. 1. To mislead or deceive. 2. To impress, deter, or intimidate by a false display of confidence. 3. Games. To try to mislead (opponents) in a card game by heavy betting on a poor hand or by little or no betting on a good one. — v. intr. To engage in a false display of strength or confidence. — n. 1. The act or practice of bluffing. 2. One that bluffs. [Probably from Dutch bluffen, from Low German.] —bluff/a-ble adj. —bluff'er n.

bluff² (blŭf) n. A steep headland, promontory, riverbank, or cliff. — adj. bluff-er, bluff-est. 1. Rough and blunt but not unkind in manner. See Synonyms at gruff. 2. Having a broad, steep front. [Probably from obsolete Dutch blaf, or Middle Low German blaff, broad.] —bluff'ly adv. —bluff'ness n.

blu-ing also blue-ing (blōō'ing) n. 1. Any of various coloring agents used to counteract the yellowing of laundered fabrics. 2. A rinsing agent used to give a silver tint to gray or graying hair.

blu-ish also blue-ish (blōō'ish) adj. Somewhat blue. —blu'ish-ness n.

Blum (blōōm), Léon. 1872-1950. French socialist politician who served as premier (1936-1937, 1938, and 1946-1947). He was imprisoned (1940-1945) by the Vichy government during World War II.

Blum-berg (blūm'bərg, blōōm'-), Baruch Samuel. Born 1925. American virologist. He shared a 1976 Nobel Prize for research on the origin and spread of infectious diseases.

Blu-me-nau (blōō'mī-nou') A town of southern Brazil southwest of São Paulo. It was founded by German immigrants in the 1850's. Population, 144,785.

Blu-men-bach (blōō'mən-bāk', -bākH'), Johann Friedrich. 1752-1840.

German pioneer zoologist and anthropologist who divided the species Homo sapiens into five subclassifications.

Blun-den (blūn'dən), Edmund Charles. 1896-1974. British writer primarily known for his poetry and the prose work Undertones of War (1928), reflections on his World War I experiences.

blun-der (blūn'dər) n. A usually serious mistake typically caused by ignorance or confusion. — v. blun-dered, blun-der-ing, blun-ders. — v. intr. 1. To move clumsily or blindly. 2. To make a usually serious mistake. — v. tr. 1. To make a stupid, usually serious error in; botch. 2. To utter (something) stupidly or thoughtlessly. [From Middle English blunderen, to go blindly, perhaps from Old Swedish blundra, have one's eyes closed, from Old Norse blunda.] —blun'der-er n. —blun'der-ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: blunder, bumble, flounder, lumber, lurch, stumble. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to move awkwardly or unsteadily": blundered into the room and fell; flies bumping against the open jam jar; floundered up the muddy mountain trail; a wagon lumbering along an unpaved road; twisted her ankle and lurched home; stumbled but regained his balance.

blun-der-buss (blūn'dər-būs') n. 1. A short musket of wide bore and flaring muzzle, formerly used to scatter shot at close range. 2. A person regarded as clumsy and stupid. [Alteration of Dutch donderbus: donder, thunder (from Middle Dutch doner); see (s)tenə- in Appendix + bus, gun (from Middle Dutch busse, tube, from Latin buxis, box); see BOX¹.]

blunt (blünt) adj. blunt-er, blunt-est. 1. Having a dull edge or end; not sharp. 2. Abrupt and often disconcertingly frank in speech: "Onscreen, John Wayne was a blunt talker and straight shooter" (Time). See Synonyms at gruff. 3. Slow to understand or perceive; dull. 4. Lacking in feeling; insensitive. — v. blunt-ed, blunt-ing, blunts. — v. tr. 1. To dull the edge of. 2. To make less effective; weaken: blunting the criticism with a smile. — v. intr. To become blunt. [Middle English.] —blunt/ly adv. —blunt/ness n.

blur (blûr) v. blurred, blur-ring, blurs. — v. tr. 1. To make indistinct and hazy in outline or appearance; obscure. 2. To smear or stain; smudge. 3. To lessen the perception of; dim: “For street children... drugs offer the chance to blur their hopeless poverty” (Alma Guillermoprieto). — v. intr. 1. To become indistinct. 2. To make smudges or stains by smearing. — n. 1. A smear or blot; a smudge. 2. Something that is hazy and indistinct to the sight or mind. [Probably; akin to Middle English bleren, to blear.] —blur/ri-ness n. —blur/ry adj.

blurb (blûrb) n. A brief publicity notice, as on a book jacket. [Coined by Gelett Burgess (1866-1951), American humorist.] —blurb v.

blurt (blûrt) v. tr. blurt-ed, blurt-ing, blurts. To utter suddenly and impulsively: blurt a confession. [Probably imitative.] —blurt'er n.

blush (blüşh) v. intr. blushed, blush-ing, blush-es. 1. To become red in the face, especially from modesty, embarrassment, or shame; flush. 2. To become red or rosy. 3. To feel embarrassed or ashamed: blushed at his own audacity. — n. 1. A reddening of the face, especially from modesty, embarrassment, or shame. 2. A red or rosy color: the blush of dawn. 3. A glance, look, or view: thought the painting genuine at first blush. 4. Blusher. [Middle English blushen, from Old English blyscan. See bhel-¹ in Appendix.] —blush/ful adj. —blush-ing-ly adv.

blush-er (blüşh'ər) n. Makeup used on the face and especially on the cheekbones to give a usually rosy tint.

blush wine (blüşh wīn) n. Any of several wines having a slightly pink tinge, similar in style to a dry white wine and made from red-white grapes.

blus-ter (blüs'tər) v. blus-tered, blus-ter-ing, blus-ters. — v. intr. 1. To blow in loud, violent gusts, as the wind during a storm. 2. a. To speak in a loudly arrogant or bullying manner. b. To brag or make loud, empty threats. — v. tr. To force or bully with swaggering threats. — n. 1. A violent, gusty wind. 2. Turbulence or noisy confusion. 3. Loud, arrogant speech, often full of empty threats. [Middle English blusteren, from Middle Low German blüsteren.] —blus'ter-er n. —blus'ter-y, blus'ter-ous adj.

blvd. or Blvd. abbr. Boulevard.

Bly (blī), Nellie. See Elizabeth Cochrane Seaman.

B lymphocyte also B-lym-pho-cyte (bē'līm'fə-sīt') n. See B cell. [b(ursa-dependent) + LYMPHOCYTE.]

Blyth (blī, blīth) A municipal borough of northeast England on the North Sea at the mouth of the Blyth River. It is an industrial center and a seaport. Population, 78,200.

Blythe·ville (blī'vəl, blīth'vīl') A city of northeast Arkansas near the Mississippi River north of Memphis, Tennessee. It is a trade center in a cotton-growing area. Population, 22,906.

BM abbr. Physiology. Basal metabolism.

bm. abbr. Beam.

b.m. abbr. 1. Board measure. 2. Bowel movement.

B.M. abbr. 1. Bachelor of Medicine. 2. Bachelor of Music.

B.M.E. abbr. 1. Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering. 2. Bachelor of Mining Engineering. 3. Bachelor of Music Education.

B movie (bē' mōō'vē) n. See B picture.

BMR abbr. Physiology. Basal metabolic rate.

B.M.S. abbr. Bachelor of Marine Science.

B.Mus. abbr. Bachelor of Music.

BMX abbr. Sports. Bicycle motocross.

Bn. or bn. abbr. 1. Baron. 2. Battalion.

B'nai B'rith (bnā'brīth') n. A Jewish international service organization.

[Hebrew bēnê bērit, sons of the covenant.]

bo·a (bō'ə) n. 1. Any of various large, nonvenomous, chiefly tropical snakes of the family Boidae, which includes the python, anaconda, boa constrictor, and other snakes that coil around and suffocate their prey. 2. A long fluffy scarf made of soft material, such as fur or feathers. [Middle English, from Latin boa, a large water snake.]

Bo·ab·dil (bō'əb-dēl', bō'əb-thēl'), Originally Abu Abdallah. Died c. 1527. Last Moorish king of Granada (1482-1483 and 1486-1492).

boa constrictor (bō'ə kən-strīk'tər) n. A large boa (Constrictor constrictor) of tropical America that has brown markings and kills its prey by constriction.

Bo·ad·i·ce·a (bō'ād-ī-sē'ə) See Boudicca.

boar (bōr, bōr) n. 1. a. An uncastrated male pig. b. The adult male of any of several mammals, such as the beaver, raccoon, or guinea pig. 2. The wild boar. [Middle English bor, from Old English bār.]

board (bōrd, bōrd) n. Abbr. bd. 1. A long, flat slab of sawed lumber; a plank. 2. A flat piece of wood or similarly rigid material adapted for a special use. 3. Games. A flat surface on which a game is played. 4. The hard cover of a book. 5. boards. A theater stage. 6. a. A table, especially one set for serving food. b. Food or meals considered as a whole: board and lodging. 7. A table at which official meetings are held; a council table. 8. An organized body of administrators or investigators: a board of trustees; a board of directors. 9. An electrical-equipment panel. 10. Computer Science. A circuit board. 11. Sports. a. A scoreboard. b. Basketball. A backboard. c. boards. The wooden structure enclosing an ice hockey rink. d. A diving board. e. A surfboard. 12. Nautical. a. The side of a ship. b. A leeboard. c. A centerboard. 13. Obsolete. A border or an edge.

— v. board-ed, board-ing, boards. — v. tr. 1. To cover or close with boards: board up a broken window. 2. a. To furnish with meals in return for pay. b. To house where board is furnished: board a horse at a stable. 3. a. To enter or go aboard (a vehicle or ship). b. Nautical. To come alongside (a ship). 4. Obsolete. To approach. — v. intr. To receive meals in return for pay. — idiom. On board. 1. Aboard. 2. On the job. [Middle English bord, from Old English.]

board certification (bôrd sûr'tə-fĩ-kā'shən) n. The process by which a person is tested and approved to practice in a specialty field, especially medicine, after successfully completing the requirements of a board of specialists in that field. For a physician, board certification is required in order to have the privilege of practicing in a hospital.

board-cer-ti-fied (bôrd'sûr'tə-fid', bôrd'-) adj. Having completed the process of board certification in a specialty field. Used chiefly of physicians: The hospital maintains a staff of board-certified surgeons and anesthesiologists.

board-er¹ (bôr'dər, bôr'-) n. One who boards, especially one who pays a stipulated sum in return for regular meals or for meals and lodging.

board-er² (bôr'dər, bôr'-) n. Sports. 1. A person who skies. 2. One who rides a skateboard. 3. One who uses a snowboard.

boarder baby (bôr'dər bā'bē) n. An infant, often the offspring of drug addicts or AIDS victims, who remains for months, sometimes up to a year, at the hospital where he or she was born, waiting for placement in a home.

board foot (bôrd fōöt) n. pl. board feet. Abbr. bd. ft., bf, b.f., bf. A unit of cubic measure for lumber, equal to one foot square by one inch thick.

board game (bôrd gām) n. Games. A game of strategy, such as chess or backgammon, played by moving pieces on a board and sometimes involving dice.

board-ing house also board-ing-house (bôr'dĩng-hous', bôr'-) n. A house where paying guests are provided with meals and lodging.

boarding school (bôr'dĩng-hous' skōōl) n. A school where pupils are provided with meals and lodging.

board measure (bôrd mēzh'ər) n. Abbr. b.m. Measurement in board feet.

board of education (bôrd ūv ěj'ə-kā'shən) n. pl. boards of education. A school board.

board of trade (bôrd ūv trād) n. pl. boards of trade. An association of bankers and business people to promote common commercial interests.

board-room (bôrd'rōōm', -rōōm', bôrd'-) n. The room where the members of a board meet.

board rule (bôrd rōōl) n. A measuring stick for determining board feet.

board-sail-ing (bôrd'sā'ling, bôrd'-) n. Sports. See windsurfing. — board sailor n.

board-walk (bôrd'wôk', bôrd'-) n. 1. A walk made of wooden planks. 2. A promenade, especially of planks, along a beach or waterfront.

boar-fish (bôr'fish, bôr'-) n. pl. boarfish or boar-fish-es. Any of several marine fishes of the genus Antigonia, having a deep, flattened body, a projecting snout, and bright red coloring.

boar-hound (bôr'hound', bôr'-) n. A large dog, such as the Great Dane, used originally for hunting wild boars.

Bo-as (bô'ăz), Franz. 1858-1942. German-born American anthropologist who emphasized the systematic analysis of culture and language structures.

boast¹ (bôst) v. boast-ed, boast-ing, boasts. — v. intr. To glorify oneself in speech; talk in a self-admiring way. — v. tr. 1. To speak of with excessive pride. 2. Usage Problem. To possess or own (a desirable feature): “[the] capital of a region in the southeast that boasts bountiful coal fields” (US Air). 3. To contain; have. — n. 1. The act or an instance of bragging. 2. A source of pride. [Middle English bosten, from bost, a brag.] —boast'er n. —boast'ful adj. —boast'ful-ly adv. —boast'ful-ness n.

SYNONYMS: boast, brag, crow, vaunt. These verbs all mean to speak with pride, often excessive pride, about oneself or something, such as one's possessions, related to oneself. Boast is the most general: “We confide [i.e., have confidence] in our strength, without boasting of it; we respect that of others, without fearing it” (Thomas Jefferson). Brag implies exaggerated claims and often an air of insolent superiority: He bragged that his father was the most successful stockbroker on Wall Street. Crow stresses exultation and loud rejoicing, as over a victory: No candidate should crow until the votes have been counted. Vaunt suggests ostentatiousness and lofty extravagance of expression: “an elite that... vaunts diplomacy over national security concerns” (Jim Hoagland).

USAGE NOTE: Some have objected to the use of boast as a transitive verb meaning “to possess or own (a desirable feature),” as in This network boasts an audience with a greater concentration of professionals and managers than any other broadcast vehicle. This usage is by now well established, however, and is acceptable to 62 percent of the Usage Panel.

boast² (bôst) v. tr. boast-ed, boast-ing, boasts. To shape or form (stone) roughly with a broad chisel. [Origin unknown.]

boat (bôt) n. 1. Nautical. a. A relatively small, usually open craft of a size that might be carried aboard a ship. b. An inland vessel of any size. c. A ship or submarine. 2. A dish shaped like a boat: a sauce boat. — v. boat-ed, boat-ing, boats. Nautical. — v. intr. 1. To travel by boat. 2. To ride a boat for pleasure. — v. tr. 1. To transport by boat. 2. To place in a boat. —idiom. in the same boat. In the same situation as another or others. [Middle English bot, from Old English bāt. See bheid- in Appendix.]

boat-bill (bōt'bil') n. A tropical American wading bird (Cochlearius cochlearius) having a large bill shaped like an inverted boat. Also called boat-billed heron boat-billed heron (bōt'bīld' hēr'ən) n. See boatbill.

boat-er (bō'tər) n. 1. Nautical. One that drives or rides in a boat, especially a pleasure craft. 2. A stiff straw hat with a flat crown.

boat hook (bōt hōök) n. A pole with a metal point and hook at one end used especially to maneuver logs, rafts, and boats.

boat-house (bōt'hous') n. A building at the water's edge in which boats are kept.

boat-lift (bōt'līft') n. An unofficial system of transporting supplies and people, especially refugees, from one country to another by boats that are often dangerously overcrowded. [BOAT + (AIR)LIFT.] — boat/lift' v.

boat-load (bōt'lōd') n. The number of passengers or the amount of cargo that a boat can hold.

boat-man (bōt'mən) n. One who works on, deals with, or operates boats.
— boat/man-ship' n.

boat people (bōt pē'pəl) pl.n. Refugees, usually political ones, who attempt to flee from their native country to other countries by boat: "hundreds of thousands of boat people descending on the nation, arms outstretched in need" (Jerry Adler).

boat-swain also bo's'n or bos'n or bo-sun (bō'sən) n. A warrant officer or petty officer in charge of a ship's rigging, anchors, cables, and deck crew. [Middle English botswein : bot, boat; see BOAT + swein, mate; see SWAIN.]

boat-swain's chair (bōsənz châr) n. Nautical. A short board secured by ropes and used as a seat by sailors when working aloft or over a ship's side.

boat train (bōt trān) n. A train that regularly carries passengers between a city and a port.

Bo-az (bō'áz) In the Old Testament, the husband of Ruth.

bob¹ (bōb) v. bobbed, bob-bing, bobs. — v. tr. 1. To hit lightly and quickly; tap. 2. To cause to move up and down: bobbed my head in response to the question. — v. intr. 1. To move up and down: a cork bobbing on the water. 2. To grab at floating or hanging objects with the teeth: bobbed for apples. 3. To curtsy or bow. — n. 1. A tap or light blow. 2. A quick, jerky movement of the head or body. — phrasal verb. bob up. To appear or arise unexpectedly or suddenly. [Middle English bobben.]

bob² (bōb) n. 1. A small, knoblike pendent object, such as a plumb bob. 2. A fishing float or cork. 3. A small lock or curl of hair. 4. A woman's or child's short haircut. 5. Informal. Surgical shortening or reshaping of the nose. 6. The docked tail of a horse. 7. a. A bobsled. b. A bob skate. — v. bobbed, bob-bing, bobs. — v. intr. To fish with a bob. — v. tr. To cut short or reshape: bobbed her hair; had his nose bobbed. [Middle English bobbe, cluster of fruit.] — bob'ber n.

bob³ (bɒb) n. pl. bob. Chiefly British. A shilling. [Origin unknown.]

Bo·ba·di·lla (bō'bə-dēl'yə, -dē'yə, bō'vā-thēl'yä, -thē'-), Francisco de. Died 1502. Spanish colonial administrator who succeeded Columbus as viceroy of the Indies (1499-1502).

bob·bin (bɒb'in) n. 1. A spool or reel that holds thread or yarn for spinning, weaving, knitting, sewing, or making lace. 2. Narrow braid formerly used as trimming. [French bobine.] bob·bi·net (bɒb'ə-nět') n. A machine-woven net fabric with hexagonal meshes. [BOBBI(N) + NET¹.]

bobbin lace (bɒb'in lās) n. An intricate handmade lace made by interlacing thread around small notched pins or bobbins stuck into a pillow. Also called pillow lace, point.

bob·ble (bɒb'əl) v. bob·bled, bob·bling, bob·bles. — v. intr. To bob up and down. — v. tr. To lose one's grip on (a ball, for example) momentarily. — n. A mistake or blunder. [From BOB¹.]

bob·by (bɒb'ē) n. pl. bob·bies. Chiefly British. A police officer. [After Sir Robert PEEL, home secretary of England when the Metropolitan Police Force was created in 1829.]

bobby pin (bɒb'ē pɪn) n. A small metal hair clip with the ends pressed tightly together. [From BOB².]

bobby socks also bobby sox (bɒb'ē sɒks) pl.n. Informal. Ankle socks worn by girls or women. [Possibly from BOB² (influenced by BOBBY PIN).]

bob·by·sox·er also bobby sox·er (bɒb'ē-sɒk'sər) n. Informal. A teenage girl.

bob·cat (bɒb'kăt') n. A wild cat (Lynx rufus) of North America, having spotted reddish-brown fur, tufted ears, and a short tail. Also called bay lynx [BOB(TAIL) + CAT.]

bob·o·link (bɒb'ə-lɪŋk') n. An American migratory songbird (Dolichonyx oryzivorus), the male of which has black, white, and yellowish plumage. Also called reedbirdRegional., ricebird. [Imitative of its song.]

Bo·bruisk also Bo·bruysk (bə-brōo'ɪsk) A city of southern Belarus southeast of Minsk. It was founded in the 16th century. Population, 223,000.

bob skate (bɒb skāt) n. Sports. An ice skate with two parallel bearing edges. [Possibly BOB(SLED) + SKATE¹.]

bob·sled (bɒb'slɛd') Sports. n. 1. A long racing sled with a steering mechanism controlling the front runners. 2. a. A long sled made of two shorter sleds joined in tandem. b. Either of these two smaller sleds. — v. intr. bob·sled·ded, bob·sled·ding, bob·sleds. To ride or race in or as if in a bobsled. [BOB² + SLED.]

bob-stay (böb'stā') n. Nautical. A rope or chain used to steady the bowsprit of a ship.

bob-tail (böb'tāl') n. 1. A short or shortened tail. 2. An animal, such as a horse, having a short or shortened tail. 3. Something that has been cut short or abbreviated. —bob'tailed' adj.

bob-white (böb-hwīt', -wīt') n. A small North American quail (Colinus virginianus) having brown plumage with white markings. [Imitative of its call.]

bo-cac-cio (bə-kä'chō, -chē-ō') n. pl. bo-cac-cios. A large, edible rockfish (Sebastes paucispinis) of American Pacific waters. [Italian bocaccio, ugly mouth, diminutive of bocca, mouth, from Latin bucca.]

Bo-ca Ra-ton (bō'kə rə-tōn') A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean south of Palm Beach. It is a resort and industrial center. Population, 61,492.

Boc-cac-cio (bō-kä'chē-ō', -chō'), Giovanni. 1313-1375. French-born Italian poet and writer whose classic work, the Decameron (1351-1353), is a collection of 100 tales set against the melancholic background of the Black Death.

boc-ce or boc-ci or boc-cie (böch'ē) n. Sports. A game of Italian origin similar to bowling that is played with wooden balls on a long, narrow court covered with fine gravel. [Italian bocce, bowls, pl. of boccia, ball.]

Boc-che-ri-ni (bō'kə-rē'nē, bök'ə-, bök'kē-), Luigi. 1743-1805. Italian composer noted for his chamber music and cello concertos.

Boc-cio-ni (bö-chō'nē, bôt-chô'-), Umberto. 1882-1916. Italian artist whose works embodied futurism.

Boche also boche (bösh, bösh) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a German. [French, alteration of Alboche, blend of Allemand, German; see ALLEMANDE, and French dialectal caboche, cabbage, blockhead; see CABBAGE.]

Bo-cholt (bō'kōlt, -KHōlt) A city of west-central Germany near the Netherlands border northwest of Essen. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 65,710.

Bo-chum (bō'kəm, -KHōm) A city of west-central Germany in the Ruhr Valley east of Essen. Chartered in 1321, it is an industrial and commercial center. Population, 384,774.

bock beer (bök bîr) n. A strong dark beer, the first that is drawn from the vats in springtime. [German Bockbier, alteration of Einbeckisch Bier, after Einbeck, a town of north-central West Germany.]

bod (böd) n. Slang. 1. The physical human body; build: “likes brainy men who maintain a good bod” (Catherine Breslin). 2. A person: “When his ancient tank had broken down... he had jumped on the back of mine with a few other bods” (Robert Crisp).

B.O.D. abbr. Biochemical oxygen demand.

bo-da-cious also bow-da-cious (bō-dā'shəs) or bar-da-cious (bär-) Southern U.S. & South Midland U.S. adj. 1. Remarkable; prodigious. 2. Audacious; gutsy. — adv. 1. Completely; extremely. 2. Audaciously; boldly. [Probably from dialectal boldacious, blend of BOLD, and AUDACIOUS.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Popularized in the comic strip Snuffy Smith, bodacious is probably a blend of the words bold and audacious, whose combined senses are evident in the following description of Sevier County, Tennessee, as “the most bodacious display of tourisma this side of Anaheim” (Los Angeles Times). A more traditional meaning is “remarkable, prodigious”: “a bodacious amount of smoke” (Springfield MA Morning Union); “the most bodacious tale of hidden treasure” (Lawrence E. Will). Bodacious can also be an adverbial intensifier: “She’s so bow-dacious unreasonable when she’s raised [irritated]” (William T. Thompson). Black speech in New York City retains this Southernism as bardacious. Joseph Wright’s English Dialect Dictionary cites the form boldacious, which, as the likely source for bodacious, strengthens the theory that some archaic British expressions are preserved in the speech of the American South.

bode¹ (bōd) v. tr. bod·ed, bod·ing, bodes. 1. To be an omen of: heavy seas that boded trouble for small craft. 2. Archaic. To predict; foretell. [Middle English boden, from Old English bodian, to announce. See bheudh- in Appendix.]

bode² (bōd) v. A past tense of bide.

bo·de·ga (bō-dā’gə) n. 1. A small Hispanic grocery store, sometimes combined with a wineshop. 2. A warehouse for the storage of wine. [Spanish, from Latin apothēca, storehouse. See APOTHECARY.]

Bod·en·heim (bōd’n-hīm’), Maxwell. 1893?-1954. American writer of cynical, sometimes grotesque poetry and realistic novels, such as Crazy Man (1924).

Bo·den·see (bōd’n-zā’) See Lake of Constance.

bo·dhi·satt·va (bō’dī-sūt’və) n. Buddhism. An enlightened being who, out of compassion, forgoes nirvana in order to save others. [Sanskrit bodhisattvaḥ, one whose essence is enlightenment : bodhiḥ, perfect knowledge; see bheudh- in Appendix + sattvam, essence, being (from sat-, existing); see es- in Appendix.]

bod·ice (bōd’is) n. 1. The fitted part of a dress that extends from the waist to the shoulder. 2. A woman’s laced outer garment, worn like a vest over a blouse. 3. Obsolete. A corset. [Alteration of bodies, pl. of BODY.]

bod·ied (bōd’ēd) adj. Having a body, especially of a specified kind. Often used in combination: strong-bodied; weak-bodied.

bod·i·less (bōd’ē-līs) adj. Having no body, form, or substance; incorporeal.

bod·i·ly (bōd’l-ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or belonging to the body. 2. Physical as opposed to mental or spiritual: bodily welfare. — adv. 1. In the flesh; in person: bodily but not mentally present. 2. As a complete physical entity: carried the child bodily from the room.

SYNONYMS: bodily, corporal, corporeal, fleshly, physical, somatic. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “of or relating to the human body”: a bodily organ; a corporal defect; corporeal suffering; fleshly frailty; physical robustness; a somatic symptom.

bod·ing (bō'dĭng) n. An omen or foreboding, especially of evil.

bod·kin (bōd'kĭn) n. 1. A small, sharply pointed instrument for making holes in fabric or leather. 2. A blunt needle for pulling tape or ribbon through a series of loops or a hem. 3. A long hairpin, usually with an ornamental head. 4. Printing. An awl or pick for extracting letters from set type. 5. A dagger or stiletto. [Middle English boidekin.]

Bo·do·ni (bō-dō'nē, bə-), Gianbattista. 1740-1813. Italian printer and designer of the Bodoni typeface, which is still widely used.

bod·y (bōd'ē) n. pl. bod·ies. 1. a. The entire material or physical structure of an organism, especially of a human being or an animal. b. The physical part of a person. c. A corpse or carcass. 2. a. The trunk or torso of a human being or an animal. b. The part of a garment covering the torso. 3. a. A human being; a person. b. A group of individuals regarded as an entity; a corporation. 4. A number of persons, concepts, or things regarded as a group: We walked out in a body. 5. The main or central part, as: a. Anatomy. The largest or principal part of an organ; corpus. b. The nave of a church. c. The content of a book or document exclusive of prefatory matter, codicils, indexes, or appendices. d. The passenger- and cargo-carrying part of an aircraft, ship, or other vehicle. e. Music. The sound box of an instrument. 6. A mass or collection of material that is distinct from other masses: a body of water. 7. Consistency of substance, as in paint, textiles, or wine: a sauce with body. 8. Printing. The part of a block of type underlying the impression surface. — v. tr. bod·ied, bod·y·ing, bod·ies. 1. To furnish with a body. 2. To give shape to: “Imagination bodies forth the forms of things unknown” (Shakespeare). [Middle English bodi, from Old English bodig.]

SYNONYMS: body, corpse, carcass, cadaver. These nouns denote the physical organism of a person or an animal. Body refers to material substance, living or dead, especially of a person: “my body to be buried obscurely” (Francis Bacon). Those who smoke abuse their bodies. The word is often used to point up the distinction between material structure and spirit: The battle to keep body and soul together was long and difficult. Corpse refers to the physical remains of a dead person: The corpse of the victim could be removed only after the police had finished photographing the scene of the crime. Carcass primarily denotes the body of a dead animal: “Close to the western summit there is the dried and frozen carcass of a leopard” body bag (böd'ē bǎg) n. A zippered bag, usually of rubber, for transporting a human corpse.

(Ernest Hemingway). The word is applied to a person, alive or dead, only derogatorily or humorously: He exercised strenuously to keep his carcass in good condition. Cadaver is a corpse used for dissection and study: cadavers in the pathology department of the medical school.

body blow (böd'ē blō) n. 1. Sports. A blow delivered to the front of the torso above the waist in boxing. 2. A serious setback; a major disappointment.

bod·y·build·ing (böd'ē-bīl'dīng) n. Sports. The process of developing the musculature of the body through specific types of diet and physical exercise, such as weightlifting, especially for competitive exhibition. —body'y·build'er n.

body bunker (böd'ē būng'kər) n. A portable bulletproof shield used especially by riot police. Also called body shield body cavity (böd'ē kāv'ī-tē) n. See coelom.

body cell (böd'ē səl) n. See somatic cell.

body clock (böd'ē klōk) n. An internal mechanism of the body that is thought to regulate physical and mental functions in rhythm with normal daily activities.

body corporate (böd'ē kôr'pər-īt) n. See corporation (n., sense 2).

body count (böd'ē kount) n. A count of individual bodies, such as those of troops killed in combat operations.

body English (böd'ē ینگ'glīsh) n. 1. The natural or instinctive tendency of a person to try to influence the movement of a propelled object, such as a ball, by twisting his or her body toward the desired goal. 2. The usually irregular movement or spin of a propelled object as if it were influenced by this twisting.

body fluid (böd'ē flōō'īd) n. 1. A natural bodily fluid or secretion of fluid such as blood, semen, or saliva. 2. Total body water, contained principally in blood plasma and in intracellular and interstitial fluids.

bod·y·guard (böd'ē-gärd') n. A person or group of persons, usually armed, responsible for the physical safety of one or more other persons.

body image (böd'ē īm'ij) n. The subjective concept of one's physical appearance based on self-observation and the reactions of others.

body language (böd'ē lǎng'gwīj) n. The bodily gestures, postures, and facial expressions by which a person communicates nonverbally with others.

body louse (böd'ē lous) n. A parasitic louse (Pediculus humanus corporis) that infests the body and clothes of human beings.

body mechanics (böd'ē mī-kǎn'īks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The application of kinesiology to the use of proper body movement in daily activities, to the prevention and correction of problems associated with posture, and to the enhancement of coordination and endurance.

body packer (böd'ē päk'ər) n. A drug smuggler who swallows bags, usually filled with cocaine, to elude drug enforcement officers or customs officials. The bags may rupture and poison the carrier.

body politic (böd'ē pöl'ĩ-tík) n. The people of a politically organized nation or state considered as a group.

body pop-ping (böd'ē pöp'ĩng) n. Slang. A type of dancing characterized by convulsive body movements and mimed robotic gestures.

body search (böd'ē-sûrch') n. A physical search of a person made usually by patting the body with the hands and often by exploring bodily orifices in an attempt to find concealed weapons, explosives, drugs, or other contraband.

—bod'y-search' (böd'ē-sûrch') v.

body shield (böd'ē shēld) n. 1. Any of variously configured devices used to protect the body of a corrections or law enforcement officer, as in a riot. 2. See body bunker.

body shirt (böd'ē shûrt) n. 1. A woman's garment for the torso that is made with a sewn-in or snapped crotch. 2. A tight-fitting shirt or blouse.

body shop (böd'ē shöp) n. A shop or garage where the bodies of automotive vehicles are repaired.

body snatcher (böd'ē snäch'ər) n. 1. A person who steals corpses from graves and sells them, usually for purposes of dissection. 2. Slang. A corporate recruiter. —bod'y-snatch'ing (böd'ē-snäch'ĩng) n.

body stocking (böd'ē stök'ĩng) n. A tight-fitting, usually one-piece garment that covers the torso and sometimes has sleeves and legs.

body suit (böd'ē sōot) n. A tight-fitting one-piece garment for the torso.

bod·y-surf (böd'ē-sûrf') v. intr. bod·y-surfed, bod·y-surf-ing, bod·y-surfs. Sports. To ride the waves to shore without a surfboard.

—bod'y-surf'er n.

body wall (böd'ē wôl) n. The portion of an animal body that consists of ectoderm and mesoderm, forms the external body surface, and encloses the body cavity.

body-work (böd'ē-wûrk') n. 1. The metal or plastic external structure of a motor vehicle. 2. The act or process of repairing the bodies of motor vehicles.

Boeh-me (bœ'mə) or Boehm (bœm), Jakob. See Jakob Böhme.

boehm-ite (bā'mīt', bō'-) n. A white to dark reddish-brown orthorhombic mineral, AlO(OH), present in bauxite. [German Böhmit, after J. Böhm (1858-1930), German scientist.]

Boe·o·tia (bē-ō'shə, -shē-ə) An ancient region of Greece north of Attica and the Gulf of Corinth. The cities of the region formed the Boeotian League in the seventh century B.C. but were usually under the dominance of Thebes.

—Boe·o'tian adj. & n.

Boer (bōr, bōr, bōōr) n. A Dutch colonist or descendant of a Dutch colonist in South Africa. [Afrikaans, from Dutch, farmer, from Middle Dutch gheboer, peasant. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

Bo·e·thi·us (bō-ē'thē-əs), Anicius Manlius Severinus. A.D.480?-524?.

Roman philosopher. Falsely accused of treason, he wrote The Consolation of Philosophy, an account of classical thought, while awaiting his execution.

boff (bōf) n. Slang. 1. A line in a play or film, for example, that elicits a big laugh: "He doesn't go for the big boffs, artificially inflated, but lets his comedy build through a leisurely accumulation of bizarre details" (Vincent Canby). 2. A big laugh. 3. A conspicuous success. Also called boffo, boffola. [Probably from B(OX)OFF(ICE).]

bof·fin also Bof·fin (bōf'fɪn) n. Chiefly British. A scientist, especially one engaged in research. [Origin unknown.]

bof·fo (bōf'fō) Slang. adj. Extremely successful; great. — n. See boff. [Alteration of BOFF.]

bof·fo·la (bōf-ō'lə) n. Slang. See boff. [From BOFF.]

Bo·fors gun (bō'fōrz' gŭn, bōō'-) n. A double-barreled, automatic antiaircraft gun. [After Bofors, a city of south-central Sweden.]

bog (bōg, bōg) n. 1. a. An area having a wet, spongy, acidic substrate composed chiefly of sphagnum moss and peat in which characteristic shrubs and herbs and sometimes trees usually grow. b. Any of certain other wetland areas, such as a fen, having a peat substrate. Also called peat bog 2. An area of soft, naturally waterlogged ground. — v. bogged, bog-ging, bogs. — v. tr. To cause to sink in or as if in a bog: We worried that the heavy rain across the prairie would soon bog our car. Don't bog me down in this mass of detail. — v. intr. To be hindered and slowed. [Irish Gaelic bogach, from bog, soft. See bheug- in Appendix.] — bog'gi·ness n. — bog'gy adj.

Bo·ga·lu·sa (bō'gə-lōō'sə) A city of southeast Louisiana near the Mississippi border north-northeast of New Orleans. It was founded in 1906. Population, 16,976.

Bo·gan (bō'gən), Louise. 1897-1970. American poet whose subtle, spare works are metaphysical in tone.

Bo·gart (bō'gärt), Humphrey DeForest. 1899-1957. American actor who played reticent, tough, but ultimately kind-hearted heroes in films such as Casablanca (1942) and The African Queen (1951), for which he won an Academy Award.

bog asphodel or bog-as-pho-del (bōg'äs'fə-dēl', bōg'-) n. Any of several perennial herbs of the genus Narthecium in the lily family, native to boggy areas in northern temperate regions and having grasslike leaves and clusters of yellow flowers.

bo·gey (bō'gē) n. also bo·gy or bo·gie pl. bo·geys also bo·gies. 1. (also bōög'ē, bōō'gē) An evil or mischievous spirit; a hobgoblin. 2. (also bōög'ē, bōō'gē) A cause of annoyance or harassment. 3. Sports. a. An estimated standard golf score. b. One golf stroke over par on a hole. 4. Slang. An unidentified flying aircraft. 5. Slang. A detective or police officer. — v. tr. bo·geyed, bo·gey·ing, bo·geys. Sports. To shoot (a hole in golf) in one stroke over par. [Possibly variant of BOGLE.]

bog·ey·man or bo·gy·man also boog·ey·man or boog·y·man or boog·ie·man (bōög'ē-măn', bō'gē-, bōō'gē-) n. A terrifying specter; a hobgoblin.

bog·gle (bög'əl) v. bog·gled, bog·gling, bog·gles. — v. intr. 1. To hesitate as if in fear or doubt. 2. To shy away or be overcome with fright or astonishment: “The mind now bogging at all the numbers on the table, both sides agreed to a recess of an hour” (Henry A. Kissinger). 3. To botch; bungle. — v. tr. To cause to be overcome, as with fright or astonishment. [Probably from boggle, dialectal variant of BOGLE.] —bog'gle n. —bog'gler n.

bog hole (bôg hōl) n. A hole containing soft mud or quicksand.

bo·gie¹ also bo·gy (bō'gē) n. pl. bo·gies. 1. A railroad car or locomotive undercarriage with two, four, or six wheels that swivels so curves can be negotiated. 2. One of several wheels or supporting and aligning rollers inside the tread of a tractor or tank. [Origin unknown.]

bo·gie² (bō'gē, bōög'ē, bōō'gē) n. A variant of bogey.

bo·gle (bō'gəl) n. A hobgoblin; a bogey. [Scots bogill.]

Bo·gor (bō'gôr') A city of western Java, Indonesia, south of Jakarta. It is a resort and agricultural research center with notable botanical gardens. Population, 247,409.

Bo·go·tá (bō'gə-tă') The capital and largest city of Colombia, in the central part of the country on a high plain in the eastern Andes. It was a center of Chibcha culture before the Spanish established a settlement in 1538. Population, 3,967,988.

bog rosemary (bôg rōz'mâr'ē) n. Any of several evergreen shrubs of the genus Andromeda, having pink or white urn-shaped flowers grouped in nodding umbels.

Bogsat (bôg'săt', bög'-) or BOGSAT n. Slang. A decision-making process that involves ad hoc judgments made by relatively inexperienced people, typically political or corporate staff members: “Bogsat is, more often than not, an innocent form of cronyism” (John W. Macy). “Most important decisions are still made by BOGSAT” (Dawn Marie Driscoll). [B(unch) o(f) g(uys) s(itting) a(round) a(t)able.]

bog spavin (bôg späv'in) n. A condition in horses in which lymph collects in the hock joint, causing a puffy swelling.

bog-trot-ter (bôg'trôt'ər, böğ'-) n. 1. A person who lives in or frequents bogs.

2. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Irishman.

bo-gus (bō'gəs) adj. Counterfeit or fake. [From English bogus, a device for making counterfeit money.]

bog-wood (bôg'wōd', böğ'-) n. Wood that has been preserved in a peat bog.

bo-gy¹ (bō'gē, böög'ē, bōō'gē) n. Variant of bogey.

bo-gy² (bō'gē) n. Variant of bogie¹.

bo-gy-man (böög'ē-măn', bō'gē-, bōō'gē-) n. Variant of bogeyman.

Bo Hai also Po Hai (bō' hī') An inlet of the Yellow Sea on the northeast coast of China west of the Shandong and Liaodong peninsulas.

bo-hea (bō-hē') n. A black Chinese tea, originally the choicest grade but later an inferior variety. [After the Fujian pronunciation of Chinese (Mandarin) wǔ yí (shān), the Wuyi mountain range on the border of Jiangxi and Fujian provinces.]

bo-he-mi-a (bō-hē'mē-ə) n. 1. A community of persons with artistic or literary tastes who adopt manners and mores conspicuously different from those expected or approved of by the majority of society. 2. The district in which bohemians live. [Back-formation from BOHEMIAN.]

Bo-he-mi-a (bō-hē'mē-ə) A historical region and former kingdom of present-day western Czech Republic. The Czechs, a Slavic people, settled in the area between the 1st and 5th centuries A.D. A later principality was independent until the 15th century, when it passed to Hungary and then to the Hapsburgs. Bohemia became the core of Czechoslovakia in 1918.

bo-he-mi-an (bō-hē'mē-ən) n. A person with artistic or literary interests who disregards conventional standards of behavior. [French bohémien, from Bohême, Bohemia (from the unconventional life style of its Gypsy inhabitants).]

—bo-he'mi-an adj. —bo-he'mi-an-ism n.

Bo-he-mi-an (bō-hē'mē-ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Bohemia. 2. A Gypsy. 3. The Czech dialects of Bohemia. —Bo-he'mi-an adj.

Bohemian Brethren (bō-hē'mē-ən brēth'rən) n. A religious society organized in the 15th century by the Hussites.

Bohemian Forest (bō-hē'mē-ən fôr'ist) A mountain range along the border of southeast Germany and southwest Czech Republic. The region is known for its glassmaking and woodcarving.

Boh-len (bō'lĭn), Charles Eustis. 1904-1974. American ambassador to the Soviet Union (1953-1957), the Philippines (1957-1959), and France (1962-1968).

Böh-me also Boeh-me (bœ'mə) or Boehm (bœm), Jakob. 1575-1624. German theosophist and mystic whose works, including Mysterium Magnum (1623), describe evil as a necessary antithesis to good. He is considered the founder of modern theosophy.

Bo-hol (bō-hôl') An island in the Visayan Islands of central Philippines north of Mindanao in the Bohol Sea. The Bohol Strait separates Bohol from Cebu.

Bohr (bôr, bôr), Niels Henrik David. 1885-1962. Danish physicist. He won a 1922 Nobel Prize for investigating atomic structure and radiations. His son Aage Niels Bohr (born 1922), also a physicist, shared a 1975 Nobel Prize for discovering the asymmetry of atomic nuclei.

Bohr effect (bôr ĭ-fěktʹ) n. Biochemistry. An effect by which an increase of carbon dioxide in the blood results in the dissociation of oxygen from hemoglobin and other respiratory compounds. [After Christian Bohr (1855-1911), Danish physiologist.]

Bohr theory (bôr thēʹə-rē) n. An early model of atomic structure in which electrons travel around the nucleus in a number of discrete stable orbits determined by quantum conditions. [After Niels Henrik David BOHR.]

bo·hunk (bōʹhŭŋk) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a person from east-central Europe, especially a laborer. [Blend of BO(HEMIAN), and HUNG(ARIAN).]

Bo·iar·do (boi-ärʹdō, bō-yärʹ-), Matteo Maria. 1440?-1494. Italian lyric poet known for his unfinished romantic epic Orlando Innamorato (1487).

boil¹ (boil) v. boiled, boil·ing, boils. — v. intr. 1. a. To change from a liquid to a vapor by the application of heat: All the water boiled away and left the kettle dry. b. To reach the boiling point. c. To undergo the action of boiling, especially in being cooked. 2. To be in a state of agitation; seethe: a river boiling over the rocks. 3. To be stirred up or greatly excited: The mere idea made me boil. — v. tr. 1. a. To vaporize (a liquid) by the application of heat. b. To heat to the boiling point. 2. To cook or clean by boiling. 3. To separate by evaporation in the process of boiling: boil the maple sap. — n. 1. The condition or act of boiling. 2. Lower Southern U.S. A picnic featuring shrimp, crab, or crayfish boiled in large pots with spices, and then shelled and eaten by hand. 3. An agitated, swirling, roiling mass of liquid: “Those tumbling boils show a dissolving bar and a changing channel there” (Mark Twain). —phrasal verbs. boil down. 1. To reduce in bulk or size by boiling. 2. To condense; summarize: boiled down the complex document. 3. To constitute the equivalent of in summary: The scathing editorial simply boils down to an exercise in partisan politics. boil over. 4. To overflow while boiling. 5. To lose one’s temper. [Middle English boillen, from Old French boillir, from Latin bullire.]

SYNONYMS: boil, simmer, seethe, stew. To boil is to cook in a liquid heated to a temperature at which it bubbles up and gives off vapor: boil potatoes. Figuratively boil pertains to intense agitation: She boiled with resentment. Simmer denotes gentle cooking just at or below the boiling point (Let the stock simmer for several hours); figuratively it refers to a state of gentle ferment (Plans were simmering in his mind). Seethe emphasizes in both senses the turbulence of steady boiling at high temperature: Water seethed in the caldron. “The city had all through the interval been seething with discontent” (John R. Green). Stew refers literally to slow boiling and figuratively to a persistent but not violent state of agitation: I always add a little Madeira to the liquid when I stew prunes. “They don’t want a man to fret and stew about his work” (William H. Whyte, Jr.).

boil² (boil) n. A painful, circumscribed pus-filled inflammation of the skin and subcutaneous tissue usually caused by a local staphylococcal infection. Also called furuncle [Middle English bile, from Old English bȳle.]

Boi-leau-Des-pré-aux (bwä-lō'dě-prā-ō'), Nicolas. 1636-1711. French critic and poet whose Art of Poetry (1674), a treatise in verse, is a summation of the rules and conventions in French literature.

boil-er (boi'lər) n. 1. An enclosed vessel in which water is heated and circulated, either as hot water or as steam, for heating or power. 2. A container, such as a kettle, for boiling liquids. 3. A storage tank for hot water.

boil-er-mak-er (boi'lər-mā'kər) n. 1. One that makes or repairs boilers. 2. Slang. A drink of whiskey with a beer chaser.

boil-er-plate (boi'lər-plāt') n. 1. A steel plate used in making the shells of steam boilers. 2. Journalistic material, such as syndicated features, available in plate or mat form. 3. Inconsequential, formulaic, or stereotypical language: The provisions of the lease included no new elements and amounted to nothing more than boilerplate.

boiler room (boi'lər rōm) n. An area, as in a building or on a ship, that houses one or more steam boilers or hot-water tanks.

boil-er-room (boi'lər-rōm', -rōm') adj. Informal. Of, relating to, or involving often illegal, high-pressure telephone sales tactics, such as those used in selling stock, commodities, or land.

boil-ing point (boi'līng point) n. 1. Abbr. bp The temperature at which a liquid boils at a fixed pressure, especially under standard atmospheric conditions.

2. Informal. The point at which one loses one's temper.

boil-off (boi'ôf', -ôf') n. The vaporization of liquid, such as rocket fuel.

Bois de Bou-logne (bwä' də bō-lōn', -lōn'yə) A park in Paris, France, bordering on the suburb of Neuilly-sur-Seine. A popular recreation area since the 17th century, it is the site of Auteuil and Longchamps racecourses.

bois de rose (bwä' də rōz') n. Color. A grayish red. [French, rosewood : bois, wood + de, of + rose, rose.]

Boi-se (boi'sē, -zē) The capital and largest city of Idaho, in the southwest part of the state on the Boise River, about 257 km (160 mi) long. The city was founded in 1863 after gold was discovered in the river valley. Population, 102,160.

bois-ter-ous (boi'stər-əs, -strəs) adj. 1. Rough and stormy; violent. 2. Loud, noisy, and lacking in restraint or discipline. See Synonyms at vociferous. [Middle English boistres, variant of boistous, rude, rough, perhaps from Old French boisteus, lame, limping, from boiste, knee joint.] —bois'ter-ous-ly adv.

—bois'ter-ous-ness n.

boîte (bwät) n. A small restaurant or nightclub. [French, from Old French boiste, box, from Late Latin buxida, from buxis. See BOX¹.]

Bo-i-to (bō'ē-tō'), Arrigo. 1842-1918. Italian composer, librettist, and writer best known for his romantic opera Mefistofele (1868).

Bok (bök), Edward William. 1863-1930. Dutch-born American journalist and editor known for his editorship of the Ladies' Home Journal and his work for peace and social reforms.

bok choy also pak choi (bök' choi') n. A Chinese vegetable (Brassica rapa var. Chinensis) in the mustard family, having a leafy head similar to that of the common cabbage. [Chinese (Mandarin) bái cài : bái, white + cài, vegetable.]

Bo-kha-ra (bō-kär'ə, -här'ə, -KHÄ'rə) See Bukhara.

Bok-mål (böök'möl', bök'-) n. See Dano-Norwegian. [Norwegian : bok, book; see bhāgo- in Appendix + mål, language.]

Bol. abbr. 1. Bolivia. 2. Bolivian.

bo-la (bō'lə) also bo-las (-ləs) n. A rope with weights attached, used especially in South America to catch cattle or game by entangling their legs. [From American Spanish bolos, pl. of Spanish bola, ball, probably from Latin bullā.]

Bo-lan Pass also Bho-lan Pass (bō-län' päs) A mountain pass of western Pakistan at an altitude of 1,793.4 m (5,880 ft). The strategic pass has long been a gateway to India.

bola tie (bō'lə tī) n. Variant of bolo tie.

bold (böld) adj. bold-er, bold-est. 1. Fearless and daring; courageous.

2. Requiring or exhibiting courage and bravery. See Synonyms at brave.

3. Unduly forward and brazen in manner: a bold, impudent child. 4. Clear and distinct to the eye; conspicuous: a bold handwriting. 5. Steep or abrupt in grade or terrain: bold cliffs. 6. Printing. Boldface. [Middle English, from Old English bald. See bhel-² in Appendix.] —bold/ly adv. —bold/ness n.

bold-face (böld'fās') Printing. n. Abbr. bf, b.f., bf., bld. Type with thick, heavy lines. — adj. Abbr. bf, b.f., bf., bld. Printed in thick, heavy type. — v. tr. bold-faced, bold-fac-ing, bold-fac-es. 1. To mark (copy) for printing in this type. 2. To set or print in this type.

bold-faced (böld'fäst') adj. Impudent; brazen: a bold-faced lie.

bole¹ (böl) n. The trunk of a tree. [Middle English, from Old Norse bolr. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

bole² (böl) n. 1. Any of various soft, fine clays, especially a reddish-brown variety used as a pigment. 2. Color. A moderate reddish brown. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin bölus. See BOLUS.] —bole adj.

bo-lec-tion (bō-lĕk'shən) n. Architecture. A molding that projects from the surface of a panel. [Origin unknown.]

bo·le·ro (bō-lâr'ō, bə-) n. pl. bo·le·ros. 1. A very short jacket worn open in the front. 2. a. A Spanish dance in triple meter. b. The music for this dance. [Spanish, from bola, ball. See BOLA.]

bo·le·tus (bō-lē'təs) n. pl. bo·le·tus-es or bo·le·ti (-tī'). A fungus of the genus Boletus, having an umbrella-shaped cap with spore-bearing tubules on the underside and including both edible and poisonous species. [Latin bōlētus, mushroom.]

Bol·eyn (bōol'īn, bōō-līn'), Anne. 1507-1536. Queen of England (1533-1536) as the second wife of Henry VIII. The mother of Elizabeth I, she produced no male heir and was subsequently tried for adultery and beheaded.

Bol·ger (bōl'jər), Ray. 1904-1987. American dancer and actor best known for his performance as the scarecrow in The Wizard of Oz (1939).

bo·lide (bō'līd, -līd) n. A meteoric fireball or something held to resemble it: “a world-class sports car—quick, agile, lively—in short, everything car magazines... have ever wanted in a bolide of this type” (Automobile). [French, from Latin bolis, bolid-, from Greek bolis, missile, javelin, from ballein, to throw. See g^wel- in Appendix.]

Bol·ing·broke (bōl'īng-brōök', bōol'-, bō'līng-), First Viscount Originally Henry Saint John. 1678-1751. English statesman, orator, and writer. A Jacobite, he spent much of his life in exile and wrote influential political treatises, notably The Idea of a Patriot King (1749).

Bo·ling·brook (bō'līng-brōök') A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 40,843.

bo·li·var (bō-lē'vār, bōl'ə-vər) n. pl. bo·li·vars or bo·li·var·es (bō-lē'vā-rēs'). Abbr. b. A basic unit of currency in Venezuela. See Table at currency. [American Spanish bolívar, after Simón BOLÍVAR.]

Bo·lí·var (bō'lə-vār', bōl'ə-, bō-lē'vār), Pico. A mountain, 5,005.4 m (16,411 ft) high, of western Venezuela in the Cordillera Mérida south of Lake Maracaibo. It is the highest elevation in the range and in the country.

Bo·lí·var (bō'lə-vār', bōl'ə-, bō-lē'vār), Simón. Known as “the Liberator.” 1783-1830. South American revolutionary leader who defeated the Spanish in 1819, was made president of Greater Colombia (now Colombia, Venezuela, and Ecuador), and helped liberate (1823-1834) Peru and Bolivia.

Bo·liv·i·a (bə-līv'ē-ə, bō-) Abbr. Bol. A landlocked country of western South America. It was named after Simón Bolívar who helped win its independence from Spain in 1825. Sucre is the legal capital and the seat of the judiciary. La Paz is the administrative center and the largest city. Population, 6,429,226.

—Bo·liv'ian adj. & n.

bo·li·vi·a·no (bə-līv'ē-ä'nō, bō-) n. pl. bolivia-nos. A basic unit of currency in Bolivia. See Table at currency. [Spanish, Bolivian, boliviano, from Bolivia.]

boll (bōl) n. The seed-bearing capsule of certain plants, especially cotton and flax. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch bolle, round object. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

Böll (bœl), Heinrich. 1917-1985. German writer whose works, such as The Clown (1963), examine the psychological and societal effects of World War II on the German people. He won the 1972 Nobel Prize for literature.

bol-lard (bōl'ərd) n. Nautical. A thick post on a ship or wharf, used for securing ropes and hawsers. [Middle English, probably from bole, tree trunk. See BOLE¹.]

bol-li-to mis-to (bō-lē'tō mīs'tō) n. pl. bol-li-ti mis-ti (bō-lē'tē mīs'tē). A mixture of vegetables and various meats, such as chicken, veal, beef, and sausage, cooked in a broth and usually served with a mustard-fruit sauce. [Italian, mixed stew : bollito, stew + misto, mixed.]

bol-lix also bol-lox (bōl'iks) v. tr. bol-lixed also bol-loxed, bol-lix-ing also bol-lox-ing, bol-lix-es also bol-lox-es. Informal. To throw into confusion; botch or bungle: managed to bollix up the whole project. [Alteration of ballocks, testicles, from Middle English balloks, from Old English beallucas. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

boll weevil (bōl wē'vəl) n. 1. A small, grayish, long-snouted beetle (Anthonomus grandis) of Mexico and the southern United States, having adults that puncture cotton buds and larvae that hatch in and damage cotton bolls. 2. Informal. A conservative Southern Democrat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

boll-worm (bōl'wūrm') n. 1. The pink bollworm. 2. See corn earworm.

bo-lo (bō'lō) n. pl. bo-los. A long, heavy, single-edged machete originally used in the Philippines. [Spanish, of Philippine origin.]

bo-lo-gna (bə-lō'nē, -nə, -nyə) also ba-lo-ney or bo-lo-ney (-nē) n. A seasoned smoked sausage made of mixed meats, such as beef, pork, and veal. [After Bologna.]

Bo-lo-gna (bə-lōn'yə) A city of north-central Italy at the foot of the Apennines north-northeast of Florence. It was originally an Etruscan town and became a Roman colony in the second century B.C. Its famed university was founded as a law school in A.D. 425. Population, 455,853. —Bo-lo'gnan, Bo'lo-gnese' (bō'lə-nēz', -nēs', -lən-yēz', -yēs') adj. & n.

bolo knife (bō'lō nīf) n. A bolo.

bo-lom-e-ter (bō-lōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument that measures radiant heat by correlating the radiation-induced change in electrical resistance of a blackened metal foil with the amount of radiation absorbed. [Greek bolē, ray; see g^welə- in Appendix + -METER.] —bo'lo-met'ric (bō'lə-mēt'rik) adj.

bo-lo-ney (bə-lō'nē) n. Variant of bologna.

bolo tie also bola tie (bō'lō tī) n. A necktie consisting of a piece of cord fastened with an ornamental bar or clasp. [Alteration of BOLA + TIE.]

Bol-she-vik (bōl'shə-vīk', bōl'-) n. pl. Bol-she-viks or Bol-she-vi-ki (-vē'kē).

- 1. a. A member of the left-wing majority group of the Russian Social Democratic Workers' Party that adopted Lenin's theses on party organization in 1903. b. A member of the Russian Social Democratic Workers' Party that seized power in that country in November 1917. c. A member of a Marxist-Leninist party or a supporter of one; a Communist. Also called Bolshevist. 2. Often bolshevik. An extreme radical: a literary bolshevik. [Russian Bol'shevik, from bol'she, comparative of bol'shoj, large. See bel- in Appendix.] —Bol'she-vik' adj.

WORD HISTORY: The word Bolshevik, an emotionally charged term in English, is derived from a very common word in Russian, bol'she, “bigger, more,” the comparative form of bol'shoj, “big.” The name Bol'shevik was given to the faction in the majority at the Second Congress of the Russian Social Democratic Workers' Party in 1903 (the term is first recorded in English in 1907). The smaller faction was known as Men'sheviki, from men'she, “less, smaller,” the comparative of malyj, “little, few.” The Bol'sheviki, who sided with Lenin in the split that followed the Congress, subsequently became the Russian Communist Party. In 1952 the word Bol'shevik was dropped as an official term in the Soviet Union, but it had long since passed into other languages, including English. It had even spawned the slang term bolshie, though there is no menshie.

Bol-she-ism also bol-she-ism (bōl'shə-vīz'əm, bōl'-) n. 1. The strategy developed by the Bolsheviks between 1903 and 1917 with a view to seizing state power and establishing a dictatorship of the proletariat. 2. Soviet Communism.

Bol-she-ist also bol-she-ist (bōl'shə-vīst, bōl'-) n. See Bolshevik (n., sense 1). —Bol'she-vis'tic adj.

bol-son (bōl-sōn') n. Chiefly Southwestern U.S. A flat, arid valley surrounded by mountains and draining into a shallow central lake. [American Spanish bolsón, augmentative of Spanish bolsa, purse, pouch, from Late Latin bursa. See BURSA.]

bol-ster (bōl'stər) n. A long, narrow pillow or cushion. — v. tr. bol-stered, bol-ster-ing, bol-sters. 1. To support or prop up with or as if with a long, narrow pillow or cushion. 2. To buoy up: Visitors bolstered the patient's morale. [Middle English, from Old English. See bhelgh- in Appendix.] —bol'ster-er n.

bolt¹ (bōlt) n. 1. A bar made of wood or metal that slides into a socket and is used to fasten doors and gates. 2. A metal bar or rod in the mechanism of a lock that is thrown or withdrawn by turning the key. 3. A fastener consisting of a threaded pin or rod with a head at one end, designed to be inserted through holes in assembled parts and secured by a mated nut that is tightened by applying torque. 4. a. A sliding metal bar that positions the cartridge in breechloading rifles, closes the breech, and ejects the spent cartridge. b. A similar device in any breech mechanism. 5. A short, heavy arrow with a thick head, used especially with a crossbow. 6. A flash of lightning; a thunderbolt. 7. A sudden or unexpected event: The announcement was a veritable bolt. 8. A sudden movement toward or away. 9. A large roll of cloth of a definite length, especially as it comes from the loom. — v. bolt-ed, bolt-ing, bolts. — v. tr. 1. To secure or lock with or as if with a bolt. 2. To arrange or roll (lengths of cloth, for example) on or in a bolt. 3. To eat (food) hurriedly and with little chewing; gulp. 4. To desert or withdraw support from (a political party). 5. To utter impulsively; blurt. 6. Archaic. To shoot or discharge (a missile, such as an arrow). — v. intr. 1. To move or spring suddenly. 2. To start suddenly and run away: The horse bolted at the sound of the shot. The frightened child bolted from the room. 3. To break away from a political party or its policies. 4. Botany. To flower or produce seeds prematurely or develop a flowering stem from a rosette. — idiom. bolt from the blue. A sudden, shocking surprise or turn of events. [Middle English, from Old English, heavy arrow.] bolt² (bōlt) v. tr. bolt-ed, bolt-ing, bolts. To pass (flour, for example) through a sieve. [Middle English bulten, from Old French buleter, from Middle High German biuteln, from biutel, bag, purse.]

bolt-action (bōlt'āk'shən) adj. Loaded by a manually operated bolt. Used of a firearm.

bolt-er¹ (bōl'tər) n. 1. A horse given to bolting. 2. One who gives up membership in or withdraws support from a political party.

bolt-er² (bōl'tər) n. 1. A machine used for sifting, especially for sifting flour. 2. One who operates a sifting machine.

bolt-hole (bōlt'hōl') n. 1. A hole through which to bolt: found a bolthole in the fencing. 2. A means of escape: "The book offered exotic escape, but one could imagine more alluring boltholes than an ascetic all-male community" (Anthony Burgess).

Bol-ton (bōl'tən) A borough of northwest England northwest of Manchester. It was a center of the woolen trade from the 14th to the 18th century. Population, 263,000.

bol-to-ni-a (bōl-tō'nē-ə) n. Any of several perennial herbs of the genus Boltonia in the composite family, having flower heads with white to purplish rays and yellow centers. [New Latin, genus name, after James Bolton, 18th-century British botanist.]

bolt-rope (bōlt'rōp') n. Nautical. A rope sewn into the outer edge of a sail to prevent it from tearing.

Boltz-mann (bōlts'män), Ludwig. 1844-1906. Austrian physicist. Considered a founder of modern physics, he developed the kinetic theory of gases.

bo-lus (bō'ləs) n. pl. bo-lus-es. 1. A round mass: "A dense bolus of trapped dolphins fills the frame" (Kenneth Browser). 2. Pharmacology. A round medicinal preparation, such as a large pill or tablet, that is usually of a soft consistency and not prepackaged. 3. A soft mass of chewed food within the mouth or alimentary canal. [Medieval Latin bōlus, from Greek bōlos, lump of earth.]

Bol·za·no (bōl-zä'nō, bōl-tsä'nō) A city of northern Italy near the Austrian border north-northwest of Venice. It is a tourist center and health resort noted for its Alpine scenery. Population, 104,606.

bomb (böm) n. 1. a. An explosive weapon detonated by impact, proximity to an object, a timing mechanism, or other means. b. An atomic or a nuclear bomb. Used with the. 2. Any of various weapons detonated to release destructive material, such as smoke or gas. 3. Football. A very long forward pass intended to gain great yardage in a single play. 4. a. A container capable of withstanding high internal pressure. b. A vessel for storing compressed gas. c. A portable, manually operated container that ejects a spray, foam, or gas under pressure. 5. Slang. A dismal failure; a fiasco. 6. Slang. An old car. 7. Chiefly British. A large amount of money. — v. bombed, bomb·ing, bombs. — v. tr. To attack, damage, or destroy with or as if with bombs. — v. intr. 1. To drop a bomb or bombs. 2. Slang. To fail miserably: The play bombed. 3. Slang. To paint a graffito. [French bombe, from Italian bomba, probably from Latin bombus, a booming sound, from Greek bombos.]

bom·bard (böm-bärd', böm'bärd') v. tr. bom·bard·ed, bom·bard·ing, bom·bards. 1. To attack with bombs, shells, or missiles. 2. To assail persistently, as with requests. See Synonyms at attack. See Synonyms at barrage². 3. To irradiate (an atom). 4. To attack with a cannon firing stone balls. — n. An early form of cannon that fired stone balls. [From Middle English, a bombard, from Old French bombarde, from Medieval Latin bombarda, probably from Latin bombus, a booming sound. See BOMB.] — bom·bard'er n. — bom·bard'ment n.

bom·bar·dier (böm'bär-dîr') n. 1. The member of a combat aircraft crew who operates the bombsight and drops the bombs. 2. Chiefly British. A noncommissioned artillery officer. 3. Archaic. A soldier in the artillery. [French, from Old French bombarde, bombard. See BOMBARD.]

bombardier beetle (böm'bär-dîr' bēt'l) n. Any of various beetles of the genus Brachinus and related genera that expel an acrid, volatile secretion from the abdomen when disturbed, making an audible sound.

bom·bar·don (böm'bär-dön', böm-bär'dn) n. Music. 1. A brass instrument resembling a tuba but with a lower pitch; a bass or contrabass tuba. 2. A 16-foot reed stop on an organ. [French, from Italian bombardone, augmentative of bombardo, alteration of bombarda, bombard, from Medieval Latin. See BOMBARD.]

bom·bast (böm'bäst') n. Grandiloquent, pompous speech or writing. [Alteration of obsolete bombace, cotton padding, from Old French, from Late Latin bombax, cotton. See BOMBAZINE.] — bom·bast'er n. — bom·bas'tic adj. — bom·bas'ti·cal·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: bombast, rant, fustian, claptrap, rodomontade. All these nouns designate speech or writing marked by an extravagance or affectation of style that the content does not warrant. Bombast stresses inflation of style but does not always imply insubstantiality of thought: “Their eloquence is all bombast” (Charles Kingsley). Rant, used chiefly of speech, emphasizes turgidity and violence of style: “He sometimes... in his rants, talked with Norman haughtiness of the Celtic barbarians” (Macaulay). Fustian stresses a contrast between pretentious style in writing or speech and absurd or commonplace content: “They flounder about between fustian in expression, and bathos in sentiment” (William Hazlitt). Claptrap is insincere, empty speech or writing: “I hate... that air/Of claptrap, which your recent poets prize” (Byron). Rodomontade is boastful speech and bluster: “a detestable compound of vulgarity and rodomontade” (John Morley).

Bom·bay (bõm-bā') A city of west-central India on coastal Bombay Island and adjacent Salsette Island. It is India's main port and commercial center. Population, 8,243,405.

Bombay duck (bõm-bā' dük) n. 1. A small, edible lizardfish (Harpodon nehereus) of Asia, having a thin, nearly transparent body. 2. The dried, salted flesh of this fish that is used in India as a relish, usually with curry. In this sense, also called bummalo [Alteration of Marathi bombīla, bombil.] bom·ba·zine (bõm'bə-zēn') n. A fine twilled fabric of silk and worsted or cotton, often dyed black and used for mourning clothes. [French bombasin, from Late Latin bambacīnum, cotton fabric, from bombax, cotton, from Latin bombŷx, silk, silkworm, from Greek bombux, silkworm.]

bomb bay (bõm bā) n. The compartment in the fuselage of a combat aircraft into which bombs are loaded and from which they are dropped.

bombe (bõm, bõnb) n. A dessert consisting of two or more layers of variously flavored ice cream frozen in a round or melon-shaped mold. [French (from its shape). See BOMB.]

bombed (bõmd) adj. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk.

bomb·er (bõm'ər) n. 1. A combat aircraft designed to carry and drop bombs. 2. One who makes and sets off bombs. 3. Upstate New York & Illinois. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine.

bomb·let (bõm'līt) n. One of a number of small bombs usually contained in a cluster bomb and released in midair.

bomb·proof (bõm'prōōf') adj. Designed and constructed to resist destruction by a bomb.

bomb rack (bõm rāk) n. A framework or mechanical holder for bombs on a combat aircraft.

bomb·shell (bõm'shēl') n. 1. An explosive bomb. 2. A shocking surprise.

bomb-sight (böm'sīt') n. A device in a combat aircraft for determining the point at which to drop a bomb in order to strike a target.

bom-by-cid (böm'bī-sīd) n. A moth of the family Bombycidae, which includes the silkworms. [From New Latin Bombycidae, family name, from Latin bombŷx, silkworm. See BOMBAZINE.]

Bo-mu (bō'mō) A river of central Africa rising in southeast Central African Republic and flowing about 805 km (500 mi) generally west along the boundary with Zaire to merge with the Uele and form the Ubangi River.

Bon (bön, bōn), Cape. A peninsula of northeast Tunisia extending into the Mediterranean Sea across from Sicily.

Bo-na (bō'nə), Mount. A peak, 5,032.5 m (16,500 ft) high, of southern Alaska at the southern end of the Wrangell Mountains near the Canadian border. It is the highest elevation in the range.

bo-na fide (bō'nə fīd', fī'dē, bōn'ə) adj. 1. Made or carried out in good faith; sincere: a bona fide offer. 2. Authentic; genuine: a bona fide Rembrandt. See Synonyms at authentic. [Latin bonā fidē : bonā, feminine ablative of bonus, good + fidē, ablative of fidēs, faith.]

bona fi-des (bō'nə fī'dēz, fīdz) n. (used with a pl. verb). Information that serves to guarantee a person's good faith, standing, and reputation; authentic credentials: "Sakharov's bona fides within the Soviet system... have given added weight to his message" (Christian Science Monitor). [Latin bona fidēs, good faith : bona, feminine of bonus, good + fidēs, faith.]

Bo-naire (bō-nâr') An island of the Netherlands Antilles in the Caribbean Sea off the northern coast of Venezuela. Tourism is important to its economy.

Bo-nam-pak (bō-nām'pāk) A ruined Mayan city near present-day Tuxtla Gutiérrez in southern Mexico. The ruins, with temples and well-preserved frescoes, were discovered in 1946.

bo-nan-za (bə-năn'zə) n. 1. A rich mine, vein, or pocket of ore. 2. A source of great wealth or prosperity. [Spanish, from Medieval Latin bonacia, calm sea, blend of Latin bonus, good; see deu-² in Appendix, Medieval Latin malacia, calm sea (from Greek malakia, from malakos, soft); see mel-¹ in Appendix.]

Bo-nan-za Creek (bə-năn'zə krēk) A stream of western Yukon Territory, Canada, flowing about 32 km (20 mi) to the Klondike River near Dawson. The first gold strike in the Yukon occurred here in 1896.

Bo-na-parte (bō'nə-pärt') Corsican family, all brothers of Napoleon I, including Joseph (1768-1844), king of Naples (1806-1808) and Spain (1808-1813); Lucien (1775-1840), who disapproved of Napoleon's policies; Louis (1778-1846), who was king of Holland (1806-1810) and fought with Napoleon in Italy (1796-1797) and Egypt (1798-1799); and Jérôme (1784-1860), who was king of Westphalia (1807-1813), fought at Waterloo (1815), became marshal of France (1850), and was president of the senate under Napoleon III.

Bo·na·part·ist (bō'nə-pär'tist) n. A follower or supporter of Napoleon I and his policies and dynastic claims or of the Bonaparte family. —Bo'na-part'ism n.

Bon·a·ven·ture (bɒn'ə-vɛn'chər) also Bon·a·ven·tu·ra (bɒn'ə-vɛn-choʊr'ə, -tōʊr'ə, -tyōʊr'ə), Saint Originally Giovanni di Fidenza. Known as “the Seraphic Doctor.” 1217?-1274. Italian theologian and philosopher who taught that the goal of all the arts and sciences is the direct contemplation of God.

bon·bon (bɒn'bɒn') n. A candy that often has a center of fondant, fruit, or nuts and is coated with chocolate or fondant. [French, reduplication of bon, good, from Latin bonus. See deu-² in Appendix.]

bon·bon·nière (bɒn'bɒn-yâr') n. 1. A small, ornate box or dish for candy.

2. A confectioner's store. [French, from bonbon. See BONBON.]

bond (bɒnd) n. Abbr. bd. 1. Something, such as a fetter, cord, or band, that binds, ties, or fastens things together. 2. Often bonds. Confinement in prison; captivity. 3. A uniting force or tie; a link: the bonds of friendship, the familial bond. 4. A binding agreement; a covenant. 5. A duty, a promise, or another obligation by which one is bound. 6. a. A substance or an agent that causes two or more objects or parts to cohere. b. The union or cohesion brought about by such a substance or agent. 7. A chemical bond. 8. An overlapping arrangement of bricks or other masonry components in a wall. 9. Law. a. A written and sealed obligation, especially one requiring payment of a stipulated amount of money on or before a given day. b. A sum of money paid as bail or surety. c. A bail bondsman. 10. A certificate of debt issued by a government or corporation guaranteeing payment of the original investment plus interest by a specified future date. 11. The condition of taxable goods being stored in a warehouse until the taxes or duties owed on them are paid. 12. An insurance contract in which an agency guarantees payment to an employer in the event of unforeseen financial loss through the actions of an employee. 13. Bond paper. — v. bond·ed, bond·ing, bonds. — v. tr. 1. To mortgage or place a guaranteed bond on. 2. To furnish bond or surety for. 3. To place (an employee, for example) under bond or guarantee. 4. To join securely, as with glue or cement. 5. To join (two or more individuals) in or as if in a nurturing relationship: “What bonded [the two men]—who spoke rarely and have little personal rapport—was patience and a conviction that uncontrolled inflation endangers... society” (Robert J. Samuelson). 6. To lay (bricks, for example) in an overlapping pattern for solidity. — v. intr. 1. To cohere with or as if with a bond. 2. To form a close personal relationship. [Middle English, variant of band, from Old Norse. See bhendh- in Appendix.]

—bond'a·ble adj. —bond'er n.

Bond (bɒnd), Carrie Jacobs. 1862-1946. American songwriter whose works include “I Love You Truly” (1901) and “The End of a Perfect Day” (1910).

Bond (bönd), Julian. Born 1940. American politician and civil rights leader who was elected to the Georgia legislature (1966) but temporarily barred from taking office because of his opposition to the Vietnam War.

Bond (bönd), Thomas. 1712-1784. American physician who founded in Philadelphia the first hospital in America (1752).

bond-age (böñ'dij) n. 1. The state of one who is bound as a slave or serf. See Synonyms at servitude. 2. A state of subjection to a force, a power, or an influence. 3. The practice of being physically restrained, as with cords or handcuffs, as a means of attaining sexual gratification. 4. Villeinage. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Middle English bonde, serf, from Old English bōnda, husbandman, from Old Norse bōndi, present participle of būa, to live. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

bond-hold-er (bönd'höl'dər) n. One that owns a bond certificate of a government or corporation.

bond-ing (böñ'dĩng) n. 1. a. The formation of close, specialized human relationships, such as those that link spouse with spouse or friend with friend: "He says he has rediscovered the comforts of male bonding in a Washington men's group" (Marilyn Chase). b. The attachment process occurring between a parent and offspring that usually begins at the time of birth, is the basis for further emotional affiliation, and influences the child's physical and psychological development.

2. Dentistry. A technique for the restoration, repair, or cosmetic improvement of a tooth that involves the application of a high-impact resinous material to the tooth surface, where it adheres to the existing enamel.

bond-maid (böñd'mād') n. A woman bondservant. [BOND(WOMAN) + MAID.]

bond-man (böñd'mən) n. A male bondservant. [Middle English, from bonde, serf. See BONDAGE.]

bond paper (böñd pā'pər) n. A superior grade of strong white paper made wholly or in part from rag pulp.

bond-ser-vant (böñd'sûr'vənt) n. 1. A person obligated to service without wages. 2. A slave or serf. [BOND(MAN) + SERVANT.]

bonds-man (böñdz'mən) n. 1. A person who provides bond or surety for another. 2. A male bondservant.

bond-wom-an (böñd'wööm'ən) n. A woman bondservant. [Middle English bondewomman, from bonde, serf. See BONDAGE.]

bone (bōn) n. 1. a. The dense, semirigid, porous, calcified connective tissue forming the major portion of the skeleton of most vertebrates. It consists of a dense organic matrix and an inorganic, mineral component. b. Any of numerous anatomically distinct structures making up the skeleton of a vertebrate animal. There are more than 200 different bones in the human body. c. A piece of bone. 2. bones. a. The skeleton. b. The body. c. Mortal remains. 3. An animal structure or material, such as ivory, resembling bone. 4. Something made of bone or of material resembling bone, especially: a. A piece of whalebone or similar material used as a corset stay. b. bones. Informal. Dice. 5. bones. The fundamental plan or design, as of the plot of a book. 6. a. bones. Flat clappers made of bone or wood originally used by the end man in a minstrel show.

b. Bones. (used with a sing. verb). The end man in a minstrel show. — v.

boned, bon-ing, bones. — v. tr. 1. To remove the bones from. 2. To stiffen (a piece of clothing) with stays, as of whalebone. — v. intr. Informal. To study intensely, usually at the last minute: “He’s boning up on the role of Tevya” (Douglas Watt). — idioms. bone of contention. The subject of a dispute. bone to pick. Grounds for a complaint or dispute. [Middle English bon, from Old English bān.]

bone ash (bōn āsh) n. The white, powdery calcium phosphate ash of burned bones, used as a fertilizer, in making ceramics, and in cleaning and polishing compounds.

bone-black also bone black (bōn/’blāk’) n. A black pigment containing about 10 percent charcoal, made by roasting bones in an airtight container and used in polishes, as a filtering medium, and in decolorizing sugar. Also called bone charcoal bone china (bōn chī’nə) n. Porcelain made of clay mixed with bone ash.

bone conduction (bōn kən-dŭk/’shən) n. The process by which sound waves are transmitted to the inner ear by the cranial bones without traveling through the air in the ear canal.

bone-dry (bōn/’drī’) adj. Having no trace of moisture.

bone-fish (bōn/’fīsh’) n. pl. bonfish or bone-fish-es. A marine game fish (Albula vulpes) of warm, shallow waters, having silvery scales. [From its many small bones.]

bone-head (bōn/’hēd’) n. Informal. A stupid person; a dunce. — bone-head’ed adj. — bone/head/ed-ness n.

bone marrow (bōn mār’ō) n. The soft, fatty, vascular tissue that fills most bone cavities and is the source of red blood cells and many white blood cells.

bone marrow transplant (bōn mār’ō trāns-plānt’) n. A technique used to enhance or restore a person’s immune response or supply of blood cells or to replace diseased or destroyed bone marrow, as by radiation, with normally functioning bone marrow. The technique involves the removal of bone marrow from a donor’s pelvic bone and intravenous administration of it to a patient.

bone meal (bōn mēl) n. A substance made of crushed and coarsely ground bones that is used as a plant fertilizer and in animal feed.

bon·er (bō/’nər) n. Informal. A blunder or an error. [BONE(HEAD) + -ER¹.]

bone-set (bōn/’sēt’) n. Any of several plants of the genus Eupatorium in the composite family, especially the eastern North American species E. perfoliatum, having opposite leaves united around the stem and clusters of small, white flower heads. Also called thoroughwort [From its use as a folk medicine.]

bone spavin (bōn spāv'ɪn) n. A condition in horses caused by the deposition of new bone in the hock joint and sometimes producing lameness.

bon-ey (bō'nē) adj. Variant of bony.

bon-fire (bɒn'fɪr') n. A large outdoor fire. [Middle English bonnefire : bon, bone; see BONE + fir, fire; see FIRE.]

bong¹ (bɒŋ, bɔŋ) n. A deep ringing sound, as of a bell. — v. bonged, bong-ing, bongs. — v. tr. To cause to sound with a deep ringing noise. — v. intr. To make a deep ringing noise. [Imitative.]

bong² (bɒŋ, bɔŋ) n. A water pipe that consists of a bottle or a vertical tube partially filled with liquid and a smaller tube ending in a bowl, used often in smoking narcotic substances. [Thai baung.]

bon-go¹ (bɒŋ'gō, bɔŋ'-) n. bon-gos. A large, forest-dwelling antelope (Boocercus eurycerus) of central Africa, having a reddish-brown coat with white stripes and spirally twisted horns. [Probably of Bantu origin; akin to Lingala mongu, antelope.]

bon-go² (bɒŋ'gō, bɔŋ'-) n. pl. bon-gos or bon-goes. Music. One of a pair of connected tuned drums that are played by beating with the hands. [American Spanish bongó.]

Bon-heof-fer (bɒn'hœ-fər), Dietrich. 1906-1945. German Protestant theologian and philosopher whose works concern Christianity in the modern world. He was executed for his role in a plot to assassinate Hitler.

Bon-heur (bɒ-nûr', -nœr'), Rosa. 1822-1899. French artist known for her animal paintings, such as The Horse Fair.

bon-ho-mie (bɒn'ə-mē') n. A pleasant and affable disposition; geniality. [French, from bonhomme, good-natured man : bon, good (from Latin bonus); see deu-² in Appendix + homme, man (from Latin homō); see dhghem- in Appendix.]

bon-i-face (bɒn'ə-fæs, -fās') n. The keeper of an inn, a hotel, a nightclub, or an eating establishment. [After Boniface, an innkeeper in The Beaux' Strategem by George Farquhar (1678-1707).]

Bon-i-face (bɒn'ə-fās'), Saint Originally Winfrid or Wynfrith. 675?-754. English Roman Catholic missionary active in Germany.

Bon-i-face VIII (bɒn'ə-fās'), Originally Benedetto Caetani. 1235?-1303. Pope (1294-1303) who struggled to assert authority over England, France, and Sicily.

Bon-i-face IX (bɒn'ə-fās'), Originally Pietro Tomacelli. Died 1404. Pope (1389-1404) whose papacy was marked by struggle against the Avignon anti-popes.

bon-ing knife (bɒ'nɪŋ nɪf) n. A knife with a narrow blade and a sharp point, used for removing the bones from poultry, meat, and fish.

Bo·nin Islands (bō'nīn ī'ləndz) An archipelago of volcanic islands in the western Pacific Ocean south of Japan. The islands formed a major Japanese military stronghold in World War II.

bo·ni·to (bə-nē'tō) n. pl. bonito or bo·ni·tos. 1. Any of several marine food and game fishes of the genus Sarda, related to and resembling the tuna. 2. Any of several similar fishes, such as the skipjack. [Spanish, probably from bonito, pretty, from Latin bonus, good. See deu-² in Appendix.]

bon·kers (bōng'kərz) adj. Informal. Crazy: "Yet here in the capital of the energy state, when word spread that free gas was to be found, the populace, as expected, went bonkers" (Washington Post). [Origin unknown.]

bon mot (bōn mō') n. pl. bons mots (bōn mō', mōz'). A clever saying; a witicism. [French : bon, good + mot, word.]

Bonn (bōn, bōn) The former capital of West Germany, in the western part of the country on the Rhine River. It was founded as a Roman garrison in the first century A.D. and since 1990 has been the seat of the reunified German government. Population, 291,291.

Bon·nard (bō-när'), Pierre. 1867-1947. French painter who adhered to an impressionistic style in works such as The Bath.

bon·net (bōn'īt) n. 1. a. A hat of cloth or straw, held in place by ribbons tied under the chin, that is worn by women and children. b. Scots. A brimless cap worn by men. 2. A removable metal plate over a machine part, such as a valve. 3. Chiefly British. The hood of an automobile. 4. a. A windscreen for a chimney. b. A cover for a fireplace. 5. Nautical. A strip of canvas laced to a fore-and-aft sail to increase sail area. — v. tr. bon·net·ed, bon·net·ing, bon·nets. To put a bonnet on. [Middle English bonet, cap, from Old French, material for a head-dress, perhaps from Medieval Latin obbonis, probably of Germanic origin.]

Bon·net (bō-nā'), Charles. 1720-1793. Swiss naturalist who discovered parthenogenesis.

Bon·net (bō-nā'), Georges. 1889-1973. French politician and diplomat who was foreign minister (1938-1939) at the outbreak of World War II.

Bon·ne·ville Salt Flats (bōn'ə-vīl' sōlt flāts) A plain of northwest Utah west of Great Salt Lake in the bed of prehistoric Lake Bonneville. The flats are often used for speed-test trials.

Bon·ney (bōn'ē), William H. Known as "Billy the Kid." 1859-1881. American outlaw who murdered 21 men and was shot dead by Sheriff Pat Garrett (1850-1908).

bon·ny also bon·nie (bōn'ē) adj. bon·ni·er, bon·ni·est. Scots. 1. Physically attractive or appealing; pretty. 2. Excellent. [Origin unknown.] — bon'ni·ly adv. — bon'ni·ness n.

bon·ny·clab·ber (bōn'ē-klāb'ər) n. New England & Central Atlantic U.S. Thick, soured milk eaten with cream and sugar, honey, or molasses. [Irish Gaelic bainne clabair : bainne, milk (from Middle Irish, drop, milk, from Old Irish banna, drop) + probably clabair genitive of clabar, dasher of a churn.]

Bo·non·ci·ni (bō'nōn-chē'nē) also Buo·non·ci·ni (bwō'-) Family of Italian composers, including Giovanni Maria (1642-1678), a musical theorist who wrote chamber and voice music, and his sons Giovanni Battista (1670-1747), a noted rival of Handel, and Antonio Maria (1677-1726), an operatic composer.

bon·sai (bōn-sī', bōn'sī', -zī') n. pl. bonsai. 1. The art of growing dwarfed, ornamentally shaped trees or shrubs in small shallow pots or trays. 2. A tree or shrub grown by this method. [Japanese, potted plant : bon, basin (from Chinese pén) + sai, to plant (from Chinese zāi).]

bons mots (bōn mō', mōz') n. Plural of bon mot.

bon·spiel (bōn'spēl') n. Scots. A curling tournament or match. [Probably Dutch bonspel*, league game : bon, league perhaps from bonne, precinct of a city + spel, game from Middle Dutch.]

bons vi·vants (bōn' vē-vān') n. Plural of bon vivant.

bon·te·bok (bōn'tə-bōk') n. A rare South African antelope (Damaliscus dorcas or D. pygargus) having a dark reddish coat, a white rump, and a white mark on the face. [Afrikaans : bont, spotted (from Middle Dutch, probably from Latin punctus); see POINT + bok, buck (from Middle Dutch boc).]

Bon·temps (bōn-tān') , Arna Wendell. 1902-1973. American writer whose works explore Black life and heritage.

bon ton (bōn tōn') n. 1. a. A sophisticated manner or style. b. The proper thing to do. 2. High society. [French : bon, good + ton, tone.]

bo·nus (bō'nəs) n. pl. bo·nus·es. 1. Something given or paid in addition to what is usual or expected. 2. a. A sum of money or the equivalent given to an employee in addition to the employee's usual compensation. b. A sum of money in addition to salary that is given to a professional athlete for signing up with a team. 3. A subsidy from a government to an industry. 4. A premium, as of stock, that is given by a corporation to another party, such as a purchaser of its securities. 5. A sum of money that is paid by a corporation in excess of interest or royalties charged for the granting of a privilege or a loan to that corporation. [From Latin, good. See deu-² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: bonus, bounty, subsidy, premium, prize, reward, gratuity. Each of these nouns denotes a form of extra payment. Bonus usually applies to money in excess of what is normally received or strictly due, given especially in recognition of superior effort or achievement or as a share in profits: Those who put in many hours of overtime will receive a percentage of their salary as a bonus. A bounty is a sum of money offered by a government for the performance of a special service considered to be desirable: The sheriff announced a bounty of 15 dollars for the pelt of every coyote killed. Subsidy refers to a grant from a government in support of an enterprise regarded as being in the public interest: The university will receive a subsidy for research in artificial intelligence. A premium is generally something given as an incentive: “Brown & Williamson... has been a pioneer in direct mail since it began offering premiums for coupons on its... packages” (ADWEEK). A prize is awarded for superiority or victory, as in a contest or competition: “Every compulsion is put upon writers to become safe, polite, obedient, and sterile. In protest... I must decline the Pulitzer Prize” (Sinclair Lewis). Reward refers broadly to payment for a specific meritorious service: A $10,000 reward was offered to anyone who could provide information useful in retrieving the stolen silver. A gratuity is a gift of money made in appreciation of services rendered: Gratuities for waiters are included in the bill.

bonus issue (bō'nəs یش'ōō) n. See scrip issue.

bon vi·vant (bōN' vē-vän') n. pl. bons vi-vants (bōN' vē-vän'). A person with refined taste, especially one who enjoys superb food and drink. [French : bon, good + vivant, present participle of vivre, to live.]

bon voy·age (bōN' vwä-yäzh') interj. Used to express farewell and good wishes to a departing traveler. [French : bon, good + voyage, journey.]

bon·y or bon·ey (bō'nē) adj. bon·i·er or bon·ey·er, bon·i·est or bon·ey·est. 1. Of, relating to, resembling, or consisting of bone. 2. Having an internal skeleton of bones. 3. Full of bones: a bony fillet of fish. 4. a. Having prominent or protruding bones: a bony wrist. b. Lean; scrawny. —bon'i·ness n.

bony fish (bō'nē fish) n. A fish having a bony rather than cartilaginous skeleton; a teleost.

bonze (bönz) n. A Buddhist monk, especially of China, Japan, or nearby countries. [French, from Portuguese bonzo, from Japanese bonsō, from Chinese fán sēng: fán, ordinary + sēng, monk.]

boo¹ (bōō) n. pl. boos. 1. A sound uttered to show contempt, scorn, or disapproval. 2. Informal. Any sound or anything at all: You never said boo to me about overtime. — interj. Used to express contempt, scorn, or disapproval or to frighten or surprise another. — v. booted, boo-ing, boos. — v. intr. To utter a boo. — v. tr. To express contempt, scorn, or disapproval of by booing: booed the singer off the stage. [Imitative.]

boo² (bōō) n. Slang. Marijuana. [Origin unknown.]

boob¹ (bōōb) n. Slang. A stupid or foolish person; a dolt. [Short for BOOBY¹.]

boob² (bōōb) n. Vulgar Slang. A woman's breast. [Short for BOOBY².]

boob·oi·sie (bōōb'wä-zē') n. A class of people regarded as stupid and gullible. [BOOB¹ + (BOURGE)OISIE.]

boo-boo also boo·boo (bōō'bōō) n. pl. boo--boos. Informal. 1. A stupid mistake; a blunder: “the petty talking points, peripheral issues, tactical boo-boos, and small-bore scandals that regularly intrude on campaigns” (New Republic).

2. A slight physical injury, such as a scratch. [Perhaps alteration of boohoo, to weep noisily.]

boob tube (bōōb tōōb) n. Slang. Television: “Parents complain about the quality of the shows but don’t prevent their children from gluing themselves to the boob tube” (David Owen). [BOOB¹ + TUBE, television set.]

boo·by¹ (bōō’bē) n. pl. boo·bies. 1. A person regarded as stupid. 2. Any of several tropical sea birds of the genus Sula, resembling and related to the gannets. [Probably Spanish bobo, from Latin balbus, stammering.]

boo·by² (bōō’bē) n. pl. boo·bies. Vulgar Slang. A woman’s breast. [Perhaps alteration of obsolete English bubby.]

booby hatch (bōō’bē hăch) n. 1. Nautical. A raised covering over a small hatchway. 2. Slang. A mental health facility.

booby prize (bōō’bē prīz) n. 1. Sports & Games. An award given to the one who scores lowest in a game or contest. 2. Informal. Acknowledgment of great inferiority, as in ability.

booby trap (bōō’bē trăp) n. 1. A concealed, often explosive device that is triggered by an unsuspecting victim when a harmless-looking object is touched. 2. A situation that catches one off guard; a pitfall. —boo’by-trap’ (bōō’bē-trăp’) v.

boo-coo (bōō’kōō’) adj., n. & adv. Chiefly Southern U.S. Variant of beau-coup.

boo-dle (bōōd’l) n. Slang. 1. a. Money, especially counterfeit money. b. Money accepted as a bribe. 2. Stolen goods; swag. 3. A crowd of people; caboodle. [Dutch boedel, estate, from Middle Dutch bōdel. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

boog-er (bōōg’ər) n. 1. A bogeyman. 2. Slang. Dried nasal mucus. 3. Slang. An item that is unnamed or unnameable: “It’s... like a pop-top... one of those sharp little boogers you pull off the beer cans” (Hunter S. Thompson). 4. Slang. a. A worthless, despicable person. b. A person; a fellow. [Origin unknown.]

boog-ey-man (bōōg’ē-măn’, bō’gē-, bōō’gē-) n. Variant of bogeyman.

boog-ie (bōōg’ē, bōō’gē) Slang. v. intr. boog-ied, boog-y-ing, boog-ies. To dance to the sound of rock music. — n. 1. Strongly rhythmic rock music.

2. Boogie-woogie. [From BOOGIE-WOOGIE.]

boog-ie-man (bōōg’ē-măn’, bō’gē-, bōō’gē-) n. Variant of bogeyman.

boog-ie-woogie (bōōg’ē-wōōg’ē, bōō’gē-wōō’gē) n. Music. A style of jazz piano characterized by a repeated rhythmic and melodic pattern in the bass and a series of improvised variations in the treble. [Possibly from Black West African English (Sierra Leone) bogi(-bogi), to dance possibly akin to Hausa buga, to beat drums.]

boog-y-man (bōōg’ē-măn’, bō’gē-, bōō’gē-) n. Variant of bogeyman.

boo-jum tree (bōō'jəm trē) n. A deciduous tree (Idria columnaris), native to Baja California and having a thick, tapering, columnar trunk, slender spiny branches, and yellow flowers. [After the boojum, an imaginary character in the poem The Hunting of the Snark by Lewis Carroll.]

book (bōōk) n. Abbr. bk., b. 1. A set of written, printed, or blank pages fastened along one side and encased between protective covers. 2. a. A printed or written literary work. b. A main division of a larger printed or written work: a book of the Old Testament. 3. a. A volume in which financial or business transactions are recorded. b. books. Financial or business records considered as a group: checked the expenditures on the books. 4. a. A libretto. b. The script of a play. 5. Book. The Bible. 6. a. A set of prescribed standards or rules on which decisions are based: runs the company by the book. b. Something regarded as a source of knowledge or understanding. c. The total amount of experience, knowledge, understanding, and skill that can be used in solving a problem or performing a task: We used every trick in the book to finish the project on schedule. 7. A packet of like or similar items bound together: a book of matches. 8. A record of bets placed on a race. 9. Games. The number of card tricks needed before any tricks can have scoring value, as the first six tricks taken by the declaring side in bridge. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a book report; book learning. — v. tr. booked, book-ing, books. 1. To list or register in or as if in a book. 2. To record charges against (a person) on a police blotter. 3. To arrange for (tickets or lodgings, for example) in advance; reserve. 4. To hire or engage: The manager booked a magic show for Saturday night. 5. To allocate time for. — idioms. bring to book. To demand an explanation from; call to account. in one's book. In one's opinion: In my book they both are wrong. like a book. Thoroughly; completely: I know my child like a book. one for the books. A noteworthy act or occurrence. throw the book at. 5. To make all possible charges against (a lawbreaker, for example). 6. To reprimand or punish severely. [Middle English bok, from Old English bōc. See bhāgo- in Appendix.] — book'er n.

SYNONYMS: book, bespeak, engage, reserve. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cause something to be set aside, as for one’s use or possession, in advance”: will book a hotel room; bespoken merchandise; engaged a box for the opera season; reserving a table at a restaurant.

book-bind-er-y (bōōk'bīn'də-rē) n. An establishment where books are bound.

book-bind-ing (bōōk'bīn'dīng) n. The art, trade, or profession of binding books. — book/bind'er n.

book-case (bōōk'kās') n. A piece of furniture with shelves for holding books.

book club (böök klüb) n. A commercial organization that sells books to its members on a regular, usually monthly, basis and typically at a discount.

book-end (böök'ënd') n. A prop placed at the end of a row of books to keep them upright.

book-ie (böök'ē) n. See bookmaker (n., sense 2).

book-ing (böök'ing) n. 1. An engagement, as for a performance by an entertainer. 2. A reservation, as for accommodations at a hotel.

book-ish (böök'ish) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a book. 2. Fond of books; studious. 3. Relying chiefly on book learning: took a bookish rather than a pragmatic approach in solving the problem. 4. Pedantic; dull. See Synonyms at pedantic. 5. Literary and formal in tone. Used of words. —book'ish-ly adv. —book'ish-ness n.

book-keep-ing (böök'kē'pīng) n. Abbr. bkpg. The practice or profession of recording the accounts and transactions of a business. —book'keep'er n.

book-let (böök'līt) n. A small bound book or pamphlet, usually having a paper cover.

book-lore (böök'lôr', -lôr') n. Knowledge gained from books.

book-louse or book louse (böök'lous') n. Any of various small, often wingless insects of the order Psocoptera (or Corrodentia), some species of which feed on stored flour products, paper, or bookbindings.

book lung (böök lüŋ) n. A sacculate respiratory organ found in some arachnids, such as scorpions and spiders, consisting of several parallel membranous folds arranged like the pages in a book.

book-mak-er (böök'mā'kär) n. 1. One that edits, prints, publishes, or binds books. 2. One who accepts and pays off bets, as on a horserace. In this sense, also called bookie —book'mak'ing n.

book-mark (böök'märk') n. A strip of material, as of ribbon or leather, or a metal clamp, that is placed between the pages of a book to mark the reader's place.

book-mo-bile (böök'mō-bēl') n. A truck, trailer, or van equipped to serve as a mobile lending library. [BOOK + (AUTO)MOBILE.]

Book of Common Prayer (böök ÷v kōm'ən prâr) n. The book of services and prayers used in the Anglican Church.

boo-koo (bōō'kōō') adj., n. & adv. Chiefly Southern U.S. Variant of beau-coup.

book-plate (böök'plāt') n. A label bearing the owner's name or other identification that is pasted usually on the inside cover of a book. Also called ex libris book-rack (böök'rāk') n. 1. A small rack for books. 2. A rack for supporting an open book.

book-sell-er (böök'sēl'ər) n. One that sells books, especially the owner of a bookstore.

book-shelf (böök/'shělf') n. A shelf or set of shelves for holding books.

book-shop (böök/'shöp') n. A bookstore.

book-stall (böök/'stôl') n. A stall where books are sold, as on a street.

book-stand (böök/'ständ') n. 1. A small counter where books are sold. 2. A bookrack.

book-store (böök/'stôr', -stör') n. A store where books are sold.

book value (böök vâl/'yōō) n. The monetary amount by which an asset is valued in business records, a figure not necessarily identical to the amount the asset could bring on the open market.

book-worm (böök/'wûrm') n. 1. One who spends much time reading or studying. 2. Any of various insects, especially booklice and silverfish, that infest books and feed on the paste in the bindings.

Boole (bōōl), George. 1815-1864. British mathematician and logician who developed a calculus of symbolic logic.

Bool·e·an (bōō'lē-ən) adj. Of or relating to a logical combinatorial system treating variables, such as propositions and computer logic elements, through the operators AND, OR, NOT, IF, THEN, and EXCEPT: information retrieval involving Boolean searching. [After George BOOLE.]

Boolean algebra (bōō'lē-ən äll'jə-brə) n. An algebraic system with two binary operations and an identity element that is used in symbolic logic and in logic circuits in computer science.

boom¹ (bōōm) v. boomed, boom·ing, booms. — v. intr. 1. To make a deep, resonant sound. 2. To grow or develop rapidly; flourish: Business is booming. — v. tr. 1. To utter or give forth with a deep, resonant sound: a field commander booming out orders. 2. To cause to grow or flourish; boost. — n. 1. A deep resonant sound, as of an explosion. 2. A time of economic prosperity. 3. A sudden increase, as in popularity. [Middle English bomben, imitative of a loud noise.]

boom² (bōōm) n. 1. Nautical. A long spar extending from a mast to hold or extend the foot of a sail. 2. A long pole extending upward at an angle from the mast of a derrick to support or guide objects lifted or suspended. 3. a. A barrier composed of a chain of floating logs enclosing other free-floating logs, typically used to catch floating debris or to obstruct passage. b. A floating barrier serving to contain an oil spill. 4. A long movable arm used to maneuver and support a microphone. 5. a. A spar that connects the tail surfaces and the main structure of an airplane. b. A long hollow tube attached to a tanker aircraft, through which fuel flows to another aircraft being refueled in flight. [Dutch, tree, pole, from Middle Dutch. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

boom box (bōōm böks) n. Slang. A portable audio system, usually consisting of a cassette player and radio, with speakers capable of producing loud sound: "The notorious boom box... is no longer just a street noisemaker: in its latest refine- ment it has built-in CD players and speakers able to handle digital sound” (Hans Fantel).

boom·er (bōō'mər) n. 1. Informal. A nuclear submarine armed with ballistic missiles. 2. Informal. A baby boomer. 3. A transient worker, especially in bridge construction. 4. Australian. A large, fully grown male kangaroo.

boo·mer·ang (bōō'mə-räng') n. 1. A flat, curved, usually wooden missile configured so that when hurled it returns to the thrower. 2. A statment or course of action that backfires. — v. intr. boo·mer·anged, boo·mer·ang·ing, boo·mer·angs. To have the opposite effect from the one intended; backfire. [Dharuk (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) bumarin']

WORD HISTORY: The words we have borrowed from native languages of Australia, such as billabong, budgerigar, dingo, kangaroo, koala, kookaburra, waddy, and wallaby, generally have the exotic sound of down under, and boomerang is no exception. In a book about the languages of New South Wales published in 1790 is found the native term boo-mer-rit, glossed “the scimitar,” because of the curved shape of the boomerang. In 1825 in a passage containing the first recorded instance of the English form boomerang we are told it is “a short crested weapon which the natives of Port Jackson [now part of Sydney] project with accurate aim into a rotary motion.” In 1827 another commentator says that this term “may be retained for want of a more descriptive name.”

boom·let (bōōm'līt) n. A small boom, as in business, politics, or the birth rate.

boom·town (bōōm'toun') n. A town experiencing an economic or a population boom.

boom·y (bōō'mē) adj. boom·i·er, boom·i·est. 1. Of, relating to, characterized by, or resulting from a flourishing economy: “Things aren't as boomy as forecasters thought they would be” (U.S. News & World Report). 2. Acoustics.

Exhibiting excessive accentuation on lower-pitched tones in reproduced sound: “This mode of bass reinforcement by resonance often causes boomy obfuscation of the true musical pitch—something akin to singing into a barrel” (New York Times).

boon¹ (bōōn) n. 1. A benefit bestowed, especially one bestowed in response to a request. 2. A timely blessing or benefit: A spanking breeze is a boon to sailors. [Middle English bone, from Old Norse bōn, prayer. See bhā⁻² in Appendix.]

boon² (bōōn) adj. 1. Convivial; jolly: a boon companion to all. 2. Archaic. Favorable. [Middle English bon, good, from Old French, from Latin bonus. See deu⁻² in Appendix.]

boon·docks (bōōn'döks') pl.n. Slang. 1. Wild and dense brush; jungle. 2. Rural country; the backwoods. [From Tagalog bundok, mountain.]

boon·dog·gle (bōōn'dô'gəl, -dög'əl) Informal. n. Unnecessary, wasteful, and often counterproductive work. — v. intr. boon·dog·gled, boon·dog·gling, boon·dog·gles. To waste time or money on unnecessary and often counterproductive work. [From boondoggle, a plaited leather cord worn by Boy Scouts. (Coined by R.H. Link, 20th-century American scoutmaster).] —boon'dog'gler n.

Boone (bōōn), Daniel. 1734-1820. American frontiersman, folk hero, and central figure in the settlement of Kentucky.

boon·ies (bōō'nēz) pl.n. Slang. Rural country or a jungle. [Shortening and alteration of BOONDOCKS.]

boor (bōōr) n. 1. A person with rude, clumsy manners and little refinement.

2. A peasant. [Dutch boer, from Middle Dutch gheboer. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: boor, barbarian, churl, lout, vulgarian, yahoo. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “an uncouth and uncultivated person”: tourists acting like boors; a barbarian on the loose in a museum; consideration wasted on a churl; is both a lout and a bully; married a parvenu vulgarian; a yahoo and a blowhard.

boor·ish (bōōr'ish) adj. Resembling or characteristic of a boor; rude and clumsy in behavior. —boor'ish·ly adv. —boor'ish·ness n.

boost (bōōst) v. boost·ed, boost·ing, boosts. — v. tr. 1. To raise or lift by pushing up from behind or below. See Synonyms at lift. 2. a. To increase; raise: boost prices; efforts to boost participation in the program. b. To assist in further development or progress: a bill intended to boost local charities. 3. To stir up enthusiasm for; promote vigorously: boosted their school with rallies and fund drives. 4. Electricity. To increase the voltage of (a circuit). 5. Slang. To shoplift. — v. intr. Slang. To engage in shoplifting. — n. 1. A push upward or ahead. 2. An increase: a big boost in salary. [Perhaps from dialectal boostering, bustling, active.] boost·er (bōō'stər) n. 1. One that boosts, as: a. A device for increasing power or effectiveness. b. An enthusiastic promoter, as of a sports team or school. c. Electronics. A radio-frequency amplifier. d. The primary stage of a multistage rocket that provides the main thrust for launch, liftoff, and initial flight. 2. A booster shot. 3. Slang. One who steals goods on display in a store.

booster cable (bōō'stər kākā'bəl) n. An electric cable used to connect a discharged battery to a power source for charging. Also called jumper cable booster dose (bōō'stər dōs) n. See booster shot.

boost·er·ish (bōō'stər-ish) adj. Highly supportive, as of a product, project, or cause.

boost·er·ism (bōō'stə-rīz'əm) n. The highly supportive attitudes and activities of boosters: “the civic pride and heady boosterism that often accompany rising property values” (New York).

booster seat (bōō'stār sēt) n. 1. A car seat for small children that lifts the child by several inches, designed for use with an adult seat belt. 2. A seat placed on top of the seat of a chair, used to elevate a small child at a table.

booster shot (bōō'stār shōt) n. An additional dose of an immunizing agent, such as a vaccine or toxoid, given at a time after the initial dose to sustain the immune response elicited by the previous dose of the same agent. Also called booster dose boost phase (bōōst fāz) n. The period during which the rockets of a ballistic missile operate to bring it near or to peak velocity.

boot¹ (bōōt) n. 1. Protective footwear, as of leather or rubber, covering the foot and part or all of the leg. 2. A protective covering, especially a sheath to enclose the base of a floor-mounted gear shift lever in a car or truck. 3. Chiefly British. An automobile trunk. 4. a. A kick. b. Slang. An unceremonious dismissal, as from a job. c. Slang. A swift, pleasurable feeling; a thrill. 5. A Denver boot. 6. A marine or navy recruit in basic training. 7. boots. An instrument of torture, used to crush the foot and leg. — v. tr. boot-ed, boot-ing, boots. 1. To put boots on. 2. To kick. 3. Slang. To discharge unceremoniously. See Synonyms at dismiss. 4. Computer Science. To enter (a program) into a computer using a few initial instructions. 5. To disable (a vehicle) by attaching a Denver boot. [Middle English bote, from Old French.]

boot² (bōōt) v. intr. boot-ed, boot-ing, boots. To be of help or advantage; avail. — n. 1. Chiefly Southern U.S. See lagniappe. 2. Archaic. Advantage; avail. — idiom. to boot. In addition; besides. [Middle English boten, to be of help, from Old English bōtian, from bōt, help. See bhad- in Appendix.]

boot-black (bōōt'blāk') n. A person who cleans and polishes shoes for a living.

boot camp (bōōt kămp) n. A training camp for military recruits.

boot-ed (bōō'tīd) adj. Wearing boots.

boo-tee also boo-tie (bōō'tē) n. 1. A soft, usually knitted shoe for a baby. 2. An ankle-length disposable foot covering, used by medical personnel and others in sterile environments.

Bo-ö-tes (bō-ō'tēz) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Virgo and Canes Venatici, containing the bright star Arcturus. Boötes is one of the earliest recorded constellations. [Latin Boötēs, from Greek boōtēs, plowman, Boötes, from boōtein, to plow, from bous, ox. See g^wou- in Appendix.]

booth (bōōth) n. pl. booths (bōōthz, bōōths). 1. a. A small, often enclosed compartment, usually accommodating only one person: a voting booth; a projection booth. b. A small enclosed compartment with a window, used to separate the occupant from others: a ticket booth. 2. A seating area in a restaurant that has a table and seats whose high backs serve as partitions. 3. A small stall or stand for the display and sale of goods. [Middle English bothe, of Scandinavian origin. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

Booth¹ (bōōth) Family of actors, including Junius Brutus (1796-1852), a British-born Shakespearean actor who in 1821 immigrated to the United States, and his sons Edwin Thomas (1833-1893), noted for his portrayal of Hamlet, and John Wilkes (1838-1865), the assassin of President Abraham Lincoln.

Booth² (bōōth) Family of reformers, including William (1829-1912), a British religious leader who founded the Salvation Army (1878) with his wife, Catherine Mumford Booth (1829-1890), and served as its first general (1896-1912). His children William Bramwell (1856-1929); Ballington (1857-1940), who with his wife, Maud Ballington Booth (1865-1948), founded the Volunteers of America (1896); and Evangeline Cory (1865-1950) were active in the Salvation Army.

Boo-thi-a Peninsula (bōō'thē-ə pə-nīn'syə-lə) The northernmost tip of the North American mainland, in northeast Northwest Territories, Canada. It is connected with the Canadian mainland by the narrow Isthmus of Boothia and separated from Baffin Island to the east by the Gulf of Boothia, an arm of the Arctic Ocean.

boo-tie (bōō'tē) n. Variant of bootee.

boot-jack (bōōt'jāk') n. A forked device for holding a boot secure while the foot is being withdrawn.

Boo-tle (bōōt'l) A borough of northwest England, a suburb of Liverpool at the mouth of the Mersey River. Population, 62,463.

boot-leg (bōōt'lĕg') v. boot-legged, boot-leg-ging, boot-legs. — v. tr. 1. To make, sell, or transport (alcoholic liquor) for sale illegally. 2. To produce, distribute, or sell without permission or illegally: a clandestine outfit that bootlegs record albums and tapes. — v. intr. 1. To engage in the bootlegging of alcoholic liquor or another product. 2. To attach a transmitter to a dish antenna, creating an uplink via which a signal is sent to a satellite without the knowledge of the satellite's owner. 3. Football. To fake a hand-off, conceal the ball on the hip, and roll out in order to pass or especially to rush around the end. Used of a quarterback. — n. 1. A product, especially alcoholic liquor, that is illicitly produced, distributed, or sold. 2. The part of a boot above the instep. 3. Football. A play in which the quarterback bootlegs. — adj. Produced, sold, or transported illegally: boot-leg gin; bootleg tapes. [From a smuggler's practice of carrying liquor in the legs of boots.] — boot/leg'ger n.

boot-less (bōōt'līs) adj. Without advantage or benefit; useless. See Synonyms at futile. [BOOT² + -LESS.] — boot/less-ly adv. — boot/less-ness n.

boot-lick (bōōt'lik') v. boot-licked, boot-lick-ing, boot-licks. — v. tr. To behave toward in a servile or obsequious manner. — v. intr. To behave in a servile or obsequious manner. See Synonyms at fawn¹. — boot/lick'er n.

boot-strap (bōōt'străp') n. 1. A loop of leather, cloth, or synthetic material that is sewn at the side or the top rear of a boot to help in pulling the boot on.

2. Computer Science. A subroutine used to establish the full routine or another routine. — v. tr. boot-strapped, boot-strap-ping, boot-straps. 1. To promote and develop by use of one's own initiative and work without reliance on outside help: "We've bootstrapped our way back with aggressive tourism and recruiting high tech industries" (John Corrigan). 2. Computer Science. To establish (a program) with a bootstrap. — adj. 1. Undertaken or accomplished with minimal outside resources or help. 2. Computer Science. Being or relating to a process that is self-initiating or self-sustaining. — idiom. by one's (own) boot-straps. By one's own efforts.

bootstrap loader (bōot'strāp' lō'dər) n. Computer Science. A short program that loads other loaders in a computer.

bootstrap memory (bōot'strāp' mēm'ə-rē) n. Computer Science. A memory that allows new programs to be entered without erasing instructions already in the computer.

boo·ty (bōō'tē) n. pl. boo-ties. 1. Plunder taken from an enemy in time of war. 2. Goods or property seized by force or piracy. 3. A valuable prize, award, or gain. [Middle English botye (influenced by bote, advantage); see BOOT², probably from Middle Low German būte, exchange.]

booze (bōōz) Slang. n. 1. a. Hard liquor. b. An alcoholic beverage. 2. A drinking spree. — v. intr. boozed, booz-ing, booz-es. To drink alcoholic beverages excessively or chronically. [Alteration of obsolete bouse, liquor, drinking bout, from Middle English bousen, to drink to excess, from Middle Dutch būsen.] — booz'er n. — booz'y adj.

booze-hound (bōōz'hound') n. Slang. A very heavy drinker: "All old... booze-hounds are alike, aren't they?" (Jimmy Breslin).

bop¹ (bōp) Informal. v. tr. bopped, bop-ping, bops. To hit or strike. — n. A blow; a punch. [Imitative.]

bop² (bōp) n. Music. A style of jazz characterized by rhythmic and harmonic complexity, improvised solo performances, and a brilliant style of execution. — v. intr. bopped, bop-ping, bops. 1. To dance or move to the beat of this music. 2. Slang. To go: bopped off to the movies. [Short for BEBOP.] — bop/per n.

Bo·phu·tha·tswa·na (bō'pōō-tāt-swā'nə) An autonomous Black homeland within South Africa. It was granted nominal independence in December 1977. Mmabatho is the capital. Population, 1,347,000.

Bopp (bōp), Franz. 1791-1867. German philologist whose Comparative Grammar (1833-1852) illustrated the similarities among Indo-European languages.

bop-pish (bōp'ish) n. Music. In the style of bop: "a spirited boppish essay, full of harmonic twists and darting single-note runs" (Washington Post).

BOQ abbr. Bachelor Officers' Quarters.

bor. abbr. Borough.

bor- pref. Variant of boro-.

bo-ra (bôr'ə, bōr'ə) n. A violent, cold, northeasterly winter wind on the Adriatic Sea. [Italian dialectal, from Latin Boreās, Boreas. See BOREAS.]

Bo-ra Bo-ra (bôr'ə bôr'ə, bōr'ə bōr'ə) A volcanic island of French Polynesia in the Leeward group of the Society Islands in the southern Pacific Ocean.

bo-rac-ic (bə-rās'ik) adj. Variant of boric. [From Medieval Latin borāx, borāc-, borax. See BORAX¹.]

bor-age (bôr'ij, bōr'-) n. An annual, bristly European herb (Borago officinalis) having blue or purplish star-shaped flowers. [Middle English, from Old French bourage, from Medieval Latin borāgō, probably from Arabic bū'araq, from abū'araq, father of sweat (from its use as a sudorific).]

Bo-rah (bôr'ə, bōr'ə), William Edgar. 1865-1940. American politician. A Republican U.S. senator from Idaho (1907-1940), he was noted for his independent opinions.

Borah Peak (bôr'ə pēk) A mountain, 3,861.9 m (12,662 ft) high, in the Lost River Range of central Idaho. It is the highest elevation in the state.

bo-rane (bôr'an', bōr'-) n. Any of a series of boron-hydrogen compounds or a substance such as BCL that may be considered a derivative of such a compound.

Bo-rås (bō-rōs') A city of southwest Sweden east of Göteborg. It was founded in 1632. Population, 99,945.

bo-rate (bôr'āt', bōr'-) n. A salt or an ester of boric acid.

bo-rax¹ (bôr'äks', -äks, bōr'-) n. 1. A hydrated sodium borate, $\text{Na}_2\text{B}_4\text{O}_7 \cdot 10\text{H}_2\text{O}$, an ore of boron, that is used as a cleaning compound. 2. An anhydrous sodium borate used in the manufacture of glass and various ceramics. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Arabic būraq, from Middle Persian būrak.]

bo-rax² (bôr'äks', bōr'-) n. Cheap merchandise, especially tasteless furnishings: "today's glinty borax" (New Yorker). [Perhaps from the custom of giving away borax soap as a premium for the sale of cheap furniture.]

Bo-ra-zon (bôr'ə-zōn', bōr'-) A trademark used for an abrasive of boron nitride granules.

bor-bo-ryg-mus (bôr'bə-rig'məs) n. pl. bor-bo-ryg-mi (-mī'). A rumbling noise produced by the movement of gas through the intestines. [New Latin, from Greek borborugmos, of imitative origin.]

Bor-deaux¹ (bôr-dō') A city of southwest France on the Garonne River. It was under English rule from 1154 to 1453 and was the seat of the French government in 1914 and again in 1940. Bordeaux is the trading center of a notable wine-producing region. Population, 208,159.

Bor-deaux² (bôr-dō') n. pl. Bor-deaux (bôr-dō', -dōz'). A red or white wine originally produced in the region around Bordeaux, France.

Bordeaux mixture (bôr-dō' mīks'chər) n. A mixture of copper sulfate, lime, and water that is sprayed as a fungicide on trees and plants. [Translation of French bouillie bordelaise : bouillie, gruel, mixture + borde, of Bordeaux.]

bor-del-lo (bôr-dēl'ō) n. pl. bor-del-los. A house of prostitution. [Italian, from Old French bordel, from borde, wooden hut, of Germanic origin.]

Bor-den (bôr'dn), Gail. 1801-1874. American surveyor and inventor who developed condensed milk (1853) and other food products.

Bor-den (bôr'dn), Lizzie Andrew. 1860-1927. American woman accused and acquitted of the ax murder of her parents (1892).

Bor-den (bôr'dn), Sir Robert Laird. 1854-1937. Canadian prime minister (1911-1920) during World War I.

bor-der (bôr'dər) n. 1. A part that forms the outer edge of something. 2. A decorative strip around the edge of something, such as fabric. 3. A strip of ground, as at the edge of a garden or walk, in which ornamental plants or shrubs are planted. 4. The line or frontier area separating political divisions or geographic regions; a boundary. — v. bor-dered, bor-der-ing, bor-ders. — v. tr. 1. To put a border on. 2. To lie along or adjacent to the border of: Canada borders the United States. — v. intr. 1. To lie adjacent to another: The United States borders on Canada. 2. To be almost like another in character: an act that borders on heroism. [Middle English bordure, from Old French bordeure, from border, to border, from bort, border, of Germanic origin.] —bor'der-er n.

SYNONYMS: border, margin, edge, verge, brink, rim, brim. All these nouns refer to the line or narrow area that marks the outside limit of something such as a surface. Border refers either to the boundary line (erected a fence along the border of the property) or to the area that is immediately inside the boundary (a picture frame with a wide border). Margin is a border of more or less precisely definable width that is often distinguishable in other respects from the rest of the surface: a boathouse near the margin of the pond; the margin of a little clearing in the forest. Edge refers specifically to the precise bounding line formed by the continuous convergence of two surfaces: sat on the edge of the chair. Verge is an extreme terminating line or edge (the sun's afterglow on the verge of the horizon); figuratively it indicates a point at which something is likely to begin or to happen (an explorer on the verge of a great discovery). Brink denotes the edge of a steep place (stood on the brink of the cliff); in an extended sense it indicates the likelihood or imminence of a sudden change (on the brink of falling in love). Rim most often denotes the edge of something, such as a wheel, that is circular or curved: a crack in the rim of the lens. Brim applies to the upper edge or inner side of the rim of a container, such as a cup, or of something shaped like a basin: lava issuing from the brim of the crater. See also Synonyms at boundary border-land (bôr'dər-länd') n. 1. a. Land located on or near a frontier.

Border collie (bôr'dər kôl'ē) n. A British sheepdog that has a wavy, usually black coat with white markings and is used for herding. [From the border country of England and Scotland where it was first bred.]

b. The fringe: a shadowy figure who lived on the borderland of the drug scene.

2. An indeterminate area, situation, or condition: the borderland between sanity and insanity.

border-line (bôr'dər-līn') n. 1. A line that establishes or marks a border.

2. An indefinite area intermediate between two qualities or conditions: The borderline between love and hate is often thin. — adj. 1. a. Verging on a given quality or condition: borderline poverty. b. Of a questionable nature or quality; dubious: an applicant with borderline qualifications. 2. a. Psychology. Relating to any phenomenon that is intermediate between two groups and not clearly categorized in either group: a borderline state showing the characteristics of both neurotic and psychotic reactions. b. Relating to a condition characterized by a pattern of instability in mood, interpersonal relations, and self-image and manifested by self-destructive, manipulative, and inconsistent behavior: the borderline personality disorder; the borderline syndrome.

Border States (bôr'dər stāts) The slave states of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, and Missouri that were adjacent to the free states of the North during the Civil War. Virginia joined the Confederacy in 1861, causing its western counties to form the new state of West Virginia. It and other Border States remained tied to the Union despite strong Southern sympathies.

Border terrier (bôr'dər tēr'ē-ər) n. A small, hardy, rough-coated terrier bred to hunt foxes in the border country of England and Scotland.

Bor-det (bôr-dā'), Jules Jean Baptiste Vincent. 1870-1961. Belgian bacteriologist. He won a 1919 Nobel Prize for advances in immunology.

bor-de-tel-la (bôr'də-těl'ə) n. Microbiology. Any of various small, gram-negative coccobacilli of the genus Bordetella, some of which are pathogenic in the human respiratory tract. It includes B. pertussis, the causative agent of whooping cough. [New Latin Bordetella, genus name, after Jules Jean Baptiste Vincent BORDET.] bor-dure (bôr'jər) n. Heraldry. A border around a shield. [Middle English. See BORDER.] bore¹ (bôr, bōr) v. bored, bor-ing, bores. — v. tr. 1. To make a hole in or through, with or as if with a drill. 2. To form (a tunnel, for example) by drilling, digging, or burrowing. — v. intr. 1. To make a hole in or through something with or as if with a drill. 2. To proceed or advance steadily or laboriously: a destroyer boring through heavy seas. — n. 1. A hole or passage made by or as if by use of a drill. 2. A hollow, usually cylindrical chamber or barrel, as of a firearm. 3. The interior diameter of a hole, tube, or cylinder. 4. The caliber of a firearm. 5. A drilling tool. [Middle English boren, from Old English borian.]

bore² (bôr, bōr) v. tr. bored, bor-ing, bores. To make weary by being dull, repetitive, or tedious: The play bored us. — n. One that arouses boredom.
[Origin unknown.]

bore³ (bôr, bōr) n. A high, often dangerous wave caused by the surge of a flood tide upstream in a narrowing estuary or by colliding tidal currents. Also called eagre [Middle English bare, wave, from Old Norse bāra. See bher⁻¹ in Appendix.]

bore⁴ (bôr, bōr) v. Past tense of bear¹.

bo-re-al (bôr'ē-əl, bōr'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the north; northern. 2. Of or concerning the north wind. 3. Boreal. Of or relating to the forest areas of the northern North Temperate Zone, dominated by coniferous trees such as spruce, fir, and pine. [Middle English, from Late Latin Boreālis, from Latin Boreās, Boreas. See BOREAS.]

Bo-re-as (bôr'ē-əs, bōr'-) n. 1. Greek Mythology. The god of the north wind. 2. boreas. The north wind. [Middle English, from Latin Boreās, from Greek, from boreios, coming from the north.]

bore·cole (bôr'kōl', bōr'-) n. See kale (n., sense 1). [Dutch boerenkool: boren, plural of boer, peasant; see BOOR + kool, cabbage from Middle Dutch cōle, from Latin caulis, stalk. See KALE.]

bore·dom (bôr'dəm, bōr'-) n. The condition of being bored; ennui.

SYNONYMS: boredom, ennui, tedium. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a condition of mental weariness, listlessness, and discontent”: a party so dull we thought we'd perish of boredom; took up a hobby to relieve the ennui of retirement; the oppressive tedium of routine tasks.

ANTONYM: amusement

bore·hole (bôr'hōl', bōr'-) n. A hole that is drilled into the earth, as in exploratory well drilling or in building construction.

Bo-rel-li (bō-rĕl'ē), Giovanni Alfonso. 1608-1679. Italian mathematician, astronomer, and physiologist who first reasoned that celestial objects follow parabolic paths and also studied the movement of animals.

bor·er (bôr'ər, bōr'-) n. 1. A tool used for drilling. 2. An insect or insect larva, such as the corn borer, that bores into the woody parts of plants. 3. Any of various mollusks that bore into soft rock or wood.

Borg (bôrg), Bjorn. Born 1956. Swedish tennis player who won five consecutive Wimbledon championships (1976-1980).

Bor-ger (bôr'gər) A city of northern Texas in the Panhandle northeast of Amarillo. Oil was discovered in the area in 1925. Population 15,675.

Bor-ges (bôr/hěs), Jorge Luis. 1899-1986. Argentinian writer particularly known for his short stories, which have a metaphysical, fantastic quality.

Bor-gia (bôr/jə, -zhə) Italian family, influential from the 14th to the 16th century, that included the son and daughter of Pope Alexander VI. Cesare (1475?-1507), a religious, military, and political leader, was the model for Machiavelli's The Prince. Lucrezia (1489-1519), the Duchess of Ferrara, was a patron of learning and the arts.

Bor-glum (bôr/gləm), Gutzon. Originally John Gutzon de la Mothe Borglum. 1867-1941. American sculptor noted for his monumental works, particularly the busts of four U.S. Presidents on Mount Rushmore.

bo-ric (bôr/ik, bōr/-) also bo-rac-ic (bə-rās/ik) adj. Of, relating to, derived from, or containing boron.

boric acid (bôr/ik əs/īd) n. A water-soluble white or colorless crystalline compound, H_3BO_3 , used as an antiseptic and preservative and in fireproofing compounds, cosmetics, cements, and enamels.

bo-ride (bôr/īd', bōr/-) n. A binary compound of boron with a more electropositive element or radical.

bor-ing (bôr/īng, bōr/-) adj. Uninteresting and tiresome; dull. —bor/ing-ly adv. —bor/ing-ness n.

SYNONYMS: boring, monotonous, tedious, irksome, tiresome, humdrum. These adjectives refer to what is so lacking in interest as to cause mental weariness. Boring implies feelings of listlessness and discontent: I had expected the book to be boring, but on the contrary it was fascinating. What is monotonous bores because of lack of variety: "There is nothing so desperately monotonous as the sea" (James Russell Lowell). Tedious suggests dull slowness or long-windedness: When we travel from coast to coast, we take a plane to avoid spending tedious days on the train. Irksome describes what is demanding of time and effort and yet is dull and often unrewarding: "I know and feel what an irksome task the writing of long letters is" (Edmund Burke). Something tiresome fatigues because it seems to be interminable or to be marked by unremitting sameness: "What a tiresome being is a man who is fond of talking" (Benjamin Jowett). Humdrum refers to what is commonplace, trivial, or unexcitingly routine: She led a humdrum existence—all work and no play.

Bor-laug (bôr/lôg'), Norman Ernest. Born 1914. American agronomist. He won the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize for his attempts to overcome world hunger through advances in agriculture.

Bor-mann (bôr/män'), Martin Ludwig. 1900-1945?. German Nazi official who served as Hitler's private secretary (1941-1945). He is believed to have died in May 1945, but the circumstances of his death are unknown.

born (bôrn) v. A past participle of bear¹. — adj. 1. a. Abbr. b. Brought into life by birth. b. Brought into existence; created: A new nation was born with the revolution. 2. a. Having from birth a particular quality or talent: a born artist. b. Destined, or seemingly destined, from birth: a person born to lead. 3. Resulting or arising: wisdom born of experience. 4. Native to a particular country, region, or place. Often used in combination: Irish-born; Southern born and bred; Boston-born.

Born (bôrn), Max. 1882-1970. German-born physicist. He shared a 1954 Nobel Prize for his pioneering work in quantum mechanics.

born-a-gain (bôrn/'ə-gĕn') adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, or being a person who has made a conversion or has renewed a commitment to Jesus Christ as his or her personal savior: a born-again Christian. b. Of or relating to evangelical Christianity: born-again evangelism. 2. Characterized by renewal, resurgence, or return: born-again patriotism; a born-again fiscal conservative. [From born again in John 3:3 and 3:7.] — born'-a-gain', born'-a-gain'er n.

borne (bôrn, bôrn) v. A past participle of bear¹.

Bor-ne-o (bôrn/'nē-ō') An island of the western Pacific Ocean in the Malay Archipelago between the Sulu and Java seas southwest of the Philippines. It is the third-largest island in the world. The sultanate of Brunei is on the northwest coast; the rest of the island is divided between Indonesia and Malaysia.

—Bor'ne-an adj. & n.

Born-holm (bôrn/'hôm', -hōlm', -hōlm') An island of eastern Denmark in the Baltic Sea near Sweden. It was held for varying periods by Denmark, Sweden, and Lübeck merchants before becoming part of Denmark in the 1600's.

born-ite (bôrn/'nīt') n. A brownish-bronze, lustrous copper ore with the composition Cu_5FeS_4 that tarnishes to purple when exposed to air. [After Ignaz von Born (1742-1791), Austrian mineralogist.]

Bor-nu (bôrn/'nō) A region and former Muslim kingdom of western Africa occupying a vast plain in present-day northeast Nigeria. Founded in the 11th century, the kingdom reached the height of its power in the late 16th century. The region became part of Nigeria in 1902.

boro- or bor- pref. Boron: borosilicate. [From BORON.]

Bo-ro-bu-dur (bôrn/'ə-bə-dōr', bōr'-) A ruined Buddhist shrine in central Java, Indonesia. Dating probably from the ninth century, the ruins include intricately carved stone blocks illustrating episodes in the life of Buddha.

Bo-ro-din (bôrn/'ə-dĕn', bār'-, bə-rə-dĕn'), Aleksandr Porfirevich. 1833-1887. Russian composer and chemist whose musical works were based on Russian folk themes and include the opera Prince Igor, unfinished at his death.

Bo-ro-di-no (bôrn/'ə-dĕ'nō, bōr'-, bə-rə-dyĕ-nō') A village of western Russia west of Moscow. Nearby, Napoleon defeated the Russian troops defending Moscow on September 7, 1812.

bo·ron (bôr'ôn', bōr'-) n. Symbol B A soft, brown, amorphous or crystalline nonmetallic element, extracted chiefly from kernite and borax and used in flares, propellant mixtures, nuclear reactor control elements, abrasives, and hard metallic alloys. Atomic number 5; atomic weight 10.811; melting point 2,300°C; sublimation point 2,550°C; specific gravity (crystal) 2.34; valence 3. [BOR(AX)¹ + (CARB)ON.]

boron carbide (bôr'ôn' kär'bīd') n. A compound of boron and carbon, especially B₄C, an extremely hard, black crystalline compound or solid solution. It is used as an abrasive, in control rods for nuclear reactors, and as a reinforcing filament in composite structural materials.

bo-ro-sil-i-cate (bôr'ō-sīl'ī-kīt, -kāt', bōr') n. A salt that is derived from both boric acid and silicic acid and occurs naturally in dumortierite.

borosilicate glass (bôr'ō-sīl'ī-kīt gläs) n. A strong heat-resistant glass that contains a minimum of 5 percent boric oxide.

bor-ough (bûr'ō, bŭr'-ō) n. Abbr. bor. 1. A self-governing incorporated town in some U.S. states, such as New Jersey. 2. One of the five administrative units of New York City. 3. A civil division of the state of Alaska that is the equivalent of a county in most other U.S. states. 4. Chiefly British. a. A town having a municipal corporation and certain rights, such as self-government. b. A town that sends a representative to Parliament. 5. A medieval group of fortified houses that formed a town having special privileges and rights. [Middle English burgh, city, from Old English burg, fortified town. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

bor-ough-Eng-lish (bûr'ō-īng'glīsh, bŭr'-) n. An old custom in certain English boroughs whereby the right to inherit an estate intestate went to the youngest son or, in default of issue, to the youngest brother. [Partial translation of Anglo-Norman tenure en burgh Engloys, tenure in an English borough. See BOROUGH.]

bor-rel-i-a (bā-rĕl'ē-ə, -rĕ'lĕ-ə) n. Microbiology. Any of various irregularly coiled helical spirochetes of the genus Borrelia, some species of which cause relapsing fever in humans, other mammals, and birds. [New Latin, after Amédée Borrel (1867-1936), French bacteriologist.]

Bor-ro-mi-ni (bō'rō-mĕ'nĕ), Francesco. Originally Francesco Castelli. 1599-1667. Italian architect and sculptor of the baroque. He revolutionized architecture with his treatment of space, light, and geometric shapes.

bor-row (bŏr'ō, bôr'ō) v. bor-rowed, bor-row-ing, bor-rows. — v. tr. 1. To obtain or receive (something) on loan with the promise or understanding of returning it or its equivalent. 2. To adopt or use as one's own: I borrowed your good idea. 3. In subtraction, to take a unit from the next larger denomination in the minuend so as to make a number larger than the number to be subtracted. — v. intr. 1. To obtain or receive something. 2. Linguistics. To adopt words from one language for use in another. — idiom. borrow trouble. To take an unnecessary action that will probably engender adverse effects. [Middle English borwen, from Old English borgian. See bhergh⁻¹ in Appendix.] —bor'row-er n.

Bor-row (bör'ō), George Henry. 1803-1881. British philologist, traveler, and writer of books based on his journeys, including Romany Rye (1857).

bor-rowed time (bör'ōd tīm, bôr'-'-) n. An uncertain, typically uncontrolled extension of time that is the result of postponing or attempting to postpone the occurrence of something inevitable and often unpleasant. Often used with on: cancer patients living on borrowed time; an unstable government that existed for months on borrowed time.

bor-row-ing (bör'ō-īng, bôr'-'-) n. Something that is borrowed, especially a word borrowed from one language for use in another.

borscht also borsht (bôrsh) or borsch (bôrsh) n. A beet soup served hot or cold, usually with sour cream. [Yiddish borsht, from Russian borshch, cow parsnip (the original base of the soup), borscht.]

borscht belt (bôrsh bēlt) n. Informal. The predominantly Jewish resort hotels of the Catskill Mountains. Also called borscht circuit [From the popularity of BORSCHT in the cuisine of these hotels.]

borsht (bôrsh) n. Variant of borscht.

bort (bôrt) n. 1. Poorly crystallized diamonds used for industrial cutting and abrasion. 2. A carbonado. [Probably from Dutch boort.] —bort'y adj.

bor-zoi (bôr'zoi') n. Any of a breed of tall, slender dogs having a narrow, pointed head and a silky, predominantly white coat, originally developed in Russia for hunting wolves. Also called Russian wolfhound [Russian borzoï, swift.]

Bosc (bösk) n. A variety of pear having a long neck, greenish-yellow skin overlaid with reddish-brown color, and juicy sweet flesh. [After Louis Auguste Guillaume Bosc, 19th-century Belgian horticulturist.]

bos-cage also bos-kage (bösk'kāj) n. A mass of trees or shrubs; a thicket. [Middle English boskage, from Old French boscage, from bosc, forest, of Germanic origin.]

Bosch (bösh, bôsh, bös, bôs), Hieronymous. 1450?-1516. Dutch painter whose largely religious works are characterized by grotesque, fantastic creatures mingling with human figures.

Bosch (bösh, bôsh), Karl. 1874-1940. German chemist. He shared a 1931 Nobel Prize for the development of methods for high-pressure treatment of chemicals.

bosh (bösh) Informal. n. Nonsense. — interj. Used to express disbelief or annoyance. [Turkish boş, empty.]

bosk (bösk) n. A small wooded area. [Back-formation from BOSKY.]

bos-kage (bösk'kāj) n. Variant of boscage.

bosk-y (bösk'kē) adj. bosk-i-er, bosk-i-est. 1. Having an abundance of bushes, shrubs, or trees: “a bosky park leading to a modest yet majestic plaza” (Jack Beatty).

2. Of or relating to woods. [From Middle English bosk, bush, from Medieval Latin bosca, of Germanic origin.] — bosk'i-ness n.

bo's'n or bos'n (bō'sən) n. Variants of boatswain.

Bos·ni·a (bۆz'nē-ə) A region comprising the northern part of Bosnia-Herzegovina. It was settled by Serbs in the 7th century and became an independent state in the 12th century. Bosnia was controlled after 1463 by Turkey and after 1878 by Austria-Hungary, which formally annexed Bosnia in 1908. After World War II Bosnia was united with Herzegovina to form a constituent republic of Yugoslavia. — Bos'ni·an adj. & n.

Bos·ni·a·Her·ze·go·vi·na (bۆz'nē-ə-hěrt'sə-gō-vē'nə) or Bosnia and Herzegovina A region and republic of the northwest Balkan Peninsula bounded by Croatia to the north and west, Serbia to the east, and Montenegro to the south. Bosnia-Herzegovina was a constituent republic of Yugoslavia from 1946 to 1991. Sarajevo is the capital and the largest city. Population, 3,710,965.

bos·om (bōz'əm, bō'zəm) n. 1. a. The chest of a human being: He held the sleepy child to his bosom. b. A woman's breast or breasts. 2. The part of a garment covering the chest or breasts. 3. The security and closeness likened to being held in a warm familial embrace: We welcomed the stranger into the bosom of our family. 4. The chest considered as the source of emotion. — adj. Beloved; intimate: a bosom friend. [Middle English, from Old English bōsm.]

bo·son (bō'sōn) n. Any of a class of particles, such as the photon, pion, or alpha particle, that have zero or integral spin and obey statistical rules permitting any number of identical particles to occupy the same quantum state. [After Satyendra Nath Bose (1894-1974), Indian physicist.]

Bos·po·rus (bۆs'pər-əs) A narrow strait separating European and Asian Turkey and joining the Black Sea with the Sea of Marmara. It has been an important trade route since ancient times.

bos·quet (bۆs'kīt) n. A small grove; a thicket. [French, from Italian boschetto, diminutive of bosco, forest, of Germanic origin.]

boss¹ (bۆs, bۆs) n. 1. a. An employer or a supervisor. b. One who makes decisions or exercises authority. 2. A professional politician who controls a party or a political machine. — v. bossed, boss·ing, boss·es. — v. tr. 1. To supervise or control. See Synonyms at supervise. 2. To give orders to, especially in an arrogant or domineering manner: bossing us around. — v. intr. To be or act as a supervisor or controlling element. — adj. Slang. First-rate; topnotch. [Dutch baas, master.]

boss² (bۆs, bۆs) n. 1. A circular protuberance or knoblike swelling, as on the horns of certain animals. 2. A raised area used as ornamentation. 3. Architecture. A raised ornament, such as one at the intersection of the ribs in a vaulted roof. 4. a. An enlarged part of a shaft to which another shaft is coupled or to which a wheel or gear is keyed. b. A hub, especially of a propeller. — v.

tr. bossed, boss-ing, boss-es. To emboss. [Middle English boce, from Old French.]

boss³ (bôs, bös) n. A cow or calf. [Perhaps ultimately from Latin bōs. See BOVINE.]

bos-sa no-va (bös'ə nō'və, bô'sə) n. 1. A lively Brazilian dance similar to the samba. 2. Music that is a blend of jazz and samba. [Portuguese : bossa, trend + nova, new.]

Bos-sier City (bō'zhər sīt'ē) A city of northwest Louisiana, an industrial suburb of Shreveport on the opposite bank of the Red River. Population, 52,721.

boss-ism (bô'siz'əm, bös'iz'-) n. The domination of a political organization by a boss.

Bos-suet (bôs-wā'), Jacques Bénigne. 1627-1704. French prelate and historian noted for his funereal orations and a philosophical treatise on history.

boss-y¹ (bô'sē, bös'ē) adj. boss-i-er, boss-i-est. Given to ordering others around; domineering. —boss'i-ly adv. —boss'i-ness n.

boss-y² (bô'sē, bös'ē) adj. Decorated with raised ornaments.

boss-y³ (bô'sē, bös'ē) n. pl. boss-ies. Informal. A cow or calf. [From BOSS³.]

Bos-ton (bô'stən, bös'tən) The capital and largest city of Massachusetts, in the eastern part of the state on Boston Bay, an arm of Massachusetts Bay. Founded in the 17th century, it was a leading center of agitation against England in the 18th century and a stronghold of abolitionist thought in the 19th century. Today it is a major commercial, financial, and educational hub. Population, 574,283.

—Bos-to'ni-an (bô-stō'nē-ən, bös-) adj. & n.

Boston bull (bô'stən bōōl) n. See Boston terrier.

Boston cream pie (bô'stən krēm pī) n. A round cake with a custard or cream filling.

Boston fern (bô'stən fûrn) n. 1. A cultivar of sword fern (Nephrolepis exaltata cv. Bostoniensis) having arching or drooping pinnate fronds. It is a popular houseplant. 2. Any of numerous other forms derived from the sword fern.

Boston ivy (bô'stən ī'vē) n. A high-climbing woody vine (Parthenocissus tricuspidata), native to eastern Asia and having three-lobed deciduous leaves. It frequently covers the outer walls of buildings and has attractive fall coloration. Also called Japanese ivy

Boston lettuce (bô'stən lēt'əs) n. A type of cultivated lettuce forming a rounded head and having soft-textured, yellow-green inner leaves.

Boston rocker (bô'stən rök'ər) n. A rocking chair having a high back with spindles, a decorative panel at the top, and a seat and arms that curve downward in front.

Boston terrier (bô'stən tēr'ē-ər) n. Any of a breed of small dogs originating in New England as a cross between a bull terrier and a bulldog and having a smooth, brindled or black coat with white markings. Also called Boston bull bo·sun (bō'sən) n. Variant of boatswain.

Bos·well (böz'wəl', -wəl) n. An assiduous and devoted admirer, student, and recorder of another's words and deeds. [After James Boswell.]

—Bos'well·ize' (-īz') v.

Bos·well (böz'wəl', -wəl), James. 1740-1795. Scottish lawyer, diarist, and writer renowned as the biographer of Samuel Johnson. —Bos·well'i·an adj. & n.

Bos·worth Field (böz'wərth fēld) A locality in central England near Leicester. It was the site of the final battle (August 22, 1485) of the Wars of the Roses, in which Henry Tudor (afterward Henry VII) defeated Richard III, the last king of the Plantagenet line. Richard was killed in the battle.

bot also bott (böt) n. 1. The parasitic larva of a botfly. 2. bots. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A disease of mammals, especially cattle and horses, caused by infestation of the stomach or intestines with botfly larvae. [Middle English, probably of Low German origin.]

bot. abbr. 1. Botanical; botanist; botany. 2. Bottle. 3. Bottom.

bo·tan·i·cal (bə-tăn'ī-kəl) also bo·tan·ic (-tăn'īk) adj. Abbr. bot. 1. Of or relating to plants or plant life. 2. Of or relating to the science of botany. — n. A drug, medicinal preparation, or similar substance obtained from a plant or plants. [From Late Latin botanicus, from Greek botanikos, from botanē, fodder, plants.] —bo·tan'i·cal·ly adv.

botanical garden or botanic garden (bə-tăn'ī-kəl gār'dn) n. A place where a wide variety of plants are cultivated for scientific, educational, and ornamental purposes, often including a library, a herbarium, and greenhouses; an arboretum.

bot·a·nist (böt'n-īst) n. Abbr. bot. One who specializes in botany.

bot·a·nize (böt'n-īz') v. bot·a·nized, bot·a·niz·ing, bot·a·niz·es. — v. intr. 1. To collect plants for scientific study. 2. To investigate or study plants scientifically. — v. tr. To investigate or explore the plant life of (a region). —bot'a·niz'er n.

bot·a·ny (böt'n-ē) n. pl. bot·a·nies. Abbr. bot. 1. a. The science or study of plants. b. A book or scholarly work on this subject. 2. The plant life of a particular area: the botany of the Ohio River valley. 3. The characteristic features and biology of a particular kind of plant or plant group. [From BOTANICAL.]

Bot·a·ny Bay (böt'n-ē bā) An inlet of the Tasman Sea in southeast Australia south of Sydney. It was visited by Capt. James Cook in 1770 and named by Sir Joseph Banks, the botanist in his crew, for the wide variety of exotic flora found on its shores.

botch (böch) v. tr. botched, botch·ing, botch·es. 1. To ruin through clumsiness. 2. To make or perform clumsily; bungle. 3. To repair or mend clumsily. — n. 1. A ruined or defective piece of work: "I have made a miserable botch of this description” (Nathaniel Hawthorne). 2. A hodgepodge. [Middle English bocchen, to mend.] —botch'er n. —botch'y adj.

SYNONYMS: botch, blow, bungle, fumble, muff. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to harm or spoil through inept or clumsy handling”: botch a repair; blow an opportunity; a bungled performance; fumbled my chance for a promotion; an actor muffing his lines.

bot·fly also bot fly (bŏt'flī') n. Any of various stout, two-winged flies, chiefly of the genera Gasterophilus and Oestrus, having larvae that are parasitic on various animals, especially horses and sheep, and sometimes on humans.

both (bōth) adj. One and the other; relating to or being two in conjunction: Both guests have arrived. Both the books are torn. Both her fingers are broken. — pron. The one and the other: Both were candidates. We are both candidates. Both of us are candidates. — conj. Used with and to indicate that each of two things in a coordinated phrase or clause is included: both men and women; an attorney well regarded for both intelligence and honesty. [Middle English bothe, from Old English bā thā, both those : bā, neuter of bēgen, both + thā, pl. of thæt, that; see THAT.]

USAGE NOTE: Both is used to indicate that the action or state denoted by the verb applies individually to each of two entities. Both books weigh more than five pounds, for example, means that each book weighs more than five pounds by itself, not that the two books weighed together come to more than five pounds. Both is inappropriate where the verb does not apply to each of the entities by itself.

• In possessive constructions of both is usually preferred: the mothers of both (rather than both their mothers); the fault of both (rather than both their fault or both's fault). • When both is used with and to link parallel elements in a sentence, the words or phrases that follow them should correspond grammatically: in both India and China or both in India and in China (not both in India and China). See Usage Note at and.

Bo·tha (bō'tə, -tä'), Louis. 1862-1919. South African general in the Boer War (1899-1902) and first prime minister of the Union of South Africa (1910-1919).

Bo·tha (bō'tə, -tä'), Pieter Willem. Born 1916. South African prime minister (1978-1989) who defended and upheld apartheid despite international protest.

Bo·the (bō'tə), Walther Wilhelm. 1891-1957. German physicist. He shared a 1954 Nobel Prize for his research on cosmic radiation.

both·er (bōth'ər) v. both·ered, both·er·ing, both·ers. — v. tr. 1. To disturb or anger, especially by minor irritations; annoy. See Synonyms at annoy. 2. a. To make agitated or nervous; fluster. b. To make confused or perplexed; puzzle. 3. To intrude on without invitation or warrant; disturb. 4. To give trouble to: a back condition that bothers her constantly. — v. intr. 1. To take the trouble; concern oneself. 2. To cause trouble. — n. A cause or state of disturbance. — interj. Used to express annoyance or mild irritation. [Probably from dialectal bodder, possibly of Celtic origin.]

both·er·a·tion (bōth'ə-rā'shən) n. The act of bothering or the state of being bothered. — interj. Used to express annoyance or irritation.

both·er·some (bōth'ər-səm) adj. Causing bother; troublesome.

Both·ni·a (bōth'nē-ə), Gulf of. An arm of the Baltic Sea between Sweden and Finland. It is icebound for nearly half the year.

Both·well (bōth'wəl', -wəl, bōth'-), Fourth Earl of Title of James Hepburn. 1536?-1578. Scottish Protestant nobleman and third husband of Mary Queen of Scots, whose second husband, Lord Darnley, he murdered (1567). Acquitted of the crime, he wedded Mary and was soon forced into exile. He died while imprisoned in Denmark.

bo tree (bō trē) n. See peepul. [Partial translation of Singhalese bo-gaha, tree of wisdom, from Pali bodhi, from Sanskrit bodhiḥ, enlightenment. See bheudh- in Appendix.]

bot·ry·oid·al (bōt'rē-oid'l) also bot·ry·oid (bōt'rē-oid') adj. Shaped like a bunch of grapes. Used especially of mineral formations: botryoidal hematite. [From Greek botruoideōs : botrus, bunch of grapes + -oideōs, -oid.]

—bot'ry·oid'al·ly adv.

bo·try·tis (bō-trī'tis) n. 1. Any of various fungi of the genus Botrytis responsible for numerous diseases of fruits and vegetables. 2. Noble rot. [New Latin, genus name, from Greek botrus, bunch of grapes.]

Bot·swa·na (bōt-swā'nə) Formerly Bech·u·a·na·land (bēch-wā'nə-lānd', bēch'ōō-ä'nə-). A country of south-central Africa. A British protectorate after 1885, it gained full independence in 1966. Gaborone is the capital and Francistown the largest city. Population, 973,000.

bott (bōt) n. Variant of bot.

Bot·ti·cel·li (bōt'ī-chěl'ē), Sandro. Originally Alessandro di Mariano dei Filipepi. 1444?-1510. Italian painter of the Florentine school whose flowing draftsmanship is evident in his masterpieces, Primavera (c. 1477) and Birth of Venus (c. 1485).

bot·tle (bōt'l) n. Abbr. bot. 1. A receptacle having a narrow neck, usually no handles, and a mouth that can be plugged, corked, or capped. 2. The quantity that a bottle holds. 3. A receptacle filled with milk or formula that is fed, as to babies, in place of breast milk. 4. Informal. a. Intoxicating liquor: Don't take to the bottle. b. The practice of drinking large quantities of intoxicating liquor: Her problem is the bottle. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: bottle soda; a bottle recycling program. — v. tr. bot·tled, bot·tling, bot·tles.

1. To place in a bottle. 2. To hold in; restrain: bottled up my emotions. [Middle bot-tle-brush (bۆt'l-brűsh') n. Any of various Australian shrubs or trees of the genera Callistemon and Melaleuca, having densely flowered, cylindrical spikes with numerous, long, protruding stamens that suggest a brush used to clean bottles.

English botel, from Old French botele, from Medieval Latin butticula, diminutive of Late Latin buttis, cask.] —bot'tler n.

bot-tled gas (bۆt'ld gäs) n. Gas, such as butane or propane, stored under pressure in portable tanks.

bot-tle-feed (bۆt'l-fēd') v. tr. bot-tle--fed (-fēd'), bot-tle--feed-ing, bot-tle--feeds. To feed (a baby, for example) with a bottle.

bottle gourd (bۆt'l gōrd) n. See calabash (n., sense 1). bottle green (bۆt'l grēn) n. Color. A dark to moderate or grayish green. —bot'tle-green' (bۆt'l-grēn') adj.

bot-tle-neck (bۆt'l-nēk') n. 1. a. A narrow or obstructed section, as of a highway or a pipeline. b. A point or an area of traffic congestion. 2. A hindrance to progress or production. 3. The narrow part of a bottle near the top. 4. Music. A style of guitar playing in which an object, such as a piece of glass or metal, is passed across the strings to achieve a gliding sound. — v. tr. bot-tle-necked, bot-tle-neck-ing, bot-tle-necks. To slow down or impede by creating an obstruction.

bot-tle-nosed dolphin (bۆt'l-nōzd' dۆl'fīn) n. Any of several marine mammals of the genus Tursiops, especially T. truncatus, widely distributed in temperate and tropical waters and characterized by a short, protruding beak, a large, stocky body, and a prominent falcate dorsal fin. Also called bottlenose bottle tree (bۆt'l trē) n. Any of certain Australian trees of the genus Brachychiton, having a swollen, sometimes bottle-shaped trunk and cultivated in warm regions as an ornamental.

bot-tom (bۆt'əmə) n. Abbr. bot. 1. The deepest or lowest part: the bottom of a well; the bottom of the page. 2. The underside: scraped the bottom of the car on a rock. 3. The supporting part; the base. 4. The far end or part: at the bottom of the bed. 5. a. The last place, as on a list. b. The lowest or least favorable position: started at the bottom of the corporate hierarchy. 6. The basic underlying quality; the source: Let's get to the bottom of the problem. 7. The solid surface under a body of water. 8. Often bottoms. Low-lying alluvial land adjacent to a river. Also called bottomland 9. a. Nautical. The part of a ship's hull below the water line. b. A ship; a boat: "English merchants did much of their overseas trade in foreign bottoms" (G.M. Trevelyan). 10. Often bottoms. The trousers or short pants of pajamas. 11. Informal. The buttocks. 12. The seat of a chair.

13. Baseball. The second or last half of an inning. 14. Staying power; stamina. Used of a horse. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a bottom drawer; the bottom stair. — v. bot-tomed, bot-tom-ing, bot-toms. —

v. tr. 1. To provide with an underside. 2. To provide with a foundation. 3. To get to the bottom of; fathom. — v. intr. 1. To be or become based or grounded. 2. To rest on or touch the bottom. — phrasal verb. bottom out. To descend to the lowest point possible, after which only a rise may occur: Sales of personal computers have bottomed out. — idiom. at bottom. Basically. [Middle English botme, from Old English botm.] — bot'tom-er n.

bottom break (bɒt'əm brāk) n. A branch arising from the stem base of a plant. [BOTTOM + BREAK, branch formed by pinching or disbudding.]

bot-tom-land (bɒt'əm-länd') n. See bottom (n., sense 8).

bot-tom-less (bɒt'əm-līs) adj. 1. Having no bottom. 2. Too deep to be measured: a bottomless glacier lake. 3. Difficult or impossible to understand; unfathomable: one of the bottomless mysteries of life. 4. Having no limitations or bounds; limitless: a bottomless supply of money. 5. a. Nude, especially unclothed below the waist: bottomless dancers. b. Featuring such dancers as entertainment: bottomless bars. — bot'tom-less-ly adv.

bottom line (bɒt'əm līn) n. 1. The line in a financial statement that shows net income or loss. 2. The final result or statement; upshot: "The bottom line, however, is that he has escaped" (David Wise). 3. The main or essential point: "A lot can happen between now and December, but the bottom line—for now—is that the city is still heading toward default" (New York).

bot-tom-line (bɒt'əm-līn') adj. 1. Concerned exclusively with costs and profits: bottom-line issues. 2. Ruthlessly realistic; pragmatic: a bottom-line political strategy. — bot'tom-line' v.

bot-tom-most (bɒt'əm-mōst') adj. 1. Sited at the very bottom: the bottom-most rung of a ladder. 2. Being or coming after all others; last: Fleeing was the bottommost thought in my mind. 3. Forming the very basis: Freedom of speech is one of the bottommost principles of democracy.

bottom quark (bɒt'əm kwôrk) n. Abbr. b A quark with a charge of -3 and a mass about 10,000 times that of the electron. Also called beauty quark bottom round (bɒt'əm raund) n. A cut of meat, such as steak, taken from the outer section of a round of beef.

Bot-trop (bɒt'rɒp', bôt'rôp') A city of northwest Germany in the Ruhr Valley northwest of Essen. It developed as a coal-mining center after the 1860's. Population, 112,353.

bot-u-lin (böch'ə-līn) n. Any of several potent neurotoxins produced by botulinum and resistant to proteolytic digestion. [Latin botulus, sausage + -IN.]

bot-u-li-num (böch'ə-lī'nəm) also bot-u-li-nus (-nəs) n. An anaerobic, rod-shaped bacterium (Clostridium botulinum) that secretes botulin and inhabits soils. [New Latin, from Latin botulus, sausage.] — bot'u-li-nal adj.

bot-u-lism (böch'ə-līz'əm) n. A severe, sometimes fatal food poisoning caused by ingestion of food containing botulin and characterized by nausea, vomiting, disturbed vision, muscular weakness, and fatigue. [German Botulismus, from Latin botulus, sausage.]

Boua-ké (bwä'kā) A town of central Ivory Coast. It was once a crossroads for caravan trade. Population, 230,000.

Bou-cher (bōo-shā'), François. 1703-1770. French artist whose paintings and tapestries are representative of the rococo style.

Bou-cher-ville (bōo'shər-vīl', bōo'shā-vēl') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, an industrial suburb of Montreal on the St. Lawrence River. Population, 29,704.

Bou-ci-cault (bōo'sē-kō'), Dion. Originally Dionysius Lardner Boursiquot. 1820?-1890. Irish-born American actor and playwright whose original and adapted works include The Octoroon (1859) and The Colleen Bawn (1860).

bou-clé or bou-cle (bōo-klā') n. 1. A type of yarn, usually three-ply and having one thread looser than the others, that produces a rough-textured cloth. 2. Fabric woven or knitted from this yarn. [French, from past participle of boucler, to curl, from Old French boucler, from boucle, buckle, curl of hair. See BUCKLE.]

Bou-dain (bōo-dän', -dän') n. Variant of boudin.

Bou-dic-ca (bōo-dīk'ə) also Bo-ad-i-ce-a (bō'äd-ī-sē'ə), First century A.D. Queen of ancient Britain who led a temporarily successful revolt against the Roman army that had claimed her deceased husband's kingdom.

bou-din also Bou-dain (bōo-dän', -dän') n. pl. bou-dins also Bou-dains (-dän', -dänz'). A highly seasoned link sausage of pork, pork liver, and rice that is a typical element of Louisiana Creole cuisine. [French, from Old French bodine, intestines.]

boudin blanc (bōo-dän' blän) n. pl. boudins blancs (blän). A French white sausage made of pork, chicken, or veal. [French : boudin, boudin + blanc, white.]

boudin noir (bōo-dän' nwär) n. pl. boudins noirs (nwär). See black pudding. [French : boudin, boudin + noir, black.]

bou-doir (bōo'dwär', -dwôr') n. A woman's private sitting room, dressing room, or bedroom. [French, from Old French bouder, to sulk.]

bouf-fant (bōo-fänt') adj. Puffed-out; full: a bouffant hair style. [French, from present participle of bouffer, to puff up, from Old French.]

bouffe (bōof) n. See comic opera. [Short for OPÉRA BOUFFE.]

bou-gain-vil-lae-a (bōo'gən-vīl'ē-ə, -vīl'yə, -vē'ə, bō'-) n. Variant of bougainvillea.

Bou-gain-ville (bōo'gən-vīl', bōo-gän-vēl') A volcanic island of Papua New Guinea in the Solomon Islands of the southwest Pacific Ocean. It was discovered by Louis de Bougainville in 1768.

Bou-gain-ville (bōō'gən-vīl', bōō-gāN-vēl'), Louis Antoine de. 1729-1811.

French explorer who circumnavigated the globe (1766-1769) with a crew that included astronomers and naturalists.

bou-gain-vil-le-a also bou-gain-vil-lae-a (bōō'gən-vīl'ē-ə, -vīl'γə, -vē'ə, bō'-) n. Any of several South American woody shrubs or vines of the genus Bougainvillea having groups of three petallike, showy, variously colored bracts attached to the flowers. [New Latin Bougainvillea, genus name, after Louis Antoine de BOUGAINVILLE.]

bough (bou) n. A tree branch, especially a large or main branch. [Middle English, from Old English bōh. See bhāghu- in Appendix.]

bought (bôt) v. Past tense and past participle of buy. See Regional note at boughten.

bought-en (bôt'n) Chiefly Northern U.S. v. A past participle of buy. — adj.

1. Commercially made; purchased, as opposed to homemade: boughten bread.

2. Artificial; false. Used of teeth.

REGIONAL NOTE: American regional dialects allow freer adjectival use of certain past participles of verbs than does Standard English. Time-honored examples are boughten (Chiefly Northern U.S.) and bought (Chiefly Southern U.S.) to mean “purchased rather than homemade”: boughten sugar, a boughten dress, bought bread. The Northern form boughten (as in store boughten) features the participial ending -en, added to bought, the participial form, probably by analogy with more common participial adjectives such as frozen. Another development, analogous with homemade, is evident in bought-made, cited in DARE from a Texas informant.

bou-gie (bōō'zhē, -jē) n. 1. Medicine. a. A slender, flexible, cylindrical instrument that is inserted into a bodily canal, such as the urethra, to dilate, examine, or medicate. b. See suppository. 2. A wax candle. [French, from Old French, a fine wax, after Bougie (Bejaïa), a city of northern Algeria.]

bouil-la-baisse (bōō'γə-bās', bōōl'γə-bās') n. 1. A highly seasoned fish stew made of several kinds of fish and shellfish. 2. A combination of various different, often incongruous elements: a bouillabaisse of special interests. [French, from Provençal bouiabaisso : boui, imperative of bouïe, to boil (from Latin bullire, from bulla, bubble) + abaisso, imperative of abeissa, to lower (from Vulgar Latin abbassiāre* : Latin ad-, ad- + Medieval Latin bassus, low).]

bouil-lon (bōōl'γōn', -γən, bōō'γōn') n. A clear, thin broth made typically by simmering beef or chicken in water with seasonings. [French, from Old French, from bouilir, to boil, from Latin bullire, from bulla, bubble.]

bouillon cube (bōōl'yōn' kyōōb) n. A small cube of evaporated seasoned meat, poultry, or vegetable stock, used in making broth or to add flavor to soups or stews.

boul. abbr. Boulevard.

Bou-lan-ger (bōō-lāN-zhā'), Georges Ernest Jean Marie. 1837-1891.

French military and political leader who after serving in the Franco-Prussian War (1870-1871) envisioned himself dictator and was accused of treason. He committed suicide in exile.

Bou-lan-ger (bōō-lāN-zhā'), Nadia Juliette. 1887-1979. French music teacher of several modern American composers, including Virgil Thomson and Aaron Copland.

boul-der also bowl-der (bōl'dər) n. A large rounded mass of rock lying on the surface of the ground or embedded in the soil. [Middle English bulder, of Scandinavian origin. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

Boul-der (bōl'dər) A city of north-central Colorado northwest of Denver. It is a major Rocky Mountains resort and the seat of the University of Colorado (opened 1877). Population, 83,312.

bould-er-ing (bōl'dər-īng) n. Sports. Basic or intermediate climbing carried out on relatively small rocks that can be traversed without great risk of bodily harm in case of a fall. —bould'er-er n.

bou-le¹ (bōō'lē, bōō-lā') n. 1. The lower house of the modern Greek legislature. 2. a. The senate of 400 founded by Solon in ancient Athens. b. A legislative assembly in any one of the ancient Greek states. [Greek boulē. See g^wel- in Appendix.]

boule² (bōōl) n. A pear-shaped synthetic sapphire, ruby, or other alumina-based gem, produced by fusing and tinting alumina. [French, ball, from Old French, bubble, from Latin bullā.]

boule³ (bōōl) n. Variant of buhl.

boul-e-ward (bōōl'ə-vārd', bōō'lə-) n. Abbr. blvd., Blvd., boul. 1. A broad city street, often tree-lined and landscaped. 2. Upper Midwest. See median strip. See Regional note at neutral ground. [French, from Old French bolle-vart, rampart converted to a promenade, from Middle Dutch bolwerc, bulwark. See BULWARK.]

bou-le-ward-ier (bōō'lə-vār-dyā', -dīr') n. A man about town. [Obsolete French, from boulevard, boulevard. See BOULEVARD.]

boulevard strip (bōōl'ə-vārd' strīp) n. Upper Midwest. See median strip. See Regional note at neutral ground.

bou-le-ver-se-ment (bōō'lə-vēr'sə-män') n. 1. A violent uproar; a tumult. 2. A reversal. [French, from Old French bouleverser, to overturn : boule, ball (from Latin bullā) + verser, to overturn (from Old French, from Latin versāre, frequentative of vertere, to turn); see wer-² in Appendix.]

Bou-lez (bōō-lěz'), Pierre. Born 1925. French conductor and composer of atonal, avant-garde works, notably Le Marteau sans Maître (1955).

bouille (bōōl) n. Variant of buhl.

Bou-logne (bōō-lōn', -lōn'yə) also Bou-logne-sur-Mer (-sūr-měr') A city of northern France on the English Channel north-northwest of Amiens. Of Celtic origin, it is the leading fishing port of France. Population, 47,653.

Bou-logne-Bil-lan-court (bōō-lōn'yə-bē-yān-kōōr') A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris. Population, 102,582.

Bou-logne-sur-Mer (bōō-lōn'sūr-měr', -lōn'yə-) See Boulogne.

bounce (bouns) v. bounced, bouncing, bounce-s. — v. intr. 1. To rebound after having struck an object or a surface. 2. To move jerkily; bump: The car bounced over the potholes. 3. To recover quickly, as from a setback: The patient bounced back to good health. 4. To bound: children bouncing into the room. 5. Informal. To be sent back by a bank as valueless: a check that bounced. 6. Baseball. To hit a ground ball that rebounds before reaching an infielder: The batter bounced out to the shortstop. — v. tr. 1. To cause to strike an object or a surface and rebound: bounce a ball on the sidewalk. 2. Slang. a. To expel by force. b. To dismiss from employment. See Synonyms at dismiss. 3. To write (a check) on an overdrawn bank account. — n. 1. A rebound. 2. A sudden bound, spring, or leap. 3. The capacity to rebound; spring: a ball with bounce. 4. Spirit; liveliness. 5. Slang. Expulsion; dismissal. 6. Chiefly British. Loud, arrogant speech; bluster. [Probably from Middle English bounsen, to beat.]

bounc-er (boun'sər) n. 1. Slang. A person employed to expel disorderly persons from a public place, especially a bar. 2. Baseball. A ground ball hit in such a way that it bounces.

bouncing (boun'sɪŋ) adj. 1. Vigorous; healthy: a bouncing baby. 2. Spirited; lively: a bouncing gait. —bounc'ing-ly adv.

bouncing Bet (boun'sɪŋ bět) n. A perennial Eurasian herb (Saponaria officinalis) having dense clusters of pink to whitish flowers. Also called soapwort [From Bet, nickname for Elizabeth.]

bounc-y (boun'sē) adj. bounc-i-er, bounc-i-est. 1. Tending to bounce. 2. Springy; elastic: clean, bouncy hair. 3. Lively; energetic: bouncy tunes. —bounc'i-ly adv.

bound¹ (bound) v. intr. bound-ed, bound-ing, bounds. 1. To leap forward or upward; spring. 2. To progress by forward leaps or springs. — n. 1. A leap; a jump. 2. A rebound; a bounce. [French bondir, to bounce, from Old French, to resound, perhaps from Vulgar Latin bombitire*, from Latin bombitāre, to hum, from bombus, a humming sound, from Greek bombos.]

bound² (bound) n. 1. Often bounds. A boundary; a limit: Our joy knew no bounds. Your remarks exceed the bounds of reason. 2. bounds. The territory on, within, or near limiting lines: the bounds of the kingdom. — v. bound-ed, bound-ing, bounds. — v. tr. 1. To set a limit to; confine: a high wall that bounded the prison yard; lives that were bounded by poverty. 2. To constitute the boundary or limit of: a city park that was bounded by busy streets. 3. To identify the boundaries of; demarcate. — v. intr. To border on another place, state, or country. [Middle English, from Old French bodne, bonde, and Anglo-Norman bunde both from Medieval Latin bodina, of Celtic origin.]

bound³ (bound) v. Past tense and past participle of bind. — adj. 1. Confined by bonds; tied: bound and gagged hostages. 2. Being under legal or moral obligation: bound by my promise. 3. Abbr. bd. Equipped with a cover or binding: bound volumes. 4. Predetermined; certain: We're bound to be late.

5. Determined; resolved: She's bound to be mayor. 6. Constipated.

bound⁴ (bound) adj. Headed or intending to head in a specified direction: commuters bound for home; a south-bound train. [Alteration of Middle English boun, ready, from Old Norse būinn, past participle of būa, to get ready. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

bheuə- in Appendix.]

bound-a-ry (boun'də-rē, -drē) n. pl. bound-a-ries. 1. Something that indicates a border or limit. 2. The border or limit so indicated.

SYNONYMS: boundary, border, frontier, limit. These nouns all denote a line or an area separating one piece of territory from another. A boundary is a limiting line: A stone wall marked the boundary between the two farms. A border is a line that separates political entities: Customs officers inspected our luggage when we crossed the border. Frontier denotes the part of a country that faces toward or fronts an adjoining country: "that long [Canadian] frontier from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans, guarded only by neighborly respect and honorable obligations" (Winston S. Churchill). Limit denotes a boundary that surrounds an area: Cars cannot exceed 35 miles per hour within city limits.

boundary condition (boun'də-rē kən-dīsh'ən) n. Mathematics. The conditions specified for the solution to a set of differential equations.

boundary layer (boun'də-rē lā'ər) n. The layer of reduced velocity in fluids, such as air and water, that is immediately adjacent to the surface of a solid past which the fluid is flowing.

Boun-da-ry Peak (boun'də-rē pēk, -drē) A mountain, 4,008.6 m (13,143 ft) high, of southwest Nevada near the California border. It is the highest elevation in the state.

bound-en (boun'dən) adj. 1. Obligatory: their bounden duty. 2. Archaic. Being under obligation; obliged. [Middle English, past participle of binden, to bind, from Old English bindan. See BIND.]

bound-er (boun'dər) n. Chiefly British. An ill-bred, unscrupulous man; a cad.

bound form (bound fôrm) n. A linguistic element that always occurs as part of another word, such as -ly in lovely.

bound-less (bound'lis) adj. Being without boundaries or limits; infinite. See Synonyms at infinite. —bound/less-ly adv. —bound/less-ness n.

boun-te-ous (boun'tē-əs) adj. 1. Giving or inclined to give generously.

2. Generously and copiously given. See Synonyms at liberal. [Middle English bounteous, from Old French bontive, benevolent, from bonte, bounty. See BOUNTY.] —boun/te-ous-ly adv. —boun/te-ous-ness n.

boun-ti-ful (boun'tə-fəl) adj. 1. Giving freely and generously; liberal.

2. Marked by abundance; plentiful. See Synonyms at liberal. —boun/ti-ful-ly adv. —boun/ti-ful-ness n.

Boun-ti-ful (boun'tə-fəl) A city of north-central Utah, a residential suburb of Salt Lake City. Population, 32,877.

boun-ty (boun'tē) n. pl. boun-ties. 1. Liberality in giving. 2. Something that is given liberally. 3. A reward, inducement, or payment, especially one given by a government for acts deemed beneficial to the state, such as killing predatory animals, growing certain crops, starting certain industries, or enlisting for military service. See Synonyms at bonus. [Middle English bounte, from Old French bonte, from Latin bonitās, goodness, from bonus, good. See deu-² in Appendix.]

bounty hunter (boun'tē hūn'tər) n. 1. One who hunts predatory animals in order to collect a bounty. 2. One who pursues a criminal or fugitive for whom a reward is offered.

bou-quet (bō-kā', bō-) n. 1. A cluster of flowers; a nosegay. 2. The fragrance typical of a wine or liqueur. [French, from Old French bosquet, thicket, diminutive of bosc, forest, of Germanic origin.]

SYNONYMS: bouquet, nosegay, posy. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a bunch of cut flowers”: a bouquet of roses; a bride carrying a nosegay of lilies of the valley; gathered a posy of violets. See also Synonyms at fragrance bouquet gar-ni (bō-kā' gār-nē') n. pl. bou-quets gar-nis (bō-kāz' gār-nē', bō-). A bunch of herbs tied together, wrapped in cheesecloth or enclosed in a small cloth sack, and immersed during cooking, as in a soup or stew. [French: bouquet, bunch + garni, past participle of garnir, to garnish.]

bou-quet-ier (bō'kə-tyēr',-tîr') n. A small container for holding flowers in a nosegay, shaped like a trumpet or a cup and having a deep handle to hold the stems of the flowers, the heads of which are kept in place by a strong pin inserted through holes in the side of the cup. Also called porte bouquet [French, from bouquet, bouquet. See BOUQUET.]

bour·bon (bûr' bən) n. A whiskey distilled from a fermented mash containing not less than 51 percent corn in addition to malt and rye. [After Bourbon County in northeast Kentucky.]

Bour·bon¹ (böör' bən, böör-bôn') French royal family descended from Louis I, Duke of Bourbon (1270?-1342), whose members have ruled in France (1589-1793 and 1814-1830), Spain (1700-1868, 1874-1931, and since 1975), and Naples and Sicily (1734-1860).

Bour·bon² (bûr' bən) n. A sociopolitical reactionary, especially a southern Democrat with highly conservative views. [After the BOURBON family.]

Bour·bon (böör' bən, böör-bôn'), Duc Charles de. 1490-1527. French general who served Holy Roman Emperor Charles V, led a failed invasion of France (1524), and was killed while leading a German-Spanish assault on Rome.

Bour·bon·nais (böör-bôn-nā') A historical region and former province of central France in the Massif Central. It was held by the counts (later dukes) of Bourbon until 1527, when Francis I added it to the French crown lands.

bour·don (böör' dn) n. Music. 1. The monotonic drone bass of a bagpipe. 2. An organ stop, commonly of the 16-foot pipes. [Middle English burdoun, bass, from Old French bourdon.]

bourg (böörg) n. 1. A market town. 2. A medieval village, especially one situated near a castle. [French, from Old French, from Late Latin burgus, fortress, of Germanic origin. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

bour·geois (böör-zhwä', böör'zhwä') n. pl. bourgeois. 1. A person belonging to the middle class. 2. A person whose attitudes and behavior are marked by conformity to the standards and conventions of the middle class. 3. In Marxist theory, a member of the property-owning class; a capitalist. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or typical of the middle class. 2. Held to be preoccupied with respectability and material values. [French, from Old French bourgeois, citizen of a town, from bourg, bourg. See BOURG.]

Bour·geois (böör-zhwä'), Léon Victor Auguste. 1851-1925. French statesman who was a member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague (1903-1925) and helped draft the Covenant of the League of Nations (1919). He won the 1920 Nobel Peace Prize.

bour·geoise (böör-zhwäz', böör'zhwäz') n. pl. bourgeois-es (-zhwä'ziz). A woman belonging to the middle class. [French, feminine of bourgeois, bourgeois. See BOURGEOIS.] — bour·geoise' adj.

bour·geoi·sie (böör'zhwä-zē') n. 1. The middle class. 2. In Marxist theory, the social group opposed to the proletariat in the class struggle. [French, from bourgeois, bourgeois. See BOURGEOIS.]

bourg·eoi·si·fi·ca·tion (böör-zhwä'zə-fī-kā'shən) n. The act or process of adopting or the condition of having adopted the characteristics attributed to the bourgeoisie: “Bourgeoisification, deplorable as it is, has good points too” (Robert M. Adams).

bour-geoi-si-fy (bōōr-zhwä'zə-fi') v. tr. bour-geoi-si-fied, bour-geoi-si-fy-ing, bour-geoi-si-fies. To cause to adopt the characteristics attributed to the bourgeoisie: “Rock 'n' roll... had become cozy and bourgeoisified” (Stephen Schiff).

bour-geon (bûr'jən) v. Variant of burgeon.

Bourges (boōrzh) A city of central France south-southeast of Orléans. It was a Roman provincial capital under Augustus and the site of a notable university that was founded by Louis XI in 1463 but abolished during the French Revolution. Population, 76,432.

Bour-get (bōōr-zhā'), Paul. 1852-1935. French writer noted for his psychological novels, particularly Le Disciple (1889).

Bour-gogne (bōōr-gôn'γə) See Burgundy².

Bourke-White (bûrk'hwīt', -wīt') Margaret. 1906-1971. American photographer and writer. An editor of Life magazine (1936-1969), she photographed such diverse subjects as the rural South, Soviet life, and the release of concentration camp victims.

ourn¹ also bourne (bôrn, bōrn, bōörn) n. A small stream; a brook. [Middle English, from Old English burna. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

ourn² also bourne (bôrn, bōrn, bōörn) n. Archaic. 1. A destination; a goal. 2. A boundary; a limit. [French bourne, from French dialectal bosne, borne, from Old French bodne, limit, boundary marker, from Medieval Latin bodina, of Celtic origin.]

Bourne-mouth (bôrn'mæth, bōrn'-, bōörn'-) A borough of southern England on an inlet of the English Channel southwest of Southampton. It is a popular resort and fine-arts center. Population, 143,000.

bour-rée (bōō-rā', bōō-) n. 1. a. An old French dance resembling the gavotte, usually in quick duple time beginning with an upbeat. b. The music for this dance. 2. A pas de bourrée. [French, from bourrer, to stuff, from bourre, hair, fluff, from Late Latin burra, a shaggy garment.]

bourse (bōōrs) n. A stock exchange, especially one in a continental European city. [French, purse, bourse, from Late Latin bursa, bag. See BURSA.]

bouse also bowse (bouz) Nautical. v. boused also bowsed, bous-ing also bows-ing, bous-es also bows-es. — v. tr. To pull or hoist with a tackle. — v. intr. To hoist. [Origin unknown.]

bou-stro-phe-don (bōō'strə-fēd'n, -fē'dōn') n. An ancient method of writing in which the lines are inscribed alternately from right to left and from left to right. [From Greek boustrophēdon, turning like an ox while plowing : bous, ox; see g^wou- in Appendix + strophē, a turning from strephein, to turn. See streb(h)- in Appendix.] — bou-stroph'e-don'ic (-strōf'ī-dōn'ik) adj.

bout (bout) n. 1. A contest between antagonists; a match: a wrestling bout. 2. A period of time spent in a particular way; a spell: “His tremendous bouts of drinking had wrecked his health” (Thomas Wolfe). [From obsolete English bought, a turning (influenced by ABOUT), from Middle English, from bowen, to bend, turn. See BOW².]

bou-tique (bōō-tēkʹ) n. 1. a. A small retail shop that specializes in gifts, fashionable clothes, accessories, or food, for example. b. A small shop located within a large department store or supermarket. 2. An investment boutique. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: boutique clothes; boutique food. [French, from Old French botique, small shop, from Old Provençal botica, from Latin apothēca, storehouse. See APOTHECARY.]

boutique brewery (bōō-tēkʹ brōōʹə-rē) n. See microbrewery.

bou-ton (bōō-tônʹ) n. A knoblike enlargement at the end of an axon, where it synapses with other neurons. [French, button, from Old French. See BUTTON.]

bou-ton-niere also bou-ton-nière (bōōʹtə-nîrʹ, -tən-yârʹ) n. A flower or small bunch of flowers worn in a buttonhole. [French boutonnière, from Old French, buttonhole, from bouton, button. See BOUTON.]

bou-var-di-a (bōō-värʹdē-ə) n. Any of several Mexican and Central American shrubs or herbs of the genus Bouvardia cultivated for their showy, narrowly tubular, variously colored flowers grouped in terminal cymes. [New Latin Bouvardia, genus name, after Charles Bouvard (1572-1658), French physician.]

Bou-vet Island (bōōʹvā īʹlənd) A Norwegian dependency in the southern Atlantic Ocean near the Antarctic Circle south-southwest of the Cape of Good Hope.

Bou-vier des Flan-dres (bōō-vyāʹ də flănʹdərz, dā flănʹdrə) n. Any of a breed of large, strong dogs developed in Belgium, having a rough, fawn to black coat and originally used for herding and guarding cattle. [French : bouvier, cowherd + des, of + Flandres, Flanders.]

bou-zou-ki (bōō-zōōʹkē, bə-) n. Music. A Greek stringed instrument resembling a mandolin. [Modern Greek mpouzouki, probably of Turkish origin.]

Bo-vet (bō-vāʹ, -vētʹ), Daniel. Born 1907. Swiss-born Italian physiologist. He won a 1957 Nobel Prize for the development of muscle relaxants and the first synthetic antihistamine.

bo-vid (bōʹvīd) adj. Of or belonging to the family Bovidae, which includes hoofed, hollow-horned ruminants such as cattle, sheep, goats, and buffaloes. — n. A member of the family Bovidae. [From New Latin Bovidae, family name, from Latin bōs, cow. See BOVINE.]

bo-vine (bōʹvīnʹ, -vēnʹ) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a ruminant mammal of the genus Bos, such as an ox, cow, or buffalo. 2. Sluggish, dull, and stolid. — n. An animal of the genus Bos. [Late Latin bovinus, from Latin bōs, cow. See g^wou- in Appendix.]

bovine growth hormone (bō'vīn' grōth hōr'mōn') n. Abbr. BGH A naturally occurring hormone of cattle that regulates growth and milk production. It may also be produced artificially by genetic engineering techniques and administered to cows to increase milk production. Also called bovine somatotropin bow¹ (bou) n. Nautical. 1. The front section of a ship or boat. 2. The oar or the person wielding the oar closest to the bow. [Middle English boue, probably of Low German origin. See bheug- in Appendix.]

bow² (bou) v. bowed, bow-ing, bows. — v. intr. 1. To bend or curve downward; stoop. 2. To incline the body or head or bend the knee in greeting, consent, courtesy, acknowledgment, submission, or veneration. 3. To yield in defeat or out of courtesy; submit. See Synonyms at yield. — v. tr. 1. To bend (the head, knee, or body) to express greeting, consent, courtesy, acknowledgment, submission, or veneration. 2. To convey (greeting, for example) by bending the body. 3. To escort deferentially: bowed us into the restaurant. 4. To cause to acquiesce; submit. 5. To overburden: Grief bowed them down. — n. An inclination of the head or body, as in greeting, consent, courtesy, acknowledgment, submission, or veneration. — phrasal verb. bow out. To remove oneself; withdraw. — idiom. bow and scrape. To behave obsequiously. [Middle English bowen, from Old English būgan. See bheug- in Appendix.]

bow³ (bō) n. 1. A bent, curved, or arched object. 2. A weapon consisting of a curved, flexible strip of material, especially wood, strung taut from end to end and used to launch arrows. 3. a. An archer. b. Archers considered as a group. 4. a. Music. A rod having horsehair drawn tightly between its two raised ends, used in playing instruments of the violin and viol families. b. A stroke made by this rod. 5. A knot usually having two loops and two ends; a bowknot. 6. a. A frame for the lenses of a pair of eyeglasses. b. The part of such a frame passing over the ear. 7. A rainbow. 8. An oxbow. — v. bowed, bow-ing, bows. — v. tr. 1. To bend (something) into the shape of a bow. 2. Music. To play (a stringed instrument) with a bow. — v. intr. 1. To bend into a curve or bow. 2. Music. To play a stringed instrument with a bow. [Middle English bowe, from Old English boga. See bheug- in Appendix.]

Bow (bō), Clara. Known as “the It Girl.” 1905-1965. American actress whose roles in silent films, such as Mantrap (1926) and It (1927), made her a symbol of the Roaring Twenties.

bow compass (bou kŭm'pəs) n. A drawing compass with legs that are connected by an adjustable metal spring band.

bow-da-cious (bō'dā'shəs) adj. & adv. Southern U.S. & South Midland U.S. Variant of bodacious.

Bow-ditch (bou'dīch), Nathaniel. 1773-1838. American mathematician and astronomer noted for his works concerning navigation.

bowd·ler·ize (bōd'lə-rīz', boud' -) v. tr. bowd·ler·ized, bowd·ler·iz·ing, bowd·ler·iz·es. 1. To expurgate (a book, for example) prudishly. 2. To modify, as by shortening or simplifying or by skewing the content in a certain manner. [After Thomas Bowdler (1754-1825), who published an expurgated edition of Shakespeare in 1818.] —bowd'ler·ism n. —bowd'ler·i·za'tion (-lə-r-ī-zā'shən) n. —bowd'ler·iz'er n.

bow·el (bou'əl, boul) n. 1. a. Often bowels. The intestine. b. A part or division of the intestine: the large bowel. 2. bowels. The interior of something: in the bowels of the ship. 3. bowels. Archaic. The seat of pity or the gentler emotions. [Middle English, from Old French boel, from Latin botellus, small intestine, diminutive of botulus, sausage.]

Bow·ell (bō'əl), Sir Mackenzie. 1823-1917. British-born Canadian prime minister (1894-1896) who later led the Conservative opposition (1896-1906).

bowel movement (bou'əl mōōv'mənt) n. Abbr. b.m. 1. The discharge of waste matter from the large intestine; defecation. 2. The waste matter discharged from the large intestine; feces.

Bow·en (bō'ən), Catherine Drinker. 1897-1973. American writer of semifictional biographies, such as The Lion and the Throne (1957), a life of Sir Edward Coke.

Bow·en (bō'ən), Elizabeth Dorothea Cole. 1899-1973. Irish-born British writer best known for her novels about the upper middle class, notably The House in Paris (1935) and The Heat of the Day (1949).

bow·er¹ (bou'ər) n. 1. A shaded, leafy recess; an arbor. 2. A woman's private chamber in a medieval castle; a boudoir. 3. A rustic cottage; a country retreat. — v. tr. bow·ered, bow·er·ing, bow·ers. To enclose in or as if in a bower; embower. [Middle English bour, a dwelling, from Old English būr. See bheuə- in Appendix.] —bow'er·y adj.

bow·er² (bou'ər) n. Nautical. An anchor carried at the bow.

bow·er·bird (bou'ər-bûrd') n. Any of various birds of the family Ptilonorhynchidae of Australia and New Guinea, the males of which build large, elaborate structures of grasses, twigs, and brightly colored materials to attract females.

Bow·ers (bou'ərz), Claude Gernade. 1878-1958. American diplomat, writer, and historian whose works include The Young Jefferson (1945) and Embassy Windows (1958).

Bow·er·y (bou'ə-rē, bou'rē) A section of lower Manhattan in New York City. The street that gives the area its name was once the road to Peter Stuyvesant's bouwerij, or farm. At various times the Bowery has been notorious for its saloons, petty criminals, and derelicts.

bow·fin (bō'fīn') n. A primitive, bony freshwater fish (Amia calva) of central and eastern North America, with a long, spineless dorsal fin. Also called dogfish, mudfish.

bow-front (bō'frünt') adj. 1. Having an outward-curving front: a bowfront bureau. 2. Designed or constructed with a bow window in front: a bowfront house.

bow-head (bō'hěd') n. A whalebone whale (Balaena mysticetus) of Arctic seas, having a very large head and an arched upper jaw.

Bowie (bō'ē) A city of west-central Maryland northeast of Washington, D.C. It is primarily residential. Population, 37,589.

Bowie (bō'ē, bō'ē), James. 1796-1836. American-born Mexican colonist who joined the Texan forces during the struggle for independence from Mexico. He died during the defense of the Alamo.

bow-ie knife (bō'ē nīf, bō'ē) n. A single-edged steel hunting knife, about 15 inches (38 centimeters) in length, having a hilt and a crosspiece. [After James BOWIE.] bow-knot (bō'nōt') n. adj. A knot with large, decorative loops.

bowl¹ (bōl) n. 1. a. A hemispherical vessel, wider than it is deep, used for holding food or fluids. b. The contents of such a vessel. 2. A drinking goblet. 3. A bowl-shaped part, as of a spoon or pipe. 4. a. A bowl-shaped topographic depression. b. A bowl-shaped stadium or outdoor theater. 5. Football. Any of various post-season games played between specially selected teams. [Middle English bowle, from Old English bolla. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

bowl² (bōl) n. 1. A large wooden ball weighted or slightly flattened so as to roll with a bias. 2. Sports. A roll or throw of the ball, as in bowling. 3. bowls. (used with a sing. verb). Sports & Games. See lawn bowling. 4. A revolving cylinder or drum in a machine. — v. bowled, bowl-ing, bowls. — v. intr.

1. Sports. a. To participate in a game of bowling. b. To throw or roll a ball in bowling. c. To hurl a cricket ball from one end of the pitch toward the batsman at the other, keeping the arm straight throughout the delivery. 2. To move quickly and smoothly, especially by rolling: The children bowled along on their bicycles. — v. tr. 1. To throw or roll (a ball). 2. Sports. a. To achieve (a specified score) by bowling. b. To perform (a specified amount, as a string or game) in bowling. 3. To move quickly and smoothly by or as if by rolling: bowled a tire from the garage. 4. To meet or strike with or as if with the force of a rapidly rolling object. — phrasal verbs. bowl out. Sports. To retire (a batsman in cricket) with a bowled ball that knocks the bails off the wicket. bowl over. 2. To take by surprise. 3. To make a powerful impression on; overwhelm. [Middle English boule, from Old French, from Latin bullā, round object.]

bowl-der (bōl'dər) n. Variant of boulder.

bow-leg (bō'lěg') n. 1. A leg having an outward curvature in the region of the knee. 2. The condition of such a curvature of the legs.

bow-leg-ged (bō'lěg'ĭd, -lěgd') adj. Having bowlegs.

bowl-er¹ (bō'lər) n. Sports. One that bowls, as in cricket or bowling.

bowler² (bō'lər) n. A derby hat. [Probably from BOWL².]

Bowles (bōlz), Chester Bliss. 1901-1986. American diplomat and writer who served as U.S. ambassador to India (1951-1953 and 1963-1969) and wrote several books, notably The New Dimension of Peace (1955).

bow-line (bō'līn, -līn') n. 1. Nautical. A rope attached to the weather leech of a square sail to hold the leech forward when sailing close-hauled. 2. A knot forming a loop that does not slip. —idiom. on a bowline. Nautical. Close-hauled. [Middle English bouline, probably from Middle Danish bovine, or Middle Low German bōline both from bōch line: bōch, bow + line, line (from Latin līnea); see LINE¹.]

bowling (bō'ling) n. Sports & Games. 1. a. A game played by rolling a ball down a wooden alley in order to knock down a triangular group of ten pins. Also called tenpins b. A similar game, such as duckpins or ninepins. 2. Lawn bowling 3. The playing of one of these games.

bowling alley (bō'ling əl'ē) n. Sports. 1. A smooth, level wooden lane used in bowling. 2. A building or room containing lanes for bowling.

bowling ball (bō'ling bōl) n. Sports. A large spherical ball, usually of rubber or plastic, having one or more indentations for the thumb and fingers.

bowling green (bō'ling grēn) n. Sports & Games. A level grassy area for lawn bowling.

Bowling Green (bō'ling grēn') 1. A city of southern Kentucky southeast of Owensboro. It was occupied by the Confederates from the start of the Civil War until 1862. Population, 40,641. 2. A city of northwest Ohio south-southwest of Toledo. Bowling Green State University (established 1910) is located here. Population, 28,176.

bow-man¹ (bō'mən) n. An archer.

bow-man² (bou'mən) n. Nautical. A person who oars, rows, or paddles at the bow of a boat.

Bow-man's capsule (bo'mənz kăp'səl) n. Anatomy. A double-walled, cup-shaped structure around the glomerulus of each nephron of the vertebrate kidney. It serves as a filter to remove organic wastes, excess inorganic salts, and water. [After Sir William Bowman (1816-1892), British surgeon.]

bow pen (bō pěn) n. A bow compass with a pen at the end of one leg.

bow saw (bō sō) n. A saw with a slender blade connected at each end to a narrow handle that curves outward like an archer's bow.

bowse (bouz) v. Variant of bouse.

Bow-ser (bou'zər) A trademark used for a mobile fuel tank and pump employed in refueling aircraft and other vehicles.

bow-shot (bō'shōt') n. The distance that an arrow can be shot.

bow-sprit (bou'sprīt', bō'-) n. Nautical. A spar, extending forward from the stem of a ship, to which the stays of the foremast are fastened. [Middle English bouspret, possibly from Middle Low German bōchsprēt: bōch, bow + sprēt, sprit; see sper- in Appendix.]

bow-string (bō'strɪŋg') n. The cord attached to both ends of an archer's bow.

bowstring hemp (bō'strɪŋg' hěmp) n. 1. Any of several tropical African and Asian perennial plants of the genus Sansevieria, having thick, swordlike, spine-tipped leaves grouped in rosettes. 2. The fibers of any of these plants, used for bowstrings, cordage, mats, and nets.

bow tie (bō tī) n. A short necktie fashioned into a bowknot close to the throat.

bow window (bō wɪn'dō) n. A bay window built in a curve.

bow-wow or bow-wow (bou'wou') n. 1. a. The bark of a dog.

b. Informal. A dog. 2. Outcry; clamor. 3. An overbearing manner. — adj. Commanding, especially in an arrogant manner; overbearing. [Imitative.]

bow-yer (bō'yər) n. 1. One who makes or sells bows for archery. 2. Archaic. An archer.

box¹ (bɒks) n. 1. Abbr. bx., bx a. A container typically constructed with four sides perpendicular to the base and often having a lid or cover. b. The amount or quantity that such a container can hold. 2. A square or rectangle: Draw a box around your answer. 3. a. A separated compartment in a public place of entertainment, such as a theater or stadium, for the accommodation of a small group. b. An area of a public place, such as a courtroom or stadium, marked off and restricted for use by persons performing a specific function: a jury box. 4. A small structure serving as a shelter: a sentry box. 5. Chiefly British. A small country house used as a sporting lodge: a shooting box. 6. A box stall. 7. The raised seat for the driver of a coach or carriage. 8. Baseball. a. An area on a diamond marked by lines designating where the batter may stand. b. Any of various designated areas for other team members, such as the pitcher, catcher, and coaches. 9. Sports. A penalty box. 10. Printing. Featured printed matter enclosed by hairlines, a border, or white space and placed within or between text columns. 11. A hollow made in the side of a tree for the collection of sap. 12. A post office box. 13. a. An insulating, enclosing, or protective casing or part in a machine. b. A signaling device enclosed in a casing: an alarm box. 14. a. Informal. A television. b. A very large portable radio. 15. Chiefly British. A gift or gratuity, especially one given at Christmas. 16. An awkward or perplexing situation; a predicament. 17. Vulgar Slang. The vulva and the vagina. — v. tr. boxed, box-ing, box-es. 1. To pack in a box. 2. To confine in or as if in a box. 3. To border or enclose with or as if with a box: Key sections of the report are boxed off. 4. To provide a housing or case for (a machine part, for example). 5. a. To limit the activity or influence of by or as if by creating a restrictive structure or outlining a territory: The legislature was boxed in by its earlier decisions. b. Sports. To block (a competitor or opponent) from advancing, especially to hinder an opponent from getting a rebound in basketball by placing oneself between the opponent and the basket: was boxed out by the tallest player on the team; was boxed in on the homestretch. 6. Nautical. To boxhaul. 7. To cut a hole in (a tree) for the collection of sap. 8. To blend (paint) by pouring alternately between two containers. 9. To change the shape of (a structure, such as a wall) by applying lath and plaster or boarding. —idioms. box the compass. 1. To name the 32 points of the compass in proper order. 2. To make a complete revolution or reversal. in a box. Informal. In a very difficult or restrictive situation. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin buxis, from Greek puxis, from puxos, box tree.]

box² (böks) n. A slap or blow with the hand or fist: a box on the ear. — v.

boxed, box-ing, box-es. — v. tr. 1. To hit with the hand or fist. 2. Sports. To take part in a boxing match with. — v. intr. To fight with the fists or in a boxing match. [Middle English.]

box³ (böks) n. pl. box or box-es. 1. a. Any of several evergreen shrubs or trees of the genus Buxus, especially the Eurasian species B. sempervirens, having opposite, leathery, simple leaves and clusters of unisexual flowers. It is widely grown as a hedge plant. b. The hard, light yellow wood of these plants, used to make musical instruments, rulers, inlays, and engraving blocks. 2. Any of several other shrubs or trees with similar foliage or timber. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin buxus, from Greek puxos.]

box-board (böks'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A firm cardboard used for making boxes.

box calf (böks kăf) n. Calfskin treated with chromium salts and having square markings on the grain. [After Joseph Box, a 19th-century London bootmaker.] box camera (böks kăm'ər-ə) n. A simple camera shaped like a box and usually having a fixed focus and a single shutter speed.

box-car (böks'kär') n. 1. A fully enclosed railroad car, typically having sliding side doors, used to transport freight. 2. boxcars. Games. A pair of sixes on the first throw in craps.

box coat (böks kôt) n. 1. A coat designed to hang loosely from the shoulders. 2. A heavy overcoat formerly worn by coachmen. [BOX¹ + COAT.]

box elder (böks ɛl'dər) n. A North American maple tree (Acer negundo) having pinnately compound leaves with coarsely toothed to lobed leaflets. Also called ash-leaved maple box-er¹ (böks'sər) n. Sports. One who fights with the fists as a sport.

box-er² (böks'sər) n. One that packs items in boxes.

box-er³ (böks'sər) n. A medium-sized, short-haired dog of a breed developed in Germany, having a brownish coat and a short, square-jawed muzzle. [German, from English BOXER¹ (from its pugnacious nature).]

Box-er (böks'sər) n. A member of a secret society in China that unsuccessfully attempted in 1900 to drive foreigners from the country by violence and force Chinese Christians to renounce their religion. [Approximate translation of Chinese boxer shorts (bۆks'sər shۆrts) pl.n. Men's full-cut undershorts.

(Mandarin) yì hé quán, righteous harmonious fists, alteration of yì hé tuán, righteous harmonious society : yì, righteous + hé, harmonious + tuán, society.]

box·fish (bۆks'f'ish') n. pl. boxfish or box·fish-es. See trunkfish.

box·haul (bۆks'hۆl') v. tr. box-hauled, box·haul-ing, box-hauls. Nautical. To turn (a square-rigged ship) about on the heel by bracing the sails aback. [BOX¹, to confine, reverse + HAUL.]

box-ing¹ (bۆk's'ing) n. 1. Material used for boxes. 2. A boxlike covering or enclosure. 3. The act of enclosing in a box.

box-ing² (bۆk's'ing) n. Sports. The act, activity, or sport of fighting with the fists.

Box-ing Day (bۆk's'ing dā) n. The first weekday after Christmas, celebrated as a holiday in parts of the British Commonwealth, when Christmas gifts are traditionally given to service workers.

boxing glove (bۆk's'ing glۆv) n. Sports. A heavily padded leather mitten worn for boxing.

box kite (bۆks kīt) n. A tailless kite formed from or as if from two or more open-ended boxes connected at the corners by shafts spanning an interval of open space.

box lunch (bۆks lۆnch) n. An individually portioned lunch packed in a small box.

box office (bۆks ۆ'f'is) n. 1. A booth, as in a theater or stadium, where tickets are sold. 2. a. The drawing power of a theatrical entertainment or of a performer; popular appeal. b. A factor influencing this power: Notoriety is usually good box office. 3. Total attendance for an entertainment; turnout. 4. The amount of money received from ticket sales for an entertainment. [So named because it was originally an office for the booking of boxes in a theater.] —box/-of'fice (bۆks'ۆ'f'is, -ۆf'is) adj.

box pleat (bۆks plēt) n. A double pleat having two upper folds facing in opposite directions and two under folds pressed toward each other.

box score (bۆks skۆr) n. Sports. A printed summary of a game, especially in baseball, in the form of a table listing the players and their positions and recording individual performance.

box seat (bۆks sēt) n. 1. A seat in a box at a public place of entertainment, such as a theater or stadium. 2. A storage box on a coach, the lid of which serves as a seat for the driver.

box set (bۆks sēt) n. A stage set with a ceiling and three walls.

box social (bۆks sۆ'shəl) n. A fund-raising event in which donated box lunches are auctioned off.

box spring (bۆks spring) n. A bedspring consisting of a cloth-covered frame containing rows of coil springs.

box stall (böks stôl) n. A large enclosed stall for a single animal.

box step (böks stêp) n. A dance step in which the feet are moved in a pattern approximating a square.

box-thorn (böks'thôrn') n. See matrimony vine.

box top (böks töp) n. The top surface, as a flap or strip, of a box containing a commercial product, typically bearing identification and used to prove the date or fact of purchase.

box turtle (böks tûr'tl) n. Any of several North American land turtles of the genus Terrapene having a hinged plastron that pulls up against the carapace, allowing the animal to become completely encased within its shell. Also called box tortoise box-wood (böks'woöd') n. 1. The box plant. 2. The wood of the box plant.

box-y (böks'sē) adj. box-i-er, box-i-est. Resembling a box, especially in simplicity or rectangularity. —box'i-ness n.

boy (boi) n. 1. A male child. 2. An immature or inexperienced man, especially a young man. 3. A son: his youngest boy. 4. Informal. A grown man; a fellow: a night out with the boys. 5. A male who comes from or belongs to a particular place: a city boy. 6. Offensive. A male servant, such as a valet. — interj. Used to express mild astonishment, elation, or disgust: Oh boy—what a surprise! [Middle English boi, possibly from Old French embuié, servant, past participle of embuier, to fetter.] —boy'hood' n.

bo-yar (bō-yär', boi'ər) n. A member of a class of higher Russian nobility that until the time of Peter I headed the civil and military administration of the country and participated in an early duma. [From boiaren, from Russian boyarin, from Old Russian boljarin, from Turkic baylar, pl. of bay, rich; akin to Turkish bay, rich, gentleman.]

boy-cott (boi'köt') v. tr. boy-cott-ed, boy-cott-ing, boy-cotts. 1. To act together in abstaining from using, buying, or dealing with as an expression of protest or disfavor or as a means of coercion. See Synonyms at blackball. 2. To abstain from or unite with others in abstaining from using, buying, or dealing with. — n. The act or an instance of boycotting. [After Charles C. Boycott (1832-1897), English land agent in Ireland.] —boy'cott'er n.

WORD HISTORY: Charles C. Boycott seems to have been forced by his strong sense of duty into becoming a household word. Boycott was the estate agent of the Earl of Erne in County Mayo, Ireland. The earl was one of the absentee landowners who as a group held most of the land in Ireland. Boycott was chosen in the fall of 1880 to be the test case for a new policy advocated by Charles Parnell, an Irish politician who wanted land reform. Any landlord who would not charge lower rents or any tenant who took over the farm of an evicted tenant would be given the complete cold shoulder by Parnell's supporters. Boycott, a former British soldier, refused to charge lower rents and ejected his tenants. At this point members of Parnell's Irish Land League stepped in, and Boycott and his family found themselves isolated—without servants, farmhands, service in stores, or mail delivery. Boycott's name was quickly adopted as the term for this treatment, not just in English but in other languages such as French, Dutch, German, and Russian.

Boy-den (boɪd'n), Seth. 1788-1870. American inventor of processes for the manufacture of patent leather, workable forms of iron, and shaped hats. His brother Uriah Atherton Boyden (1804-1879) improved the turbine water wheel.

Boyd Orr (boɪd' ɔr', ɔr'), Lord John. 1880-1971. British nutritionist. He won the 1949 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to alleviate world hunger.

boy-friend also boy friend (boi'frɛnd') n. 1. A favored male companion or sweetheart. 2. A male friend.

boy-ish (boi'ɪʃ) adj. Characteristic of or befitting a boy: boyish charm.
—boy-ish-ly adv. —boy-ish-ness n.

Boyle (boɪl), Kay. 1902?-1992. American writer whose works examine the relationships between Europeans and Americans.

Boyle (boɪl), Robert. 1627-1691. Irish-born British physicist and chemist whose precise definitions of chemical elements and reactions began the separation of chemistry from alchemy. In 1662 he formulated Boyle's law.

Boyle's law (boɪlz lô) n. The principle that at a constant temperature the volume of a confined ideal gas varies inversely with its pressure. [After Robert BOYLE.]

Boyl-ston (boɪl'stən), Zabdiel. 1679-1766. American physician who was the first to administer the smallpox vaccine in America (1721).

Boyne (boɪn) A river of eastern Ireland flowing about 113 km (70 mi) to the Irish Sea. In the Battle of the Boyne on July 1, 1690, the armies of King William III defeated the forces of James II, who fled to France.

Boyn-ton Beach (boɪn'tən bɛç) A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean north of Boca Raton. It is a seaside resort. Population, 46,194.

Boy Scout (boi skout) n. 1. A member of a worldwide organization of young men and boys, founded in England in 1908, for character development and citizenship training. 2. Often boy scout. Slang. A man whose attitudes and behavior are felt to be naive.

boy-sen-ber-ry (boi'zən-bɛr'ē) n. 1. A prickly bramble of uncertain origin but ultimately derived from a western North American blackberry (Rubus ursinus). 2. The edible, dark wine-red to nearly black fruit of this plant, having a taste suggestive of raspberries. [After Rudolph Boysen (died 1950), American botanist.]

boy wonder (boi wŭn'dər) n. An extremely talented and accomplished young man.

Boz·ca·a·da (bōz'jä-ä-dä') An island of Turkey in the northeast Aegean Sea south of the Dardanelles. According to tradition, it was the site of a Greek naval station during the Trojan War.

Boze·man (bōz'mən) A city of southwest Montana east-southeast of Butte. Settled in the 1860's, it is a gateway to Yellowstone National Park. Population, 22,660. bo·zo (bō'zō) n. pl. bo-zos. Slang. 1. A fellow; a guy. 2. A dunce; a fool. [Origin unknown.]

bp¹ abbr. Boiling point.

bp² also BP abbr. Beautiful people.

BP abbr. 1. Or B/P. Bills payable. 2. Or B.P. Blood pressure.

bp. abbr. 1. Birthplace. 2. Games. Bishop.

B.P. abbr. 1. Bachelor of Pharmacy. 2. Bachelor of Philosophy.

bpd abbr. Barrels per day.

B.Pd. abbr. Bachelor of Pedagogy.

B.P.E. abbr. Bachelor of Physical Education.

B.Ph. abbr. Bachelor of Philosophy.

B.Phil. abbr. Bachelor of Philosophy.

bpi abbr. Computer Science. 1. Bits per inch. 2. Bytes per inch.

B picture (bē' pĭk'chər) n. A movie produced on a low budget, originally made to accompany the main feature in a double billing. Also called B movie bpl abbr. Birthplace.

BPOE or B.P.O.E. abbr. Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Br The symbol for the element bromine.

BR abbr. 1. Bedroom. 2. Or B/R. Bills receivable.

br. abbr. 1. Branch. 2. Law. Brief. 3. Bronze. 4. Or Br. Brother. 5. Brown.

Br. abbr. 1. Britain. 2. British.

bra (brä) n. A brassiere.

Bra·bant (brä-bänt', -bänt', brä'bənt, -bänt') A region and former duchy of the Netherlands. It became an independent duchy in 1190 and is now divided between the southern Netherlands and north-central Belgium.

brab·ble (bräb'əl) v. intr. brab·bled, brab·bling, brab·bles. To quarrel noisily, especially over a small matter; wrangle. — n. A petty dispute; a squabble. [Probably from Middle Dutch brabbelen, to squabble.] — brab'bler n.

bra burner (brä būr'nər) n. Slang. A woman perceived as having militant feminist views.

brace (bräs) n. 1. A device that holds or fastens two or more parts together or in place; a clamp. 2. A device, such as a supporting beam in a building or a connecting wire or rope, that steadies or holds something else erect. 3. braces. Chiefly

British. Suspenders. 4. An orthopedic appliance used to support, align, or hold a bodily part in the correct position. 5. Often braces. A dental appliance, constructed of bands and wires that is fixed to the teeth to correct irregular alignment. 6. An extremely stiff, erect posture. 7. A cause or source of renewed physical or spiritual vigor. 8. A protective pad strapped to the bow arm of an archer. 9. Nautical. A rope by which a yard is swung and secured on a square-rigged ship. 10. A cranklike handle with an adjustable aperture at one end for securing and turning a bit. 11. Music. A leather loop that slides to change the tension on the cord of a drum. 12. Music. a. A vertical line, usually accompanied by the symbol {, connecting two or more staves. b. A set of staves connected in this way. 13. A symbol, { or }, enclosing two or more lines of text or listed items to show that they are considered as a unit. 14. Mathematics. Either of a pair of symbols, { }, used to indicate aggregation or to clarify the grouping of quantities when parentheses and square brackets have already been used. Also called bracket. 15. pl. brace. A pair of like things: three brace of partridges. See Synonyms at couple. — v. braced, brac-ing, brac-es. — v. tr. 1. To furnish with a brace. 2. To support or hold steady with or as if with a brace; reinforce. 3. To prepare or position so as to be ready for impact or danger: Union members braced themselves for a confrontation with management. 4. To confront with questions or requests. 5. To increase the tension of. 6. To invigorate; stimulate: “The freshness of the September morning inspired and braced him” (Thomas Hardy). 7. Nautical. To turn (the yards of a ship) by the braces. — v. intr. To get ready; make preparations. — phrasal verb. brace up. To summon one’s strength or endurance. [Middle English, from Old French, two arms, from Latin brācchia, pl. of brācchium, arm, from Greek brakhiōn, upper arm; see mregh-u- in Appendix. V., partly from Old French bracier from Old French brace.]

brace-let (brās’līt) n. 1. An ornamental band or chain encircling the wrist or arm. 2. Something, such as a handcuff, that resembles a wrist ornament. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of bracel, armlet, from Latin brācchiāle, from brācchium, arm. See BRACE.]

brac-er¹ (brā’sər) n. 1. One that braces, especially one that supports or holds something steady. 2. Informal. A stimulating drink, especially of an alcoholic beverage.

bra-cer² (brā’sər) n. An arm or wrist guard worn by archers and fencers. [Middle English, probably from Anglo-Norman, from Old French braceure, from bras, arm, from Latin brācchium. See BRACE.]

bra-ce-ro (brə-sâr’ō) n. pl. bra-ce-ros. A Mexican laborer permitted to enter the United States and work for a limited period of time, especially in agriculture. [Spanish, laborer, from brazo, arm, from Latin brācchium, from Greek brakhiōn, upper arm. See mregh-u- in Appendix.]

brace root (brās rōōt) n. See prop root.

bra-chi-a (brā'kē-ə, brāk'ē-ə) n. Plural of brachium.

bra-chi-al (brā'kē-əl, brāk'ē-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling the arm or a similar or homologous part, such as the foreleg, wing, or other forelimb of a vertebrate: the brachial artery. [From Latin brācchiālis, from brācchium, arm. See BRACHIUM.]

brachial plexus (brā'kē-əl plēk'səs) n. Anatomy. A network of nerves located in the neck and axilla, composed of the anterior branches of the lower four cervical and first two thoracic spinal nerves and supplying the chest, shoulder, and arm.

bra-chi-ate (brā'kē-īt, -āt', brāk'ē-) adj. Zoology. Having arms or armlike appendages. — v. intr. bra-chi-at-ed, bra-chi-at-ing, bra-chi-ates (-āt'). To move by swinging with the arms from one hold to another, as certain apes do. [Latin brācchiātus, from brācchium, arm, V., from New Latin brāchiāre, brāchiāt-, from brācchium. See BRACHIUM.] — bra'chi-a'tion n.

bra-chi-o-ce-phal-ic (brā'kē-ō-sə-fāl'ik, brāk'ē-) adj. Anatomy. Of or involving the arm and the head. [BRACHI(UM) + CEPHALIC.]

brachiocephalic artery (brā'kē-ō-sə-fāl'ik ār'tə-rē) n. See innominate artery.

brachiocephalic trunk (brā'kē-ō-sə-fāl'ik trŭngk) n. See innominate artery.

brachiocephalic vein (brā'kē-ō-sə-fāl'ik vān) n. See innominate vein.

bra-chi-o-pod (brā'kē-ə-pōd', brāk'ē-) n. Any of various marine invertebrates of the phylum Brachiopoda, having bivalve dorsal and ventral shells enclosing a pair of tentacled, armlike structures that are used to sweep minute food particles into the mouth. Also called lampshell [From New Latin Brāchiopoda, phylum name : Latin brācchium, arm; see BRACHIUM + New Latin -poda, -pod.] — brach'i-o-pod' adj.

bra-chi-um (brā'kē-əm, brāk'ē-) n. pl. bra-chi-a (brā'kē-ə, brāk'ē-ə). 1. The part of the upper arm or forelimb extending from the shoulder to the elbow. 2. An arm or a homologous anatomical structure, such as a flipper or wing. 3. The part of a limb or process corresponding to an arm. [Latin brācchium, arm, from Greek brakhiōn, upper arm. See mregh-u- in Appendix.]

brachy- pref. Short: brachydactylic. [Greek brakhu-, from brakhus, short. See mregh-u- in Appendix.]

brach-y-ce-phal-ic (brāk'ī-sə-fāl'ik) also brach-y-ceph-a-lous (-sēf'ə-ləs) adj. Having a short, broad head with a cephalic index over 80.

— brach'y-ceph'a-ly (-sēf'ə-lē), brach'y-ceph'a-lism n.

brach-y-dac-tyl-ic (brāk'ī-dāk-tīl'ik) also brach-y-dac-ty-lous (-dāk'tə-ləs) adj. Having abnormally short fingers or toes. — brach'y-dac-tyl'i-a (-tīl'ē-ə), brach'y-dac'ty-ly (-dāk'tə-lē) n.

bra-chyl-o-gy (bră-kīl'ə-jē) n. pl. bra-chyl-o-gies. 1. Brevity of speech; conciseness. 2. A shortened or condensed phrase or expression. [Medieval Latin brachylogia, from Greek brakhulogia : brakhu-, brachy- + logos, speech; see -LOGY.]

bra-chyp-ter-ous (bră-kīp'tər-əs) adj. Having very short or rudimentary wings, as certain insects. [From Greek brakhupteros : brakhu-, brachy- + pteron, wing; see -PTER.] — bra-chyp'ter-ism (-tə-rīz'əm) n.

brach-y-u-ran (brăk'ē-yōōr'ən) also brach-y-u-ral (-yōōr'əl) or brach-y-u-rous (-yōōr'əs) adj. Of or belonging to the Brachyura, a group of crustaceans including the true crabs, characterized by a short abdomen concealed under the cephalothorax. — n. A member of the Brachyura. [From New Latin Brachyura, suborder name : Greek brakhu-, brachy- + Greek oura, tail; see -UROUS.]

brac-ing (bră'sīng) adj. Invigorating or refreshing; strengthening: a bracing tonic. — n. 1. A support; a brace. 2. Braces considered as a group. — brac'ing-ly adv.

bra-ci-o-la (bră'chē-ō'lə, bră-chō'l-) or bra-ci-o-le (-lā', -lē') n. A thin slice of meat, usually wrapped around a stuffing and cooked with wine. [Italian, probably from dialectal bras'ola, from bras'a, glowing ember, of Germanic origin. See bhre- in Appendix.]

brack-en (brăk'ən) n. 1. A widespread, often weedy fern (Pteridium aquilinum) having large, triangular, pinnately compound fronds and often forming dense thickets. 2. An area overgrown with this fern. [Middle English braken, probably of Scandinavian origin. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

Brack-en-ridge (brăk'īn-rīj'), Hugh Henry. 1748-1816. Scottish-born American writer whose works of fiction, such as Modern Chivalry (1792-1805, revised 1815), were among the first to incorporate American subject matter.

brack-et (brăk'it) n. 1. a. A simple rigid structure in the shape of an L, one arm of which is fixed to a vertical surface, the other projecting horizontally to support a shelf or other weight. b. A small shelf or shelves supported by such structures. 2. Architecture. A decorative or weight-bearing structural unit, two sides of which form a right angle with one arm flush against a wall and the other flush beneath a projecting surface; a console or corbel. 3. A wall-anchored fixture for gas or electricity. 4. a. One of a pair of marks, [], used to enclose written or printed material or to indicate a mathematical expression considered in some sense a single quantity. Also called square bracket b. See angle bracket. c. Mathematics. See brace (n., sense 14). 5. Chiefly British. One of a pair of parentheses. 6. A classification or grouping, especially within a sequence of numbers or grades, as a category of incomes sharing the same tax rate. 7. a. The distance between two impacting shells, the first aimed beyond a target and the second aimed short of it, used to determine the range for artillery fire. b. The shells fired in such a manner. — v. tr. brack-et-ed, brack-et-ing, brack-ets. 1. To furnish or support with a bracket or brackets. 2. To place within or as if within brackets. 3. To classify or group together. 4. To include or exclude by establishing specific boundaries. 5. To fire beyond and short of (a target) in order to determine artillery range. [Possibly French braguette, codpiece, diminutive of brague, breeches, from Old Provençal braga, from Latin brācae, of Celtic origin.]

bracket creep (brāk'īt krēp) n. Informal. A shift of personal income into a higher tax bracket when the taxable income increases over time.

bracket fungus (brāk'īt fūng'gəs) n. Any of various fungi that form shelflike growths on tree trunks and wood structures. Also called shelf fungus brack-ish (brāk'ish) adj. 1. Having a somewhat salty taste, especially from containing a mixture of seawater and fresh water: “You could cut the brackish winds with a knife/Here in Nantucket” (Robert Lowell). 2. Distasteful; unpalatable: a thin, brackish gruel. [From Dutch brak.] —brack'ish-ness n.

Brack-nell (brāk'nəl) A town of southeast England. It was designated as a new town in 1949 to alleviate overcrowding in London. Population, 50,100.

brac-o-nid (brāk'ə-nīd) n. Any of several ichneumon flies of the family Braconidae, the larvae of which are parasitic on other insects. [From New Latin Braconidae, family name, possibly from Greek brakhus, short. See BRACHY-.]

bract (bräkt) n. A leaflike or scalelike plant part, usually small, sometimes showy or brightly colored, and located just below a flower, a flower stalk, or an inflorescence. [From Latin bractea, gold leaf, perhaps from Greek brakhein, to rattle.] —brac'te-al (brāk'tē-əl) adj.

brac-te-ate (brāk'tē-īt, -āt') adj. Bearing bracts. [New Latin bracteātus, from Latin bractea, gold leaf. See BRACT.]

brac-te-o-late (brāk'tē-ə-līt, -lāt') adj. Bearing bracteoles.

brac-te-ole (brāk'tē-ōl') n. A small bract. [Latin bracteola, gold leaf, diminutive of bractea. See BRACT.]

brad (brād) n. A thin wire nail with a small head or a slight side projection instead of a head. [Middle English, from Old Norse broddr, spike.] —brad v.

brad-awl (brād'ôl') n. An awl with a beveled tip, used to make holes in wood for brads or screws.

Brad-bur-y (brād'bēr'ē, -bə-rē), Ray Douglas. Born 1920. American writer of science fiction mingled with social commentary. His works include The Martian Chronicles (1950) and Fahrenheit 451 (1953).

Brad-dock (brād'ək), Edward. 1695-1755. British general in America during the French and Indian War. He was mortally wounded during his unsuccessful expedition against Fort Duquesne (now Pittsburgh).

Bra-den-ton (brād'n-tən) A city of west-central Florida on an inlet of Tampa Bay south of Tampa. Hernando de Soto is believed to have landed near here in 1539. Population, 43,779.

Brad·ford (bräd'færd) A borough of north-central England west of Leeds. Its worsted industry dates from the Middle Ages. Population, 464,100.

Brad·ford (bräd'færd), Roark. 1896-1948. American writer whose works, such as John Henry (1931), reflect Black folklore.

Brad·ford¹ (bräd'færd), William. 1590-1657. English Puritan colonist in America. A signer of the Mayflower Compact and a settler of Plymouth Plantation, he was elected governor for 30 one-year terms and led the colony through its difficult early years.

Brad·ford² (bräd'færd), William. 1663-1752. English-born American colonial printer whose press produced the first American Book of Common Prayer (1710), New York City's first newspaper (1725), and numerous other items.

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), Francis Herbert. 1846-1924. British philosopher who, like Hegel, maintained that the mind is more fundamental than matter.

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), Henry. 1845-1923. English lexicographer who was senior editor (1915-1923) of the Oxford English Dictionary.

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), James. 1693-1762. English astronomer who discovered the aberration of light (1728) and the earth's nutation (1748).

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), Joseph P. 1813-1892. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1870-1892).

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), Omar Nelson. 1893-1981. American general who played a major part in the Allied victory in World War II.

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), Thomas. Born 1917. American policeman and politician who became the first Black mayor of Los Angeles in 1973. He was narrowly defeated when he ran for governor of California in 1982.

Brad·ley (bräd'lē), William Warren. Born 1943. American basketball player and politician. He played for the New York Knicks (1967-1977) and was elected U.S. senator for New Jersey in 1978.

Brad·street (bräd'strēt'), Anne Dudley. 1612-1672. English-born colonial poet who wrote several collections of verse, including The Tenth Muse Lately Sprung Up in America (1650). Her husband, Simon (1603-1697), was a colonial administrator and governor of Massachusetts (1679-1686 and 1689-1692).

Bra·dy (brā'dē), James Buchanan. Known as "Diamond Jim." 1856-1917. American financier and philanthropist who gained his nickname because of his attraction to diamonds and his extravagant lifestyle.

Bra·dy (brā'dē), Mathew B. 1823-1896. American pioneer photographer who was famous for his portraits and was appointed official Union photographer of the Civil War in 1861.

brady- pref. Slow: bradycardia. [Greek bradu-, from bradus, slow.]

brad·y·car·di·a (bräd'ī-kär'dē-ə) n. Slowness of the heart rate, usually fewer than 60 beats per minute in an adult human being. [BRADY- + Greek kardia, heart; see CARDIA.] —brad'y·car'dic (-dīk) adj.

brad·y·ki·nin (bräd'ï-kī'nĭn, -kĭn'ĭn) n. A biologically active polypeptide, consisting of nine amino acids, that forms from a blood plasma globulin and mediates the inflammatory response, increases vasodilation, and causes contraction of smooth muscle.

brad·y·lo·gia (bräd'ə-lō'jə, -jē-ə) n. Abnormally slow speech. [BRADY- + Greek logos, speech; see -LOGY + -IA¹.]

brae (brā) n. Scots. A hillside; a slope. [Middle English bra, from Old Norse brā, eyelash.]

brag (bräg) v. bragged, brag-ging, brags. — v. intr. To talk boastfully. See Synonyms at boast¹. — v. tr. To assert boastfully. — n. 1. A boast.

2. Arrogant or boastful speech or manner. 3. Something boasted of. 4. A braggart; a boaster. 5. Games. A card game similar to poker. — adj. brag-ger, brag-gest. Exceptionally fine. [Middle English braggen, from brag, ostentatious.] — brag'ger n.

Bra-ga (brä'gə) A city of northwest Portugal north-northeast of Oporto. Said to have been founded by the Carthaginians, it was an important settlement in Roman times. Population, 63,033.

Bra-gan·za (brə-gän'zə) also Bra-gan·ça (-gän'sä) A dynasty of Portuguese rulers (1640-1910) who also controlled Brazil from 1822 to 1889.

Bragg (bräg), Braxton. 1817-1876. American Confederate general in the Civil War who was defeated in the Chattanooga Campaign (1863).

Bragg (bräg), Sir William Henry. 1862-1942. British physicist. He shared a 1915 Nobel Prize with his son Sir William Lawrence Bragg (1890-1971) for an analysis of x-ray spectra and the structure of crystals.

brag·ga·do·ci·o (bräg'ə-dō'sē-ō', -shē-ō', -shō) n. pl. brag-ga-do-ci-os.

1. A braggart. 2. a. Empty or pretentious bragging. b. A swaggering, cocky manner. [Alteration of Braggadocchio, (probably from BRAG), the personification of vainglory in The Faerie Queene by Edmund Spenser (1552?-1599).]

Bragg angle (bräg äng'gəl) n. The angle between an incident x-ray beam and a set of crystal planes for which the secondary radiation displays maximum intensity as a result of constructive interference. [After Sir William Henry BRAGG, and Sir William Lawrence BRAGG.]

brag-gart (bräg'ərt) n. One given to loud, empty boasting; a bragger. — adj. Boastful. [French bragard, from braguer, to brag, perhaps from Middle English braggen. See BRAG.]

Bragg's law (brägz lô) n. The fundamental law of x-ray crystallography, $n\lambda = 2d\sin\Theta$, where n is an integer, λ is the wavelength of a beam of x-rays incident on a crystal with lattice planes separated by distance d , and Θ is the Bragg angle. [After Sir William Henry BRAGG, and Sir William Lawrence BRAGG.]

Brahe (brä, brä'hē, brä'ə), Tycho. 1546-1601. Danish astronomer whose accurate astronomical observations formed the basis for Johannes Kepler's laws of planetary motion.

Brah·ma¹ (brä'mə) n. 1. Hinduism. a. The creator god, conceived chiefly as a member of the triad including also Vishnu and Shiva. b. Variant of Brahman (n., sense 1). 2. Variant of Brahman (n., sense 3). [Sanskrit brahmā.]

Brah·ma² also brah·ma (brä'mə, brä'-) n. A large domestic fowl of a breed originating in Asia and having feathered legs and small wings and tail. [After Brahmaputra.]

Brah·man (brä'mən) n. 1. Also Brah·ma (-mə). Hinduism. a. A religious formula or prayer and the holy or sacred power in it and in the officiating priest.

b. The holy or sacred power that is the source and sustainer of the universe.

c. The single absolute being pervading the universe and found within the individual; atman. 2. Hinduism. Variant of Brahmin (n., sense 1). 3. Also Brah·ma (-mə) or Brah·min (-mīn).

One of a breed of domestic cattle developed in the southern United States from stock originating in India and having a hump between the shoulders and a pendulous dewlap. Well adapted to hot climates, it is used chiefly for crossbreeding. [Sanskrit. Sense 2, from brāhmaṇa-, brahmanic from brahman.] —Brah·man'ic (-mān'ik), Brah·man'i-cal adj.

Brah·man·ism (brä'mə-nīz'əm) also Brah·min·ism (brä'mī-) n. Hinduism.

1. The religious practices and beliefs of ancient India as reflected in the Vedas.

2. The social and religious system of orthodox Hindus, especially of the Brahmins, based on a caste structure and various forms of pantheism. —Brah·man·ist n.

Brah·ma·pu·tra (brä'mə-pōō'trə) A river of southern Asia rising in the Himalaya Mountains of southwest Tibet and flowing about 2,896 km (1,800 mi) east then south and west through northeast India to join the Ganges River and form a vast delta in central Bangladesh.

Brah·min (brä'mīn) n. 1. Also Brah·man (-mə). Hinduism. a. The first of the four Hindu classes, responsible for officiating at religious rites and studying and teaching the Vedas. b. A member of this class. 2. A member of a cultural and social elite, especially of that formed by descendants of old New England families: a Boston Brahmin. 3. Variant of Brahman (n., sense 3). [Probably alteration of Sanskrit brāhmaṇaḥ, from brāhmaṇa-, brahminic. See BRAHMAN.]

—Brah·min'ic (-mīn'ik), Brah·min'i-cal adj.

Brah·min·ism (brä'mə-nīz'əm) n. 1. The attitude or conduct typical of a social or cultural elite. 2. Hinduism. Brahmanism.

Brahms (brämz), Johannes. 1833-1897. German composer. His works, blending classical tradition with the new romantic impulse, include concertos, four symphonies, chamber music, and choral compositions. —Brahms'i-an adj.

braid (brād) v. braid-ed, braid-ing, braids. — v. tr. 1. a. To interweave three or more strands, strips, or lengths of in a diagonally overlapping pattern: braided the rags into a strong rope. b. To create (something) by such interweaving: braid a rug. c. To style (the hair) by such interweaving. d. To mingle (discrete elements, for example) as if by such interweaving: braided the ideas into a complex thesis. 2. To decorate or edge (something) with a trim of interwoven strands: finished the jacket by braiding the collar and cuffs. 3. To fasten or decorate (hair) with a band or ribbon. — v. intr. To flow, twist, or wind as if interwoven: a stream braiding through the woods. — n. 1. A braided segment or length, as of hair, fabric, or fiber. 2. Ornamental cord or ribbon, used especially for decorating or edging fabrics. 3. A ribbon or band used to fasten the hair. 4. Slang. Naval officers of high rank. [Middle English braiden, from Old English bregdan, to weave.] — braid'er n.

braid-ed (brā'dīd) adj. 1. a. Produced by or as if by braiding. b. Having braids. 2. Decorated with braid. 3. Flowing in an interconnected network of channels that divide and reunite: a braided stream.

braid-ing (brā'dīng) n. 1. Braided embroidery or trim. 2. Braids considered as a group.

brail (brāl) Nautical. n. 1. One of several small ropes attached to the leech of a sail for drawing the sail in or up. 2. A small net for drawing fish from a trap or a larger net into a boat. — v. tr. brailed, brail-ing, brails. 1. To gather in (a sail) with brails. 2. To haul in (fish) with a brail. [Middle English braile, from Old French brail, belt, from Medieval Latin brācale, from Latin brācae, breeches, of Celtic origin.]

Bră-i-la (bră-ē'lə) A city of southeast Romania on the Danube River near the Moldavian and Ukrainian borders. It was taken by the Turks c. 1550 and finally awarded to Romania in 1829. Population, 224,998.

Braille or braille (brāl) n. A system of writing and printing for visually impaired or sightless people, in which varied arrangements of raised dots representing letters and numerals are identified by touch. — v. tr. Brailled or brailled, Brail-ing or brail-ing, Brailles or brailles. To print or transliterate using this system. [After Louis BRAILLE.]

Braille (brāl), Louis. 1809-1852. French musician, educator, and inventor of a writing and printing system for visually impaired or sightless people (1829). He lost his sight at the age of three.

Brail-er or brail-er (brā'lər) n. A machine analogous to a typewriter, used for printing in Braille. Also called Braillewriter brain (brān) n. 1. a. The portion of the vertebrate central nervous system that is enclosed within the cranium, continuous with the spinal cord, and composed of gray matter and white matter. It is the primary center for the regulation and control of bodily activities, receiving and interpreting sensory impulses, and transmitting information to the muscles and body organs. It is also the seat of consciousness, thought, memory, and emotion. b. A functionally similar portion of the invertebrate nervous system. 2. a. Intellectual ability; mind: a dull brain; a quick brain. b. Often brains. Intellectual power; intelligence: brains and good looks. See Synonyms at mind. 3. A highly intelligent person. 4. Often brains. The primary director or planner, as of an organization or movement. 5. The control center, as of a ship, aircraft, or spacecraft. — v. tr. brained, brain-ing, brains. Slang. 1. To smash in the skull of. 2. To hit on the head. — idioms. beat (one's) brains (out). Informal. To exert or expend great mental effort: She beat her brains out during the examination. on the brain. Obsessively in mind: The coach has winning on the brain. pick (someone's) brain (or pick (someone's) brains). To explore another's ideas through questioning. rack (one's) brain. Informal. To think long and hard: I racked my brain for hours trying to recall her name. [Middle English, from Old English brægen.] brain-case also brain case (brān'kās') n. The part of the skull that encloses the brain; the cranium. Also called brainpan brain-child (brān'chīld') n. An original idea or plan attributed to a person or group.

Braille-writ-er or braille-writ-er (brāl'rī'tər) n. See Brailer.

brain coral (brān kôr'əl) n. Any of several reef-building corals of the genus Meandrina, forming rounded colonies that resemble the convolutions of the human brain.

brain damage (brān dām'ij) n. Injury to the brain that is caused by various conditions, such as head trauma, inadequate oxygen supply, infection, or intracranial hemorrhage, and that may be associated with a behavioral or functional abnormality. — brain'-dam'aged (brān'dām'ijd) adj.

brain death (brān dēth) n. Irreversible brain damage and loss of brain function, as evidenced by cessation of breathing and other vital reflexes, unresponsiveness to stimuli, absence of muscle activity, and a flat electroencephalogram for a specific length of time. — brain'-dead' (brān'dēd') adj.

brain drain (brān drān) n. The loss of skilled intellectual and technical labor through the movement of such labor toward more favorable geographic, economic, or professional environments. — brain-drain (brān'drān') v.

Braine (brān), John. 1922-1986. British writer whose best-selling novel Room at the Top (1957) established him as one of Britain's Angry Young Men.

brain fever (brān fē'vər) n. Inflammation of the brain or meninges, as in encephalitis or meningitis.

brain hormone (brān hôr'mōn') n. Any of various hormones produced in the hypothalamic region of the brain, especially those acting on the pituitary gland to release other hormones.

brain-ish (brā'nīsh) adj. Archaic. Headstrong; impetuous.

brain-less (brān'lis) adj. Unintelligent; stupid. —brain/less-ly adv.
—brain/less-ness n.

brain-pan (brān'pān') n. See braincase.

brain-pick-ing (brān'pik'ing) n. The act of exploring another's ideas through questioning. —brain/-pick'er n.

brain-pow-er (brān'pou'ər) n. 1. Intellectual capacity. 2. People of well-developed mental abilities: a country that doesn't value its brainpower.

brain scan (brān skān) n. A scintigram of the brain, used to identify cerebral blood flow and to detect intracranial masses, lesions, tumors, or infarcts.

brain-sick (brān'sik') adj. Of, relating to, or induced by a mental disorder; insane or mad. —brain/sick/ly adv. —brain/sick/ness n.

brain stem also brain-stem (brān'stēm') n. The portion of the brain, consisting of the medulla oblongata, pons Varolii, and mesencephalon, that connects the spinal cord to the forebrain and cerebrum.

brain-storm (brān'stôrm') n. 1. A sudden clever plan or idea. 2. A sudden, violent disturbance of the mind. — v. brain-stormed, brain-storm-ing, brain-storms. — v. intr. To engage in or organize shared problem solving. — v. tr. 1. To consider or investigate (an issue, for example) by engaging in shared problem solving. 2. To think of or produce (a solution to a problem, for example) by this method. —brain/storm'er n.

brain-storm-ing (brān'stôr'ming) n. 1. A method of shared problem solving in which all members of a group spontaneously contribute ideas. 2. A similar process undertaken by a person to solve a problem by rapidly generating a variety of possible solutions.

brain-teas-er (brān'tē'zər) n. A mentally challenging problem or puzzle.

Brain-tree (brān'trē') A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 33,836.

brain trust (brān trūst) n. 1. A group of experts who serve, usually unofficially, as advisers and policy planners, especially in a government. 2. Often Brain Trust. Such a group associated with the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the development of the New Deal. 3. brains trust. Chiefly British. A group of experts gathered to discuss issues informally in public, especially on radio or television. —brain truster n.

brain-wash (brān'wōsh', -wōsh') v. tr. brain-washed, brain-wash-ing, brain-wash-es. To subject to brainwashing. — n. The process or an instance of brainwashing. [Back-formation from BRAINWASHING.]

brain-wash-ing (brān'wōsh'ing, -wō'shing) n. 1. Intensive, forcible indoctrination, usually political or religious, aimed at destroying a person's basic convictions and attitudes and replacing them with an alternative set of fixed beliefs. 2. The application of a concentrated means of persuasion, such as an advertising campaign or repeated suggestion, in order to develop a specific belief or motivation. [Translation of Chinese (Mandarin) xǐ naǒ : xǐ, to wash + naǒ, brain.]

brain wave (brān wāv) n. 1. A rhythmic fluctuation of electric potential between parts of the brain, as seen on an electroencephalogram. 2. Informal. A sudden inspiration.

brain-work (brān/wûrk') n. Intellectual activity, especially as an aspect of a person's profession.

brain-work-er (brān/wûr'kər) n. One whose profession primarily involves intellectual activity.

brain-y (brā'nē) adj. brain-i-er, brain-i-est. Informal. Intelligent; smart.

—brain'i-ly adv. —brain'i-ness n.

braise (brāz) v. tr. braised, brais-ing, brais-es. To cook (meat or vegetables) by browning in fat, then simmering in a small quantity of liquid in a covered container. [French braiser, from braise, hot charcoal, from Old French brese, of Germanic origin. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

brake¹ (brāk) n. 1. A device for slowing or stopping motion, as of a vehicle, especially by contact friction. 2. Something that slows or stops action. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: brake fluid; a brake job. — v. braked, brak-ing, brakes. — v. tr. To reduce the speed of with or as if with a brake. — v. intr. 1. To operate or apply a brake. 2. To be slowed or stopped by or as if by the operation of a brake. [Probably brake, bridle, curb, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German, nose ring, curb, flax brake; see BRAKE².]

WORD HISTORY: Brakes, which are constantly becoming more technologically advanced, may take their name from a device associated with an earlier mode of transportation. It is thought that the term brake may come from an earlier English word brake, meaning “a bridle or curb,” first recorded in the 16th century. In any case, the first recorded occurrence of our word brake is found in 1772, well before the advent of the automobile.

brake² (brāk) n. 1. A toothed device for crushing and beating flax or hemp. 2. A heavy harrow for breaking clods of earth. 3. An apparatus for kneading large amounts of dough. 4. A machine for bending and folding sheet metal. — v. tr. braked, brak-ing, brakes. 1. To crush (flax or hemp) in a toothed device. 2. To break up (clods of earth) with a harrow. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch, from Middle Low German. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

brake³ (brāk) n. A lever or handle on a machine such as a pump. [Middle English, from Old French brac, from oblique form of bras, arm. See BRACER².]

brake⁴ (brāk) n. 1. Any of various ferns of the genus Pteris having pinnately compound leaves and including several popular houseplants. 2. Any of certain other ferns, such as the bracken or the cliff brake. [Middle English, probably back-formation from braken. See BRACKEN.]

brake⁵ (brāk) n. An area overgrown with dense brushwood, briars, and undergrowth; a thicket. [Middle English, from Middle Low German. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

brake⁶ (brāk) n. Variant of break (n., sense 28). — v. Archaic. A past tense of break.

brake drum (brāk drūm) n. A metal cylinder to which pressure is applied by a braking mechanism in order to arrest rotation of the wheel or shaft to which the cylinder is attached.

brake horsepower (brāk hōrs'pou'ər) n. Abbr. bhp, b.hp. The actual or useful horsepower of an engine, usually determined from the force exerted on a friction brake or dynamometer connected to the drive shaft.

brake light (brāk līt) n. See stoplight (n., sense 1).

brake lining (brāk lī'nīng) n. The covering of a brake shoe.

brake-man (brāk'mən) n. One who operates, inspects, or repairs brakes, especially a railroad employee who assists the conductor and checks on the operation of a train's brakes.

brake pad (brāk pād) n. A flat block that presses against the disk of a disc brake.

brake shoe (brāk shō) n. A curved metal block that presses against and arrests the rotation of a wheel or brake drum.

braking distance (brā'kīng dīs'təns) n. The distance required for a vehicle moving at a specified velocity to come to a complete stop after its brakes have been activated.

braking time (brā'kīng tīm) n. The time required for a vehicle moving at a specified velocity to come to a complete stop after its brakes have been activated.

bra-less (brä'lis) adj. & adv. Wearing no brassiere. —bra/less-ness n.

Bra-man-te (brə-män'tā, brä-män'tè), Donato. 1444-1514. Italian architect who evolved the style known as High Renaissance. He provided the original central plan for the new Saint Peter's Basilica (begun in 1506).

bram-ble (bräm'bəl) n. 1. A prickly shrub of the genus Rubus, including the blackberry and the raspberry. 2. A prickly shrub or bush. [Middle English brembel, from Old English bræmbel.] —bram'bly adj.

bram-ble-ber-ry (bräm'bəl-bēr'ē) n. The fruit of a bramble (Rubus).

bram-bling (bräm'bliŋ) n. A finch (Fringilla montifringilla) of northern Eurasia, having black, white, and rust-brown plumage. [Probably from Old English bræmbling*: bræmbel, bramble + -ling, one connected with; see *-LING*¹.]

Bramp-ton (brämp'tən) A city of southern Ontario, Canada, an industrial suburb of Toronto. Population, 149,030.

bran (brän) n. The outer layers of the grain of cereals such as wheat, removed during the process of milling and used as a source of dietary fiber. [Middle English, from Old French, of Celtic origin.] —bran/ny adj.

Bran (brän) n. Mythology. A gigantic Celtic god and ruler of Britain. After he was mortally wounded in battle, his head was buried in London, where it served as a protection against invaders.

branch (bränch) n. Abbr. br. 1. a. A secondary woody stem or limb growing from the trunk or main stem of a tree or shrub or from another secondary limb. b. A lateral division or subdivision of certain other plant parts, such as a root or flower cluster. 2. Something that resembles a branch of a tree, as in form or function, as: a. A secondary outgrowth or subdivision of a main axis, such as the tine of a deer's antlers. b. Anatomy. An offshoot or a division of the main portion of a structure, especially that of a nerve, blood vessel, or lymphatic vessel; a ramus. 3. A limited part of a larger or more complex unit or system, especially: a. An area of specialized skill or knowledge, especially academic or vocational, that is related to but separate from other areas: the judicial branch of government; the branch of medicine called neurology. b. A division of a business or other organization. c. A division of a family, categorized by descent from a particular ancestor. d. Linguistics. A subdivision of a family of languages, such as the Germanic branch of Indo-European. 4. a. A tributary of a river. b. Chiefly Southern U.S. See creek (n., sense 1). See Regional note at run. c. Chiefly Southern U.S. See branch water (n., sense 1). d. A divergent section of a river, especially near the mouth. 5. Mathematics. A part of a curve that is separated, as by discontinuities or extreme points. 6. Computer Science. a. A sequence of program instructions to which the normal sequence of instructions relinquishes control, depending on the value of certain variables. b. The instructions executed as the result of such a passing of control. — v. branched, branch-ing, branch-es. — v. intr. 1. To put forth a branch or branches; spread by dividing. 2. a. To come forth as a branch or subdivision; develop or diverge from: an unpaved road that branches from the main road; a theory that branches from an older system of ideas. b. To enlarge the scope of one's interests, business, or activities: branch out from physics into related scientific fields. 3. Computer Science. To relinquish control to another set of instructions or another routine as a result of the presence of a branch. — v. tr. 1. To separate (something) into or as if into branches. 2. To embroider (something) with a design of foliage or flowers. [Middle English, from Old French branche, from Late Latin branca, paw, perhaps of Celtic origin.] —branch/less adj. —branch/y adj.

SYNONYMS: branch, arm, fork, offshoot. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something resembling or structurally analogous to a limb of a tree”: a branch of a railroad; an arm of the sea; the western fork of the river; an offshoot of a mountain range.

bran·chi·a (bräng'kē-ə) n. pl. bran·chi·ae (-kē-ē). A gill or similar organ of respiration. [Latin, from Greek branchia, gills.]

bran·chi·al (bräng'kē-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling the gills of a fish, their homologous embryonic structures, or the derivatives of their homologous parts in higher animals: branchial muscles.

branchial arch (bräng'kē-əl ärch) n. See gill arch.

branchial cleft (bräng'kē-əl klëft) n. See gill slit (n., sense 1).

branchial groove (bräng'kē-əl grōōv) n. See gill slit (n., sense 2).

bran·chi·o·pod (bräng'kē-ə-pōd') n. Any of various aquatic crustaceans of the subclass Branchiopoda, such as the fairy shrimp and water flea, characterized by a segmented body and flattened, leaflike thoracic appendages. [From New Latin Branchiopoda, subclass name : Latin branchia, gills; see BRANCHIA + New Latin poda, -pod; see -POD.] —bran'chi·o·pod', bran'chi·op'o·dan (-öp'ə-dən) , bran'chi·op'a·dous (-dəs) adj.

branch·let (bränch'līt) n. A small branch or the terminal or ultimate subdivision of a branch.

branch water (bränch wō'tər) n. 1. Plain water, especially when mixed with a liquor such as whiskey. Regional. Also called branch 2. Chiefly Southern U.S.

Water from a stream. [BRANCH, stream + WATER.]

Bran·cu·si (brän-kōō'zē, bräng-kōōsh'), Constantin. 1876-1957. Romanian-born sculptor who settled in Paris in 1904. He broke sharply with the realist tradition, making abstract sculptures, chiefly in metal and stone, of great geometric simplicity.

brand (bränd) n. 1. a. A trademark or distinctive name identifying a product or a manufacturer. b. A product line so identified: a popular brand of soap. c. A distinctive category; a particular kind: a brand of comedy that I do not care for.

2. A mark indicating identity or ownership, burned on the hide of an animal with a hot iron. 3. A mark burned into the flesh of criminals. 4. A mark of disgrace or notoriety; a stigma. See Synonyms at stain. 5. A branding iron. 6. A piece of burning or charred wood. 7. A sword: "So flashed and fell the brand Excalibur" (Tennyson).

— v. tr. brand·ed, brand·ing, brands. 1. To mark with or as if with a hot iron. See Synonyms at mark¹. 2. To mark with disgrace or infamy; stigmatize. 3. To impress firmly; fix ineradicably: Imagery of the war has branded itself into the national consciousness. [Middle English, torch, from Old English.

See g^wher- in Appendix.] —brand'er n.

bran·dade (brän-däd') n. A dish of Provençal origin prepared from salted cod. [French, from Provençal brandado, from Old Provençal, past participle of brandar, to shake, from brand, sword, of Germanic origin. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

Bran-deis (brăn'dīs', -dīz'), Louis Dembitz. 1856-1941. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1916-1939). His opposition to monopolies and defense of individual human rights formed the basis of many of his high court decisions.

Bran-den-burg (brăn'dən-bûrg', brăn'dən-bōork') 1. A historical region and former duchy of north-central Germany around which the kingdom of Prussia developed. The region is now divided between Poland and Germany. 2. A city of northeast Germany on the Havel River west-southwest of Berlin. It is an industrial center. Population, 95,133.

brand-ing iron (brăn'dĩng ī'ərn) n. An iron that is heated and used for indicating identity or ownership.

bran-dish (brăn'dish) v. tr. bran-dished, bran-dish-ing, bran-dish-es.

1. To wave or flourish (a weapon, for example) menacingly. 2. To display ostentatiously. See Synonyms at flourish. — n. A menacing or defiant wave or flourish. [Middle English brandissen, from Old French brandir, brandiss-, from brand, sword, of Germanic origin. See g^wher- in Appendix.] —bran'dish-er n.

brand-ling (brănd'lĩng) n. A common reddish-brown earthworm (Eisenia foetida) often used as fish bait. [BRAND (from its markings) + -LING¹.]

brand name (brănd nām) n. 1. See trade name (n., sense 1). 2. A commodity, service, or process having a trade name. —brand-name (brănd'nām') adj.

brand-new (brănd'nōō', -nyōō') adj. Being in a fresh and unused condition; completely new.

Bran-do (brăn'dō), Marlon. Born 1924. American actor widely known for his film appearances, most notably as Stanley Kowalski in A Streetcar Named Desire (1951).

Bran-don (brăn'dən) 1. A city of southwest Manitoba, Canada, on the Assiniboine River west of Winnipeg. It is an industrial and transportation center. Population, 36,242. 2. An unincorporated village of west-central Florida, a residential suburb of Tampa. Population, 57,985.

Brandt (brănt, brănt), Willy. 1913-1992. German political leader. He served as chancellor of West Germany (1969-1974) and won the 1971 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to reduce tension between the East and the West.

bran-dy (brăn'dē) n. pl. bran-dies. An alcoholic liquor distilled from wine or fermented fruit juice. — v. tr. bran-died, bran-dy-ing, bran-dies. To preserve, flavor, or mix with brandy. [Short for brandy-wine, from Dutch brandewijn: brandende, present participle of branden, to burn; see g^wher- in Appendix + wijn, wine; see WINE.]

Bran-dy-wine (brăn'dē-wīn') A creek of southeast Pennsylvania and northern Delaware. It was the site of a major defeat of the Continental Army on September 11, 1777, thus allowing British troops to enter Philadelphia on September 27.

Bran-gus (bräng'gəs) A trademark used for any of a breed of beef cattle developed from a cross between the Brahman and the Aberdeen Angus.

brank (brängk) n. A device consisting of a metal frame for the head and a bit to restrain the tongue, formerly used to punish scolds. Usually used in the plural. [Possibly from Dutch branken, legs (of a compass, scissors, etc.), pl. of branke, branch, from Late Latin branca, paw. See BRANCH.]

bran-ni-gan (brän'ī-gən) n. 1. A noisy or confused quarrel. 2. A drinking spree; a binge. [Probably from the name Brannigan.]

brant (bränt) n. pl. brant or brants. Any of several small, dark wild geese of the genus Branta that breed in arctic regions, especially B. bernicla, having a black neck and head. [Variant of brent(-goose), possibly from Middle English brende, brindled. See BRINDLED.]

Brant (bränt), Joseph. Originally Thayendanega. 1742-1807. Mohawk leader who supported the British in the French and Indian War and the American Revolution.

Brant-ford (bränt'fərd) A city of southern Ontario, Canada, southwest of Toronto. It was named for the Mohawk leader Joseph Brant, who is buried nearby. Alexander Graham Bell performed some of his early experiments in sound transmission here in the 1870's. Population, 74,315.

Bran-ting (brän'ting, brän'-), Karl Hjalmar. 1860-1925. Swedish political leader who served as premier (1920, 1921-1923, and 1924-1925). He shared the 1921 Nobel Peace Prize.

Braque (bräk, brăk), Georges. 1882-1963. French painter who was a leading exponent and theorist of the cubist movement.

Bras d'Or Lake (brä' dōr' dōr') An arm of the Atlantic Ocean indenting deeply into Cape Breton Island in southeast Canada.

brash¹ (brăsh) adj. brash-er, brash-est. 1. a. Hasty and unthinking; impetuous. b. Rash. 2. Lacking in sensitivity or tact. 3. Presumptuously forward; impudent. See Synonyms at shameless. 4. Brittle: brash timbers. [Possibly imitative (influenced by RASH¹), or from brash, attack.] —brash/ly adv.

—brash/ness n.

brash² (brăsh) n. A mass or pile of rubble, refuse, or fragments, as of stone, brush, or ice. [Perhaps an alteration of French brèche, breach in a wall, from Italian breccia. See BRECCIA.]

bra-sier¹ (brä'zhər) n. Variant of brazier¹.

bra-sier² (brä'zhər) n. Variant of brazier².

Bra-sí-lia (brə-zil'yə) The capital of Brazil, in the central plateau northwest of Rio de Janeiro. The city, laid out in the shape of an airplane, was officially inaugurated in 1960. Population, 1,176,935.

Bra-șov (brä-shôv') A city of central Romania in the foothills of the Transylvanian Alps north-northwest of Bucharest. It was founded in 1211 by the Teutonic Knights. Population, 331,240.

brass (bräs) n. 1. a. A yellowish alloy of copper and zinc, sometimes including small amounts of other metals, but usually 67 percent copper and 33 percent zinc. b. Ornaments, objects, or utensils made of this alloy. 2. Often brasses. Music. a. The section of a band or an orchestra composed of brass instruments. b. Brass instruments or their players considered as a group. 3. A memorial plaque or tablet made of brass, especially one on which an effigy is incised. 4. A bushing or similar lining for a bearing, made from a copper alloy. 5. Informal. Bold self-assurance; effrontery. 6. Slang. High-ranking military officers or other high officials. 7. Chiefly British. Money. [Middle English bras, from Old English bræs.] —brass adj.

bras-sard (brə-särd', bräs'ärd') n. 1. A band or badge worn around the upper arm. 2. Also bras-sart (brə-särt', bräs'ärt'). A piece of armor covering the arm, especially from elbow to shoulder. [French, from Old French bras, arm, from Latin brāchium, from Greek brakhiōn, upper arm. See mregh-u- in Appendix.]

brass band (bräs bänd) n. Music. A band composed of brass and sometimes percussion instruments.

brass-bound (bräs'bound') adj. 1. Banded or trimmed with brass or a similar metal, such as bronze. 2. Inflexible; rigid: brassbound party loyalists. 3. Bold and impudent; brazen.

brass-col-lar (bräs'köl'ər) adj. Unwavering in political allegiance; consistently voting a straight party ticket.

bras-se-rie (bräs'ə-rē', bräs-rē') n. A restaurant serving alcoholic beverages, especially beer, as well as food. [French, from brasser, to malt, brew, from Old French bracier, from Vulgar Latin braciāre*, from Latin brace, malt, of Celtic origin.]

brass hat (bräs häť) n. Slang. 1. A high-ranking military officer. 2. A high-ranking civilian official. [From the gold braid on the hat.]

brass-ie also brass-y (bräs'ē) n. pl. brass-ies. Sports. A golf club with a brass-plated sole and a wooden head, used for long low shots; a two wood.

bras-siere (brə-zîr') n. A woman's undergarment worn to support and give contour to the breasts. [French, child's jacket with sleeves, brassiere : Old French bras, arm (from Latin brāchium, from Greek brakhiōn, upper arm); see mregh-u- in Appendix + -iere, one associated with; see *-ER*¹.]

brass instrument (bräs ĩn'strə-mənt) n. Music. A wind instrument, such as the French horn or the trombone, made of brass or other metal. Sound is produced through vibration of the lips and adjustment of the length of the sound tube by means of valves or a slide.

brass knuckles (bräs nüč'əlz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A metal chain or a set of rings attached to a bar that can be fitted over the fingers to increase the impact of a blow with the fist.

brass ring (bräs rīŋ) n. Slang. An opportunity to achieve wealth or success; a prize or reward.

brass tacks (bräs täks) pl.n. Informal. Essential facts; basics: getting down to brass tacks.

brass-tacks (bräs'täks') adj. Informal. Concerned with essential matters; practical: a brass-tacks leader.

brass-ware (bräs'wâr') n. Articles made from brass.

brassy¹ (bräs'ē) adj. brass-i-er, brass-i-est. 1. Made of or decorated with brass. 2. Resembling brass, as in color. 3. Music. Resembling or characterized by the sound of brass instruments: "The band was now playing some brassy march" (Robert Penn Warren). 4. Cheap and showy; flashy. 5. Informal. Brazen; insolent. —brass'i-ly adv. —brass'i-ness n.

brassy² (bräs'ē) n. Sports. Variant of brassie.

brat¹ (brät) n. A child, especially a spoiled or ill-mannered one. [Possibly from brat, coarse garment, from Middle English, from Old English bratt, of Celtic origin.] —brat'tish adj. —brat'tish-ness n.

brat² (brät) n. Bratwurst.

Bra-ti-sla-va (brät'ī-slä'və, brä'tī-) The capital of Slovakia, in the southeast part on the Danube River near the Austrian and Hungarian borders. It was the capital of Hungary from 1541 to 1784. Population, 409,100.

brat pack (brät päk) n. Slang. A group of highly successful young people engaged in the same profession: "the kind of overnight fame that characterizes the literary brat pack—that covey of under-30 novelists" (Christian Science Monitor). [On the model of rat pack.]

Bratsk (brätsk) A city of south-central Russia on the Angara River north-northwest of Irkutsk. It has hydroelectric power installations. Population, 240,000.

Brat-tain (brät'n), Walter Houser. 1902-1987. American physicist. He shared a 1956 Nobel Prize for developing the electronic transistor.

brat-tice (brät'tis) n. 1. A partition, typically of wood or cloth, erected in a mine for ventilation. 2. A breastwork erected during a siege. [Middle English bratice, defensive structure, from Old French bratesche, from Medieval Latin bratescha (turris), British-style (tower), probably from Old English bryttisc, British.] —brat'tice v.

brat-tle (brät'l) Scots. n. 1. A rattling or clattering sound. 2. A movement that produces such a sound. — v. intr. brat-tled, brat-tling, brat-tles. To make a rattling or clattering sound, especially by rushing or scampering. [Imitative.]

Brat-tle (brät'1), Thomas. 1658-1713. American merchant known primarily for his strong denunciation of the Salem witch trials (1692) and his opposition to the rigid Puritanism of Cotton and Increase Mather.

Brat-tle·bor·o (brät'1-bûr'ō, -bər-ə, -bûr'ō) A town of southeast Vermont on the Connecticut River and the New Hampshire border. It was chartered in 1753 and is now a winter resort center. Population, 11,886.

brat-ty (brät'ē) adj. brat-ti-er, brat-ti-est. Characteristic of or being a brat; ill-mannered. — brat'ti-ness n.

brat-wurst (brät'wûrst', -vōorst') n. A small sausage of highly seasoned fresh pork, usually served fried. [German, from Middle High German brätwurst, from Old High German : brāto, meat; see bhreu- in Appendix + wurst, sausage; see WURST.]

Braun (broun), Eva. 1912-1945. German lover and later wife of Adolf Hitler. They began living together in 1936, but the liaison was kept secret, and she was never seen in public with him. They were married hours before their double suicide on April 30, 1945.

Braun (broun), Karl Ferdinand. 1850-1918. German physicist. He shared a 1909 Nobel Prize for work on wireless telegraphy and cathode rays.

Braun (brôn, broun), Wernher Magnus Maximilian von. 1912-1977. German-born American rocket engineer, who was director of the U.S. Army team that put the first American satellite, Explorer I, into space (1958).

Braun-schwei-ger (broun'shwī'gər) n. A smoked liver sausage. [German, after Braunschweig (Brunswick), West Germany.]

bra-va (brä'vä, brä-vä') interj. Used to express approval of a woman, especially for a performance. — n. A shout or cry of "brava." [Italian, feminine of bravo, bravo. See BRAVO¹.]

bra-va·do (brə-vä'dō) n. pl. bra-va-dos or bra-va-does. 1. a. Defiant or swaggering behavior: strove to prevent our courage from turning into bravado. b. A pretense of courage; a false show of bravery. 2. A disposition toward showy defiance or false expressions of courage. [Spanish bravada, from bravo, brave. See BRAVE.]

brave (brāv) adj. brav-er, brav-est. 1. Possessing or displaying courage; valiant. 2. Making a fine display; impressive or showy: "a coat of brave red lipstick on a mouth so wrinkled that it didn't even have a clear outline" (Anne Tyler).

3. Excellent; great: "The Romans were like brothers/In the brave days of old" (Macaulay). — n. 1. A Native American warrior. 2. A courageous person.

3. Archaic. A bully. — v. braved, brav-ing, braves. — v. tr. 1. To undergo or face courageously. 2. To challenge; dare: "Together they would brave Satan and all his legions" (Emily Brontë). 3. Obsolete. To make showy or splendid. — v. intr. Archaic. To make a courageous show or to put up a stalwart front. [Middle English, from Old French, from Old Italian, or Old Spanish bravo, wild, brave, excellent probably from Vulgar Latin brabus*, from Latin barbarus. See BARBAROUS.] —brave/ly adv. —brave/ness n.

SYNONYMS: brave, courageous, fearless, intrepid, bold, audacious, valiant, valorous, doughty, mettlesome, plucky, dauntless, undaunted. These adjectives all mean having or showing courage under difficult or dangerous conditions. Brave, the least specific, is frequently associated with an innate quality: “Familiarity with danger makes a brave man braver, but less daring” (Herman Melville). Courageous implies an act of consciously rising to a specific test by drawing on a reserve of inner strength: The young platoon leader set a courageous example for his soldiers by leading them safely into and out of jungle territory held by the enemy. Fearless emphasizes absence of fear and resolute self-possession: “world-class [boating] races for fearless loners willing to face the distinct possibility of being run down, dismasted, capsized, attacked by whales” (Jo Ann Morse Ridley). Intrepid sometimes suggests invulnerability to fear: Intrepid pioneers settled the American West. Bold stresses not only readiness to meet danger or difficulty but often also a tendency to seek it out: “If we shrink from the hard contests where men must win at the hazard of their lives... then bolder and stronger peoples will pass us by” (Theodore Roosevelt). Audacious implies extreme confidence and boldness: “To demand these God-given rights is to seek black power—what I call audacious power” (Adam Clayton Powell, Jr.). Valiant, said principally of persons, suggests the bravery of a hero or a heroine: “a sympathetic and detailed biography that sees Hemingway as a valiant and moral man” (New York Times). Valorous applies to the deeds of heroes and heroines: “Her passengers, the other hostages, will never forget her calm, confident, valorous work” (William W. Bradley). Doughty, a bit old-fashioned in flavor and often used humorously, suggests stalwartness: The doughty old man battled his illness with fierce determination. Mettlesome stresses spirit and love of challenge: The mettlesome actress resumed her career after recovering from a stroke. Plucky emphasizes spirit and heart in the face of unfavorable odds: “Everybody was... anxious to show these Belgians what England thought of their plucky little country” (H.G. Wells). Dauntless refers to courage that resists subjection or intimidation: “So faithful in love, and so dauntless in war,/There never was knight like the young Lochinvar” (Sir Walter Scott). Undaunted suggests courage and resolve that persist after being put to the test: “Death and sorrow will be the companions of our journey; hardship our garment; constancy and valor our only shield. We must be united, we must be undaunted, we must be inflexible” (Winston S. Churchill). See also Synonyms at defy brave new world (brāv nōō wûrld) n. A vision or the realization of a radically transformed human existence, especially one in which scientific and technological change has a strong, adverse impact on social, political, and economic structures: “This brave new world of science... offered broader opportunities for greater success to more people. At the same time, it scarred those who could not reap its benefits” (W. Bruce Lincoln). [After Brave New World, title of a novel by Aldous Huxley (1894-1963).]

brav·er·y (brā'və-rē, brāv'rē) n. pl. brav·er·ies. 1. The condition or quality of being brave; courage. 2. Splendor or magnificence; show.

bra·vis·si·mo (brä-vīs'ə-mō') interj. Used to express great approval, especially of a performance. [Italian, superlative of bravo, fine. See BRAVO¹.]

bra·vo¹ (brä'vō, brä-vō') interj. Used to express approval, especially of a performance. — n. pl. bra·vos. A shout or cry of “bravo.” — v. bra·voed, bra·vo·ing, bra·voes. — v. tr. To express approval of by shouting “bravo.” — v. intr. To shout “bravo.” [Italian. See BRAVE.]

bra·vo² (brä'vō) n. pl. bra·voes or bra·vos. A villain, especially a hired killer. [Italian, from bravo, wild, excellent. See BRAVE.]

bra·vu·ra (brə-vōōr'ə, -vyōōr'ə) n. 1. Music. a. Brilliant technique or style in performance. b. A piece or passage that emphasizes a performer's virtuosity. 2. A showy manner or display. [Italian, from bravo, excellent. See BRAVE.]

braw (brô) adj. brav·er, brav·est. Scots. 1. Fine; splendid. 2. Dressed in a fine or showy manner. [Scots, variant of BRAVE.]

brawl (brôl) n. 1. A noisy quarrel or fight. 2. A loud party. 3. A loud, roaring noise. — v. intr. brawled, brawl·ing, brawls. 1. To quarrel or fight noisily. 2. To flow noisily, as water. [Middle English braul, from braullen, to quarrel.] —brawl'er n. —brawl'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: brawl, broil, donnybrook, fracas, fray, free-for-all, melee, row, ruction. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a very noisy, disorderly, and often violent quarrel or fight”: a barroom brawl; a protest march that degenerated into a general broil between the demonstrators and the police; an incident that turned into a vicious legal donnybrook; putting down a violent fracas among prison inmates; eager for the fray; a regular free-for-all in the schoolyard; police plunging into the melee; a terrific domestic row; a senseless ruction over trivia.

brawl·y (brô'lē) adj. brawl·i·er, brawl·i·est. 1. Engaged in brawling. 2. Tending to brawl.

brawn (brôn) n. 1. Solid and well-developed muscles, especially of the arms and legs. 2. Muscular strength and power. 3. Chiefly British. The meat of a boar. 4. Headcheese. [Middle English, muscle, from Old French braon, meat, of Germanic origin. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

brawn·y (brô'nē) adj. brawn·i·er, brawn·i·est. 1. Strong and muscular. See Synonyms at muscular. 2. Hardened; calloused. —brawn'i·ly adv. —brawn'i·ness n.

bray¹ (brā) v. brayed, bray-ing, brays. — v. intr. 1. To utter the loud, harsh cry of a donkey. 2. To sound loudly and harshly: The foghorn brayed all night. — v. tr. To emit (an utterance or a sound) loudly and harshly. — n. 1. The loud, harsh cry of a donkey. 2. A sound resembling that of a donkey: “an endless bray of pointless jocosity” (Louis Auchincloss). [Middle English braien, from Old French braire, of Celtic origin.]

bray² (brā) v. tr. brayed, bray-ing, brays. 1. To crush and pound to a fine consistency, as in a mortar. 2. To spread (ink) thinly over a surface. [Middle English braien, from Old French breier, of Germanic origin. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

bray-er¹ (brā'ər) n. One that brays, especially a donkey.

bray-er² (brā'ər) n. Printing. A small hand roller used to spread ink thinly and evenly.

Braz. abbr. 1. Brazil. 2. Brazilian.

braze¹ (brāz) v. tr. brazed, braz-ing, braz-es. 1. To make of or decorate with brass. 2. To make hard like brass. [Middle English brasen, from Old English brasian, from bræs, brass.]

braze² (brāz) v. tr. brazed, braz-ing, braz-es. To solder (two pieces of metal) together using a hard solder with a high melting point. [Probably from French braser, from Old French, to burn, from brese, hot coal, of Germanic origin. See bhreu- in Appendix.] — braz'er n.

brazen (brā'zən) adj. 1. Marked by flagrant and insolent audacity. See Synonyms at shameless. 2. Having a loud, usually harsh, resonant sound. 3. Made of brass. 4. Resembling brass, as in color or strength. — v. tr. brazened, brazen-ing, brazens. To face or undergo with bold self-assurance: brazened out the crisis. [Middle English brasen, made of brass, from Old English bræsen, from bræs, brass.] — bra'zen-ly adv. — bra'zen-ness n.

brazen-faced (brā'zən-fāst') adj. Flagrantly and insolently audacious.

bra-zier¹ also bra-sier (brā'zhər) n. One that works in brass. [Middle English brasier, from bras, brass. See BRASS.]

bra-zier² also bra-sier (brā'zhər) n. 1. A metal pan for holding burning coals or charcoal. 2. A cooking device consisting of a charcoal or electric heating source over which food is grilled. [French brasier, from braise, hot coals. See BRAISE.]

Bra-zil (brə-zīl') Abbr. Braz. A country of eastern South America. The largest country in the continent, it was ruled by Portugal from 1500 to 1822 and was an empire until 1889, when a republic was established. Brasília has been the capital since 1960; São Paulo is the largest city. Population, 119,002,706. — Bra-zil'i-an adj. & n.

Brazilian pepper tree (brə-zīl'ē-ən pĕp'ər trē) n. An evergreen Brazilian tree (Schinus terebinthifolius) having aromatic foliage and clusters of red, berry-like fruits used for Christmas decorations. It is naturalized in warm regions and a serious pest in Hawaii and Florida. Also called Christmas berry tree

Brazil nut (brə-zīl' nüt) n. 1. A tropical South American evergreen tree (Bertholletia excelsa) having, globose, woody fruit and edible, dark brown, three-sided seeds. 2. The seed of this tree. [After Brazil.]

bra-zil-wood (brə-zīl'wōd') n. The reddish wood of certain tropical trees or shrubs in the pea family, especially a Brazilian tree Caesalpinia echinata, whose wood is used for violin bows and as a source of a red or purplish dye. [Obsolete brazil, brazilwood (from Middle English brasil, from Old French bresil, perhaps from bresiller*, to glow red, from brese, hot coal); see BRAISE + WOOD¹.]

Braz-os (brăz'əs) A river rising as a tributary in eastern New Mexico and flowing about 1,400 km (870 mi) generally southeast across Texas to the Gulf of Mexico southwest of Galveston.

Braz-za-ville (brăz'ə-vīl', brä-zä-vēl') The capital and largest city of Congo, in the southern part of the country on the Congo River across from Kinshasa, Zaire. Founded by the French in the 1880's, it is a trade center and major port. Population, 595,102.

B.R.E. abbr. Bachelor of Religious Education.

Bre-a (brā'ə) A city of southern California north of Anaheim. It is a residential community with varied light industries. Population, 32,873.

breach (brēch) n. 1. a. An opening, a tear, or a rupture. b. A gap or rift, especially in or as if in a solid structure such as a dike or fortification. 2. A violation or infraction, as of a law, a legal obligation, or a promise. 3. A breaking up or disruption of friendly relations; an estrangement. 4. A leap of a whale from the water. 5. The breaking of waves or surf. — v. breached, breach-ing, breach-es. — v. tr. 1. To make a hole or gap in; break through. 2. To break or violate (an agreement, for example). — v. intr. To leap from the water: waiting for the whale to breach. [Middle English breche, from Old English brēc. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: breach, infraction, violation, transgression, trespass, infringement. These nouns denote an act or instance of breaking a law or regulation or failing to fulfill a duty, obligation, or promise. Breach and infraction are the least specific: Revealing the secret would be a breach of trust. Infractions of the rules will not be tolerated. A violation is an infraction committed willfully and with complete lack of regard for legal, moral, or ethical considerations: She failed to appear for the rehearsal, in flagrant violation of her contract. Transgression refers most often to a violation of divine or moral law: "The children shall not be punished for the father's transgression" (Daniel Defoe). As it refers to the breaking of a statute, trespass implies willful intrusion on another's rights, possessions, or person: "In the limited and confined sense [trespass] signifies no more than an entry on another man's ground without a lawful authority” (William Blackstone). Infringement is most frequently used specifically to denote encroachment on another’s rights, such as those granted by a copyright: “Necessity is the plea for every infringement of human freedom” (William Pitt the Younger).

breach of promise (brēch ūv prōm’is) n. Failure to fulfill a promise, especially a promise to marry.

bread (brēd) n. 1. A staple food made from flour or meal mixed with other dry and liquid ingredients, usually combined with a leavening agent, and kneaded, shaped into loaves, and baked. 2. a. Food in general, regarded as necessary for sustaining life: “If bread is the first necessity of life, recreation is a close second” (Edward Bellamy). b. Something that nourishes; sustenance: “My bread shall be the anguish of my mind” (Edmund Spenser). 3. a. Means of support; livelihood: earn one’s bread. b. Slang. Money. — v. tr. bread·ed, bread·ing, breads. To coat with bread crumbs, as before cooking: breaded the fish fillets. [Middle English, from Old English brēad; see bhreu- in Appendix. N., sense 3b, possibly from Cockney rhyming slang bread and honey.]

bread and butter (brēd ənd büt’ər) n. 1. Means of support; livelihood. 2. The essential sustaining element or elements; the mainstay: “As ever, politics, vulgarity and sentimentality were the bread and butter of the Academy Awards” (David Ansen).

bread-and-but-ter (brēd’n-büt’ər) adj. 1. a. Influenced by or undertaken out of necessity: a bread-and-butter job. b. Reliable, especially for producing income; basic: Household appliances are the company’s bread-and-butter goods. 2. Expressive of gratitude for hospitality: a bread-and-butter note.

bread·bas·ket (brēd’bäs’kīt) n. 1. A basket for serving bread. 2. A geographic region serving as a principal source of grain supply. 3. Slang. The stomach.

bread·board (brēd’bōrd’, -bōrd’) n. 1. A board on which bread is sliced or dough is kneaded. 2. An experimental model, especially of an electric circuit; a prototype. — v. tr. bread·board·ed, bread·board·ing, bread·boards. To construct an experimental model of (an electric circuit, for example).
—bread/board’ing n.

bread·box (brēd’bōks’) n. A container in which baked goods are stored to maintain their freshness.

bread·fruit (brēd’frōot’) n. 1. A Malaysian evergreen timber tree (Artocarpus altilis) having large, round, yellowish, edible fruits. 2. The fruit of this tree.

bread line (brēd līn) n. A line of people waiting to receive food given by a charitable organization or public agency.

bread mold (brēd mōld) n. Any of various fungi of the genus Rhizopus, that form a dense, cottony growth on bread and other foods.

bread·nut (brĕd'nut') n. 1. A large tree (Brosimum alicastrum) native to Mexico, Central America, and the West Indies, having yellow fruits each with a large, edible seed. 2. The seed of this tree.

bread·root (brĕd'rōōt', -rōōt') n. A perennial herb (Psoralea esculenta) in the pea family, native to prairies and plains in central North America, and having a tuberous, starchy root that was an important food for many Native Americans. Also called prairie potato bread·stuff (brĕd'stūf') n. 1. Bread in any form or shape. 2. Flour, meal, or grain used in the baking of bread.

breadth (brĕdth) n. 1. Abbr. b. The measure or dimension from side to side; width. 2. A piece usually produced in a standard width: a breadth of canvas. 3. a. Wide range or scope: breadth of knowledge. b. Tolerance; broadmindedness: a jurist of great breadth and wisdom. 4. An effect of unified, encompassing vision in an artistic composition. [Middle English breth, from brede, on the model of length, length.]

breadth·ways (brĕdth'wāz') or breadth·wise (-wīz') adv. & adj. In the direction of the breadth.

bread·win·ner (brĕd'wīn'ər) n. One whose earnings are the primary source of support for one's dependents.

break (brāk) v. broke (brōk), bro·ken (brō'kən), break·ing, breaks. — v. tr. 1. To cause to separate into pieces suddenly or violently; smash. 2. To divide into pieces, as by bending or cutting: break crackers for a baby. 3. To snap off or detach: broke a twig from the tree. 4. a. To fracture a bone of: I broke my leg. b. To fracture (a bone): I broke my femur. 5. To crack without separating into pieces. 6. a. To destroy the completeness of (a group of related items): broke the set of books by giving some away. b. To exchange for smaller monetary units: break a dollar. 7. To vary or disrupt the uniformity or continuity of: a plain that was broken by low hills; caught the ball without breaking stride. 8. Electricity. To open: break a circuit. 9. a. To force or make a way through; puncture or penetrate: The blade barely broke the skin. b. To part or pierce the surface of: a dolphin breaking water. 10. To cause to burst. 11. To force one's way out of; escape from: break jail. 12. a. To find an opening or flaw in: They couldn't break my alibi. b. To find the solution or key to; uncover the basic elements and arrangement of: break a code; break a spy ring. 13. To make known, as news: break a story. 14. To surpass or outdo: broke the league's home-run record. 15. To overcome (a force or resistance): break the sound barrier. 16. To put an end to by force or strong opposition, especially to end (a strike) by means other than negotiation. 17. To lessen in force or effect: break a fall. 18. To render useless or inoperative: We accidentally broke the radio. 19. To weaken or destroy, as in spirit or health; overwhelm with adversity: "For a hero loves the world till it breaks him" (William Butler Yeats). 20. To cause the ruin or failure of (an enterprise, for example): Indiscretion broke both marriage and career. 21. To reduce in rank; demote. 22. To cause to be without money or go into bankruptcy. 23. To fail to fulfill; cancel: break an engagement; break one's vacation plans. 24. To fail to conform to; violate: break the speed limit. 25. Law. To invalidate (a will) by judicial action. 26. a. To give up (a habit). b. To cause to give up a habit: They managed to break themselves of smoking. 27. To train to obey; tame: The horse was difficult to break. — v. intr. 1. To become separated into pieces or fragments. 2. To become cracked or split. 3. To become unusable or inoperative: The television broke. 4. To give way; collapse. 5. To burst: The blister has finally broken. 6. a. To become punctured or penetrated. b. To intrude on: They broke in upon a heady conversation. c. To filter in or penetrate: Sunlight broke into the room. 7. To become fractured. 8. To scatter or disperse; part: The clouds broke after the storm. 9. Games. To make the opening shot that scatters the grouped balls in billiards or pool. 10. Sports. To separate from a clinch in boxing. 11. To move away or escape suddenly. 12. To come forth or begin from a state of latency; come into being or emerge: A storm was breaking over Miami. Crocuses broke from the soil. 13. To emerge above the surface of water. 14. To become known or noticed: The big story broke on Friday. 15. To change direction suddenly. 16. Baseball. To curve near or over the plate: The pitch broke away from the batter. 17. To change suddenly from one tone quality or musical register to another: My voice broke to a whisper. 18. Linguistics. To undergo breaking. 19. To change to a gait different from the one set. Used of a horse. 20. To interrupt or cease an activity: We'll break for coffee at ten. 21. To discontinue an association, an agreement, or a relationship: The partners broke over a financial matter. One hates to break with an old friend. 22. To diminish or discontinue abruptly: The fever is breaking. 23. To diminish in or lose physical or spiritual strength; weaken or succumb: Their good cheer broke after repeated setbacks. 24. To decrease sharply in value or quantity: Stock prices broke when the firm suddenly announced layoffs. 25. To come to an end: The cold spell broke yesterday. 26. To collapse or crash into surf or spray: waves that were breaking along the shore. 27. Informal. To take place or happen; proceed: Things have been breaking well for them. 28. To break dance. — n. 1. The act or an occurrence of breaking. 2. The result of breaking, as a crack or separation. 3. A beginning or an opening: the break of day; a break in the clouds. 4. A sudden movement; a dash: The dog made a break toward the open field. 5. An escape: a prison break. 6. An interruption or a disruption in continuity or regularity: television programming without commercial breaks. 7. A pause or an interval, as from work: a coffee break. 8. A sudden or marked change. 9. A violation: a security break. 10. An often sudden piece of luck, especially good luck: finally got the big break in life. 11. Informal. a. An allowance or indulgence; accommodating treatment: The boss gave me a break because I'd been sick. b. A favorable price or reduction: a tax break for charitable contributions. 12. A severing of ties: made a break with the past; a break between the two families.

13. Informal. A faux pas. 14. A sudden decline in prices. 15. A caesura.

16. Printing. a. The space between two paragraphs. b. A series of three dots (...) used to indicate an omission in a text. c. The place where a word is or should be divided at the end of a line. 17. Electricity. Interruption of a flow of current.

18. Geology. A marked change in topography such as a fault or deep valley.

19. Nautical. The point of discontinuity between two levels on the deck of a ship.

20. Music. a. The point at which one register or a tonal quality changes to another. b. The change itself. c. A solo jazz cadenza played during the pause between the regular phrases or choruses of a melody. 21. A change in a horse's gait to one different from that set by the rider. 22. Sports. The swerving of a ball from a straight path of flight, as in baseball or cricket. 23. Sports. The beginning of a race. 24. Sports. The separation after a clinch in boxing. 25. Games. The opening shot that scatters the grouped balls in billiards or pool. 26. Games. A run or unbroken series of successful shots, as in billiards or croquet. 27. Sports & Games. Failure to score a strike or a spare in a given bowling frame. 28. Also brake. A high horse-drawn carriage with four wheels. 29. Break dancing.

—phrasal verbs. break down. 1. To cause to collapse; destroy: break down a partition; broke down our resolve. 2. a. To become or cause to become distressed or upset. b. To have a physical or mental collapse. 3. To give up resistance; give way: broke down and bought a new car; prejudices that break down slowly. 4. To fail to function; cease to be useful, effective, or operable: The elevator broke down. 5. To render or become weak or ineffective: Opposition to the king's rule gradually broke down his authority. 6. a. To divide into or consider in parts; analyze. b. To be divisible; admit of analysis: The population breaks down into three main groups. 7. To decompose or cause to decompose chemically. 8. Electricity. To undergo a breakdown. break in. 9. To train or adapt for a purpose. 10. To loosen or soften with use: break in new shoes. 11. To enter premises forcibly or illegally: a prowler who was trying to break in. 12. a. To interrupt a conversation or discussion. b. To intrude. break into. 13. To interrupt: "No one would have dared to break into his abstraction" (Alan Paton). 14. To begin suddenly: The horse broke into a wild gallop. The child broke into a flood of tears. 15. To enter (a field of activity): broke into broadcast journalism at an early age. break off. 16. To separate or become separated, as by twisting or tearing. 17. To stop suddenly, as in speaking. 18. a. To discontinue (a relationship). b. To cease to be friendly. break out. 19. To become affected with a skin eruption, such as pimples. 20. To develop suddenly and forcefully: Fighting broke out in the prison cells. 21. a. To ready for action or use: Break out the rifles! b. To bring forth for consumption: Let's break out the champagne. 22. To emerge or escape. 23. To be separable or classifiable into categories, as data. 24. To isolate (information) from a large body of data. break through. To make a sudden, quick advance, as through obstruction or opposition. break up. 26. a. To separate into pieces; divide: break up a chocolate bar. b. To interrupt the uniformity or continuity of: An impromptu visit broke up the long afternoon. 27. To scatter; disperse: The crowd broke up after the game. 28. To bring or come to an end: Guards broke up the fight. The marriage broke up. 29. Informal. To burst or cause to burst into laughter. —idioms. break a leg. Used to wish someone, such as an actor, success in a performance. break bread. To eat together. break camp. To pack up equipment and leave a campsite. break cover. To emerge from a protected location or hiding place: The platoon broke cover and headed down the road. break even. To gain an amount equal to that invested, as in a commercial venture. break new ground. To advance beyond previous achievements: a company that broke new ground in the field of computers. break (one's) neck. To make the utmost possible effort. break rank (or break ranks). 8. To fall into disorder, as a formation of soldiers. 9. To fail to conform to a prevailing or expected pattern or order: “Architectural experts have criticized the plaza in the past because it breaks rank with the distinctive façades of neighboring Fifth Avenue blocks, whose buildings are flush with the sidewalk” (Sharon Churcher). break (someone's) heart. To disappoint or dispirit severely. break (someone's) service. Sports. To win a game, as in tennis, served by one's opponent. break the ice. 12. To make a start. 13. To relax a tense or unduly formal atmosphere or social situation. break wind. To expel intestinal gas. [Middle English breken, from Old English brecan. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: break, crack, fracture, burst, split, splinter, shatter, shiver, smash. These verbs are compared as they mean to separate or cause to separate into parts or pieces. Break is the most general and like the other members of the set implies either the sudden application of force or the build-up of internal stress: a window broken by vandals; broke her leg; a delicate chair that will break under a great weight. To crack is to break, often with a sharp snapping sound, without dividing into parts: I cracked the platter when I knocked it against the table. The foundation of the house cracked during the earthquake. The soil cracked from the drought. Fracture applies to a break or crack in a rigid body: fractured her skull in the accident; a vertebra that fractured in the fall. Burst implies a sudden coming apart, especially from internal pressure, and the dispersion of contents: The child burst the balloon with a pin. Her appendix burst. Split refers to a division into sections longitudinally or along the direction of the grain: split the log with an ax; frost that caused the rock to split. Splinter implies splitting into long, thin, sharp pieces: The tree was struck by lightning and splintered. Repeated blows splintered the door. To shatter is to break into many loose scattered pieces: The bottle will shatter if you drop it. An exploding gas main shattered the tiles in the courtyard. Shiver is a term rarely encountered outside literary contexts; like shatter, it indicates sudden force that causes fragmentation: “Every statue was hurled from its niche... every painted window [was] shivered to atoms” (John Lothrop Motley). “The panels shivering in, like potsherds” (Thomas Carlyle). Smash stresses force of blow or impact and suggests complete destruction: My glasses slipped from my hand and smashed on the floor. The boat was smashed on the rocks. See also Synonyms at demote opportunity break·a·ble (brā'kə-bəl) adj. Liable to break or to be broken. See Synonyms at fragile. — n. An article that can be broken easily: We put the breakables away before the toddlers arrived. —break'a·ble-ness n.

break·age (brā'kij) n. 1. The act of breaking. 2. A quantity broken. 3. Loss or damage as a result of breaking. 4. A commercial allowance for loss or damage.

break·a·way (brāk'ə-wā') adj. 1. Designed to break, bend, or fall apart easily upon impact, especially to create an illusion, as with a theater prop, or for safety, as with a highway sign or barrier. 2. Severing or having severed alliance with another entity, policy, or attitude: a group of breakaway political reformers. — n. 1. One that breaks away. 2. The act of breaking away. 3. An object designed to break away.

break·bone fever (brāk'bōn' fē'vər) n. See dengue.

break·bulk (brāk'būlk') adj. Having, being, or related to shipments of goods packed in small, separable units.

break dance (brāk dāns) n. A performance of break dancing.

break danc·ing also break·danc·ing (brāk'dān'sing) n. A style of dancing in which agility, and often spectacular gymnastic skills, are combined with pantomime and performed especially to the rhythms of rap music. —break'-dance' v. —break dancer, break'-danc'er n.

break·down (brāk'doun') n. 1. a. The act or process of failing to function or continue. b. The condition resulting from this: a breakdown in communication. 2. Electricity. The abrupt failure of an insulator or insulating medium to restrict the flow of current. 3. A typically sudden collapse in physical or mental health. 4. An analysis, an outline, or a summary consisting of itemized data or essentials. 5. Disintegration or decomposition into parts or elements. 6. A noisy, energetic American country dance.

break·er¹ (brā'kər) n. 1. One that breaks, as a machine for breaking up or crushing a substance, such as rock, coal, or plant fibers. 2. A circuit breaker. 3. A wave that crests or breaks into foam, especially against a shoreline. 4. One who break dances.

bre·a·ker² (brā'kər) n. Nautical. A small water cask, often used in lifeboats. [Alteration of Spanish barrica. See BARRICADE.]

break·e·ven (brāk'ē'vən) adj. Also break·e·ven. Marked by or indicating a balance of investment and return; having or showing neither profit nor loss. — n. The point, especially the level of sales of a good or service, at which the return on investment is exactly equal to the amount invested. Also called break-even point break·fast (brĕk'fəst) n. The first meal of the day, usually eaten in the morning. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a breakfast nook; the breakfast dishes. — v. break·fast·ed, break·fast·ing, break·fasts. — v. intr. To eat breakfast: We breakfasted on the terrace. — v. tr. To provide breakfast for. [Middle English breakfast : breken, to break; see BREAK + faste, a fast (from Old Norse fasta, to fast); see past- in Appendix.] — break'fast·er n.

break·front (brāk'frünt') n. A piece of furniture, such as a cabinet or a bookcase, in which the frontal plane is interrupted horizontally by a projecting central section. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a breakfront sideboard; a breakfront dresser.

break·in (brāk'in') n. 1. Forcible entry, as into a building or room, for an illegal purpose, especially theft. 2. An initial period of employment or operation during which the performance of a person or thing may be evaluated and adjusted.

break·ing¹ (brā'kīng) n. Linguistics. The change of a simple vowel to a diphthong, often caused by the influence of neighboring consonants. [Translation of German Brechung.]

break·ing² (brā'kīng) n. Break dancing.

breaking and en·ter·ing (brā'kīng ənd ɛn'tər-īng) n. Abbr. B and E Law. The gaining of unauthorized, illegal access to another's premises, as by forcing a lock.

breaking point (brā'kīng point) n. 1. The point at which physical, mental, or emotional strength gives way under stress. 2. The point at which a condition or situation becomes critical.

break·neck (brāk'nĕk') adj. 1. Dangerously fast: a breakneck pace. 2. Likely to cause an accident: a breakneck curve.

break·off (brāk'ôf', -ôf') n. The act or an instance of breaking off; discontinuance.

break·out (brāk'out') n. 1. A forceful emergence from a restrictive condition or situation. 2. A classified summary of statistical data.

break·point (brāk'point') n. 1. Or break point. A point of discontinuity, change, or cessation. 2. Computer Science. A point in a program at which operation may be interrupted for manual intervention.

break·through (brāk'thrōō') n. 1. An act of overcoming or penetrating an obstacle or restriction. 2. A military offensive that penetrates an enemy's lines of defense. 3. A major achievement or success that permits further progress, as in technology.

break·up (brāk'ŭp') n. 1. The act or an instance of breaking up, as a division, dispersal, or disintegration. 2. The discontinuance of a relationship, as a marriage or a friendship. 3. The cracking and shifting of ice in rivers or harbors during the spring. 4. A loss of control or composure.

break-wa-ter (brāk'wô'tər, -wöt'ər) n. A barrier that protects a harbor or shore from the full impact of waves.

bream¹ (brēm, brīm) n. pl. bream or breams. 1. Any of several European freshwater fishes of the genus Abramis, especially A. brama, having a flattened body and silvery scales. 2. A similar fish, especially: a. Any one of various saltwater fishes in the family Sparidae, such as the porgy. b. Any one of various freshwater sunfishes of the genus Lepomis and related genera, such as the bluegill. [Middle English breme, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

bream² (brēm) v. tr. breamed, bream-ing, breams. Nautical. To clean (a wooden ship's hull) by applying heat to soften the pitch and then scraping. [From Middle Dutch brem(e), furze, broom.]

breast (brĕst) n. 1. a. Either of two milk-secreting, glandular organs on the chest of a woman; the human mammary gland. b. A corresponding organ in other mammals. c. A corresponding rudimentary gland in the male. 2. a. The superior ventral surface of the human body, extending from the neck to the abdomen. b. A corresponding part in other animals. 3. The part of a garment that covers the chest. 4. The seat of affection and emotion: "Griefs of mine own lie heavy in my breast" (Shakespeare). 5. A source of nourishment. 6. Something likened to the human breast: the breast of a hill. 7. The face of a mine or tunnel. — v. tr. breast-ed, breast-ing, breasts. 1. To rise over; climb: "He breasted a rise and looked down. He was at the head of a small valley" (Ken Follett). 2. To encounter or advance against resolutely; confront boldly. 3. To push against with or as if with the breast. [Middle English brĕst, from Old English brĕost.]

breast-beat-ing (brĕst'bĕ'tīng) n. A loud, self-conscious demonstration of emotion, especially of remorse. —breast'-beat'ing adj.

breast-bone (brĕst'bŏn') n. See sternum.

Breas-ted (brĕs'tīd), James Henry. 1865-1935. American archaeologist and historian who made important discoveries in Egypt and wrote numerous books, including Dawn of Conscience (1933).

breast-feed (brĕst'fĕd') v. tr. breast-fed (-fĕd'), breast--feed-ing, breast--feeds. To feed (a baby) mother's milk from the breast; suckle.

breast-plate (brĕst'plāt') n. 1. A piece of armor that covers the breast. 2. Judaism. A square cloth set with 12 precious stones representing the 12 tribes of Israel, worn over the breast by ancient high priests.

breast-stroke (brĕst'strŏk') n. Sports. A swimming stroke in which a person lies face down in the water and extends the arms in front of the head, then sweeps them both back laterally under the surface of the water while performing a frog kick. —breast'stroke' v. —breast'strok'er n.

breast-work (brĕst'wûrk') n. A temporary, quickly constructed fortification, usually breast-high. See Synonyms at bulwark.

breath (brĕth) n. 1. The air inhaled and exhaled in respiration. 2. The act or process of breathing; respiration. 3. The capacity to breathe, especially in a natural and unlabored manner. 4. Spirit or vitality; life. 5. A single respiration: a deep breath. 6. Exhaled air, as evidenced by vapor, odor, or heat. 7. A momentary pause or rest. 8. a. A momentary stirring of air. b. A slight gust of fragrant air. 9. A trace or suggestion. 10. A softly spoken sound; a whisper.

11. Linguistics. Exhalation of air without vibration of the vocal cords, as in the articulation of p and s. — idioms. in one breath (or in the same breath). At or almost at the same time. out of breath. Breathing with difficulty, as from exertion; gasping. under (one's) breath. In a muted voice or whisper. [Middle English breth, from Old English bræth. See g^whrĕ- in Appendix.]

breath·a·ble (brĕ'thə-bəl) adj. 1. Suitable or pleasant for breathing: breathable air. 2. Permitting air to pass through: a breathable fabric.

—breath'a·bil'i·ty n.

Breath·a·lyz·er (brĕth'ə-lī'zər) A trademark used for a device that detects and measures alcohol in expired air so as to determine the concentration of alcohol in a person's blood. This trademark, often used attributively, sometimes occurs in print in lowercase: "An arrestee requests to speak with or call an attorney, or anyone else, when requested to take a breathalyzer test" (National Law Journal). "The solution is the breathalyzer" (Legal Times).

breathe (brĕth) v. breathed, breath·ing, breathes. — v. intr. 1. To inhale and exhale air, especially when naturally and freely. 2. To be alive; live. See Synonyms at be. 3. To pause to rest or regain breath: Give me a moment to breathe. 4. To move or blow gently, as air. 5. To allow air to pass through: a natural fabric that breathes. 6. To be exhaled or emanated, as a fragrance. 7. To be manifested or suggested, as an idea or feeling: A sense of calm breathed from the landscape. 8. To reach fullness of flavor and aroma through exposure to air. Used chiefly of wine. 9. To require air in the combustion process. Used of an internal-combustion engine. — v. tr. 1. To inhale and exhale (air, for example) during respiration. 2. To inhale (an aroma, for example): breathe the lush scent of lilacs. 3. To impart as if by breathing; instill: an artist who knows how to breathe life into a portrait. 4. To exhale (something); emit. 5. To utter, especially quietly; whisper: Don't breathe a word of this. 6. To make apparent or manifest; suggest: Their manner breathed self-satisfaction. 7. To allow (a person or animal) to rest or regain breath. 8. Linguistics. To utter with a voiceless exhalation of air. 9. To draw in (air) for the combustion process. Used of an internal-combustion engine. — idioms. breathe down (someone's) neck. 1. To threaten by proximity, especially by pursuing closely. 2. To watch or monitor closely, often annoyingly: The boss was breathing down my neck all morning. breathe easily (or breathe easy) (or breathe freely). To be relaxed or relieved, especially after a period of tension. breathe (one's) last. To die. [Middle English brethen, from breth, breath. See BREATH.] —breath'a-ble adj.

breathed (brĕht) adj. 1. (also brĕthd) Linguistics. Voiceless. 2. Having breath of a specified kind. Often used in combination: sour-breathed.

breath-er (brĕ'thĕr) n. 1. One that breathes, especially in a specified manner: a shallow breather. 2. Informal. A short rest period: took a breather after skiing for two hours. 3. Informal. An activity, such as strenuous exercise, that causes difficult breathing. 4. A small vent allowing the passage of gas or liquid to or from an enclosed area.

breath-ing (brĕ'thĭng) n. 1. a. The act or process of respiration. b. A single breath. 2. The time required to take one's breath. 3. a. Either of two marks used in Greek to indicate aspiration of an initial vowel or diphthong (´) or the absence of such aspiration (˘). b. The presence or absence of aspiration indicated by these marks.

breathing room (brĕ'thĭng rōom) n. Sufficient room to permit ease of breathing or movement: no breathing room on the crowded airplane; bought property in the countryside to get a little breathing room.

breathing space (brĕ'thĭng spās) n. 1. Breathing room. 2. A breathing spell.

breathing spell (brĕ'thĭng spĕl) n. An opportunity to rest or give thought to a situation.

breath-less (brĕth'lis) adj. 1. Breathing with difficulty; gasping: was breathless from running. 2. Marked by the suspension of regular breathing, as from tension or excitement: a breathless audience. 3. Causing or capable of causing the suspension of regular breathing; tense or exciting: a breathless flight. 4. a. Not breathing; without breath. b. Dead. 5. Having no air or breeze; still: a breathless summer day. —breath/less-ly adv. —breath/less-ness n.

breath-tak-ing (brĕth'tā'kĭng) adj. Inspiring awe; exciting.
—breath'tak'ing-ly adv.

breath-y (brĕth'ĕ) adj. breath-i-er, breath-i-est. Marked by or as if by audible or noisy breathing: a breathy voice. —breath/i-ly adv. —breath/i-ness n.

brec-ci-a (brĕch'ĕ-ə, brĕch'ə, brĕsh'-) n. Rock composed of sharp-angled fragments embedded in a fine-grained matrix. [Italian, of Germanic origin. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

brec-ci-ate (brĕch'ĕ-āt', brĕsh'-) v. tr. brec-ci-at-ed, brec-ci-at-ing, brec-ci-ates. To form (rock) into breccia. —brec'ci-a'tion n.

Brecht (brĕkt, brĕkht), Bertolt. 1898-1956. German poet and playwright who developed "epic drama," a style that relies on the audience's reflective detachment rather than the production's atmosphere and action. His works include The Threepenny Opera (1928) and The Caucasian Chalk Circle (1948).

—Brecht/i-an adj.

Breck-in-ridge (brĕk'ĭn-rĭj'), John Cabell. 1821-1875. Vice President of the United States (1857-1861) under James Buchanan. In 1860 Breckinridge ran as the proslavery candidate for the presidency and was defeated by Abraham Lincoln.

bred (brĕd) v. Past tense and past participle of breed.

Bre-da (brā-dä') A city of southern Netherlands south-southeast of Dordrecht. It was founded in the 11th century. Charles II of England lived here before the Restoration in 1660. Population, 118,662.

brede (brĕd) n. Archaic. Ornamental embroidery or braiding. [Variant of BRAID.]

bred-in-the-bone (brĕd'n-thə-bōn') adj. 1. Deeply instilled; firmly established: bred-in-the-bone loyalty. 2. Persistent; habitual: a bred-in-the-bone liberal.

breech (brĕch) n. 1. The lower rear portion of the human trunk; the buttocks. 2. breeches. a. Trousers extending to or just below the knee. b. Informal. Trousers. 3. The part of a firearm behind the barrel. 4. The lower part of a pulley block. [Middle English brech, from Old English brĕc, pl. of brōc, leg covering; akin to Gaulish brāca, hose, trousers.]

breech birth (brĕch būrth) n. See breech delivery.

breech-block (brĕch'blōk') n. The metal part that closes the breech end of the barrel of a breechloading gun and that is removed to insert a cartridge and replaced before firing.

breech-cloth (brĕch'klōth', -klōth') also breech-clout (-klout') n. A cloth worn to cover the loins; a loincloth.

breech delivery (brĕch dĭ-lĭv'ə-rĕ) n. Delivery of a fetus with the buttocks or feet appearing first. Also called breech birth breech-es buoy (brĭch'ĭz bōō'ē, brĕ'chĭz) n. Nautical. An apparatus used for rescues and transfers at sea, consisting of sturdy canvas breeches attached at the waist to a ring buoy that is suspended from a pulley running along a rope from ship to shore or from ship to ship.

breech-ing (brĕ'chĭng, brĭch'ĭng) n. 1. The strap of a harness that passes behind a draft animal's haunches. 2. The short wool or hair on the rump and hind legs of a sheep, goat, or dog. 3. The parts of a gun that make up the breech. 4. A rope formerly used to secure the breech of a cannon to the side of a ship to control the recoil.

breech-load-er (brĕch'lō'dər) n. A gun or other firearm loaded at the breech.

breech-load-ing (brĕch'lō'dĭng) adj. Designed to be loaded at the breech. Used of a gun or other firearm.

breech presentation (brĕch prĕz'ən-tā'shən) n. The position of a fetus during labor in which the buttocks or feet appear first.

breed (brēd) v. bred (brəd), breed·ing, breeds. — v. tr. 1. To produce (offspring); give birth to or hatch. 2. To bring about; engender. 3. a. To cause to reproduce, especially by controlled mating and selection: breed cattle. b. To develop new or improved strains in (organisms), chiefly through controlled mating and selection of offspring for desirable traits. c. To mate with. 4. To rear or train; bring up. 5. To produce (fissionable material) in a breeder reactor. 6. To be the place of origin of. — v. intr. 1. To produce offspring. 2. To originate and thrive: Fads breed in empty heads and full purses. — n. 1. A group of organisms having common ancestors and certain distinguishable characteristics, especially a group within a species developed by artificial selection and maintained by controlled propagation. 2. A kind; a sort: a new breed of politician; a new breed of computer. — idioms. breed a scab on (one's) nose (or breed scabs on (one's) nose). Regional. To stir up trouble for oneself. breed up a storm. New England. To become cloudy. See *Regional note at fair*¹. [Middle English breden, from Old English brēdan. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

breed·er (brē'dər) n. 1. A person who breeds animals or plants. 2. An animal kept to produce offspring. 3. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a heterosexual person. 4. A source or cause: social injustice—a breeder of revolutions. 5. A breeder reactor.

breeder reactor (brē'dər rē-āk'tər) n. A nuclear reactor that produces as well as consumes fissionable material, especially one that produces more fissionable material than it consumes.

breed·ing (brē'dɪŋ) n. 1. One's line of descent; ancestry: a person of noble breeding. 2. Training in the proper forms of social and personal conduct. See Synonyms at culture. 3. Production of offspring or young. 4. The propagation of animals or plants.

breeding ground (brē'dɪŋ ground) n. 1. A place where animals breed. 2. A place or set of circumstances that encourages the development of certain ideas or conditions: the university as a breeding ground for new scientific theories.

Breed's Hill (brēdz hɪl) A hill in Charlestown, a section of Boston, Massachusetts. It was the site of the Battle of Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775.

breeks (brēks) pl.n. Scots. Breeches. [Middle English, pl. of brek, from Old English brēc. See BREECH.]

breeze¹ (brēz) n. 1. A light current of air; a gentle wind. 2. Meteorology. Any of five winds with speeds of from 4 to 31 miles (6 to 50 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale. 3. Informal. Something, such as a task, that is easy to do. — v. intr. brezed, brez·ing, brez·es. 1. To blow lightly. 2. Informal. To progress swiftly and effortlessly: We brezed through the test. 3. To sprint around a racetrack as a means of exercise. Used of a racehorse. — idiom. shoot the breeze. Slang. To engage in idle conversation. [Perhaps from Old Spanish briza, northeast wind.]

SYNONYMS: breeze, cinch, pushover, snap, walkaway, walkover. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something that is easily accomplished”: The exam was a breeze. Chopping onions is a cinch with a food processor. Winning the playoffs was no pushover. The new computer program was a snap to learn. Getting elected to the council was a walkaway. It wasn’t any walkover to alphabetize all those names.

breeze² (brēz) n. The refuse left when coke or charcoal is made. [Probably from French braise, hot coals, from Old French brese, of Germanic origin. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

breeze-way (brēz’wā’) n. A roofed, open-sided passageway connecting two structures, such as a house and a garage.

breez-y (brē’zē) adj. breez-i-er, breez-i-est. 1. Exposed to breezes; windy.
2. Fresh and animated; lively: a breezy prose style. —breez’i-ly adv.

—breez’i-ness n.

breg-ma (brĕg’mə) n. pl. breg-ma-ta (-mə-tə). The junction of the sagittal and coronal sutures at the top of the skull. [Latin, top of the head, from Greek.]
—breg-mat’ic (-măt’ik) adj.

Bre-men (brĕm’ən, brā’mən) A city of northwest Germany on the Weser River southwest of Hamburg. It is a major port and was a leading member of the Hanseatic League in the Middle Ages. Population, 530,520.

Bre-mer-ha-ven (brĕm’ər-hä’vən, -hā’-, brā’mər-hä’fən) A city of northwest Germany at the mouth of the Weser River near the North Sea. It has a deep natural harbor and is an important shipping center. Transatlantic service to the United States was inaugurated here in 1847. Population, 135,095.

Brem-er-ton (brĕm’ər-tən) A city of west-central Washington on an arm of Puget Sound west of Seattle. It was laid out in 1891 after its selection as the site of a U.S. naval shipyard. Population, 38,142.

brems-strah-lung (brĕm’sht rä’lŏng) n. The electromagnetic radiation produced by an accelerated electrically charged subatomic particle, such as an electron, as when it is deflected by another charged particle. [German : Bremse, brake (from Middle Low German premsē, from pramen, to press) + Strahlung, radiation (from Strahl, ray, from Middle High German strāle, from Old High German strāla, stripe, piece); see ster-² in Appendix.]

Bren-an (brĕn’ən), Gerald. 1894-1987. British writer. A long-time resident of Spain, he wrote insightful studies of that country, including The Spanish Labyrinth, published in 1947.

Bren-nan (brĕn’ən), William Joseph, Jr. Born 1906. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1956-1990).

Bren-ner Pass (brĕn'ər päs) An Alpine pass, 1,371 m (4,495 ft) high, connecting Innsbruck, Austria, with Bolzano, Italy. It has been a strategic trade and invasion route since Roman times.

brent (brĕnt) n. Chiefly British. Variant of brant.

Brent (brĕnt), Margaret. 1600-1671?. English-born colonist and feminist. She immigrated to Maryland in 1638 and was the first woman to obtain a land grant there.

Brent-wood (brĕnt'wōd') 1. An urban district of southeast England east-northeast of London. A grammar school in the district dates from the mid-16th century. Population, 72,700. 2. An unincorporated town of southeast New York on central Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 48,800.

bre-sao-la (brĕ-sō'lə, brĭ-zō'-'-) n. Sliced salt-cured, air-dried beef that is dressed with olive oil, lemon juice, and black pepper before serving. [Italian, diminutive of Italian dialectal bresada*, past participle of brasare, to braise, from French braiser. See BRAISE.]

Brescia (brĕsh'ə) A city of northern Italy east of Milan. It was a Gallic town, a Roman stronghold, and a free city from 936 to 1426. Population, 206,460.

Bresh-kov-sky (brĕsh-kôf'skē), Catherine. Known as "Grandmother of the Russian Revolution." 1844-1934. Russian revolutionary and social reformer who was imprisoned for her revolutionary activities before 1917. After the Russian Revolution she settled in Czechoslovakia.

Bres-lau (brĕs'lou) See Wroclaw.

Brest (brĕst) 1. A city of northwest France on an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. Its large landlocked harbor was built in 1631 by Cardinal Richelieu as a military base and arsenal. Population, 156,060. 2. or Formerly Brest-Li-tovsk (-lĭ-tôfsk') A city of southwest Belarus on the Bug River near the Polish border. The Treaty of Brest-Litovsk, ending World War I on the eastern front, was signed here by Russia and Germany on March 3, 1918. Population, 222,000.

Bret. abbr. Breton.

Bre-tagne (brə-tän'yə) See Brittany.

breth-ren (brĕth'rən) n. A plural of brother.

Bret-on (brĕt'n) adj. Abbr. Bret. Of or relating to Brittany or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Brittany. 2. Abbr. Bret. The Celtic language of Brittany. In this sense, also called Armoric [Middle English, from Old French. See BRITON.]

Bre-ton (brĭ-tôn'), André. 1896-1966. French poet and literary theorist. He began to write after World War I, at first linking himself with Dadaism but breaking with that movement to write the first manifesto of surrealism (1924).

Bre-ton-neau (brĭ-tô-nō'), Pierre. 1778-1862. French surgeon who described typhoid and diphtheria and performed the first tracheotomy in 1825.

Breu·er (broi'ər), Marcel Lajos. 1902-1981. Hungarian-born American architect and furniture designer who was associated with the Bauhaus in the 1920's. He is known for his chairs with tubular steel frames.

Breu·ghel (broi'gəl, brōō'-, brœl'-) See Brueghel.

brev. abbr. Brevet.

breve (brĕv, brĕv) n. 1. A symbol (˘) placed over a vowel to show that it has a short sound, as the a in bat. 2. A curved mark used to indicate a short or unstressed syllable of verse. 3. Music. A note equivalent to two whole notes. [Middle English, written communication, from Old French, from Medieval Latin, short syllable, from Latin, neuter of brevis, short. See BRIEF.]

bre·vet (brə-vĕt', brĕv'it) n. Abbr. brev., bvt. A commission promoting a military officer in rank without an increase in pay. — v. tr. bre·vet·ted or bre·vet·ed, bre·vet·ting or bre·vet·ing, bre·vets or bre·vets. To promote by brevet. [Middle English, official letter, from Anglo-Norman, diminutive of bref, letter, from Latin brevis, short. See BRIEF.] — bre·vet'cy (brə-vĕt'sē) n.

bre·vi·ar·y (brē'vĕ-ĕr'ē, brĕv'ĕ-) n. pl. bre·vi·ar·ies. Ecclesiastical. A book containing the hymns, offices, and prayers for the canonical hours. [Middle English brevarie, from Old French breviaire, from Medieval Latin breviarium, from Latin, summary, from brevis, short. See BRIEF.]

bre·vi·ty (brĕv'ĭ-tē) n. 1. The quality or state of being brief in duration. 2. Concise expression; terseness. [Latin brevitās, from brevis, short. See BRIEF.]

brew (brōō) v. brewed, brew·ing, brews. — v. tr. 1. To make (ale or beer) from malt and hops by infusion, boiling, and fermentation. 2. To make (a beverage) by boiling, steeping, or mixing various ingredients: brew tea. 3. To concoct; devise: brew a plot to overthrow the government. — v. intr. 1. To make ale or beer as an occupation. 2. To be imminent; impend: “storms brewing on every frontier” (John Dos Passos). — n. 1. a. A beverage made by brewing. b. A serving of such a beverage. 2. Something produced as if by brewing; a mix: Their politics were a strange brew of idealism and self-interest. [Middle English brewen, from Old English brēowan. See bhreu- in Appendix.] — brew'age n. — brew'er n.

Brew·er (brōō'ər), David Josiah. 1837-1910. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1889-1910).

brew·er's yeast (brōō'ərz yĕst) n. A yeast of the genus Saccharomyces, used as a ferment in brewing and also as a source of B-complex vitamins.

brew·er·y (brōō'ə-rĕ, brōōr'ĕ) n. pl. brew·er·ies. An establishment for the manufacture of malt liquors, such as beer and ale.

brew·is (brōō'ĭs, brōōz) n. New England. Bread soaked in liquid, usually milk, and eaten as a pudding or as a side dish with meat. [Middle English brewes, from Old French broez, pl. of broet diminutive of breu, broth, from Vulgar Latin brodum*, of Germanic origin. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

brew·pub (brōō'püb') n. 1. See microbrewery. 2. A saloon where the owners make their own beer and serve it on the premises.

Brew·ster (brōō'stər), William. 1567-1644. English Pilgrim colonist who sailed to America on the Mayflower (1620) and was the religious leader of Plymouth Colony.

Brey·er (brī'ər), Stephen Gerald. Born 1938. American jurist who was appointed an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1994.

Brezh·nev (brězh'něf, -nyĭf), Leonid Ilyich. 1906-1982. Soviet leader. He served as the chairman of the Presidium (now the Politburo) and secretary of the Communist Party before becoming president of the U.S.S.R. in 1977. In 1968 he enunciated the Brezhnev Doctrine, which asserts that the U.S.S.R. may intervene in any Warsaw Pact country in which the Communist government is threatened. Soviet adherence to this doctrine was evidenced by the invasion of Czechoslovakia (1968) and Afghanistan (1977).

Bri·an Bo·ru (brī'an bə-rōō', bō-rō', brēn), 926-1014. Irish king (1002-1014) who spent most of his life fighting the Danes and the Norse. He was killed after the final defeat of a Danish coalition, which ended Norse power in Ireland.

Bri·and (brē-änd', -änd'), Aristide. 1862-1932. French politician who became prime minister for the first of 11 times in 1909. As foreign minister he was the chief architect of the Locarno Pact (1925), which guaranteed the borders of Belgium, France, and Germany. He also drew up the Kellogg-Briand Pact (1928) and shared the 1926 Nobel Peace Prize.

Bri·ansk (brē-änsk') See Bryansk.

bri·ar¹ also bri·er (brī'ər) n. 1. A Mediterranean shrub or small tree (Erica arborea) whose hard, woody roots are used to make tobacco pipes. 2. A pipe made from the root of this plant or from a similar wood. [French bruyère, heath, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin brūcāria*, from Late Latin brūcus, heather, of Celtic origin. See wer² in Appendix.]

bri·ar² (brī'ər) n. Variant of brier¹.

bri·ard (brē-är', -ärd') n. Any of an ancient French breed of sturdily built, rough-coated dogs. [French, from Brie, a region of northern France.]

bri·ar·root (brī'ər-rōōt', -rōōt') n. The hard woody root of the briar.

bri·ar·wood (brī'ər-wōōd') n. Wood from the root of the briar.

bribe (brīb) n. 1. Something, such as money or a favor, offered or given to a person in a position of trust to influence that person's views or conduct.

2. Something serving to influence or persuade. — v. bribed, brib·ing, bribes. — v. tr. 1. To give, offer, or promise a bribe to. 2. To gain influence over or corrupt by bribery. — v. intr. To give, offer, or promise bribes. [Middle English, from Old French, piece of bread given as alms.] —brib'a·ble adj.

—brib'er n.

brib-er-y (brī' bə-rē) n. pl. brib-er-ies. The act or practice of offering, giving, or taking a bribe.

bric-a-brac (brīk' ə-brāk') n. Small, usually ornamental objects valued for their antiquity, rarity, originality, or sentimental associations. [French bric-à-brac, expressive of confusion.]

Brice (brīs), Fannie. 1891-1951. American entertainer who appeared in a number of films as well as the Ziegfield Follies. She portrayed the character of “Baby Snooks” on the radio from 1936 until her death.

brick (brīk) n. pl. bricks or brick. 1. A molded rectangular block of clay baked by the sun or in a kiln until hard and used as a building and paving material.

2. An object shaped like such a block: a brick of cheese. 3. Informal. A helpful, reliable person. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a brick wall; brick ice cream. — v. tr. bricked, brick-ing, bricks. 1. To construct, line, or pave with bricks. 2. To close or wall with brick: bricked up the windows of the old house. — idiom. drop a brick. Informal. To make a clumsy social error.

[Middle English brike, from Middle Dutch bricke.] — brick'y adj.

brick-bat (brīk' băt') n. 1. A piece, especially of brick, used as a weapon or missile. 2. An unfavorable remark; criticism. [BRICK + BAT¹, piece of brick.]

WORD HISTORY: The earliest sense of brickbat, recorded in a work first published in 1563, was “a piece of brick.” Such pieces of brick have not infrequently been thrown at others in the hope of injuring them; hence, the figurative brickbats (first recorded in 1929) that critics hurl at performances they dislike. The appearance of bat as the second part of this compound is explained by the fact that the word bat, “war club, cudgel,” developed in Middle English the sense “chunk, clod, wad,” and in the 16th century came to be used specifically for a piece of brick that was unbroken on one end.

brick-layer (brīk' lā' ər) n. A person skilled in building with bricks. — brick-lay'ing n.

brick red (brīk rēd) n. Color. A moderate to strong reddish brown. — brick-red' (brīk' rēd') adj.

brick-work (brīk' wûrk') n. 1. The technique or work of constructing with bricks and mortar. 2. A structure made of bricks.

brick-yard (brīk' yărd') n. A place where bricks are made.

bri-co-lage (brē' kō-lăzh', brīk' ō-) n. Something made or put together using whatever materials happen to be available: “Even the decor is a bricolage, a mix of this and that” (Los Angeles Times). [French, from bricole, trifle, from Old French, catapult, from Old Italian bricola, of Germanic origin.]

bri-dal (brīd' l) n. A marriage ceremony; a wedding. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a bride or a marriage ceremony; nuptial. 2. Designed for a bride or a newly married couple: a bridal shop; the hotel's bridal suite. [Middle English bridale, wedding, wedding feast, from Old English brȳdealo : brȳd, bride; see BRIDE + ealu, ale; see ALE.]

Bri-dal-veil Falls also Bri-dal Veil Falls (brīd'1-vāl' fôlz) A waterfall, 189.1 m (620 ft) high, in Yosemite National Park in east-central California.

bridal wreath or bri-dal-wreath (brīd'1-rēth) n. Any of various shrubs of the genus Spiraea, such as S. prunifolia, having arching branches covered with white bloom. Bridal wreath is popular as an ornamental and in flower arrangements.

bride (brīd) n. A woman who is about to be married or has recently been married. [Middle English, from Old English brȳd.]

bride-groom (brīd'grōom', -grōom') n. A man who is about to be married or has recently been married. [Alteration of Middle English bridegome, from Old English brȳdguma : brȳd, bride; see BRIDE + guma, man; see dhghem- in Appendix.]

bride price (brīd prīs) n. A payment in the form of money, property, or other valuable asset that is made by or on behalf of a prospective husband to the bride's family in certain cultures or societies.

brides-maid (brīdz'mād') n. A woman who attends the bride at a wedding.

bridge¹ (brīj) n. 1. A structure spanning and providing passage over a gap or barrier, such as a river or roadway. 2. Something resembling or analogous to this structure in form or function: a land bridge between the continents; a bridge of understanding between two countries. 3. a. The upper bony ridge of the human nose. b. The part of a pair of eyeglasses that rests against this ridge. 4. A fixed or removable replacement for one or several but not all of the natural teeth, usually anchored at each end to a natural tooth. 5. Music. a. A thin, upright piece of wood in some stringed instruments that supports the strings above the soundboard. b. A transitional passage connecting two subjects or movements. 6. Nautical. A crosswise platform or enclosed area above the main deck of a ship from which the ship is controlled. 7. Games. a. A piece of wood used to steady the cue in billiards. Also called *rest*¹ b. The hand used as a support to steady the cue. 8. Electricity. a. Any of various instruments for measuring or comparing the characteristics, such as impedance or inductance, of a conductor. b. An electrical shunt. 9. Chemistry. An intramolecular connection that spans atoms or groups of atoms. — v. tr. bridged, bridg-ing, bridg-es. 1. To build a bridge over. 2. To cross by or as if by a bridge. [Middle English brigge, from Old English brycg. See bhrū- in Appendix.] — bridge/a-ble adj.

bridge² (brīj) n. Games. Any of several card games derived from whist and played with one deck of cards divided equally among usually four people. [From earlier biritch (influenced by BRIDGE¹), from Russian birich, a call.]

bridge-board (brīj'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A notched board at either side of a staircase that supports the treads and risers.

bridge-head (brīj'hěd') n. 1. a. A fortified position from which troops defend the end of a bridge nearest the enemy. b. A forward position seized by advancing troops in enemy territory as a foothold for further advance. 2. The area immediately adjacent to the end of a bridge. [Translation of French tête de pont: tête, head + de, of + pont, bridge.]

bridge loan (brīj lôn) n. A short-term loan intended to provide or extend financing until a more permanent arrangement is made.

Bridge-port (brīj'pôrt', -pôrt') A city of southwest Connecticut on Long Island Sound southwest of New Haven. Settled in 1639, it grew as a fishing community and is today the leading industrial center of the state. Population, 141,686.

Bridg-er (brīj'ər), James. 1804-1881. American frontiersman and fur trader famous for his tall tales.

Bridg-es (brīj'iz), Harry. 1901-1990. American labor leader. He organized the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU) and served as its president for 40 years.

Bridg-es (brīj'iz), Robert Seymour. 1844-1930. British poet and essayist who was appointed poet laureate in 1913. He is best known for his philosophical poem The Testament of Beauty (1929).

Bridge-ton (brīj'tən) 1. A city of eastern Missouri on the Missouri River northwest of St. Louis. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 17,779. 2. A city of southwest New Jersey near the mouth of the Delaware River south of Philadelphia. Settled by Quakers c. 1686, it is now highly industrialized. Population, 18,942.

Bridge-town (brīj'toun') The capital of Barbados, in the West Indies. It was founded by the British in 1628. Population, 7,466.

Bridge-wa-ter (brīj'wô'tər, -wôt'ər) A town of eastern Massachusetts south of Boston. It had an iron industry in colonial times. Population, 21,249.

bridge-work (brīj'wûrk') n. 1. A dental bridge. 2. Dental prosthetics involving a bridge or bridges.

Bridg-man (brīj'mən), Percy Williams. 1882-1961. American physicist. He won a 1946 Nobel Prize for work in the field of high-pressure physics.

brid-le (brīd'l) n. 1. A harness, consisting of a headstall, bit, and reins, fitted about a horse's head and used to restrain or guide the animal. 2. A curb or check: put a bridle on spending. 3. Nautical. A span of chain, wire, or rope that can be secured at both ends to an object and slung from its center point. — v.

brid-dled, brid-ling, brid-dles. — v. tr. 1. To put a bridle on. 2. To control or restrain with or as if with a bridle. See Synonyms at restrain. — v. intr. 1. To lift the head and draw in the chin as an expression of scorn or resentment. 2. To show anger or resentment; take offense: bridling at the criticism. [Middle English bridel, from Old English brīdel.] —bri'dler n.

bridle path (brīd'1 pāth) n. A trail for horseback riding.

Brie (brē) n. A mold-ripened, whole-milk cheese with a whitish rind and a soft, light yellow center. [After Brie, a region of northern France.]

brief (brēf) adj. brief-er, brief-est. 1. Short in time, duration, length, or extent. 2. Succinct; concise: a brief account of the incident. 3. Curt; abrupt. — n. 1. A short, succinct statement. 2. A condensation or an abstract of a larger document or series of documents. 3. Abbr. br. Law. a. A formal outline listing main contentions along with supporting evidence and documentation. b. A document containing all the facts and points of law pertinent to a specific case, filed by an attorney before arguing the case in court. 4. Roman Catholic Church. A papal letter that is not as formal as a bull. 5. A briefing. 6. briefs. Short, tight-fitting underpants. — v. tr. briefed, brief-ing, briefs. 1. To summarize. 2. To give concise preparatory instructions, information, or advice to: briefed the astronauts before the mission. — idiom. in brief. In short. [Middle English brief, from Old French, from Latin brevis. N., Middle English brief, written communication from Old French, from Medieval Latin breve, from Latin, neuter of brevis, short. See mregh-u- in Appendix.] —brief'er n. —brief'ly adv. —brief'-ness n.

brief-case (brēf'kās') n. A portable, often flat case with a handle, used for carrying papers or books. [brief, document + *CASE*².]

brief-ing (brē'fing) n. 1. The act or procedure of giving or receiving concise preparatory instructions, information, or advice. 2. The information conveyed in this manner.

Bri-enz (brē-ěnts'), Lake of. A lake of central Switzerland near Interlaken. It is noted for its scenic beauty.

bri-er¹ also bri-ar (brī'ər) n. Any of several prickly plants, such as certain rosebushes or the greenbrier. [Middle English brer, from Old English brēr.] —bri'er-y adj.

bri-er² (brī'ər) n. Variant of briar¹.

Bri-eux (brē-œf'), Eugène. 1858-1932. French playwright whose work exposed moral and social evils.

brig (brīg) n. 1. Nautical. A two-masted sailing ship, square-rigged on both masts, carrying two or more headsails and a quadrilateral gaff sail or spanker aft of the mizzenmast. 2. A jail or prison on board a U.S. Navy or Coast Guard vessel. 3. A jail or guardhouse, especially on the premises of a U.S. military installation. [Short for BRIGANTINE. Senses 2 and 3, from the use of ships as prisons.]

brig. abbr. Brigade.

bri-gade (brī-gād') n. 1. Abbr. brig. a. A military unit consisting of a variable number of combat battalions. b. A U.S. Army administrative and tactical unit composed of a headquarters unit, at least one unit of infantry or armor or both, and designated support units. A brigade can be commanded by a brigadier general or by a colonel. 2. A group of persons organized for a specific purpose: formed a bucket brigade to carry water to the fire. — v. tr. bri-gad-ed, bri-gad-ing, bri-gades. To form into a brigade. [French, from Old French, company, from Old Italian brigata, from brigare, to fight, from briga, strife, of Celtic origin. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

brig-a-dier (brīg'ə-dîr') n. A brigadier general. [French, from brigade, brigade. See BRIGADE.]

brigadier general (brīg'ə-dîr' jěn'ər-əl) n. pl. brigadier generals. Abbr. B.G., BG, Brig. Gen. 1. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above colonel and below major general. 2. One who holds this rank.

brig-and (brīg'ənd) n. A robber or bandit, especially one of an outlaw band. [Middle English brigaunt, from Old French, from Old Italian brigante, skirmisher, from present participle of brigare, to fight. See BRIGADE.]

—brig'and-age (-ən-dij), brig'and-ism n.

brig-an-tine (brīg'ən-tēn') n. Nautical. A two-masted sailing ship, square-rigged on the foremast and having a fore-and-aft mainsail with square main topsails. [French brigantin, from Old French brigandin, from Old Italian brigantino, skirmishing ship, from brigante, skirmisher. See BRIGAND.]

Brig. Gen. abbr. Brigadier general.

Briggs (brīgz), Henry. 1561-1630. English mathematician who devised the decimal-based system of logarithms and invented the modern method of long division.

Brig-ham City (brīg'əm sīt'ē) A city of northern Utah north of Ogden. It was founded as Box Elder in 1851 and renamed in 1856 to honor Brigham Young. Population, 15,644.

bright (brīt) adj. bright-er, bright-est. 1. a. Emitting or reflecting light readily or in large amounts; shining. b. Comparatively high on the scale of brightness. c. Full of light or illumination: a bright sunny day; a stage bright with spotlights. 2. Characterizing a dyestuff that produces a highly saturated color; brilliant. 3. Glorious; splendid: one of the bright stars of stage and screen; a bright moment in history. 4. Full of promise and hope; auspicious: had a bright future in publishing. 5. Happy; cheerful: bright faces. 6. Animatedly clever; intelligent. 7. High and clear: the bright sound of the trumpet section. [Middle English, from Old English beorht. See bheræg- in Appendix.] —bright, bright'ly adv.

SYNONYMS: bright, brilliant, radiant, lustrous, lambent, luminous, incandescent, effulgent. These adjectives refer to what emits or reflects light. Bright is the most general: bright sunshine; a bright blue; bright teeth. Brilliant implies intense brightness and often suggests sparkling, glittering, or gleaming light: a brilliant color; a brilliant gemstone. Something that is radiant radiates or seems to radiate light: a radiant sunrise; a radiant smile. A lustrous object originates no light but reflects an agreeable sheen: thick, lustrous auburn hair; a necklace of lustrous pearls. Lambent applies to a soft, flickering light: “its tranquil streets, bathed in the lambent green of budding trees” (James C. McKinley). Luminous refers broadly to what shines with light but is said especially of something that glows in the dark: The watch has a luminous dial. Incandescent stresses burning brilliance, as of something white-hot: Flames consist of incandescent gases. Effulgent suggests splendid radiance: “The crocus, the snowdrop, and the effulgent daffodil are considered bright harbingers of spring” (John Gould). See also Synonyms at intelligent Bright (brīt), John. 1811-1889. British politician and noted orator who was a founder of the Anti-Corn Law League (1839).

bright-en (brīt'n) v. tr. intr. bright-ened, bright-en-ing, bright-ens. To make or become bright or brighter. —bright'en-er n.

bright-ness (brīt'nīs) n. 1. The state or quality of being bright. 2. The effect or sensation by means of which an observer is able to distinguish differences in luminance. 3. Color. The dimension of a color that represents its similarity to one of a series of achromatic colors ranging from very dim (dark) to very bright (dazzling).

Brigh-ton (brīt'n) A borough of southeast England on the English Channel south of London. It became a fashionable resort after 1783 when the Prince of Wales (later George IV) began to patronize it. The Royal Pavilion, in a combination of Chinese and Mogul styles, was designed by the noted architect John Nash (1752-1835). Population, 150,200.

Bright's disease (brīts dī-zēz') n. Any of several diseases of the kidney marked by the presence of albumin in the urine. [After Richard Bright (1789-1858), British physician.]

bright-work (brīt'wûrk') n. Metal parts or fixtures made bright by polishing.

brill (brīl) n. pl. brill or brills. An edible flatfish (Bothas rhombus) of European waters. [Origin unknown.]

Brill (brīl), Abraham Arden. 1874-1948. Austrian-born American psychiatrist known for his translations of the works of Jung and Freud.

Bril-lat-Sa-va-rin (brē-yä' sä-vä-rän'), Anthelme. 1755-1826. French politician and gourmet, who is noted for his Physiologie de Goût (1825), a witty dissertation on the art of dining.

bril-liance (brīl'yāns) n. 1. The state or quality of being brilliant, as:
a. Extreme brightness. b. Exceptional clarity and agility of intellect or invention.
2. Splendor; magnificence. 3. Music. Sharpness and clarity of tone.

bril-lian-cy (brīl'yən-sē) n. Brilliance, as of intellect or artistic performance.

bril-liant (brīl'yənt) adj. 1. Full of light; shining. See Synonyms at bright.

2. Color. Relating to or being a hue that has a combination of high lightness and strong saturation. 3. Sharp and clear in tone. 4. Glorious; magnificent: the brilliant court life at Versailles. 5. Superb; wonderful: The soloist gave a brilliant performance. 6. Marked by unusual and impressive intellectual acuteness: a brilliant mind; a brilliant solution to the problem. See Synonyms at intelligent. — n. A precious gem, especially a diamond, finely cut in any of various forms with numerous facets. [French brillant, present participle of briller, to shine, from Italian brillare, perhaps from brillo, beryl, from Latin beryllus. See BERYL.]

—bril'liant-ly adv. —bril'liant-ness n.

bril-lian-tine (brīl'yən-tēn') n. 1. An oily, perfumed hairdressing. 2. A glossy fabric made from cotton and worsted or cotton and mohair. [French brillantine, from brillant, brilliant. See BRILLIANT.]

brim (brīm) n. 1. The rim or uppermost edge of a hollow container or natural basin. 2. A projecting rim or edge: the brim of a hat. 3. A border or an edge. See Synonyms at border. — v. brimmed, brim-ming, brims. — v. intr. 1. To be full to the brim. 2. To overflow: The cup is brimming over with chowder. — v. tr. To fill to the brim. [Middle English brimme.]

brim-ful (brīm'fōōl') adj. Full to overflowing.

brim-stone (brīm'stōn') n. 1. Sulfur. 2. a. Damnation to hell; hellfire.

b. Fiery or passionate rhetoric: "the great American evangelist of Yankee bargain-hunting, converting us... with the brimstone of his secular preaching" (Rushworth M. Kidder). [Middle English brimston, from Old English brynstān. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

Brin-di-si (brīn'dī-zē, brēn'-) A city of southern Italy on the Adriatic Sea southeast of Bari. It was an ancient center of trade with the eastern Mediterranean and an embarkation point for the Crusaders during the Middle Ages. Population, 88,947.

brin-dle (brīn'dl) n. 1. A brindled color. 2. A brindled animal. [Back-formation from BRINDLED.]

brin-dled (brīn'dld) adj. Tawny or grayish with streaks or spots of a darker color. [Alteration of Middle English brended, probably from brende, past participle of brennen, to burn, from Old Norse brenna. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

brine (brīn) n. 1. Water saturated with or containing large amounts of a salt, especially of sodium chloride. 2. a. The water of a sea or an ocean. b. A large body of salt water. 3. Salt water used for preserving and pickling foods. — v. tr. brined, brin-ing, brines. To immerse, preserve, or pickle in salt water. [Middle English, from Old English brīne.] —brin'er n.

Bri-nell hardness (brī-nēl' hārd'nīs) n. The relative hardness of metals and alloys, determined by forcing a steel ball into a test piece under standard conditions and measuring the surface area of the resulting indentation. [After Johan August Brinell (1849-1925), Swedish engineer.]

Brinell hardness number (brī-nĕl' hărd'nīs nŭm'bər) n. Abbr. Bhn. The numerical value assigned to the Brinell hardness of metals and alloys. Also called Brinell number brine shrimp (brīn shrĭmp) n. Any of various small crustaceans of the genus Artemia.

bring (brĭng) v. tr. brought (brôt), bring-ing, brings. 1. To take with oneself to a place: brought enough money with me. 2. To carry as an attribute or contribution: You bring many years of experience to your new post. 3. To lead or force into a specified state, situation, or location: bring the water to a boil; brought the meeting to a close. 4. a. To persuade; induce: The defendant's testimony brought others to confess. b. To get the attention of; attract: Smoke and flames brought the neighbors. 5. To cause to occur as a consequence or concomitant: Floods brought destruction to the valley. A chill can bring on a cold. 6. To cause to become apparent to the mind; recall: This music brings back memories. 7. Law. To advance or set forth (charges) in a court. 8. To sell for: a portrait that brought a million dollars. —phrasal verbs. bring around (or bring round). 1. To cause to adopt an opinion or take a certain course of action. 2. To cause to recover consciousness. bring down. 3. To cause to fall or collapse. 4. To kill. bring forth. 5. To give rise to; produce: plants bringing forth fruit. 6. To give birth to (young). bring forward. 7. To present; produce: bring forward proof. 8. Accounting. To carry (a sum) from one page or column to another. bring in. 9. Law. To give or submit (a verdict) to a court. 10. To produce, yield, or earn (profits or income). bring off. To accomplish: bring off a successful advertising campaign. bring on. To cause to appear: brought on the dessert. bring out. 13. a. To reveal or expose: brought out the facts. b. To introduce (a debutante) to society. 14. To produce or publish: bring out a new book. 15. To nurture and develop (a quality, for example) to best advantage: You bring out the best in me. bring to. 16. To cause to recover consciousness. 17. Nautical. To cause (a ship) to turn into the wind or come to a stop. bring up. 18. To take care of and educate (a child); rear. 19. To introduce into discussion; mention. 20. To vomit. 21. To cause to come to a sudden stop. —idioms. bring down the house. To win overwhelming approval from an audience. bring home. To make perfectly clear: a lecture that brought home several important points. bring to bear. 3. To exert; apply: bring pressure to bear on the student's parents. 4. To put (something) to good use: "All of one's faculties are brought to bear in an effort to become fully incorporated into the landscape" (Barry Lopez). bring to light. To reveal or disclose: brought the real facts to light. bring to mind. To cause to be remembered: Thoughts of fishing brought to mind our youth. bring to (one's) knees. To reduce to a position of subservience or submission. bring to terms. To force (another) to agree.

bring up the rear. To be the last in a line or sequence. [Middle English bringen, from Old English bringan. See bher-¹ in Appendix.] —bring'er n.

USAGE NOTE: In most dialects of American English bring is used to denote motion toward the place of speaking or the place from which the action is regarded: Bring it over here. The prime minister brought a large retinue to Washington with her. Take is used to denote motion away from such a place: Take it over there. The President will take several advisers with him when he goes to Moscow. When the relevant point of focus is not the place of speaking itself, the difference obviously depends on the context. We can say either The labor leaders brought or took their requests to the mayor's office, depending on whether we want to describe things from the point of view of the labor leaders or the mayor. Perhaps for this reason, the distinction between bring and take has been blurred in some areas; a parent may say of a child, for example, She always takes a pile of books home with her from school. This usage may sound curious to those who are accustomed to observe the distinction more strictly, but it bears no particular stigma of incorrectness or illiteracy. • The form brung is common in colloquial use in many areas, even among educated speakers, but it is not acceptable for use in formal writing.

bring-down (brɪŋg'daʊn') n. Something disappointing; a letdown.

brink (brɪŋk) n. 1. a. The upper edge of a steep or vertical slope: the brink of a cliff. b. The margin of land bordering a body of water. 2. The point at which something is likely to begin; the verge: "Time and again the monarchs and statesmen of Europe approached the brink of conflict" (W. Bruce Lincoln). See Synonyms at border. [Middle English, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

brink-man-ship (brɪŋk'mən-ʃɪp') also brinks-man-ship (brɪŋks'-) n. The practice, especially in international politics, of seeking advantage by creating the impression that one is willing and able to push a highly dangerous situation to the limit rather than concede.

Brin-ton (brɪn'tən), Daniel Garrison. 1837-1899. American anthropologist who was the first to attempt a systematic classification of Native American languages.

brin-y (brɪ'nē) adj. brin-i-er, brin-i-est. Of, relating to, or resembling brine; salty. —brin'i-ness n.

bri-o (brē'ō) n. Vigor; vivacity. [Italian, from Spanish brio, or Provençal briu both of Celtic origin. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

bri-oché (brē-ôsh', -ôsh') n. A soft, light-textured bread made from eggs, butter, flour, and yeast and formed into a roll or a bun. [French, from Old French, from broyer, brier, to knead, of Germanic origin. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

bri-o-lette (brē'ə-lět') n. A pear-shaped or oval gem, especially a diamond, cut in long triangular facets. [French, perhaps alteration (influenced by brillant, brilliant), of brignolette, diminutive of brignole, dried plum, from Brignoles, a town of southeast France.]

briquette also briquet (brī-kět') n. A block of compressed coal dust, charcoal, or sawdust and wood chips, used for fuel and kindling. [French, diminutive of brique, brick, from Middle Dutch bricke.]

brisance (brī-zäns', -zäns') n. The shattering effect of the sudden release of energy in an explosion. [French, from brisant, present participle of briser, to break, from Old French brisier, from Vulgar Latin brisiāre*, perhaps of Celtic origin.] — brisant' (-zänt', -zänt') adj.

Brisbane (brīz'bän, -bän') A city of eastern Australia on the Brisbane River, about 346 km (215 mi) long, near its mouth on Moreton Bay, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. The area was settled in 1824 as a penal colony. Population, 734,750.

Brisbane (brīz'bän, -bän), Albert. 1809-1890. American social reformer and proponent of small, self-sustaining communities as the ideal social organization. His experimental community in Red Bank, New Jersey, lasted for 12 years (1843-1855).

Brisbane (brīz'bän, -bän), Arthur. 1864-1936. American newspaper editor who practiced and encouraged techniques of yellow journalism in order to increase the circulation of his newspapers.

brisk (brīsk) adj. brisk-er, brisk-est. 1. Marked by speed, liveliness, and vigor; energetic: had a brisk walk in the park. See Synonyms at nimble. 2. Keen or sharp in speech or manner: a brisk greeting. 3. Stimulating and invigorating: a brisk wind. 4. Pleasantly zestful: a brisk tea. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.] — brisk'ly adv. — brisk'ness n.

brisket (brīs'kīt) n. 1. The chest of an animal. 2. The ribs and meat taken from the chest of an animal. [Middle English brusket, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

briskling (brīz'ling, brīs'-) n. See sprat (n., sense 1). [Norwegian, alteration (influenced by Norwegian brisa, to flash), of Low German bretling, from bret, broad.]

bristle (brīs'əl) n. A stiff hair. — v. bristled, bris-ting, bris-tles. — v. intr. 1. To stand stiffly on end like bristles: The hair on the dog's neck bristled. 2. To raise the bristles: The cat bristled at the sight of the large dog. 3. To react in an angry or offended manner: The author bristled at the suggestion of plagiarism. 4. To be covered or thick with or as if with bristles: The path bristled with thorns. See Synonyms at teem¹. — v. tr. 1. To cause to stand erect like bristles; stiffen. 2. To furnish or supply with bristles. 3. To ruffle; disturb. [Middle English bristel, probably from Old English byrstel*, from byrst, bristle.]

bris-tle-cone pine (brīs'əl-kōn' pīn) n. A small slow-growing pine (Pinus aristata), native to the western United States and having needles in fascicles of five. It is among the oldest living trees.

bris-tle-tail (brīs'əl-tāl') n. Any of various wingless insects of the order Thysanura, such as the silverfish, having bristlelike posterior appendages.

bris-tly (brīs'lē) adj. bris-tli-er, bris-tli-est. 1. a. Consisting of or similar to bristles. b. Thick with bristles. 2. Tending to react with agitation or anger; belligerent: some bristly exchanges between the White House and the press.

Bris-tol (brīs'təl) 1. A city of southwest England west of London. It has been an important trading center since the 12th century. Population, 400,300. 2. A city of central Connecticut north of Waterbury. Its clockmaking industry dates from 1790. Population, 60,640. 3. A town of eastern Rhode Island on Narragansett Bay southeast of Providence. In the 18th and 19th centuries its port was a base for slave trading, privateering, whaling, and shipbuilding. Population, 21,625.

4. Two cities on the Tennessee-Virginia line east-northeast of Kingsport, Tennessee. The communities, though politically independent, are an economic unit and share a main thoroughfare along the state boundary. Population, 23,421 (Tennessee) and 18,426 (Virginia).

Bristol Bay (brīs'təl bā) An arm of the Bering Sea in southwest Alaska between the mainland and the Alaska Peninsula. It is a rich salmon-fishing area.

Bristol board (brīs'təl bōrd) n. A smooth, heavy pasteboard of fine quality. [After Bristol, England.]

Bristol Channel (brīs'təl chān'əl) An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean stretching west from the Severn River and separating Wales from southwest England. It is a major shipping route.

brit also britt (brīt) n. 1. The young of herring and similar fish. 2. Minute marine organisms, such as crustaceans of the genus Calanus, that are a major source of food for right whales. [Perhaps from Cornish brȳthel, mackerel (from Old Cornish breithil, from breith*, speckled), or from Welsh brithyll, trout from brith, speckled.]

Brit (brīt) n. Informal. A British person: "Americans approaching this new work of his are confronting not a hidebound Brit but a full-fledged citizen of Anglophonia" (Anthony Burgess).

Brit. abbr. Britain; British.

Brit-ain¹ (brīt'n) The island of Great Britain during pre-Roman, Roman, and early Anglo-Saxon times before the reign of Alfred the Great (871-899). The name is derived from Brittania, which the Romans used for the portion of the island that they occupied.

Brit-ain² (brīt'n) Abbr. Brit., Br. See United Kingdom.

Bri-tan-nia (brī-tăn'yə, -tăn'ē-ə) n. 1. A female personification of Great Britain or the British Empire. 2. Also britannia. Britannia metal. [Latin, Britain, from Brittannī, the Britons. See BRITON.]

bri-tan-nia metal (brī-tăn'yə mēt'l, -tăn'ē-ə) n. A white alloy of tin with copper, antimony, and sometimes bismuth and zinc that resembles pewter and is used in utensils and tableware.

Bri-tan-nic (brī-tăn'ik) adj. British.

britch-es (brīch'iz) pl.n. Breeches. —idiom. too big for (one's) britches. Overconfident; cocky. [Alteration of breeches, pl. of BREECH.]

Brit-i-cism (brīt'ī-sīz'əm) also Brit-ish-ism (-shīz'əm) n. A word, a phrase, or an idiom characteristic of or peculiar to English as it is spoken in Great Britain. [From BRITI(SH), on the model of words such as GALLICISM.]

Brit-ish (brīt'ish) adj. Abbr. Brit., Br. 1. a. Of or relating to Great Britain or its people, language, or culture. b. Of or relating to the United Kingdom or the Commonwealth of Nations. 2. Of or relating to the ancient Britons. — n. 1. The people of Great Britain. 2. Abbr. Brit., Br. British English. 3. The Celtic language of the ancient Britons. [Middle English Brittish, from Old English Bryttisc, relating to the ancient Britons, from Bryttas, Britons, of Celtic origin.]

British A-mer-i-ca (brīt'ish ə-mēr'ī-kə) See British North America.

British Ant-arc-tic Territory (brīt'ish ānt-ärk'tik tēr'ī-tô'r'ē, -är'tik) A British territory of the extreme Southern Hemisphere, including the South Orkney and South Shetland island groups in the southern Atlantic Ocean and Graham Land on the Antarctic Peninsula.

British an-ti-lew-is-ite (brīt'ish ān'tē-lōō'ī-sīt', ān'tī-) n. Abbr. BAL See dimercaprol.

British Cam-e-roons (brīt'ish kām'ə-rōonz') A former British trust territory of western Africa, divided in 1961 between Nigeria and Cameroon.

British Co-lum-bi-a (brīt'ish kə-lûm'bē-ə) Abbr. BC, B.C. A province of western Canada bordering on the Pacific Ocean. It joined the confederation in 1871. The coastal area was first explored by Capt. James Cook in 1778. Victoria Island was a separate colony from 1849 until 1866, when it was combined with the mainland territory. Victoria is the capital and Vancouver the largest city. Population, 2,744,467.

British Com-mon-wealth (brīt'ish kôm'an-wēlth') See Commonwealth of Nations.

British East Af-ri-ca (brīt'ish ēst āf'rī-kə) The former British territories of eastern Africa, including Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika, and Zanzibar.

British Empire (brīt'ish ěm'pīr') The geographic and political units formerly under British control, including dominions, colonies, dependencies, trust territories, and protectorates. At the height of its power in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, it encompassed territories on all continents, comprising about one quarter of the world's land area and population.

British English (brɪt'ɪʃ ɪŋ'ɡlɪʃ) n. The English language used in England as distinguished from that used elsewhere.

Brit-ish-er (brɪt'ɪ-shər) n. Informal. A native or inhabitant of Great Britain.

British Gui-a-na (brɪt'ɪʃ ɡē-ən'ə, -ä'nə) See Guyana.

British Hon-du-ras (brɪt'ɪʃ hɒn-dōr'əs, -dyōr'-) See Belize (sense 1).

British In-di-a (brɪt'ɪʃ ɪn'dē-ə) The part of the Indian subcontinent under direct British administration until 1947.

British In-dian Ocean Territory (brɪt'ɪʃhɪn'dē-ən ɔ'shən tēr'ɪ-tôr'ē) A British colony comprising small islands in the western Indian Ocean. It was formed in 1965 by agreement with Mauritius and Seychelles.

British Isles (brɪt'ɪʃ ɪlz) A group of islands off the northwest coast of Europe comprising Great Britain, Ireland, and adjacent smaller islands.

Brit-ish-ism (brɪt'ɪ-shɪz'əm) n. Variant of Briticism.

British North A-mer-i-ca (brɪt'ɪʃ nɔrth ə-mēr'ɪ-kə) also British America The former British possessions in North America north of the United States. The term was once used to designate Canada.

British Sol-o-mon Islands (brɪt'ɪʃ sɒl'ə-mən ɪ'ləndz) A former British protectorate in the Solomon and Santa Cruz islands of the southwest Pacific Ocean.

British So-ma-li-land (brɪt'ɪʃ sō-mä'lē-länd', sə-) A former British protectorate of eastern Africa on the Gulf of Aden. It has been part of Somaliland since 1960.

British thermal unit (brɪt'ɪʃ θûr'məl yōō'nɪt) n. Abbr. Btu 1. The quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 60° to 61°F at a constant pressure of one atmosphere. 2. The quantity of heat equal to 180 of the heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 32° to 212°F at a constant pressure of one atmosphere.

British To-go-land (brɪt'ɪʃ tō'gō-länd') A former British protectorate of western Africa. It became part of Ghana in 1957.

British Vir-gin Islands (brɪt'ɪʃ vûr'jɪn ɪ'ləndz) A British colony in the eastern Caribbean east of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Road Town, on Tortola Island, is the capital. Population, 12,034.

British West Af-ri-ca (brɪt'ɪʃ wěst äf'rɪ-kə) The former British territories of western Africa, including Nigeria, Gambia, Sierra Leone, Gold Coast, Togoland, and Cameroons.

British West In-dies (brɪt'ɪʃ wěst ɪn'dēz) Abbr. B.W.I. The islands of the West Indies that were formerly under British control, including Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago, and the Bahamas.

Brit-on (brīt'ŋ) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Great Britain. 2. One of a Celtic people inhabiting ancient Britain at the time of the Roman invasion. [Middle English Britoun, Celt, Briton, from Anglo-Norman Britun, from Latin Brittonēs, Britons, of Celtic origin.]

britt (brīt) n. Variant of brit.

Brit-ta-ny (brīt'ŋ-ē) also Bre-tagne (brə-tän'ʧə) A historical region and former province of northwest France on a peninsula between the English Channel and the Bay of Biscay. It was settled c. 500 by Britons driven out of their homeland by the Anglo-Saxons. The region was formally incorporated into France in 1532.

Brittany spaniel (brīt'ŋ-ē spän'yəl) n. A large pointing spaniel of a breed originating in France.

Brit-ten (brīt'ŋ), (Edward) Benjamin. 1913-1976. British composer known for his song cycles, such as Les Illuminations (1939), and operas, including Peter Grimes (1945) and Death in Venice (1973).

brit-tle (brīt'l) adj. brit-tler, brit-tlest. 1. a. Likely to break, snap, or crack, as when subjected to pressure: brittle bones. b. Easily disrupted: a brittle relationship between husband and wife. See Synonyms at fragile. 2. a. Difficult to deal with; snappish: a brittle disposition. b. Lacking warmth of feeling; cold: The duchess, though well-known as a society hostess, conveyed an unmistakably brittle air. 3. Brilliantly sharp, as in percussive sound. 4. a. Perishable. b. Fleeting; transitory. — n. A confection of caramelized sugar to which nuts are added: walnut brittle. [Middle English britel, probably from Old English brytel*, from bryttian, to shatter.] —brit'tle-ly (brīt'l-ē) adv. —brit'tle-ness n.

brit-tle-bush (brīt'l-bōōsh') n. A shrub (Encelia farinosa) in the composite family, native to Mexico and the southwest United States and having grayish foliage and showy flower heads with yellow rays.

brittle star (brīt'l stār) n. Any of various marine organisms of the class Ophiuroidea, related to and resembling the starfish but having long, slender arms. Also called ophiuroid

Brit-ton-ic (brī-tŏn'ik) also Bry-thon-ic (-thŏn'-) n. The branch of the Celtic languages that includes Welsh, Breton, and Cornish. [Ultimately from Latin Brittonēs, Britons. See BRITON.]

Brive-la-Gail-larde (brēv-lä-gä-yäd') also Brive (brēv) A city of southwest-central France south-southeast of Limoges. It grew around a medieval church dedicated to Saint Martin. Population, 51,511.

Brix scale (brīks skāl) n. A hydrometer scale for measuring the sugar content of a solution at a given temperature. [After Adolf F. Brix (1798-1870), German scientist.]

Br-no (bûr'nō) A city of southeast Czech Republic southeast of Prague. Founded in the tenth century, it became a free imperial city in 1243. Population, 383,443.

bro. abbr. Brother.

broach¹ (brōch) v. tr. broached, broach-ing, broach-es. 1. a. To bring up (a subject) for discussion or debate. b. To announce: We broached our plans for the new year. 2. To pierce in order to draw off liquid: broach a keg of beer. 3. To draw off (a liquid) by piercing a hole in a cask or other container. 4. To shape or enlarge (a hole) with a tapered, serrated tool. — n. 1. a. A tapered, serrated tool used to shape or enlarge a hole. b. The hole made by such a tool. 2. A spit for roasting meat. 3. A mason's narrow chisel. 4. A gimlet for tapping or broaching casks. 5. Variant of brooch. [Middle English brochen, to pierce, probably from broche, pointed weapon or implement, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin brocca*, from Latin broccus, projecting.] —broach'er n.

SYNONYMS: broach, introduce, moot, raise. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to bring forward a point, topic, or question for consideration or discussion”: didn't know how to broach the subject tactfully; introduce a tax bill before the legislature; an idea that was approved when it was first mooted before the committee; raised the problem of dropouts with the faculty.

broach² (brōch) v. intr. tr. broached, broach-ing, broach-es. Nautical. To veer or cause to veer broadside to the wind and waves: tried to keep the boat from broaching to. [Probably from BROACH¹.]

broad (brôd) adj. broad-er, broad-est. 1. Wide in extent from side to side: a broad river; broad shoulders. 2. Large in expanse; spacious: a broad lawn. 3. Having a certain width from side to side: A sidewalk three feet broad. 4. Full; open: broad daylight. 5. Covering a wide scope; general: a broad rule. 6. Liberal; tolerant: had broad views regarding social services. See Synonyms at broad-minded. 7. Relating to or covering the main facts or the essential points. 8. Plain and clear; obvious: gave us a broad hint to leave. 9. Obsolete. Outspoken. 10. Vulgar; ribald: a broad joke. 11. Heavily regional: a broad Southern accent. 12. Linguistics. Pronounced with the tongue placed low and flat and with the oral cavity wide open, like the a in bath when pronounced like the a in father. Used of vowels. — n. 1. A wide, flat part, as of one's hand. 2. Slang. A woman or girl: “I use ‘broad’ as a moniker of respect for a woman who [knows] how to throw a mean right” (James Wolcott). — adv. Fully; completely. [Middle English brod, from Old English brād.] —broad'ly adv. —broad'ness n.

broad arrow (brôd ār'ō) n. 1. An arrow with a wide barbed head. 2. Chiefly British. A wide arrowhead mark identifying government property.

broad-ax also broad-axe (brôd'äks') n. An ax with a wide, flat head and a short handle; a battle-ax.

broad-band (brôd'bänd') adj. Of, relating to, or having a wide band of electromagnetic frequencies: broadband communications. —broad'band' n.

broad bean also broad-bean (brôd'běn') n. 1. An annual Old World plant (Vicia faba) in the pea family, having pinnately compound leaves, white flowers with lateral purplish blotches, and long, thick pods. 2. The edible seed or green pod of this plant. It is the bean of antiquity. Also called fava bean, horse bean.

broad-brush (brôd'brüş') adj. Sweepingly general in scope or thrust: an unfair, broad-brush indictment of all public officials.

broad-cast (brôd'kăst') v. broad-cast or broad-cast-ed, broad-cast-ing, broad-casts. — v. tr. 1. To transmit (a radio or television program) for public or general use. 2. To send out or communicate, especially by radio or television: The agency broadcast an urgent appeal for medical supplies. 3. To make known over a wide area: broadcast rumors. See Synonyms at announce. 4. To sow (seed) over a wide area, especially by hand. — v. intr. 1. a. To transmit a radio or television program for public or general use. b. To be on the air: The station begins broadcasting at 6 A.M. 2. To participate in a radio or television program. 3. To send a transmission or signal; transmit. — n. 1. Transmission of a radio or television program or signal for public use. 2. a. A radio or television program: watched the morning news broadcast. b. The duration of such a program. 3. The act of scattering seed. — adj. 1. a. Communicated by means of television or radio. b. Of or relating to television or radio communications: broadcast journalism; the print and broadcast media. 2. Widely known. 3. Scattered over a wide area. — adv. In a scattered manner. — broad'cast'er n.

Broad-Church (brôd'chûrch') adj. Of or relating to members of the Anglican Communion in the late 19th century who favored liberalization of ritual and doctrine.

broad-cloth (brôd'klôth', -klôth') n. 1. A densely textured woolen cloth with a plain or twill weave and a lustrous finish. 2. A closely woven silk, cotton, or synthetic fabric with a narrow crosswise rib. [Middle English brode clothe, cloth woven in strips of double width : brode, broad; see BROAD + clothe, cloth; see CLOTH.]

broad-en (brôd'n) v. tr. intr. broad-ened, broad-en-ing, broad-ens. To make or become broad or broader. — broad'en-er n.

broad gauge (brôd gāj) n. 1. A distance between the rails of a railroad track that is greater than the standard width of 562 inches (143.5 centimeters). 2. A locomotive, car, or railway line of this gauge. broad-gauge (brôd'gāj') adj. 1. Having a broad gauge. Used of a railroad track. 2. Informal. Having a wide scope: broad-gauge criticism.

broad jump (brôd jŭmp) n. Sports. See long jump.

broad-leaf (brôd'lēf') adj. Broad-leaved.

broad-leaved (brôd'lēvd') also broad-leafed (-lēft') adj. Having broad or relatively broad leaves rather than needlelike or scalelike leaves.

broad·loom (brôd'loo'm') adj. Woven on a wide loom: a broadloom carpet.

—broad'loom' n.

broad-mind·ed (brôd'mîn'dîd) adj. Having or characterized by tolerant or liberal views. —broad'-mind/ed-ly adv. —broad'-mind/ed-ness n.

SYNONYMS: broad-minded, broad, liberal, open-minded, tolerant. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having or showing an inclination to respect views and beliefs that differ from one’s own”: a broad-minded but evenhanded judge; showed generous and broad sympathies; a liberal cleric; open-minded impartiality; a tolerant attitude.

ANTONYM: narrow-minded

Broad River (brôd rîv'ər) A river rising on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge in western North Carolina and flowing about 241 km (150 mi) southeast then south to Columbia, South Carolina, where it joins the Saluda River to form the Congaree.

Broads (brôdz) A low-lying region of eastern England with wide, shallow lakes interconnected by rivers and small streams. The Broads is a wildlife sanctuary and recreational center.

broad·sheet (brôd'shēt') n. See broadside (n., sense 4).

broad·side (brôd'sîd') n. 1. The side of a ship above the water line. 2. a. All the guns on one side of a warship. b. The simultaneous discharge of these guns. 3. A forceful verbal attack, as in a speech or editorial. 4. a. A large sheet of paper usually printed on one side. b. Something, such as an advertisement or public notice, that is printed on a broadside. Also called broadsheet 5. A broad, unbroken surface. — adv. With the side turned to a given object: The wave caught the canoe broadside and sank it. — v. tr. broad·sid·ed, broad·sid·ing, broad·sides. To strike or collide with full on the side: were killed when an intoxicated driver broadsided their car.

broad·spec·trum (brôd'spĕk'trəm) adj. Widely applicable or effective: a broad-spectrum antibiotic.

broad·sword (brôd'sôrd', -sôrd') n. A sword with a wide, usually two-edged blade that is designed for slashing rather than thrusting.

broad·tail (brôd'tāl') n. 1. See karakul. 2. The black pelt of a prematurely born karakul sheep, having a flat surface with wavy markings.

Broad·way (brôd'wā') 1. A thoroughfare of New York, the longest street in the world. It begins at the southern tip of Manhattan and extends about 241 km (150 mi) north to Albany. 2. The principal theater and amusement district of New York City, on the West Side of midtown Manhattan centered on Broadway.

broad-winged hawk (brôd'wîngd' hôk) n. A crow-sized forest hawk (Buteo platypterus) of eastern North America.

Brob-ding-nag-i-an (bröb'dĩng-näg'ē-ən) adj. Immense; enormous. [After Brobdingnag, a country in Gulliver's Travels by Jonathan Swift, where everything was enormous.]

bro-cade (brō-kād') n. A heavy fabric interwoven with a rich, raised design. [Spanish, or Portuguese brocado from Italian brocato, from brocco, twisted thread, from Vulgar Latin brocca*, spike, from Latin broccus, projecting, of Celtic origin.] —bro-cade' v. tr.

broc-a-tel also broc-a-telle (brök'ə-těł') n. A heavy fabric with highly raised designs. [French brocatelle, from Italian broccatello, diminutive of brocato, brocade. See BROCADE.]

broc-co-li (brök'ə-lē) n. 1. A vegetable (Brassica oleracea var. italica) in the mustard family, closely related to the cauliflower and having dense clusters of numerous green flower buds. 2. The flower clusters of this plant, eaten as a vegetable before the flower buds open. [Italian, pl. of broccolo, flowering sprout of a turnip diminutive of brocco, shoot, sprout, from Vulgar Latin brocca*, spike. See BROCADE.]

broccoli raab or broccoli rabe (brök'ə-lē rāb) n. A vegetable plant (Brassica rapa) related to the turnip and grown for its pungent leafy shoots. [Italian broccoli di rapa: broccoli, pl. diminutive of brocco, sprout, shoot; see BROCCOLI + di, of (from Latin dē); see DE- + rapa, turnip; see RAPE².]

bro-chette (brō-shět') n. 1. A small skewer or spit used to broil or roast meat, fish, or vegetables. 2. Food broiled or roasted on a small skewer or spit. [French, from Old French, pl. diminutive of broche, spit. See BROACH¹.]

bro-chure (brō-shöör') n. A small booklet or pamphlet, often containing promotional material or product information. [French, from brocher, to stitch, from broche, knitting needle, from Old French, spit, needle. See BROACH¹.]

brock (brök) n. Chiefly British. A badger. [Middle English brok, from Old English broc, of Celtic origin.]

Brock-en (brök'ən) A granite peak, 1,142.8 m (3,747 ft) high, of the Harz Mountains in central Germany. It is the legendary site of the witches' Sabbath on Walpurgis Night.

brock-et (brök'it) n. 1. A two-year-old red deer with its first horns. 2. Any of several small South American deer of the genus Mazama, having short, unbranched horns. [Middle English broket, from Old French brocard, from broque, animal's horn, dialectal variant of broche, spit. See BROACH¹.]

Brock-ton (brök'tən) A city of eastern Massachusetts south of Boston. It was settled in 1700. Population, 92,788.

Brock-ville (brök'vil') A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River south of Ottawa. It is a summer resort. Population, 19,896.

Brod-sky, Joseph. 1940-1996. Russian poet and essayist who was exiled from the Soviet Union in 1972. He won the 1987 Nobel Prize for literature.

bro-gan (brō'gən) n. A heavy, ankle-high work shoe. [Irish Gaelic brōgan, diminutive of brōg, brogue. See BROGUE¹.]

Bro-gan (brō'gən), Sir Denis William. 1900-1974. British political scientist and historian known for his books on America as well as other general works, such as The English People (1943) and The French Nation (1957).

Bro-glie (brô-glē'), Louis Victor de. 1892-1987. French physicist who demonstrated (1927) that particles exhibit wavelike properties, thus establishing the field of wave mechanics. He won a 1929 Nobel Prize.

brogue¹ (brōg) n. 1. A heavy shoe of untanned leather, formerly worn in Scotland and Ireland. 2. A strong oxford shoe, usually with ornamental perforations and wing tips. [Irish, and Scottish Gaelic brōg from Old Irish brōc, shoe, possibly from Old Norse brōk, legging, or from Old English brōc, sing. of brēc, trousers; akin to Gaulish brāca, hose, trousers.]

brogue² (brōg) n. A strong dialectal accent, especially a strong Irish accent. [Probably from the brogues worn by peasants.]

broi-der (broi'dər) v. tr. broi-dered, broi-der-ing, broi-ders. To ornament with needlework; embroider. [Alteration (influenced by Middle English broiden, braided), of Middle English brouderen, from Old French brosder, brouder. See EMBROIDER.] —broi'der-y n.

broil¹ (broil) v. broiled, broil-ing, broils. — v. tr. 1. To cook by direct radiant heat, as over a grill or under an electric element. 2. To expose to great heat. — v. intr. To be exposed to great heat. — n. 1. The act of broiling or the condition of being broiled. 2. Food, especially meat, that is broiled. [Middle English broilen, from Old French brusler, bruler, perhaps from usler, to burn (with br- from bruir, to burn), from Latin ustulāre, to scorch, from ūrere, to burn.]

broil² (broil) n. A rowdy argument; a brawl. See Synonyms at brawl. — v. intr. broiled, broil-ing, broils. To engage in a rowdy argument. [From obsolete broil, to brawl, from Middle English broilen, from Anglo-Norman broiller, mix up, confuse, from breu, broth, brew, from Vulgar Latin brodum*, of Germanic origin. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

broil-er (broi'lər) n. 1. One that broils, especially a small oven or the part of a stove used for broiling food. 2. A tender young chicken suitable for broiling.

broke (brōk) v. 1. Past tense of break. 2. Non-Standard. A past participle of break. — adj. Informal. 1. Bankrupt. 2. Lacking funds: "Following the election, the Democrats were demoralized, discredited, and broke" (Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr.).

bro-ken (brō'kən) v. Past participle of break. — adj. 1. a. Forcibly separated into two or more pieces; fractured: a broken arm; broken glass. b. Sundered by divorce, separation, or desertion of a parent or parents: children from broken homes; a broken marriage. 2. Having been violated: a broken promise.

3. a. Incomplete: a broken set of books. b. Being in a state of disarray; disordered: troops fleeing in broken ranks. 4. a. Intermittently stopping and starting; discontinuous: a broken cable transmission. b. Varying abruptly, as in pitch: broken sobs. c. Spoken with gaps and errors: broken English. 5. Topographically rough; uneven: broken terrain. 6. a. Subdued totally; humbled: a broken spirit. b. Weakened and infirm: broken health. 7. Crushed by grief: died of a broken heart. 8. Financially ruined; bankrupt. 9. Not functioning; out of order: a broken washing machine. —bro'ken·ly adv. —bro'ken-ness n.

Bro-ken Arrow (brō'kən ăr'ō) A city of northeast Oklahoma, a suburb of Tulsa. Population, 58,043.

bro-ken-down (brō'kən-doun') adj. 1. Out of working order. 2. In poor condition, as from old age; infirm.

bro-ken-field (brō'kən-fēld') adj. Football. Accomplished by a ball carrier against opposition that is widely scattered over the field: broken-field running.

bro-ken-heart-ed (brō'kən-här'tid) adj. Grievously sad.

bro-ker (brō'kər) n. 1. One that acts as an agent for others, as in negotiating contracts, purchases, or sales in return for a fee or commission. 2. A stockbroker. 3. A power broker. — v. tr. bro-kered, bro-ker-ing, bro-kers. To arrange or manage as a broker: broker an agreement among opposing factions. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman brocour, abrocour; possibly akin to Spanish alboroque, ceremonial gift at conclusion of business deal.]

WORD HISTORY: Giving gifts to one's broker might be justifiable from an etymological point of view because the word broker may be connected through its Anglo-Norman source brocour, abrocour, with Spanish alboroque, meaning "ceremony or ceremonial gift after the conclusion of a business deal." If this connection does exist, "business deal" is the notion shared by the Spanish and Anglo-Norman words because brocour referred to the middleman in transactions. The English word broker is first found in Middle English in 1355, several centuries before we find instances of its familiar compounds pawnbroker, first recorded in 1687, and stockbroker, first recorded in 1706.

bro-ker-age (brō'kər-ij) n. 1. The business of a broker. 2. A fee or commission paid to a broker. 3. A firm engaged in buying and selling stocks and bonds for clients.

bro-ly (brōl'ē) n. pl. bro-ly-ies. Chiefly British. An umbrella. [Shortening and alteration of UMBRELLA.]

brom- pref. Variant of bromo-.

bro-mate (brō'māt') n. 1. A salt of bromic acid. 2. An ion of bromic acid, BrO₃. — v. tr. bro-mat-ed, bro-mat-ing, bro-mates. To treat (a substance) chemically with a bromate.

brome (brōm) n. Any of various grasses of the genus Bromus, native to temperate regions and including several weeds and ornamentals and some species important for forage. [New Latin Bromus, genus name, from Latin bromos, oats, from Greek.]

bro-me-li-ad (brō-mē'lē-ād') n. Any of various mostly epiphytic tropical American plants of the family Bromeliaceae, usually having long, stiff leaves, colorful flowers, and showy bracts. Bromeliads include the pineapple, the Spanish moss, and numerous ornamentals. [From New Latin Bromelia, type genus, after Olaf Bromelius (1639-1705), Swedish botanist.]

Brom-field (brōm'fēld'), Louis. 1896-1956. American writer and farmer. His novel Early Autumn was awarded a Pulitzer Prize in 1927. At Malabar, his farm in Ohio, he successfully utilized modern scientific agricultural methods, and many of his later works dealt with farm life.

bro-mic acid (brō'mīk äs'īd) n. A corrosive, colorless liquid, HBrO_3 , used in making dyes and pharmaceuticals.

bro-mide (brō'mīd') n. 1. a. A binary compound of bromine with another element, such as silver. b. Potassium bromide. 2. a. A commonplace remark or notion; a platitude. See Synonyms at cliché. b. A tiresome person; a bore. —bro-mid'ic (-mīd'īk) adj.

bro-mi-nate (brō'mə-nāt') v. tr. bro-mi-nat-ed, bro-mi-nat-ing, bro-mi-nates. To combine (a substance) with bromine or a bromine compound. —bro'mi-na'tion n.

bro-mine (brō'mēn) n. Symbol Br A heavy, volatile, corrosive, reddish-brown, nonmetallic liquid element, having a highly irritating vapor. It is used in producing gasoline antiknock mixtures, fumigants, dyes, and photographic chemicals. Atomic weight 79.904; atomic number 35; melting point 7.2°C ; boiling point 58.78°C ; valence 1, 3, 5, 7. [French brome (from Greek brōmos, stench) + -INE.]

bro-mism (brō'mīz'əm) also bro-min-ism (brō'mə-nīz'əm) n. A toxic condition caused by the chronic overuse of bromides, characterized by mental dullness, loss of muscular coordination, and sometimes skin eruptions.

bromo- or brom- pref. Bromine: bromide. [From BROMINE, and BROMIDE.]

bronch- pref. Variant of broncho-.

bron-chi (brōng'kī', -kē') n. Plural of bronchus.

bron-chi-a (brōng'kē-ə) n. Plural of bronchium.

bron-chi-al (brōng'kē-əl) adj. Of or relating to the bronchi, the bronchia, or the bronchioles. —bron'chi-al-ly adv.

bronchial asthma (brōng'kē-əl äz'mə) n. Asthma that is caused by spasmodic contraction of the muscular walls of the bronchial tubes.

bronchial tube (brōng'kē-əl tōob) n. A bronchus or any of its branches.

bron-chi-ec-ta-sis (brōng'kē-ĕk'tə-sīs) n. Chronic dilatation of the bronchial tubes. [Greek bronkhia, bronchial tubes (from bronkhos, windpipe) + Greek ekta- sis, extension (ek-, out; see ecto- + tasis, a stretching from teinein, to stretch); see ten- in Appendix.]

bron·chi·ole (bröng'kē-ōl') n. Any of the fine, thin-walled, tubular extensions of a bronchus. [French : bronchi (from New Latin, pl. of bronchus); see BRONCHUS + -ole, diminutive suff. (from Latin -ola).] —bron'chi-o'lar (-ō'lər) adj.

bron·chi·tis (brön-kī'tis, bröng-) n. 1. Chronic or acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes. 2. A disease marked by this inflammation. —bron·chit'ic (-kīt'ik) adj.

bron·chi·um (bröng'kē-əm) n. pl. bron·chi·a (-kē-ə). A bronchial tube that is smaller than a bronchus and larger than a bronchiole. [New Latin, sing. of Late Latin bronchia, bronchial tubes, from Greek brankhia, from brankhos, windpipe.]

broncho- or bronch- pref. Bronchus; bronchial: bronchoscope. [Late Latin, from Greek brankho-, from brankhos, windpipe.]

bron·cho·di·la·tor (bröng'kō-dī-lā'tər, -dī-, -dī'lā-) n. A drug that widens the air passages of the lungs and eases breathing by relaxing bronchial smooth muscle.

bron·cho·pneu·mon·ia (bröng'kō-nōō-mōn'yə, -nyōō-) n. A pneumonia involving inflammation of the lungs that spreads from and after infection of the bronchi.

bron·cho·scope (bröng'kə-skōp') n. A slender tubular instrument with a small light on the end for inspection of the interior of the bronchi.

—bron'cho·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj. —bron'cho·scop'i·cal·ly adv.

—bron·chos'co·pist (brön-kös'kə-pīst, bröng-) n. —bron·chos'co·py (-kə-pē) n.

bron·chus (bröng'kəs) n. pl. bron·chi (-kī', -kē'). Either of two main branches of the trachea, leading directly to the lungs. [New Latin, from Greek brankhos, windpipe.]

bron·co (bröng'kō) n. pl. bron·cos. A wild or semiwild horse or pony of western North America. [American Spanish, from Spanish, wild, perhaps from Vulgar Latin bruncus*, knot in a tree, perhaps from Latin broccus, projecting (influenced by truncus, stump).]

bron·co·bust·er (bröng'kō-büs'tər) n. One who breaks wild horses to the saddle.

Bron·të (brön'tē) Family of British novelists and poets, including Charlotte (1816-1855), Emily, (1818-1848), and Anne (1820-1849). In 1846 their first publication was issued, a volume of poetry entitled Poems by Currer, Ellis and Acton Bell. In 1847 Charlotte published Jane Eyre; Emily, Wuthering Heights; and Anne, Agnes Gray. Charlotte published Shirley in 1849 and Villette in 1853.

bron·to·saur (brön'tə-sôr') or bron·to·sau·rus (brön'tə-sôr'əs) n. A very large herbivorous dinosaur of the genus Apatosaurus (or Brontosaurus), of the Jurassic period. [New Latin Brontosaurus, genus name : Greek brontē, thunder + Greek sauros, lizard.]

Bronx (brōngks) A borough of New York City in southeast New York on the mainland north of Manhattan. It was first settled by Jonas Bronck (died c. 1643), a Dane in the service of the Dutch West India Company, and became part of Greater New York in 1898. Population, 1,203,789.

Bronx cheer (brōngks chîr) n. Slang. A loud sound expressing disapproval; a raspberry. [After the Bronx.]

bronze (brōnz) n. 1. Abbr. br. a. Any of various alloys of copper and tin in various proportions, sometimes with traces of other metals. b. Any of various alloys of copper, with or without tin, and antimony, phosphorus, or other components. 2. A work of art made of one of these alloys. 3. a. Color. A moderate yellowish to olive brown. b. A pigment of this color. — adj. 1. Made of or consisting of bronze. 2. Color. Of a moderate yellowish to olive brown. — v. tr. bronzed, bronzing, bronz-es. To give the color or appearance of bronze to. [French, from Italian bronzo.] —bronz'er n. —bronz'y adj.

Bronze Age (brōnz āj) n. A period of human culture between the Stone Age and the Iron Age, characterized by weapons and implements made of bronze.

Bronze Star (brōnz stār) n. A U.S. military decoration awarded either for heroism or for meritorious achievement in ground combat. The Bronze Star awarded for heroism is distinguished by a metallic “V” device signifying valor.

brooch (brōch, brōoch) also broach (brōch) n. A relatively large decorative pin or clasp. [Middle English broche, pointed tool, brooch, pin. See BROACH¹.]

brood (brōod) n. 1. The young of certain animals, especially a group of young birds or fowl hatched at one time and cared for by the same mother. 2. The children in one family. — v. brood-ed, brood-ing, broods. — v. tr. 1. To sit on or hatch (eggs). 2. To protect (young) by or as if by covering with the wings. — v. intr. 1. To sit on or hatch eggs. 2. To hover envelopingly; loom. 3. a. To be deep in thought; meditate. b. To focus the attention on a subject persistently and moodily; worry: brooded over the insult for several days. c. To be depressed. — adj. Kept for breeding: a brood hen; a brood mare. [Middle English, from Old English brōd. See bhreu- in Appendix.] —brood'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: brood, dwell, fret, mope, stew, worry. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to turn over in the mind moodily and at length”: brooding about his decline in popularity; dwelled on her defeat; fretting over the loss of their jobs; moping about his illness; stewing over her upcoming trial; worrying about the unpaid bills. See also Synonyms at flock¹ brood·er (brōō'dər) n. 1. One, such as an animal or a person, that broods: a flock of brooders; a constant brooder over trifles. 2. A heated enclosure in which fowls are raised.

brood·y (brōō'dē) adj. brood·i·er, brood·i·est. 1. a. Meditative; contemplative. b. Oppressive: "The room's air was broody and sullen, like the season's own, full of storm clouds" (Nicholas Proffitt). 2. Disposed to sit on eggs to hatch them: a broody hen. —brood'i·ness n.

brook¹ (brōök) n. See creek (n., sense 1). See Regional note at run. [Middle English, from Old English brōc.]

brook² (brōök) v. tr. brook·ed, brook·ing, brooks. To put up with; tolerate: We will brook no further argument. [Middle English brouken, from Old English brūcan, to use, enjoy.]

Brooke (brōök), Sir Alan Francis First Viscount Alanbrooke. 1883-1963. British field marshal. During World War II he was Winston Churchill's principal strategic adviser.

Brooke (brōök), Rupert. 1887-1915. British poet known for his war poetry suffused with a romantic patriotic quality.

Brook·field (brōök'fēld') 1. A village of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 18,876. 2. A city of southeast Wisconsin, a suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 35,184.

brook·ie (brōök'ē) n. A brook trout.

Brook·ings (brōök'ingz), Robert Somers. 1850-1932. American businessman and philanthropist who founded (1927) the Brookings Institution, an organization that conducts social science research projects for businesses and the government.

brook·ite (brōök'īt') n. A mineral form of titanium dioxide, TiO₂, having characteristic orthorhombic crystals and a red-brown to black color. [After Henry James Brooke (1771-1857), British mineralogist.]

brook·let (brōök'līt) n. A small brook.

brook·lime (brōök'līm') n. Either of two related trailing plants, Veronica americana of North America and V. beccabunga of Eurasia, growing in wet or moist places and having clusters of small blue or purplish flowers. [Alteration of Middle English brokelemok : broke, brook; see BROOK¹ + lemok, a kind of brooklime (from Old English hleomoc).]

Brook·line (brōök'līn') A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 54,718.

Brook·lyn (brōök'līn) A borough of New York City in southeast New York on western Long Island. Dutch colonists first settled the area in 1636 and 1637 and in 1645 established the hamlet of Breuckelen near the present-day site of borough hall. Renamed Brooklyn by the English, the expanded community became part of Greater New York City in 1898. Population, 2,300,664.

Brook·lyn Center (brōök'lin sĕn'tər) A city of southeast Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 28,887.

Brook·lyn Park (brōök'lin pārk) A city of southeast Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 56,381.

Brook Park (brōök pārk) A city of northeast Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland. Population, 22,865.

Brooks (brōöks), Gwendolyn Elizabeth. Born 1917. American poet known for her verses detailing the dreams and struggles of Black Americans. An early volume of poems, Annie Allen (1949), was awarded a Pulitzer Prize.

Brooks (brōöks), Phillips. 1835-1893. American Episcopal bishop noted for his intelligent and positive sermons. He wrote the Christmas hymn "O Little Town of Bethlehem" (1868).

Brooks (brōöks), Van Wyck. 1886-1963. American literary historian, critic, and translator who wrote many books on the literary history of America, including The Flowering of New England (1936), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize.

Brook·side (brōök'sīd') also Brookside Park A community of northern Delaware southwest of Wilmington. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,307.

Brooks Range (brōöks rānj) A mountain chain of northern Alaska within the Arctic Circle. The northernmost section of the Rocky Mountains, it rises to about 2,763 m (9,060 ft) in the eastern part of the range.

brook trout (brōök trout) n. A freshwater game fish (Salvelinus fontinalis) of eastern North America. Also called speckled trout, squaretail.

broom (brōom, brōom) n. 1. A bunch of twigs, straw, or bristles bound together, attached to a stick or handle, and used for sweeping. 2. a. Any of various Mediterranean shrubs of the genus Cytisus in the pea family, especially C. Scoparius, having mostly compound leaves with three leaflets and showy, usually bright yellow flowers. b. Any of several similar or related shrubs, especially in the genera Genista and Spartium. — v. tr. broomed, broom-ing, brooms. To sweep with or as if with a broom. [Middle English, from Old English brōm.] —broom'y adj.

Broom·all (brōom'mōl) A community of southeast Pennsylvania, a suburb of Philadelphia. Population, 23,642.

broom·ball (brōom'bōl', brōom'-) n. Sports. A kind of ice hockey that is played on ice with the players using brooms and a soccer ball instead of hockey sticks and a puck and wearing shoes or boots instead of ice skates. —broom'ball'er n.

broom·corn (brōom'kōrn', brōom'-) n. A variety of sorghum (Sorghum bicolor) having a stiff, erect, much-branched flower cluster, the stalks of which are used to make brooms.

Broom·field (brōom'fēld') A city of north-central Colorado, a suburb of Denver. Population, 24,638.

broom·rape (brōom'rap', brōom' -) n. Any of various parasitic herbs of the genus Orobanche, having purplish or yellowish flowers and small scalelike leaves that lack chlorophyll. Broomrape grows on the roots of various plants. [Translation of Medieval Latin rāpum genistae: Latin rāpum, underground stock of a tree + Latin genistae, genitive of genista, broom (from the growth of these tubers on the roots of broom).]

broom·stick (brōom'stik', brōom' -) n. The handle of a broom.

bros. abbr. Brothers.

Bros-sard (brô-sär', -särd') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal on the St. Lawrence River. Population, 52,232.

broth (brôth, brôth) n. pl. broths (brôths, brôths, brôthz, brôthz). 1. The water in which meat, fish, or vegetables have been boiled; stock. 2. A thin, clear soup based on stock, to which rice, barley, meat, or vegetables may be added. [Middle English, from Old English. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

broth·el (brôth'el, brô'thəl) n. A house of prostitution. [Short for brothel-house, from Middle English brothel, prostitute, from brothen, past participle of brethen, to go to ruin, from Old English brēothan, to decay.]

broth·er (brüth'ər) n. pl. broth-ers. Abbr. bro., br., b. 1. A male having the same parents as another or one parent in common with another. 2. pl. Often breth·ren (brëth'rən). One who shares a common ancestry, allegiance, character, or purpose with another or others, especially: a. A kinsman. b. A fellow man. c. A fellow member, as of a fraternity, trade union, or panel of judges on a court. d. A close male friend; a comrade. e. A soul brother. 3. pl. Often breth·ren. Something, such as a corporation or an institution, that is regarded as a member of a class: "A station that... relies on corporate contributions or advertising to survive runs the risk of becoming virtually indistinguishable from its commercial brethren" (W. John Moore). 4. Abbr. Br. Ecclesiastical. a. A member of a men's religious order who is not in holy orders but engages in the work of the order. b. A lay member of a religious order of men. c. pl. Often brethren. A fellow member of the Christian church. [Middle English, from Old English brōthor. See bhräter- in Appendix.]

broth·er·hood (brüth'ər-hööd') n. 1. The state or relationship of being brothers. 2. Fellowship. 3. Abbr. B. An association of men, such as a fraternity or union, united for common purposes. 4. All the members of a profession or trade.

broth·er·in·law (brüth'ər-ïn-lô') n. pl. broth-ers-in-law (brüth'ərz-). 1. The brother of one's husband or wife. 2. The husband of one's sister. 3. The husband of the sister of one's husband or wife.

broth·er·ly (brüth'ər-lē) adj. Characteristic of or befitting brothers; fraternal. —broth'er·li·ness n. —broth'er·ly adv.

broth·ers·in·law (brüth'ərz-ïn-lô') n. Plural of brother-in-law.

brougham (brōom, brōō'əm, brōm, brō'əm) n. 1. A closed four-wheeled carriage with an open driver's seat in front. 2. An automobile with an open driver's seat. 3. An electrically powered automobile resembling a coupé. [After Henry Peter Brougham, First Baron Brougham and Vaux (1778-1868), Scottish-born jurist.]

brought (brôt) v. Past tense and past participle of bring.

brou-ha-ha (brōō'hä-hä') n. An uproar; a hubbub. [French, of imitative origin.]

Broun (brōon), (Matthew) Heywood (Campbell). 1888-1939. American journalist who addressed social injustices, most notably the Sacco and Vanzetti case.

brow (brou) n. 1. a. The superciliary ridge over the eyes. b. The eyebrow. c. The forehead. 2. A facial expression; countenance: "Speak you this with a sad brow?" (Shakespeare). 3. The projecting upper edge of a steep place: the brow of a hill. [Middle English, from Old English brū. See bhrū- in Appendix.]

bro-wal-li-a (brə-wä'lē-ə) n. Any of various tropical American herbs of the genus Browallia, having blue, violet, or white flowers with united petals. [New Latin, after Bishop John Browall (1707-1755), Swedish botanist.]

brow-beat (brou'bēt') v. tr. brow-beat, brow-beat-en (-bēt'n), brow-beat-ing, brow-beats. To intimidate or subjugate by an overbearing manner or domineering speech; bully. See Synonyms at intimidate. —brow/-beat'er n.

Brow-der (brou'dər), Earl Russell. 1891-1973. American Communist leader. He was the Communist Party's candidate for President in 1936 and 1940.

brown (broun) n. Abbr. br. Color. Any of a group of colors between red and yellow in hue that are medium to low in lightness and low to moderate in saturation. — adj. brown-er, brown-est. 1. Color. Of the color brown. 2. Deeply sun-tanned. — v. tr. intr. browned, brown-ing, browns. 1. To make or become brown. 2. To cook until brown. —phrasal verb. brown off. Chiefly British. To make or become angry or irritated. [Middle English, from Old English brūn. See bher-² in Appendix.] —brown'ish adj. —brown'ness n.

Brown (broun), Charles Brockden. 1771-1810. American writer and editor who is considered America's first professional novelist. Brown is best known for his Gothic romances, such as Wieland (1798), Ormund (1799), and Jane Talbot (1801).

Brown (broun), Ford Madox. 1821-1893. British historical painter associated with the Pre-Raphaelites. He painted a series of frescoes depicting the major historical events in Manchester, England.

Brown (broun), Harrison Scott. 1917-1986. American chemist. After developing the method for producing plutonium for atomic bombs, he lectured widely against the proliferation of such weaponry.

Brown (broun), Henry Billings. 1836-1913. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1890-1906).

Brown (broun), Herbert Charles. Born 1912. British-born American chemist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for discoveries in the chemistry of boron and phosphorus.

Brown (broun), James. Born 1933. American singer. First popular in the 1950's with hits like "Please, Please, Please," he is often called the "Godfather of Soul."

Brown (broun), John. 1800-1859. American abolitionist. In 1859 Brown and 21 followers captured the U.S. arsenal at Harper's Ferry as part of an effort to liberate Southern slaves. His group was defeated, and Brown was hanged after a trial in which he won sympathy as an abolitionist martyr.

Brown (broun), John Mason. 1900-1969. American drama critic whose books include To All Hands (1943) and Daniel Boone (1952).

Brown (broun), Michael. Born 1941. American geneticist. He shared a 1985 Nobel Prize for discoveries related to cholesterol metabolism.

Brown (broun), Olympia. 1835-1926. American minister and suffragist who was the first woman in the United States to be ordained in the ministry of an established denomination (1863).

Brown (broun), Robert. 1773-1858. Scottish botanist known for his investigation of the sexual behavior of plants. His discovery of the irregular movement of pollen grains led to the concept known as Brownian movement.

brown alga (broun ăl'gə) n. Any of a large group of chiefly marine plants of the division Phaeophyta, including the rockweeds and the kelps, having brown and yellow pigments that mask the chlorophyll.

brown bagging (broun bəg'ɪŋ) n. 1. The practice of taking one's lunch to work, typically in a brown paper bag. 2. The practice of taking one's own liquor into a public establishment, such as a restaurant, where setups are available.

—brown bagger n.

brown bear (broun bâr) n. Any of several large bears of the genus Ursus, such as the grizzly and Kodiak bears, inhabiting western North America and northern Eurasia and having brown to yellowish fur. Brown bears are sometimes categorized as the single species U. arctos.

brown Bet·ty (broun bět'ē) n. A baked pudding of chopped or sliced apples, bread crumbs, raisins, sugar, butter, and spices.

brown bread (broun brəd) n. 1. A bread made of a dark flour, such as graham or whole-wheat flour. 2. A steamed bread usually made of cornmeal, flour, and molasses.

brown coal (broun kōl) n. See lignite.

Browne (broun), Charles Farrar. Pen name Artemus Ward. 1834-1867.

American humorist who used backwoods characters and local dialect to comment on current events in his fictional tales of an itinerant showman.

Browne (broun), Hablot Knight. Known as “Phiz.” 1815-1882. British illustrator chosen by Charles Dickens to supply decorations for his Pickwick Papers (1836) and other serialized tales.

Browne (broun), Sir Thomas. 1605-1682. English physician and writer known for the richness of his prose in works such as Religio Medici (1642), an attempt to reconcile Christian faith with scientific knowledge.

brown fat (broun făt) n. A dark-colored, mitochondrion-rich adipose tissue in many mammals that generates heat to regulate body temperature, especially in hibernating animals.

Brown-i-an movement (brou'nē-ən mōōv'mənt) n. The random movement of microscopic particles suspended in a liquid or gas, caused by collisions with molecules of the surrounding medium. Also called Brownian motion [After Robert BROWN.]

brown-ie (brou'nē) n. 1. Brownie. A member of the Girl Scouts from six through eight years of age. 2. A bar of moist, usually chocolate cake, often with nuts. 3. A small sprite thought to do helpful work at night. 4. A brown trout. [Sense 3, from the notion of the sprite as a tiny brown man.]

Brownie point also brownie point (brou'nē point) n. Credit considered as earned, especially by favorably impressing a superior. [From the practice of awarding points for achievement to Brownies in the Girl Scouts.]

Brown-ing (brou'nĭng), Elizabeth Barrett. 1806-1861. British poet. Overcoming ill health and the jealous objections of her tyrannical father, she eloped to Italy with Robert Browning and married him in 1846. Her greatest work, Sonnets from the Portuguese (1850), is a sequence of love poems written to her husband.

Brown-ing (brou'nĭng), John Moses. 1855-1926. American firearms inventor whose designs include repeating rifles, automatic pistols, and a machine gun dubbed “the Peacemaker” that was used in the Spanish-American War and adapted for aerial warfare in World War I.

Brown-ing (brou'nĭng), Robert. 1812-1889. British poet best known for dramatic monologues such as “My Last Duchess,” “Fra Lippo Lippi,” and “The Bishop Orders His Tomb.” His work, including his masterpiece, The Ring and the Book (1868-1869), explored new ways of using diction and poetic rhythm.

Browning automatic rifle (brou'nĭng ô'tə-măt'ĭk rĭ'fəl) n. Abbr. BAR A.30 caliber air-cooled, automatic or semiautomatic, gas-operated, magazine-fed rifle used by U.S. troops in World Wars I and II and the Korean War. [After John Moses BROWNING.]

Browning machine gun (brou'nĭng mə-shĕn' gŭn) n. A.30 or.50 caliber automatic belt-fed, air-cooled or water-cooled machine gun capable of firing ammunition at a rate of more than 500 rounds per minute, used by U.S. troops in World War II and the Korean War. [After John Moses BROWNING.] brown lung disease (broun lŭng dĩ-zēz') n. See byssinosis.

brown mustard (broun mŭs'tərd) n. 1. See Indian mustard. 2. The black mustard.

brown-nose or brown-nose (broun'nōz') v. tr. brown-nosed, brown-nos-ing, brown-nos-es. Informal. To curry favor with in an obsequious manner; fawn on. —brown/nose' n. —brown/nos'er n.

brown-out (broun'out') n. A reduction or cutback in electric power, especially as a result of a shortage, a mechanical failure, or overuse by consumers. [BROWN + (BLACK)OUT.]

brown patch (broun päch) n. A disease of turf grasses caused by a fungus of the genus Rhizoctonia and resulting in circular patches of dead leaves.

brown rat (broun răt) n. See Norway rat.

brown recluse spider (broun rĕk'lōōs' spī'dər) n. A venomous spider (Loxosceles reclusa) having an hourglass-shaped mark on the cephalothorax, introduced into the southern United States from South America.

brown rice (broun rīs) n. The whole grain of rice, from which the germ and outer layers containing the bran have not been removed; unpolished rice.

brown rot (broun rōt) n. Any of several plant diseases, especially a disease of peach, plum, apricot, cherry, and related plants, characterized by wilting and browning of the flowers and leaves and rotting of the fruits.

Brown Shirt or brown-shirt (broun'shŭrt') n. 1. A Nazi, especially a storm trooper. 2. A racist, especially a violent, right-wing one. [Translation of German Braunhemd: braun, brown + Hemd, shirt.]

brown-stone (broun'stōn') n. 1. A brownish-red sandstone used as a building material. 2. A house built or faced with brownish-red sandstone.

brown study (broun stŭd'ē) n. A state of deep thought. [BROWN, gloomy + STUDY, mental state.]

brown sugar (broun shoōg'ər) n. 1. Unrefined or incompletely refined sugar that still retains some molasses, which imparts a brownish color to it. 2. A commercial product made by the addition of molasses to white sugar.

Browns-ville (brounz'vīl', -vəl) A city of southern Texas on the Rio Grande near its mouth on the Gulf of Mexico. It is a major port of entry served by a deep-water channel that accommodates oceangoing ships. Population, 98,962.

Brown Swiss (broun swīs) n. One of a hardy breed of large brown dairy cattle that originated in Switzerland.

brown-tail moth (broun'tāl' môth) n. A small white and brown tussock moth (Euproctis phaeorrhoea) whose caterpillars defoliate shade trees and produce a poison capable of causing a skin rash on contact.

brown thrasher (brɔʊn θræʃ'ər) n. A North American bird (Toxostoma rufum) related to the mockingbird and having a reddish-brown back and a dark-streaked breast.

brown trout (brɔʊn traʊt) n. A European freshwater game fish (Salmo trutta) that is dark olive to purple-black above and yellow-brown with reddish spots on the sides. It is naturalized in North America.

Brown-wood (brɔʊn'wʊd') A city of central Texas west of Waco. It is an industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 18,387.

browse (braʊz) v. browsed, brows-ing, brows-es. — v. intr. 1. a. To inspect something in a leisurely and casual way: browsed through the record collection for items of interest. b. To read something superficially by selecting passages at random: browsed through the report during lunch. 2. To feed on leaves, young shoots, and other vegetation; graze. — v. tr. 1. To look through or over (something) casually: browsed the evening paper; browsing the gift shops for souvenirs. 2. a. To nibble; crop. b. To graze on. — n. 1. Young twigs, leaves, and shoots that are fit for animals to eat. 2. An act of browsing. [Probably from obsolete French broust, young shoot, from Old French brost, of Germanic origin.]

brows-er (braʊ'zər) n. 1. One that browses. 2. Computer Science. A program that accesses and displays files available on the World Wide Web.

Broz (brōz, brōz), Josip. See Marshal. Tito.

Bru-beck (brō'bɛk), David Warren. Known as "Dave." Born 1920. American jazz pianist and composer considered to be one of the foremost exponents of progressive jazz.

Bruce (brōs), Blanche Kelso. 1841-1898. American political leader who was the first Black politician to serve a full term in the U.S. Senate (1875-1881).

Bruce (brōs), Sir David. 1855-1931. Australian physician and bacteriologist known for his description (1887) of the bacterium that causes undulant fever, or brucellosis.

Bruce (brōs), Lenny. 1926-1966. American comedian whose scathing, often obscene humor strongly influenced later young comics.

Bruce (brōs), Robert the. See Robert I².

Bruce (brōs), Stanley Melbourne First Viscount Bruce of Melbourne. 1883-1967. Australian politician who was prime minister (1923-1929) and a delegate (1933-1936) to the League of Nations.

bru-cel-la (brō-sɛl'ə) n. pl. bru-cel-lae (-sɛl'ē) or bru-cel-las. Microbiology. Any of various aerobic, short, rod-shaped bacteria of the genus Brucella that are pathogenic to human beings and domestic animals. [After Sir David BRUCE.]

bru-cel-lo-sis (brō'sɛ-lō'sis) n. 1. An infectious bacterial disease of human beings that is caused by brucellae, transmitted by contact with infected animals, and characterized by fever, malaise, and headache. Also called Gibraltar fever, Malta fever, Mediterranean fever, Rock fever, undulant fever. 2. A disease of domestic animals, such as cattle, sheep, goats, and dogs, that is caused by brucellae and sometimes results in spontaneous abortions in newly infected animals.

Also called Bang's disease [BRUCELL(A) + -OSIS.]

Bruch (brōok, brōōKH), Max Karl August. 1838-1920. German composer known especially for his violin pieces, including Violin Concerto in G Minor (1868).

bru-cine (brōō'sēn', -sīn) n. A poisonous white crystalline alkaloid, C₂₃H₂₆N₂O₄, derived from the seeds of nux vomica and closely related plants and used to denature alcohol. [After James Bruce (1730-1794), Scottish explorer.]

Bruck-ner (brōok'nər), Anton. 1824-1896. Austrian organist and composer whose major works include nine symphonies, a Requiem (1848-1849), and a Te Deum (1881).

Brue-ghel or Brue-gel also Breu-ghel (broi'gəl, brōō'-, brœ'-), Pieter. Known as “the Elder.” 1525?-1569. Flemish painter noted for his landscapes and his lively genre scenes, including Peasant Wedding (c. 1567). His son Pieter (1564-1638?), known as “the Younger,” is primarily remembered for his copies of his father’s works, while another son, Jan (1568-1625), is frequently called “the Flower Brueghel” or “the Velvet Brueghel” for the silky detail of his still-life paintings.

Bruges (brōōzh) A city of northwest Belgium connected by canal with the North Sea. It was founded in the 9th century and was a leading member of the Hanseatic League in the 13th century. Today the old city is a popular tourist center known as “the City of Bridges.” Population, 118,218.

Bruhn (brōōn), Erik. 1928-1986. Danish-born ballet dancer noted for his precise, dramatic style in works such as Giselle and Swan Lake.

bru-in (brōō'in) n. A bear. [Middle English bruin, name of the bear in History of Reynard the Fox, translated by William Caxton, from Middle Dutch bruun, bruin, brown, name of the bear in Middle Dutch version of the fable. See bher-² in Appendix.]

bruise (brōōz) v. bruised, bruising, bruises. — v. tr. 1. a. To injure the underlying soft tissue or bone of (part of the body) without breaking the skin, as by a blow. b. To damage (plant tissue), as by abrasion or pressure: bruised the fruit by careless packing. 2. To dent or mar. 3. To pound (berries, for example) into fragments; crush. 4. To hurt, especially psychologically. — v. intr. To experience or undergo bruising: Peaches bruise easily. — n. 1. An injury to underlying tissues or bone in which the skin is not broken, often characterized by ruptured blood vessels and discolorations. 2. A similar injury to plant tissue, often resulting in discoloration or spoilage. 3. An injury, especially to one’s feelings. [Middle English bruisen, from Old English brȳsan, to crush,, and from Old North French bruisier (of Germanic origin).]

bruis-er (brōō'zər) n. Informal. A large, heavyset man.

bruit (brōōt) v. tr. bruit-ed, bruit-ing, bruits. To spread news of; repeat. — n. 1. (also brōō'ē) Medicine. An abnormal sound heard in auscultation.

2. Archaic. a. A rumor. b. A din; a clamor. [From Middle English, noise, from Old French, past participle of bruire, to roar, from Vulgar Latin brūgīre* (from Latin rūgīre, and from Vulgar Latin bragere*).]

Bru-lé (brōō-lā') n. pl. Brulé or Bru-lés. 1. A Native American people constituting a subdivision of the Teton Sioux, inhabiting northwest Nebraska and southwest South Dakota. 2. A member of this people. [French brûlé, burnt (partial translation of their own name for themselves).]

bru-mal (brōō'məl) adj. Of, relating to, or occurring in winter. [Latin brūmālis, from brūma, winter, from brevima* (diēs), the shortest (day) or winter solstice, archaic superlative of brevis, short. See mregh-u- in Appendix.]

brume (brōōm) n. Fog or mist. [French, from Old French, perhaps from Provençal, from Latin brūma, winter. See BRUMAL.] —bru'mous (brōō'məs) adj.

brum·ma·gem (brūm'ə-jəm) adj. Cheap and showy; meretricious. [Alteration of Birmingham, England (from the counterfeit coins made there in the 17th century).] —brum'ma-gem n.

Brum·mell (brūm'əl), George Bryan. Known as “Beau Brummell.” 1778-1840. British dandy who popularized new men’s fashions, including simply cut clothing, trousers rather than breeches, and elaborate neckwear. An inveterate gambler, he died in poverty in an insane asylum in France.

brunch (brūnch) n. A meal typically eaten late in the morning as a combination of a late breakfast and an early lunch. [BR(EAKFAST) + (L)UNCH.]

Bru-nei (brōō-nī') A sultanate of northwest Borneo on the South China Sea. Formerly a self-governing British protectorate, it became fully independent on January 1, 1984. Bandar Seri Begawan is the capital. Population, 191,765.

Bru-nel (brōō-něl'), Sir Marc Isambard. 1769-1849. French-born British engineer who invented a tunneling shield and successfully used it in his construction of the Thames Tunnel (1825-1843). His son Isambard Kingdom Brunel (1806-1859) designed the first transatlantic steamship, the Great Western (1838).

Bru-nel·le·schì (brōō'nə-lēs'kē), Filippo. 1377-1446. Italian architect celebrated for his work during the Florentine Renaissance. His greatest achievement is the octagonal ribbed dome of the Florence cathedral.

bru-net (brōō-nět') adj. 1. Of a dark complexion or coloring. 2. Having dark brown or black hair or eyes. — n. A person with dark brown hair. See Usage Note at brunette. [French, from Old French, diminutive of brun, brown, of Germanic origin. See bher-² in Appendix.]

Bru-ne·tière (brōō'nə-tyēr'), Vincent de Paul Marie Ferdinand. 1849?-1906. French critic and editor who applied principles of Darwinian evolution to the development of literature and decried the naturalist school for its lack of moral purpose.

bru-nette (brōō-nĕtʹ) adj. Having dark or brown hair. — n. A girl or woman with dark or brown hair. [French, feminine of brunet. See BRUNET.]

USAGE NOTE: Brunette was for a long time used to denote a woman having a dark complexion; now it is used chiefly in reference to hair color. The general practice is to use the form brunette to refer only to women, with brunet as a less frequently used variant that can be applied as well to men and mixed groups. The distinction, like the one between blonde and blond, has been regarded as carrying sexist implications. In this case, however, it is difficult to see how the problem can be easily resolved. It is unlikely that brunette could be pressed into service as a neutral term, since the suffix -ette is too closely associated with marked feminine gender. Brunet is theoretically available for both sexes but is rarely applied to men, whose corresponding coloration is typically described simply as “brown.” It would, of course, be possible to use brown for the hair color of both sexes, if only that word could be redeemed from the associations of drabness that led to the adoption of the substitute brunette in the first place. See Usage Note at blond. See Usage Note at -ette.

brung (brŭng) v. Usage Problem. A past tense and a past participle of bring. See Usage Note at bring.

Brun-hild (brōōn'hĭltʹ) n. A queen in the Nibelungenlied who is won as a bride by Gunther.

Brun-ner (brōōn'ər), (Heinrich) Emil. 1889-1966. Swiss theologian who advocated Protestant ecumenism and stressed the importance of revelation in the relationship between God and the individual.

Bru-no (brōō'nō), Giordano. 1548?-1600. Italian philosopher who used Copernican principles in formulating his cosmic theory of an infinite universe. Condemned by the Inquisition for heresy, immoral conduct, and blasphemy, he was burned at the stake.

Bruno of Co-logne (brōō'nō ũv kə-lōnʹ), Saint. 1030?-1101. German monk who established a monastery at Chartreuse in southern France (1084) and founded the Carthusian order.

Brunswick (brŭnz'wĭk) 1. A region and former duchy of north-central Germany. Established in the 13th century, the duchy became independent in 1918 before joining the Weimar Republic. 2. A city of north-central Germany east-southeast of Hanover. Reputedly founded in 861, it is an industrial and commercial center. Population, 253,057. 3. A city of southeast Georgia south-southwest of Savannah near the Atlantic coast. It is a port of entry. Population, 16,433. 4. A town of southwest Maine on the Androscoggin River northeast of Portland. Bowdoin College (established 1794) is here. Population, 17,336. 5. A city of northeast Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland and Akron. Population, 28,230.

Brunswick stew (brūnz'wīk stōō) n. A stew that usually contains chicken and rabbit or squirrel meat cooked with vegetables. [After Brunswick, a county of southern Virginia.]

brunt (brünt) n. 1. The main impact or force, as of an attack. 2. The main burden: bore the brunt of the household chores. [Middle English, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

brush¹ (brüşh) n. 1. a. A device consisting of bristles fastened into a handle, used in scrubbing, polishing, or painting. b. The act of using this device. 2. A light touch in passing; a graze. 3. A bushy tail: the brush of a fox. 4. A sliding connection completing a circuit between a fixed and a moving conductor. 5. A snub; a brushoff. — v. brushed, brush-ing, brush-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To clean, polish, or groom with a brush. b. To apply with or as if with motions of a brush. c. To remove with or as if with motions of a brush. 2. To dismiss abruptly or curtly: brushed the matter aside; brushed an old friend off. 3. To touch lightly in passing; graze against. — v. intr. 1. To use or apply a brush. 2. To move past something so as to touch it lightly. — phrasal verb. brush up. 1. To refresh one's memory. 2. To renew a skill. [Middle English brusshe, from Old French brosse, brushwood, brush. See BRUSH².] — brush'er n. — brush'y adj.

SYNONYMS: brush, flick, glance, graze, shave, skim. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to make light and momentary contact with something in passing”: her arm brushing mine; flicked the paper with his finger; an arrow that glanced off the tree; a knife blade grazing the countertop; a taxi that shaved the curb; an oar skimming the surface of the pond.

brush² (brüşh) n. 1. a. A dense growth of bushes or shrubs. b. Land covered by such a growth. 2. Cut or broken branches. [Middle English brusshe, from Old French brosse, brushwood, from Vulgar Latin bruscia*, perhaps from Latin bruscum, knot on a maple.] — brush'y adj.

brush³ (brüşh) n. A brief, often hostile or alarming encounter: a brush with the law; a brush with death. [Middle English, from brushen, to hasten, rush, probably from brusshe, brush. See BRUSH¹.]

brush discharge (brüşh dīs-chärj') n. A faintly visible, relatively slow crackling discharge of electricity without sparking.

brushed (brüşht) adj. Having a nap produced by brushing: a dress made of brushed cotton.

brush·fire also brush fire (brüşh'fir') n. 1. A fire in low-growing, scrubby trees and brush. 2. A relatively minor crisis. — adj. Minor enough to involve only small-scale mobilization of counteracting resources: brushfire wars.

brush·off also brush-off (brüşh'ôf', -ôf') n. An abrupt dismissal or snub.

brush·wood (brūsh/'wōōd') n. 1. Branches that have been cut or broken off.

2. a. Dense undergrowth. b. An area covered by such growth.

brush·work (brūsh/'wûrk') n. 1. Work done with a brush. 2. The manner in which a painter applies paint with a brush.

brusque also brusk (brÿsk) adj. Abrupt and curt in manner or speech; discourteously blunt. See Synonyms at gruff. [French, lively, fierce, from Italian brusco, coarse, rough, from Late Latin brÿscum, perhaps blend of Latin rÿscus, butcher's broom,, and Late Latin brÿcus, heather; see BRIAR¹.] —brusque/ly adv. —brusque/ness n.

brus·que·rie (brÿs/'kə-rē') n. Curtness or bluntness of manner. [French, from brusque, brusque. See BRUSQUE.]

Brus·sels (brÿs/'əlz) The capital and largest city of Belgium, in the central part of the country. Officially bilingual (Flemish and French), it became capital of Belgium in 1830. Metropolitan area population, 2,395,000.

Brussels carpet (brÿs/'əlz kār/'pīt) n. A machine-made carpet consisting of small, colored woolen loops that form a heavy, patterned pile.

Brussels griffon (brÿs/'əlz grīf/'ən) n. See griffon (n., sense 1).

Brussels lace (brÿs/'əlz lās) n. Net lace with an appliqué design, formerly made by hand but now usually made by machine.

Brussels sprouts (brÿs/'əlz sprouts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. A vegetable (Brassica oleracea var. gemmifera) in the mustard family, having long, stout cabbagelike buds. 2. The edible buds of this plant.

brut (brōōt) adj. Very dry. Used of champagne. [French, from Old French, rough, from Latin brÿtus, heavy. See g^werə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

bru·tal (brōōt/'l) adj. 1. Extremely ruthless or cruel. See Synonyms at brute. 2. Crude or unfeeling in manner or speech. 3. Harsh; unrelenting: a brutal winter in the Arctic. 4. Disagreeably precise or penetrating: spoke with brutal honesty. —bru/tal·ly adv.

bru·tal·ism (brōōt/'l-īz'əm) n. A style of architecture characterized by massive or monolithic forms typically unrelieved by exterior decoration. —bru/tal·ist n.

bru·tal·i·ty (brōō-tāl/'ī-tē) n. pl. bru·tal·i·ties. 1. The state or quality of being ruthless, cruel, harsh, or unrelenting. 2. A ruthless, cruel, harsh, or unrelenting act.

bru·tal·ize (brōōt/'l-īz') v. tr. bru·tal·ized, bru·tal·iz·ing, bru·tal·iz·es.

1. To make cruel, harsh, or unfeeling. 2. To treat cruelly or harshly.

—bru/tal·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

brute (brōōt) n. 1. An animal; a beast. 2. A brutal, crude, or insensitive person. — adj. 1. Of or relating to beasts; animal: “None of the brute creation requires more than food and shelter” (Henry David Thoreau). 2. Characteristic of a brute, especially: a. Entirely physical: brute force. b. Lacking or showing a lack of reason or intelligence: a brute impulse. c. Savage; cruel: brute coercion.

d. Unremittingly severe: was driven to steal food through brute necessity.

3. Coarse; brutish. [From Middle English, nonhuman, from Old French brut, from Latin brūtus, stupid. See g^werə-¹ in Appendix.] —brut/ism n.

SYNONYMS: brute, animal, brutish, brutal, beastly, bestial. These adjectives apply to what is more characteristic of lower animals than of human beings. Brute, the least derogatory, stresses a lack of the understanding or sensibility regarded as distinguishing people from animals: brute force. Animal emphasizes physical nature as opposed to intellect or spirit: animal vitality. Brutish stresses marked lack of human refinement and sensitivity: He had the look of a dull and brutish man. Brutal emphasizes unfeeling cruelty: “the brutal amusements of the bullbaiting or the cockpit” (William Howitt). Both beastly and bestial imply degeneracy or moral degradation: indulging beastly desires; bestial and sordid drunkenness. Beastly, however, is often used to characterize what is merely very disagreeable: What a beastly storm!

brut-ish (brōō'tīsh) adj. 1. Of or characteristic of a brute. 2. Crude in feeling or manner. 3. Sensual; carnal. 4. Rough; uncivilized: “the Mesabi Iron Range, a brutish stretch of maroon hillocks” (John McCormick). See Synonyms at brute. —brut/ish-ly adv. —brut/ish-ness n.

Brut-ti-um (brōōt'ē-əm, brūt'-) An ancient region of southern Italy roughly occupying present-day Calabria in the toe of the Italian “boot.”

Bru-tus (brōō'təs), Marcus Junius. 85?-42 B.C. Roman politician and general who conspired to assassinate Julius Caesar. In the subsequent power struggle with Mark Antony and Octavian, Brutus was defeated at the Battle of Philippi and committed suicide.

brux-ism (brūk'sīz'əm) n. The habitual, involuntary grinding or clenching of the teeth, usually during sleep, as from anger, tension, fear, or frustration. [From New Latin brūxis, a gnashing, from Greek brūkein, to gnash.]

Bry-an (brī'ən) A city of east-central Texas northwest of Houston. It is an industrial community and a research center. Population, 55,002.

Bry-an (brī'ən), William Jennings. Called “the Great Commoner” or “the Boy Orator of the Platte.” 1860-1925. American lawyer and politician who campaigned unsuccessfully for the presidency in 1896, 1900, and 1908. He is famous for his impassioned “Cross of Gold” speech advocating free silver (1896) and for his defense of fundamentalism in the Scopes trial (1925).

Bry-ansk also Bri-ansk (brē-ānsk') A city of western Russia southwest of Moscow. It was part of Lithuania until the 16th century. Population, 430,000.

Bry-ant (brī'ənt), William Cullen. 1794-1878. American poet, critic, and editor known especially for his early nature poems, such as “Thanatopsis” (1817) and “To a Waterfowl” (1821). As editor and part owner (1829-1878) of the New York Evening Post he advocated reforms ranging from abolitionism to free trade.

Bryce (brīs), James First Viscount Bryce of Dechmont. 1838-1922. British diplomat and historian whose American Commonwealth (1888) is a classic study of government and politics.

Bryn·hild (brīn'hīld') n. A Valkyrie who is revived from an enchanted sleep by Sigurd.

bryo- pref. Moss: bryology. [New Latin, from Greek bruon, moss, from bruein, to swell, teem.]

bry·ol·o·gy (brī-ōl'ə-jē) n. The study of bryophytes. — bry'o·log'i·cal (-ə-lōj'i-kəl) adj.

bry·o·ny (brī'ə-nē) *n. pl. bry·o·nies. 1. Any of various Eurasian tendrill-bearing vines of the genus Bryonia, having red or black berries and tuberous roots formerly used as medicine. 2. The black bryony. [Latin bryōnia, from Greek bruōnia, from bruein, to swell, teem.]*

bry·o·phyte (brī'ə-fīt') n. A plant of the Bryophyta, a division of photosynthetic, chiefly terrestrial, nonvascular plants, including the mosses, liverworts, and hornworts. — bry'o·phyt'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

bry·o·zo·an (brī'ə-zō'ən) n. Any of various small aquatic animals of the phylum Bryozoa that reproduce by budding and form mosslike or branching colonies permanently attached to stones or seaweed. Also called moss animal, polyzoan. — adj. Of or belonging to the Bryozoa. [From New Latin Bryozoa, phylum name : BRYO- + Greek zōia, pl. of zōion, animal; see -ZOON.]

Bryth·on (brīth'ən, -ōn') n. 1. An ancient Celtic Briton of Cornwall, Wales, or Cumbria. 2. One who speaks a Brittonic language. [Welsh, from Latin Brittonēs, Britons. See BRITON.]

Bry·thon·ic (brī-thōn'ik) adj. Of or relating to the Brythons or their language or culture. — n. Variant of Brittonic.

Brze·zin·ski (brī-zhīn'skē), Zbigniew. Born 1928. Polish-born American political adviser and member of the National Security Council (1977-1981).

B.S. abbr. 1. Bachelor of Science. 2. Balance sheet. 3. Bill of sale. 4. Obscene. Bullshit.

BSA abbr. Boy Scouts of America.

B.S.A. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Agriculture.

B.S.A.A. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Applied Arts.

B.S.Arch. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Architecture.

B.Sc. abbr. Bachelor of Science.

B.S.Ch. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Chemistry.

B.S.Ec. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Economics.

B.S.Ed. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Education.

B.S.E.E. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering.

B.S.For. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Forestry.

B.S.F.S. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Foreign Service.

bsh. abbr. Bushel.

BSI abbr. British Standards Institution.

B-side (bē'sīd') n. The reverse side of a phonograph record, especially a single.
[From the B on the record's label.]

bsk. abbr. Basket.

B.S.N. abbr. Bachelor of Science in Nursing.

BT (bē'tē') n. A bacterium, lethal to and used to control many kinds of caterpillars that are pests of ornamental, crop, and other plants. [B(ACILLUS) T(HURING-IENSIS).]

Bt. abbr. Baronet.

B.T. abbr. Bachelor of Theology.

B.Th. abbr. Bachelor of Theology.

btry. abbr. Battery.

Btss. abbr. Baronetess.

Btu abbr. British thermal unit.

bu. abbr. 1. Bureau. 2. Or bu. Bushel.

bub (büb) n. Slang. Fellow. Used as a term of familiar address: See you around, bub. [Probably short for BROTHER.]

Bu·bas·tis (byōō-bäs'tis) An ancient city of northeast Egypt in the Nile delta. It was a religious center for the worship of the cat-headed god Bast.

bub·ble (büb'əl) n. 1. A thin, usually spherical or hemispherical film of liquid filled with air or gas: a soap bubble. 2. A globular body of air or gas formed within a liquid: air bubbles rising to the surface. 3. A pocket formed in a solid by air or gas that is trapped, as during cooling or hardening. 4. a. The act or process of forming bubbles. b. A sound made by or as if by the forming and bursting of bubbles. 5. Something insubstantial, groundless, or ephemeral, especially: a. A fantastic or impracticable idea or belief; an illusion: didn't want to burst the new volunteers' bubble. b. A speculative scheme that comes to nothing: lost money in the real estate bubble. 6. Something light or effervescent: "Macon—though terribly distressed—had to fight down a bubble of laughter" (Anne Tyler). 7. A usually transparent glass or plastic dome. 8. A protective, often isolating envelope or cover: "The Secret Service will talk of tightening protection, but no President wants to live in a bubble" (Anthony Lewis). — v. bub·bled, bub·bling, bub·bles. — v. intr. 1. To form or give off bubbles. 2. To move or flow with a gurgling sound: a brook bubbling along its course. 3. To rise to or as if to the surface; emerge: "Since then, the revolution has bubbled up again in many forms" (Jonathan Schell). 4. To display irrepressible activity or emotion: bubbling over with excitement. — v. tr. To cause to form bubbles. [From Middle English bubelen, to bubble.]

bubble and squeak (büb'əl ənd skwĕk) n. Chiefly British. Cabbage and potatoes fried together. [Imitative of the sounds made as it cooks.]

bubble bath (büb'əl bǎth) n. 1. A perfumed preparation, such as powdered crystals or a liquid, added to bath water to make it foam. 2. A bath to which such a preparation has been added.

bubble car (büb'əl kār) n. A small, usually three-wheeled automobile with a transparent bubble top.

bubble chamber (büb'əl chām'bər) n. An apparatus in which the movement and collision of ionizing particles is determined by the examination of trails of gas bubbles that form in the paths of the particles as they move through a superheated liquid.

bubble gum (büb'əl güm) n. Chewing gum that can be blown into bubbles.

bub-ble-gum also bub-ble-gum (büb'əl-güm') adj. Informal. 1. Marked by or displaying an adolescent immaturity, as in style or taste. 2. Vapid; bland: “Bubblegum news... is information packaged like a Crazy Kat cartoon” (Tom Shales).

bub-ble-head (büb'əl-hĕd') n. A foolish or empty-headed person: “He presents antiwar protesters... as bubbleheads who didn't even know where Southeast Asia was” (Frank Rich).

bubble memory (büb'əl mĕm'ə-rĕ) n. Computer Science. A memory in which binary digits are represented by the presence or absence of magnetic bubbles.

bubble pack (büb'əl pāk) n. See blister pack.

bub-bler (büb'lər) n. Northern U.S. A drinking fountain. Used especially in Wisconsin.

bubble top (büb'əl tōp) n. 1. A transparent glass or plastic dome, such as one constructed over a swimming pool or courtyard. 2. A transparent, often bullet-proof enclosure forming the top of an automobile. —bub'ble-top' (büb'əl-tōp') adj.

bub-bly (büb'lĕ) adj. 1. Full of or producing bubbles: a bubbly drink; a bubbly soap. 2. Resembling bubbles: big, bubbly clouds. 3. Full of high spirits; effervescent: bright, bubbly children. — n. pl. bub-blies. Informal. Champagne.

bub-by (bööb'ē, bööb'ē) n. pl. bub-bies. Slang. A woman's breast. [Origin unknown.]

Bu-ber (böö'bər), Martin. 1878-1965. Austrian-born Judaic scholar and philosopher whose influential I and Thou (1923) posits a direct personal dialogue between God and the individual.

bu-bo (böö'bō, byōö'-) n. pl. bu-boes. An inflamed, tender swelling of a lymph node, especially in the area of the armpit or groin, that is characteristic of certain infections, such as plague and syphilis. [Middle English, from Late Latin bubō, bubōn-, from Greek boubōn.]

bu·bon·ic plague (bōō-bōn'ik plāg, byōō-) n. A contagious, often fatal epidemic disease caused by the bacterium Yersinia pestis, transmitted from person to person or by the bite of fleas from an infected host, especially a rat, and characterized by chills, fever, vomiting, diarrhea, and the formation of buboes.

bu·bon·o·cele (bōō-bōn'ə-sēl', byōō-) n. A partial hernia of the groin, characterized by swelling in the groin area. [Greek boubōnokēlē : boubōn, groin + kēlē, rupture.]

Bu·ca·ra·man·ga (bōō'kə-rə-māng'gə, -kə-rə-māng'gä) A city of north-central Colombia in the Cordillera Oriental of the Andes. Founded in 1622, it is a leading commercial center. Population, 342,169.

buc·cal (bŭk'əl) adj. Of or relating to the cheeks or the mouth cavity. [From Latin bucca, cheek.]

buc·ca·neer (bŭk'ə-nîr') n. 1. A pirate, especially one of the freebooters who preyed on Spanish shipping in the West Indies during the 17th century. 2. A ruthless speculator or adventurer. [French boucanier, from boucaner, to cure meat, from boucan, barbecue frame, possibly from Arawakan, or Tupinamba (a Tupian language) bocan, rack.] —buc'ca·neer' v.

WORD HISTORY: The Errol Flynn-like figure of the buccaneer pillaging the Spanish Main may seem less dashing if we realize that the term buccaneer corresponds to the word barbecuer. The first recorded use of the French word boucanier, which was borrowed into English, referred to a person on the islands of Hispaniola and Tortuga who hunted wild oxen and boars and smoked the meat in a barbecue frame known in French as a boucan. This French word came from an Arawakan or Tupinamba word meaning “a rack, sometimes used for roasting or for storing things, or a racklike platform supporting an Indian house.” The original barbecuers seem to have subsequently adapted a more remunerative way of life, piracy, which accounts for the new meaning given to the word. Buccaneer is recorded first in 1661 in its earlier sense in English; the sense we are familiar with is recorded in 1690.

buc·ca·neer·ing (bŭk'ə-nîr'ing) adj. Showing boldness and enterprise, as in business, often to the point of recklessness or unscrupulousness.

Bu·ceph·a·lus (byōō-sēf'ə-ləs) n. Alexander the Great's war horse.

Buch·an (bŭk'ən, bŭKH'-), Sir John First Baron Tweedsmuir. 1875-1940. Scottish writer and government official who was governor-general of Canada (1935-1940) but is best known for his adventure novels, such as The Thirty-Nine Steps (1915).

Bu·chan·an (byōō-kān'ən, bə-), James. 1791-1868. The 15th President of the United States (1857-1861). He tried to maintain a balance between proslavery and antislavery factions, but his moderate views angered radicals in both North and South, and he was unable to forestall the secession of South Carolina on December 20, 1860.

Bu·chan·nan (byōō-kän'ən, bə-), James McGill. Born 1919. American economist. He won a 1986 Nobel Prize for the application of economic theories to the analysis of political decision-making.

Bu·cha·rest (bōō'kə-rĕst', byōō'-) The capital and largest city of Romania, in the southeast part of the country on a tributary of the Danube River. Founded in the 14th century, it soon became a fortress and commercial center on the trade route to Constantinople. Population, 1,995,156.

Bu·chen·wald (bōō'kən-wōld', -KHĕn-vält') A village of central Germany near Weimar. It was the site of a Nazi concentration camp during World War II.

Buch·man (böök'mən, бүk'-), Frank Nathan Daniel. 1878-1961. American evangelist who preached at Oxford University in the 1920's, where he founded the Oxford Group, or Buchmanism, which later became the nucleus of Moral Re-Armament.

Buch·ner (böök'nər, böōKH'-), Eduard. 1860-1917. German chemist. He won a 1907 Nobel Prize for the discovery of cell-less fermentation.

Büch·ner (böök'nər, бүKH'-), Georg. 1813-1837. German playwright who blended socialist sympathies with a brutally stark, realistic style in his three plays, Danton's Death, Leonce and Lena, and the fragmentary Woyzeck.

bu·chu (bōō'kōō, byōō'kyōō) n. Any of various shrubs of the southern African genus Agathosma, especially A. betulina and A. crenulata, whose leaves are used as a mild diuretic and also yield an aromatic oil used for flavoring. [Afrikaans boegoe, probably from Zulu bucu, perhaps ultimately of Khoikhoin origin.]

buck¹ (bүk) n. 1. a. The adult male of some animals, such as the deer, antelope, or rabbit. b. Antelope considered as a group: a herd of buck. 2. a. A robust or high-spirited young man. b. A fop. 3. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for a Native American or Black man. 4. An act or instance of bucking: a horse that unseated its rider on the first buck. 5. a. Buckskin. b. bucks. Buckskin breeches or shoes. — v. bucked, buck·ing, bucks. — v. intr. 1. To leap upward arching the back: The horse bucked in fright. 2. To charge with the head lowered; butt. 3. To make sudden jerky movements; jolt: The motor bucked and lurched before it finally ran smoothly. 4. To resist stubbornly and obstinately; balk. 5. Informal. To strive with determination: bucking for a promotion. — v. tr. 1. To throw or toss by bucking: buck off a rider; bucked the packsaddle off its back. 2. To oppose directly and stubbornly; go against: "Los Angeles County, the most populous county in the country, is bucking the trend" (American Demographics). 3. Football. To charge into (an opponent's line) carrying the ball. 4. Archaic. To butt against with the head. — adj. Of the lowest rank in a specified military category: a buck private; a buck sergeant. — phrasal verb. buck up. To summon one's courage or spirits; hearten: My friends tried to buck me up after I lost the contest. [Middle English bukke, from Old English buc, male deer, and bucca, male goat.] —buck'er n.

buck² (bŭk) n. 1. A sawhorse or sawbuck. 2. A leather-covered frame used for gymnastic vaulting. [Alteration (influenced by BUCK¹), of Dutch bok, male goat, trestle, from Middle Dutch boc.]

buck³ (bŭk) n. Informal. 1. A dollar. 2. An amount of money: working overtime to make an extra buck. [Short for BUCKSKIN (from its use in trade).]

buck⁴ (bŭk) n. Games. A counter or marker formerly passed from one poker player to another to indicate an obligation, especially one's turn to deal.

—idiom. the buck stops here. Slang. The ultimate responsibility rests here. [Short for buckhorn knife (from its use as a marker in poker).]

Buck (bŭk), Pearl Sydenstricker. 1892-1973. American writer whose life as a missionary in China lent a vivid immediacy to her novels, including The Good Earth (1931). She won the 1938 Nobel Prize for literature.

buck·a·roo also buck·er·oo (bŭk'ə-rōō') n. pl. buck·a·roos or buck·er·oos. Chiefly California. See cowboy (n., sense 1). [Alteration (perhaps influenced by BUCK¹), of Spanish vaquero, from vaca, cow, from Latin vacca.]

buck·bean (bŭk'bēn') n. A perennial herb (Menyanthes trifoliata) native to the Northern Hemisphere and having trifoliate leaves and clusters of white, pink, or purplish flowers. [Translation of Flemish bocks boonen, goat's beans : bocks, goat's + boonen, beans.]

buck·board (bŭk'bōrd', -bōrd') n. A four-wheeled open carriage with the seat or seats attached to a flexible board running between the front and rear axles. [Obsolete buck, body of a wagon (from Middle English bouk, belly, from Old English būc) + BOARD.]

buck·er·oo (bŭk'ə-rōō') n. Chiefly California. Variant of buckaroo.

buck·et (bŭk'it) n. 1. a. A cylindrical vessel used for holding or carrying liquids or solids; a pail. b. The amount that a bucket can hold: One bucket of paint will be enough for the ceiling. 2. A unit of dry measure in the U.S. Customary System equal to 2 pecks (17.6 liters). See Table at measurement. 3. A receptacle on various machines, such as the scoop of a power shovel or the compartments on a water wheel, used to gather and convey material. 4. Basketball. A basket. — v.

buck·et·ed, buck·et·ing, buck·ets. — v. tr. 1. To hold, carry, or put in a bucket: bucket up water from a well. 2. To ride (a horse) long and hard. — v. intr. 1. To move or proceed rapidly and jerkily: bucketing over the unpaved lane. 2. To make haste; hustle. —idiom. a drop in the bucket. An insufficient or inconsequential amount in comparison with what is required. [Middle English, from Old French buket, of Germanic origin.]

bucket brigade (bŭk'it brī-gād') n. A line of people formed to fight a fire by passing buckets of water from a source to the fire.

bucket seat (bŭk'īt sēt) n. A single, usually low seat with a contoured back, typically used in some automobiles.

bucket shop (bŭk'īt shōp) n. A fraudulent brokerage operation in which orders to buy and sell are accepted but no executions take place. Instead, the operators expect to profit when customers close out their positions at a loss. [From bucket shop, a saloon selling small amounts of liquor in buckets, from its resemblance to the forerunner of such brokerage operations, which dealt in small units of stocks and commodities.]

buck-eye (bŭk'ī') n. 1. Any of various North American trees or shrubs of the genus Aesculus, having palmately compound, opposite leaves, erect panicles of white to red or yellow flowers, and large, shiny seeds with a large attachment scar. All parts of the plant are poisonous. 2. The spiny or smooth fruit of any of these plants. 3. The large, shiny brown seed of such a fruit. [BUCK¹ + EYE.]

buck fever (bŭk fē'vər) n. Nervous excitement felt by a novice hunter at the first sight of game.

buck-horn (bŭk'hôrn') n. 1. The horn of a buck. 2. The material of such a horn, used especially to make handles for knives and tools.

buck-hound (bŭk'hound') n. A hound used for coursing deer.

Buck-ing-ham (bŭk'ing-əm, -hām'), First Duke of Originally George Villiers. 1592-1628. English courtier and statesman whose military and political policies caused continual friction with Parliament. He was assassinated by a disgruntled naval officer.

Buck-ing-ham (bŭk'ing-əm, -hām'), Second Duke of Originally George Villiers. 1628-1687. English courtier who was a prominent member of the influential group known as the Cabal that formed the ministry of Charles II after the Restoration. A vain and ambitious individual, Buckingham was dismissed for misconduct in 1674.

buck-jump (bŭk'jŭmp') v. intr. buck-jumped, buck-jump-ing, buck-jumps. 1. To buck, as a horse or mule does. 2. To move in sudden jerks; lurch. —buck-jump-er n.

buck-le (bŭk'əl) n. 1. A clasp for fastening two ends, as of straps or a belt, in which a device attached to one of the ends is fitted or coupled to the other. 2. An ornament that resembles this clasp, such as a metal square on a shoe or hat. 3. An instance of bending, warping, or crumpling; a bend or bulge. — v. buck-led, buck-ling, buck-les. — v. tr. 1. To fasten with a buckle. 2. To cause to bend, warp, or crumple. — v. intr. 1. To become fastened with a buckle. 2. To bend, warp, or crumple, as under pressure or heat. 3. To give way; collapse: My knees buckled with fear. 4. To succumb, as to exhaustion or authority; give in: finally buckled under the excessive demands of the job. —phrasal verbs. buckle down. To apply oneself with determination. buckle up. To use a safety belt, especially in an automobile. [Middle English bokel, from Old French boucle, from Latin buccula, cheek strap of a helmet, diminutive of bucca, cheek.]

buck·ler (bŭk'lər) n. 1. A small, round shield either carried or worn on the arm. 2. A means of protection; a defense: “has enjoyed a reputation as a shield and buckler for... the academic avant-garde” (Donal Henahan). — v. tr.

buck·lered, buck·ler·ing, buck·lers. To shield; protect. [Middle English bokeler, from Old French bouclier, from boucle, boss on a shield, from Latin buccula, diminutive of bucca, cheek.]

Buck·ley (bŭk'lē), William Frank, Jr. Born 1925. American writer and editor known especially for his caustic, polysyllabic wit.

buck·na·ked (bŭk'næk'id) adv. & adj. Chiefly Southern U.S. Bare-naked. [Origin unknown.]

Buck·ner (bŭk'nər), Simon Bolivar. 1823-1914. American army officer who served in the Mexican War, then became a Confederate general in the Civil War. His son Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr. (1886-1945), commanded U.S. forces in Alaska and the Pacific sector during World War II and was killed in action during the assault on Okinawa.

buck·o (bŭk'ō) n. pl. buck·oes. 1. A blustering or bossy person. 2. Irish. A young man; a lad. [Alteration of BUCK¹.]

buck·pass·ing (bŭk'päs'ing) n. Informal. The shifting of responsibility or blame to another: “smothered in avalanches of recriminations and orgies of buck-passing” (Forbes). [BUCK⁴ (from a poker player's passing the marker, or buck, to the next player when not wanting to deal).] — buck'·pass'er n.

buck·ram (bŭk'rəm) n. 1. A coarse cotton fabric heavily sized with glue, used for stiffening garments and in bookbinding. 2. Archaic. Rigid formality. — adj. Resembling or suggesting buckram, as in stiffness or formality: “a wondrous buckram style” (Thomas Carlyle). — v. tr. buck·rased, buck·ram·ing, buck·rams. To stiffen with or as if with buckram. [Middle English bukeram, fine linen, from Old French boquerant, and from Old Italian bucherame both after Bukhara, from which fine linen was once imported.]

buck·saw (bŭk'sô') n. A woodcutting saw, usually set in an H-shaped frame. [From BUCK².]

buck·shee (bŭk'shē) Chiefly British. n. 1. Something extra or left over that is obtained free. 2. An extra ration. — adj. 1. Free of charge; gratis: “If they deposit these shares, too, in the scheme, they will get further buckshee shares on a one-for-one basis” (Economist). 2. Unsolicited; gratuitous: “The title was a bit of buckshee deceit, and had little to do with the plot” (Financial Times). [Variant of BAKSHEESH.]

buck·shot (bŭk'shöt') n. A large lead shot for shotgun shells, used especially in hunting big game.

buck-skin (bŭk'skĭn') n. 1. a. The skin of a male deer. b. A soft, grayish-yellow leather usually having a suede finish, once made from deerskins but now generally made from sheepskins. 2. buckskins. Clothing, especially breeches or shoes, made from buckskin. 3. A person who wears buckskins, especially an American backwoodsman or soldier in the Revolutionary War. 4. A horse of a grayish-yellow color. —buck'skin' adj.

buck-thorn (bŭk'thŏrn') n. Any of various shrubs or small trees of the genus Rhamnus, which includes several ornamentals and a few medicinal species such as the cascara buckthorn. [Translation of New Latin cervī spīna : cervī, genitive of cervus, buck + spīna, thorn.]

buck-tooth (bŭk'tŏŏth') n. A prominent, projecting upper front tooth. [BUCK¹ + TOOTH.] —buck'toothed' (-tŏŏtht') adj.

buck-wheat (bŭk'hwēt', -wēt') n. 1. a. An annual Asian plant (Fagopyrum esculentum) having clusters of small whitish or pinkish flowers and small, seed-like, triangular fruits. b. The edible fruits of this plant, used either whole or ground into flour. 2. Any of several similar or related plants. [Probably partial translation of Middle Dutch boecweite : boek, beech; see bhāgo- in Appendix + weite, wheat.]

bu-col-ic (byŏŏ-kŏl'ĭk) adj. 1. Of or characteristic of the countryside or its people; rustic. See Synonyms at rural. 2. Of or characteristic of shepherds or flocks; pastoral. — n. 1. A pastoral poem. 2. A farmer or shepherd; a rustic. [Latin bŭcolicus, pastoral, from Greek boukolikos, from boukolos, cowherd : bous, cow; see g^wou- in Appendix + -kolos, herdsman; see k^wel-¹ in Appendix.] —bu-col'i-cal-ly adv.

Bu-co-vi-na (bŏŏ'kə-vē'nə) See Bukovina.

bud¹ (bŭd) n. 1. Botany. a. A small protuberance on a stem or branch, sometimes enclosed in protective scales and containing an undeveloped shoot, leaf, or flower. b. The stage or condition of having buds: branches in full bud.

2. Biology. a. An asexual reproductive structure, as in yeast or a hydra, that consists of an outgrowth capable of developing into a new individual. b. A small, rounded organic part, such as a taste bud, that resembles a plant bud. 3. A person or thing that is not yet fully developed: the bud of a new idea. — v.

bud-ded, bud-ding, buds. — v. intr. 1. To put forth or produce buds: a plant that buds in early spring. 2. To develop or grow from or as if from a bud: "listened sympathetically for a moment, a bemused smile budding forth" (Washington Post). 3. To be in an undeveloped stage or condition. 4. To reproduce asexually by forming a bud. — v. tr. 1. To cause to put forth buds. 2. To graft a bud onto (a plant). [Middle English budde.] —bud'der n.

bud² (bŭd) n. Informal. Friend; chum. Used as a form of familiar address for a man or boy: Move along, bud. [Short for BUDDY.]

Bu·da·pest (bōō'də-pĕst', -pĕstʰ') The capital and largest city of Hungary, in the north-central part of the country on the Danube River. It was formed in 1873 by the union of Buda on the right bank of the river with Pest on the left bank. The city was the center of the Hungarian uprising in 1956. Population, 2,071,484.

Bud·dha¹ (bōō'də, bōōd'ə), Originally Siddhartha Gautama. 563?-483? B.C. Indian mystic and founder of Buddhism. He began preaching after achieving supreme enlightenment at the age of 35.

Bud·dha² (bōō'də, bōōd'ə) n. 1. One who has achieved a state of perfect spiritual enlightenment in accordance with the teachings of Buddha. 2. A representation or likeness of Buddha. [Sanskrit buddha-, enlightened, past participle of bodhati, he awakes. See bheudh- in Appendix.]

Bud·dha·hood (bōō'də-hōōd', bōōd'ə-) n. A state of spiritual enlightenment in accordance with Buddhist teachings.

Bud·dhism (bōō'dīz'əm, bōōd'īz'-) n. 1. The doctrine, attributed to Buddha, that suffering is inseparable from existence but that inward extinction of the self and of worldly desire culminates in a state of spiritual enlightenment beyond both suffering and existence. 2. The religion represented by the many groups, especially numerous in Asia, that profess varying forms of this doctrine and that venerate Buddha. —Bud'dhist adj., n. —Bud·dhis'tic adj.

bud·ding (būd'īng) n. A form of asexual reproduction in which an outgrowth developing on a parent organism detaches to produce a new individual.

bud·dle (būd'l) n. An inclined trough in which crushed ore is washed with running water to flush away impurities. [Probably from Low German buddeln, to agitate.]

bud·dle·ia (būd'lē-ə, būd-lē'ə) n. See butterfly bush. [New Latin, after Adam Buddle (died 1715), British botanist.]

bud·dy (būd'ē) Informal. n. pl. bud·dies. 1. A good friend; a comrade. 2. A partner, especially one of a pair or team associated under the buddy system. 3. Friend or comrade; chum. Used as a form of familiar address, especially for a man or boy: Watch it, buddy. — v. intr. bud·died, bud·dy·ing, bud·dies. To associate as a buddy or buddies: buddied around with the older guys. —phrasal verb. buddy up. To ingratiate oneself, as by presuming friendship: buddied up to the coach in hopes of making the team. [Probably alteration of BROTHER.]

bud·dy·bud·dy (būd'ē-būd'ē) adj. Informal. Showing or marked by great outward friendship.

buddy stores (būd'ē stōrz) pl.n. Aircraft fuel tanks designed to transfer fuel from the host plane to another plane, such as a fighter, during flight.

buddy system (būd'ē sīs'təm) n. An arrangement in which persons are paired, as for mutual safety or assistance.

budge¹ (būj) v. budged, budg·ing, budg·es. — v. intr. 1. To move or stir slightly: The child was stuck tight and couldn't budge. 2. To alter a position or attitude: had made the decision and wouldn't budge. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move slightly. 2. To cause to alter a position or attitude: an adamant critic who couldn't be budged. [Old French bouger, from Vulgar Latin bullicāre*, to bubble, from Latin bullīre, to boil.]

budge² (bŭj) n. Fur made from lambskin dressed with the wool outside, formerly used to trim academic robes. — adj. Archaic. Overformal; pompous. [Middle English bouge, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin bugia, probably from Latin bulga, leather bag. See BUDGET.]

Budge (bŭj), John Donald. Known as “Don.” Born 1915. American tennis player who in 1938 was the first to win the Grand Slam (Wimbledon, French, U.S., and Australian titles).

budg-er-i-gar (bŭj'ə-rē-gär', bŭj'ə-rē'-) n. A parakeet (Melopsittacus undulatus) native to Australia and having green, yellow, or blue plumage. It is a popular cage bird bred in a variety of colors not found in wild populations. Also called shell parakeet [Yuwaalaraay (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) gijirrigaa.]

budg-et (bŭj'it) n. 1. a. An itemized summary of estimated or intended expenditures for a given period along with proposals for financing them: submitted the annual budget to Congress. b. A systematic plan for the expenditure of a usually fixed resource, such as money or time, during a given period: A new car will not be part of our budget this year. c. The total sum of money allocated for a particular purpose or period of time: a project with an annual budget of five million dollars. 2. A stock or collection with definite limits: “his budget of general knowledge” (William Hazlitt). — v. budg-et-ed, budg-et-ing, budg-ets.

— v. tr. 1. To plan in advance the expenditure of: needed help budgeting our income; budgeted my time wisely. 2. To enter or account for in a budget: forgot to budget the car payments. — v. intr. To make or use a budget. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a budget: budget items approved by Congress. 2. Appropriate to a budget; inexpensive: a budget car; budget meals. [Middle English bouget, wallet, from Old French bougette, diminutive of bouge, leather bag, from Latin bulga, of Celtic origin. See bhelgh- in Appendix.] — budg'et-ar'y (bŭj'i-tēr'ē) adj.

— budg'et-er, budg'et-eer' (-ĭ-tĭr') n.

budg-ie (bŭj'ē) n. Informal. A budgerigar.

bud-worm (bŭd'wŭrm') n. A larva of several tortricid moths, especially the spruce budworm, that devours plant buds.

Bu-ell (byō'əl), Don Carlos. 1818-1898. American army officer who was relieved of his Union command after failing to pursue Gen. Braxton Bragg's retreating Confederate troops at the Battle of Perryville in Kentucky (October 8, 1862).

Bue-na Park (bwā'nə pārk) A city of southern California west-northwest of Anaheim. Knott's Berry Farm, a re-created gold rush town, is here. Population, 68,784.

Bue-na-ven-tu-ra (bwā'nə-vən-tōōr'ə, -tyōōr'ə, bwě'nä-vən-tōō'rä) A city of western Colombia on Buenaventura Bay, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. The city was originally settled in the 1540's. Population, 157,528.

Bue-na Vis-ta (bwā'nə vīs'tə, bwě'nä vēs'tä) A locality in northern Mexico just south of Saltillo. In the Mexican War U.S. forces led by Zachary Taylor defeated a Mexican army commanded by Santa Anna on February 22-23, 1847.

Bue-nos Ai-res (bwā'nəs âr'ēz, ī'rīz, bwě'nôs ī'rēs) The capital and largest city of Argentina, in the eastern part of the country on the Río de la Plata. Founded by the Spanish in 1536, it became the national capital in 1862. The highly industrialized city is also a major port. Population, 2,922,829.

buff¹ (būf) n. 1. A soft, thick, undyed leather made chiefly from the skins of buffalo, elk, or oxen. 2. A military uniform coat made of such leather. 3. Color. A pale, light, or moderate yellowish pink to yellow, including moderate orange yellow to light yellowish brown. 4. Informal. Bare skin: swimming in the buff. 5. A piece of soft material, such as velvet or leather, often mounted on a block and used for polishing. — adj. 1. Made or formed of buff: a buff jacket.

2. Color. Of the color buff. — v. tr. buffed, buff-ing, buffs. 1. To polish or shine with a piece of soft material. 2. To soften the surface of (leather) by raising a nap. 3. To make the color of buff. [From obsolete buffle, buffalo, from French buffle, from Late Latin būfalus. See BUFFALO.]

buff² (būf) n. Informal. One that is enthusiastic and knowledgeable about a subject: a Civil War buff. [From the buff-colored uniform worn by New York volunteer firemen around 1920, originally applied to an enthusiast of fires and fire fighting.]

buf-fa-lo (būf'ə-lō') n. pl. buffalo or buf-fa-loes or buf-fa-los. 1. a. Any of several oxlike Old World mammals of the family Bovidae, such as the water buffalo and Cape buffalo. b. The North American bison, Bison bison. 2. The buffalo fish. — v. tr. buf-fa-loed, buf-fa-lo-ing, buf-fa-loses. 1. To intimidate, as by a display of confidence or authority: "The board couldn't buffalo the federal courts as it had the Comptroller" (American Banker). 2. To deceive; hoodwink: "Too often... job seekers have buffaloes lenders as to their competency and training" (H. Jane Lehman). 3. To confuse; bewilder. [Italian bufalo, or Portuguese or Spanish búfalo from Late Latin būfalus, from Latin būbalus, from Greek boubalos.]

WORD HISTORY: The buffalo is so closely associated with the Wild West that it would seem natural to assume that its name comes from a Native American word, as is the case with the words moose and skunk. In fact, however, buffalo can probably be traced back by way of one or more of the Romance languages, such as Portuguese, Spanish, or Italian, through Vulgar Latin and Latin and ultimately to the Greek word boubalos, meaning “an antelope or a buffalo.” The buffalo referred to by the Greek and Latin words was, of course, not the American one but rather an Old World mammal, such as the water buffalo of southern Asia. Applied to the North American mammal, buffalo is in fact a misnomer, bison being the preferred term. As far as everyday usage is concerned, however, buffalo, first recorded for the American mammal in 1635, is older than bison, first recorded in 1774.

Buf·fa·lo (bŭf'ə-lō') A city of western New York at the eastern end of Lake Erie on the Canadian border. It is a major Great Lakes port of entry and an important manufacturing and milling center. Population, 328,123.

buffalo berry (bŭf'ə-lō' bĕr'ē) n. 1. Any of three North American shrubs or small trees of the genus Shepherdia, having small yellowish flowers, drupelike fruits, and foliage that is covered with silvery scales. 2. The berry of any of these plants.

Buffalo Bill (bŭf'ə-lō' bīl) See William Frederick Cody.

buffalo bug (bŭf'ə-lō' bŭg) n. See carpet beetle.

buffalo fish (bŭf'ə-lō' fish) n. Any of several suckers of the genus Ictiobus, having a humped back and found mostly in the Mississippi Valley.

buffalo gnat (bŭf'ə-lō' năt) n. See black fly.

buffalo grass (bŭf'ə-lō' grās) n. A mat-forming perennial grass (Buchloe dactyloides) native to the plains of central North America, important as a forage grass and sometimes used for lawns.

Buffalo Grove (bŭf'ə-lō' grōv) A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 36,427.

buffalo robe (bŭf'ə-lō' rōb) n. The dressed skin of the North American bison, used as a lap robe, cape, or blanket.

Buffalo wings (bŭf'ə-lō' wīngz) pl.n. Fried chicken wings served with hot sauce and blue cheese dressing. [After Buffalo, where they were first served.]

buff-er¹ (bŭf'ər) n. 1. One that buffs, especially a piece of soft leather or cloth used to shine or polish. 2. A buffing wheel.

buff-er² (bŭf'ər) n. 1. Something that lessens or absorbs the shock of an impact. 2. One that protects by intercepting or moderating adverse pressures or influences: “A sense of humor... may have served as a buffer against the... shocks of disappointment” (James Russell Lowell). 3. Something that separates potentially antagonistic entities, as an area between two rival powers that serves to lessen the danger of conflict. 4. Chemistry. A substance that minimizes change in the acidity of a solution when an acid or base is added to the solution. 5. Computer Science. A device or area used to store data temporarily and deliver it at a rate different from that at which it was received. — v. tr. buff-ered, buff-er-ing, buff-ers. 1. To act as a buffer for or between. 2. Chemistry. To treat (a solution) with a buffer. [Perhaps from buff, blow, buffet, from Middle English buffe, short for buffet, from Old French. See BUFFET².] buffer state (bŭf'ər stāt) n. A neutral state lying between two rival or potentially hostile states and serving to prevent conflict between them.

buffer zone (bŭf'ər zōn) n. A neutral area between hostile or belligerent forces that serves to prevent conflict.

buf-fet¹ (bə-fā', bōō-) n. 1. A large sideboard with drawers and cupboards.

2. a. A counter or table from which meals or refreshments are served. b. A restaurant having such a counter. 3. A meal at which guests serve themselves from various dishes displayed on a table or sideboard. — adj. Informally served: a buffet luncheon. [French.]

buf-fet² (bŭf'it) n. A blow or cuff with or as if with the hand. — v.

buf-fet-ed, buf-fet-ing, buf-fets. — v. tr. 1. To hit or beat, especially repeatedly. 2. To strike against forcefully; batter: winds that buffeted the tent. See Synonyms at beat. 3. To drive or force with or as if with repeated blows: was buffeted about from job to job by the vagaries of the economy. 4. To force (one's way) with difficulty. — v. intr. To force one's way with difficulty: a ship buffeting against the wind. [Middle English, from Old French buffet, diminutive of buffe, blow.] — buf'fet-er n.

Buf-fet (bōō-fā'), Bernard. Born 1928. French painter known for his views of Paris and for his somber works, such as The Angel of Destruction, expressing disillusionment and despair.

buf-fi (bōō'fē) n. A plural of buffo.

buff-ing wheel (bŭf'ɪŋ hwēl) n. A wheel covered with a soft material, such as velvet or leather, for shining and polishing metal.

buf-fle-head (bŭf'əl-hēd') n. A small North American diving duck (Bucephala albeola) having black and white plumage and a densely feathered, rounded head. Also called butterball [Obsolete buffle, buffalo (from French, from Late Latin būfalus); see BUFFALO + HEAD.]

buf-fo (bōō'fō) n. pl. buf-fi (-fē) or buf-fos. Music. A man who sings comic opera roles. [Italian, from buffare, to puff, of imitative origin.]

Buf-fon (bōō-fōn'), Comte Georges Louis Leclerc de. 1707-1788. French naturalist whose monumental Histoire Naturelle (36 volumes, 1749-1788; 8 additional volumes completed by assistants and published in 1804) laid the foundation for later studies in biology, zoology, and comparative anatomy.

buf-foon (bə-fōon') n. 1. A clown; a jester: a court buffoon. 2. A person given to clowning and joking. 3. A ludicrous or bumbling person; a fool. [French bouffon, from Old Italian buffone, from buffa, jest, from buffare, to puff, of imitative origin.] — buf-foon'er-y (bə-fōō'nə-rē) n.

bug (bŭg) n. 1. A true bug. 2. An insect or similar organism, such as a centipede or an earwig. 3. a. A disease-producing microorganism: a flu bug. b. The illness or disease so produced: “stomach flu, a cold, or just some bug going around” (David Smollar). 4. a. A defect or difficulty, as in a system or design. b. Computer Science. A defect in the code or routine of a program. 5. An enthusiasm or obsession: got bitten by the writing bug. 6. An enthusiast or devotee; a buff: a model train bug. 7. An electronic listening device, such as a hidden microphone or wiretap, used in surveillance: planted a bug in the suspect’s room. — v. bugged, bug-ging, bugs. — v. intr. To grow large; bulge: My eyes bugged when I saw the mess. — v. tr. 1. a. To annoy; pester. b. To prey on; worry: a memory that bugged me for years. 2. To equip (a room or telephone circuit, for example) with a concealed electronic listening device. 3. To make (the eyes) bulge or grow large. — phrasal verbs. bug off. Slang. To leave someone alone; go away. bug out. Slang. 2. To leave or quit, usually in a hurry. 3. To avoid a responsibility or duty. Often used with on or of: bugged out on his partners at the first sign of trouble. — idiom. put a bug in (someone’s) ear. Informal. To impart useful information to (another) in a subtle, discreet way. [Origin unknown.] — bug’ger n.

Bug (bōog, bōok) 1. Also Western Bug. A river of eastern Europe rising in the southwest Ukraine and flowing about 772 km (480 mi) through Poland to the Vistula River near Warsaw. 2. Also Southern Bug. A river of southern Ukraine rising in the southwest part and flowing about 853 km (530 mi) generally southeast to the Black Sea.

bug-a-boo (bŭg’ə-bōō’) n. pl. bug-a-boos. 1. An object of obsessive, usually exaggerated fear or anxiety: “Boredom, laziness and failure... These bugaboos, magnified by imagination, keep [the workaholic] running” (Dun’s Review). 2. A recurring or persistent problem: “the bugaboos that have plagued vision systems: high price and slow throughput” (Lawrence A. Goshorn). [Perhaps of Celtic origin.]

Bu-gan-da (bōō-găn’də, byōō-) A region and former kingdom of eastern Africa on the northern shore of Lake Victoria in present-day Uganda. It was a British protectorate from 1900 until 1962, when it joined independent Uganda.

bug-bane (bŭg’bān’) n. Any of several plants of the genus Cimicifuga, native to northern temperate regions and including the black cohosh.

bug-bear (bŭg’bâr’) n. 1. A bugaboo. 2. A fearsome imaginary creature, especially one evoked to frighten children. [Obsolete bug, hobgoblin (from Middle English bugge) + BEAR².]

bug-eyed (bŭg’id’) adj. 1. Having protruding eyes. 2. Wide-eyed, as with astonishment or curiosity; agog.

bug-ger (bŭg’ər, bōog’-) n. 1. Vulgar. A sodomite. 2. A contemptible or disreputable person. 3. A fellow; a chap: “He’s a silly little bugger, then” (John le Carré). — v. bug-gered, bug-ger-ing, bug-gers. Vulgar. — v. intr. To practice sodomy. — v. tr. To practice sodomy with. [Middle English bougre, heretic, from Old French boulgre, from Medieval Latin Bulgarus. See BULGAR.]

bug-ger-y (bŭg'ə-rē, bōōg'-) n. Vulgar. Sodomy.

bug-gy¹ (bŭg'ē) n. pl. bug-gies. 1. A small, light, one-horse carriage usually having four wheels in the United States and two wheels in Great Britain. 2. A baby carriage. 3. Informal. An automobile. 4. Chiefly Southern U.S. A shopping cart, especially for groceries. [Origin unknown.]

bug-gy² (bŭg'ē) adj. bug-gi-er, bug-gi-est. 1. Infested with bugs. 2. Slang. Crazy. —bug-gi-ness n.

bug-house (bŭg'hous') n. Slang. A mental health facility. [Probably from BUG, enthusiast.]

bug juice (bŭg jōōs) n. Slang. A sweet flavored drink, such as punch, that is usually not carbonated. [After its unattractive color and flavor.]

bu-gle¹ (byōō'gəl) n. Music. A brass wind instrument somewhat shorter than a trumpet and lacking keys or valves. — v. intr. bu-gled, bu-gling, bu-gles.

1. Music. To sound a bugle. 2. To give forth a deep, prolonged sound similar to the bay of a hound. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin būculus, steer, diminutive of bōs, ox. See g^wou- in Appendix.] —bu'gler n.

bu-gle² (byōō'gəl) n. A tubular glass or plastic bead used to trim clothing. [Origin unknown.]

bu-gle³ (byōō'gəl) n. Bugleweed.

bu-gle-weed (byōō'gəl-wēd') n. Any of several herbs of the genera Ajuga and Lycopus in the mint family, having opposite leaves, square stems, and axillary clusters of purplish to white flowers. [From Middle English bugle, from Old French, from Late Latin būgula (perhaps influenced by būglōssa, bugloss); see BUGLOSS, from Latin būgillō.]

bu-gloss (byōō'glōs', -glōs') n. Any of several usually hairy Old World plants, especially in the genera Anchusa, Brunnera, and Echium, having blue or violet flowers. [Middle English buglosse, from Old French, from Late Latin būglōssa, from Latin būglōssos, from Greek bouglōssos : bous, ox; see g^wou- in Appendix + glōssa, tongue.]

buhl also boule or bouille (bōōl) n. An elaborate inlay of tortoiseshell, ivory, and metal, used especially in decorating furniture. [After André Charles Bouille or Buhl (1642-1732), French woodcarver.]

buhr-stone also burr-stone (bŭr'stōn') n. A tough, silicified limestone formerly used to make millstones. It is typified by the presence of multiple cavities that originally housed fossilized shells. [Variant of BURR¹ + STONE.]

build (bīld) v. built (bīlt), build-ing, builds. — v. tr. 1. To form by combining materials or parts; construct. 2. To order, finance, or supervise the construction of: The administration built several new housing projects. 3. To develop or give form to according to a plan or process; create: build a nation; built a success- ful business out of their corner grocery store. 4. To increase or strengthen by adding gradually to: money building interest in a savings account; build support for a political candidate. 5. To establish a basis for; found or ground: build an argument on fact. — v. intr. 1. To make something by combining materials or parts. 2. To engage in the construction or design of buildings: “Each of the three architects built in a different style” (Dwight Macdonald). 3. To develop in magnitude or extent: clouds building on the horizon. 4. To progress toward a maximum, as of intensity: suspense building from the opening scene to the climax. — n. The physical makeup of a person or thing: an athletic build. See Synonyms at physique. —phrasal verbs. build in (or build into). To construct or include as an integral part of: a wall with shelving that was built in; build stability into the economy. build on (or build upon). To use as a basis or foundation: We must build on our recent success. build up. 3. To develop or increase in stages or by degrees: built up the business; building up my endurance for the marathon. 4. To accumulate or collect: sediment building up on the ocean floor. 5. To bolster: build up the product with a massive ad campaign; built up my hopes after the interview. 6. To fill up (an area) with buildings. [Middle English bilden, from Old English byldan. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

build-a-ble (bīl'də-bəl) adj. Suitable or available for building: “The problem was finding a site that was well located, appropriately zoned... and buildable” (Sam Hall Kaplan).

build-down also build-down (bīld'doun') n. A systematic numerical reduction, especially of nuclear weapons, in which more than one weapon or warhead is destroyed for every new one that is built. [On the model of BUILDUP.]

—build'-down' adj.

build-er (bīl'dər) n. 1. Abbr. bldr. One that builds, especially a person who contracts for and supervises the construction of a building. 2. An abrasive or filler used in a soap or detergent.

build-er-ing (bīl'dər-īng) n. Sports. The art or practice of climbing tall buildings, especially skyscrapers. [On the model of BOULDERING.] —build'er-er n.

build-ing (bīl'dīng) n. 1. Abbr. bldg. Something that is built, as for human habitation; a structure. 2. The act, process, art, or occupation of constructing.

SYNONYMS: building, structure, edifice, pile. All these nouns denote something, such as a house or school, constructed for human habitation or use. Building is the basic, broadly applicable term of the group: an office building; condemned buildings being razed. “The essential thing in a building... is that it be strongly built, and fit for its uses” (John Ruskin). Structure is sometimes interchangeable with building (The ranch was a long, low wooden structure); more often, though, the word implies considerable size: In time their modest house was superseded by an elegant structure of glass and steel. Edifice most frequently implies something large and imposing: The legislature is housed in an impressive granite edifice. Pile suggests the massiveness of stone and frequently denotes a cluster of buildings: “Philip testified his joy... by raising the magnificent pile of the Escorial” (William Hickling Prescott).

building society (bīl'dīŋ sə-sī'ī-tē) n. Chiefly British. A savings and loan association.

build-up also build-up (bīld'üp') n. 1. The act or process of amassing or increasing: a military buildup; a buildup of tension during the strike. 2. The result of building up: a pipe clogged by rust buildup. 3. a. Widely favorable publicity, especially by a systematic campaign: The new movie was given a tremendous buildup in the media. b. Extravagant praise.

built (bīlt) v. Past tense and past participle of build. — adj. 1. Having a specified physique: a heavily built boxer. 2. Informal. Having a well-developed or attractive body: a dancer who is really built.

built-in (bīlt'īn') adj. 1. Constructed as part of a larger unit; not detachable: a built-in cabinet. 2. Forming a permanent or essential element or quality: a built-in escape clause. — built'-in' n.

built-up (bīlt'üp') adj. 1. Made by fastening several layers or sections one on top of the other: a built-up roof. 2. Filled with buildings; developed: a built-up neighborhood.

Buis-son (bwē-sōn'), Ferdinand Édouard. 1841-1932. French educator. An ardent pacifist, he shared the 1927 Nobel Peace Prize.

Bu-jo-nes (bōō-hō'nēs), Fernando. Born 1955. American dancer. In 1974, at the age of 18, he was the first American to win the International Ballet Competition.

Bu-jum-bu-ra (bōō'jəm-bōōr'ə) The capital and largest city of Burundi, in the western part of the country on Lake Tanganyika. Originally called Usumbura, it was renamed when Burundi became independent in 1962. Population, 229,980.

Bu-kha-ra (bōō-kär'ə, -här'ə, -KHä'rə) also Bo-kha-ra (bō-) A city of southern Uzbekistan west of Samarkand. It is one of the oldest cultural and trade centers of Asia and was capital of the former emirate of Bukhara from the 16th to the 19th century. Population, 209,000.

Bu-kha-rin (bōō-kär'īn, -KHär'-), Nikolai Ivanovich. 1888-1938. Bolshevik revolutionary and Soviet politician who advocated gradual agricultural collectivization. He was executed for treason after the last of the Moscow “show trials” of the 1930's.

Bu-ko-vi-na also Bu-co-vi-na (bōō'kə-vē'nə) A historical region of eastern Europe in western Ukraine and northeast Romania. A part of the Roman province of Dacia, it was overrun by barbarian hordes after the third century A.D. The area was later controlled by Kiev, the Ottoman Empire, and Austria.

bul. abbr. Bulletin.

Bu·la·wa·yo (bōō'lə-wā'yō, -wā'-) A city of southwest Zimbabwe near the Botswana border. It was founded by the British in 1893. Population, 413,814.

bulb (būlb) n. 1. Botany. a. A short, modified, underground stem surrounded by usually fleshy modified leaves that contain stored food for the shoot within: an onion bulb; a tulip bulb. b. A similar underground stem or root, such as a corm, rhizome, or tuber. c. A plant that grows from a bulb. 2. A rounded projection or part: the bulb of a syringe. 3. An incandescent lamp or its glass housing. 4. Anatomy. A rounded dilation or expansion of a canal, vessel, or organ. [Latin bulbus, from Greek bolbos, bulbous plant.]

bul·bar (būl'bär, -bär') adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a bulb, especially of the medulla oblongata: bulbar poliomyelitis.

bul·bel (būl'bəl, -bəl') n. 1. A smaller bulb produced from a larger bulb. 2. A bulblet. [French bulbille. See BULBIL.]

bul·bif·er·ous (būl-bif'ər-əs) adj. Bearing or producing bulbs or bulbils.

bul·bil (būl'bəl, -bəl') n. 1. A small bulb or bulblike structure in the place of a flower or in a leaf axil, as in a tiger lily. 2. A bulblet. [French bulbille, diminutive of bulbe, bulb, from Latin bulbus. See BULB.]

bulb·let (būlb'līt) n. A small bulb.

bul·bo·u·re·thral gland (būl'bō-yōō-rē'thrəl gländ) n. Anatomy. Either of two small racemose glands that are located below the prostate and discharge a component of the seminal fluid into the urethra. They are homologous to the Bartholin's glands in the female. Also called Cowper's gland [BULBO(US) + URE-THRAL + GLAND¹.]

bul·bous (būl'bəs) adj. 1. Resembling a bulb in shape; rounded or swollen: a bulbous nose; a bulbous stem base. 2. Botany. Bearing bulbs or growing from a bulb. —bul'bous·ly adv.

bul·bul (bōōl'boōl') n. 1. Any of various passerine, chiefly tropical Old World songbirds of the family Pycnonotidae, having grayish or brownish plumage. 2. A songbird often mentioned in Persian poetry and thought to be a nightingale. [Persian, from Arabic.]

Bul·finch (bōōl'fīnch'), Charles. 1763-1844. American architect whose major works include the Massachusetts State House in Boston (1798) and the completion of the U.S. Capitol (1830).

Bul·finch (bōōl'fīnch'), Thomas. 1796-1867. American writer best known for his books popularizing Greek, Roman, Scandinavian, and Celtic mythology.

Bulg. abbr. Bulgaria; Bulgarian.

Bul·ga·nin (bōōl-gän'īn, -gä'nyīn), Nikolai Aleksandrovich. 1895-1975. Soviet military and political leader who was premier from 1955 to 1958, when he was ousted by Nikita Khrushchev for “anti-Party” activities.

Bul-gar (bŭl'gär', bööl'-) n. See Bulgarian (n., sense 1). [Medieval Latin Bulgarus, from Greek Boulgaros, from Turkic bulghar, of mixed origin, promiscuous, from bulgamakq, to mix.]

Bul-gar-i-a (bŭl-gâr'ē-ə, bööl-) Abbr. Bulg. A country of southeast Europe on the Black Sea. Settled in the 6th century A.D. by Slavic tribes, it was ruled by Turkey from the late 14th to the early 20th century. Sofia is the capital and the largest city. Population, 8,960,679.

Bul-gar-i-an (bŭl-gâr'ē-ən, bööl-) Abbr. Bulg. adj. Of or relating to Bulgaria or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Bulgaria. Also called Bulgar 2. The Slavic language of the Bulgarians.

bulge (bŭlj) n. 1. A protruding part; an outward curve or swelling. 2. Nautical. A bilge. 3. A sudden, usually temporary increase in number or quantity: The baby boom created a bulge in school enrollment. 4. An advantage. — v. bulged, bulg-ing, bulg-es. — v. tr. To cause to curve outward. — v. intr. 1. To curve outward. 2. To swell up. 3. To stick out; protrude. [Middle English, pouch, from Old French bulge, bouge, from Latin bulga, bag, of Celtic origin. See bhelgh- in Appendix.] — bulg'i-ness n. — bulg'y adj.

SYNONYMS: bulge, balloon, belly, jut, overhang, project, protrude. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to curve, spread, or extend outward past the normal or usual limit”: a wallet bulging with money; expenses ballooning; a sail bellying in the wind; a pipe jutting from his mouth; overhanging eaves; projecting teeth; a head protruding from the window.

bul-gur also bul-ghur (bööl-göör', bŭl'gär) n. Cracked wheat grains, often used in Middle Eastern dishes. Also called bulgur wheat [Ottoman Turkish bulghür.]

bu-lim-a-rex-i-a (byō-līm'ə-rĕk'sē-ə, -lē'mə-, böō-) n. An eating disorder in which one alternates between abnormal craving for and aversion to food. It is characterized by episodes of excessive food intake followed by periods of fasting and self-induced vomiting or diarrhea. Also called binge-purge syndrome, binge-vomit syndrome, bulimia nervosa. [BULIM(IA) + (AN)OREXIA.]

bu-lim-i-a (byō-līm'ē-ə, -lē'mē-ə, böō-) n. 1. Insatiable appetite. 2. An eating disorder common among young women of normal or nearly normal weight that is characterized by episodic, uncontrolled binge eating and followed by feelings of guilt, depression, and self-condemnation. It is often associated with measures taken to prevent weight gain, such as dieting or fasting. In this sense, also called binge-eating syndrome [New Latin, from Greek boulimia: bous, ox; see g^wou- in Appendix + limos, hunger.] — bu-lim'ic adj. & n.

bulimia ner-vo-sa (byō-līm'ē-ə nŭr-vō'sə) n. See bulimarexia. [New Latin: BULIMIA + nervosa, consisting of nerves.]

bulk (bŭlk) n. 1. Size, mass, or volume, especially when very large. 2. a. A distinct mass or portion of matter, especially a large one: the dark bulk of buildings against the sky. b. The body of a human being, especially when large. 3. The major portion or greater part: “The great bulk of necessary work can never be anything but painful” (Bertrand Russell). 4. See fiber (n., sense 6). 5. Thickness of paper or cardboard in relation to weight. 6. Abbr. blk. Nautical. A ship’s cargo. — v. bulked, bulk-ing, bulks. — v. intr. 1. To be or appear to be massive in terms of size, volume, or importance; loom: Safety considerations bulked large during development of the new spacecraft. 2. To grow or increase in size or importance. 3. To cohere or form a mass: Certain paper bulks well. — v. tr. 1. To cause to swell or expand. 2. To cause to cohere or form a mass. — adj. Being large in mass, quantity, or volume: a bulk buy; a bulk mailing. — idiom. in bulk. 1. Unpackaged; loose. 2. In large numbers, amounts, or volume. [Middle English, perhaps partly alteration of bouk, belly, trunk of the body (from Old English būc), and partly from Old Norse bulki, cargo, heap; see bhel-² in Appendix.]

bulk-head (bŭlk’hĕd’) n. Abbr. bhd. 1. a. Nautical. One of the upright partitions dividing a ship into compartments and serving to add structural rigidity and to prevent the spread of leakage or fire. b. A partition or wall serving a similar purpose in a vehicle, such as an aircraft or spacecraft. 2. A wall or embankment, as in a mine or along a waterfront, that acts as a protective barrier. 3. Chiefly New England. A horizontal or sloping structure providing access to a cellar stairway. [bulk, stall, partition (perhaps of Scandinavian origin) + HEAD.]

bulk-y (bŭl’kĕ) adj. bulk-i-er, bulk-i-est. 1. Having considerable bulk; massive. 2. Of large size for its weight: a bulky knit. 3. Clumsy to manage; unwieldy. — bulk’i-ly adv. — bulk’i-ness n.

bull¹ (bŭl) n. 1. a. An adult male bovine mammal. b. The uncastrated adult male of domestic cattle. c. The male of certain other large animals, such as the alligator, elephant, or moose. 2. An exceptionally large, strong, and aggressive person. 3. a. An optimist, especially regarding business conditions. b. A person who buys commodities or securities in anticipation of a rise in prices or who tries by speculative purchases to effect such a rise. 4. Slang. A police officer or detective. 5. Vulgar. Empty, foolish, or pretentious talk. — v. bulled, bull-ing, bulls. — v. tr. To push; force. — v. intr. To push ahead or through forcefully: “He bulls through the press horde that encircles the car” (Scott Turow). — adj. 1. Male. 2. Large and strong like a bull. 3. Characterized by rising prices: a bull market. — idiom. grab the bull by the horns (or take the bull by the horns). To deal with a problem directly and resolutely. [Middle English bule, from Old English bula, probably from Old Norse boli. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

bull² (bōōl) n. 1. An official document issued by the pope and sealed with a bulla. 2. The bulla with which such a document is sealed. [Middle English bulle, from Old French, from Medieval Latin bullā. See BULLA.]

bull³ (bōōl) n. A gross blunder in logical speech or expression. [Origin unknown.]

Bull (bōōl) n. See Taurus.

Bull (bōōl, bōōl), Ole Bornemann. 1810-1880. Norwegian violinist who toured extensively through the United States and attempted to found a Norwegian colony in Pennsylvania (1852).

bull. abbr. Bulletin.

bul·la (bōōl'ə) n. pl. bul·lae (bōōl'ē). 1. A round seal affixed to a papal bull.

2. Pathology. A large blister or vesicle. [Medieval Latin, from Latin, bubble, seal.]

bul·lace plum (bōōl'is plūm) n. See damson (n., sense 1). [Middle English bolas, from Anglo-Norman bullace, from Medieval Latin bulluca.] bul·lae (bōōl'ē) n. Plural of bul·la.

bul·late (bōōl'āt', būl'-) adj. Having a puckered or blistered appearance: bul·late leaves. [Latin bullātus, from bul·la, bubble.]

bul·bait·ing (bōōl'bā'tīng) n. The formerly popular sport of setting dogs to attack a chained bull and especially to seize it by the nose.

bul·bat (bōōl'bāt') n. See nighthawk (n., sense 1a). [From its roaring sound in flight.]

bul·boat (bōōl'bōt') n. Nautical. A shallow, saucer-shaped skin boat used especially by Plains Indians for transporting possessions and sometimes persons across rivers or streams.

bul·dog (bōōl'dôg', -dôg') n. 1. Any of a breed of short-haired dog characterized by a large head, strong, square jaws with dewlaps, and a stocky body. It was originally bred for bullbaiting. 2. A short-barreled, large-caliber revolver or pistol. 3. A heat-resistant material used to line puddling furnaces. 4. Chiefly British. A proctor's assistant at Oxford University or Cambridge University. — adj. Stubborn. — v. tr. bul·dogged, bul·dog·ging, bul·dogs. Western U.S. To throw (a calf or steer) by seizing its horns and twisting its neck until the animal falls. — bul'dog'ger n.

bul·doze (bōōl'dôz') v. bul·dozed, bul·doz·ing, bul·doz·es. — v. tr.

1. To clear, dig up, or move with a bulldozer. 2. To treat in an abusive manner; bully. 3. To coerce in an unsympathetic or cruel way. See Synonyms at intimidate. 4. To do away with; demolish: "A massive bipartisan majority voted... to bulldoze the social programs of decades in the next 30 days" (Peter Goldman). —

v. intr. 1. To operate a bulldozer. 2. To proceed forcefully or insensitively: "intends to bulldoze ahead with plans for extensive reconstruction" (New York Times). [Perhaps alteration of obsolete bulldoze, severe beating : BULL¹ + DOSE.]

bull·doz·er (bōōl'dō'zər) n. 1. A heavy, driver-operated machine for clearing and grading land, usually having continuous treads and a broad hydraulic blade in front. 2. An overbearing person; a bully.

bull dyke (bōōl dīk) n. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for a lesbian.

bul·let (bōōl'īt) n. 1. a. A usually metal projectile in the shape of a pointed cylinder or a ball that is expelled from a firearm, especially a rifle or a handgun.

b. Such a projectile in a metal casing; a cartridge. 2. An object resembling a projectile in shape, action, or effect. 3. Printing. A heavy dot (·) used to highlight a particular passage. [French boulette, diminutive of boule, ball, from Old French, from Latin bullā.]

bul·le·tin (bōōl'ī-tŋ, -tīn) n. Abbr. bul., bull. 1. A brief report, especially an official statement on a matter of public interest issued for immediate publication or broadcast. 2. A brief update or summary of current news, as on television or radio or in a newspaper. 3. A periodical, especially one published by an organization or society. 4. A printed program, especially one listing the order of worship for a religious service: a church bulletin. — v. tr. bul·le·tined, bul·le·tin·ing, bul·le·tins. To inform by bulletin. [French, probably from Italian bulletino, diminutive of bolletta, bill diminutive of bolla, bubble, bull. See BULL².]

bulletin board (bōōl'ī-tŋ bōrd) n. 1. A board on which notices are posted.

2. Computer Science. A system that enables users to send or read messages that are of general interest and addressed to no particular person.

bul·let·proof (bōōl'īt-prōōf') adj. Impenetrable by bullets. — v. tr.

bul·let·proofed, bul·let·proof·ing, bul·let·proofs. To make impenetrable by bullets.

bullet train (bōōl'īt trān) n. A high-speed passenger train.

bull fiddle (bōōl fīd'l) n. See double bass.

bull·fight (bōōl'fīt') n. A public spectacle, performed especially in Spain, Portugal, and parts of Latin America, in which a fighting bull is engaged in a series of traditional maneuvers culminating usually with the ceremonial execution of the bull by sword. In Portugal the bull is often fought from horseback and is not killed. — bull'fight'er n. — bull'fight'ing n.

bull·finch (bōōl'fīnch') n. 1. A European bird (Pyrrhula pyrrhula) having a short, thick bill and in the male a red breast, blue-gray back, and black head, wings, and tail. 2. Any of several similar finches.

bull·frog (bōōl'frōg', -frōg') n. Any of several large, heavy-bodied frogs, chiefly of the genus Rana and especially R. catesbeiana, native to North America and having a characteristic deep, resonant croak.

bull·head (bōōl'hēd') n. 1. Any of several large-headed North American freshwater catfishes of the genus Ictalurus. 2. Any of several fishes of the family Cottidae, such as the sculpin and the miller's thumb. 3. Upper Northern U.S. See catfish.

bull-head-ed (bōōl'hĕd'īd) adj. Foolishly or irrationally stubborn; headstrong. See Synonyms at obstinate. —bull/head/ed-ly adv. —bull/head/ed-ness n.

bull-horn (bōōl'hōrn') n. A portable device consisting of a microphone attached to a loudspeaker, used especially to amplify the voice.

Bull-lins (bōōl'īnz), Ed. Born 1935. American writer known primarily for his dramatic works that explore the Black experience, including In the Wine Time (1968).

bul-lion (bōōl'yən) n. 1. a. Gold or silver considered with respect to quantity rather than value. b. Gold or silver in the form of bars, ingots, or plates. 2. A heavy lace trimming made of twisted gold or silver threads. [Middle English, ingot of precious metal, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French billon (from bille, stick); see BILLON, and from Old French bouillon, bubble on the surface of boiling liquid (from boilir, to boil); see BOIL¹.]

bull-ish (bōōl'ish) adj. 1. a. Having a heavy, muscular physique. b. Bullheaded. 2. a. Causing, expecting, or characterized by rising stock market prices: “Cheaper energy is bullish because it stimulates growth” (Eric Gelman). b. Optimistic or confident: bullish on the prospects of reaching a negotiated settlement. —bull/ish-ly adv. —bull/ish-ness n.

Bull-litt (bōōl'īt), William Christian. 1891-1967. American diplomat who was the first ambassador (1933-1936) to the Soviet Union after its recognition by the United States.

bul-mas-tiff (bōōl'mās'tīf) n. A large, heavy-set, powerful dog of a breed developed from the bulldog and the mastiff.

Bull Moose (bōōl mōōs) n. A member or supporter of the U.S. Progressive Party founded to support the presidential candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912. [From the party's emblem.]

Bull Moose Party (bōōl mōōs pār'tē) n. See Progressive Party (n., sense 1).

bull-necked (bōōl'nĕkt') adj. Having a short, thick neck.

bul-lock (bōōl'ək) n. 1. A castrated bull; a steer. 2. A young bull. [Middle English bullok, from Old English bulluc. See bhel-² in Appendix.]

bul-lock's heart (bōōl'əks härt) n. See custard apple.

Bul-lock's oriole (bōōl'əks ôr'ē-ōl') n. A subspecies of the northern oriole in its western range, distinguished from the Baltimore oriole in the male by its orange cheeks and large white wing patches and in the female by its whiter belly. [After William Bullock, 19th-century British naturalist.]

bull-pen (bōōl'pĕn') n. 1. A fenced enclosure for confining bulls. 2. A place for the temporary detention of prisoners. 3. Baseball. a. An area where relief pitchers warm up during a game. b. The relief pitchers of a team considered as a group.

bull-ring (bōōl'ring') n. A circular arena for bullfights.

bull-roarer (bōōl'rōr'ər, -rōr'-) n. A small wooden slat attached to a string that makes a roaring noise when whirled.

Bull Run (bōōl rŭn) A small stream of northeast Virginia southwest of Washington, D.C., near Manassas. It was the site of two important Civil War battles (July 21, 1861, and August 29-30, 1862), both Confederate victories. They are also known as the Battles of Manassas.

bull session (bōōl sĕsh'ən) n. Informal. An informal group discussion.

bull's-eye or bull's eye (bōōlz'ī') n. 1. a. The small central circle on a target.

b. A shot that hits this circle. 2. a. A direct hit: scored a bull's-eye on the window with a snowball. b. The precise accomplishment of a goal or purpose: "With his overflowing style, [he] almost always hits the bull's-eye of universality" (William Zimmer). 3. A thick, circular piece of glass set, as in a roof or ship's deck, to admit light. 4. A circular opening or window. 5. a. A planoconvex lens used to concentrate light. b. A lantern or lamp having such a lens. 6. A piece of round, hard candy.

bull-shit (bōōl'shīt') Obscene. n. Abbr. B.S. Foolish, insolent talk; nonsense.

— v. bull-shit also bull-shat (-shăt) or bull-shit-ted (-shīt'ĭd), bull-shit-ting, bull-shits. — v. intr. 1. To speak foolishly or insolently. 2. To engage in idle conversation. — v. tr. To attempt to mislead or deceive by talking nonsense. — interj. Used to express extreme displeasure or exasperation.

—bull'shit'ter n.

bull snake (bōōl snāk) n. Any of several large, nonvenomous North American snakes of the genus Pituophis that have yellow and brown or black markings and feed chiefly on rodents. Also called gopher snake bull terrier (bōōl tĕr'ē-ər) n. Any of a breed of dog having a short, usually white coat and a tapering muzzle, developed in England by crossing a bulldog with a now extinct breed of terrier.

bull thistle (bōōl thĭs'əl) n. A biennial Eurasian thistle (Cirsium vulgare) in the composite family, naturalized in North America and having heads of purplish flowers and spiny stems and leaves. [From its large head.]

bull tongue (bōōl tŭng) n. A large, detachable plowshare with a single blade, used chiefly for breaking or clearing heavy soil. [From its resemblance to a bull's tongue.]

bull-whip (bōōl'hwĭp', -wĭp') n. A long, plaited rawhide whip with a knotted end. — v. tr. bull-whipped, bull-whip-ping, bull-whips. To whip or beat with a bullwhip.

bul-ly¹ (bōōl'ē) n. pl. bul-lies. 1. A person who is habitually cruel or overbearing, especially to smaller or weaker people. 2. A hired ruffian; a thug. 3. A pimp. 4. Archaic. A fine person. 5. Archaic. A sweetheart. — v. bul-lied, bul-ly-ing, bul-lies. — v. tr. 1. To treat in an overbearing or intimidating manner. See

Synonyms at intimidate. 2. To make (one's way) aggressively. — v. intr. 1. To behave like a bully. 2. To force one's way aggressively or by intimidation: "They bully into line at the gas pump" (Martin Gottfried). — adj. Excellent; splendid: did a bully job of persuading the members. — interj. Used to express approval: Bully for you! [Possibly from Middle Dutch boele, sweetheart, probably alteration of broeder, brother. See bhräter- in Appendix.]

bul-ly² (bōōl'ē) n. Canned or pickled beef. Also called bully beef [Perhaps French bouilli, boiled meat, label on canned beef, from past participle of bouillir, to boil, from Old French boilir. See BOIL¹.]

bul-ly-boy (bōōl'ē-boi') n. 1. An aggressive or pugnacious fellow; a tough. 2. A hired thug; a goon.

bully pulpit (bōōl'ē pōōl'pīt) n. An advantageous position, as for making one's views known or rallying support: "The presidency had been transformed from a bully pulpit on Pennsylvania Avenue to a stage the size of the world" (Hugh Sidey).

bul-ly-rag (bōōl'ē-rāg') also bal-ly-rag (bāl'ē-) v. tr. bul-ly-ragged, bul-ly-rag-ging, bul-ly-rags. To mistreat or intimidate by bullying. [From dialectal ballarag.]

Bü-low (byōō'lō), Prince Bernhard Heinrich Martin Karl von. 1849-1929. German politician and diplomat who was chancellor from 1900 to 1909. As ambassador to Rome (1914) he tried unsuccessfully to keep Italy out of World War I.

Bü-low (byōō'lō), Hans Guido von. 1830-1894. German pianist and conductor considered to be the first modern virtuoso conductor. He was instrumental in popularizing the works of Brahms and Wagner.

bul-rush (bōōl'rūsh') n. 1. Any of various aquatic or wetland herbs of the genus Scirpus, having grasslike leaves and usually clusters of small, often brown spikelets. 2. Any of several wetland plants of similar aspect, such as the papyrus and the cattail. [Middle English bulrish : perhaps alteration (influenced by bule, bull); see BULL¹ of bole, stem; see BOLE¹ + rish, rush; see RUSH².]

bul-wark (bōōl'wærk, -wôrk', būl'-) n. 1. A wall or embankment raised as a defensive fortification; a rampart. 2. Something serving as a defense or safeguard: "We have seen the necessity of the Union, as our bulwark against foreign danger" (James Madison). 3. A breakwater. 4. Often bulwarks. Nautical. The part of a ship's side that is above the upper deck. — v. tr. bul-warked, bul-wark-ing, bul-warks. 1. To fortify with a wall, an embankment, or a rampart. 2. To provide defense or protection for. [Middle English bulwerk, from Middle Dutch bolwerk, from Middle High German bolwerc : bole, plank; see bhel⁻² in Appendix + werc, work (from Old High German); see werg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: bulwark, barricade, breastwork, earthwork, rampart, bastion, par- apet. All of these nouns refer literally to structures used as a defense against attack. A bulwark can be a mound of earth, an embankment, or a wall-like fortification. Barricade pertains broadly to a barrier to passage but usually implies hasty construction to meet an imminent threat. Breastwork denotes a low defensive wall, especially a temporary one hurriedly built. Earthwork is a defensive construction of earth. A rampart, the main defensive structure around a guarded place, is permanent, high, and broad. A bastion is a projecting section of a fortification from which defenders have a wide range of view and fire. Parapet applies to any low fortification, typically a wall atop a rampart. Of these words bulwark, barricade, rampart, and bastion are the most frequently used to refer figuratively to something regarded as being a safeguard or a source of protection: “The only sure bulwark of continuing liberty is a government strong enough to protect the interests of the people, and a people strong enough and well enough informed to maintain its sovereign control over its government” (Franklin D. Roosevelt). It was impossible to break through her barricade of reticence. “There is no rampart that will hold out against malice” (Molière). A free press is one of the bastions of a democracy.

Bul-wer (bōōl'wər), William Henry Lytton Earle Baron Dalling and Bulwer. 1801-1872. British politician and diplomat who negotiated the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty (1850) guaranteeing Anglo-American protection of an isthmian canal in Central America.

Bul-wer-Lyt-ton (bōōl'wər-līt'n), Edward George Earle Lytton First Baron Lytton. 1803-1873. British writer best known for his popular historical novels, especially The Last Days of Pompeii (1834), and for his seemingly endless convoluted sentences.

bum¹ (bŭm) n. 1. A tramp; a vagrant. 2. A lazy or shiftless person, especially one who seeks to live solely by the support of others. 3. An incompetent, insignificant, or obnoxious person: The batter called the pitcher a bum. 4. One who is devoted to a particular activity or milieu: a beach bum. — v. bummed, bum-ming, bums. — v. intr. 1. To live by begging and scavenging from place to place. Often used with around. 2. To loaf. — v. tr. To acquire by begging; cadge. See Synonyms at cadge. — adj. 1. Inferior; worthless: gave me bum advice; did a bum job of fixing the car. 2. Disabled; malfunctioning: a bum shoulder. 3. Unfavorable or unfair: got a bum deal on my final grade for the course. 4. Unpleasant; lousy: had a bum time at the party. — idiom. on the bum. 1. Living as a vagrant or a tramp. 2. Out of order; broken. [Back-formation from BUMMER.]

bum² (bŭm) n. Chiefly British. The buttocks. [Middle English bom.]

bum-ber-shoot (bŭm'bər-shōōt') n. An umbrella. [Alteration of UMBRELLA + alteration of (PARA)CHUTE.]

bum·ble¹ (bŭm'bəɪ) v. bum·bled, bum·bling, bum·bles. — v. intr. 1. To speak in a faltering manner. 2. To move or proceed clumsily. See Synonyms at blunder. — v. tr. To bungle; botch. [Perhaps blend of BUNGLE, and STUMBLE.]

bum·ble² (bŭm'bəɪ) v. intr. bum·bled, bum·bling, bum·bles. To make a humming or droning sound; buzz. — n. A humming or droning sound; a buzz. [Middle English bomblen, of imitative origin.]

bum·ble·bee (bŭm'bəɪ-bē') n. Any of various large, hairy, social bees of the genus Bombus that nest underground. Also called humblebee [BUMBLE² + BEE¹.]

bum·boat (bŭm'bōt') n. Nautical. A small boat used to peddle provisions to ships anchored offshore. [Probably partial translation of Low German bumboot, ship's boat, partial translation of Dutch dialectal bomschuit, small fishing boat : bom, ship's bottom (from Dutch bodem, from Middle Dutch) + schuit, ship.]

bumf or bumph (bŭmf) n. Chiefly British. 1. Printed matter, such as pamphlets, forms, or memorandums, especially of an official nature and deemed of little interest or importance. 2. Toilet paper. [Short for bum fodder.]

bum·fuz·zle (bŭm'füz'əl) v. tr. bum·fuz·zled, bum·fuz·zling, bum·fuz·zles. Chiefly Southern U.S. To confuse. [Probably bum- (probably alteration of BAMBOOZLE) + fuzzle (perhaps blend of FUDDLE, and FUZZY).]

bum·ma·lo (bŭm'ə-lō) n. pl. bum·ma·los. See Bombay duck (n., sense 2). [Marathi bombīla.]

bum·mer (bŭm'ər) n. Slang. 1. a. An adverse reaction to a hallucinogenic drug. b. A disagreeable person, event, or situation. 2. A failure: "Now, the bad news: the book is a bummer" (Newsweek). 3. One who bums, especially for a living. [From BUM¹, adj.. Senses 2 and 3, probably from German Bummler, loafer from bummeln, to loaf.]

bump (bŭmp) v. bumped, bump·ing, bumps. — v. tr. 1. To strike or collide with. 2. To cause to knock against an obstacle. 3. a. To knock to a new position; shift: bumped the crate out of the way. b. To shake up and down; jolt: bumped the child on her knee; was bumped about on a rough flight. 4. a. To displace from a position within a group or organization. b. To deprive (a passenger) of a reserved seat because of overbooking. 5. To raise; boost: bump up the price of gasoline. — v. intr. 1. To hit or knock against something. 2. To proceed with jerks and jolts: bumped along slowly over the rocky terrain. — n. 1. a. A blow, collision, or jolt. b. The sound of something bumping: heard a loud bump in the dark. 2. a. A raised or rounded spot; a bulge. b. A slight swelling or lump. c. Something, such as unevenness or a hole in a road, that causes a bump. 3. A rise or increase, as in prices or enrollment. 4. One of the natural protuberances on the human skull, considered to have significance in phrenology. 5. A forward thrust of the pelvis, as in a burlesque striptease. 6. Slang. A shot of hard liquor, sometimes accompanied by a beer chaser. — phrasal verbs. bump into. To meet by chance: I often bump into him at the supermarket. bump off. Slang. To murder. [Imitative.]

bump·er¹ (bŭm'pər) n. 1. A usually metal or rubber bar attached to either end of a motor vehicle, such as a truck or car, to absorb impact in a collision. 2. A protective device for absorbing shocks or impeding contact.

bump·er² (bŭm'pər) n. 1. A drinking vessel filled to the brim. 2. Something extraordinarily large. — adj. Extraordinarily abundant or full: a bumper crop of corn. [Perhaps from BUMP.]

bumper sticker (bŭm'pər stik'ər) n. A sticker bearing a printed message for display on a vehicle's bumper.

bump·er-to-bump·er (bŭm'pər-tə-bŭm'pər) adj. 1. Traveling close together with bumpers almost touching: The cars were bumper-to-bumper in the tunnel. 2. Moving slowly or stalled as a result of tight spacing between vehicles: bumper-to-bumper traffic. —bump'er-to-bump'er adv.

bumph (bŭmf) n. Variant of bumf.

bump·kin¹ (bŭmp'kĭn, bŭm'-) n. An awkward, unsophisticated person; a yokel. [Perhaps from Flemish boomken, shrub, diminutive of boom, tree; see bheuə- in Appendix, or from Middle Dutch bommekijn, diminutive of bomme, barrel.]

WORD HISTORY: The term bumpkin may at one time have been directed at an entire people rather than that segment of the population living in a rural area. The first recorded appearance of the word in 1570 is glossed by the Latin word Batavus, “Dutchman,” thus making plausible the suggestion that bumpkin may come from either the Middle Dutch word bommekijn, “little barrel,” or the Flemish word boomken, “shrub.” The connection would be between a squat object and the short, rotund figure of the Dutchman in the popular imagination. Any bumpkin would surely prefer this etymology to another suggestion that bumpkin is a derivative of bum, “the rear end.”

bump·kin² (bŭmp'kĭn, bŭm'-) n. Nautical. A short spar projecting from the deck of a ship, used to extend a sail or secure a block or stay. [Probably from Dutch boomken, diminutive of boom, tree. See BOOM².] bump·tious (bŭmp'shəs) adj. Crudely or loudly assertive; pushy. [Perhaps blend of BUMP, and PRESUMPTUOUS.] —bump'tious-ly adv. —bump'-tious-ness n.

bump·y (bŭm'pē) adj. bump·i·er, bump·i·est. 1. Covered with or full of bumps: a bumpy country road. 2. Marked by bumps and jolts; rough: a bumpy flight. —bump'i·ly adv. —bump'i·ness n.

bum's rush (bŭmz rŭsh) n. Forcible ejection from a place.

bun¹ (bŭn) n. 1. A small bread roll, often sweetened or spiced and sometimes containing dried fruit. 2. A tight roll of hair worn at the back of the head. [Middle English bunne, probably from Old French bugne, boil, of Celtic origin.]

bun² (bŭn) n. Slang. A drunken spree. [Origin unknown.]

bun³ (bŭn) n. Slang. One of the buttocks. [Dialectal, hind part of a rabbit or squirrel, from Scottish Gaelic, stump, bottom, from Old Irish.]

bu·na (bōō'nə, byōō'-) n. A synthetic rubber made from the polymerization of butadiene and sodium. [Originally a trademark.]

Bu·nau·Va·ril·la (bōō-nō-vä-rē-ä', bü-), Philippe Jean. 1859-1940. French engineer who organized the company that built the Panama Canal, led the conspiracy that brought about Panama's separation from Colombia, and negotiated (1903) the treaty giving the United States control of the finished canal.

bunch (bŭnch) n. 1. a. A group of things growing close together; a cluster or clump: a bunch of grapes; grass growing in bunches. b. A group of like items or individuals gathered or placed together: a bunch of keys on a ring; people standing around in bunches. 2. Informal. A group of people usually having a common interest or association: My brother and his bunch are basketball fanatics.

3. Informal. A considerable number or amount; a lot: a bunch of trouble; a whole bunch of food. 4. A small lump or swelling; a bump. — v. bunched, bunch-ing, bunch-es. — v. tr. 1. To gather or form into a cluster: bunched my fingers into a fist. 2. To gather together into a group. 3. To gather (fabric) into folds. — v. intr. 1. To form a cluster or group: runners bunching up at the starting line. 2. To be gathered together in folds, as fabric. 3. To swell; protrude.

[Middle English bonche, probably from Flemish bondje, diminutive of bont, bundle, from Middle Dutch. See BUNDLE.] — bunch'i-ness n. — bunch'y adj.

bunch-ber-ry (bŭnch'běr'ē) n. See dwarf cornel.

Bunche (bŭnch), Ralph Johnson. 1904-1971. American diplomat. He won the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize for his work on the United Nations Palestine Commission.

bunch-flow-er (bŭnch'flou'ər) n. A perennial herb (Melanthium virginicum) in the lily family, native to the eastern United States and having narrow leaves and a branched cluster of cream-colored or greenish flowers.

bunch grass or bunch-grass (bŭnch'gräs') n. Any of various grasses in many different genera that grow in clumplike fashion rather than forming a sod or mat.

bunch-ing onion (bŭn'chɪŋ ŭn'yən) n. Any of certain kinds of onion plants, such as the Welsh onion, that does not form a well-developed bulb and is grown for its multiple stems, which are used as scallions.

bun-co also bun-ko (bŭŋg'kō) Informal. n. pl. bun-cos also bun-kos. A swindle in which an unsuspecting person is cheated; a confidence game. — v. tr.

bun-coed also bun-koed, bun-co-ing also bun-ko-ing, bun-cos also bun-kos. To swindle. [Probably alteration of Spanish banca, card game, from Italian banca, bank, of Germanic origin. See BANK².]

bun-combe (bŭng'kəm) n. Variant of bunkum.

bund¹ (bŭnd) n. 1. An embankment or dike, especially in India. 2. A street running along a harbor or waterway, especially in the Far East. [Hindi band, from Persian, from Middle Persian, from Avestan banda-, from Old Iranian. See bhendh- in Appendix.]

bund² (bönd, bŭnd) n. 1. An association, especially a political association. 2. Often Bund. A pro-Nazi German-American organization of the 1930's. 3. Often Bund. A European Jewish socialist movement founded in Russia in 1897. [German, from Middle High German bunt. See bhendh- in Appendix.]

—bund'ist n.

bun-dle (bŭn'dl) n. Abbr. bd., bdl, bdle. 1. A group of objects held together, as by tying or wrapping. 2. Something wrapped or tied up for carrying; a package. 3. Biology. A cluster or strand of closely bound muscle or nerve fibers.

4. Botany. A vascular bundle. 5. Informal. a. A large amount; a lot: had a bundle of fun at the dance. b. A large sum of money: *made a bundle selling real estate.

— v. bun-dled, bun-dling, bun-dles. — v. tr. 1. To tie, wrap, or gather together. 2. To dispatch or dispense of quickly and with little fuss; hustle: bundled the child off to school. 3. To dress (a person) warmly: bundled them up in winter clothes. — v. intr. 1. To hurry; hasten: The children came bundling in from outside. 2. To dress oneself warmly. 3. To sleep in the same bed while fully clothed, a custom formerly practiced by engaged couples in New England and in Wales. [Middle English bundel, probably from Middle Dutch bondel. See bhendh- in Appendix.]

—bun'dler n.

bundle of nerves (bŭn'dl ũv nŭrvz) n. Informal. An extremely nervous person.

bundle scar (bŭn'dl skär) n. A small mark on a leaf scar indicating a point where a vein from the leaf was once connected with the stem.

bundle sheath (bŭn'dl shēth) n. A layer or region of cells surrounding a vascular bundle.

bundt cake (bŭnt kāk, böont) n. A ring-shaped cake baked in a tube pan that has fluted sides. [Originally a trademark.]

bung (bŭng) n. 1. A stopper especially for the hole through which a cask, keg, or barrel is filled or emptied. 2. A bung-hole. — v. tr. bunged, bung-ing, bungs. 1. To close with or as if with a cork or stopper. 2. Informal. To injure or damage: fell on skis and bunged up my leg. 3. Chiefly British. To fling; toss: "The Hungarian director bungs star Klaus Maria Brandauer once more into the breaches of past Teuton history" (Nigel Andrews). [Middle English bunge, from Middle Dutch bonge, from Late Latin puncta, hole, from Latin, feminine past participle of pungere, to prick. See peuk- in Appendix.]

bun-ga-low (bŭng'gə-lō') n. 1. A small house or cottage usually having a single story and sometimes an additional attic story. 2. A thatched or tiled one-story house in India surrounded by a wide verandah. [Hindi baṅglā, Bengali (house), from Bengali, of Bengal.]

bung-hole (bŭng'hōl') n. The hole in a cask, keg, or barrel through which liquid is poured in or drained out.

bun-gle (bŭng'gəl) v. bun-gled, bun-gling, bun-gles. — v. intr. To work or act ineptly or inefficiently. — v. tr. To handle badly; botch. See Synonyms at botch. — n. A clumsy or inept performance; a botch: made a bungle of the case due to inexperience. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] — bun'gler n. — bun'gling-ly adv.

Bu-nin (boō'nĭn, -nĭn), Ivan Alekseevich. 1870-1953. Russian writer best known for his short stories, such as "The Gentleman from San Francisco" (1916). He lived in exile in Paris after 1919 and won the 1933 Nobel Prize for literature.

bun-ion (bŭn'yən) n. A painful, inflamed swelling of the bursa at the first joint of the big toe, characterized by enlargement of the joint and lateral displacement of the toe. [Probably alteration of obsolete bunny, swelling, from Middle English bony, perhaps from Old French bugne. See BUN¹.]

bunk¹ (bŭngk) n. 1. A narrow bed built like a shelf into or against a wall, as in a ship's cabin. 2. A bunk bed. 3. A place for sleeping. — v. bunked, bunk-ing, bunks. — v. intr. 1. a. To sleep in a bunk or bed. b. To stay the night; sleep: bunk over at a friend's house. 2. To go to bed: bunked down early. — v. tr. To provide with sleeping quarters. [Perhaps short for BUNKER.]

bunk² (bŭngk) n. Empty talk; nonsense. [Short for BUNKUM.]

bunk bed (bŭngk bĕd) n. Either of a pair of narrow beds stacked one on top of the other.

bun-ker (bŭng'kər) n. 1. a. A bin or tank especially for fuel storage, as on a ship. b. Often bunkers. Fuel, such as coal or fuel oil, used especially in ships. 2. a. An underground defensive position with a fortified projection above ground level for gun emplacements. b. A protective chamber: watched the missile launch from a bunker. 3. Sports. A sand trap serving as an obstacle on a golf course. — v. tr. bun-kered, bun-ker-ing, bun-kers. 1. To store or place (fuel) in a bunker. 2. Sports. To hit (a golf ball) into a bunker. [Scots bonker, chest, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] — bun'ker adj.

Bun-ker Hill (bŭng'kər hĭl) A low elevation, 32.6 m (107 ft) high, in Charlestown, a section of Boston, Massachusetts. The first major Revolutionary War battle took place on nearby Breed's Hill on June 17, 1775.

bun-ker-ing (bŭng'kər-ĭng) n. Nautical. The act or process of supplying a ship with fuel.

bunk-house (bŭngk'hous') n. A building providing sleeping quarters on a ranch or in a camp.

bunk-mate (bŭngk'māt') n. A person with whom one shares sleeping quarters.

bun-ko (bŭng'kō) n. & v. Variant of bunco.

bunk-room (bŭngk'rōōm', -rōōm') n. A room providing usually temporary sleeping quarters, as for workers or travelers.

bun-kum also bun-combe (bŭng'kəm) n. Empty or insincere talk; claptrap. [After Buncombe, a county of western North Carolina, from a remark made around 1820 by its congressman, who felt obligated to give a dull speech "for Buncombe".]

bun-ny (bŭn'ē) n. pl. bun-nies. A rabbit, especially a young one. [Dialectal bun, tail of a rabbit. See BUN³.]

Bun-ra-ku (bōōn-rä'kōō, bōōn'rä'-) n. A traditional Japanese puppet theater featuring large puppets operated by on-stage puppeteers with a narrative recited from off-stage. The puppets have heads, hands, and feet of wood attached to a bodiless cloth costume. [Japanese : after the Bunraku-za theater built in the early 19th century by Bunraku-ken Oemurea (died 1810).]

Bun-sen (bŭn'sən), Robert Wilhelm. 1811-1899. German chemist who pioneered in spectrum analysis and codiscovered the elements cesium and rubidium. He introduced the Bunsen burner in 1855.

Bunsen burner (bŭn'sən būr'nər) n. A small laboratory burner consisting of a vertical metal tube connected to a gas source and producing a very hot flame from a mixture of gas and air let in through adjustable holes at the base. [After Robert Wilhelm BUNSEN.]

bunt¹ (bŭnt) v. bunt-ed, bunt-ing, bunts. — v. tr. 1. Baseball. To bat (a pitched ball) by tapping it lightly so that the ball rolls slowly in front of the infielders. 2. To push or strike with or as if with the head; butt. — v. intr. 1. Baseball. To bat a pitched ball by tapping it lightly, causing it to roll slowly in front of the infielders. 2. To butt. — n. 1. Baseball. a. The act of bunting. b. A bunted ball. 2. A butt with or as if with the head. [Dialectal, to push, strike.] — bunt'er n.

bunt² (bŭnt) n. 1. Nautical. The middle portion of a sail, especially a square one, that is shaped like a pouch to increase the effect of the wind. 2. The pouch-like midsection of a fishing net in which the catch is concentrated. [Perhaps from Swedish bunt, or Danish bundt both of Low German origin.]

bunt³ (bŭnt) n. A smut disease of wheat and other cereal grasses, caused by fungi of the genus Tilletia and resulting in grains filled with foul-smelling, sooty black spores. [Origin unknown.]

bunt-ing¹ (bŭn'ting) n. 1. A light cotton or woolen cloth used for making flags. 2. Flags considered as a group. 3. Strips of cloth or material usually in the colors of the national flag, used especially as drapery or streamers for festive decoration. [Perhaps from German bunt, colored.]

bunt-ing² (bŭn'tĩng) n. Any of various birds of the family Fringillidae, having short, cone-shaped bills and brownish or grayish plumage. [Middle English.]

bunt-ing³ (bŭn'tĩng) n. A snug-fitting, hooded sleeping bag of heavy material for infants. [Perhaps from Scots buntin, plump, short.]

bunt-line (bŭnt'lĩn, -lĩn') n. Nautical. A rope that keeps a square sail from bellying when it is being hauled up for furling. [BUNT² + LINE¹.]

Bunt-line (bŭnt'lĩn, -lĩn'), Ned. See Edward Zane Carroll Judson.

Bu-ñu-el (boō-nyōō-ěł'), Luis. 1900-1983. Spanish director known for his studies of modern social manners in films such as Belle de Jour (1966) and The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie (1972).

bun-ya-bun-ya also bun-ya-bun-ya (bŭn'yə-bŭn'yə) n. An Australian evergreen coniferous tree (Araucaria bidwilli) having tiers of nearly whorled branches, sharp-pointed leaves, and large cones. Also called bunya pine [From Wiradhuri (Aboriginal language of southeast Australia) bunya.]

Bun-yan (bŭn'yən), John. 1628-1688. English preacher and writer celebrated for his Pilgrim's Progress (two parts, 1678 and 1684), the allegorical tale of Christian's journey from the City of Destruction to the Celestial City.

Bun-yan-esque (bŭn'yə-něsk') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or suggestive of the allegorical writings of John Bunyan. 2. a. Of, relating to, or suggestive of the legend of Paul Bunyan. b. Of astonishingly large size: "Bunyanesque waves... crunched homes and municipal piers into little more than kindling wood" (Time).

bun-ya pine (bŭn'yə pĩn) n. See bunya-bunya.

bun-yip (bŭn'yĩp) n. Australian. 1. An imaginary monster inhabiting swamps and lagoons. 2. An imposter; a fake. [Wemba (Aboriginal language of southwestern Australia) banib.]

Buo-non-ci-ni (bwō'nôn-chē'nē) See Bononcini.

buoy (boō'ē, boi) n. 1. Nautical. A float, often having a bell or light, moored in water as a warning of danger or as a marker for a channel. 2. A life buoy. — v. tr. buoyed, buoy-ing, buoys. 1. To keep afloat or aloft: a glider buoyed by air currents. 2. a. To maintain at a high level; support: "the persistent... takeover speculation, which has buoyed up the shares of banks" (Financial Times). b. To hearten or inspire; uplift: "buoyed up by the team spirit and the pride of the older generation back at home" (Judith Martin). 3. To mark with or as if with a buoy. [Middle English boie, from Old French boue, probably of Germanic origin. See bhā-¹ in Appendix.]

buoy-ance (boi'əns, boō'yəns) n. Buoyancy.

buoy-an-cy (boi'ən-sē, boō'yən-) n. 1. a. The tendency or capacity to remain afloat in a liquid or rise in air or gas. b. The upward force that a fluid exerts on an object less dense than itself. 2. Ability to recover quickly from setbacks; resilience. 3. Lightness of spirit; cheerfulness.

buoy·ant (boi'ənt, bōō'yənt) adj. 1. Having or marked by buoyancy: a buoyant balloon; buoyant spirits. 2. Lighthearted; gay: in a buoyant mood. [Spanish boyante, present participle of boyar, to refloat a boat, from boya, buoy, from Old French boue. See BUOY.] —buoy'ant·ly adv.

bu·pres·tid (byōō-prēs'tid) n. Any of various beetles of the family Buprestidae, which are destructive wood borers as larvae and often have a metallic red, green, or blue color. [From New Latin Būprēstidae, family name, from Būprēstis, type genus, from Latin būprēstis, beetle harmful to cattle, from Greek bouprēstis: bous, ox; see g^wou- in Appendix + prēthein, to swell up.]

bur¹ also burr (bûr) n. 1. a. A rough, prickly husk or covering surrounding the seeds or fruits of plants such as the chestnut or the burdock. b. A plant producing such husks or coverings. 2. A persistently clinging or nettlesome person or thing. 3. A rough protuberance, especially a burl on a tree. 4. Any of various rotary cutting tools designed to be attached to a drill. [Middle English burre, of Scandinavian origin.]

bur² (bûr) n. & v. Variant of burr².

bur³ (bûr) n. Variant of burr³.

bur. abbr. Bureau.

Bur. abbr. Burma; Burmese.

bu·ran (bōō-rän') n. A violent windstorm of the Eurasian steppes, accompanied in summer by dust and in winter by snow. [Russian, probably from Tatar.]

'burb also burb (bûrb) n. Informal. A suburb: "when the condos get so dense out in those 'burbs that the deer have to run right through hot tubs" (Russell Baker).

[Short for SUBURB.]

Bur·bage (bûr'bāj), Richard. 1567?-1619. English actor and theater manager. The foremost tragedian of his day, he was the first to play the title roles in Shakespeare's Hamlet, King Lear, Othello, and Richard III.

Bur·bank (bûr'bāngk') 1. A city of southern California near Los Angeles. There are several motion picture and television studios here. Population, 93,643. 2. A city of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 27,600.

Bur·bank (bûr'bāngk'), Luther. 1849-1926. American horticulturist who developed countless new varieties of fruits, vegetables, and flowers, including the Burbank potato and the Shasta daisy.

Bur·bidge (bûr'bīj), (Eleanor) Margaret. Born 1919. British-born American astronomer who worked on the composition of the interior of the stars. She was director of the Royal Greenwich Observatory (1972-1973).

bur·ble (bûr'bəl) n. 1. A gurgling or bubbling sound, as of running water. 2. A rapid, excited flow of speech. 3. A separation in the boundary layer of fluid about a moving streamlined body, such as the wing of an airplane, causing a breakdown in the smooth flow of fluid and resulting in turbulence. — v. intr.

bur·bled, bur·bling, bur·bles. 1. To bubble; gurgle. 2. To speak quickly and excitedly; gush. [Middle English burblen, to bubble.] —bur'bler n. —bur'bly adj.

bur·bot (bûr'bət) n. pl. burbot or bur·bots. A freshwater fish (Lota lota) of the Northern Hemisphere, related to and resembling the cod and having barbels on the nose and chin. Also called cusks, eelpout. [Middle English, from Old French borbote, from borbeter, to move about in mud.]

Burch·field (bûrch'fēld'), Charles Ephraim. 1893-1967. American painter whose works, usually in watercolor, include landscapes and somber urban scenes.

Burck·hardt (bōork'härt), Jacob or Jakob. 1818-1897. Swiss historian who was one of the founders of the culturally oriented school of modern historical writing. His classic work is The Civilization of the Renaissance in Italy (1860).

bur cucumber (bûr kyōō'kūm'bər) n. 1. A weedy, annual, tendril-bearing vine (Sicyos angulatus) native to North America and having small whitish flowers and clusters of small fruits covered with long, slender prickles. 2. The fruit of this vine.

bur·den¹ (bûr'dn) n. 1. Something that is carried. 2. a. Something that is emotionally difficult to bear. b. A source of great worry or stress; weight: The burden of economic sacrifice rests on the workers of the plant. 3. A responsibility or duty: The burden of organizing the campaign fell to me. 4. Nautical. a. The amount of cargo that a vessel can carry. b. The weight of the cargo carried by a vessel at one time. — v. tr. bur·dened, bur·den·ing, bur·dens. 1. To weigh down; oppress. 2. To load or overload. [Middle English, from Old English byrthen. See bher¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: burden, affliction, cross, trial, tribulation. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something that is onerous or troublesome”: the burden of a guilty conscience; indebtedness that is an affliction; illness that is her cross; sitting still, a trial to the very young; domestic tribulations.

bur·den² (bûr'dn) n. 1. A principal or recurring idea; a theme: “The burden of what he said was to defend enthusiastically the conservative aristocracy” (J.A. Froude). See Synonyms at substance. 2. Music. a. The chorus or refrain of a composition. b. The drone of a bagpipe. c. Archaic. The bass accompaniment to a song. [Variant of BOURDON.]

burden of proof (bûr'dn ïv prōof) n. Law. The responsibility of proving a disputed charge or allegation.

bur·den·some (bûr'dn-səm) adj. Of or like a burden; onerous.

—bur'den·some·ly adv. —bur'den·some·ness n.

SYNONYMS: burdensome, onerous, oppressive, arduous, demanding, rigorous, exacting. These adjectives all apply to what imposes a severe test of bodily or spiritual strength. Burdensome is associated with both mental and physical hardship: The burdensome task of preparing her income tax return awaited her. Onerous adds to burdensome the connotation of the figuratively heavy load imposed by something irksome or annoying: My duties weren't onerous; I only had to greet the guests. Something oppressive weighs one down in body or spirit, as by subjection to an overpowering natural influence or to the harsh or unjust exercise of power: oppressive humidity. “Old forms of government finally grow so oppressive that they must be thrown off” (Herbert Spencer). Arduous emphasizes the expenditure of sustained and often exhausting labor: Learning a new role is a long and arduous undertaking. Demanding, rigorous, and exacting imply the imposition of severe and uncompromising demands: Music is a demanding art. “Yet out of this unflattering, rigorous realism... Swift made great art” (M.D. Aeschliman). Making a petit point pillow is exacting work.

bur-dock (bûr'dök') n. Any of several weedy, chiefly biennial plants of the genus Arctium in the composite family, having pink or purplish flower heads surrounded by prickly bracts and forming a bur in fruit. [BUR¹ + DOCK⁴.]

bu-reau (byöör'ō) n. pl. bu-reaus or bu-reaux (-ōz). 1. A chest of drawers, especially a dresser for holding clothes. 2. Chiefly British. A writing desk or writing table with drawers. 3. Abbr. bur., bu. a. A government department or a subdivision of a department. b. An office, usually of a large organization, that is responsible for a specific duty: a news bureau. c. A business that offers information of a specified kind: a travel bureau. [French, cloth cover for desks, desk, office, from Old French burel, woolen cloth, probably from Vulgar Latin būra*, from Late Latin burra, shaggy garment.]

bu-reauc-ra-cy (byöō-rök'rə-sē) n. pl. bu-reauc-ra-cies.

1. a. Administration of a government chiefly through bureaus or departments staffed with nonelected officials. b. The departments and their officials as a group: promised to reorganize the federal bureaucracy. 2. Management or administration marked by diffusion of authority among numerous offices and adherence to inflexible rules of operation: “knew something about bureaucracy and those nameless, faceless forces that can crush the life's blood from the individual” (Rollene W. Saal). 3. An administrative system in which the need or inclination to follow complex procedures impedes effective action: innovative ideas that get bogged down in red tape and bureaucracy. [French bureaucratie : bureau, office; see BUREAU + -cratie, rule (from Old French); see -CRACY.]

bu-reau-crat (byöör'ə-krät') n. 1. An official of a bureaucracy. 2. An official who is rigidly devoted to the details of administrative procedure.

—bu'reau-crat'ic adj. —bu'reau-crat'i-cal-ly adv.

bu-reau-crat-ese (byöör'ə-krä-tēz', -tēs') n. A style of language characterized by jargon and euphemism that is used especially by bureaucrats: “Soviet bureau- cratese, especially the tongue-twisting acronyms and alien-sounding portmanteau words of the state security apparatus” (Strobe Talbott).

bu·reau·cra·tize (byōō-rōk’rə-tīz’) v. tr. bu·reau·cra·tized, bu·reau·cra·tiz·ing, bu·reau·cra·tiz·es. To make into a bureaucracy or bring under bureaucratic control: “The failure of communication is built—or... bureaucratized—into the legal system” (Anatole Broyard). —bu·reau’cra·ti·za’tion (-tī-zā’shən) n.

bu·reaux (byōōr’ōz) n. A plural of bureau.

bu·rette also bu·ret (byōō-rēt’) n. A uniform-bore glass tube with fine graduations and a stopcock at the bottom, used especially in laboratory procedures for accurate fluid dispensing and measurement. [French, diminutive of buire, vase for liquors, from Old French, probably of Germanic origin.]

burg (bûrg) n. 1. Informal. A city or town: “There are no more opportunities for you in this burg” (Damon Runyon). 2. A fortified or walled town in early or medieval Europe. [Probably from -burg in place names, such as Plattsburg, Harrisburg, from Middle English burgh, town, from Old English burg. Sense 2, ultimately from Germanic burgs*, hill fort. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

bur·gage (bûr’gĭj) n. A tenure in England and Scotland under which property of the king or a lord in a town was held in return for a yearly rent or the rendering of a service. [Middle English, from Old French bourgage, from Medieval Latin burgāgium, from Late Latin burgus, fortified town, of Germanic origin. See BURGESS.]

bur·gee (bər-jē’, bûr’jē) n. Nautical. A small distinguishing flag displayed by a yacht. [Perhaps from French dialectal bourgeois, shipowner, from Old French burgeis, citizen, from bourg, bourg. See BOURG.]

bur·geon also bour·geon (bûr’jən) v. intr. bur·geoned, bur·geon·ing, bur·geons. 1. a. To put forth new buds, leaves, or greenery; sprout. b. To begin to grow or blossom. 2. Usage Problem. To grow and flourish. [Middle English burgeonen, from Old French borjoner, from burjon, a bud, from Vulgar Latin burriōnem*, from Late Latin burra, a shaggy garment.]

USAGE NOTE: Burgeon has gained greater acceptance in recent years in its use to mean not just “to put forth buds” but more generally “to grow and flourish.” In 1969 only 49 percent of the Usage Panel accepted the phrase the burgeoning population of Queens; in our most recent survey 74 percent accepted the same phrase. However, it should be noted that in this use burgeon is more acceptable when it takes the form of the present participle. Only 29 percent of the current Panel accepts the sentence News programs are less expensive to produce than entertainment series, and the public’s appetite for them has burgeoned.

burg·er (bûr'gær) n. 1. A sandwich consisting of a bun, a cooked beef patty, and often other ingredients such as cheese, onion slices, lettuce, or condiments. Often used in combination: a cheeseburger. 2. A sandwich with a nonbeef filling. Often used in combination: a crab burger, a tofu burger. [Short for HAMBURGER.]

Bur·ger (bûr'gær), Warren Earl. 1907-1995. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1969-1986).

Bür·ger (böör'gær), Gottfried August. 1747-1794. German romantic poet who was influential in the revival of interest in folk songs. His ballads include "Lenore" (1773).

bur·gess (bûr'jis) n. 1. A freeman or citizen of an English borough. 2. A member of the English Parliament who once represented a town, borough, or university. 3. A member of the lower house of the legislature of colonial Virginia or Maryland. [Middle English burgeis, from Old French, from Late Latin burgēnsis, from burgus, fortified town. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

Bur·gess (bûr'jis), Anthony. 1917-1993. British writer and critic noted for his comic novels, including the futuristic classic A Clockwork Orange (1962).

Bur·gess (bûr'jis), (Frank) Gelett. 1866-1951. American writer and illustrator whose works include Are You a Bromide? (1907) and Look Eleven Years Younger (1937). He also wrote the famous quatrain beginning "Have you ever seen a purple cow?"

burgh (bûrg) n. A chartered town or borough in Scotland. [Scots, variant of BOROUGH.]

burgh·er (bûr'gær) n. 1. A citizen of a town or borough. 2. A comfortable or complacent member of the middle class. 3. a. A member of the mercantile class of a medieval European city. b. A citizen of a medieval European city. [German Bürger, or Dutch burger both from Middle High German burgaere, from Old High German burgāri, from burg, city. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

Burgh·ley (bûr'lē), First Baron. See William Cecil.

bur·glar (bûr'glær) n. One who commits burglary. [Anglo-Norman burgler (alteration of burgesar, probably from Old French burg, borough), Medieval Latin burgulātor (alteration of burgātor, from burgāre, to commit burglary in, from Late Latin burgus, fortified town) both of Germanic origin. See bhergh-² in Appendix.]

bur·glar·i·ous (bær-glâr'ē-əs) adj. Of or relating to burglary.

—bur·glar'i·ous·ly adv.

bur·glar·ize (bûr'glæ-rīz') v. bur·glar·ized, bur·glar·iz·ing, bur·glar·iz·es.

— v. tr. 1. To enter and steal from (a building or other premises). 2. To commit burglary against: The second-floor tenants have been burglarized twice. — v. intr. To commit burglary.

bur·glar·proof (bûr'glær-prōof') adj. Secure against burglary.

bur·gla·ry (bûr'glə-rē) n. pl. bur·gla·ries. The act of entering a building or other premises with the intent to commit theft.

bur·gle (bûr'gəl) v. tr. intr. bur·gled, bur·gling, bur·gles. To burglarize. [Back-formation from BURGLAR.]

bur·go·mas·ter (bûr'gə-mäs'tər) n. The principal magistrate, comparable to a mayor, of a city or town in the Netherlands, Flanders, Austria, or Germany. [Partial translation of Dutch burgemeester : burg, town (from Middle Dutch burch); see bhergh-² in Appendix + meester, master.]

bur·go·net (bûr'gə-nīt, bûr'gə-nēt') n. A light steel helmet with a peak and hinged flaps covering the cheeks, worn in the 16th century. [Old French bourguignotte, probably from Bourgogne, Burgundy, a region of eastern France.]

bur·goo (bûr'gōō', bər-gōō') n. pl. bur·goos. 1. New England. Any of several thick stews, originally an oatmeal porridge. 2. Kentucky. a. A spicy stew made of poultry, game, other meats, and vegetables, usually cooked outdoors. b. A picnic featuring such a stew. [Perhaps alteration of RAGOUT.]

Bur·gos (bōōr'gōs') A city of northern Spain on a high plateau south-southwest of Bilbao. Founded c. 884, it was the capital of the kingdom of Castile in the 11th century. Population, 155,849.

Bur·goyne (bûr-goin', bûr'goin'), John. Known as "Gentleman Johnny." 1722-1792. British general and playwright. In the American Revolution he captured Fort Ticonderoga (July 6, 1777) but lost the Battle of Saratoga (October 17, 1777). The Heiress (1786) was his most popular play.

Bur·gun·dy¹ (bûr'gən-dē) 1. A ducal house of Burgundy split into the Capetian line (1032-1361) and the Cadet, or Valois, line (1363-1477). 2. A Portuguese dynasty (1139-1383) beginning with Alfonso I, who made Portugal an independent kingdom.

Bur·gun·dy² (bûr'gən-dē) also Bour·gogne (bōōr-gôn'yə) A historical region and former province of eastern France. The area was first organized into a kingdom by the Burgundii in the 5th century A.D. At the height of its later power in the 14th and 15th centuries, Burgundy controlled vast territories in present-day Netherlands, Belgium, and northeast France. It was incorporated into the French crown lands by Louis XI in 1477. —Bur·gun'di·an (bər-gŭn'dē-ən) adj. & n.

Bur·gun·dy³ (bûr'gən-dē) n. pl. Bur·gun·dies. 1. a. Any of various red or white wines produced in Burgundy, France. b. Any of various similar wines produced elsewhere. 2. burgundy. Color. A dark grayish or blackish red to dark purplish red or reddish brown.

bur·i·al (bĕr'ē-əl) n. The act or process of burying. [Middle English burial, back-formation from burials (taken as pl.), from Old English byrgels. See bhergh-¹ in Appendix.] —bur'i·al adj.

bu·rin (byōōr'īn, bûr'-) n. 1. A steel cutting tool with a sharp beveled point, used in engraving or carving stone. 2. The style or technique of an engraver's work. 3. Archaeology. An early flint tool with a head like a chisel. [French, probably from obsolete Italian burino, of Germanic origin.]

Burk or Burke (bûrk), Martha Jane. Known as "Calamity Jane." 1852?-1903. American frontierswoman and legendary figure of the Wild West. Often dressed in men's clothing, she was reputed to be a crack shot and an expert rider.

burke (bûrk) v. tr. burked, burk-ing, burkes. 1. To suppress or extinguish quietly; stifle: burked the investigation by failing to reappoint the commission. 2. To avoid; disregard: "To make The Tempest a tragic and depressing play he was willing to burke all the elements that made it the exact opposite" (Robert M. Adams). 3. To execute (someone) by suffocation so as to leave the body intact and suitable for dissection. [After William Burke (1792-1829), Irish-born grave robber and murderer.]

Burke (bûrk), Billie. 1886-1970. American actress who appeared frequently with John Drew and made numerous motion pictures, including The Wizard of Oz (1939).

Burke (bûrk), Edmund. 1729-1797. Irish-born British politician and writer. Famous for his oratory, he pleaded the cause of the American colonists in Parliament and was instrumental in developing the notions of party responsibility and a loyal opposition within the parliamentary system. His major work, Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790), voices his opposition to the excesses of the French experience.

Burke (bûrk), Martha Jane. See Martha Jane Burk.

Bur·ki·na Fa·so (bər-kē'nə fä'sō) Formerly Up·per Vol·ta (ŭp'ər vŏl'tə, vŏl'-, vŏl'-). A landlocked country of western Africa. It was a French protectorate from 1896 until 1960, when it gained its independence. The name of the country was officially changed on August 4, 1984. Ouagadougou is the capital and the largest city. Population, 6,965,886.

Bur·kitt's lymphoma (bûr'kīts lĭm-fŏ'mə) n. An undifferentiated malignant lymphoma usually occurring among children in central Africa, characterized by a large osteolytic lesion in the mandible or by a mass in the retroperitoneal area and associated with the Epstein-Barr virus. Also called Burkitt's tumor [After Denis Parsons Burkitt, 20th-century Ugandan physician.]

burl (bûrl) n. 1. A knot, lump, or slub in yarn or cloth. 2. a. A large, rounded outgrowth on the trunk or branch of a tree. b. The wood cut from such an outgrowth, often used decoratively as a veneer. — v. tr. burled, burl-ing, burls. To dress or finish (cloth) by removing knots, lumps, slubs, or loose threads. [Middle English burle, from Old French bourle, tuft of wool, diminutive of bourre, coarse wool, from Late Latin burra, shaggy garment.] —burl'er n.

bur-lap (bûr'läp') n. A strong, coarsely woven cloth made of fibers of jute, flax, or hemp and used to make bags, to reinforce linoleum, and in interior decoration. [Origin unknown.]

Bur-leigh (bûr'lē), First Baron. See William Cecil.

Bur-leigh (bûr'lē), Harry Thacker. 1866-1949. American singer, composer, and arranger who devoted much of his lifework to preserving the musical heritage of Black Americans.

bur-lesque (bər-lěsk') n. 1. A literary or dramatic work that makes a subject appear ridiculous by treating it in an incongruous way, as by presenting a lofty subject with vulgarity or an inconsequential one with mock dignity. See Synonyms at caricature. 2. A ludicrous or mocking imitation; a travesty: The antics of the defense attorneys turned the trial into a burlesque of justice. 3. A variety show characterized by broad ribald comedy, dancing, and striptease. — v.

bur-lesqued, bur-lesqu-ing, bur-lesques. — v. tr. To imitate mockingly or humorously: “always bringing junk... home, as if he were burlesquing his role as provider” (John Updike). — v. intr. To use the methods or techniques of burlesque. [From French, comical, from Italian burlesco, from burla, joke, probably from Spanish, from Vulgar Latin burrula*, diminutive of Late Latin burrae, nonsense, from burra, wool.] —bur-lesque' adj. —bur-lesque'ly adv.

—bur-lesqu'er n.

bur-ley (bûr'lē) n. pl. bur-leys. A light-colored tobacco grown chiefly in Kentucky and used especially in making cigarettes. [Probably from the name Burley.]

Bur-lin-game (bûr'lîn-gām', -lîng-) A city of western California on the western shore of San Francisco Bay. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,801.

Bur-lin-game (bûr'lîn-gām', -lîng-), Anson. 1820-1870. American diplomat who served as ambassador to China (1861-1867) and then, in an unprecedented move, represented the Chinese government on goodwill tours to the United States and Europe (1868-1870).

Bur-ling-ton (bûr'lîng-tən) 1. A city of southern Ontario, Canada, a suburb of Hamilton on Lake Ontario. Population, 114,853. 2. A city of southeast Iowa on hills overlooking the Mississippi River. Settled in the 1830's, it was the temporary capital of Iowa Territory (1838-1840). Population, 27,208. 3. A town of northeast Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 23,302. 4. A city of north-central North Carolina east of Greensboro. It is a textile center in an industrialized area. Population, 39,498. 5. A city of northwest Vermont on Lake Champlain west-northwest of Montpelier. The largest city in the state, it was the site of a military and naval base during the War of 1812. Population, 39,127.

bur-ly (bûr'lē) adj. bur-li-er, bur-li-est. Heavy, strong, and muscular; husky. See Synonyms at muscular. [Middle English burlich, from Old English borlic*, excellent. See bher⁻¹ in Appendix.] —bur/li-ly adv. —bur/li-ness n.

Bur-ma (bûr'mə) Officially (since 1989) Myan-mar (myän-mä'). Abbr. Bur. A country of southeast Asia on the Bay of Bengal and the Andaman Sea. Site of an ancient kingdom, Burma was a province of British India from 1886 until 1948, when it gained its independence. Rangoon is the capital and the largest city. Population, 35,313,905.

Bur-man (bûr'mən) adj. Variant of Burmese. — n. Variant of Burmese (n., sense 1).

bur marigold (bûr măr'ÿ-göld') n. See beggar ticks (pl.n., sense 1a).

Burma Road (bûr'mə rōd) A highway extending about 1,126 km (700 mi) generally northeastward through mountainous country from northeast Burma to Kunming, China. It was a vital transportation route for wartime supplies to the Chinese government from 1938 to 1946.

Bur-mese (bər-mēz', -mēs') also Bur-man (bûr'mən) adj. Abbr. Bur. Of or relating to Burma or its people, language, or culture. — n. pl. Burmese. 1. Also Burman. A native or inhabitant of Burma. 2. The Sino-Tibetan language of Burma.

burn¹ (bûrn) v. burned or burnt (bûrnt), burn-ing, burns. — v. tr.

1. a. To cause to undergo combustion. b. To destroy with fire: burned the trash; burn a house down. c. To consume (fuel or energy, for example): burned all the wood that winter. 2. Physics. To cause to undergo nuclear fission or fusion. 3. To damage or injure by fire, heat, radiation, electricity, or a caustic agent: burned the toast; burned my skin with the acid. 4. a. To execute or kill with fire: burning heretics at the stake. b. To execute by electrocution. 5. a. To make or produce by fire or heat: burn a hole in the rug. b. To dispel; dissipate: The sun burned off the fog. 6. a. To use as a fuel: a furnace that burns coal. b. To metabolize (glucose, for example) in the body. 7. To impart a sensation of intense heat to: The chili burned my mouth. 8. a. To irritate or inflame, as by chafing or sunburn. b. To let (oneself or a part of one's body) become sunburned. 9. To brand (an animal). 10. To harden or impart a finish to by subjecting to intense heat; fire: burn clay pots in a kiln. 11. To make angry: That remark really burns me. 12. a. To defeat in a contest, especially by a narrow margin. b. To inflict harm or hardship on; hurt: "Huge loan losses have burned banks in recent years" (Christian Science Monitor). c. To swindle or deceive; cheat: We really got burned on the used car we bought. — v. intr. 1. a. To undergo combustion. b. To admit of burning: Wood burns easily. 2. To consume fuel: a rocket stage designed to burn for three minutes before being jettisoned. 3. Physics. To undergo nuclear fission or fusion. 4. a. To emit heat or light by or as if by fire: campfires burning in the dark; the sun burning brightly in the sky. b. To become dissipated or to be dispelled by or as if by heat: The fog burned off as the sun came up. 5. To give off light; shine: a light burning over the door. 6. To be destroyed, injured, damaged, or changed by or as if by fire: a house that burned to the ground; eggs that burned and stuck to the pan.

7. a. To be very hot; bake: a desert burning under the midday sun. b. To feel or look hot: a child burning with fever. c. To impart a sensation of heat: a liniment that burns when first applied. 8. a. To become irritated or painful, as by chafing or inflammation: eyes burning from the smoke. b. To become sunburned or windburned. 9. To be consumed with strong emotion, especially: a. To be or become angry: an insult that really made me burn. b. To be very eager: was burning with ambition. 10. To penetrate by or as if by intense heat or flames: enemy ground radar burning through the fighters' electronic jammers; a look that burned into them. 11. To be vividly or painfully present: shame burning in my heart. 12. a. To suffer punishment or death by or as if by fire: souls burning in hell. b. To be electrocuted. — n. 1. An injury produced by fire, heat, radiation, electricity, or a caustic agent. 2. A burned place or area: a cigarette burn in the tablecloth. 3. The process or result of burning: The fire settled down to a steady burn. 4. A stinging sensation: the burn of alcohol on an open wound. 5. A sunburn or windburn. 6. Aerospace. A firing of a rocket. 7. A swindle. — phrasal verbs. burn out. 1. To stop burning from lack of fuel. 2. To wear out or make or become inoperative as a result of heat or friction: The short circuit burned out the fuse. 3. To cause (a property owner or a resident) to have to evacuate the premises because of fire: The shopkeeper was burned out by arsonists. 4. To make or become exhausted, especially as a result of long-term stress: “Hours are long, stress is high, and many recruits drop out or burn out” (Robert J. Samuelson). burn up. 5. To make angry: Their rudeness really burns me up. 6. To travel over or through at high speed: drag racers burning up the track. — idioms. burn (one's) bridges. To eliminate the possibility of return or retreat. burn the candle at both ends (or burn one's candle at both ends). To exhaust oneself or one's resources by leading a hectic or extravagant life. burn the midnight oil. To work or study very late at night. to burn. In great amounts: They had money to burn. [Middle English burnen, from Old English beornan, to be on fire, and from bærnan, to set on fire; see g^wher- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: burn, scorch, singe, sear, char, parch. These verbs mean to injure or alter by means of intense heat or flames. Burn, the most general, applies to the effects of exposure to a source of heat or to something that can produce a similar effect: burned the rug with a cigarette; left the onions on the stove and burned them; burned my fingers by handling dry ice. Scorch usually refers to contact with flame or heated metal and involves superficial burning that discolors or damages the texture of something: afraid that the iron might scorch the sheet; trees that were scorched in a forest fire. Singe specifies superficial burning by brief exposure to flame and especially the deliberate removal of projections such as bristles or feathers from a carcass, such as a plucked fowl, before cooking: a grease fire that singed my eyelashes; singed the Thanksgiving turkey, then roasted it. Sear applies to surface burning of organic tissue, as by branding or cauterizing: Sear the lamb over high heat before lowering the flame and adding liquid. To char is most often to reduce a substance to carbon or charcoal by means of fire: The timbers of the house were charred by the raging fire. Parch in this sense emphasizes the drying and often fissuring of a surface from exposure to flame, the sun, or hot wind: The torrid rays of the sun parched the soil.

burn² (bûrn) n. Scots. A small stream; a brook. [Middle English, from Old English burna. See bhreu- in Appendix.]

Bur-na-by (bûr'nə-bē) A city of southwest British Columbia, Canada, a suburb of Vancouver. Population, 136,494.

burn bag (bûrn bǎg) n. A bag into which secret or highly sensitive documents are placed before they are burned.

burn center (bûrn sĕn'tər) n. A multidisciplinary health care facility in which victims of burns are treated.

burned-out (bûrnd'out') or burnt-out (bûrnt'-) adj. Worn out or exhausted, especially as a result of long-term stress.

Burne-Jones (bûrn'jōnz'), Sir Edward Coley. 1833-1898. British painter and member of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood who is known for the mystical, dreamlike settings of his paintings and stained-glass designs.

burn-er (bûr'nər) n. 1. One that burns, especially: a. A device, as in a furnace, stove, or gas lamp, that is lighted to produce a flame. b. A device on a stovetop, such as a gas jet or electric element, that produces heat. 2. a. A unit, such as a furnace, in which something is burned: an oil burner. b. An incinerator.

3. Slang. a. An elaborate mural painted by a graffiti artist, usually on the wall of an abandoned building. b. A large, multicolored graffiti.

bur-net (bər-nĕt', bûr'nĭt) n. A perennial plant of the genus Sanguisorba, having pinnately compound leaves and apetalous flowers. The young leaves are sometimes added to salads as a garnish. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin burneta, from Old French brunete, dark brown, diminutive of brun, brown, of Germanic origin. See bher-² in Appendix.]

Bur-net (bər-nĕt', bûr'nĭt), Sir (Frank) Macfarlane. 1899-1985. Australian virologist. He shared a 1960 Nobel Prize for work on acquired immunological tolerance.

Bur-nett (bûr-nĕt', bûr'nĭt), Frances Eliza Hodgson. 1849-1924. British-born American writer famous for her popular children's books, especially Little Lord Fauntleroy (1886), whose priggish title character dressed in black velvet with ruffled lace collars and sported long golden curls.

Bur-ney (bûr'nē), Frances. Known as "Fanny." 1752-1840. British writer best known for her witty and sophisticated letters and diaries covering the years from 1768 until her death.

Burn·ham (bûr'nəm), Daniel Hudson. 1846-1912. American architect and city planner. He did his major work in Chicago, including the general design for the Columbian Exposition (1893) and several early skyscrapers.

burn·ing (bûr'nĭng) adj. 1. Marked by flames or intense heat: a burning sun. 2. Characterized by intense emotion; passionate: a burning desire for justice. 3. Of immediate import; urgent: "the issues that seem so burning in Washington" (John F. Kennedy). —burn'ing·ly adv.

burning bush also burn·ing·bush (bûr'nĭng-boōsh') n. 1. Any of several shrubs or shrubby plants, such as the summer cypress and certain species of euonymous, having foliage that turns bright red in autumn. 2. See gas plant.

bur·nish (bûr'nĭsh) v. tr. bur·nished, bur·nish·ing, bur·nish·es. 1. To make smooth or glossy by or as if by rubbing; polish. 2. To rub with a tool that serves especially to smooth or polish. — n. A smooth, glossy finish or appearance; luster. [Middle English burnishen, from Old French burnir, burniss-, variant of brunir, from brun, shining, of Germanic origin. See bher-² in Appendix.] —bur'nish·er n.

Burn·ley (bûrn'lē) A borough of northwest England north of Manchester. It grew as a coal-mining and textile center. Population, 93,700.

bur·noose also bur·nous (bər-nōōs') n. A hooded cloak worn especially by Arabs. [French burnous, from Arabic burnus, from Greek birros, hooded cloak, from Late Latin birrus.]

burn·out (bûrn'out') n. 1. A failure in a device attributable to burning, excessive heat, or friction. 2. Aerospace. a. The termination of rocket or jet-engine operation because of fuel exhaustion or shutoff. b. The point at which this termination occurs. 3. a. Physical or emotional exhaustion, especially as a result of long-term stress or dissipation. b. One who is worn out physically or emotionally, as from long-term stress.

Burns (bûrnz), Arthur Frank. Born 1904. Austrian-born American economist and influential adviser to several presidential administrations.

Burns (bûrnz), George. 1896-1996. American comedian and actor. From 1922 to 1964 he and Gracie Allen were a popular husband-and-wife comedy team. Since her death in 1964 he has appeared in both comic and dramatic roles, winning an Academy Award in 1975 for The Sunshine Boys.

Burns (bûrnz), Robert. 1759-1796. Scottish poet considered the major poetic voice of his nation. His lyrics, written in dialect and infused with humor, celebrate love, patriotism, and rustic life. —Burns'i·an adj.

Burn·side (bûrn'sīd'), Ambrose Everett. 1824-1881. American general and politician known more for his side-whiskers (or sideburns) than for his career in the Union Army, which included defeats at Fredericksburg (1862) and Petersburg (1864).

burn-sides (bûrn'sīdz') pl. n. Heavy side whiskers worn with the chin clean-shaven. [After Ambrose Everett BURNSIDE.]

Burns-ville (bûrnz'vīl') A city of southeastern Minnesota, a suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 51,288.

burnt (bûrnt) v. A past tense and a past participle of burn¹.

burnt offering (bûrnt ô'fər-īng) n. A slaughtered animal or other offering burned on an altar as a religious sacrifice.

burnt-out (bûrnt'out') adj. Variant of burned-out.

burnt sienna (bûrnt sē-ēn'ə) n. 1. A reddish-brown pigment prepared by calcining raw sienna. 2. Color. A dark reddish orange.

bur oak (bûr ōk) n. An oak tree (Quercus macrocarpa) of eastern North America, having pinnately lobed leaves, acorns enclosed within a deep fringed cup, and hard, durable wood.

burp (bûrp) n. A belch. — v. burped, burp-ing, burps. — v. intr. To belch. — v. tr. To cause (a baby) to expel gas from the stomach, as by patting the back after feeding. [Imitative.]

burp gun (bûrp gūn) n. A lightweight portable submachine gun.

burr¹ (bûr) n. 1. A rough edge or area remaining on material, such as metal, after it has been cast, cut, or drilled. 2. Variant of bur¹. — v. tr. burred, burr-ing, burrs. 1. To form a burr on. 2. To remove burrs from. [Variant of BUR¹.]

burr² also bur (bûr) n. 1. A trilling of the letter r, usually made with the tip of the tongue and characteristic of Scottish speech. 2. A buzzing or whirring sound. — v. burred, burr-ing, burrs also burrs. — v. tr. To pronounce with a burr. — v. intr. 1. To speak with a burr. 2. To make a buzzing or whirring sound. [Imitative.]

burr³ also bur (bûr) n. A washer that fits around the smaller end of a rivet. [Middle English burre, ring, disk, alteration of burwhe, circle, disk.]

Burr (bûr), Aaron. 1756-1836. American politician who became Vice President of the United States (1801-1805) under Thomas Jefferson after a deadlock in the electoral college was broken by the House of Representatives. On July 11, 1804, Burr mortally wounded his rival Alexander Hamilton in a duel and later fled south where he was involved in a mysterious conspiracy to establish an independent nation in Mexico and the Southwest. Tried for treason, he was acquitted for lack of evidence.

bur reed or bur-reed (bûr'rēd') n. Any of various aquatic or wetland plants of the genus Sparganium, having elongated leaves and ball-like clusters of tiny, beaked fruits.

bur-ri-to (bōō-rē'tō, bə-) n. pl. bur-ri-tos. A flour tortilla wrapped around a filling, as of beef, beans, or cheese. [American Spanish, from Spanish, diminutive of burro, burro. See BURRO.]

Bur-ritt (bûr'īt), Elihu. Known as “the Learned Blacksmith.” 1810-1879. American social reformer who advocated an international congress to promote world peace.

bur-ro (bûr'ō, böör'ō, bŭr'ō) n. pl. bur-ros. A small donkey, especially one used as a pack animal. [Spanish, back-formation from borrico, donkey, from Late Latin burrīcus, small horse.]

bur-ro's tail (bûr'ōz tāl, böör'-, bŭr'-) n. A Mexican plant (Sedum morga-nianum) grown chiefly as a houseplant for its hanging, taillike stems covered with succulent, overlapping leaves. Also called donkey's tail Bur-roughs (bûr'ōz, bŭr'-), Edgar Rice. 1875-1950. American writer best known for creating the character Tarzan in his novel Tarzan of the Apes (1914).

Bur-roughs (bûr'ōz, bŭr'-), John. 1837-1921. American naturalist and writer whose vivid essays gained him wide popularity as a benign sage of nature.

Bur-roughs¹ (bûr'ōz, bŭr'-), William Seward. 1855-1898. American inventor who in the early 1890's designed and patented the first practical adding machine.

Bur-roughs² (bûr'ōz, bŭr'-), William Seward. Born 1914. American writer noted especially for Naked Lunch (1959), a surrealist portrait of drug addiction.

bur-row (bûr'ō, bŭr'ō) n. 1. A hole or tunnel dug in the ground by a small animal, such as a rabbit or a mole, for habitation or refuge. 2. A narrow or snug place. — v. bur-rowed, bur-row-ing, bur-rows. — v. intr. 1. a. To dig a hole or tunnel for habitation or refuge. b. To live or hide in such a place. 2. To move or progress by or as if by digging or tunneling: “Suddenly the train is bur-rowing through the pinewoods” (William Styron). — v. tr. 1. To make by or as if by tunneling. 2. To dig a hole or tunnel in or through. 3. Archaic. To hide in or as if in a burrow. [Middle English borow.] — bur'row-er n.

bur-row-ing owl (bûr'ō-īng owl, bŭr'-) n. A small, long-legged owl (Speotyto cunicularia) of American prairies that nests in burrows dug by animals such as prairie dogs or rabbits.

burr-stone (bûr'stōn') n. Variant of buhrstone.

bur-ry (bûr'ē) adj. bur-ri-er, bur-ri-est. Having burs; prickly.

bur-sa (bûr'sə) n. pl. bur-sae (-sē) or bur-sas. Anatomy. A sac or saclike bodily cavity, especially one containing a viscous lubricating fluid and located between a tendon and a bone or at points of friction between moving structures. [Late Latin, purse, pouch, from Greek, skin, wineskin.] — bur'sal adj.

Bur-sa (bûr'sə, böör-sä') A city of northwest Turkey west of Ankara. It dates from the third century B.C. and was a capital of the Ottoman Turks in the 1300's. Population, 445,113.

bursa of Fa-bri-ci-us (bûr'sə ÷v fə-brīsh'ē-əs, -brīsh'əs) n. A thymuslike lymphoid gland in birds that is an outgrowth of the cloaca and the site of B cell maturation. [After Hieronymus Fabricius (1537-1619), Italian anatomist.]

bur-sar (bûr'sær, -sär') n. An official in charge of funds, as at a college or university; a treasurer. [Middle English burser, from Medieval Latin bursārius, from Late Latin bursa, purse. See BURSA.]

bur-sa-ry (bûr'sæ-rē) n. pl. bur-sa-ries. 1. A treasury, especially of a public institution or religious order. 2. Chiefly British. A scholarship granted to a university student in need. [Medieval Latin bursāria, from bursa, purse. See BURSA.]
—bur-sar'i-al (bær-sâr'ē-əl) adj.

burse (bûrs) n. 1. A purse. 2. Ecclesiastical. A flat cloth case for carrying the corporal that is used in celebrating the Eucharist. [Late Latin bursa. See BURSA.]

bur-si-tis (bær-sī'tis) n. Inflammation of a bursa, especially in the shoulder, elbow, or knee joint.

burst (bûrst) v. burst, burst-ing, bursts. — v. intr. 1. a. To come open or fly apart suddenly or violently, especially from internal pressure. b. To explode. 2. To be or seem to be full to the point of breaking open: The sacks were bursting with grain. 3. To emerge, come forth, or arrive suddenly: burst out of the door. 4. To come apart or seem to come apart because of overwhelming emotion: thought his heart would burst with happiness. 5. To give sudden utterance or expression: burst out laughing; burst into tears. — v. tr. 1. To cause to burst: burst the balloon. See Synonyms at break. 2. To exert strong pressure in order to force (something) open. 3. Computer Science. To separate (a continuous form or printout) into individual sheets. — n. 1. A sudden outbreak or outburst; an explosion. 2. The result of bursting, especially the explosion of a projectile or bomb on impact or in the air. 3. a. The number of bullets fired from an automatic weapon by one pull of the trigger. b. A volley of bullets fired from an automatic weapon: The machine gunner fired a quick burst. 4. An abrupt, intense increase; a rush: a burst of speed; wind blowing in fitful bursts. [Middle English bursten, from Old English berstan.]

burst-er (bûr'stær) n. Computer Science. An offline device used to burst computer printout.

Burt (bûrt), William Austin. 1792-1858. American surveyor and inventor who in 1829 patented his "Typographer," a forerunner of the typewriter. He also invented (1836) a solar compass to offset magnetic attraction.

bur-then (bûr'thən) n. A burden.

bur-ton (bûr'tn) n. Nautical. A light tackle having double or single blocks, used to hoist or tighten rigging. [Origin unknown.]

Bur-ton (bûr'tn) A city of southeast-central Michigan, a suburb of Flint. Population, 27,617.

Bur-ton (bûr'tn), Harold Hitz. 1888-1964. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1945-1958).

Bur-ton (bûr'tn), Richard. 1925-1984. Welsh-born actor. Highly regarded for his dramatic range on stage and screen, he was also known for his tempestuous lifestyle.

Bur-ton (bûr'tn), Sir Richard Francis. 1821-1890. British explorer and Orientalist. Disguised as a Pathan, he journeyed (1853) to the forbidden cities of Mecca and Medina and in 1858 tried unsuccessfully to discover the source of the Nile River. His best-known work is a translation of The Arabian Nights (1885-1888), which was considered scandalous at the time.

Bur-ton (bûr'tn), Robert. 1577-1640. English cleric and writer known chiefly for his Anatomy of Melancholy (1621), a treatise on the causes, symptoms, and cure of melancholy that ranges far afield in its lively depiction of everyday life.

Burton upon Trent or Burton on Trent (bûr'tn ə-pŏn' trĕnt') A borough of west-central England south-southwest of Derby. It is the center of a brewing industry begun by Benedictine monks who built an abbey on the site in 1002.

Population, 48,500.

Bu-ru (böör'ōō) An island of eastern Indonesia in the Moluccas west of Ceram.

Bu-run-di (böō-rōōn'dē, -rōōn'-) A country of east-central Africa with a coastline on Lake Tanganyika. It was part of German East Africa and later of Belgian-ruled Ruanda-Urundi before it gained its independence in 1962. Bujumbura is the capital and the largest city. Population, 4,523,513. —Bu-run'di-an adj. & n.

bur-y (bĕr'ē) v. tr. bur-ied, bur-y-ing, bur-ies. 1. To place in the ground: bury a bone. 2. To place (a corpse) in a grave, a tomb, or the sea; inter. 3. To conceal by or as if by covering over with earth; hide: buried her face in the pillow; buried the secret deep within himself. See Synonyms at hide¹. 4. To occupy (oneself) with deep concentration; absorb: buried myself in my studies. 5. To put an end to; abandon: buried their quarrel and shook hands. —idiom. bury the hatchet. To stop fighting; resolve a quarrel. [Middle English burien, from Old English byrgan. See bhergh-¹ in Appendix.] —bur'i-er n.

Bur-y (bĕr'ē) A borough of northwest England north-northwest of Manchester. It was founded on the site of a Saxon settlement and has been a textile center since the 14th century. Population, 177,600.

bur-y-ing beetle (bĕr'ē-ĭng bĕt'l) n. Any of various black or black and orange beetles of the genus Necrophorus that bury dead mice and other small animals on which they feed and lay their eggs. Also called sexton beetle Bury Saint Ed-munds (bĕr'ē sānt ěd'mændz) A municipal borough of east-central England east of Cambridge. In 903 the remains of King Edmund were interred in the town's monastery (founded c. 630), which became a famous shrine and Benedictine abbey. Population, 28,914.

bus (bŭs) n. pl. bus-es or bus-ses. 1. A long motor vehicle for carrying passengers, usually along a fixed route. 2. Informal. A large or ungainly automobile.

3. A four-wheeled cart for carrying dishes in a restaurant. 4. Electricity. A bus bar. 5. Computer Science. A parallel circuit that connects the major components of a computer, allowing the transfer of electric impulses from one connected component to any other. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a bus station; a bus tour. — v. bused or bussed, bus-ing or bus-sing, bus-es or bus-ses. — v. tr. 1. To transport in a bus. 2. To transport (schoolchildren) by bus to schools outside their neighborhoods, especially as a means of achieving racial integration. 3. To carry or clear (dishes) in a restaurant. — v. intr. 1. To travel in a bus. 2. To work as a busboy. [Short for OMNIBUS. V., intr., sense 2, back-formation from BUSBOY.]

bus. abbr. Business.

bus bar (būs bār) n. Electricity. A conducting bar that carries heavy currents to supply several electric circuits.

bus-boy also bus boy (būs'boi') n. A restaurant employee who clears away dirty dishes, sets tables, and serves as an assistant to a waiter or waitress.

[(OMNI)BUS + BOY.]

bus-by (büz'bē) n. pl. bus-bies. A tall, full-dress fur hat worn in certain guards regiments of the British army. [Possibly from the name Busby.]

bush¹ (böosh) n. 1. A low shrub with many branches. 2. A thick growth of shrubs; a thicket. 3. a. Land covered with dense vegetation or undergrowth. b. Land remote from settlement: the Australian bush. 4. A shaggy mass, as of hair. 5. A fox's tail. 6. a. Archaic. A clump of ivy hung outside a tavern to indicate the availability of wine inside. b. Obsolete. A tavern. — v. bushed, bush-ing, bushes. — v. intr. 1. To grow or branch out like a bush. 2. To extend in a bushy growth. — v. tr. To decorate, protect, or support with bushes. — adj. Slang. Bush-league; second-rate: "Reviewers here have tended to see in him a kind of bush D.H. Lawrence" (Saturday Review). [Middle English, partly from Old English busc, partly from Old French bois, wood (of Germanic origin), and partly of Scandinavian origin (; akin to Danish busk). N., sense 3, possibly from Dutch bosch.]

bush² (böosh) v. tr. bushed, bush-ing, bush-es. To furnish or line with a bushing. [From bush, bushing, possibly alteration of Dutch bus, box.]

Bush (böosh), Barbara. Born 1925. First Lady of the United States (1989-1993) as the wife of President George Bush. She has been active in promoting literacy.

Bush (böosh), George Herbert Walker. Born 1924. The 41st President of the United States (1989-1993). He was previously U.S. ambassador to the United Nations (1971-1972) and China (1974-1975), director of the Central Intelligence Agency (1976-1977), and Vice President (1981-1989) under Ronald Reagan.

Bush (böosh), Vannevar. 1890-1974. American electrical engineer and physicist who designed (1928) the differential analyzer, an early computer, and directed the World War II effort to develop the first atomic bomb.

bush baby (böosh bā'bē) n. Any of several small, nocturnal African primates of the genera Galago and Euoticus, having dense, woolly fur, large round eyes, prominent ears, and a long tail. Also called galago bush bean (böosh bēn) n. 1. A shrubby variety of the snap bean. 2. Any bean plant with an upright, bushy growth not requiring an artificial support.

bush-buck (böosh'bŭk') n. An African antelope (Tragelaphus scriptus) having a reddish-brown coat with white markings and twisted horns. Also called harnessed antelope [Translation of Afrikaans bosbok : bos, bush + bok, buck.]

bush clover (böosh klō'vər) n. Any of various plants of the genus Lespedeza in the pea family, having compound leaves with three leaflets and various colored flowers and often grown for forage, soil improvement, erosion control, or ornament. Also called lespedeza bushed (böosht) adj. Informal. Extremely tired; exhausted: "I once stayed awake seven years on end. Not even a nap. Boy, was I bushed" (Martin Amis). [Possibly from Australian slang, lost in the bush.]

bush-el¹ (böosh'əl) n. Abbr. bsh., bu., bu 1. a. A unit of volume or capacity in the U.S. Customary System, used in dry measure and equal to 4 pecks, 2,150.42 cubic inches, or 35.24 liters. b. A unit of volume or capacity in the British Imperial System, used in dry and liquid measure and equal to 2,219.36 cubic inches or 36.37 liters. See Table at measurement. 2. A container with the capacity of a bushel. 3. Informal. A large amount; a great deal. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman bussel, variant of Old French boissiel, from boisse, one sixth of a bushel, of Celtic origin.]

bush-el² (böosh'əl) v. tr. bush-eled or bush-elled, bush-el-ing or bush-el-ling, bush-els or bush-els. To alter or mend (clothing). [Probably from German bosseln, to do odd jobs, alteration (perhaps influenced by bosseln, to emboss), of basteln, to putter.] —bush/el-er, bush/el-ler n. —bush-el-man (-mən) n.

bush honeysuckle (böosh hŭn'ē-sŭk'əl) n. 1. Any of three eastern North American shrubs of the genus Diervilla, having opposite, deciduous leaves and clusters of yellow flowers. 2. Any of several shrubby honeysuckle plants of the genus Lonicera, especially L. tatarica and L. xylosteum.

Bu-shi-do also bu-shi-do (böosh'i-dō', bōō'shī-) n. The traditional code of the Japanese samurai, stressing honor, self-discipline, bravery, and simple living. [Japanese bushidō : bushi, warrior (from Chinese wǔ shì, knight, warrior : wǔ, military + shì, brave warrior) + dō, way (from Chinese dào).]

bush-ing (böosh'ing) n. 1. A fixed or removable cylindrical metal lining used to constrain, guide, or reduce friction. 2. Electricity. An insulating lining for an aperture through which a conductor passes. 3. An adapter threaded to permit joining of pipes with different diameters. [From BUSH².]

bush jacket (böosh jăk'it) n. A long, cotton shirtlike jacket usually with four flat pockets and a belt.

bush league (böosh lēg) n. Baseball. A minor league. —bush leaguer n.

bush-league (böosh'lēg') adj. 1. Baseball. Of or belonging to a minor league. 2. Slang. Of inferior or unprofessional quality; second-rate: a bush-league advertising campaign.

Bush·man (böosh'mən) n. 1. See San. 2. bushman. Australian. One who lives or travels in the wilderness, especially in the outback. [Translation of Afrikaans boschjeman : boschje, bush + man, man.]

Bush·man (böosh'mən), Francis Xavier. 1883-1966. American actor whose classic profile and impressive physique made him a matinee idol of the silent-film era.

bush·mas·ter (böosh'mäs'tər) n. A large venomous snake (Lachesis mutus) of tropical America, having brown and grayish markings.

Bush·nell (böosh'nəl), David. 1742-1824. American inventor who designed (1775) a man-propelled submarine for use against British ships in the Revolution. The device proved ineffectual (it was ridiculed as “Bushnell’s Turtle”) but earned him later regard as “the Father of the Submarine.”

Bush·nell (böosh'nəl), Horace. 1802-1876. American theologian whose repudiation of traditional Calvinistic austerity had a profound effect on liberal Protestant thought.

bush pig (böosh pĭg) n. A hog (Potamochoerus porcus) of southern Africa, having long tufts of hair on the face and ears. [Translation of Afrikaans bosvark : bos, bush + vark, pig.]

bush pilot (böosh pī'lət) n. A person who flies a small airplane to and from areas inaccessible to larger aircraft or other means of transportation.

bush·rang·er (böosh'răn'jər) n. 1. One who lives in the wilderness.

2. Australian. An outlaw living in the bush.

bush·tit (böosh'tīt') n. Either of two small, long-tailed birds (Psaltriparus minimus or P. melanotis) of western North America, having predominantly gray plumage.

bush·whack (böosh'hwăk', -wăk') v. bush·whacked, bush·whack·ing, bush·whacks. — v. intr. 1. To make one’s way through thick woods by cutting away bushes and branches. 2. To travel through or live in the woods. 3. To fight as a guerrilla in the woods. — v. tr. To attack suddenly from a place of concealment; ambush. See Synonyms at ambush. —bush'whack'er n.

bush·y (böosh'ē) adj. bush·i·er, bush·i·est. 1. Overgrown with bushes.

2. Thick and shaggy: a bushy head of hair. —bush'i·ly adv. —bush'i·ness n.

busi·ness (bĭz'nĭs) n. Abbr. bus. 1. a. The occupation, work, or trade in which a person is engaged: the wholesale food business. b. A specific occupation or pursuit: the best designer in the business. 2. Commercial, industrial, or professional dealings: new systems now being used in business. 3. A commercial enterprise or establishment: bought his uncle's business. 4. Volume or amount of commercial trade: Business had fallen off. 5. Commercial dealings; patronage: took her business to a trustworthy salesperson. 6. a. One's rightful or proper concern or interest: "The business of America is business" (Calvin Coolidge). b. Something involving one personally: It's none of my business. 7. Serious work or endeavor: got right down to business. 8. An affair or matter: "We will proceed no further in this business" (Shakespeare). 9. An incidental action performed by an actor on the stage to fill a pause between lines or to provide interesting detail. 10. Informal. Verbal abuse; scolding: gave me the business for being late. 11. Obsolete. The condition of being busy. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a business computer; a business suit. [Middle English businessse, from bisi, busy. See BUSY.]

SYNONYMS: business, industry, commerce, trade, traffic. These nouns apply to forms of activity that have the objective of supplying commodities. Business pertains broadly to commercial, financial, and industrial activity: decided to go into the oil business. Industry is the production and manufacture of goods or commodities, especially on a large scale: the computer industry; the arms industry. Commerce and trade refer to the exchange and distribution of goods or commodities: laws regulating interstate commerce; involved in the domestic fur trade; foreign commerce (or trade). Traffic pertains broadly to commercial dealings but in particular to businesses engaged in the transportation of goods or passengers: renovated the docks to attract shipping traffic. The word may also suggest illegal trade, as in narcotics: Traffic in stolen goods was brisk. See also Synonyms at affair business administration (biz'nīs ăd-mĭn'ĭ-strā'shən) n. A college or university course of studies that offers instruction in general business principles and practices.

business card (biz'nīs kărd) n. A small card printed or engraved with a person's name and business affiliation, including such information as title, address, and telephone number.

business cycle (biz'nīs sĭ'kəl) n. A sequence of economic activity typically characterized by recession, fiscal recovery, growth, and fiscal decline.

busi-ness-like (biz'nīs-lik') adj. 1. Showing or having characteristics advantageous to or of use in business; methodical and systematic. 2. Purposeful; earnest. 3. Practical; unemotional: The couple maintained a businesslike attitude toward their divorce.

busi-ness-man (biz'nīs-măn') n. A man engaged in business. See Usage Note at man.

busi-ness-per-son (bĭz'nĭs-pŭr'sən) n. One engaged in business. See Usage Note at man.

busi-ness-wom-an (bĭz'nĭs-wŏm'ən) n. A woman engaged in business. See Usage Note at man.

bus-ing or bus-sing (bŭs'ĭng) n. The transportation of schoolchildren by bus to schools outside their neighborhoods, especially as a means of achieving racial integration.

busk-er (bŭs'kər) n. A street musician or public entertainer, especially one who solicits money during a performance: “A sun-warmed busker fiddles some Vivaldi near the subway exit north of the White House” (New York Times). [From busk, to entertain by singing and dancing, of unknown origin.]

bus-kin (bŭs'kĭn) n. 1. A foot and leg covering reaching halfway to the knee, resembling a laced half boot. 2. a. A thick-soled laced half boot worn by actors of Greek and Roman tragedies. b. Tragedy, especially that which resembles a Greek tragedy. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by BUCKSKIN), of obsolete French broisequin, small leather boot.]

bus-load (bŭs'lŏd') n. The number of passengers or the quantity of cargo that a bus can carry.

bus-man (bŭs'mən) n. One who drives a bus.

bus-man's holiday (bŭs'mənz hŏl'ĭ-dā') n. Informal. A vacation during which one engages in activity that is similar to one's usual work.

Bu-so-ni (bŏō-zŏ'nē, byŏō-), Ferruccio Benvenuto. 1866-1924. Italian pianist, conductor, and composer known for his flamboyant style. His works include operas, concertos for piano and violin, and orchestral pieces.

buss (bŭs) v. tr. intr. bussed, buss-ing, buss-es. To kiss. — n. A kiss. [Possibly blend of obsolete bass (; akin to French baiser), and obsolete cuss (; akin to Middle English kissen, to kiss); see KISS or from Scottish Gaelic bus, lips, mouth; see PUSS².]

bus-ses (bŭs'ĭz) n. A plural of bus.

bus-sing (bŭs'ĭng) n. Variant of busing.

bust¹ (bŭst) n. 1. A sculpture representing a person's head, shoulders, and upper chest. 2. a. A woman's bosom. b. The human chest. [French buste, from Italian busto, possibly from Latin bustum, sepulchral monument.]

bust² (bŭst) v. bust-ed, bust-ing, busts. — v. tr. 1. Slang. a. To smash or break, especially forcefully: “Mr. Luger worked it with a rake, busting up the big clods, making a flat brown table” (Garrison Keillor). b. To render inoperable or unusable: busted the vending machine by putting in foreign coins. 2. To cause to come to an end; break up: an attempt to bust the union. 3. To break or tame (a horse). 4. To cause to become bankrupt or short of money: “Too often, the promise of a high-tech design leads to a weapon that busts the budget” (Business Week). 5. Slang. To reduce in rank. See Synonyms at demote. 6. To hit; punch.

7. Slang. a. To place under arrest. b. To make a raid on. — v. intr. 1. Slang. a. To undergo breakage; become broken. b. To burst; break: “Several companies have threatened to bust out of their high-wage contracts by the dubious technique of declaring bankruptcy” (Washington Post). 2. To become bankrupt or short of money. 3. Games. To lose at blackjack by exceeding a score of 21. — n. 1. A failure; a flop: “The home-style bean curd is a bust, oily and rubbery” (Mark and Gail Barnett). 2. A state of bankruptcy. 3. A time or period of widespread financial depression: “Bankers consider the region’s diversified economy to be good protection against a possible real estate bust” (American Banker). 4. A punch; a blow. 5. A spree: a fraternity beer bust. 6. Slang. a. An arrest. b. A raid. [Variant of BURST.]

Bus-ta-man-te (böös’tə-män’tā), Sir (William) Alexander. 1884-1977.

Jamaican labor leader and politician who opposed federation with other West Indian states and was the first prime minister (1962-1967) of independent Jamaica.

bus-tard (būs’tərd) n. Any of various large, long-legged Old World game birds of the family Otididae that frequent dry, open, grassy plains. [Middle English, from blend of Old French bistarde, and Old French oustarde both from Latin avis tarda: avis, bird; see awi- in Appendix + tarda, feminine of *tardus*slow.]

bust-er (būs’tər) n. 1. One that breaks up something: a crime buster. 2. A broncobuster. 3. A particularly robust child. 4. Informal. Fellow. Used as a form of familiar address: Say, buster, where are you going?

bus-ti-cate (būs’tī-kāt’) v. tr. bus-ti-cat-ed, bus-ti-cat-ing, bus-ti-cates. Northern U.S. To break into pieces. See Regional note at absquatulate. [BUST² + -icate (as in MEDICATE).]

bus-tier (böös-tyā’, būs-) n. A formfitting sleeveless and usually strapless woman’s top, worn as lingerie and often as evening attire. [French, from buste, bust. See BUST¹.]

bus-tle¹ (būs’əl) v. intr. tr. bus-tled, bus-ting, bus-tles. To move or cause to move energetically and busily. — n. Excited and often noisy activity; a stir. [Possibly variant of obsolete buskle, frequentative of busk, to prepare oneself, from Old Norse būask. See bheuə- in Appendix.]

bus-tle² (būs’əl) n. 1. A frame or pad to support and expand the fullness of the back of a woman’s skirt. 2. A bow, peplum, or gathering of material at the back of a woman’s skirt below the waist. [Origin unknown.]

Bu-sto Ar-si-zio (böō’stō är-sē’tsyō) A city of northern Italy northwest of Milan. It is a center of Italy’s cotton industry. Population, 76,769.

bust-y (būs’tē) adj. bust-i-er, bust-i-est. Full-bosomed.

bu-sul-fan (byōō-sül’fən) n. An alkylating agent, C₆H₁₄O₆S₂, that is used as an antineoplastic drug in the treatment of chronic myelocytic leukemia. [Blend of BUTANE, and SULFONYL.]

bus·y (bĭz'ē) adj. bus·i·er, bus·i·est. 1. Engaged in activity, as work; occupied. 2. Sustaining much activity: a busy morning; a busy street. 3. Meddlesome; prying. 4. Being in use, as a telephone line. 5. Cluttered with detail to the point of being distracting: a busy design. — v. tr. bus·ied, bus·y·ing, bus·ies. To make busy; occupy: busied myself preparing my tax return. [Middle English bisi, busi, from Old English bisig.] —bus'·i·ly adv. —bus'y·ness n.

SYNONYMS: busy, industrious, diligent, assiduous, sedulous. All these adjectives suggest active or sustained effort to accomplish something. Busy, the most general, often refers simply and nonspecifically to engagement in activity: Don't bother me—I'm busy. The word sometimes indicates constant and customary work or activity: a busy lawyer; a busy day. Industrious implies steady application that is often habitual or the result of a natural inclination: The raspberries were harvested by industrious workers. Diligent suggests constant painstaking effort, often toward the achievement of a specific goal: A diligent detective investigates all clues. Assiduous emphasizes sustained application: She is assiduous in her efforts to learn French. Sedulous adds to assiduous the sense of persistent, thoroughgoing endeavor: "the sedulous pursuit of legal and moral principles" (Ernest van den Haag); "the innovative specialty store and oasis of elegant gadgets to the sedulous and casual collector alike" (Time).

bus·y·bod·y (bĭz'ē-bŏd'ē) n. A person who meddles or pries into the affairs of others.

busy signal (bĭz'ē sig'nəl) n. A series of sharp buzzing tones heard over a telephone when the line dialed is already in use.

bus·y·work (bĭz'ē-wŭrk') n. Activity, such as schoolwork or office work, meant to take up time but not necessarily yield productive results.

but (bŭt; bət when unstressed) conj. 1. On the contrary: the plan caused not prosperity but ruin. 2. Contrary to expectation; yet: She organized her work but accomplished very little. He is tired but happy. 3. Usage Problem. Used to indicate an exception: No one but she saw the prowler. 4. With the exception that; except that. Used to introduce a dependent clause: would have resisted but that they lacked courage. 5. Informal. Without the result that: It never rains but it pours. 6. Informal. That. Often used after a negative: There is no doubt but right will prevail. 7. That... not. Used after a negative or question: There never is a tax law presented but someone will oppose it. 8. If not; unless: "Ten to one but the police have got them" (Charlotte M. Yonge). 9. Informal. Than: They had no sooner arrived but they turned around and left. — prep. Usage Problem. Except. — adv.

1. Merely; just; only: hopes that lasted but a moment. 2. Used as an intensive: Get out of here but fast! [Middle English, from Old English bŭtan. See ud- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Traditional grammarians have worried over what form the pronoun ought to take when but is used to indicate an exception in sentences such as No one but I (or No one but me) has read it. Some have argued that but is a conjunction in these sentences and therefore should be followed by the nominative form I. However, many of these grammarians have gone on to argue somewhat inconsistently that the accusative form me is appropriate when the but phrase occurs at the end of a sentence, as in No one has read it but me. While this treatment of the construction has a considerable weight of precedent on its side and cannot be regarded as incorrect, a strong case can be made on grammatical grounds for treating this use of but as a preposition. For one thing, if but were truly a conjunction here, we would expect the verb to agree in person and number with the noun or pronoun following but; we would then say No one but the students have read it. What is more, if but were a true conjunction here we would not expect that it could be moved to the end of a clause, as in No one has read it but the students. Note that we cannot use the conjunction and in a similar way, saying John left and everyone else in the class in place of John and everyone else in the class left. These observations suggest that but is best considered as a preposition here and followed by accusative forms such as me and them in all positions: No one but me has read it. No one has read it but me. These recommendations are supported by 73 percent of the Usage Panel when the but phrase precedes the verb and by 93 percent when the but phrase follows the verb. • But is redundant when used together with however, as in But the army, however, went on with its plans; one or the other word should be eliminated. • But is generally not followed by a comma. Correct written style requires Kim wanted to go, but we stayed, not Kim wanted to go, but, we stayed. • But may be used to begin a sentence at all levels of style. See Usage Note at and. See Usage Note at cannot. See Usage Note at doubt. See Usage Note at however. See Usage Note at I¹.

- but- pref. Containing a group of four carbon atoms: butyl. [From BUTYRIC.]
- bu·ta·di·ene (byōō'tə-dī'ēn', -dī-ēn') n. A colorless, highly flammable hydrocarbon, C₄H₆, obtained from petroleum and used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber. [BUTA(NE) + DI-¹ + -ENE.]
- bu·tane (byōō'tān') n. Either of two isomers of a gaseous hydrocarbon, C₄H₁₀, produced synthetically from petroleum and used as a household fuel, refrigerant, and aerosol propellant and in the manufacture of synthetic rubber. [BUT(YL) + -ANE.]
- bu·ta·no·ic acid (byōō'tə-nō'ik əs'īd) n. See butyric acid. [BUTAN(E) + -OIC.]
- bu·ta·nol (byōō'tə-nōl', -nōl', nōl') n. Either of two butyl alcohols derived from butane and used as solvents and in organic synthesis. [BUTAN(E) + -OL¹.]

- bu·ta·none (byōō'tə-nōn') n. A colorless, flammable ketone, $\text{CH}_3\text{COCH}_2\text{CH}_3$, used in lacquers, paint removers, cements and adhesives, cleaning fluids, and celluloid. Also called methyl ethyl ketone [BUTAN(E) + -ONE.]
- Bu·ta·zol·i·din (byōō'tə-zōl'ī-dīn) A trademark used for a preparation of phenylbutazone, an anti-inflammatory and analgesic drug.
- butch (bööch) n. 1. A butch haircut. 2. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a lesbian. — adj. Unusually or markedly masculine in appearance or manner. [Probably from the male nickname Butch.] — butch adj.
- butch·er (bööch'ər) n. 1. a. One that slaughters and dresses animals for food or market. b. One that sells meats. 2. One who kills brutally or indiscriminately. 3. A vender, especially one on a train or in a theater. 4. One who bungles something. — v. tr. butch·ered, butch·er·ing, butch·ers. 1. To slaughter or prepare (animals) for market. 2. To kill brutally or indiscriminately. 3. To botch; bungle: butcher a project; butchered the language. [Middle English bucher, from Old French bouchier, from bouc, boc, he-goat, probably of Celtic origin.] — butch'er·er n.
- butch·er·bird (bööch'ər-bûrd') n. Any of various birds, especially the shrike, that impale their prey on thorns.
- butch·er·block (bööch'ər-blök') adj. Made of or resembling a board of thick strips of hardwood like that on which butchers chop meat: a butcher-block counter.
- butcher knife (bööch'ər nīf) n. A heavy-duty knife with a broad, sharp blade used for cutting meat.
- butch·er's broom (bööch'ərz brōōm) n. An evergreen shrub (Ruscus aculeatus) native to Europe and the Mediterranean region, having leaflike stems, greenish flowers, and usually red berries.
- butch·er·y (bööch'ə-rē) *n. pl. butch·er·ies. 1. Wanton or cruel killing; carnage. 2. Something botched; a bungle. 3. The trade of a butcher. 4. Chiefly British. A slaughterhouse.*
- butch haircut (bööch hâr'küt') n. A haircut in which the hair is cropped close to the head.
- Bute (byōōt) An island of southwest Scotland in the Firth of Clyde.
- Bu·te·nandt (böōt'n-änt'), Adolf Friedrich. 1903-1995. German chemist. He shared a 1939 Nobel Prize for his work on sexual hormones but declined the honor following a Nazi edict prohibiting acceptance.
- bu·te·o (byōō'tē-ō') n. pl. bu·te·os. Any of various broad-winged, soaring hawks of the genus Buteo. [Latin būteō, a kind of hawk or falcon.]
- but·ler (büt'lər) n. The head servant in a household who is usually in charge of food service, the care of silverware, and the deportment of the other servants. [Middle English, from Old French bouteillier, bottle bearer, from bouteille, botele, bottle. See BOTTLE.]

But-ler (büt'lər) A city of western Pennsylvania north of Pittsburgh. It is a manufacturing center in a highly industrialized region. Population, 15,714.

But-ler (büt'lər), Benjamin Franklin. 1818-1893. American army officer and politician. His harsh rule as military governor of New Orleans (May-December 1862) led to charges of corruption and Butler's removal. He later opened the impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson (1868).

But-ler (büt'lər), Nicholas Murray. 1862-1947. American educator who advocated peace through education. He shared the 1931 Nobel Peace Prize.

But-ler (büt'lər), Pierce. 1866-1939. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1923-1939).

But-ler¹ (büt'lər), Samuel. 1612-1680. English poet remembered primarily for his three-part work Hudibras (1663-1678), a venomous mock-heroic satire on the Puritans.

But-ler² (büt'lər), Samuel. 1835-1902. British writer best known for The Way of All Flesh (1903), a semiautobiographical novel satirizing family life in mid-Victorian England.

but-ler's pantry (büt'lərz pän'trē) n. A serving and storage room between a kitchen and dining room.

butt¹ (büt) v. butt-ed, butt-ing, butts. — v. tr. To hit or push against with the head or horns; ram. — v. intr. 1. To hit or push something with the head or horns. 2. To project forward or out. — n. A push or blow with the head or horns. — phrasal verb. butt in. To interfere or meddle in other people's affairs. [Middle English budden, from Old French bouter, to strike, of Germanic origin. See bhau- in Appendix.] — butt'er n.

butt² (büt) v. tr. intr. butt-ed, butt-ing, butts. To join or be joined end to end; abut. — n. 1. A butt joint. 2. A butt hinge. [Middle English budden, from Anglo-Norman butter (variant of Old French bouter); see BUTT¹, and from but, end; see BUTT⁴.]

butt³ (büt) n. 1. One that serves as an object of ridicule or contempt: I was the butt of their jokes. 2. a. A target. b. butts. A target range. c. An obstacle behind a target for stopping the shot. 3. An embankment or hollow used as a blind by hunters of wildfowl. 4. a. Archaic. A goal. b. Obsolete. A bound; a limit. [Middle English butte, target, from Old French, from but, goal, end, target. See BUTT⁴.]

butt⁴ (büt) n. 1. The larger or thicker end of an object: the butt of a rifle. 2. a. An unburned end, as of a cigarette. b. Informal. A cigarette. 3. A short or broken remnant; a stub. 4. Informal. The buttocks; the rear end. [Middle English butte, from Old French but, end, of Germanic origin.]

butt⁵ (büt) n. 1. A large cask. 2. A unit of volume equal to two hogsheads, usually the equivalent of 126 U.S. gallons (about 477 liters). [Middle English, from Old French boute, from Late Latin buttia*, variant of buttis.]

butte (byōōt) n. Chiefly Western U.S. A hill that rises abruptly from the surrounding area and has sloping sides and a flat top. [French, from Old French butte, mound behind targets. See BUTT³.]

Butte (byōōt) A city of southwest Montana south-southwest of Helena. It has been a mining center since its settlement in the 1860's and enjoyed its greatest importance after the discovery of copper deposits in 1880. Population, 33,336.

but-ter (büt'ər) n. 1. A soft yellowish or whitish emulsion of butterfat, water, air, and sometimes salt, churned from milk or cream and processed for use in cooking and as a food. 2. Any of various substances similar to butter, especially: a. A spread made from fruit, nuts, or other foods: apple butter. b. A vegetable fat having a nearly solid consistency at ordinary temperatures. 3. Flattery. — v. tr. but-tered, but-ter-ing, but-ters. To put butter on or in. — phrasal verb. butter up. To praise or flatter excessively: You're always buttering up the boss. [Middle English butere, from Old English, from Latin butyrum, from Greek bouturon : bous, cow; see g^wou- in Appendix + turos, cheese; see teuə- in Appendix.]

but-ter-and-eggs (büt'ər-ən-ĕgz') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A weedy, perennial herb (Linaria vulgaris) native to Eurasia, having narrow leaves and racemes of showy, long-spurred yellow and orange flowers. Also called toad-flax but-ter-ball (büt'ər-bôl') n. 1. Informal. A chubby or fat person. 2. See buf-flehead.

butter bean (büt'ər bĕn) n. 1. Chiefly Southern U.S. & Chiefly Midland U.S. See lima bean. 2. New England. See wax bean.

but-ter-bur (büt'ər-bûr') n. Any of several perennial herbs of the genus Petasites in the composite family, native to northern temperate regions and having large basal leaves and dense clusters of usually whitish or purplish flower heads.

butter clam (büt'ər klām) n. A large, delicately flavored clam of the genus Saxidomus, found on the Pacific coast of North America and having a distinctive shell that was formerly used as money by Native Americans. Also called money shell but-ter-cup (büt'ər-küp') n. Any of numerous herbs of the genus Ranunculus, native chiefly to temperate and cold regions and having acrid juice, often toothed or lobed leaves, and usually yellow or white flowers with numerous pistils.

buttercup squash (büt'ər-küp' skwōsh) n. A type of winter squash (Cucurbita maxima) shaped somewhat like a drum and having a dark green rind marked with silver or gray and yellowish to orange flesh.

but-ter-fat (büt'ər-făt') n. The natural fat of milk from which butter is made, consisting largely of the glycerides of oleic, stearic, and palmitic acids.

but-ter-fin-gers (büt'ər-fīng'gərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). A person who tends to drop things. — but'ter-fin'gered adj.

but-ter-fish (büt'ər-fīsh') n. pl. butterfish or but-ter-fish-es. 1. A marine food fish (Poronotus triacanthus) of the North American Atlantic coast, having a flattened body. 2. Any of various similar or related fishes, such as the moonfish and gunnel. [From its slippery mucous coating.]

but-ter-fly (büt'ər-flī') n. 1. Any of various insects of the order Lepidoptera, characteristically having slender bodies, knobbed antennae, and four broad, usually colorful wings. 2. A person interested principally in frivolous pleasure: a social butterfly. 3. Sports. The butterfly stroke. 4. butterflies. A feeling of unease or mild nausea caused especially by fearful anticipation. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a butterfly knife; a butterfly hinge. — v. tr. but-ter-flied, but-ter-fly-ing, but-ter-flies. To cut and spread open and flat, as shrimp. [Middle English butterflye, from Old English butorflēoge: butor, butere, butter; see BUTTER + flēoge, fly; see FLY².]

WORD HISTORY: Is a butterfly named for the color of its excrement or because it was really a thieving witch? The first suggestion rests on the fact that an early Dutch name for the butterfly was boterschijte. This name is as astonishing a phenomenon as the fact that anyone ever noticed the color of butterfly excrement. Apparently, however, when the butterfly was not busy leaving colorful traces of itself, it was stealing milk and butter. This was not because of its thievish nature but because it was really a mischievous witch in the form of a winged insect. So the second suggestion is that this predilection for butter larceny gave rise to the colorful insect's name.

butterfly bush (büt'ər-flī' böōsh) n. Any of various shrubs of the genus Buddleja native chiefly to warm regions and cultivated for their showy clusters of small, variously colored flowers. Also called buddleia butterfly fish (büt'ər-flī' fīsh) n. 1. Any of various small, brightly colored tropical marine fishes of the family Chaetodontidae, having deep, flattened bodies and a single dorsal fin. 2. Any of various fishes with broad, winglike fins.

butterfly orchid (büt'ər-flī' ôr'kīd) n. Any of certain orchids, including Epidendrum tampense of Florida, Habenaria psycodes of eastern North America, and Oncidium kramerianum and O. pupilio of tropical America, having showy, brightly colored flowers.

butterfly pea (büt'ər-flī' pē) n. Any of several plants of the genera Centrosema and Clitoria in the pea family, having blue or lavender flowers and flat pods.

butterfly stroke (büt'ər-flī' strōk) n. Sports. A swimming stroke in which both arms are drawn upward out of the water and forward with a simultaneous up-and-down kick of the feet.

butterfly valve (büt'ər-flī' vālv) n. 1. A disk turning on a diametrical axis inside a pipe, used as a throttle valve or damper. 2. A valve composed of two semicircular plates hinged on a common spindle, used to permit flow in one direction only.

butterfly weed (büt'ər-flī' wēd) n. A North American milkweed (Asclepias tuberosa) having showy clusters of usually bright orange flowers and a root that was formerly used in medicine. Also called orange milkweed, pleurisy root.

but-ter-milk (büt'ər-mīlk') n. 1. The sour liquid that remains after the butter-fat has been removed from whole milk or cream by churning. 2. A cultured sour milk made by adding certain microorganisms to sweet milk.

buttermilk sky (büt'ər-mīlk' skī) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See mackerel sky. [From the resemblance of the clouds to the texture of cultured milk.]

but-ter-nut (büt'ər-nüt') n. 1. a. An eastern North American walnut (Juglans cinerea) having light-brown wood, pinnately compound leaves, and a deeply furrowed nut enclosed in an egg-shaped, sticky, aromatic husk. Also called white walnut. b. The nut of this tree, having an edible sweet kernel. c. The wood of this tree, used for furniture, boxes, and interior finishes. d. The bark of this tree. e. A brownish dye obtained from the husks of the fruits of this tree.

2. a. butternuts. Clothing dyed with butternut extract, especially the uniforms of Confederate soldiers in the Civil War. b. Informal. A Confederate soldier or partisan in the Civil War. 3. See souari nut. [From the nut's oiliness.]

butternut squash (büt'ər-nüt' skwōsh) n. A type of winter squash (Cucurbita moschata) shaped somewhat like a bell and having a smooth, tan rind and edible yellowish to orange flesh.

but-ter-scotch (büt'ər-sköch') n. A syrup, sauce, candy, or flavoring made by melting butter, brown sugar, and sometimes artificial flavorings. [Alteration of butterscot : BUTTER + scot of unknown origin.]

but-ter-weed (büt'ər-wēd') n. 1. A succulent annual or biennial plant (Senecio glabellus), native to the eastern United States and having pinnately divided leaves and bright yellow, radiate flower heads. 2. The horseweed.

but-ter-wort (büt'ər-wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of numerous carnivorous plants of the genus Pinguicula, having a rosette of basal leaves that are coated with a sticky secretion that traps small insects for digestion.

but-ter-y¹ (büt'ə-rē) adj. 1. Resembling, containing, or spread with butter. 2. Marked by effusive and insincere flattery. —but'ter-i-ness n.

but-ter-y² (büt'ə-rē, büt'rē) n. pl. but-ter-ies. 1. A room in which liquors are stored. 2. Chiefly British. A place in colleges and universities where students may buy provisions. [Middle English buttrie, from Anglo-Norman buterie, alteration of botelerie, from Old French botele, bottle. See BOTTLE.]

butt hinge (büt hĭnj) n. A hinge composed of two plates attached to abutting surfaces of a door and door jamb and joined by a pin. [From BUTT².]

butt-in-sky (büt-ĭn'skē) n. pl. butt-in-skies. Slang. One who is prone to butting in; a meddler. [BUTT¹ + IN¹ + -sky, last syllable in many Slavic surnames.]

butt joint (büt joint) n. A joint formed by two abutting surfaces placed squarely together. [From BUTT².]

but-tock (büt'ək) n. 1. a. Either of the two rounded prominences on the human torso that are posterior to the hips and formed by the gluteal muscles and underlying structures. b. The analogous part of the body on certain mammals.

2. buttocks. The rear pelvic area of the human body. [Middle English, from Old English buttuc, strip of land, end. See bhau- in Appendix.]

but-ton (büt'n) n. 1. a. A generally disk-shaped fastener used to join two parts of a garment by fitting through a buttonhole or loop. b. Such an object used for decoration. 2. Any of various objects resembling a button, especially: a. A push-button switch. b. The blunt tip of a fencing foil. c. A fused metal or glass globule. 3. Any of various knoblike structures of a plant or animal, especially: a. An immature, unexpanded mushroom. b. The tip of a rattlesnake's rattle. 4. A usually round flat badge that bears a design or printed information and is typically pinned to a garment: a campaign button. 5. Informal. The end of the chin, regarded as the point of impact for a punch. — v. but-toned, but-ton-ing, but-tons. — v. tr. 1. To fasten with buttons: buttoned his shirt; buttoned up her raincoat. 2. To decorate or furnish with buttons. 3. Informal. To close (the lips or mouth): Button your lip. — v. intr. To be or be capable of being fastened with buttons: The blouse buttons up the back. — idiom. on the button.

Exactly; precisely. [Middle English, from Old French bouton, from bouter, to thrust, of Germanic origin. See bhau- in Appendix.] — but'ton-er n. — but'-ton-y adj.

But-ton (büt'n), Richard Totten. Known as "Dick." Born 1929. American figure skater who was U.S. men's champion from 1946 to 1952 and won Olympic gold medals in 1948 and 1952.

but-ton-ball (büt'n-bôl') n. See sycamore (n., sense 1). [From its button-shaped fruit.]

but-ton-bush (büt'n-bōōsh') n. A deciduous North American shrub (Cephalanthus occidentalis) having opposite leaves and spherical clusters of small white flowers.

but-ton-down (büt'n-doun') adj. 1. Having the ends of the collar fastened down by buttons: a button-down shirt. 2. Also but-toned-down (büt'nd-). Conservative, conventional, or unimaginative: "a colorful character in the buttoned-down, dull-gray world of business" (Newsweek).

button fern (büt'n fûrn) n. A New Zealand fern (Pellaea rotundifolia) cultivated as a houseplant for its arching or trailing leaves with round, dark green, buttonlike leaflets.

but·ton·hole (büt'n-hōl') n. 1. A small slit in a garment or piece of fabric for fastening a button. 2. Chiefly British. A boutonniere. — v. tr. but·ton·holed, but·ton·hol·ing, but·ton·holes. 1. To make a buttonhole in. 2. To sew with a buttonhole stitch. 3. To accost and detain (a person) in conversation by or as if by grasping the person's outer garments: "He was also frequently buttonholed by White House lobbyists... who seemed to be permanently assigned to shadow the burly Democrat" (Terence Moran). [Sense 3, probably alteration of button-hold.]

—but'ton·hol'er n.

buttonhole stitch (büt'n-hōl' stīch) n. A loop stitch that forms a reinforced edge, as around a buttonhole.

but·ton·hook (büt'n-hōök') n. A small hook for fastening a button on shoes or gloves.

button mangrove (büt'n män'grōv') n. See buttonwood (n., sense 2).

but·ton·mold (büt'n-mōld') n. A piece of wood, plastic, or metal that is covered with fabric to form a button.

but·ton·quail (büt'n-kwāl') n. Any of various small, quaillike Old World birds of the family Turnicidae that lack a hind toe and are related to the crane and the bustard.

button snakeroot (büt'n snāk'rōōt') n. 1. See rattlesnake master. 2. See blazing star (n., sense 2).

but·ton·wood (büt'n-wōōd') n. 1. See sycamore (n., sense 1). 2. An evergreen shrub or tree (Conocarpus erectus), growing in mangrove forests of tropical America and western Africa and having alternate leathery leaves and small buttonlike heads of greenish flowers. Also called button mangrove but·tress (büt'rīs) n. 1. A structure, usually brick or stone, built against a wall for support or reinforcement. 2. Something resembling a buttress, as: a. The flared base of certain tree trunks. b. A horny growth on the heel of a horse's hoof. 3. Something that serves to support, prop, or reinforce: "The law is by its very nature a buttress of the status quo" (J. William Fulbright). — v. tr.

but·tressed, but·tress·ing, but·tress·es. 1. To support or reinforce with a buttress. 2. To sustain, prop, or bolster: "The author buttresses her analysis with lengthy dissections of several of Moore's poems" (Warren Woessner). [Middle English buteras, from Old French bouterez, from bouter, to strike against, of Germanic origin. See bhau- in Appendix.]

butt shaft (büt shāft) n. A blunt arrow used for target practice. [Probably from BUTT⁴.]

butt weld (büt wēld) n. A welded butt joint.

butt-weld (büt'wēld') v. tr. butt·weld·ed, butt·weld·ing, butt·welds. To join by a butt weld.

bu·tut (bōō'tōōt') n. pl. butut or bu·tuts. A unit of currency in Gambia. See Table at currency. [Wolof.]

bu·tyl (byōōt'ɫ) n. A hydrocarbon radical, C₄H₉, with the structure of butane and valence 1.

butyl alcohol (byōōt'ɫ ä'l'kə-hôl') n. Any of four isomeric alcohols, C₄H₉OH, widely used as solvents and in organic synthesis.

bu·tyl·ate (byōōt'ɫ-āt') v. tr. bu·tyl·at·ed, bu·tyl·at·ing, bu·tyl·ates. To bring a butyl group into (a compound). —bu'tyl·a'tion n.

bu·tyl·at·ed hy·drox·y·an·i·sole (byōōt'ɫ-ā'tid hī-drök'sē-än'ī-sôl') n. BHA.

butylated hy·drox·y·tol·u·ene (byōōt'ɫ-ā'tid hī-drök'sē-tôl'yōō-ēn') n. BHT.

bu·tyl·ene (byōōt'ɫ-ēn') n. Any of three gaseous isomeric ethylene hydrocarbons, C₄H₈, used principally in making synthetic rubbers.

butyl rubber (byōōt'ɫ rüb'ər) n. A synthetic rubber produced by copolymerization of a butylene with isoprene, nearly impermeable to air and used in tires, inner tubes, and insulation.

bu·ty·ra·ceous (byōō'tə-rā'shəs) adj. Resembling butter in appearance, consistency, or chemical properties. [Latin butyrum, butter; see BUTTER + -ACEOUS.]

bu·tyr·al·de·hyde (byōō'tə-räl'də-hīd') n. A transparent, highly flammable liquid, C₄H₈O, used in synthesizing resins. [BUTYR(IC) + ALDEHYDE.]

bu·ty·rate (byōō'tə-rāt') n. A salt or ester of butyric acid. [BUTYR(IC) + -ATE².]

bu·tyr·ic (byōō-tīr'ik) adj. 1. Relating to, containing, or derived from butter. 2. Relating to or derived from butyric acid. [From Latin butyrum, butter. See BUTTER.]

butyric acid (byōō-tīr'ik əs'īd) n. Either of two colorless isomeric acids, C₃H₇COOH, occurring in animal milk fats and used in disinfectants, emulsifying agents, and pharmaceuticals. Also called butanoic acid bu·ty·rin (byōō'tər-īn) n. Any of three isomeric glyceryl esters of butyric acid, naturally present in butter. [French butyrine, from Latin butyrum, butter. See BUTTER.]

bu·ty·ro·phe·none (byōō-tīr'ō-fə-nōn', byōō'tə-rō-) n. Any of a group of neuroleptic drugs, such as haloperidol, administered in the treatment of acute psychotic episodes, schizophrenia, and other psychiatric disorders. [BUTYR(IC) + PHEN- + -ONE.]

bux·om (bük'səm) adj. 1. a. Healthily plump and ample of figure: "A generation ago, fat babies were considered healthy and buxom actresses were popular, but society has since come to worship thinness" (Robert A. Hamilton). b. Full-bosomed. 2. Archaic. Lively, vivacious, and gay. 3. Obsolete. Obedient; yielding; pliant. [Middle English, obedient, from Old English būhsum*, from būgan, to bend, submit. See bheug- in Appendix.] —bux'om·ly adv. —bux'om·ness n.

Bux-te-hu-de (böök'stə-hōō'də), Dietrich. 1637-1707. Swedish-born organist and composer in Germany. His concerts attracted a wide audience, including Handel and Bach.

buy (bī) v. bought (bôt), buy-ing, buys. — v. tr. 1. To acquire in exchange for money or its equivalent; purchase. See Regional note at boughten. 2. To be capable of purchasing: “Certainly there are lots of things in life that money won't buy” (Ogden Nash). 3. To acquire by sacrifice, exchange, or trade: wanted to buy love with gifts. 4. To bribe: tried to buy a judge. 5. Slang. To accept the truth or feasibility of: The officer didn't buy my lame excuse for speeding. — v. intr. 1. To purchase goods; act as a purchaser. 2. To believe in a person or movement or subscribe to an idea or theory: couldn't buy into that brand of conservatism. — n. 1. Something bought or for sale; a purchase. 2. Informal. Something that is underpriced; a bargain. — phrasal verbs. buy off. To bribe in order to proceed without interference or be exempted from an obligation or from prosecution. buy out. To purchase the entire stock, business rights, or interests of. buy up. To purchase all that is available of. — idioms. buy time. To increase the time available for a specific purpose: “A moderate recovery thus buys time for Congress and the Administration to whittle the deficit” (G. David Wallace). buy the farm. Slang. To die, especially suddenly or violently. [Middle English, from Old English bycgan.] — buy'a-ble adj.

buy-er (bī'ər) n. One that buys, especially a purchasing agent for a retail store.

buy-er's market also buy-ers' market (bī'ərz mār'kīt) n. A market condition characterized by low prices and a supply of commodities exceeding demand.

buy-out also buy-out (bī'out') n. 1. The purchase of the entire holdings or interests of an owner or investor. 2. The purchase of a company or business: “If the workers do approve the buyout, their company will become the nation's largest employee-owned enterprise” (Harry Anderson).

Bu-zău (bə-zou', böō-zü'ōō) A city of southeast Romania northeast of Bucharest. It is an important transportation hub. Population, 126,780.

buzz (büz) v. buzzed, buzz-ing, buzz-es. — v. intr. 1. To make a low droning or vibrating sound like that of a bee. 2. a. To talk, often excitedly, in low tones. b. To be abuzz; hum: The department was buzzing with rumors. 3. To move quickly and busily; bustle. 4. To make a signal with a buzzer. — v. tr. 1. To cause to buzz. 2. To utter in a rapid, low voice: “What is he buzzing in my ears?” (Robert Browning). 3. Informal. To fly low over: The plane buzzed the control tower. 4. To signal with a buzzer. 5. To make a telephone call to. — n. 1. A vibrating, humming, or droning sound. 2. A low murmur: a buzz of talk. 3. A telephone call: Give me a buzz at nine. 4. Slang. Pleasant intoxication, as from alcohol. — phrasal verb. buzz off. Informal. To leave quickly; go away: I told them in no uncertain terms to buzz off. [Middle English bussen, of imitative origin.]

buz-zard (büz'ərd) n. 1. Any of various North American vultures, such as the turkey vulture. 2. Chiefly British. A hawk of the genus Buteo, having broad wings and a broad tail. 3. An avaricious or otherwise unpleasant person. [Middle English busard, hawk of the genus Buteo, from Old French, from Latin būteō.]

Buz-zards Bay (büz'ərdz bā) An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean in southeast Massachusetts connected with Cape Cod Bay by the Cape Cod Canal.

buzz bomb (büz böm) n. See robot bomb.

buzz-er (büz'ər) n. An electric signaling device, such as a doorbell, that makes a buzzing sound.

buzz saw (büz sô) n. See circular saw.

buzz-word (büz'würd') n. A usually important-sounding word or phrase connected with a specialized field or group that is used primarily to impress laypersons: “‘Sensitivity’ is the buzzword in the beauty industry this fall” (ADWEEK).

B.V.D. also BVD (bē'vē'dē') A trademark used for undershirts and underpants. This trademark sometimes occurs in print with a final s: “He will be under constant scrutiny, right down to his BVD’s” (Los Angeles Times).

B vitamin (bē'vītə-mĭn) n. A member of the vitamin B complex group of vitamins.

B.V.M. abbr. Blessed Virgin Mary.

bvt. abbr. 1. Brevet. 2. Brevetted.

BW abbr. 1. Biological warfare. 2. Also b/w. Black and white.

bwa-na (bwä'nə) n. Used as a form of respectful address in parts of Africa. [Swahili, from Arabic 'abūnā, our father.]

B.W.I. abbr. British West Indies.

BX abbr. Base Exchange.

bx. also bx abbr. Box.

by¹ (bī) prep. 1. Close to; next to: the window by the door. 2. With the use or help of; through: We came by the back road. 3. Up to and beyond; past: We drove by the house. 4. In the period of; during: sleeping by day. 5. Not later than: by 5:30 P.M. 6. a. In the amount of: letters by the thousands. b. To the extent of: shorter by two inches. 7. a. According to: played by the rules. b. With respect to: siblings by blood. 8. In the name of: swore by the Bible to tell the truth.

9. Through the agency or action of: was killed by a bullet. 10. Used to indicate a succession of specified individuals, groups, or quantities: One by one they left. They were persuaded little by little. 11. a. Used in multiplication and division: Multiply 4 by 6 to get 24. b. Used with measurements: a room 12 by 18 feet.

c. Used to express direction with points of the compass: south by southeast. —

adv. 1. On hand; nearby: Stand by. 2. Aside; away: We put it by for later. 3. Up to, alongside, and past: The car raced by. 4. Into the past: as years go by. [Middle English, from Old English bī, be. See ambhi in Appendix.]

by² (bī) n. Variant of bye.

b.y. abbr. Billion years.

by- or bye- pref. 1. By: bygone. 2. Secondary, incidental: byway.

by and by (bī ənd bī) adv. After a while; soon.

by-and-by (bī'ən-bī') n. Some future time or occasion.

by and large (bī ənd lārj) adv. For the most part; generally: By and large, the play was a success.

by-bid-der (bī'bīd'ər) n. A person who bids at an auction to raise prices for the owner. —by'-bid'ding n.

Byb-los (bīb'ləs, -lōs') An ancient city of Phoenicia north-northeast of present-day Beirut, Lebanon. It was the chief city of Phoenicia in the second millennium B.C. and was noted for its papyruses.

by-blow (bī'blō') n. 1. An indirect or chance blow. 2. An illegitimate child; a bastard.

Byd-goszcz (bīd'gōsh, -gōshch) A city of north-central Poland northeast of Poznań. Chartered in 1346, it developed during the Middle Ages around the site of a prehistoric fort. Population, 361,400.

bye also by (bī) n. 1. A secondary matter; a side issue. 2. Sports. The position of one who draws no opponent for a round in a tournament and so advances to the next round. —idiom. by the bye. By the way; incidentally. [From BY¹.]

bye- pref. Variant of by-.

bye-bye (bī'bī', bī-bī') interj. Used to express farewell. — adv. Informal.

1. Away. 2. To bed; to sleep: “[Live Senate television is] a great way to go bye-bye. Pretty soon you're asleep” (William Proxmire). [Reduplication of (GOOD-)BYE.]

by-e-lec-tion also bye-e-lec-tion (bī'ī-lĕk'shən) n. A special election held between general elections to fill a vacancy, as for a parliamentary seat.

Bye-lo-rus-sia (byĕl'ō-rūsh'ə) See Belarus. —Byel'o-rus'sian adj. & n.

by-gone (bī'gōn', -gōn') adj. Gone by; past: bygone days. — n. One, especially a grievance, that is past: Let bygones be bygones.

by-law (bī'lō') n. 1. A law or rule governing the internal affairs of an organization. 2. A secondary law. [Middle English bilawe, body of local regulations; akin to Danish by-lag, township ordinance : Old Norse býr, settlement; see bheuə- in Appendix + Old Norse lagu*, law; see leg- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A casual glance at the word bylaw might make one think that the element by- means “secondary, subsidiary,” especially since bylaw can mean “a secondary law.” It is possible that by-, as in byway, has influenced bylaw in the sense “secondary law”; however, bylaw existed long before the sense in question. The word is first recorded in 1283 with the meaning “a body of customs or regulations, as of a village, manor, religious organization, or sect.” By- in this word comes from Old Norse, as may the word bylaw, and is related to if not identical with the element -by in the names of many places, such as Whitby, where Scandinavians settled when they invaded England during the early Middle Ages. We get the sense of this -by if we compare the related word entered as bær, bærr, býr, in the standard dictionary of Old Icelandic, meaning “a town or village” in Norway, Sweden, and Denmark and “a farm or landed estate” in Iceland. We thus see why bylaw would mean “a body of customs of a village or manor” and why we use the word to mean “a law or rule governing the internal affairs of an organization.”

by·line also by·line (bī'lin') n. A line at the head of a newspaper or magazine article carrying the writer's name. — v. tr. by·lined, by·lin·ing, by·lines. To write (a newspaper or magazine article) under a byline. — by·lin'er n.

by·name (bī'nām') n. 1. A surname. 2. A nickname.

Byng (bŋg), Julian Hedworth George. 1862-1935. British general in World War I and governor-general of Canada (1921-1926).

BYOB or B.Y.O.B abbr. Bring your own booze; bring your own bottle.

by·pass also by·pass (bī'pās') n. 1. A highway that passes around or to one side of an obstructed or congested area. 2. A pipe or channel used to conduct gas or liquid around another pipe or a fixture. 3. A means of circumvention.

4. Electricity. See shunt (n., sense 3). 5. Medicine. a. An alternative passage created surgically to divert the flow of blood or other bodily fluid or circumvent an obstructed or diseased organ. b. A surgical procedure to create such a channel: a coronary artery bypass; a gastric bypass. — v. tr. by·passed, by·pass·ing, by·pass·es. 1. To avoid (an obstacle) by using an alternative channel, passage, or route. 2. To be heedless of; ignore: bypassed standard office procedures. 3. To channel (piped liquid, for example) through a bypass.

by·past (bī'päst') adj. Past; bygone.

by·path (bī'pāth', -pāth') n. An indirect or rarely used path.

by·play (bī'plā') n. Secondary action or speech taking place while the main action proceeds, as during a theatrical performance.

by·prod·uct or by·prod·uct (bī'pröd'əkt) n. 1. Something produced in the making of something else. 2. A secondary result; a side effect.

Byrd (bûrd), Richard Evelyn. 1888-1957. American naval officer and explorer. After being the first to fly over the North Pole (with Floyd Bennett in 1926), he turned his attention to Antarctica, leading five expeditions between 1929 and 1956 and establishing a base for scientific discovery at Little America.

Byrd (bûrd), William. 1674-1744. American planter and colonial official whose diaries (written in shorthand) provide a rare and humorous account of daily life in pre-Revolutionary Virginia.

byre (bīr) n. Chiefly British. A barn for cows. [Middle English, from Old English býre. See bheu- in Appendix.]

Byrnes (bûrnz), James Francis. 1879-1972. American politician who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1941-1942). As secretary of state (1945-1947) he tried unsuccessfully to ease postwar tensions between the United States and the U.S.S.R.

by-road (bī'rōd') n. See byway (n., sense 1).

By-ron (bī'rən), George Gordon Sixth Baron Byron of Rochdale. 1788-1824. British poet acclaimed as one of the leading figures of the romantic movement. The “Byronic hero”—lonely, rebellious, and brooding—first appeared in Manfred (1817). Among his other works are Childe Harold (1812-1818), The Prisoner of Chillon (1816), and the epic satire Don Juan (1819-1824). Byron was notorious for his love affairs and unconventional lifestyle. He died while working to secure Greek independence from the Turks. —By-ron'ic (bī-rŏn'ik) adj.

—By-ron'i-cal-ly adv.

bys-si (bīs'ī') n. A plural of byssus.

bys-si-no-sis (bīs'ī-nō'sīs) n. An occupational respiratory disease caused by the long-term inhalation of cotton, flax, or hemp dust and characterized by shortness of breath, coughing, and wheezing. Also called brown lung disease [Late Latin byssinum, linen garment (from Latin byssus, linen cloth) + -OSIS.]

bys-sus (bīs'əs) n. pl. bys-sus-es or bys-si (bīs'ī'). 1. Zoology. A mass of strong, silky filaments by which certain bivalve mollusks, such as mussels, attach themselves to rocks and other fixed surfaces. 2. A fine-textured linen of ancient times, used by the Egyptians for wrapping mummies. [Middle English bissus, linen cloth, from Latin, from Greek bussos, linen, ultimately from Egyptian w'd, linen.]

by-stand-er (bī'stān'dər) n. A person who is present at an event without participating in it.

by-street (bī'strēt') n. A side street.

byte (bīt) n. 1. A sequence of adjacent bits operated on as a unit by a computer. 2. The amount of computer memory needed to store one character of a specified size, usually 8 bits for a microcomputer and 16 bits for a larger computer. [Alteration and blend of BIT³, and BITE.]

by the way (bī thē wā) adv. Incidentally.

By-tom (bē'tôm', bī'-) A city of southwest Poland northwest of Katowice. It became part of Prussia in 1742 and was incorporated into Poland in 1945. Population, 239,200.

by-way (bī'wā') n. 1. A side road. Also called byroad 2. A secondary or arcane field of study.

by-word also by-word (bī'wûrd') n. 1. a. A proverbial expression; a proverb. b. An often-used word or phrase. 2. One that represents a type, class, or quality: “Polyester got its déclassé reputation in the 1970s after cheap, poorly made double-knit leisure suits became a byword for bad taste” (Fortune). 3. An object of notoriety or interest: The eccentric poet was a byword in literary circles. 4. An epithet. [Middle English byworde, from Old English bīword, translation of Latin prōverbium.]

Byz·an·tine (bĭz'ən-tēn', -tīn', bĭ-zăn'tĭn) adj. 1. a. Of or relating to the ancient city of Byzantium. b. Of or relating to the Byzantine Empire. 2. Of or belonging to the style of architecture developed from the fifth century A.D. in the Byzantine Empire, characterized by a central dome resting on a cube formed by four round arches and their pendentives and by the extensive use of surface decoration, especially veined marble panels, low relief carving, and colored glass mosaics. 3. Of the painting and decorative style developed in the Byzantine Empire, characterized by formality of design, frontal stylized presentation of figures, rich use of color, especially gold, and generally religious subject matter. 4. a. Of the Eastern Orthodox Church or the rites performed in it. b. Of a Uniat church that maintains the worship of the Eastern Orthodox Church or the rites performed in it. 5. Often byzantine. a. Of, relating to, or characterized by intrigue; scheming or devious: "a fine hand for Byzantine deals and cozy arrangements" (New York). b. Highly complicated; intricate and involved: a bill to simplify the Byzantine tax structure. — n. A native or inhabitant of Byzantium or the Byzantine Empire.

Byzantine Empire (bĭz'ən-tēn' ěm'pĭr') The eastern part of the later Roman Empire, dating from A.D. 330 when Constantine I rebuilt Byzantium and made it his capital. Its extent varied greatly over the centuries, but its core remained the Balkan Peninsula and Asia Minor. The empire collapsed when Constantinople fell to the Ottoman Turks in 1453.

By·zan·ti·um (bĭ-zăn'shē-əm, -tē-əm) 1. The Byzantine Empire. 2. An ancient city of Thrace on the site of present-day Istanbul, Turkey. It was founded by the Greeks in the seventh century B.C. and taken by the Romans in A.D. 196. Constantine I ordered the rebuilding of the city in 330 and renamed it Constantinople.

BZ (bē'zē') n. Used by the U.S. Army as a code word for a gas, C₂₁H₂₃NO₃, that produces incapacitating disorientation and hallucination when inhaled. [Possibly abbr. of benzilic, from BENZOIN.]

c¹ or C (sē) n. pl. c's or C's. 1. The third letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter c. 3. The third in a series. 4. C. The third best or third highest in quality or rank: a mark of C on a term paper. 5. Music. a. The first tone in the scale of C major or the third tone in the relative minor scale. b. A key or scale in which the tone of C is the tonic. c. A written or printed note representing this tone. d. A string, key, or pipe tuned to the pitch of this tone.

c² abbr. 1. Physics. Candle. 2. Carat. 3. Physics. Charm quark. 4. Also C. Mathematics. Constant. 5. Cubic.

C¹ (sē) n. A computer programming language widely used on microcomputers.

C² 1. The symbol for the element carbon (n., sense 1). 2. Also c. The symbol for the Roman numeral one hundred. 3. c. The symbol for the speed of light in a vacuum. 4. Electricity. The symbol for capacitance. 5. Physics. The symbol for charge conjugation.

C³ abbr. 1. Celsius. 2. Centigrade. 3. C. Physics. Charm. 4. Slang. Cocaine. 5. Coulomb.

c. or C. abbr. 1. Capacity. 2. Cape. 3. Carton. 4. Case. 5. Catcher. 6. Cent. 7. Centavo. 8. Centime. 9. Century. 10. Chapter. 11. Church. 12. Circa. 13. Latin. Congius (gallon). 14. Consul. 15. Copy. 16. Copyright. 17. Corps. 18. Cup.

C. abbr. 1. Catholic. 2. Celtic. 3. Chancellor. 4. Chief. 5. City. 6. Companion. 7. Congress. 8. Conservative. 9. Court.

ca abbr. 1. Centare. 2. Circa.

Ca The symbol for the element calcium.

CA abbr. 1. California. 2. Also C.A.. Chronological age.

C.A. abbr. 1. a. Central America. b. Central American. 2. Also c.a.. Chartered accountant.

c/a abbr. Current account.

CAA or C.A.A. abbr. Civil Aeronautics Administration.

cab¹ (kăb) n. 1. A taxicab. 2. The covered compartment of a heavy vehicle or machine, such as a truck or locomotive, in which the operator or driver sits. 3. A one-horse vehicle for public hire. — v. cabbed, cab-bing, cabs. — v. intr. 1. To ride or travel in a taxicab: We cabbed to the opera. 2. To drive a taxicab: a student who cabbed for a living. — v. tr. To transport or convey in a taxicab: cabbed the package to the airport. [Short for CABRIOLET.]

cab² also kab (kăb) n. An ancient Hebrew unit of measure equal to about 2 liters (2.1 quarts). [Hebrew qab, hollow vessel.]

CAB abbr. Civil Aeronautics Board.

ca-bal (kə-băł) n. 1. A conspiratorial group of plotters or intriguers: “Espionage is quite precisely it—a cabal of powerful men, working secretly” (Frank Conroy).

2. A secret scheme or plot. See Synonyms at conspiracy. — v. intr. ca-balled, ca-bal-ling, ca-bals. To form a cabal; conspire. [French cabale, from Medieval Latin cabala. See CABALA.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of cabal reveals how a word can be transferred from one sphere of activity to another while retaining only a tenuous connection with its past. Ultimately from Hebrew but transmitted to English probably by way of Medieval Latin and French, cabal is first recorded in English in 1616 in the sense “cabala.” Cabala was the name for the Hebrew oral tradition transmitted by Moses and also the name for a Jewish religious philosophy based on an esoteric interpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures. The notion “esoteric” is central to the development of this word in English, for cabal, probably following the sense development in French, came to mean “a tradition, special interpretation, or secret,” “a private intrigue” (first recorded in 1646-1647), and “a small body of intriguers” (first recorded in 1660). It is probably not coincidental that cabal is found with these latter meanings during the mid-17th century, that time of plots and counterplots by Royalists and Parliamentarians. The word gained a false etymology when it was noticed that the five most influential ministers of Charles II were named Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, and Lauderdale.

cab-a-la or cab-ba-la also kab-a-la or kab-ba-la (kăb'ə-lə, kə-bä'-) n. 1. Often Cabala. A body of mystical teachings of rabbinical origin, often based on an esoteric interpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures. 2. A secret doctrine resembling these teachings. [Medieval Latin, from Hebrew qabbālâ, received doctrine, tradition, from qibbēl, to receive.] —cab'a-lism n. —cab'a-list n.

ca-ba-let-ta (kăb'ə-lět'ə, kă'bə-) n. pl. ca-ba-let-tas or ca-ba-let-te (-lět'ē). 1. Music. a. A short aria that has a repetitive rhythm and a simple style. b. The final section of an aria or duet marked by a quick uniform rhythm. 2. Something likened to such a short aria or a final section of a piece: “And a chronic chorus of cascades and birds/Cuts loose in a wild cabaletta” (W.H. Auden). [Italian, alteration of coboletta, stanza, diminutive of cobola, cobla, from Old Provençal cobla, from Latin cōpula, link.]

cab-a-lis-tic (kăb'ə-lis'tik) adj. 1. Having a secret or hidden meaning; occult: cabalistic symbols engraved in stone. 2. Of or relating to the cabala. —cab'a-lis'ti-cal-ly adv.

cab-al-le-ro (kăb'ə-lâr'ō, -əl-yâr'ō, kă'bä-yě'rō) n. pl. cab-al-le-ros. 1. A Spanish gentleman; a cavalier. 2. One who is skilled in riding and managing horses; a horseman. [Spanish, from Late Latin caballārius, horse groom, from Latin caballus, horse.]

ca-ban-a also ca-ba-ña (kə-băn'ə, -băn'yə) n. A shelter on a beach or at a swimming pool used as a bathhouse. [Spanish cabaña, from Late Latin capanna, hut.]

- Ca·ba·na·tuan (kă'bə-nə-twän', -bə-nä-) A city of central Luzon, Philippines, north of Manila. It was the site of a World War II Japanese prison camp for American and Filipino soldiers captured at Bataan and Corregidor. Population, 38,400.
- cab·a·ret (kăb'ə-rā') n. 1. A restaurant or nightclub providing short programs of live entertainment. 2. The floor show presented by such a restaurant or nightclub. [French, tap-room, from Middle Dutch cabret, from Old North French camberette, from Late Latin camera, room. See CHAMBER.]
- cab·bage (kăb'ij) n. 1. Any of several forms of a European vegetable (Brassica oleracea var. capitata) of the mustard family, having a globose head consisting of a short stem and tightly overlapping green to purplish leaves. 2. Any of several similar or related plants, such as Chinese cabbage. 3. The terminal bud of several species of palm, eaten as a vegetable. 4. Slang. Money, especially in the form of bills. 5. Informal. Sweetheart; dear. Used as a term of endearment. [Middle English caboche, from Old North French, head, possibly from alteration of Latin caput. See CAPITAL¹.] —cab'bag·y adj.
- cabbage butterfly (kăb'ij bŭt'ər-flī') n. Any of several white butterflies of the genus Pieris, having larvae that feed on cabbage.
- cabbage palm (kăb'ij päm) n. 1. Any of several palms, such as the assai, with edible terminal buds. 2. See cabbage palmetto.
- cabbage palmetto (kăb'ij päl-mět'ō) n. A species of palmetto (Sabal palmetto) native to the southeast United States and the Bahamas, having an edible terminal bud and leaves used in religious services on Palm Sunday. Also called cabbage palm
- cabbage rose (kăb'ij rōz) n. A coarse, prickly shrub (Rosa centifolia) native to the Caucasus, having fragrant, pink, double-petaled flowers and widely cultivated as a source of attar of roses.
- cab·bage·worm (kăb'ij-wŭrm') n. A larva that feeds on and is destructive to cabbage, especially the bright-green larva of the cabbage butterfly.
- cab·ba·la (kăb'ə-lə, kə-bä'-) n. Variant of cabala.
- cab·by or cab·bie (kăb'ē) n. pl. cab·bies. A cabdriver. [CAB¹ + -Y³.]
- cab·driv·er also cab driver (kăb'drī'vər) n. One who drives a taxicab for hire.
- Cab·ell (kăb'əl), James Branch. 1879-1958. American writer best known for a series of satirical novels, including Jurgen (1919), set in a fictitious medieval French province called Poictesme.
- ca·ber (kă'bər) n. Sports. A long, heavy wooden pole tossed end over end as a demonstration of strength in Scottish highland games. [Scottish Gaelic cabar, pole, beam, rafter, from Vulgar Latin capriō*, from Latin capra, she-goat. See CHEVRON.]
- cab·er·net (kăb'ər-nā') n. A dry red wine made from the black grape variety Cabernet sauvignon. [French.]

Ca-be-za de Va-ca (kə-bā'zə də vā'kə, kə-vē'thā thē vā'kə), Álvar Núñez.

1490?-1557?. Spanish explorer and colonial administrator who explored parts of present-day Florida, Texas, and Mexico and aroused Spain's interest in the region with his vivid stories of riches and opportunities.

CABG abbr. Coronary artery bypass graft.

Ca-bi-mas (kə-bē'məs, kə-vē'mäs) A town of northwest Venezuela on the northeast shore of Lake Maracaibo. It is a center for oil producing and refining. Population, 183,000.

cab-in (kăb'in) n. 1. A small, roughly built house; a cottage. 2. Nautical. a. A room in a ship used as living quarters by an officer or a passenger. b. An enclosed compartment in a boat that serves as a shelter or as living quarters. 3. The enclosed space in an aircraft or spacecraft for the crew, passengers, or cargo. — v. tr. intr. cab-ined, cab-in-ing, cab-ins. To confine or live in or as if in a small space or area. [Middle English caban, from Old French cabane, from Old Provençal cabana, from Late Latin capanna.]

cabin boy (kăb'in boi) n. A boy servant aboard a ship.

cabin class (kăb'in klās) n. Nautical. A class of accommodations on some passenger ships, lower than first class and higher than tourist class.

cabin cruiser (kăb'in krōō'zər) n. Nautical. A powerboat with a cabin that has living accommodations.

Ca-bin-da (kə-bīn'də) A territory of Angola forming an exclave on the Atlantic Ocean between Congo and Zaire. It was separated from Angola proper when the Belgian Congo (now Zaire) acquired a corridor to the sea along the lower Congo River.

cab-i-net (kăb'ə-nīt) n. 1. An upright, cupboardlike repository with shelves, drawers, or compartments for the safekeeping or display of a collection of objects or materials. 2. Often Cabinet. A body of persons appointed by a head of state or a prime minister to head the executive departments of the government and to act as official advisers. 3. Archaic. A small or private room set aside for a specific activity. 4. Rhode Island & Southeastern Massachusetts. See milk shake (n., sense 1). See Regional note at milk shake. — adj. 1. Suitable for storage or display in a cabinet, as because of size or decorative quality. 2. Of, relating to, or being a member of a governmental cabinet: cabinet matters; a cabinet minister. 3. Used in the making of cabinets: teak and other heavy cabinet wood. [French, partly from diminutive of Old North French cabine, gambling-room (perhaps alteration of Old French cabane, small house); see CABIN, and partly from Italian gabinetto, closet, chest of drawers; akin to Old North French cabine. N., sense 4, possibly from the square wooden container in which the mixer was encased.]

—cab/i-net-ful n.

cab-i-net-mak-er (kăb'ə-nīt-mā'kər) n. An artisan specializing in making fine articles of wooden furniture. —cab/i-net-mak'ing n.

cab·i·net·ry (kăb'ĩ-nĩ-trē) n. Cabinetwork: finely detailed cabinetry.

cab·i·net·work (kăb'ə-nĩt-wũrk') n. Finished woodwork fashioned by a cabinetmaker.

cabin fever (kăb'ĩn fē'vər) n. Uneasiness or distress that results from a lack of environmental stimulation, as when living in a remote, sparsely populated region or in a small, enclosed space.

ca·ble (kă'bəl) n. 1. a. A strong, large-diameter, heavy steel or fiber rope.

b. Something that resembles such steel or fiber rope. 2. Electricity. A bound or sheathed group of mutually insulated conductors. 3. Nautical. a. A heavy rope or chain for mooring or anchoring a ship. b. A cable length. 4. A cablegram.

5. Cable television. — v. ca·bled, ca·bling, ca·bles. — v. tr. 1. a. To send a cablegram to. b. To transmit (a message) by telegraph. 2. To supply or fasten with a cable or cables. — v. intr. To send a cablegram. [Middle English, from Old North French, from Late Latin capulum, lasso, from Latin capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.] —ca'bler n.

Ca·ble (kă'bəl), George Washington. 1844-1925. American writer whose works, including short stories and the novel The Granddissimes (1880), concern social order and racial discord in the South.

cable car (kă'bəl kăr) n. A car designed to operate on a cableway or cable railway.

ca·ble·cast (kă'bəl-kăst') n. A telecast by cable television. [CABLE + (BROAD)CAST.] —ca'ble·cast' v. —ca'ble·cast'er n. ca·ble·gram (kă'bəl-grăm') n. A telegram sent by submarine cable. [CABLE + (TELE)GRAM.]

ca·ble·laid (kă'bəl-lăd') adj. Made of three ropes of three strands each, twisted together counterclockwise.

cable length (kă'bəl lěngkth) also ca·ble's length (kă'bəlz lěngkth) n. Nautical. A unit of length equal to 720 feet (220 meters) in the United States and 608 feet (185 meters) in England.

cable railway (kă'bəl rāl'wā') n. A railroad on which the cars are moved by an endless cable driven by a stationary engine.

ca·ble's length (kă'bəlz lěngkth) n. Nautical. Variant of cable length.

cable stitch (kă'bəl stīch) n. A stitch in knitting that produces a twisted, rope-like design.

ca·blet (kă'blīt) n. A cable-laid rope with a circumference of less than 10 inches (25 centimeters).

cable television (kă'bəl tēl'ə-vīzh'ən) n. A television distribution system in which station signals, picked up by elevated antennas, are delivered by cable to the receivers of subscribers. Also called cable TV, cablevision, community antenna television.

ca·ble·vi·sion (kă'bəl-vīzh'ən) n. See cable television.

ca·ble·way (kā'bəl-wā') n. A suspended cable used as a track typically for a cable car.

cab·man (kăb'mən) n. A man who drives a taxicab.

cab·o·chon (kăb'ə-shŏn') n. 1. A highly polished, convex-cut, unfaceted gem. 2. A convex style of cutting gems. — adv. In a highly polished, convex-cut, unfaceted style: a sapphire that was cut cabochon. [French, from Old North French, augmentative of caboché, head. See CABBAGE.]

Ca·bo·clo or ca·bo·clo (kə-bô'klō, -klō) n. pl. Ca·bo·clos. A person, especially a Brazilian, whose descent is traced entirely or partially to the Indian peoples inhabiting Brazil: “got to know some caboclos, the Amazonian backwoods people who are some of the warmest people on earth” (Alex Shoumatoff). [Portuguese, of Tupian origin.]

ca·bom·ba (kə-bŏm'bə) n. See fanwort. [American Spanish.]

ca·boo·dle (kə-bōōd'l) n. Informal. 1. The lot, group, or bunch: donated the whole caboodle. 2. A crowd or collection of people. [Alteration of BOODLE.]

ca·boose (kə-bōōs') n. 1. The last car on a freight train, having kitchen and sleeping facilities for the train crew. 2. Obsolete. a. A ship's galley. b. Any of various cast-iron cooking ranges used in such galleys during the early 19th century. c. An outdoor oven or fireplace. [Possibly from obsolete Dutch cabūse, ship's galley, from Middle Low German kabūse: perhaps kab-*, cabin; akin to Old French cabane; see CABIN + Middle High German hūs, house.]

Cab·ot (kăb'ət), John. Originally Giovanni Caboto. 1450?-1498?. Italian-born explorer who commanded the English expedition that discovered the North American mainland (1497).

Cab·ot (kăb'ət), Sebastian. 1476?-1557. Italian-born explorer and cartographer who led an English expedition in search of the Northwest Passage (1509) and a Spanish expedition to South America (1525-1528). He published a map of the world in 1544.

cab·o·tage (kăb'ə-tāzh') n. 1. Trade or navigation in coastal waters. 2. The exclusive right of a country to operate the air traffic within its territory. [French, from caboter, to sail along a coast, perhaps from Spanish cabo, cape, from Latin caput, head. See CAPE².]

Cabot Strait (kăb'ət strāt) A channel between southwest Newfoundland and northern Cape Breton Island, Canada, connecting the Gulf of St. Lawrence with the Atlantic Ocean.

Ca·bral (kə-bräl', -brôl') , Pedro Alvares. 1467?-1520?. Portuguese explorer who discovered Brazil (1500) and claimed it for Portugal.

ca·bret·ta (kə-brēt'ə) n. A soft, kidlike leather used for gloves and shoes and made from sheepskin having coarse, hairlike wool. [Spanish Portuguese cabra, she-goat (both from Latin capra, feminine of caper, goat) + Italian -etta, diminutive suff..]

ca·bril·la (kə-brē'yə, -brīl'ə) n. Any of various sea basses, especially Epinephelus guttatus of tropical waters, such as the Mediterranean. [Spanish, diminutive of cabra, she-goat. See CABRETTA.]

Ca·bri·llo (kə-brē'lō, -yō, -brēl'yō, kə-brēl'yoō), Juan Rodríguez. Died 1543. Portuguese-born explorer who discovered California (1542) while in the service of Spain.

Ca·bri·ni (kə-brē'nē), Saint Frances Xavier. Known as “Mother Cabrini.” 1850-1917. Italian-born American religious leader who founded the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart (1880) and was the first American to be canonized (1946).

cab·ri·ole (kăb'rē-ōl') n. A form of furniture leg that curves outward and then narrows downward into an ornamental foot, characteristic of Queen Anne and Chippendale furniture. [French, caper (from its resemblance to the foreleg of a capering animal). See CABRIOLET.]

cab·ri·o·let (kăb'rē-ə-lā') n. 1. A two-wheeled, one-horse carriage that has two seats and a folding top. 2. An automobile with a folding top; a convertible coupe. [French, diminutive of cabriole, caper, from obsolete capriole, from Italian capriola, from capriolo, roebuck, from Latin capreolus, masculine diminutive of caprea, roe deer, from caper, he-goat.]

cab·stand (kăb'stănd') n. A place designated for taxicabs waiting for hire.

cac- pref. Variant of caco-.

ca·ca·o (kə-kă'ō, -kă'ō) n. pl. ca·ca·os. 1. An evergreen tropical American tree (Theobroma cacao) having leathery, ellipsoid, ten-ribbed fruits borne on the trunks and older branches. Also called chocolate tree 2. The seed of this plant, used in making chocolate, cocoa, and cocoa butter. In this sense, also called cacao bean, cocoa bean. [Spanish, from Nahuatl cacahuatl.]

cacao butter (kə-kă'ō büt'ər) n. See cocoa butter.

Cá·ce·res (kă'sə-rās', -thē-rēs') A city of west-central Spain southwest of Madrid. An important Roman settlement, it was ruled by the Moors from 1142 to 1229. Population, 69,734.

ca·cha·ca also ca·cha·ça (kə-shă'sə) n. A light Brazilian rum made from sugar cane. [Portuguese cachaça.]

cach·a·lot (kăsh'ə-lōt', -lō') n. See sperm whale. [French, from Spanish, or Portuguese cachalote, augmentative of cachola, big head.]

cache (kăsh) n. 1. a. A hiding place used especially for storing provisions. b. A place for concealment and safekeeping, as of valuables. c. The store of goods or valuables concealed in a hiding place. 2. Computer Science. A fast storage buffer in the central processing unit of a computer. In this sense, also called cache memory — v. tr. cached, cach·ing, cach·es. To hide or store in a cache. See Synonyms at hide¹. [French, from acher, to hide, from Old French, to press, hide, from Vulgar Latin coācticāre*, to store, pack together, frequentative of Latin coāctāre, to constrain, from coāctus, past participle of cōgere, to force. See COGENT.]

ca·chec·tic (kə-kĕk'tĭk) adj. Affected by or relating to cachexia. [French cachectique, from Latin cachecticus, from Greek kakhektikos, from kakhexia, bad condition of the body. See CACHEXIA.]

Cache la Pou-dre (kăsh' lə pōō'dər, -drə) A river of northern Colorado flowing about 201 km (125 mi) to the South Platte River.

cache memory (kăsh mĕm'ə-rē) n. Computer Science. See cache (n., sense 2).

cache·pot (kăsh'pŏt', -pō') n. An ornamental container for a flowerpot. [French : cache, to hide; see CACHE + pot, pot (from Old French, from Vulgar Latin pottus*).]

ca·chet (kă-shā') n. 1. A mark or a quality, as of distinction, individuality, or authenticity: "Federal courts have a certain cachet which state courts lack" (Christian Science Monitor). 2. A seal on a document, such as a letter. 3. a. A commemorative design stamped on an envelope to mark a postal or philatelic event. b. A motto forming part of a postal cancellation. 4. A kind of wafer capsule formerly used by pharmacists for presenting an unpleasant-tasting drug. [French, from Old French, from cache, to press. See CACHE.]

ca·chex·i·a (kə-kĕk'sē-ə) n. Weight loss, wasting of muscle, loss of appetite, and general debility that can occur during a chronic disease. [Late Latin, from Greek kakhexia : kako-, caco- + hexis, condition (from ekhein, to have); see segh- in Appendix.]

cach·in·nate (kăk'ə-nāt') v. intr. cach·in·nat·ed, cach·in·nat·ing, cach·in·nates. To laugh hard, loudly, or convulsively; guffaw. [Latin cachinnāre, cachinnāt-, probably of imitative origin.] —cach'in·na'tion n. —cach'in·na'tor n.

ca·chou (kă-shōō', kăsh'ōō) n. A pastille used to sweeten the breath. [French, from Portuguese cachu, from Malayalam kāccu, from Tamil kāyccu.]

ca·chu·cha (kə-chōō'chə) n. An Andalusian solo dance in 3/4 time. [Spanish, small boat, cachucha, possibly from diminutive of cacho, shard, saucepan, probably from Vulgar Latin cacculus*, alteration of Latin caccabus, pot, from Greek kakkabos, probably of Semitic origin; akin to Akkadian kukubu, vessel.]

ca·cique (kə-sĕk') n. 1. An Indian chief, especially in the Spanish West Indies and other parts of Latin America during colonial and postcolonial times. 2. A local political boss in Spain or Latin America. [American Spanish, from Arawak kassequa, chieftain.]

cack-hand·ed (kăk'hăn'dĭd) adj. Chiefly British. 1. Left-handed. 2. Awkward; clumsy. [Perhaps from Old Norse keikr, bent backwards; akin to Danish keite, left-handed.]

cack·le (kăk'əl) v. cack·led, cack·ling, cack·les. — v. intr. 1. To make the shrill cry characteristic of a hen after laying an egg. 2. To laugh or talk in a shrill manner. — v. tr. To utter in cackles. — n. 1. The act or sound of cackling. 2. Shrill laughter. 3. Foolish chatter. [Middle English cakelen, probably from Middle Low German kākeln, of imitative origin.] —cack'ler n.

caco- or cac- pref. Bad: cacography. [Greek kako-, from kakos, bad. See kakka- in Appendix.]

cac·o·dyl (kăk'ə-dīl') n. 1. The arsenic group $(\text{CH}_3)_2\text{As}^-$. 2. A poisonous oil, $\text{As}_2(\text{CH}_3)_4$, with an obnoxious garlicky odor. [Greek kakōdēs, bad-smelling (kakos, bad; see kakka- in Appendix + -ōdēs, -smelling from ozein, ōd-, to smell) + -YL.] —cac'o·dyl'ic adj.

cac·o·ë·thes (kăk'ō-ē'thēz) n. An irresistible compulsion; a mania. [Latin cacoëthes, from neuter of Greek kakoëthēs, ill-disposed : kakos, bad; see kakka- in Appendix + ēthos, disposition; see s(w)e- in Appendix.]

ca·cog·ra·phy (kə-kōg'rə-fē) n. 1. Bad handwriting. 2. Bad spelling.

cac·o·mis·tle (kăk'ə-mīs'əl) n. A small, carnivorous mammal (Bassariscus astutus) of the southwest United States, having grayish or brownish fur and a black-banded tail and resembling the raccoon. [American Spanish cacomiztle, from Nahuatl tlacomiztli : tlaco, half, part + miztli, mountain lion.]

cac·o·nym (kăk'ə-nīm) n. An erroneous name, especially in taxonomic classification; a misnomer. —ca·con'y·my (kə-kōn'ə-mē) n.

ca·coph·o·nous (kə-kōf'ə-nəs) adj. Having a harsh, unpleasant sound; discordant. [From Greek kakophōnos : kakos, bad; see kakka- in Appendix + phōnē, sound; see bhā-² in Appendix.] —ca·coph'o·nous·ly adv.

ca·coph·o·ny (kə-kōf'ə-nē) n. pl. ca·coph·o·nies. 1. Jarring, discordant sound; dissonance: heard a cacophony of horns during the traffic jam. 2. The use of harsh or discordant sounds in literary composition, as for poetic effect. [French cacophonie, from Greek kakophōnia, from kakophōnos, cacophonous. See CACOPHONOUS.]

cac·tus (kăk'təs) n. pl. cac·ti (-tī') or cac·tus·es. 1. Any of various succulent, spiny, usually leafless plants native mostly to arid regions of the New World, having variously colored, often showy flowers with numerous stamens and petals. 2. Any of several similar plants. [Latin, cardoon, from Greek kaktos.]

cactus pear (kăk'təs pâr) n. See tuna².

ca·cu·mi·nal (kə-kyōō'mə-nəl) adj. Articulated with the tip of the tongue turned back and up toward the roof of the mouth; retroflex. [From Latin cacūmen, cacūmin-, summit, point.]

cad (kăd) n. An unprincipled, ungentlemanly man. [Short for CADDIE.] —cad'dish adj. —cad'dish·ly adv. —cad'dish·ness n.

CAD abbr. Computer-aided design.

ca·das·tre also ca·das·ter (kə-dās'tər) n. A public record, survey, or map of the value, extent, and ownership of land as a basis of taxation. [French, from Provençal cadastro, from Italian catastro, alteration of Old Italian catastico, from Late Greek katastikhon, register : Greek kata-, by; see CATA- + Greek stikhos, line; see steigh- in Appendix.] —ca·das'tral adj.

ca·dav·er (kə-dāv'ər) n. A dead body, especially one intended for dissection. See Synonyms at body. [Middle English, from Latin cadāver, from cadere, to fall, die. See kad- in Appendix.] —ca·dav'er·ic (-ər-ĭk) adj.

ca·dav·er·ine (kə-dāv'ər-ēn') n. A syrupy, colorless, fuming ptomaine, C₅H₁₄N₂, formed by the carboxylation of lysine by bacteria in decaying animal flesh.

ca·dav·er·ous (kə-dāv'ər-əs) adj. 1. Suggestive of death; corpse-like: a cadaverous odor. 2. a. Of corpse-like pallor; pallid: "I saw a cadaverous face appear at a small window" (Charles Dickens). b. Emaciated; gaunt: a cadaverous mongrel picking through the garbage. —ca·dav'er·ous·ly adv. —ca·dav'er·ous·ness n.

cad·dice (kăd'ĭs) n. Variant of caddis.

caddice fly (kăd'ĭs flī) n. Variant of caddis fly.

caddice worm (kăd'ĭs wûrm) n. Variant of caddis worm.

cad·die also cad·dy (kăd'ē) n. pl. cad·dies. 1. Sports. One hired to serve as an attendant to a golfer, especially by carrying the golf clubs. 2. Scots. A boy who does odd jobs. — v. intr. cad·died, cad·dy·ing, cad·dies. To serve as a cad-die. [Scots, from French cadet, cadet, caddie. See CADET.]

cad·dis also cad·dice (kăd'ĭs) n. A coarse woolen fabric, yarn, or ribbon binding. [Probably from Middle English cadace, cotton wool (from Anglo-Norman, from Old Provençal cadarz), and from French cadis, woolen cloth (from Old Provençal).]

caddis fly also caddice fly (kăd'ĭs flī) n. Any of various four-winged insects of the order Trichoptera, found near lakes and streams. [Perhaps from obsolete cad (influenced by CADDIS), variant of COD² (from the tube in which the larva lives).]

caddis worm also caddice worm (kăd'ĭs wûrm) n. The aquatic, wormlike larva of the caddis fly, enclosed in a cylindrical case covered with grains of sand, fragments of shell, and other debris.

Cad·do (kăd'ō) n. pl. Caddo or Cad·dos. 1. a. A Native American confederacy composed of numerous small tribes formerly inhabiting the Red River area of Louisiana, Arkansas, and eastern Texas and now located in central Oklahoma. b. A member of this confederacy. 2. The Caddoan language of the Caddo. [French, from Caddo kaduhdá·ču?, a major tribe of the Caddo confederacy.]

Cad·do·an (kăd'ō-ən) n. A family of North American Indian languages formerly spoken in the Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana, and presently in North Dakota and Oklahoma.

cad·dy¹ (kăd'ē) n. pl. cad·dies. A small container, such as a box, used especially for holding tea. [Alteration of CATTY¹.]

cad·dy² (Kăd'ē) n. & v. Variant of caddie.

cade (kād) adj. Left by its mother and reared by hand: a cade calf. [Middle English, pet lamb.]

Cade (kād), Jack. Died 1450. English rebel who led an unsuccessful rebellion against Henry VI (1450).

-cade suff. Procession: motorcade. [From CAVALCADE.]

ca·delle (kə-děl') n. A small blackish beetle (Tenebroides mauritanicus), both the larval and adult forms of which damage stored grain. [French, from Provençal cadello, from Latin catella, feminine of catellus, puppy, from catulus, the young of animals. See kat- in Appendix.]

ca·dence (kād'ns) n. pl. ca·denc·es. 1. Balanced, rhythmic flow, as of poetry or oratory. See Synonyms at rhythm. 2. The measure or beat of movement, as in dancing or marching. 3. a. A falling inflection of the voice, as at the end of a sentence. b. General inflection or modulation of the voice. 4. Music. A progression of chords moving to a harmonic close or point of rest. [Middle English, from Old French cadence*, from Old Italian cadenza, from Vulgar Latin cadentia*, a falling, from Latin cadēns, cadent- present participle of cadere, to fall. See kad- in Appendix.] —ca'denced adj.

ca·den·cy (kād'n-sē) n. pl. ca·den·cies. Cadence.

ca·dent (kād'nt) adj. 1. Having cadence or rhythm. 2. Archaic. Falling, as water or tears. [Latin cadēns, cadent- present participle of cadere, to fall. See kad- in Appendix.]

ca·den·tial (kə-děn'shəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a cadence. 2. Music. Of or having to do with a cadenza: "At certain cadential points, [he] inserts brief cadenzas that add an improvisational touch" (Boris Schwarz).

ca·den·za (kə-děn'zə) n. Music. 1. An elaborate, ornamental melodic flourish interpolated into an aria or other vocal piece. 2. An extended virtuosic section for the soloist near the end of a movement of a concerto. [Italian, from Old Italian, cadence. See CADENCE.]

cade oil (kād oil) n. See juniper tar. [French cade, a species of juniper, from Provençal, from Old Provençal; akin to Late Latin catanum, possibly of Celtic origin.]

ca·det (kə-dět') n. 1. A student at a military school who is training to be an officer. 2. a. A younger son or brother. b. A youngest son. 3. Slang. A pimp. [French, from dialectal capdet, captain, from Late Latin capitellum, diminutive of Latin caput, capit-, head. See kaput- in Appendix.] —ca·det'ship' n.

cadge (kāj) v. intr. tr. cadged, cadg-ing, cadg-es. To beg or get by begging. [Perhaps back-formation from obsolete cadger, peddler, from Middle English cadgear.] —cadg'er n.

SYNONYMS: cadge, beg, bum, mooch, panhandle. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to ask, ask for, or get as charity”: cadged a cigarette; derelicts begging for change; bum a drink; mooching food; homeless people forced to panhandle in subway stations.

Cad·il·lac (kād'1-āk', kā-dē-yāk') , Sieur Antoine de la Mothe. 1658-1730.

French explorer and colonial administrator who founded Detroit (1701) and was governor of Louisiana (1711-1716).

Cá·diz (kə-dīz', kā'dīz, kā'-, kā'thēth, -thēs) A city of southwest Spain northwest of Gibraltar on the Gulf of Cádiz, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. Cádiz was founded c. 1100 B.C. by Phoenicians and passed to the Carthaginians (c. 500 B.C.), Romans (third century A.D.), Moors (711), and the kingdom of Castile (1262). Its port was a base for Spanish treasure ships after the conquest of the Americas. Population, 160,839.

cad·mi·um (kād'mē-əm) n. Symbol Cd A soft, bluish-white metallic element occurring primarily in zinc, copper, and lead ores, that is easily cut with a knife and is used in low-friction, fatigue-resistant alloys, solders, dental amalgams, nickel-cadmium storage batteries, nuclear reactor shields, and in rustproof electroplating. Atomic number 48; atomic weight 112.40; melting point 320.9°C; boiling point 765°C; specific gravity 8.65; valence 2. [Latin cadmīa, calamine (from its being found with calamine in zinc ore) (from Greek kadmeia (ge), Theban (earth), from Kadmos, Cadmus) + -IUM.] —cad'mic (-mīk) adj.

cadmium sulfate (kād'mē-əm sŭl'fāt') n. A compound, CdSO₄, that forms colorless crystals, is water soluble, and is used as an antiseptic.

Cad·mus (kād'məs) n. Greek Mythology. A Phoenician prince who killed a dragon and sowed its teeth, from which sprang up an army of men who fought one another until only five survived. With these five men Cadmus founded the city of Thebes.

Cad·mus (kād'məs), Paul. Born 1904. American artist noted for his realistic paintings and etchings of sordid scenes.

cad·re (kād'rē, kā'drā) n. 1. A nucleus of trained personnel around which a larger organization can be built and trained: a cadre of sergeants and corporals who train recruits. 2. a. A tightly knit group of zealots who are active in advancing the interests of a revolutionary party. b. A member of such a group. 3. A framework. [French, from Italian quadro, frame, from Latin quadrūm, a square, from neuter of quadrus, square. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

ca·du·ce·us (kə-dōō'sē-əs, -shəs, -dyōō'-) n. pl. ca·du·ce·i (-sē-ī'). 1. a. A herald's wand or staff, especially in ancient times. b. Greek Mythology. A winged staff with two serpents twined around it, carried by Hermes. 2. An insignia modeled on Hermes' staff and used as the symbol of the medical profession. [Latin cādūceus, alteration of Greek karukeion, from karux, herald.]

—ca·du·ce·an (-sē-ən, -shən) adj.

ca·du·ci·ty (kə-dōō'sī-tē, -dyōō'-) n. 1. The frailty of old age; senility. 2. The quality or state of being perishable; impermanence. [French caducité, from caduc, frail, falling, from Latin cadūcus. See CADUCOUS.]

ca·du·cous (kə-dōō'kəs, -dyōō'-) adj. Dropping off or shedding at an early stage of development, as the gills of most amphibians or the sepals or stipules of certain plants. [From Latin cadūcus, falling, from cadere, to fall. See kad- in Appendix.]

cae·cil·ian (sə-sīl'yən, -sīl'ē-ən, -sēl'-) n. Any of various legless, burrowing, wormlike amphibians of the order Gymnophiona, of tropical regions. [From Latin caecilia, a kind of lizard, from caecus, blind (from its small eyes).]

cae·cum (sē'kəm) n. Variant of cecum.

Caed·mon (kăd'mən), Died c. 680. The earliest English poet. According to Bede, he was an elderly herdsman who received the power of song in a vision.

Caе·li·an (sē'lē-ən) One of the seven hills of ancient Rome. The most southeasterly of the hills, it was densely populated until much of it was devastated by a fire in A.D. 27. —Caе'li·an adj.

Caе·lum (sē'ləm) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Columba and Eridanus. [Latin caelum, sculptor's chisel. See kaə-id- in Appendix.]

Caen (kän) A city of northern France southwest of Le Havre. A Huguenot stronghold in the 16th and 17th centuries, it is the burial place of William the Conqueror. Population, 114,068.

Caer·nar·von (kär-när'vən) A municipal borough of northwest Wales on a narrow strait of the Irish Sea opposite Anglesey Island. The investiture of Charles as Prince of Wales took place in the castle here in 1969. Population, 9,506.

caer·phil·ly (kär-fīl'ē) n. A mild white Welsh cheese. [After Caerphilly, a district of southeast Wales.]

cae·sar also Caе·sar (sē'zər) n. 1. Used as a title and form of address for Roman emperors. 2. A dictator or an autocrat. [Middle English cesar, from Latin Caesar, after Julius CAESAR.]

Caе·sar (sē'zər), Julius. In full Gaius Julius Caesar. 100-44 B.C. Roman general, statesman, and historian who invaded Britain (55), crushed the army of his political enemy Pompey (48), pursued other enemies to Egypt, where he installed Cleopatra as queen (47), returned to Rome, and was given a mandate by the people to rule as dictator for life (45). On March 15 of the following year he was murdered by a group of republicans led by Cassius and Brutus, who feared he intended to establish a monarchy ruled by himself. —Cae-sar'e-an,

Cae-sar'i-an (sĭ-zâr'ē-ən) adj.

Cae-sa-re-a (sē'zə-rē'ə, sēs'ə-, sěz'ə-) 1. or Also Caesarea Pal-e-sti-nae (pāl'ī-stī'nē) An ancient seaport of Palestine south of present-day Haifa, Israel. It was founded (30 B.C.) by Herod the Great and later became the capital of Roman Judea. The city was destroyed by Muslims in 1265. 2. or Also Caesarea Phil-ip-pi (fĭl'ī-pī, fī-lĭp'ī) An ancient city of northern Palestine near Mount Hermon in present-day southwest Syria. It was built in the first century A.D. on the site of a center for the worship of Pan. 3. or Also Caesarea Maz-a-ca (măz'ə-kə) An ancient city of Cappadocia on the site of present-day Kayseri in central Turkey. The chief city of the region, it was destroyed by Persians in A.D. 260.

cae-sar-e-an (sĭ-zâr'ē-ən) adj. & n. Variant of cesarean.

caesarean section (sĭ-zâr'ē-ən sĕk'shən) n. Variant of cesarean section.

cae-sar-i-an (sĭ-zâr'ē-ən) adj. & n. Variant of cesarean.

Cae-sar-ism (sē'zə-rĭz'əm) n. Military or imperial dictatorship; political authoritarianism. —Cae'sar-ist n. —Cae'sar-is'tic adj.

caesar salad (sē'zər sāl'əd) n. A tossed salad of greens, anchovies, croutons, and grated cheese with a dressing of olive oil, lemon juice, and a raw or coddled egg. [Possibly after Caesar's, a restaurant in Tijuana, Mexico.]

cae-si-um (sē'zē-əm) n. Variant of cesium.

caes-tus (sĕs'təs) n. Variant of cestus².

cae-su-ra also ce-su-ra (sĭ-zhōōr'ə, -zōōr'ə) n. pl. cae-su-ras or cae-su-rae (-zhōōr'ē, -zōōr'ē). 1. A pause in a line of verse dictated by sense or natural speech rhythm rather than by metrics. 2. A pause or an interruption, as in conversation: After another weighty caesura the senator resumed speaking. 3. In Latin and Greek prosody, a break in a line caused by the ending of a word within a foot, especially when this coincides with a sense division. 4. Music. A pause or breathing at a point of rhythmic division in a melody. [Latin caesūra, a cutting, from caesus, past participle of caedere, to cut off. See kaə-id- in Appendix.] —cae-su'ral, cae-su'ric adj.

C.A.F. abbr. Cost and freight.

ca-fé also ca-fe (kā-fā', kə-) n. A coffeehouse, restaurant, or bar. [French, coffee, café, from Italian caffè, coffee, from Ottoman Turkish qahveh. See COFFEE.]

ca-fé au lait (kā-fā' ō lā') n. 1. Coffee served with hot milk. 2. Color. A light coffee hue. See Regional note at beignet. [French : café, coffee + à, with + lait, milk.]

café fil-tre (kā-fā' fĭl'trə) n. A beverage made by passing boiling water through ground coffee held in a filtering device that fits on top of a cup or pot. [French : café, coffee + filtre, filter.]

café noir (kā-fā' nwär') n. Coffee served without cream or milk. [French : café, coffee + noir, black.]

café society (kā-fā' sə-sī'ī-tē) n. The group of socialites and celebrities that frequents fashionable nightclubs and resorts and attends fashionable events: “the glittering café society that revolves around the city’s elite cultural institutions” (Business Week).

caf·e·te·ri·a (kāf'ī-tîr'ē-ə) n. A restaurant in which the customers are served at a counter and carry their meals on trays to tables. [Spanish cafetería, coffee shop, cafeteria, from café, coffee, from Ottoman Turkish qahveh. See COFFEE.]

cafeteria benefit (kāf'ī-tîr'ē-ə bĕn'ə-fīt) n. A particular employee benefit selected from a company plan offering a variety of choices that can be balanced to suit individual needs.

caf·e·te·ri·a·style (kāf'ī-tîr'ē-ə-stīl') adj. 1. Arranged in the manner of a cafeteria: a cafeteria-style student dining hall. 2. Designed, established, or arranged in such a way that one may choose or select from a group, body, or collection only those things deemed desirable: cafeteria-style medical benefits.

caf·e·to·ri·um (kāf'ī-tôr'ē-əm, -tôr'-) n. pl. caf·e·to·ri·ums or caf·e·to·ri·a (-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-). A large room, usually in an educational institution, that serves both as a cafeteria and as an auditorium. [CAFÉ(TERIA) + (AUDI)TORIUM.]

caf·feine also caf·fein (kā-fĕn', kāf'ĕn', kāf'ĕ-ĭn) n. A bitter white alkaloid, C₈H₁₀N₄O₂, often derived from tea or coffee and used in medicine chiefly as a mild stimulant and to treat certain kinds of headache. [German Kaffein (from Kaffee, coffee), or French caféine both from French café, coffee. See CAFÉ.] —caf·fein·at'ed (kāf'ə-nā'tīd) adj.

caf·fein·ism (kā-fĕ'nīz'əm, kāf'ĕ-, kāf'ĕ-ə-) n. A toxic condition marked by diarrhea, elevated blood pressure, rapid breathing, heart palpitations, and insomnia, caused by excessive ingestion of coffee and other caffeine-containing substances.

caf·fe lat·te (kāf'fĕ lăt'tĕ, kāf'ā) n. See latte.

caf·tan or kaf·tan (kāf'tăn', -tən, kāf-tăn') n. 1. A full-length garment with elbow-length or long sleeves, worn chiefly in eastern Mediterranean countries. 2. A westernized version of this garment consisting of a loose, usually brightly colored waist-length or ankle-length tunic. [Russian kaftan, from Ottoman Turkish qaftān.]

cafe (kāj) n. 1. A structure for confining birds or animals, enclosed on at least one side by a grating of wires or bars that lets in air and light. 2. A barred room or fenced enclosure for confining prisoners. 3. An enclosing openwork structure: placed a protective cage over the sapling; a bank teller’s cage. 4. An elevator car. 5. a. Baseball. A large wire screen placed behind home plate to stop balls in batting practice. b. Sports. A hockey or soccer goal made of a network frame. c. Basketball. The basket. — v. tr. caged, cag-ing, cag-es. To put or confine in or as if in a cage. See Synonyms at enclose. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cavea.]

Cage (kāj), John Milton, Jr. 1912-1992. American composer of avant-garde works, such as Sonatas and Interludes for a piano with its strings damped by wood and metal (1946-1948).

cage·ling (kāj'liŋ) n. A bird kept as a pet in a cage.

ca·gey also ca·gy (kā'jē) adj. ca·gi·er, ca·gi·est. 1. Wary; careful: a cagey avoidance of a definite answer. 2. Crafty; shrewd: a cagey lawyer. [Origin unknown.] —ca'gi·ly adv. —ca'gi·ness n.

Ca·glia·ri (käl'yə-rē') A city of Sardinia, Italy, on the southern coast on the Gulf of Cagliari, an inlet of the Mediterranean Sea. The city was taken by the Romans in 238 B.C. Population, 232,785.

Ca·glio·stro (käl-yō'strō, kā-lyō'strō), Count Alessandro di. Originally Giuseppe Balsamo. 1743-1795. Italian adventurer who was famous throughout Europe as a magician and alchemist.

Cag·ney (käg'nē), James. Known as "Jimmy." 1899-1986. American actor noted for his portrayals of tough, often maleficent characters in films such as Public Enemy (1931). He won an Academy Award for Yankee Doodle Dandy (1942).

C.A.G.S. abbr. Certificate of Advanced Graduate Studies.

Ca·guas (kā'gwäs') A city of east-central Puerto Rico south-southeast of San Juan. It is an industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 87,214.

ca·gy (kā'jē) adj. Variant of cagey.

Ca·ha·ba (kə-hô'bə, -hä'-) A river rising in the Appalachian Mountains of north-central Alabama near Birmingham and flowing about 322 km (200 mi) generally south to the Alabama River near Selma.

ca·hier (kā-yā') n. A report, especially one concerning the policy or proceedings of a parliamentary group. [French, notebook, from Old French quaier, from Vulgar Latin quaternum*, from Latin quaternī, group of four, from quater, four times. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

Cahn (kän), Sammy. Born 1915. American songwriter whose collaborations with various composers include "High Hopes" (1959) and "Call Me Irresponsible" (1963).

Ca·ho·ki·a (kə-hō'kē-ə) A village of southwest Illinois, a residential suburb of East St. Louis. Nearby are the Cahokia Mounds, a group of approximately 85 prehistoric Native American earthworks. Population, 17,550.

ca·hoots (kə-hōōts') pl.n. Informal. Questionable collaboration; secret partnership: an accountant in cahoots with organized crime. [Perhaps from French cahute, cabin, from Old French, possibly blend of cabane; see CABIN, and hutte; see HUT.] ca·how (kə-hou') n. An earth-burrowing, nocturnal bird (Pterodroma cahow), once abundant in Bermuda but now nearly extinct, with a hooked black beak, brown and white plumage, and a gray underside. Also called Bermuda petrel [Imitative of its cry.]

Ca·huil·la (kə-wē'ə) n. pl. Cahuilla or Ca·huil·las. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting parts of southeast California. b. A member of this people.

2. The Uto-Aztec language of the Cahuilla. [American Spanish.]

CAI abbr. Computer-aided instruction.

Cai·a·phas (kā'ə-fəs, kī'-), Joseph. fl. first century A.D. In the New Testament, the Jewish high priest who presided over the counsel that condemned Jesus.

Cai·cos Islands (kā'kəs ī'ləndz, -kōs) One of the island groups constituting the Turks and Caicos Islands in the Atlantic Ocean southeast of the Bahamas.

cai·man also cay·man (kā'mən) n. pl. cai·mans. Any of various tropical American crocodilians of the genus Caiman and related genera, resembling and closely related to the alligators. [Spanish caimán, from Carib acayuman.]

Cain (kān) In the Old Testament, the eldest son of Adam and Eve, who murdered his brother Abel out of jealousy and was condemned to be a fugitive.

-caine suff. A synthetic alkaloid anesthetic: eucaine. [From COCAINE.]

cai·no·to·pho·bi·a (kā-nō'tə-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal fear of newness. [Greek kainotēs, newness (from kainos, new); see ken- in Appendix + -PHOBIA.]

ca·ïque (kā-ēk') n. Nautical. 1. A long, narrow rowboat used in the Middle East. 2. A small sailing vessel used in the eastern Mediterranean. [French, from Italian caicco, from Ottoman Turkish qayîq, from Old Turkic qayghuq.]

caird (kârd) n. Scots. An itinerant tinker. [Scottish Gaelic ceard, tinker, smith, from Old Irish cerd, artisan, skill.]

cairn (kârn) n. A mound of stones erected as a memorial or marker. [Middle English carne, from Scottish Gaelic carn, from Old Irish.] —cairned adj.

cairn·gorm (kârn'gôrm') n. See smoky quartz. [After the Cairngorm (Mountains).]

Cairn·gorm Mountains (kârn'gôrm' moun'tənz) A range of the Grampian Mountains in central Scotland rising to 1,310.3 m (4,296 ft) at Ben Macdhui. It is a popular winter sports area.

Cairn terrier (kârn tēr'ē-ər) n. A small dog of a breed developed in Scotland, having a broad head and a rough, shaggy coat. [So called because it hunts among cairns.]

Cai·ro 1. (kī'rō) The capital and largest city of Egypt, in the northeastern part of the country on the Nile River. Old Cairo was built c. 642 as a military camp; the new city was founded c. 968 by the Fatimid dynasty and reached its greatest prosperity under the Mameluke sultans (13th-16th century). Population, 6,205,000.

2. (kā'rō) A town of extreme southern Illinois near the confluence of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. It was named after Cairo, Egypt, because of its similar deltalike setting. Population, 5,931.

cais-son (kā'sōn', -sən) n. 1. A watertight structure within which construction work is carried on under water. 2. See camel (n., sense 2). 3. A large box open at the top and one side, designed to fit against the side of a ship and used to repair damaged hulls under water. 4. A floating structure used to close off the entrance to a dock or canal lock. 5. a. A horse-drawn vehicle, usually two-wheeled, used to carry artillery ammunition and coffins at military funerals. b. A large box used to hold ammunition. [French, from Old French, large box, alteration (influenced by caisse, chest, from Old Provençal caissa, from Vulgar Latin capsea*, from Latin capsa, box), of casson, from Italian cassone, augmentative of cassa, box, from Latin capsa.]

caisson disease (kā'sōn' dī-zēz') n. See decompression sickness.

Caith-ness (kāth'nēs, kāth-nēs') A historical region and former county of northeast Scotland. Settled by the Picts, it was overrun by the Vikings in the ninth century and did not revert to Scottish rule until 1202.

cai-tiff (kā'tif) n. A despicable coward; a wretch. — adj. Despicable and cowardly. [Middle English caitif, from Norman French, from Latin captivus, prisoner. See CAPTIVE.]

Ca-ius (kā'əs, kī'-) See Gaius.

Ca-jan (kā'jən) n. & adj. Variant of Cajun.

ca-jan pea (kā'jən pē) n. 1. A tropical African shrub (Cajanus cajan) of the pea family, having trifoliolate leaves, yellow or orange flowers, hairy pods, and small edible seeds. 2. A seed of this plant. Also called catjang, dahl, pigeon pea. [Malay kachang, bean, pea.]

ca-jole (kə-jōl') v. tr. ca-joled, ca-jol-ing, ca-joles. To urge with gentle and repeated appeals, teasing, or flattery; wheedle. [French cajoler, possibly blend of Old French cageoler, to chatter like a jay (from geai, jai, jay); see JAY², Old French gaioler, to lure into a cage (from gaiole, jaiole, cage); see JAIL.] — ca-jol'er n. — ca-jol'er-y (-jō'lə-rē) n. — ca-jol'ing-ly adv.

Ca-jun also Ca-jan (kā'jən) n. 1. A member of a group of people in southern Louisiana descended from French colonists exiled from Acadia in the 18th century. 2. Often Cajun. A member of a group living in southern Alabama and southeast Mississippi, of mixed white, Black, and Native American ancestry. — adj. Of or relating to the Cajuns or their culture. [Alteration of ACADIAN.]

cake (kāk) n. 1. A sweet baked food made of flour, liquid, eggs, and other ingredients, and usually served in rectangular, square, or rounded layer form. 2. A flat, rounded mass of dough or batter, such as a pancake that is baked or fried. 3. A flat, rounded mass of hashed or chopped food that is baked or fried; a patty. 4. A shaped or molded piece, as of soap or ice. 5. A layer or deposit of compacted matter: a cake of grime in the oven. — v. caked, cak-ing, cakes. — v.

tr. To cover or fill with a thick layer, as of compacted matter: a miner whose face was caked with soot. — v. intr. To become formed into a compact or crusty mass: As temperatures dropped, the wet snow caked. [Middle English, from Old Norse kaka.]

cake-walk (kāk'wōk') n. 1. Something easily accomplished: The diving championship was a cakewalk for her. 2. A 19th-century public entertainment among American Black people in which walkers performing the most accomplished or amusing steps won cakes as prizes. 3. a. A strutting dance, often performed in minstrel shows. b. The music for this dance. — v. intr. cake-walked, cake-walk-ing, cake-walks. To perform a strutting dance. —cake'walk'er n.

cal or Cal abbr. 1. Cal. Calorie (large calorie). 2. Calorie (mean calorie). 3. Calorie (small calorie).

cal. abbr. 1. Calendar. 2. Caliber.

Cal. abbr. California.

Cal-a-bar bean (kāl'ə-bär bēn) n. The poisonous seed of a tropical western African woody vine (Physostigma venenosum) in the pea family, which has been used as an ordeal poison and is the source of the drug physostigmine. Also called ordeal bean [After Calabar, a town of southeast Nigeria.]

cal-a-bash (kāl'ə-bāsh') n. 1. An annual vine (Lagenaria siceraria) having white flowers and smooth, large, hard-shelled gourds. Also called bottle gourd, white-flowered gourd. 2. A tropical American tree (Crescentia cujete) bearing hard-shelled, gourdlike fruits on the trunk and main branches. Also called calabash tree 3. Any of certain similar or related plants. 4. The fruit of any of these plants. 5. A utensil or container made from the dried, hollowed-out shell of any of these fruits. 6. A smoking pipe with a curved stem and a large bowl made from the shell of a gourd. [French calebasse, gourd, from Spanish calabaza, from Catalan carabaça, perhaps from Arabic qar'ah yābisah, dry gourd : qar'ah, gourd + yābisah, dry.]

Cal-a-bash (kāl'ə-bāsh') n. A style of cooking in the southeast United States in which various seafoods, such as deviled crab, shrimp, oysters, and flounder, are deep-fried and then heaped onto dinner plates for serving. [Perhaps from calabash, a turtle cooked in its shell, from CALABASH.]

calabash tree (kāl'ə-bāsh' trē) n. See calabash (n., sense 2).

cal-a-boose (kāl'ə-bōōs') n. Chiefly Southern U.S. & Chiefly Western U.S. A jail. [Louisiana French calabouse, from Spanish calabozo, dungeon.]

Cal-a-bre-se (kāl'ə-brā'zē) n. A type of broccoli, introduced from Italy and grown extensively in North America, bearing clusters of blue-green to dark green flower buds. [Italian, Calabrian, from Calabria, Calabria.]

Ca·la·bri·a (kə-lā'brē-ə, kă-lă'brē-ä) A region of southern Italy forming the toe of the Italian "boot." Founded as a Greek colony, it was taken by the Romans in 268 B.C. and by the Byzantine Empire in the ninth century A.D.

ca·la·di·um (kə-lā'dē-əm) n. Any of various tropical American plants of the genus Caladium widely cultivated for their ornamental foliage, variously patterned in white, green, pink, or red. [New Latin Caladium, genus name, from Malay kěladi, an aroid.]

Ca·lah (kă'lə) also Ka·lakh (kă'lākH) An ancient city of Assyria on the Tigris River south of present-day Mosul, Iraq. It was probably built in the 13th century B.C.

Ca·lais (kă-lā', kăl'ā) A city of northern France on the Strait of Dover opposite Dover, England. The city fell to the English in 1347 after a siege of 11 months and was retaken by the French in 1558. Population, 76,527.

cal·a·man·co (kăl'ə-mäng'kō) n. pl. cal·a·man·coes. A glossy woolen fabric with a checked pattern on one side. [Perhaps from Spanish calamaco, from Late Latin calamaucus, felt cap.]

cal·a·man·der (kăl'ə-măn'dər) n. The hard, black-and-brown-striped wood of certain tropical Asian trees of the genus Diospyros, especially D. quaesita of Sri Lanka, used for making furniture. [Probably from Dutch kalamanderhout, calamander wood, perhaps from alteration of Coromandel Coast.]

cal·a·mar·i (kă'lə-mă'rē, kăl'ə-) n. Squid prepared as food. [Italian, pl. of calamaro, from Late Latin calamārium, pen-case, from Latin calamārius, relating to a reed pen, from calamus, reed pen (perhaps from the "ink" the squid secretes). See CALAMUS.]

cal·a·mi (kăl'ə-mī') n. Plural of calamus.

Ca·la·mi·an Islands (kă'lə-mē-än' ī'ləndz, -myän') An island group of the west-central Philippines between Mindoro and Palawan.

cal·a·mine (kăl'ə-mīn', -mīn) n. 1. See hemimorphite. 2. A pink, odorless, tasteless powder of zinc oxide with a small amount of ferric oxide, dissolved in mineral oils and used in skin lotions. 3. An alloy composed of lead, tin, and zinc. [French, from Medieval Latin calamīna, alteration of Latin cadmīa. See CADMIUM.]

cal·a·mint (kăl'ə-mīnt') n. Any of several plants of the genera Calamintha or Satureja in the mint family, cultivated for their aromatic foliage and clusters of pink, lilac, or white flowers. [Middle English calaminte, from Old French calamente, from Medieval Latin calamentum, from Latin calaminthē, from Greek kalaminthē.]

cal·a·mite (kăl'ə-mīt') n. Any of various extinct, chiefly carboniferous trees of the genus Calamites, related to the modern-day herbaceous horsetails (Equisetum). [New Latin Calamītēs, genus name, from Late Greek kalamitēs, reedlike, from Greek kalamos, reed.]

ca·lam·i·tous (kə-lām'ī-təs) adj. Causing or involving calamity; disastrous.

—ca·lam'ī·tous·ly adv. —ca·lam'ī·tous·ness n.

ca·lam·i·ty (kə-lām'ī-tē) n. pl. ca·lam·i·ties. 1. An event that brings terrible loss, lasting distress, or severe affliction; a disaster: A hurricane would be a calamity for this low-lying coastal region. See Synonyms at disaster. 2. Dire distress resulting from loss or tragedy. [Middle English calamite, from Old French, from Latin calamitās.]

Ca·lam·i·ty Jane (kə-lām'ī-tē jān') See Martha Jane Burk.

cal·a·mon·din (kāl'ə-mōn'dīn) n. 1. A small evergreen citrus tree (×Citrofortunella mitis), widely cultivated as a houseplant for its glossy foliage and ornamental fruits. 2. The sour fruit of this plant, resembling a small tangerine and sometimes used as a flavoring or for beverages, sauces, or marmalades. [Tagalog kalamunding.]

cal·a·mus (kāl'ə-məs) n. pl. cal·a·mi (-mī'). 1. a. See sweet flag. b. The aromatic, underground stem of the sweet flag, yielding an oil used in perfumery. 2. Any of various chiefly tropical Asian climbing palms of the genus Calamus, having strong, flexible stems used as a source of rattan. 3. See quill (n., sense 1). [Latin, reed, from Greek kalamos.]

ca·lan·do (kə-län'dō) adv. & adj. Music. With a gradual decrease in tempo and volume. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, present participle of calare, to slacken, from Latin calāre, from Greek khalan.]

ca·lash (kə-lāsh') also ca·lèche (-lēsh') n. 1. a. A light carriage with two or four low wheels and a collapsible top. b. A top for this or a similar carriage. 2. A woman's folding bonnet of the late 18th century. [French calèche, from German Kalesche, from Czech kolesa, from pl. of kolo, koles-, wheel. See k^wel-1 in Appendix.]

cal·a·the·a (kāl'ə-thē'ə) n. Any of various tropical American evergreen plants of the genus Calathea widely cultivated indoors for their attractively marked leaves. [New Latin calathea, genus name, from Latin calathus, basket. See CALATHUS.]

cal·a·thus (kāl'ə-thəs) n. pl. cal·a·thi (-thī'). A vase-shaped basket represented in Greek painting and sculpture. [Latin, from Greek kalathos.]

calc. abbr. 1. Calculation. 2. Mathematics. Calculus.

calc- pref. Variant of calci-.

cal·ca·ne·o·cu·boid ligament (kāl-kā'nē-ō-kyōō'boid' līg'ə-mənt) n. The ligament that connects the calcaneus and the cuboid bones.

cal·ca·ne·us (kāl-kā'nē-əs) also cal·ca·ne·um (-nē-əm) n. pl. cal·ca·ne·i (-nē-ī') also cal·ca·ne·a (-nē-ə). The quadrangular bone at the back of the tarsus. Also called heel bone [Late Latin calcāneus, heel, from Latin calcāneum, from calx, calc-.] —cal·ca'ne·al adj.

cal·car¹ (käl'kär') n. pl. cal·car·i·a (käl-kâr'ē-ə). A spur or spurlike projection, such as one found on the base of a petal or on the wing or leg of a bird. [Latin, spur, from calx, calc-, heel.]

cal·car² (käl'kär') n. A furnace formerly used in glassmaking for calcination of materials into frit. [Italian calcara, from Late Latin calcāria (fornāx), lime(-kiln), from Latin, feminine of calcārius, of lime. See CALCAREOUS.]

cal·car·e·ous (käl-kâr'ē-əs) adj. Composed of, containing, or characteristic of calcium carbonate, calcium, or limestone; chalky. [From Latin calcārius, from calx, calc-, lime. See CALX.] —cal·car'·e·ous·ly adv.

cal·car·i·a (käl-kâr'ē-ə) n. Plural of calcar¹.

cal·car·ine sulcus (käl'kə-rīn' sül'kəs) n. A sulcus on the occipital lobe of the brain. Also called calcarine fissure [CALCAR¹ + -INE¹.]

Cal·ca·sieu (käl'kə-shōō') A river rising in west-central Louisiana and flowing about 322 km (200 mi) east, southeast, then southwest to the Gulf of Mexico.

Near its outlet it passes through Lake Calcasieu.

cal·ced·o·ny (käl-sĕd'n-ē) n. Variant of chalcidony.

cal·ce·o·lar·i·a (käl'sē-ə-lâr'ē-ə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Calceolaria native from Mexico to South America and widely cultivated for their showy, speckled, slipper-shaped flowers. Also called slipper flower, slipperwort. [New Latin Calceolaria, genus name, from Latin calceolus, small shoe. See CALCEOLATE.]

cal·ce·o·late (käl'sē-ə-lāt') adj. Shaped like a slipper, as the pouchlike petal of the flower of the lady's slipper. [From Latin calceolus, diminutive of calceus, shoe, from calx, calc-, heel.]

cal·ces (käl'sēz') n. A plural of calx.

calci- or calc- pref. Calcium; calcium salt; lime: calciferous. [From Latin calx, calc-, lime. See CALX.]

cal·cic (käl'sik) adj. Composed of, containing, derived from, or relating to calcium or lime.

cal·ci·cole (käl'si-kōl') n. A plant that thrives in soil rich in lime. [French : calci-, calcium (from Latin calx, calc-, lime); see CALX + -cole, -dwelling (from Latin -cola); see -COLOUS.] —cal·cic'·o·lous (-sĭk'ə-ləs) adj.

cal·cif·er·ol (käl-sĭf'ə-rōl', -rōl', -rōl') n. See vitamin D₂. [CALCIFER(OUS) + -OL¹.]

cal·cif·er·ous (käl-sĭf'ər-əs) adj. Of, forming, or containing calcium or calcium carbonate.

cal·cif·ic (käl-sĭf'ik) adj. Producing salts of lime, as in the formation of eggshells in birds and reptiles.

cal·ci·fi·ca·tion (käl'sə-fi-kā'shən) n. 1. a. Impregnation with calcium or calcium salts, as with calcium carbonate. b. Hardening, as of tissue, by such impregnation. 2. A calcified substance or part. 3. An inflexible, unchanging state: calcification of negotiations.

cal-ci-fuge (käl'sə-fyōōj') n. A plant that does not grow well in lime-rich soil. — cal-cif'u-gal (-sif'yə-gəl), cal-cif'u-gous (-yə-gəs) adj.

cal-ci-fy (käl'sə-fi') v. tr. intr. cal-ci-fied, cal-ci-fy-ing, cal-ci-fies. 1. To make or become stony or chalky by deposition of calcium salts. 2. To make or become inflexible and unchanging.

cal-ci-mine also kal-so-mine (käl'sə-mīn') n. A white or tinted liquid containing zinc oxide, water, glue, and coloring matter, used as a wash for walls and ceilings. — v. tr. cal-ci-mined, cal-ci-min-ing, cal-ci-mines. To cover or wash with calcimine. [Originally a trademark.]

cal-cine (käl-sīn', käl'sīn') v. cal-cined, cal-cin-ing, cal-cines. — v. tr. To heat (a substance) to a high temperature but below the melting or fusing point, causing loss of moisture, reduction, or oxidation and the decomposition of carbonates and other compounds. — v. intr. To undergo calcination. [Middle English calcinen, from Old French calciner, from Medieval Latin calcīnāre, from Late Latin calcīna, quicklime, from Latin calx, calc-, lime. See CALX.]

— cal'ci-na'tion (-sə-nā'shən) n.

cal-ci-no-sis (käl'sə-nō'sīs) n. An abnormal condition in which calcium salts are deposited in a part or tissue of the body. [CALC(I)- (influenced by CALCINE) + -OSIS.]

cal-cite (käl'sīt') n. A common crystalline form of natural calcium carbonate, CaCO₃, that is the basic constituent of limestone, marble, and chalk. Also called calcspar — cal-cit'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

cal-ci-to-nin (käl'sī-tō'nīn) n. A peptide hormone, produced by the thyroid gland in human beings, that lowers plasma calcium and phosphate levels without augmenting calcium accretion. Also called thyrocalcitonin [CALCI- + TON(E) + -IN.]

cal-ci-um (käl'sē-əm) n. Symbol Ca A silvery, moderately hard metallic element that constitutes approximately 3 percent of the earth's crust and is a basic component of most animals and plants. It occurs naturally in limestone, gypsum, and fluorite, and its compounds are used to make plaster, quicklime, Portland cement, and metallurgic and electronic materials. Atomic number 20; atomic weight 40.08; melting point 842 to 848°C; boiling point 1,487°C; specific gravity 1.55; valence 2. [Latin calx, calc-, lime; see CALX + -IUM.]

calcium carbide (käl'sē-əm kār'bīd') n. A grayish-black crystalline compound, CaC₂, obtained by heating pulverized limestone or quicklime with carbon and used to generate acetylene gas, as a dehydrating agent, and in the manufacture of graphite and hydrogen.

calcium carbonate (käl'sē-əm kār'bə-nāt') n. A colorless or white crystalline compound, CaCO₃, occurring naturally as chalk, limestone, marble, and other forms and used in a wide variety of manufactured products including commercial chalk, medicines, and dentifrices.

calcium chloride (käl'sē-əm klôr'id') n. A white deliquescent compound, CaCl_2 , used chiefly as a drying agent, refrigerant, and preservative and for controlling dust and ice on roads.

calcium cyanamide (käl'sē-əm sī-än'ə-mīd) n. A gray-black compound, CaCN_2 , used as a fertilizer and weed killer.

calcium cyanide (käl'sē-əm sī'ə-nīd') n. A gray or black compound, $\text{Ca}(\text{CN})_2$, used to kill insects and rodents.

calcium cyclamate (käl'sē-əm sī'klə-māt') n. An artificially prepared salt of cyclamic acid, $\text{C}_{12}\text{H}_{24}\text{O}_6\text{N}_2\text{S}_2\text{Ca}_2\text{H}_2\text{O}$, formerly used as a nonnutritive low-calorie sweetener but now banned because of possible carcinogenic effects of its metabolic products.

calcium fluoride (käl'sē-əm flōōr'id') n. A colorless powder, CaF_2 , used in emery wheels, carbon electrodes, and cements.

calcium hydroxide (käl'sē-əm hī-drōk'sīd') n. A soft white powder, $\text{Ca}(\text{OH})_2$, used in making mortar, cements, calcium salts, paints, hard rubber products, and petrochemicals. Also called slaked lime calcium hypochlorite (käl'sē-əm hī'pə-klôr'īt') n. A white crystalline solid, $\text{Ca}(\text{OCl})_2 \cdot 4\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used as a bactericide, fungicide, and bleaching agent.

calcium light (käl'sē-əm līt) n. See limelight (n., sense 2).

calcium nitrate (käl'sē-əm nī'trāt') n. Colorless crystals, $\text{Ca}(\text{NO}_3)_2 \cdot 4\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in explosives.

calcium oxide (käl'sē-əm ök'sīd') n. A white, caustic, lumpy powder, CaO , used as a refractory, as a flux, in manufacturing steel and paper, in glassmaking, in waste treatment, in insecticides, and as an industrial alkali. Also called *lime*³ calcium phosphate (käl'sē-əm fōs'fāt') n. 1. A colorless deliquescent powder, $\text{Ca}(\text{H}_2\text{PO}_4)_2$, used in baking powders, as a plant food and a plastic stabilizer, and in glass. 2. A white crystalline powder, CaHPO_4 , used as an animal food, as a plastic stabilizer, and in glass and toothpaste. 3. A white amorphous powder, $\text{Ca}_3(\text{PO}_4)_2$, used in ceramics, rubber, fertilizers, and plastic stabilizers and as a food supplement.

calc-spar or calc-spar (kälk'spär') n. See calcite. [Partial translation of Swedish kalkspat: kalk, lime (from Old Swedish kalker, from Middle Low German kalk, from Latin calx, calc-, lime); see CALX + spat, spar (mineral).]

calc-tu-fa (kälk'tōō'fə, -tyōō'-) also calc-tuff (-tūf') n. Calcareous tufa, a porous or spongy deposit of calcium carbonate found in calcareous mineral springs. [CALC(AREOUS) + TUFA.]

cal-cu-la-ble (käl'kyə-lə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be calculated or estimated: calculable odds. 2. Readily relied on; dependable: a calculable assistant.

—cal'cu-la-bil'i-ty n.

cal·cu·late (käl'kyə-lāt') v. cal·cu·lat·ed, cal·cu·lat·ing, cal·cu·lates. — v. tr. 1. To ascertain by computation; reckon: calculating the area of a circle; calculated their probable time of arrival. 2. To make an estimate of; evaluate: calculating the team's chances of winning. 3. To make for a deliberate purpose; design: a sturdy car that is calculated to last for years; a choice that was calculated to please. 4. Also cal'late (käl'āt', -lāt'). Chiefly New England & Chiefly Upper Southern U.S. a. To suppose: "I cal'late she's a right smart cook" (Dialect Notes). b. To plan, intend, or count on. — v. intr. 1. To perform a mathematical process; figure: We must measure and calculate to determine how much paint will be needed. 2. To predict consequences. 3. Regional. a. To suppose; guess. b. To count, depend, or rely on someone or something: We're calculating on your help. [Late Latin calculāre, calculāt-, from Latin calculus, small stone used in reckoning, diminutive of calx, calc-, small stone for gaming. See CALX.]

SYNONYMS: calculate, compute, reckon, cipher, figure. These verbs refer to the determination of a result, such as expense, through the use of mathematical methods. Calculate, the most comprehensive, often implies a relatively high level of abstraction or procedural complexity: astronomers calculating the positions of the planets. Compute applies in general to essentially straightforward though possibly lengthy arithmetic operations: computing fees according to time spent. Reckon, cipher, and figure suggest the use of simple arithmetic: reckoned the number of hours before her departure; had to be taught to read and to cipher; trying to figure my share of the bill.

cal·cu·lat·ed (käl'kyə-lā'tīd) adj. 1. Determined by mathematical calculation. 2. Undertaken after careful estimation of the likely outcome: took a calculated risk. 3. Made or planned to accomplish a certain purpose; deliberate: insincere, calculated modesty. 4. Likely; apt. —cal'cu·lat'ed·ly adv.

cal·cu·lat·ing (käl'kyə-lā'tīng) adj. 1. Capable of performing calculations: a calculating machine. 2. a. Shrewd; crafty. b. Coldly scheming or conniving. —cal'cu·lat'ing·ly adv.

cal·cu·la·tion (käl'kyə-lā'shən) n. 1. Abbr. calc. a. The act, process, or result of calculating. b. An estimate based on probabilities. 2. Careful, often cunning estimation and planning of likely outcomes, especially to advance one's own interests. —cal'cu·la'tive adj.

cal·cu·la·tor (käl'kyə-lā'tər) n. 1. One that calculates, as: a. An electronic or a mechanical device for the performance of mathematical computations. b. A person who operates such a machine or otherwise makes calculations. 2. A set of mathematical tables used to aid in calculating.

cal·cu·li (käl'kyə-lī') n. A plural of calculus.

cal·cu·lous (käl'kyə-ləs) adj. Relating to, caused by, or having a calculus or calculi.

cal·cu·lus (käl'kyə-ləs) n. pl. cal·cu·li (-lī') or cal·cu·lus·es. 1. Pathology. An abnormal concretion in the body, usually formed of mineral salts and found in the gallbladder, kidney, or urinary bladder, for example. 2. Dentistry. Tartar. 3. Abbr. calc. Mathematics. a. The branch of mathematics that deals with limits and the differentiation and integration of functions of one or more variables. b. A method of analysis or calculation using a special symbolic notation. c. The combined mathematics of differential calculus and integral calculus. 4. A system or method of calculation: “[a] dazzling grasp of the nation’s byzantine budget calculus” (David M. Alpern). [Latin, small stone used in reckoning. See CALCULATE.] calculus of variations (käl'kyə-ləs ūv văr-ē-ā'shənz) n. Mathematical analysis of the maxima and minima of definite integrals, the integrands of which are functions of independent variables, dependent variables, and the derivatives of one or more dependent variables.

Cal·cut·ta (käl-küt'tə) A city of eastern India on the Hooghly River in the Ganges delta. Founded c. 1690 as a British East India Company trading post, it is India’s largest city and a major port and industrial center. In the notorious Black Hole of Calcutta more than 120 British soldiers died of suffocation (1756) after being imprisoned overnight in the small, stifling dungeon by the nawab of Bengal. Population, 3,305,006.

Cal·der (kôl'der, kôl'-), Alexander. 1898-1976. American sculptor who created the mobile in Paris in the early 1930’s and also produced immobile abstract sculptures known as stabiles.

cal·de·ra (käl-dâr'tə, -dîr'tə, kôl-) n. A large crater formed by volcanic explosion or by collapse of a volcanic cone. [Spanish, caldron, caldera, from Late Latin caldāria. See CALDRON.]

Cal·de·rón de la Bar·ca (käl'də-rôn' dā lə bār'kə, käl'thě-rôn' thě lä bār'kä), Pedro. 1600-1681. Spanish playwright. One of the greatest dramatists of Spain’s Golden Age (17th century), he wrote more than 120 plays, including Life is a Dream (1635).

cal·dron also caul·dron (kôl'drən) n. 1. A large vessel, such as a kettle or vat, used for boiling. 2. A state or situation of great distress or unrest felt to resemble a boiling kettle or vat: a caldron of conflicting corporate politics. [Middle English, alteration of cauderon, from Norman French, diminutive of caudiere, cooking pot, from Late Latin caldāria, from feminine of Latin caldārius, suitable for warming, from calidus, warm. See kelə-¹ in Appendix.]

Cald·well (kôld'wěl', -wəl, kôld'-) A city of southwest Idaho on the Boise River west of Boise. It was built on the site of an Oregon Trail camping ground. Population, 18,400.

Cald·well (kôld'wĕl', -wəl, kôld'-), Erskine Preston. 1903-1987. American writer best known for his graphic novels about poverty and degeneration, such as Tobacco Road (1932).

Cald·well (kôld'wĕl', -wəl, kôld'-), (Janet) Taylor. 1900-1985. British-born American writer of popular novels, including Dynasty of Death (1938).

Cald·well (kôld'wĕl', -wəl, kôld'-), Sarah. Born 1928. American conductor and opera producer noted for her ingenious stagings of classical and modern works.

ca·lèche (kə-lĕsh') n. Variant of calash.

Cal·e·don (kāl'ĭ-dən) A town of southeast Ontario, Canada, northwest of Toronto. Pop. 26,645.

Cal·e·do·ni·a (kāl'ĭ-dō'nĕ-ə, -dōn'ya) Roman Britain north of the Antonine Wall, which stretched from the Firth of Forth to the Firth of Clyde. Today the term is used as a poetic appellation for all of Scotland. —Cal'e-do'ni-an adj. & n.

Caledonian Canal (kāl'ĭ-dō'nĕ-ən kə-nāl') A waterway, about 97 km (60 mi) long, cutting diagonally across northern Scotland from Loch Linnhe on the southwest to Moray Firth on the northeast. Opened in 1822, it is used today mainly by pleasure craft.

cal·en·dar (kāl'ən-dər) n. Abbr. cal. 1. Any of various systems of reckoning time in which the beginning, length, and divisions of a year are defined. 2. A table showing the months, weeks, and days in at least one specific year. 3. A schedule of events. 4. An ordered list of matters to be considered: a calendar of court cases; the bills on a legislative calendar. 5. Chiefly British. A catalogue of a university. — v. tr. cal·en·dared, cal·en·dar·ing, cal·en·dars. To enter in a calendar; schedule. [Middle English calender, from Old French calendier, from Late Latin kalendārium, from Latin, account book, from kalendae, calends (from the fact that monthly interest was due on the calends). See kelə-² in Appendix.]

calendar month (kāl'ən-dər mŭnth) n. See month (n., sense 2).

calendar year (kāl'ən-dər yĭr) n. Abbr. CY See year (n., sense 1a).

cal·en·der (kāl'ən-dər) n. A machine in which paper or cloth is made smooth and glossy by being pressed through rollers. — v. tr. cal·en·dered, cal·en·der·ing, cal·en·ders. To press (paper or cloth) in the rollers of such a machine. [French calandre, from Vulgar Latin colendra*, alteration (possibly influenced by Latin columna, column), of Latin cylindrus, roller. See CYLINDER.] —cal'en·der·er n.

ca·len·dri·cal (kə-lĕn'drĭ-kəl) also ca·len·dric (-drĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or used in a calendar.

cal·ends also kal·ends (kāl'əndz, kā'ləndz) n. pl. calends also kalends. The day of the new moon and the first day of the month in the ancient Roman calen-

THREE PRINCIPAL CALENDARS

In use throughout most of the modern world, the Gregorian calendar was first introduced in 1582 by Pope Gregory XIII as a corrected form of the Julian calendar of the first century B.C. The Jewish calendar is used to mark the dates of annual religious events and is the official calendar of the Jewish religious community. The Moslem calendar is used throughout the Islamic world to mark the religious festivals and is the official calendar in many Moslem countries. The following lists begin with the first month of the year.

GREGORIAN

The solar year of the Gregorian calendar consists of 365 days, except in a leap year, which has 366 days and occurs every fourth, even-numbered year. Centenary years are leap years only if they are evenly divisible by 400.

MONTHS	NUMBER OF DAYS
January	31
February	28
in leap year	29
March	31
April	30
May	31
June	30
July	31
August	31
September	30
October	31
November	30
December	31

JEWISH

The Jewish calendar is based on both the solar and lunar cycles. The average lunar year of 354 days is adjusted to the solar year by the periodic introduction of leap years, which contain an intercalary month and ensure that the major religious festivals fall in their proper season.

MONTHS	NUMBER OF DAYS
Tishri (September–October)*	30
Heshvan (October–November)	29
in some years	30
Kislev (November–December)	29
in some years	30
Tevet (December–January)	29
Shevat (January–February)	30
Adar (February–March)	29
in some years	30
Adar Sheni	29
intercalary month
in leap year only
Nisan (March–April)	30
Iyar (April–May)	29
Sivan (May–June)	30
Tammuz (June–July)	29
Av (July–August)	30
Elul (August–September)	29

*The months correspond approximately to those of the Gregorian calendar shown in parentheses.

MOSLEM

The Moslem calendar is based on the lunar year and consists of 354 or 355 days. The number of days in each month is adjusted throughout the year in accordance with each lunar cycle. The beginning of the Moslem year retrogresses through the solar year, completing a full cycle every 32½ years.

MONTHS	NUMBER OF DAYS
Muharram	29 or 30
Safar	29 or 30
Rabi I	29 or 30
Rabi II	29 or 30
Jumada I	29 or 30
Jumada II	29 or 30
Rajab	29 or 30
Sha'ban	29 or 30
Ramadan	29 or 30
Shawwal	29 or 30
Dhu'l-Qa'dah	29 or 30
Dhu'l-Hijjah	29 or 30

dar. [Middle English kalendes, from Latin kalendae. See kelə-² in Appendix.]

—ca-len'dal (kə-lən'dəl) adj.

ca-len-du-la (kə-lən'djə-lə) n. A Mediterranean annual plant (Calendula officinalis) in the composite family, widely cultivated for its showy, yellow or orange, rayed flower heads that were formerly used in medicine, coloring, and flavoring of food. Also called pot marigold [Medieval Latin, marigold, from Latin kalendae, calends. See CALENDIS.]

cal-en-ture (käl'ən-choŏr') n. A tropical fever once believed to be caused by the heat. [Spanish calentura, from calentar, to heat, from Latin calēns, calent- present participle of calēre, to be warm. See kelə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

calf¹ (käf, käf) n. pl. calves (kävz, kävz). 1. a. A young cow or bull. b. The young of certain other mammals, such as the elephant or whale. 2. Calfskin leather. 3. A large floating chunk of ice split off from a glacier, an iceberg, or a floe. 4. An awkward, callow youth. [Middle English, from Old English cealf.]

calf² (käf, käf) n. pl. calves (kävz, kävz). The fleshy, muscular back part of the human leg between the knee and ankle. [Middle English, from Old Norse kälfi.]

calf-skin (käf'skīn', käf'-) n. Abbr. cf. 1. The hide of a calf. 2. Fine leather made from the hide of a calf.

Cal-ga-ry (käl'gə-rē) A city of southern Alberta, Canada, south of Edmonton. Site of the annual Calgary Stampede, a famous rodeo dating from 1912, the city is the center of Canada's petroleum industry. The 1988 Winter Olympics were held here. Population, 592,743. —Cal-gar'i-an (-gâr'ē-ən, -gär'-) n.

Cal-houn (käl-hōn'), John Caldwell. 1782-1850. Vice President of the United States (1825-1832) under John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson. In his political philosophy he maintained that the states had the right to nullify federal legislation that they deemed unconstitutional.

Ca-li (kä'lē) A city of western Colombia on the Cali River southwest of Bogotá. It was founded in 1536. Population, 1,347,810.

Cal-i-ban (käl'ə-bän') n. The grotesque, deformed slave in Shakespeare's The Tempest.

cal-i-ber (käl'ə-bər) n. 1. Abbr. cal. a. The diameter of the inside of a round cylinder, such as a tube. b. The diameter of the bore of a firearm, usually shown in hundredths or thousandths of an inch and expressed in writing or print in terms of a decimal fraction: .45 caliber. c. The diameter of a large projectile, such as an artillery shell, measured in millimeters or in inches. 2. Degree of worth; quality: a school of high caliber; an executive of low caliber. [French calibre.]

cal-i-brate (käl'ə-brät') v. tr. cal-i-brat-ed, cal-i-brat-ing, cal-i-brates. 1. To check, adjust, or determine by comparison with a standard (the graduations of a quantitative measuring instrument): calibrate a thermometer. 2. To determine the caliber of (a tube). 3. To make corrections in; adjust: calibrated the polling procedures to ensure objectivity. —cal'i-bra'tor n.

cal-i-bra-tion (käl'ə-brā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of calibrating or the state of being calibrated. 2. Often calibrations. A set of gradations that show positions or values: the calibrations on a pressure gauge.

cal-i-bre (käl'ə-bər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of caliber.

ca·li·ces (kā'li-sēz', käl'ĩ-) n. Plural of calix.

ca·li·che (kā-lē'chē) n. 1. a. A crude sodium nitrate occurring naturally in Chile, Peru, and the southwest United States, used as fertilizer. b. See sodium nitrate. 2. See hardpan (n., sense 1). [American Spanish, from Spanish, pebble in a brick, flake of lime, from cal, lime, from Latin calx, calc-, lime. See CALX.]

cal·i·co (käl'ĩ-kō') n. pl. cal·i·coes or cal·i·cos. 1. a. A coarse, brightly printed cloth. b. Chiefly British. A plain white cotton cloth, heavier than muslin. 2. An animal, such as a cat, having a coat that is mottled in tones of white with red and black. [After Calicut.] —cal'ĩ·co adj.

cal·i·co·back (käl'ĩ-kō-bāk') n. See harlequin bug.

calico bass (käl'ĩ-kō' bäs) n. See black crappie. [From the colored spots on its body.]

calico bush (käl'ĩ-kō' böōsh) n. See mountain laurel.

Cal·i·cut (käl'ĩ-küt') also Ko·zhi·kode (kō'zhĩ-kōd') A city of southwest India on the Malabar Coast southwest of Bangalore. It was the site of Vasco da Gama's first landfall in India (1498) and was later occupied by Portuguese, British, French, and Danish trading colonies. Population, 394,447.

ca·lif (kā'lif, käl'if) n. Variant of caliph.

Cal·i·for·nia (käl'ĩ-fôr'nyə, -fôr'nē-ə) Abbr. CA, Cal., Calif. A state of the western United States on the Pacific Ocean. It was admitted as the 31st state in 1850. The area was colonized by the Spanish and formally ceded to the United States by the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo (1848). California is often called the Golden State because of its sunny climate and the discovery of gold during its pioneering days. Sacramento is the capital and Los Angeles the largest city. Population, 29,839,250. —Cal'ĩ·for'nian adj. & n.

California, Gulf of. An arm of the Pacific Ocean in northwest Mexico separating Baja California from the mainland.

California bay (käl'ĩ-fôr'nyə bā) n. See California laurel.

California condor (käl'ĩ-fôr'nyə kōn'dōr') n. A very large vulture (Gymnogyps californianus), related to the condor of South America, found in the southern California mountains and nearly extinct.

California Current (käl'ĩ-fôr'nyə kûr'ənt) A cold current originating in the northern Pacific Ocean and passing southward and then southwestward along the western coast of North America.

California laurel (käl'ĩ-fôr'nyə lôr'əl) n. An aromatic evergreen tree (Umbellularia californica) native to California and southern Oregon and having clusters of small yellowish-green flowers, olivelike yellowish-green to purple fruits, and light brown wood valued for use in fine woodwork. Also called California bay, Oregon myrtle.

California nutmeg (kāl'ī-fôr'nyə nüt'mëg') n. An evergreen tree (Torreya californica) native to California, having yewlike linear leaves and solitary drupe-like seeds surrounded by a green, purple-streaked, fleshy aril.

California pepper tree (kāl'ī-fôr'nyə pëp'ər trē) n. See pepper tree.

California poppy (kāl'ī-fôr'nyə pöp'ē) n. An herb (Eschscholzia californica) native to western North America and having finely divided leaves and showy, often orange or yellow flowers.

California quail (kāl'ī-fôr'nyə kwāl) n. A plump, chunky bird (Lophortyx californicus) of western North America, having gray and brown plumage and a curving black plume on the crown of the head.

cal·i·for·nite (kāl'ə-fôr'nīt) n. A massive green vesuvianite. [After California (where it is found).]

cal·i·for·ni·um (kāl'ə-fôr'nē-əm) n. Symbol Cf A synthetic element produced in trace quantities by helium isotope bombardment of curium. All isotopes are radioactive, chiefly by emission of alpha particles. Atomic number 98; mass numbers 244 to 254; half-lives varying from 25 minutes to 800 years. [After California.]

ca·lig·i·nous (kə-lĭj'ə-nəs) adj. Dark, misty, and gloomy. [From Latin cāliginōsus, from cāligō, cāligin-, darkness.]

Ca·lig·u·la (kə-lĭg'yə-lə), Originally Gaius Caesar. A.D. 12-41. Emperor of Rome (37-41) who succeeded his adoptive father, Tiberius. After a severe illness, he displayed the ruthlessness, extravagance, and megalomania that led to his assassination.

Ca·li·na·go (kāl'ī-nä'gō, kă'lĭ-) n. pl. Calinago or Ca·li·na·gos. 1. A member of a Caribbean Indian people inhabiting the Lesser Antilles. 2. The language of the Calinago. [Spanish calinago, calino, caribal, alterations of karinako, from Carib, brave men : ka, sky, spirit + na, group + -ko, group place.]

cal·i·pash (kāl'ə-păsh', kă'lĭ-ə-păsh') n. An edible, gelatinous, greenish substance lying beneath the upper shell of a turtle. [Possibly alteration of Spanish carapacho, carapace.]

cal·i·pee (kāl'ə-pē', kă'lĭ-ə-pē') n. An edible, gelatinous, yellowish substance lying beneath the lower shell of a turtle. [Possibly alteration of CALIPASH.]

cal·i·per also cal·li·per (kāl'ə-pər) n. 1. Often calipers. An instrument consisting essentially of two curved hinged legs, used to measure thickness and distances. 2. A large instrument having a fixed and a movable arm on a graduated stock, used for measuring the diameters of logs and similar objects. 3. A vernier caliper. [Alteration of CALIBER.] —cal'i·per v.

ca·liph also ca·lif or kha·lif (kă'lĭf, kă'lĭf) n. A male leader of an Islamic polity. [Middle English calife, from Old French, from Arabic ḥalīfah, successor (to Mohammed), caliph, from ḥalafa, to succeed.]

ca·liph·ate (kă'lĭ-fāt', -fīt, kă'lĭ-) n. The office or jurisdiction of a caliph.

Cal-ish-er (käl'ī-shər), Hortense. Born 1911. American writer whose works, including short stories and novels, such as The New Yorkers (1969), display diverse but consistently high literary styles.

cal-is-then-ics (käl'is-thēn'īks) n. Sports. 1. (used with a pl. verb). Gymnastic exercises designed to develop muscular tone and promote physical well-being: Sit-ups, trunk twists, and other calisthenics are demonstrated on the videotape. 2. (used with a sing. verb). The practice or art of such exercises: Calisthenics is recommended to relax the muscles before a run. [From Greek kalli-, beautiful (from kallos, beauty) + sthenos, strength.] — cal'is-then'ic adj.

ca-lix (kā'līks, käl'īks) n. pl. ca-li-ces (kā'lī-sēz', käl'ī-). Ecclesiastical. A chalice. [Latin calix, calic-, cup.]

Ca-lix-tus III (kə-līk'stəs), Originally Alfonso Borgia. 1378-1458. Pope (1455-1458) whose nepotism empowered the Borgia family in Italy.

calk¹ (kôk) n. 1. A pointed extension on the toe or heels of a horseshoe, designed to prevent slipping. 2. A spiked plate fixed on the bottom of a shoe to prevent slipping and preserve the sole. [Probably back-formation from obsolete calkin, from Middle English kakun, possibly from Middle Dutch kalkoen, hoof, or from Old French calcain, heel (Middle Dutch, from Old French) from Latin calcāneum, heel-bone. See CALCANEUS.] — calk v.

calk² (kôk) v. Variant of caulk.

Cal-kins (kô'kīnz), Mary Whiton. 1863-1930. American psychologist and philosopher. A student of William James, she was the first American woman recognized as an important figure in psychology and philosophy.

call (kôl) v. called, call-ing, calls. — v. tr. 1. To say in a loud voice; announce: called my name from across the street; calling out numbers. 2. To demand or ask for the presence of: called the children to dinner; call the police. 3. To demand or ask for a meeting of; convene or convoke: call the legislature into session. 4. To order or request to undertake a particular activity or work; summon: She was called for jury duty. He was called to the priesthood. 5. To give the command for; order: call a work stoppage. 6. To communicate or try to communicate with by telephone: called me at nine. 7. To lure (prey) by imitating the characteristic cry of an animal: call ducks. 8. To cause to come to the mind or to attention: a story that calls to mind an incident in my youth. 9. To name: What will you call the baby? 10. To consider or regard as being of a particular type or kind; characterize: Let's call the game a draw. I'd hardly call him a good manager. 11. To designate; label: Nobody calls me a liar. 12. a. To demand payment of: call a loan. b. To require the presentation of (a bond) for redemption before maturity. 13. Sports. a. To stop or postpone (a game) because of bad weather, darkness, or other adverse conditions. b. To declare in the capacity of an umpire or referee: call a runner out; call a foul on a boxer; call a penalty for holding. c. To indicate a decision in regard to: calling balls and strikes behind the plate; called a close play. d. To give the orders or signals for: a quarterback who called a poor play. 14. Games. a. To describe the intended outcome of (one's billiard shot) before playing. b. To equal the bet of (the preceding bet or bettor) in a poker game. 15. To indicate or characterize accurately in advance; predict: It is often difficult to call the outcome of an election. See Synonyms at predict. 16. To challenge the truthfulness or genuineness of: called the debater on a question of fact. 17. To shout directions in rhythm for (a square dance). — v. intr. 1. a. To speak loudly; shout: a swimmer who was calling for help. b. To utter a characteristic cry. Used of an animal: geese calling in early morning. 2. To communicate or try to communicate with someone by telephone: I called twice, but no one answered. 3. To pay a short visit: We called to pay our respects. — n. 1. A loud cry; a shout. 2. a. The characteristic cry of an animal. b. A sound or an instrument made to imitate such a cry, used as a lure: a moose call. 3. A telephone communication or connection. 4. Need or occasion: There was no call for an apology. 5. Demand: There isn't much call for buggy whips today. 6. A claim on a person's time or life: the call of duty. 7. A short visit, especially one made as a formality or for business or professional purposes. 8. A summons or an invitation. 9. a. A signal, such as that made by a horn or bell. b. The sounding of a horn to encourage hounds during a hunt. 10. a. A strong inner urge or prompting; a vocation: a call to the priesthood. b. The strong attraction or appeal of a given activity or environment: the call of the wild; answered the call of the desert. 11. A roll call. 12. A notice of rehearsal times posted in a theater. 13. Sports. A decision made by an umpire or a referee. 14. A direction or series of directions rhythmically called out to square dancers. 15. a. A demand for payment of a debt. b. A demand to submit bonds to the issuer for redemption before the maturity date. c. An option to buy a certain quantity of a stock or commodity for a specified price within a specified time. d. A demand for payment due on stock bought on margin when the value has shrunk. —phrasal verbs. call back. 1. To communicate the need for (someone) to return from one situation or location to a previous one: Management called the laid-off workers back. 2. To telephone or radio (a person) who has called previously: I called her back at noon. 3. To recall (a defective product) for repair: The company has called back all such models built in 1990. call down. 4. To find fault with; reprimand: The teacher called me down for disobedience. 5. To invoke, as from heaven. call for. 6. To appear, as on someone else's premises, in order to get: My chauffeur will call for you at seven. 7. To be an appropriate occasion for: This news calls for champagne. 8. To require; demand: work that calls for patience. call forth. To evoke; elicit: a love song that calls forth sad memories. call in. 10. To take out of circulation: calling in silver dollars. 11. To summon for assistance or consultation: call in a specialist. 12. To communicate with another by telephone: Has the boss called in today? call off. 13. To cancel or postpone: call off a trip; called the trip off.

14. To restrain or recall: Call off your dogs. call out. 15. To cause to assemble; summon: call out the guard. 16. To challenge to a duel. call up. 17. To summon to active military service: called up reserve troops for active duty. 18. To cause one to remember; bring to mind: stories that call up old times. 19. To bring forth for action or discussion; raise. call upon. 20. To order; require: I call upon you to tell the truth. 21. To make a demand or a series of demands on: Social institutions are now being called upon to provide assistance to the homeless. —idioms. call a spade a spade. To speak directly, precisely, and forthrightly. call in question (or call into question). To raise doubts about. call it a day. Informal. To stop whatever one has been doing, for the remainder of the day or at least for the present. call it quits. Informal. To stop working or trying; quit. call names. To speak to or about another in offensive terms. call (someone's) bluff. To challenge another with a display of strength or confidence. call the shots (or call the tune). Informal. To exercise authority; be in charge. on call. 8. Available when summoned for service or use: physicians who were on call for 48 hours. 9. Subject to payment on demand. within call. Close enough to come if summoned: The nurse is within call if you need him. [Middle English callen, probably from Old Norse kalla. See gal- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: call, convene, convoke, muster, summon. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to demand or request to appear, come, or assemble”: called the doctor; convene a meeting; convoke the legislature; mustering the militia; summon a witness.

cal·la (käl'ə) n. 1. A calla lily. 2. A marsh plant (Calla palustris) of the North Temperate zone, having small, densely clustered, greenish flowers partly enclosed in a spreading white spathe. In this sense, also called water arum [New Latin Calla, genus name, from Greek kallaia, wattle of a cock, perhaps from kallos, beauty.]

Cal·la·ghan (käl'ə-hən, -hän'), (Leonard) James. Born 1912. British prime minister (1976-1979) who as Chancellor of the Exchequer (1964-1967) introduced controversial tax measures.

Cal·la·ghan (käl'ə-hən, -hän'), (Morley) Edward. Born 1903. Canadian writer whose realistic works include the novel Strange Fugitive (1928).

calla lily (käl'ə lī'lē) n. Any of several chiefly southern African plants of the genus Zantedeschia, widely cultivated as ornamentals and cut flowers for their showy white, yellow, pink, or purple spathes.

Cal·la·o (kə-yä'ō, käyou') A city of west-central Peru on the Pacific Ocean near Lima. Founded in 1537, it is Peru's largest port. Population, 264,133.

Cal·las (käl'əs, kä'ləs), (Maria) Meneghini. 1923-1977. American coloratura soprano known for her dramatic intensity. Among her notable operatic roles was Bellini's Norma.

cal'late (käl'ät', -lät') v. Chiefly New England & Chiefly Upper Southern U.S.

Variant of calculate (v. tr., sense 4).

call-back (kôl'bäk') n. 1. The act or an instance of calling back from one location or situation to the previous one: a callback of laid-off auto workers. 2. A return telephone or radio call. 3. A recall of a recently sold product by the manufacturer to correct a defect.

call-board (kôl'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A bulletin board backstage in a theater for posting instructions and notices.

call box (kôl böks) n. 1. A roadside telephone used for reporting motorists' emergencies, such as collisions and automotive breakdowns. 2. Chiefly British. A public telephone booth.

call-boy (kôl'boi') n. 1. One who tells performers when it is time for them to go on stage. 2. A bellhop. 3. A male prostitute hired by telephone.

call-er¹ (kô'lär) n. 1. One that calls, especially a party placing a telephone call. 2. A person paying a short social visit. 3. A person who calls out numbers or directions, as at a bingo game or a square dance.

cal-ler² (käl'ər) adj. Scots. 1. Fresh. 2. Cool and refreshing. [Middle English calour, alteration of calver.]

Cal-les (kī'ās, kä'yēs), Plutarco Elías. 1877-1945. Mexican general and politician whose presidency (1924-1928) was marked by economic reforms and struggles between church and state.

call girl (kôl gûrl) n. A woman prostitute hired by telephone.

call house (kôl hous) n. A house of prostitution.

cal·lig·ra·phy (kə-līg'rə-fē) n. 1. a. The art of fine handwriting. b. Works in fine handwriting considered as a group. 2. Handwriting. [French calligraphie, from Greek kalligraphia, beautiful writing : kalli-, beautiful (from kallos, beauty) + -graphia, -graphy.] — cal·lig·ra·pher, cal·lig·ra·phist n. — cal'li-graph'ic (käl'ī-grăf'ik) adj.

Cal·lim·a·chus¹ (kə-līm'ə-kəs), Fifth century B.C. Greek sculptor who reputedly designed the Corinthian column.

Cal·lim·a·chus² (kə-līm'ə-kəs), Third century B.C. Greek poet and scholar whose extant works include 64 epigrams and a catalog of the library at Alexandria.

call-in (kôl'in') adj. Being in a format such that listeners or viewers are invited to have their telephone conversations with the host or guests on a show broadcast to other listeners: a call-in radio show. — n. 1. A viewer or listener's telephone conversation with or telephone call to the host of such a show. 2. A viewer or listener making such a call.

call-ing (kô'līng) n. 1. An inner urge; a strong impulse. 2. An occupation, a profession, or a career.

calling card (kô'ling kârd) n. An engraved card bearing one's full name. Also called visiting card cal·li·o·pe (kə-lī'ə-pē', käl'ē-ōp') n. Music. An instrument fitted with steam whistles, played from a keyboard. [From CALLIOPE.]

Cal·li·o·pe (kə-lī'ə-pē') n. Greek Mythology. The Muse of epic poetry. [Latin, from Greek Kalliopē : kalli-, beautiful (from kallos, beauty) + ops, op-, voice; see wek^w- in Appendix.]

cal·li·op·sis (käl'ē-ōp'sis) n. A North American annual plant (Coreopsis tinctoria) widely cultivated for its showy flower heads with yellow rays and purple-red to brownish centers. [New Latin : Greek kalli-, beautiful (from kallos, beauty) + Greek opsis, appearance; see -OPSIS.]

cal·li·per (käl'ə-pər) n. Variant of caliper.

cal·li·pyg·i·an (käl'ə-pij'ē-ən) also cal·li·py·gous (-pī'gəs) adj. Having beautifully proportioned buttocks. [From Greek kallipugos : kalli-, beautiful (from kallos, beauty) + pugē, buttocks.]

Cal·lis·the·nes (kə-lis'thə-nēz'), 360?-328? B.C. Greek philosopher who chronicled the eastern expedition of Alexander the Great.

Cal·lis·to (kə-lis'tō) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A nymph, beloved of Zeus and hated by Hera. Hera changed her into a bear, and Zeus then placed her in the sky as the constellation Ursa Major. 2. One of the four brightest satellites of Jupiter and the sixth in distance from the planet. Originally sighted by Galileo, it is the largest planetary satellite. [Latin, from Greek Kallistō, perhaps from kallistos, superlative of kalos, beautiful.]

call letters (kôl lēt'ərz) pl.n. The identifying code letters or numbers of a radio or television transmitting station, assigned by a regulatory body. Also called call sign call loan (kôl lōn) n. A loan repayable on demand at any time. Also called demand loan call number (kôl nŭm'bər) n. A number used in libraries to classify a book and indicate its location on the shelves.

cal·lose (käl'ōs') n. Botany. A complex branched carbohydrate commonly associated with sieve areas of sieve elements. [From Latin callōsus, callous. See CALLOUS.]

cal·los·i·ty (kə-lōs'ī-tē) n. pl. cal·los·i·ties. 1. The condition of being calloused. 2. Hardheartedness; insensitivity. 3. See callus (n., sense 1a). [Middle English callosite, from Old French, from Late Latin callōsitās, from Latin callōsus, callous. See CALLOUS.]

cal·lous (käl'əs) adj. 1. Having calluses; toughened: callous skin on the elbow. 2. Emotionally hardened; unfeeling: a callous indifference to the suffering of others. — v. tr. intr. cal·loused, cal·lous·ing, cal·lous·es. To make or become callous. [Middle English, from Old French cailleux, from Latin callōsus, from cal- lum, hard skin.] —cal'ulous-ly adv. —cal'ulous-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Do not confuse the adjective callous, as in Years of dealing with criminals had left her callous, with the noun callus, as in I have a callus on my thumb. The verbs callous and callus mean respectively “to make or become callous” and “to form or develop hardened tissue.”

cal·low (käl'ō) adj. Lacking adult maturity or experience; immature: a callow youth. [Middle English calwe, bald, from Old English calu.] —cal'low-ness n.

Cal-lo-way (käl'ə-wā'), Cabell. Known as “Cab.” 1907-1994. American jazz musician and bandleader noted for his scat singing.

call sign (kôl sîn) n. See call letters.

call to quarters (kôl tō kwôr'tərz) n. A signal by a bugle that calls troops to their barracks just before taps.

call-up (kôl'üp') n. The act or an instance of summoning reserve military personnel to active service.

cal·lus (käl'əs) n. pl. cal·lus·es. 1. a. A localized thickening and enlargement of the horny layer of the skin. Also called callosity b. The hard bony tissue that develops around the ends of a fractured bone during healing. 2. Botany.

a. Undifferentiated tissue that develops on or around an injured or cut plant surface or in tissue culture. b. The hardened, sometimes sharp base of the floret of certain grasses. — v. intr. cal·lused, cal·lus·ing, cal·lus·es. To form or develop such hardened tissue. See Usage Note at callous. [Latin, masculine of callum.]

call waiting (kôl wā'ting) n. A telephone service that alerts a party who is using the phone of an incoming call and allows switching between calls.

calm (kām) adj. calm·er, calm·est. 1. Nearly or completely motionless; undisturbed: the calm surface of the lake. 2. Not excited or agitated; composed: The President was calm throughout the global crisis. — n. 1. An absence or cessation of motion; stillness. 2. Serenity; tranquillity; peace. 3. A condition of no wind or a wind with a speed of less than 1 mile (2 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale. — v. tr. intr. calmed, calm·ing, calms. To make or become calm or quiet: A warm bath will calm you. After the storm, the air calmed. [Middle English calme, from Old French, from Old Italian calmo, from Late Latin cauma, heat of the day, resting place in the heat of the day, from Greek kauma, burning heat, from kaiein, to burn. N., from Middle English calme from Italian calma, from Vulgar Latin calma*, from Late Latin.] —calm'ly adv. —calm'ness n.

SYNONYMS: calm, tranquil, placid, serene, halcyon, peaceful. These adjectives denote absence of excitement or disturbance. Calm implies freedom from emotional agitation: calm acceptance of the inevitable. Tranquil suggests a more enduring calm: hoped for a more tranquil life in the country. Placid suggests a pleasant, often phlegmatic calm: “Not everyone shared his placid temperament. Several cursed the delays” (Samuel G. Freedman). Serene denotes a lofty, even spiritual repose: remained serene in the midst of turbulence. Halcyon suggests happy tranquillity: halcyon days of youth. Peaceful implies undisturbed serenity: “I am... peaceful as old age tonight” (Robert Browning).

calm·a·tive (kă'mə-tiv, kăl'mə-) adj. Having relaxing or pacifying properties; sedative. — n. A sedative.

cal·o·mel (kăl'ə-měl', -məl) n. A colorless, white or brown tasteless compound, Hg₂Cl₂, used as a purgative and an insecticide. Also called mercurous chloride [Probably from New Latin kalomelas: Greek kalos, beautiful + melas, black.]

Ca·lo·o·can (kăl'ə-ō'kän, kă'lā-) A city of southwest Luzon, Philippines, a suburb of Manila. Population, 467,816.

cal·o·re·cep·tor (kăl'ə-rĭ-sĕp'tər) n. A sensory receptor that detects warmth. [Latin calor, heat; see kelə⁻¹ in Appendix + RECEPTOR.]

ca·lor·ic (kə-lôr'ĭk, -lör'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to heat: the caloric effect of sunlight. 2. Of or relating to calories: the caloric content of foods. — n. A hypothetically indestructible, uncreatable, highly elastic, self-repellent, all-pervading fluid formerly thought responsible for the production, possession, and transfer of heat. [French calorique, from Latin calor, heat. See kelə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—ca·lor'·i·cal·ly adv.

cal·o·rie (kăl'ə-rĕ) n. 1. Abbr. cal Any of several approximately equal units of heat, each measured as the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of 1 gram of water by 1°C from a standard initial temperature, especially from 3.98°C, 14.5°C, or 19.5°C, at 1 atmosphere pressure. Also called gram calorie, small calorie. 2. Abbr. cal The unit of heat equal to 100 the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of 1 gram of water from 0 to 100°C at 1 atmosphere pressure. Also called mean calorie. 3. a. Abbr. Cal The unit of heat equal to the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of 1 kilogram of water by 1°C at 1 atmosphere pressure. Also called kilocalorie, kilogram calorie, large calorie. b. A unit of energy-producing potential equal to this amount of heat that is contained in food and released upon oxidation by the body. Also called nutritionist's calorie [French, from Latin calor, heat. See kelə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

cal·o·rif·ic (kăl'ə-rĭf'ĭk) adj. Relating to or generating heat or calories. [French calorifique, from Latin calōrificus: calor, heat; see kelə⁻¹ in Appendix + -ficus, -fic.]

calorific value (kăl'ə-rĭf'ĭk văl'yōō) n. The calories or thermal units contained in one unit of a substance and released when the substance is burned.

cal·o·rim·e·ter (käl'ə-rīm'ī-tər) n. 1. An apparatus for measuring the heat generated by a chemical reaction, change of state, or formation of a solution.

2. The part of this apparatus, usually a container for holding a sample, in which the heat measured causes a change of state. [Latin calor, heat; see kelə⁻¹ in Appendix + -METER.] —ca·lor'·i·met'ric (kə-lôr'ə-mět'rik, -lôr'-) adj.

—ca·lor'·i·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

cal·o·rim·e·try (käl'ə-rīm'ī-trē) n. Measurement of the amount of heat evolved or absorbed in a chemical reaction, change of state, or formation of a solution. [Latin calor, heat; see kelə⁻¹ in Appendix + -METRY.]

ca·lotte (kə-löt') n. A skullcap, especially one worn by Roman Catholic priests. [French, from Provençal calota, or Italian callotta.]

cal·pac or cal·pack also kal·pac (käl'pāk', käl-pāk') n. A large black cap, usually of sheepskin or felt, worn in Turkey, the Caucasus, Iran, and neighboring regions. [Ottoman Turkish qalpāq, from Old Turkic, probably ultimately from Middle Persian kulāfak, cap, diminutive of kulāf, hat.]

Cal·pe (käl'pē) Ancient Gibraltar. Calpe was one of the Pillars of Hercules at the entrance to the Mediterranean Sea.

calque (kälk) n. See loan translation. [French, from calquer, to trace, copy, from Italian calcare, to press, from Latin calcāre, to tread on, from calx, heel.]

Cal·ta·nis·set·ta (käl'tə-nī-sět'ə, käl'tä-nēs-sět'tä) A city of central Sicily, Italy, southeast of Palermo. It is a sulfur-producing center. Population, 54,000.

cal·trop (käl'trəp, kôl'-) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genera Tribulus and Kallstroemia, having spiny or tuberculate fruits. 2. A Mediterranean species of star thistle (Centaurea calcitrapa) naturalized in North America. 3. See water chestnut (n., sense 1). 4. A metal device with four projecting spikes so arranged that when three of the spikes are on the ground, the fourth points upward, used as a hazard to pneumatic tires or to the hooves of horses. [Middle English calket-rappe, from Norman French, and from Old English calcatrippe, thistle both from Medieval Latin calcatrippa, thistle : possibly from Latin calcāre, to tread on; see CALQUE + trappa, trap (of Germanic origin).]

cal·u·met (käl'yə-mět', -mīt, käl'yə-mět') n. A long-stemmed sacred or ceremonial tobacco pipe used by certain Native Americans. [Canadian French, from French dialectal, straw, from Late Latin calamellus, diminutive of Latin calamus, reed, from Greek kalamos.]

Cal·u·met (käl'yə-mět', -mīt) A major industrial region of northeast Illinois and northwest Indiana on Lake Michigan adjacent to Chicago.

Calumet City (käl'yə-mět' sīt'ē) A city of northeast Illinois, an industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 37,840.

ca·lum·ni·ate (kə-lūm'nē-ăt') v. tr. ca·lum·ni·at·ed, ca·lum·ni·at·ing, ca·lum·ni·ates. To make maliciously or knowingly false statements about. See ca-lum·ni-ous (kə-lŭm'nē-əs) adj. Containing or implying calumny; slanderous or defamatory. —ca-lum'ni-ous-ly adv.

Synonyms at malign. [Latin calumniārī, calumniāt-, from calumnia, calumny. See CALUMNY.] —ca-lum'ni-a'tion n. —ca-lum'ni-a'tor n.

cal·um·ny (kāl'əm-nē) n. pl. cal·um·nies. 1. A false statement maliciously made to injure another's reputation. 2. The utterance of maliciously false statements; slander. [Middle English calumnie, from Old French calomnie, from Latin calumnia, from calvī, to deceive.]

cal·va·dos (kāl'və-dōs', käl'və-dōs') n. A French brandy made from apples. [French, after Calvados, a department of northwest France.]

cal·var·i·um (kāl'vâr'ē-əm) n. pl. cal·var·i·ums or cal·var·i·a (-ē-ə). A skull that lacks the lower jaw or the lower jaw and the facial parts. [Latin calvāria, skull, from calva, scalp, from calvus, bald.]

Cal·va·ry¹ (kāl'və-rē, käl'vrē) also Gol·go·tha (göl'gə-thə, göl-gōth'ə) A hill outside ancient Jerusalem where Jesus was crucified.

Cal·va·ry² also cal·va·ry (käl'və-rē) n. pl. Cal·va·ries. 1. A sculptured depiction of the Crucifixion. 2. calvary. A great ordeal. [French calvaire, from Calvaire, Calvary. Sense 2, from Calvary¹.]

Calvary cross (käl'və-rē krōs) n. Heraldry. A Latin cross set on three steps.

calve (käv, käv) v. calved, calv·ing, calves. — v. intr. 1. To give birth to a calf. 2. To break at an edge, so that a portion separates. Used of a glacier or an iceberg. — v. tr. 1. To give birth to (a calf). 2. To set loose (a mass of ice). Used of a glacier or an iceberg. [Middle English calven, from Old English calfian*, from calv, calf.]

Cal·vert (käl'vərt) Family of English colonists in America, including George (1580?-1632), First Baron Baltimore; his son Cecilius (1605-1675), Second Baron and recipient of the Maryland charter; another son, Leonard (1606-1647), first governor of Maryland (1634-1647); and Cecilius's son Charles (1637-1715), Third Baron and governor (1661-1675) and proprietor (1675-1689) of Maryland.

calves¹ (kävz, kävz) n. Plural of calf¹.

calves² (kävz, kävz) n. Plural of calf².

Cal·vin (käl'vĭn), John. 1509-1564. French-born Swiss Protestant theologian who broke with the Roman Catholic Church (1533) and set forth the tenets of his theology, known today as Presbyterianism, in Institutes of the Christian Religion (1536).

Cal·vin (käl'vĭn), Melvin. Born 1911. American chemist. He won a 1961 Nobel Prize for discovering the series of chemical reactions in photosynthesis.

Cal·vin·ism (käl'vĭ-nĭz'əm) n. The religious doctrines of John Calvin, emphasizing the omnipotence of God and the salvation of the elect by God's grace alone. —Cal'vin·ist adj., n. —Cal'vin·is'tic adj. —Cal'vin·is'ti-cal-ly adv.

Cal·vi·no (kāl-vē'nō, käl-), Italo. 1923-1985. Italian writer of allegorical tales, such as The Nonexistent Knight and the Cloven Viscount (1962), and science fiction, including Cosmicomics (1965).

calx (kälks) n. pl. calx·es or cal·ces (käl'sēz'). The crumbly residue left after a mineral or metal has been calcined or roasted. [Middle English, from Latin, lime, limestone, pebble, from Greek khalix, pebble.]

ca·ly·ces (kā'lī-sēz', käl'ī-) n. A plural of calyx.

ca·ly·cine (kā'lī-sīn', -sīn, käl'ī-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a calyx.

ca·lyc·u·lus (kā-līk'yə-ləs) n. pl. ca·lyc·u·li (-lī'). 1. Biology. A small cup-shaped structure. 2. Botany. A group of small bracts that resembles a calyx.

[Latin, diminutive of calyx, calyc-, calyx. See CALYX.] —ca·lyc'·u·lar adj.

—ca·lyc'·u·late (-līt, lāt') adj.

Cal·y·don (käl'ī-dōn', -dān) An ancient city of west-central Greece north of the Gulf of Patras. According to legend, the Calydonian boar, a gigantic beast sent by Artemis to devastate the city, was slain by Meleager, the son of the king of Calydon. —Cal'y·do'ni·an (-dō'nē-ən, -dōn'yən) adj. & n.

ca·lyp·so (kā-līp'sō) n. pl. ca·lyp·sos. A terrestrial orchid (Calypso bulbosa) native to north temperate regions, having a rose-pink flower with an inflated pouchlike lip usually marked with white, purple, and yellow. [Probably Latin Calypsō, Calypso. See CALYPSO¹.]

Ca·lyp·so¹ (kā-līp'sō) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A sea nymph who delayed Odysseus on her island, Ogygia, for seven years. 2. The satellite of Saturn that is tenth in distance from the planet. [Latin, from Greek Kalupsō, from kaluptein, to conceal. See kel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

Ca·lyp·so² or ca·lyp·so (kā-līp'sō) n. pl. Ca·lyp·sos also Ca·lyp·soes. Music. A type of music that originated in the West Indies, notably in Trinidad, and is characterized by improvised lyrics on topical or broadly humorous subjects.

[Origin unknown.] —Ca·lyp·so'ni·an (kā-līp-sō'nē-ən, käl'īp-) n.

ca·lyp·tra (kā-līp'trə) n. 1. The protective cap or hood covering the spore case of a moss or related plant. 2. A similar hoodlike, lidlike, or caplike structure, such as a root cap. [Medieval Latin, from Greek kaluptra, veil, from kaluptein, to cover. See kel⁻¹ in Appendix.] —ca·lyp'trate' (-trāt') adj.

ca·lyx (kā'līks, käl'īks) n. pl. ca·lyx·es or ca·ly·ces (kā'lī-sēz', käl'ī-). 1. The sepals of a flower considered as a group. 2. A cuplike structure or organ, such as one of the cuplike divisions of the pelvis or of the kidney. 3. A collecting structure in the kidney. [Latin calyx, calyc-, from Greek kalux.]

cal·zo·ne (käl-zō'nē, -zōn') n. An Italian turnover of pizza dough with a seasoned filling of cheese or meat. [Italian, pant leg, calzone, from calza, sock, from Vulgar Latin calcea*, from Latin calceus, shoe. See DISCALCED.]

cam (kăm) n. An eccentric or multiply curved wheel mounted on a rotating shaft, used to produce variable or reciprocating motion in another engaged or contacted part. [Dutch kam, cog, comb. See gembh- in Appendix.]

Cam (kăm) A river, about 64 km (40 mi) long, of east-central England. It flows past Cambridge to join the Ouse River south of Ely.

CAM abbr. Computer Science. Computer-aided manufacturing.

Ca·ma·güey (kăm'ə-gwā', kă'mä-) A city of east-central Cuba. Founded in 1514, it was moved to its present site in 1528. Population, 244,091.

ca·ma·ra·der·ie (kă'mə-rä'də-rē, kăm'ə-räd'ə-) n. Goodwill and lighthearted rapport between or among friends; comradeship. [French, from camarade, comrade, from Old French, roommate. See COMRADE.]

cam·a·ril·la (kăm'ə-ril'ə, -rē'yə) n. A group of confidential, often scheming advisers; a cabal. [Spanish, diminutive of cámara, room, from Late Latin camera. See CHAMBER.]

Cam·a·ril·lo (kăm'ə-rē'ō) A city of southern California west of Los Angeles. It is a manufacturing center in a fertile farming area. Population, 52,303.

cam·as or cam·ass (kăm'əs) n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Camassia in the lily family, especially C. quamash of western North America, having grass-like leaves, a raceme of blue flowers, and a bulb that was an important food for various Native American peoples. Also called quamash 2. Death camas. [Chinook Jargon, perhaps of Nootka origin.]

Cam·bay (kăm-bā'), Gulf of. An inlet of the Arabian Sea on the northwest coast of India.

cam·ber (kăm'bər) n. 1. a. A slightly arched surface, as of a road, a ship's deck, an airfoil, or a snow ski. b. The condition of having an arched surface. 2. A setting of automobile wheels in which they are closer together at the bottom than at the top. — v. intr. tr. cam·bered, cam·ber·ing, cam·bers. To arch or cause to arch slightly. [From Middle English caumber, curved, from Old North French dialectal caumbre, Latin camur, perhaps from Greek kamara, vault.]

Cam·ber·well beauty (kăm'bər-wəl' byōō'tē, -wəl) n. Chiefly British. The mourning cloak. [After Camberwell, a former borough of London, England.]

cam·bi·um (kăm'bē-əm) n. A lateral meristem in most vascular plants that forms parallel rows of cells resulting in secondary tissues either as secondary growth or as cork. [Medieval Latin, exchange, from Late Latin cambīre, cambiāre, to exchange, of Celtic origin.] — cam'bi·al adj.

Cam·bo·di·a (kăm-bō'dē-ə) or Kam·pu·che·a (kăm'pōō-chē'ə) Formerly (1970-1975) Khmer Republic (kmâr). A country of southeast Asia on the Gulf of Siam. During the time of the Khmer emperors, it ruled the entire Mekong River valley but fell under the sway of its stronger neighbors after the 15th century. Cambodia became part of French Indochina in the 19th century and proclaimed its independence in 1953. Phnom Penh is the capital and the largest city. Population, 5,756,141. — Cam-bo/di-an adj. & n.

Cam-bri-a (kām'brē-ə) Wales during Roman times. The term is now used as a poetic appellation.

Cam-bri-an (kām'brē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Wales; Welsh. 2. Of, relating to, or belonging to the geologic time, system of rocks, and sedimentary deposits of the first period of the Paleozoic Era, characterized by warm seas and desert land areas. — n. 1. A native of Wales; a Welshman. 2. The Cambrian Period. [From Medieval Latin Cambria, Wales, alteration of Cumbria, from Welsh Cymry. Adj., sense 2, and n., sense 2, after Cambria.]

Cambrian Mountains (kām'brē-ən moun'tənz) A rugged upland plateau extending north to south through central Wales.

cam-bric (kām'brīk) n. A finely woven white linen or cotton fabric. [Obsolete Flemish kameryk, from Kameryk, Cambrai, a city of northern France.]

cambric tea (kām'brīk tē) n. A drink for children, made of hot water, milk, sugar, and usually a small amount of tea. [So called because it is thin and white like cambric.]

Cam-bridge (kām'brīj) 1. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, west-northwest of Hamilton. Population 77,183. 2. A municipal borough of east-central England on the Cam River north-northeast of London. It is an ancient market town and the site of Cambridge University, established in the 12th to 13th century. Population, 100,200. 3. A city of eastern Massachusetts on the Charles River opposite Boston. Settled in 1630 as New Towne, it is known for its research and educational facilities, including Harvard University (founded in 1636), Radcliffe College (1879), and Massachusetts Institute of Technology (1861). Population, 95,802.

Cam-by-ses (kām-bī'sēz), Died 522 B.C. King of Persia (529-522) who extended Persian rule throughout the Nile Valley.

cam-cord-er (kām'kôr'dər) n. A self-contained unit of communications equipment made up of a lightweight, hand-held television camera and a video-cassette recorder. [CAM(ERA) + (RE)CORDER.]

Cam-den (kām'dən) 1. A city of southern Arkansas south-southwest of Little Rock. It is a manufacturing and transportation center. Population, 15,356. 2. A city of western New Jersey on the Delaware River opposite Philadelphia. Walt Whitman lived here from 1873 to 1892. Population, 87,492.

came¹ (kām) n. A slender, grooved lead bar used to hold together the panes in stained glass or latticework windows. [Possibly dialectal kame, ridge. See KAME.]

came² (kām) v. Past tense of come.

cam-el (kām'əl) n. 1. A humped, long-necked ruminant mammal of the genus Camelus, domesticated in Old World desert regions as a beast of burden and as a source of wool, milk, and meat. 2. A device used to raise sunken objects, consisting of a hollow structure that is submerged, attached tightly to the object, and pumped free of water. Also called caisson 3. Sports. A spin in figure skating that is performed in an arabesque or modified arabesque position. [Middle English, from Old English, and from Anglo-Norman cameil both from Latin camēlus, from Greek kamēlos, of Semitic origin.]

cam-el-back (kām'əl-băk') adj. Shaped like a hump or an arching curve. — n. New Orleans. A narrow house with one story in front and two in the rear. See Regional note at beignet.

cam-el-eer (kām'ə-lîr') n. A person who drives or rides a camel.

ca-mel-lia (kə-mēl'yə) n. Any of several evergreen shrubs or small trees of the genus Camellia native to eastern Asia, especially C. japonica, having shiny leaves and showy roselike flowers that are usually red, white, or pink. [New Latin Camellia, genus name, after Georg Josef Kamel (1661-1706), Moravian Jesuit missionary.]

ca-mel-o-pard (kə-mēl'ə-părd') n. 1. A giraffe. 2. Heraldry. A bearing resembling a giraffe but represented with long, curved horns. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin camēlopardus, from Latin camēlopardalis, from Greek kamēlopardalis : kamēlos, camel; see CAMEL + pardalis, pard (so called because the giraffe has a head like a camel's and the spots of a leopard).]

Ca-mel-o-par-da-lis (kə-mēl'ō-păr'dl-ĭs) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere in the large space between Ursa Major, Ursa Minor, and Perseus. [Latin camēlopardalis, camelopard. See CAMELOPARD.]

Cam-e-lot (kām'ə-lōt') n. 1. In Arthurian legend, the site of King Arthur's court. 2. A place or time of idealized beauty, peacefulness, and enlightenment.

cam-el's hair (kām'əlz hâr) n. 1. The soft, fine hair of the camel or a substitute for it. 2. A soft, heavy, usually light tan cloth, made chiefly of the hair of camel.

Cam-em-bert (kām'əm-bâr') n. A creamy, mold-ripened cheese that softens on the inside as it matures. [French, after Camembert, a village of northwest France.]

cam-e-o (kām'ē-ō') n. pl. cam-e-os. 1. a. A gem or shell carved in relief, especially one in which the raised design and the background consist of layers of contrasting colors. b. The technique of carving in this way. c. A medallion with a profile cut in raised relief. 2. A brief, vivid portrayal or depiction: a literary cameo. 3. A brief but dramatic appearance of a prominent actor, as in a single scene of a motion picture. In this sense, also called cameo role — v. cam-e-oed, cam-e-o-ing, cam-e-os. — v. tr. 1. To make into or like a gem or shell carved in relief. 2. To portray in sharp, delicate relief, as in a literary composition. — v. intr. To make a brief but dramatic appearance, as in a film: She cameoed as Anne Boleyn in A Man for All Seasons. [Italian, Middle English cameu (from Old French camaieu, and from Medieval Latin camahūtus).]

cam·er·a (kăm'ər-ə, kăm'rə) n. 1. An apparatus for taking photographs, generally consisting of a lightproof enclosure having an aperture with a shuttered lens through which the image of an object is focused and recorded on a photosensitive film or plate. 2. The part of a television transmitting apparatus that receives the primary image on a light-sensitive cathode tube and transforms it into electrical impulses. 3. Camera obscura. 4. pl. cam·er·ae (-ə-rē). A judge's private chamber. —idioms. in camera. In private. off camera. Outside the field of view of a television or movie camera. on camera. Within the field of view of a television or movie camera. [Late Latin, room. See CHAMBER.]

camera lu·ci·da (kăm'ər-ə lōō'sī-də) n. pl. camera lu·ci·das. An optical device that projects a virtual image of an object onto a plane surface, especially for tracing. [New Latin : Latin camera, chamber + Latin lucida, light.]

cam·er·a·man (kăm'ər-ə-măn', kăm'rə-) n. A man who operates a movie or television camera.

camera ob·scu·ra (kăm'ər-ə əb-skyōōr'ə) n. pl. camera ob·scu·ras. A darkened chamber in which the real image of an object is received through a small opening or lens and focused in natural color onto a facing surface rather than recorded on a film or plate. [New Latin : Latin camera, chamber + Latin obscura, dark.]

cam·er·a·per·son (kăm'ər-ə-pûr'sən, kăm'rə-) n. One who operates a movie or television camera.

cam·er·a·read·y (kăm'ər-ə-rəd'ē, kăm'rə-) adj. Prepared in such a way as to be appropriate for photographing prior to being made into a printing plate: camera-ready art; camera-ready text copy.

cam·er·a·wom·an (kăm'ər-ə-wōōm'ən, kăm'rə-) n. A woman who operates a movie or television camera.

cam·er·lin·go (kăm'ər-līng'gō) also cam·er·len·go (-lěng'gō) n. pl.

cam·er·lin·gos. The cardinal who manages the pope's secular affairs. [Italian camarlingo, of Germanic origin.]

Cam·er·on (kăm'ər-ən), Mount. A peak, 4,342.6 m (14,238 ft) high, in the Rocky Mountains of central Colorado.

Cam·e·roon (kăm'ə-rōōn') also Came·roun (kăm-rōōn') A country of west-central Africa on the Bight of Biafra. Comprising the former French Cameroons and the southern part of British Cameroons, it became independent in 1960. Yaoundé is the capital and Douala the largest city. Population, 9,542,400.

Cam·e·roons (kăm'ə-rōōnz') A region and former German protectorate of west-central Africa. After World War I the territory was divided into British Cameroons and French Cameroons.

Came·roun (kăm-rōōn') See Cameroon.

cam·i (kăm'ē) n. pl. cam·is. A camisole worn as an undergarment.

cam-i-on (kăm'ē-ən, kām-yŏN') n. 1. A truck. 2. A bus. [French, from Old French chamion, three-wheeled cart.]

cam-i-sa-do (kăm'ī-sā'dō, -sā'-) n. pl. cam-i-sa-does. Archaic. A surprise attack by night. [Probably from obsolete Spanish encamisado, shirted, surprise attack, from camisa, shirt (so called because the attackers wore white shirts over their armor for identification), from Late Latin camisia, camīsa.]

ca-mise (kə-mēz', -mēs') n. A loose shirt, shift, or tunic. [Arabic qamīš, from Late Latin camisia, camīsa, shirt.]

cam-i-sole (kăm'ī-sōl') n. 1. A woman's sleeveless undergarment, now usually worn under a sheer blouse. 2. A short negligee. [French (from Italian camiciola, diminutive of camicia, shirt), or from Old Provençal camisolla, diminutive of camisa, shirt both from Late Latin camisia, camīsa.]

Cam-lan (kăm'lən) n. In Arthurian legend, the battlefield where King Arthur was mortally wounded.

cam-let (kăm'līt) n. 1. A rich cloth of Asian origin, supposed originally to have been made of camel's hair and silk and later made of goat's hair and silk or other combinations. 2. A garment made from this cloth. [Middle English chamelet, from Old French chamelot, perhaps from Arabic ḥamlah, nap, fibers.]

cam-o (kăm'ō) n. pl. cam-os. Informal. Camouflage fabric or a garment made of it. [Short for CAMOUFLAGE.]

Ca-mões (kə-moiŋsh') also Ca-mo-ëns (kăm'ō-ənz, kə-mō'-), Luiz Vaz de. 1524?-1580. Portuguese writer whose epic poem Os Lusíadas (1572) is among Portugal's greatest literary works.

cam-o-mile (kăm'ə-mīl', -mēl') n. Variant of chamomile.

Ca-mor-ra (kə-môr'ə, -mör'ə) n. 1. A Neapolitan secret society organized about 1820, notorious for practicing violence and blackmail. 2. camorra. An unscrupulous, clandestine group. [Italian, perhaps from camorra, a kind of smock, said to have been worn by members of the society.]

cam-ou-flage (kăm'ə-flāzh', -flāj') n. 1. The method or result of concealing personnel or equipment from an enemy by making them appear to be part of the natural surroundings. 2. Concealment by disguise or protective coloring.

3. Fabric or a garment dyed in splotches of green, brown, tan, and black so as to make the wearer indistinguishable from the surrounding environment. — v. cam-ou-flaged, cam-ou-flag-ing, cam-ou-flag-es. — v. tr. 1. To conceal by the use of disguise or by protective coloring or garments that blend in with the surrounding environment. 2. To conceal, usually through misrepresentation or other artifice: camouflaged their hatred with professions of friendship. See Synonyms at disguise. — v. intr. To use protective coloring or garments for concealment. [French, from camouflier, to disguise, alteration (influenced by camouflet, snub, smoke blown in one's face), of Italian camuffare.]

—cam'ou-flag'er n.

camp¹ (kämp) n. 1. a. A place where tents, huts, or other temporary shelters are set up, as by soldiers, nomads, or travelers. b. A cabin or shelter or group of such buildings: gathered branches and grasses for a makeshift camp; had a fishing camp in Vermont. c. The people using such shelters: a howl that awakened the whole camp. 2. a. A place in the country that offers simple group accommodations and organized recreation or instruction, as for vacationing children: a girls' summer camp; a tennis camp. b. Sports. A place where athletes engage in intensive training, especially preseason training. c. The people attending the programs at such a place. 3. Military service; army life. 4. A group of people who think alike or share a cause; side: The council members disagreed, falling into liberal and conservative camps. — v. camped, camp-ing, camps. — v. intr. 1. To make or set up a camp. 2. To live in or as if in a camp; settle: We camped in the apartment until the furniture arrived. — v. tr. To shelter or lodge in a camp; encamp: They camped themselves by a river. [Obsolete French, perhaps from Italian, or Spanish campo all from Latin campus, field.]

camp² (kämp) n. 1. An affectation or appreciation of manners and tastes commonly thought to be artificial, vulgar, or banal. 2. Banality, vulgarity, or artificiality when deliberately affected or when appreciated for its humor: "Camp is popularity plus vulgarity plus innocence" (Indra Jahalani). — adj. Having deliberately artificial, vulgar, banal, or affectedly humorous qualities or style: played up the silliness of their roles for camp effect. — v. camped, camp-ing, camps. — v. intr. To act in a deliberately artificial, vulgar, or banal way. — v. tr. To give a deliberately artificial, vulgar, or banal quality to: camped up their cowboy costumes with chaps, tin stars, and ten-gallon hats. [Origin unknown.] —camp'y adj.

Camp (kämp), Walter Chauncey. 1859-1925. American football coach and promoter who developed many of the sport's basic rules.

Cam-pa-gna di Ro-ma (kämp-pän'yə dē rō'mə, -mä, kämp-) A low-lying region surrounding Rome, Italy. It was a favorite residential area during ancient times but was largely abandoned for centuries because of the prevalence of malaria. Much of the region was reclaimed and repopulated in the 19th and 20th centuries.

cam-paign (kämp-pän') n. 1. A series of military operations undertaken to achieve a large-scale objective during a war: Grant's Vicksburg campaign secured the entire Mississippi for the Union. 2. An operation or series of operations energetically pursued to accomplish a purpose: an advertising campaign for a new product; a candidate's political campaign. — v. intr. cam-paigned, cam-paign-ing, cam-paigns. To engage in an operation planned to achieve a certain goal: campaigned through the jungles of Vietnam; campaigned for human rights. [French campagne, from Italian campagna, military operation, from Late Latin campānia, open country, battlefield, from campus, field.] —cam·paign'er n.

SYNONYMS: campaign, crusade, drive, push. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a vigorous concerted effort to accomplish a purpose”: a fund-raising campaign; a crusade for improved social services; a drive to sell bonds; a push to get the bill through Congress.

Cam·pa·ni·a (kām-pā'nē-ə, -pān'yə, kām-pā'nyä) A region of southern Italy on the Tyrrhenian Sea. Inhabited in ancient times by Italic tribes, Greek colonists, Etruscans, and Samnites, it was conquered by Rome in the fourth century B.C. Campania joined Italy in 1860 as part of the kingdom of Naples.

cam·pa·ni·le (kām'pə-nē'lē) n. pl. cam·pa·ni·les (-lēz) or cam·pa·ni·li (-lē). A bell tower, especially one near but not attached to a church or other public building. [French, from Italian, from campana, bell, from Late Latin campāna, bell (made of metal produced in Campania), from Latin campānus, of Campania, from Campania.]

cam·pa·nol·o·gy (kām'pə-nōl'ə-jē) n. The art or study of bell casting and ringing. [Late Latin campāna, bell; see CAMPANILE + -LOGY.]
—cam'pa·nol'o·gist n.

cam·pan·u·la (kām-pān'yə-lə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Campanula, which includes the harebell, bellflower, and Canterbury bells. [New Latin Campanula, genus name, diminutive of Late Latin campāna, bell. See CAMPANILE.]

cam·pan·u·late (kām-pān'yə-līt, -lāt') adj. Botany. Shaped like a bell, as certain flowers are.

Camp·bell (kām'bəl) A city of west-central California southwest of San Jose. It has an electronics industry. Population, 26,910.

Camp·bell (kām'bəl), Sir Colin Baron Clyde. 1792-1863. British naval and army officer active in the War of 1812 and numerous conflicts in India and China.

Camp·bell (kām'bəl), John Archibald. 1811-1889. American jurist and public official who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1853-1861) and as assistant secretary of war (1862-1865) in the Confederate cabinet.

Camp·bell (kām'bəl), Joseph. 1904-1987. American mythologist who wrote numerous influential works, including The Hero with a Thousand Faces (1949) and the four-volume Masks of God (1959-1967).

Camp·bell (kām'bəl), Sir Malcolm. 1885-1948. British racer who established speed records for automobiles and speedboats, all of which were surpassed by his son Donald (1921-1967).

Camp·bell (käm'bal), Mrs. Patrick. Originally Beatrice Stella Tanner. 1865-1940. British actress who was the first to portray Eliza in Pygmalion (1913), a part written for her by George Bernard Shaw.

Camp·bell¹ (käm'bal), Thomas. 1763-1854. Irish-born American religious leader who with his son Alexander (1788-1866) founded the Disciples of Christ (1809).

Camp·bell² (käm'bal), Thomas. 1777-1844. British poet and editor best known for his ballad "Lord Ullin's Daughter" (1809).

Camp·bell·Ban·ner·man (käm'bal-bän'ər-mən, käm'əl-), Sir Henry. 1836-1908. British politician who was the Liberal Party leader during the Boer War (1899-1902) and later served as prime minister (1905-1908).

Campbell River (käm'bal rīv'ər) A city of southwest British Columbia, Canada, on Vancouver Island and the Strait of Georgia northwest of Vancouver. Population, 15,370.

Camp Da·vid (kämp dā'vid) A presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of northern Maryland north-northwest of Washington, D.C. It was established by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1942 as Shangri-La. Dwight D. Eisenhower renamed it Camp David in honor of his grandson.

Cam·pe·che (käm-pē'chē, käm-pě'-) A city of southeast Mexico on the Bay of Campeche, a section of the Gulf of Mexico west of Yucatán. Founded in 1540, Campeche was frequently sacked by buccaneers in the 17th century. Population, 128,434.

camp·er (käm'pər) n. 1. One that camps, such as a person lodging temporarily in a tent or cabin. 2. a. A motor vehicle with space and equipment, either in a rear compartment or in an attached trailer, for sleeping and simple housekeeping, used for camping and recreational travel. b. The rear compartment or attached trailer of such a vehicle.

cam·pe·si·no (käm'pī-sē'nō, käm'-) n. pl. cam·pe·si·nos. A farmer or farm worker in a Latin-American country. [Spanish, from campo, field, from Latin campus.]

cam·pes·tral (käm-pēs'trəl) adj. Of, relating to, or growing in uncultivated land or open fields. [From Latin campester, of a field, from campus, field.]

camp·fire (kämp'fir') n. 1. An outdoor fire in a camp, used for cooking or warmth. 2. A meeting held around such a fire.

Camp Fire Girl (kämp fir gûrl) n. A member of an organization for girls aged 7 through 18 that strives to instill good values and character and teach practical skills. [From Camp Fire Girls, Inc.]

camp follower (kämp fōl'ō-ər) n. 1. A civilian who follows a military unit from place to place, especially as a vender of supplies or as a prostitute. 2. One who follows but does not belong to a main body or group.

camp-ground (kämp'ground') n. An area used for setting up a camp or holding a camp meeting.

cam-phene (käm'fēn') n. A colorless crystalline terpene, $C_{10}H_{16}$, used in the manufacture of synthetic camphor and insecticides. [CAMP(OR) + -ENE.]

cam-phor (käm'fər) n. An aromatic crystalline compound, $C_{10}H_{16}O$, obtained naturally from the wood or leaves of the camphor tree or synthesized and used as an insect repellent, in the manufacture of film, plastics, lacquers, and explosives, and in medicine chiefly in external preparations to relieve mild pain and itching. [Middle English caumfre, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin camphora, from Arabic kāfūr, possibly from Malay kapur; akin to Sanskrit karpūrah.]

—cam'phor-a'ceous (käm'fə-rā'shəs) adj. —cam-phor'ic (-fôr'ik, -fôr'-) adj.

cam-phor-ate (käm'fə-rāt') v. tr. cam-phor-at-ed, cam-phor-at-ing, cam-phor-ates. To treat or impregnate with camphor.

camphor oil (käm'fər oil) n. The oil obtained by steam distillation from the wood of the camphor tree and used to produce natural camphor.

camphor tree (käm'fər trē) n. An east Asian evergreen tree (Cinnamomum camphora) naturalized and cultivated as an ornamental in the southern United States, having aromatic wood and leathery leaves that are a source of camphor.

cam-phor-weed (käm'fər-wēd') n. Either of two eastern North American herbs Heterotheca subaxillaris or Pluchea camphorata, of the composite family, having numerous small flower heads.

Cam-pi-na Gran-de (käm'pē-nə grän'də, -dē, kän-pē'nə grän'də) A city of extreme eastern Brazil northwest of Recife. It is a commercial and financial center. Population, 222,102.

Cam-pi-nas (käm-pē'nəs, kän-) A city of southeast Brazil north-northwest of São Paulo. It grew as the center of a coffee-producing region in the 19th century. Population, 566,627.

cam-pi-on (käm'pē-ən) n. Any of several plants of the genera Lychnis and Silene native chiefly to the Northern Hemisphere and having variously colored flowers with notched or fringed petals. [Origin unknown.]

Cam-pi-on (käm'pē-ən), Thomas. 1567-1620. English poet and composer of songs for voice and lute.

camp meeting (kämp mē'ting) n. An evangelistic gathering held in a tent or outdoors and often lasting several days.

cam-po (käm'pō, käm'-) n. pl. cam-pos. A large grassy plain in South America, with scattered bushes and small trees. [Spanish, field, from Latin campus.]

Cam-po-bel-lo Island (käm'pə-bē'lō ī'lənd) An island of southwest New Brunswick, Canada, off the coast of Maine. A popular resort area, the island became part of Canada in 1817.

Cam·po Gran·de (kăm'pō grăn'də, -dē, kăn'pōō grăn'də) A city of south-west Brazil west-northwest of São Paulo. It is a major processing and shipping center. Population, 282,857.

camp·o·ree (kăm'pə-rē') n. An assembly or gathering of Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts on a local or district level. [Probably CAMP¹ + (JAMB)OREE.]

Cam·pos (kăm'pəs, kăn'pōōs) A city of southeast Brazil on the Paraíba River northeast of Rio de Janeiro. It was founded in the 17th century. Population, 178,457.

camp robber (kämp rōb'ər) n. See gray jay.

camp·site (kämp'sīt') n. An area suitable or used for camping.

Camp Springs (kämp sprīngz) A city of west-central Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 16,392.

camp·stool (kämp'stōōl') n. A light folding stool.

cam·pus (kăm'pəs) n. pl. cam·pus·es. The grounds of a school, college, university, or hospital. [Latin, field.]

cam·py·lo·bac·ter·o·sis (kăm'pə-lō-băk'tə-rō'sīs) n. A gastrointestinal condition characterized by diarrhea, abdominal cramps, and fever, caused by eating raw meat or unpasteurized milk contaminated with Campylobacter jejuni, a bacterium that infects poultry, cattle, and sheep. [New Latin Campylobacter, genus name (Greek kampulos, curved + BACTER(IUM)) + -OSIS.]

cam·py·lot·ro·pous (kăm'pə-lōt'rə-pəs) adj. Botany. Having an ovule partially inverted and curved such that the micropyle nearly meets the funiculus. [Greek kampulos, curved + -TROPOUS.]

Cam·ranh Bay or Cam Ranh Bay (kăm'răn' bā, kăm'răn') An inlet of the South China Sea in southeast Vietnam. Formerly a French naval base, it was the site of a large U.S. military installation during the Vietnam War.

cam·shaft (kăm'shăft') n. An engine shaft fitted with a cam or cams.

Ca·mus (kā-mōō', -mü'), Albert. 1913-1960. French writer and philosopher whose works, such as The Stranger (1942) and The Plague (1947), concern the absurdity of the human condition. He won the 1957 Nobel Prize for literature.

can¹ (kăn; kən when unstressed) v. aux. Past tense could (kōōd). 1. a. Used to indicate physical or mental ability: I can carry both suitcases. Can you remember the war? b. Used to indicate possession of a specified power, right, or privilege: The President can veto congressional bills. c. Used to indicate possession of a specified capability or skill: I can tune the harpsichord as well as play it. 2. a. Used to indicate possibility or probability: I wonder if my long lost neighbor can still be alive. Such things can and do happen. b. Used to indicate that which is permitted, as by conscience or feelings: One can hardly blame you for being upset. c. Used to indicate probability or possibility under the specified circumstances: They can hardly have intended to do that. 3. Usage Problem. Used to request or grant permission: Can I be excused? [Middle English, first and third person singular present tense of connen, to know how, from Old English cunnan. See gnō- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Generations of grammarians and schoolteachers have insisted that can should be used only to express the capacity to do something, and that may must be used to express permission. Technically, correct usage therefore requires The supervisor said that anyone who wants an extra day off may (not can) have one, or May (not can) I take another week to submit the application? Only 21 percent of the Usage Panel accepts can in the latter sentence. But can has a long history of use by educated speakers to express permission, particularly in British English. What is more, the blurring of the line between can and may is socially and historically inevitable, since politeness often makes the use of can preferable in the “permission” sense. For example, the sentence You can borrow my car if you like is a more gracious offer than You may borrow my car; the first presumes the granting of permission, while the second makes a point of it. Still, it is understandable that insistence on the use of may should become a traditional school-room ritual, particularly in first-person requests such as May I leave the room? since it requires the pupil to distinguish explicitly between what is possible and what is allowed, a difference not always apparent to younger children. And even in later life, observance of the distinction is often advisable in the interests of clarity. Thus, the sentence Students can take no more than three courses allows the possibility that a student who is unusually capable may take more, whereas Students may take no more than three courses does not. • The use of can to express permission is better tolerated in negative questions, as in Can't I have the car tonight? probably because the alternative contraction mayn't is felt to be awkward.

can² (kăn) n. 1. A usually cylindrical metal container. 2. a. An airtight container, usually made of tin-coated iron, in which foods or beverages are preserved. b. The contents of such a container. 3. Slang. A jail or prison. 4. Slang. A toilet or restroom. 5. Slang. The buttocks. — v. tr. canned, can-ning, cans. 1. To seal in an airtight container for future use; preserve: canning peaches. 2. Slang. To make a recording of: can the audience's applause for a TV comedy show. 3. Slang. To dismiss from employment or school. See Synonyms at dismiss. 4. Slang. To put a stop to; quit: Let's can the chatter. [Middle English canne, a water container, from Old English.] — can'ner n.

can. abbr. 1. a. Canceled. b. Cancellation. 2. Cannon. 3. Canon. 4. Canto.

Can. abbr. 1. Canada. 2. Canadian.

Ca·na (kā'nə) A village of northern Palestine near Nazareth. In the New Testament, Jesus performed his first miracle here, changing water into wine.

Ca·naan (kā'nən) An ancient region made up of Palestine or the part of it between the Jordan River and the Mediterranean Sea. In the Old Testament, it was referred to as the Promised Land.

Ca·naan·ite (kā'nə-nīt') n. 1. A member of a Semitic people inhabiting Canaan from late prehistoric times and who were conquered by the Israelites around 1000 B.C. 2. The Semitic language of the Canaanites. — adj. Of or relating to ancient Canaan or its people, language, or culture.

Can·a·da (kän'ə-də) Abbr. Can. A country of northern North America. Eastern Canada was settled by both English and French colonists and was ceded to England in 1763 after the Seven Years' War. The Dominion of Canada was formed in 1867 and extended to the western provinces in 1905; Newfoundland formally joined the federation in 1949. The Statute of Westminster (1931) confirmed Canada's status as an independent nation within the Commonwealth. Ottawa is the capital and Montreal the largest city. Population, 23,343,181.

—Ca·na'di·an (kə-nā'dē-ən) adj. & n.

Canada balsam (kän'ə-də bôl'səm) n. A viscous, yellowish, transparent resin obtained from the balsam fir and used as a cement for glass lenses and for mounting specimens on microscopic slides.

Canada goose or Canadian goose (kän'ə-də gōōs) n. A common wild goose (Branta canadensis) of North America, having grayish plumage, a black neck and head, and a white throat patch.

Canada jay (kän'ə-də jā) n. See gray jay.

Canada thistle (kän'ə-də thîs'təl) n. A perennial herb (Cirsium arvense) in the composite family, native to Europe and naturalized as a noxious weed in North America, having spiny-margined leaves and rose-purple or sometimes white flower heads.

Canadian bacon (känā'dē-ən bā'kən) n. Cured rolled bacon from the loin of a pig.

Canadian Falls (kə-nā'dē-ən fôlz) also Horse-shoe Falls (hōrs'shōō' fôlz, hōrsh'-) A section, about 48 m (158 ft) high, of Niagara Falls within Ontario, Canada.

Canadian French (känā'dē-ən frēnch) n. The French language as used in Canada.

Canadian goose (känā'dē-ən gōōs) n. Variant of Canada goose.

Canadian hemlock (känā'dē-ən hēm'lök') n. A coniferous evergreen monoecious tree (Tsuga canadensis) native from Nova Scotia to Alaska and valuable for its timber, as a pulpwood, for tanning, and as an ornamental.

Canadian River (känā'dē-ən rîv'ər) A river rising in northeast New Mexico and flowing about 1,458 km (906 mi) eastward across the Texas Panhandle to the Arkansas River in eastern Oklahoma.

Canadian Shield (känā'dē-ən shēld) See Laurentian Plateau.

ca·nai·gre (kə-nī'grē) n. A perennial herb (Rumex hymenosepalus) native chiefly to southwest North America, having tannin-rich, tuberous roots formerly used for tanning and in herbal medicine. [Spanish.]

ca·naille (kə-nī', -nāl') n. 1. The masses of the people; the proletariat.

2. Rabble; riffraff. [French, from Italian canaglia, pack of dogs, rabble, from cane, dog, from Latin canis. See kwon- in Appendix.]

ca·nal (kə-nāl') n. 1. An artificial waterway or artificially improved river used for travel, shipping, or irrigation. 2. Anatomy. A tube, duct, or passageway.

3. Astronomy. One of the faint, hazy markings resembling straight lines on early telescopic images of the surface of Mars. — v. tr. ca·nalled or ca·naled, ca·nal·ling or ca·nal·ing, ca·nals or ca·nals. 1. To dig an artificial waterway through: canal an isthmus. 2. To provide with an artificial waterway or waterways. [Partly French, channel,, and partly Middle English, tube (from Medieval Latin canāle) both from Latin canālis, tube, channel, probably from canna, small reed. See CANE.]

Ca·na·let·to (kän'ə-lět'ō), Originally Giovanni Antonio Canal. 1697-1768.

Italian painter noted for his detailed and precisely proportioned views of Venice.

can·a·lic·u·late (kän'ə-lik'yə-līt, -lāt') adj. Having one or more longitudinal grooves or channels. [Latin canāliculātus, from canāliculus, diminutive of canālis, channel. See CANAL.]

can·a·lic·u·lus (kän'ə-lik'yə-ləs) n. pl. can·a·lic·u·li (-lī'). A small canal or duct in the body, such as the minute channels in compact bone. [Latin, diminutive of canālis, conduit. See CANAL.] — can·a·lic·u·lar (-lər) adj.

can·a·li·za·tion (kän'ə-lī-zā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of canalizing.

2. A system of canals.

can·a·lize (kän'ə-līz') v. tr. can·a·lized, can·a·liz·ing, can·a·liz·es. 1. To furnish with or convert into a canal or canals. 2. To provide an outlet for; channel.

Ca·nal Zone (kə-nāl' zōn) also Pan·a·ma Canal Zone (pän'ə-mä', -mô') Abbr. CZ, C.Z. A strip of land, about 16 km (10 mi) wide, across the Isthmus of Panama. Formerly administered by the United States for the operation of the Panama Canal, it was turned over to Panama in 1979.

Can·an·dai·gua Lake (kän'ən-dā'gwa lāk) A glacial lake of west-central New York. One of the Finger Lakes, it is in a popular resort area.

can·a·pé (kän'ə-pā', -pē) n. A cracker or a small, thin piece of bread or toast spread with cheese, meat, or relish and served as an appetizer. [French, from canapé, couch, from Medieval Latin canāpēum, mosquito net. See CANOPY.]

ca·nard (kə-närd') n. 1. An unfounded or false, deliberately misleading story.

2. a. A short, winglike control surface projecting from the fuselage of an aircraft, such as a space shuttle, mounted forward of the main wing and serving as a horizontal stabilizer. b. An aircraft whose horizontal stabilizing surfaces are forward of the main wing. [French, duck, canard, probably from the phrase vendre un canard à moitié, to half-sell a duck, to swindle, from Old French quanart, duck, from caner, to cackle, of imitative origin.]

ca·nar·y (kə-nâr'ē) n. pl. ca-nar-ies. 1. A small finch (Serinus canaria) native to the Canary Islands that is greenish to yellow and has long been bred as a cage bird. 2. Slang. a. A woman singer. b. An informer; a stool pigeon. 3. A sweet white wine from the Canary Islands, similar to Madeira. 4. A lively 16th-century court dance. 5. Color. A light to moderate or vivid yellow. [French canari, from Spanish canario, of the Canary Islands, from (Islas) Canarias, Canary (Islands), from Late Latin Canāriæ (Īnsulae), (islands) of dogs, from Latin canārius, pertaining to dogs, canine, from canis, dog. See kwon- in Appendix.]

ca·nar·y-bird flower (kə-nâr'ē-bûrd' flou'ər) n. A Peruvian climbing plant (Tropaeolum peregrinum) cultivated for its showy, spurred yellow flowers. Also called canary-bird vine canary grass (kə-nâr'ē grās) n. 1. An annual Mediterranean grass (Phalaris canariensis) having grains used as food for caged birds, such as canaries. 2. Any of several related grasses, such as reed canary grass.

Ca·nar·y Islands (kə-nâr'ē ī'ləndz) A group of Spanish islands in the Atlantic Ocean off the northwest coast of Africa. The Canaries have been part of Spain since 1479 and are a major tourist center.

ca·nas·ta (kə-nās'tə) n. Games. A card game for two to six players, related to rummy and requiring two decks of cards. [Spanish, from canasto, basket, from Latin canistrum. See CANISTER.]

Ca·nav·er·al (kə-nāv'ər-əl, -nāv'rəl), Cape. Formerly (1963-1973), Cape.

Ken·ne·dy (kĕn'ī-dē). A sandy promontory extending into the Atlantic Ocean from a barrier island on the east-central coast of Florida. It is the site of NASA's Kennedy Manned Space Flight Center, the launching area for U.S. space missions.

Can·ber·ra (kăn'bər-ə, -bĕr'ə) The capital of Australia, in the southeast part of the country. Settled in 1824, it replaced Melbourne as the capital in 1908. Population, 243,450.

Can·by (kăn'bē), Henry Seidel. 1878-1961. American writer and editor of Saturday Review (1924-1936). He helped establish the Book-of-the-Month Club (1926).

canc. abbr. 1. Canceled. 2. Cancellation.

can·can (kăn'kăn') n. An exuberant dance that originated in France, performed by women and marked by high kicking. [French.]

can·cel (kăn'səl) v. can-celed also can-celled, can-cel-ing also can-cel-ling, can-cels also can-cels. — v. tr. 1. To cross out with lines or other markings. See Synonyms at erase. 2. To annul or invalidate. 3. To mark or perforate (a postage stamp or check, for example) to indicate that it may not be used again. 4. To equalize or make up for; offset: Today's decline in stock price canceled out yesterday's gain. 5. Mathematics. a. To remove (a common factor) from the numerator and denominator of a fractional expression. b. To remove (a common factor or term) from both sides of an equation or inequality. 6. Printing. To omit or delete. — v. intr. To neutralize one another; counterbalance: two opposing forces that canceled out. — n. 1. The act or an instance of canceling; a cancellation. 2. Printing. a. Deletion of typed or printed matter. b. The matter deleted. c. A replacement for deleted matter. [Middle English cancellen, from Old French cancellor, from Latin cancellāre, to cross out, from cancellus, lattice, diminutive of cancer, lattice.] —can'cel-a-ble adj. —can'cel-er n.

can-ce-la-tion (kǎn'sə-lā'shən) n. Variant of cancellation.

can-cel-late (kǎn-səl'tit, kǎn'sə-lāt') also can-cel-lat-ed (-lā'tid) adj. Anatomy. Cancellous. [Latin cancellātus, past participle of cancellāre, to make in a crisscross pattern. See CANCEL.]

can-cel-la-tion also can-ce-la-tion (kǎn'sə-lā'shən) n. Abbr. can., canc.

1. The act or an instance of canceling. 2. A mark or a perforation indicating canceling. 3. Something canceled, especially a released accommodation or an unfilled appointment.

can-cel-lous (kǎn-səl'əs, kǎn'sə-ləs) adj. Anatomy. Having an open, latticed, or porous structure. Used especially of bone. [From Latin cancellus, lattice. See CANCEL.]

can-cer (kǎn'sər) n. 1. a. Any of various malignant neoplasms characterized by the proliferation of anaplastic cells that tend to invade surrounding tissue and metastasize to new body sites. b. The pathological condition characterized by such growths. 2. A pernicious, spreading evil: A cancer of bigotry spread through the community. [Middle English. See CANKER.] —can'cer-ous (kǎn'sər-əs) adj.

Can-cer (kǎn'sər) n. 1. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Leo and Gemini. 2. a. The fourth sign of the zodiac in astrology. b. One who is born under this sign. Also called Crab [Middle English, from Latin. See CANKER.]

Can-cer-i-an (kǎn-sər'ē-ən) n. One who is born under the sign of Cancer. —Cancerian adj.

can-croid (kǎŋg'kroid') n. See squamous cell carcinoma. — adj. 1. Of or relating to squamous cell carcinoma. 2. Resembling a crab. [Latin cancer, cancer-; see CANCER + -OID.]

Can-cún (kǎn-kōn', kǎŋg-) An island community of southeast Mexico off the northeast tip of the Yucatán Peninsula. It is a popular Caribbean resort. Population, 33,273.

can-del-a (kǎn-dəl'ə) n. Abbr. cd A unit of luminous intensity equal to 60 of the luminous intensity per square centimeter of a blackbody radiating at the temperature of solidification of platinum (2,046°K). Also called candle See Table at measurement. [Latin candēla, candle. See CANDLE.]

can·de·la·bra (kǎn'dl-ä'brə, -äb'rə, -ä'brə) n. A candelabrum. [From Latin candēlābra, pl. of candēlābrum. See CANDELABRUM.]

can·de·la·brum (kǎn'dl-ä'brəm, -äb'rəm, -ä'brəm) n. pl. can·de·la·bra (-brə) or can·de·la·brums. A large decorative candlestick having several arms or branches. [Latin candēlābrum, candlestick, from candēla, candle. See CANDLE.]

can·de·lil·la (kǎn'dl-ē'lə) n. A shrubby spurge (Euphorbia antisyphilitica) native to southwest Texas and Mexico, having densely clustered, erect, essentially leafless stems that yield a multipurpose wax. [American Spanish, diminutive of Spanish candela, candle, from Latin candēla. See CANDLE.]

can·dent (kǎn'dənt) adj. Having a white-hot glow; incandescent. [Latin candēns, candent- present participle of candēre, to shine. See kand- in Appendix.]

can·des·cence (kǎn-dēs'səns) n. The state of being white hot; incandescence. [From Latin candēscēns, candēscēt- present participle of candēscere inchoative of candēre, to shine. See CANDID.] —can·des'cent adj. —can·des'cent·ly adv.

Can·di·a¹ (kǎn'dē-ə) A name used by Italian colonizers (13th-17th century) for the island of Crete.

Can·di·a² (kǎn'dē-ə) See Iráklion.

can·did (kǎn'dīd) adj. 1. Free from prejudice; impartial. 2. Characterized by openness and sincerity of expression; unreservedly straightforward: In private, I gave them my candid opinion. See Synonyms at frank¹. 3. Not posed or rehearsed: a candid snapshot. — n. An unposed informal photograph. [Latin candidus, glowing, white, pure, guileless, from candēre, to shine. See kand- in Appendix.] —can'did·ly adv. —can'did·ness n.

can·di·da (kǎn'dī-də) n. Any of the pathogenic yeastlike imperfect fungi of the genus Candida. [Latin, feminine of candidus, white. See CANDID.]

can·di·date (kǎn'dī-dāt', -dīt) n. 1. A person who seeks or is nominated for an office, prize, or honor. 2. One that seems likely to gain a certain position or come to a certain fate: young actors who are candidates for stardom; a memorandum that is a good candidate for the trash can. [Latin candidātus, clothed in white (from the white togas worn by Romans seeking office), candidate, from candidus, white. See CANDID.] —can'di·da·cy (-də-sē), can'di·da·ture' (-də-choōr', -chər) n.

candid camera (kǎn'dīd kām'ər-ə) n. A small, easily operated camera with a fast lens for taking unposed or informal photographs.

can·di·di·a·sis (kǎn'dī-dī'ə-sīs) n. A fungous infection caused by a member of the genus Candida, especially C. albicans, that can involve various parts of the body, such as the skin and mucous membranes. Also called moniliasis can·died (kǎn'dēd) adj. Permeated, covered, encrusted, or cooked with sugar: candied sweet potatoes.

can·dle (kǎn'dl) n. 1. a. A solid, usually cylindrical mass of tallow, wax, or other fatty substance with an axially embedded wick that is burned to provide light. b. Something resembling this object in shape or use. 2. Abbr. c Physics.

a. An obsolete unit of luminous intensity, originally defined in terms of a wax candle with standard composition and equal to 1.02 candelas. Also called international candle b. See candela. — v. tr. can-dled, can-dling, can-dles. To examine (an egg) for freshness or fertility by holding it before a bright light. [Middle English candel, from Old English, and from Anglo-Norman candele both from Latin candēla, from candēre, to shine. See kand- in Appendix.] —can'dler n.

can-dle-ber-ry (kăn'dl-běr'ē) n. 1. Any of certain bayberries, the wax myrtle, or the fruit of these plants. 2. See candlenut.

can-dle-fish (kăn'dl-fish') n. pl. candlefish or can-dle-fish-es. An oily, edible fish (Thaleichthys pacificus) of northern Pacific waters, formerly dried and used as a torch by Native Americans. Also called eulachon can-dle-hold-er (kăn'dl-hōl'dər) n. A candlestick.

can-dle-light (kăn'dl-līt') n. 1. Illumination from a candle or candles.

2. Dusk; twilight.

Can-dle-mas (kăn'dl-məs) n. 1. A Christian feast commemorating the purification of the Virgin Mary and the presentation of the infant Jesus in the temple.

2. February 2, the day on which this feast is observed. [Middle English candelmasse, from Old English candelmasse: candel, candle; see CANDLE + mæsse, mass (from the blessing of candles at the feast); see MASS.]

can-dle-nut (kăn'dl-nŭt') n. 1. A tropical southeast Asian tree (Aleurites moluccana) bearing nutlike seeds that are used to make candles and yield a drying oil used in paints, varnishes, lacquer, and soft soap. 2. The seed of this tree. Also called candleberry can-dle-pin (kăn'dl-pīn') n. Sports. 1. A slender bowling pin used in a variation of the game of tenpins. 2. Also candlepins. (used with a sing. verb). A bowling game using slender pins and a ball smaller than that used in tenpins.

can-dle-pow-er (kăn'dl-pou'ər) n. Abbr. cp Luminous intensity expressed in candelas.

can-dle-snuff-er (kăn'dl-snŭf'ər) n. An implement with a bell-shaped cup and often a long, slender handle, used to extinguish the flame of a candle.

can-dle-stick (kăn'dl-stīk') n. A holder with a cup or spike for a candle.

can-dle-wick (kăn'dl-wīk') n. 1. The wick of a candle. 2. a. A soft, heavy cotton thread similar to that used to make wicks for candles. b. Embroidery made of tufts of this thread.

can-dle-wood (kăn'dl-wōd') n. 1. Any of several trees or shrubs yielding a usually resinous wood. 2. The wood of such a plant, burned for light or fuel.

3. The ocotillo.

can-do (kăn'dō) adj. Informal. Marked by a willingness to tackle a job and get it done: “the city’s indomitable optimism and can-do spirit” (Christian Science Monitor).

Can-dolle (kän-dôl'), Augustin Pyrame de. 1778-1841. Swiss botanist who introduced the method of classifying plants by structure.

can-dor (kän'dər) n. 1. Frankness or sincerity of expression; openness.

2. Freedom from prejudice; impartiality. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin, from candēre, to shine. See kand- in Appendix.]

C & W or C and W abbr. Country and western.

can-dy (kän'dē) n. pl. can-dies. 1. A rich, sweet confection made with sugar and often flavored or combined with fruits or nuts. 2. A piece of such a confection. — v. can-died, can-dy-ing, can-dies. — v. tr. 1. To reduce to sugar crystals. 2. To cook, preserve, saturate, or coat with sugar or syrup. 3. To make pleasant or agreeable; sweeten. — v. intr. 1. To become crystallized into sugar. 2. To become coated with sugar or syrup. [Middle English candi, crystallized cane sugar, short for sugre-candi, translation of Old French sucre candi, and Old Italian zucchero candi both from Arabic sukkar qandīy: sukkar, sugar; see SUGAR + qandīy, candied (from qand, cane sugar, probably from Dravidian kaṇṭu, lump).]

can-dy-ass or candy ass (kän'dē-äs') n. Vulgar Slang. A sissy; a wimp. — can'dy-ass' adj.

candy striper (kän'dē strī'pər) n. A volunteer worker in a hospital. [From the resemblance of the volunteer's red and white striped uniform to a candy cane.]

can-dy-tuft (kän'dē-tuft') n. Any of several plants of the genus Iberis in the mustard family, native to Europe and the Mediterranean region and widely cultivated for their showy clusters of white, pink, crimson, or purple flowers. [Obsolete Candy (variant of Candia¹) + TUFT.]

cane (kān) n. 1. a. A slender, strong but often flexible stem, as of certain bamboos, reeds, or rattans. b. A plant having such a stem. c. Such stems or strips of such stems used for wickerwork or baskets. 2. A bamboo (Arundinaria gigantea) native to the southeast United States, having long stiff stems and often forming canebrakes. 3. The stem of a raspberry, blackberry, certain roses, or similar plants. 4. Sugar cane. 5. A stick used as an aid in walking or carried as an accessory. 6. A rod used for flogging. — v. tr. caned, can-ing, canes. 1. To make, supply, or repair with flexible woody material. 2. To hit or beat with a rod. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin canna, small reed, from Greek kanna, of Semitic origin.] — can'er n.

cane-brake (kān'brāk') n. A dense thicket of cane.

ca-nes-cent (kə-nēs'ənt) adj. 1. Biology. Covered with short, fine whitish or grayish hairs or down; hoary. 2. Turning white or grayish. [Latin cānēscēns, cānēscēt- present participle of cānēscere inchoative of cānēre, to be white, from cānus, white. See kas- in Appendix.] — ca-nes'cence n.

cane sugar (kān shōōg'ər) n. Sucrose obtained from sugar cane.

Ca·nes Ve·nat·i·ci (kā'nēz vī-năt'ī-sī') n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Ursa Major and Boötes, under the handle of the Big Dipper. [canēs, pl. of canis, dog + vēnāticī, pl. of vēnāticus, hunting.]

Ca·net·ti (kā-nět'ē), Elias. 1905-1994. Bulgarian-born writer whose works, all written in German, include a novel, The Tower of Babel (1935), and Crowds and Power (1960), a study of mass psychology. He won the 1981 Nobel Prize for literature.

Ca·ney Fork (kā'nē fôrk) A river rising in central Tennessee and flowing about 232 km (144 mi) west then north to the Cumberland River.

can·field (kăn'fēld') n. Games. A form of solitaire. [After Richard Albert Canfield (1855-1914), American gambler.]

Can·field (kăn'fēld'), Cass. 1897-1986. American publisher and editor who encouraged and published several notable writers, including James Thurber and E.B. White.

cangue (kăng) n. A heavy wooden yoke borne on the shoulders and enclosing the neck and arms, formerly used in China for punishing petty criminals. [French, from Portuguese canga.]

Can·i·a·pis·cau also Kan·i·a·pis·kau (kăn'ē-ə-pīs'kō, -kou) A river of northern Quebec, Canada, rising in Lake Caniapiscou (or Lake Kaniapiskau) and flowing about 925 km (575 mi) generally northward to the Larch River.

ca·nic·u·lar (kā-nīk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Of or relating to Sirius or Procyon. 2. Of or relating to the dog days. [Late Latin caniculāris, of Sirius, from Latin Canicula, Sirius, diminutive of canis, dog. See kwon- in Appendix.]

ca·nid (kăn'id, kā'nīd) n. Any of various widely distributed carnivorous mammals of the family Canidae, which includes the foxes, wolves, dogs, jackals, and coyotes. [From New Latin Canidae, from Canis, type genus (from Latin). See CANINE.]

Ca·niff (kā'nīf), Milton Arthur. 1907-1988. American cartoonist noted for the adventure comic strips Terry and the Pirates (1934-1946) and Steve Canyon (1947-1988).

ca·nine (kā'nīn) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the canids. 2. Of, relating to, or being one of the pointed conical teeth located between the incisors and the first bicuspid. — n. 1. An animal of the family Canidae, especially a dog. 2. One of the pointed, conical teeth located between the incisors and the first bicuspid. In this sense, also called cuspid [Latin canīnus, from canis, dog. See kwon- in Appendix.]

canine distemper (kā'nīn dīs-tēm'pər) n. See distemper¹ (n., sense 1a).

Ca·nis Ma·jor (kā'nīs mā'jər, kăn'īs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Puppis and Lepus, containing the star Sirius. [Latin canis, dog + major, larger.]

Canis Mi·nor (kā'nīs mī'nər) n. A constellation in the equatorial region of the Southern Hemisphere near Hydra and Monoceros, containing the star Procyon. [Latin canis, dog + minor, smaller.]

can·is·tel (kǎn'ī-stəl') n. 1. A tree (Pouteria campechiana), native to Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean and having very sweet oval fruit with a musky odor. 2. The fruit of this tree. Also called eggfruit [American Spanish.]

can·is·ter (kǎn'ī-stər) n. 1. A box or can of thin metal or plastic used for holding dry cooking ingredients, such as flour, sugar, or tea. 2. A metallic cylinder packed with shot that are scattered when the cylinder is fired; case shot. 3. The part of a gas mask that contains the filter for removing toxic agents from the air. [Latin canistrum, basket, from Greek kanastron, from kanna, reed. See CANE.]

can·ker (kǎng'kər) n. 1. Ulceration of the mouth and lips. 2. An inflammation or infection of the ear and auditory canal, especially in dogs and cats. 3. A condition in horses similar to but more advanced than thrush. 4. a. A localized diseased or necrotic area on a plant part, especially on a trunk, branch, or twig of a woody plant, usually caused by fungi or bacteria. b. Any of several diseases of plants characterized by the presence of such lesions. 5. A source of spreading corruption or decay. — v. can·kered, can·ker·ing, can·kers. — v. tr. 1. To attack or infect with canker. 2. To infect with corruption or decay. — v. intr. To become infected with or as if with canker. [Middle English, from Old English cancer, and from Old French cancre both from Latin cancer. See kar- in Appendix.]

canker brake (kǎng'kər brāk) n. See Christmas fern.

can·ker·ous (kǎng'kər-əs) adj. 1. Marked by or infected with canker; ulcerous. 2. Causing canker; ulcerating.

can·ker·root (kǎng'kər-rōot', -rōot') n. The goldthread.

canker sore (kǎng'kər sōr) n. A small, painful ulcer or sore, usually of the mouth.

can·ker·worm (kǎng'kər-wūrm') n. The larva of either of two moths (Paleacrita vernata or Alsophila pometaria), destructive to fruit and shade trees.

can·na (kǎn'ə) n. Any of various perennial tropical herbs of the genus Canna, having clusters of large, showy flowers and including an edible variety. [Latin canna, cane. See CANE.]

can·na·bi·di·ol (kǎn'ə-bī-dī'ōl', -ōl', -ōl') n. A chemical constituent of cannabis, C₂₁H₂₈(OH)₂. [CANNABI(S) + DI⁻¹ + -OL¹.]

can·na·bin (kǎn'ə-bīn) n. A resinous material extracted from cannabis. [CANNAB(IS) + -IN.]

can·na·bis (kǎn'ə-bīs) n. 1. A tall, annual dioecious plant (Cannabis sativa), native to central Asia and having alternate, palmately divided leaves and tough bast fibers. 2. Any of several mildly euphoriant, intoxicating hallucinogenic drugs, such as ganja, hashish, or marijuana, prepared from various parts of this plant. [Latin, from Greek kannabis.] —can'na·bic (-bĭk) adj.

Can·nae (kǎn'ē) An ancient town of southeast Italy where Carthaginians under Hannibal defeated the Romans in 216 B.C. canned (kǎnd) adj. 1. Preserved and sealed in a can or jar. 2. Informal. Recorded or taped for repeated use on television or radio: canned laughter.

3. Informal. a. Used repeatedly with little or no change: a canned speech.

b. Totally unoriginal; devoid of individuality: “Most [soundtrack albums] contain homogenized dance tracks that provide little more than canned excitement” (Boston Globe).

Canned Heat (kǎnd hēt) A trademark used for solid alcohol or paraffin fuel that is packed in small cans and used to heat food.

can·nel (kǎn'əl) n. A bituminous coal that burns brightly with much smoke. [Perhaps short for cannel coal, dialectal variant of candle coal (from its bright flame).]

can·nel·lo·ni (kǎn'ə-lō'nē) n. Large-sized tubes of pasta stuffed with meat or cheese and baked in a tomato or cream sauce. [Italian, plural of cannellone, tubular soup noodle, from cannello, small tube, diminutive of canna, reed, from Latin. See CANE.]

can·ne·lure (kǎn'ə-lōr') n. A groove around the cylinder of a bullet. [French, alteration of cannelature, from Old Italian cannellatura, from cannello, small tube. See CANNELLONI.]

can·ner·y (kǎn'ə-rē) n. pl. can·ner·ies. A factory where fish, vegetables, or other foods are canned.

Cannes (kǎn, kǎnz, kǎn) A city of southeast France on the Mediterranean Sea near Nice. It is a fashionable resort and the site of an annual international film festival. Population, 72,259.

can·ni·bal (kǎn'ə-bəl) n. 1. A person who eats the flesh of other human beings. 2. An animal that feeds on others of its own kind. [From Spanish Canĭbalis, name (as recorded by Christopher Columbus) of the man-eating Caribs of Cuba and Haiti, variant of carĭbalis, from Arawak caniba, carib, an ethnic name.]

—can'ni·bal·ism n. —can'ni·bal·is'tic adj.

can·ni·bal·ize (kǎn'ə-bə-lĭz') v. tr. can·ni·bal·ized, can·ni·bal·iz·ing, can·ni·bal·iz·es. 1. To remove serviceable parts from (damaged airplanes, for example) for use in the repair of other equipment of the same kind. 2. To deprive of vital elements or resources, such as personnel, equipment, or funding, for use elsewhere: “It becomes necessary to cannibalize unsuccessful projects to fund those which can proceed” (Daily Report for Executives). 3. To draw on as a major source: “cannibalizes the lives of his wife and friends for his second-rate novels” (Washington Post). —can'ni·bal·i·za'tion (-bə-lĭ-zā'shən) n.

can·ni·kin (kǎn'ī-kĭn) n. 1. A small can or cup. 2. A small wooden bucket.

[Dutch kanneken (from Middle Dutch cannekijn, diminutive of canne, can), and Flemish cannikin, diminutive of cann, can.]

Can·ning (kǎn'ĭng), Earl Charles John. 1812-1862. British colonial administrator who was governor-general (1856-1858) and first viceroy (1858-1862) of India.

Can·ning (kǎn'ĭng), George. 1770-1827. British politician who served as foreign secretary (1807-1809 and 1822-1827) and prime minister (1827).

Can·ning (kǎn'ĭng), Sir Stratford First Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe. 1786-1880. British diplomat to the Ottoman court who strongly influenced Turkish policy in the mid-1800's.

Can·nock (kǎn'ək) An urban district of west-central England north-northwest of Birmingham. It is the center of a mining area based at Cannock Chase, a nearby moorland. Population, 84,900.

can·no·li (kə-nō'lĕ, kǎ-) n. A fried pastry roll with a sweet, creamy filling. [Italian, pl. of cannolo, tube diminutive of canna, reed. See CANNELLONI.]

can·non (kǎn'ən) n. pl. cannon or can·nons. Abbr. can. 1. A large, mounted weapon that fires heavy projectiles. Cannon include guns, howitzers, and mortars. 2. The loop at the top of a bell by which it is hung. 3. A round bit for a horse. 4. Zoology. The section of the lower leg in some hooved mammals between the hock or knee and the fetlock, containing the cannon bone. 5. Chiefly British. A carom made in billiards. — v. can·noned, can·non·ing, can·nons. — v. tr. 1. To bombard with cannon. 2. Chiefly British. To cause to carom in billiards. — v. intr. 1. To fire cannon. 2. Chiefly British. To make a carom in billiards. [Middle English canon, from Old French, from Old Italian cannone, augmentative of canna, tube, from Latin, reed. See CANE.]

Can·non (kǎn'ən), Annie Jump. 1863-1941. American astronomer noted for her work on classifying stellar spectra.

Can·non (kǎn'ən), Joseph Gurney. Known as "Uncle Joe." 1836-1926. American politician who as Republican speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives (1903-1911) was known for his strongly partisan and autocratic use of authority.

can·non·ade (kǎn'ə-nād') v. can·non·ad·ed, can·non·ad·ing, can·non·ades. — v. tr. To assault with heavy artillery fire. — v. intr. To deliver heavy artillery fire. — n. 1. An extended, usually heavy discharge of artillery. 2. A harsh verbal or physical attack. [From French canonade, discharge of artillery, from Italian cannonata, from cannone, cannon, from Old Italian. See CANNON.]

can·non·ball also cannon ball (kǎn'ən-bôl') n. 1. A round projectile fired from a cannon. 2. A jump into water made with the arms grasping the upraised knees. 3. Something, such as a fast train, moving with great speed. 4. Sports. A fast low serve in tennis. — v. intr. can·non·balled, can·non·ball·ing, can·non·balls. 1. To travel with great speed. 2. To jump into water while grasping one's upraised knees with one's arms.

cannonball tree (kǎn'ən-bôl' trē) n. A South American tree (Couroupita guianensis) bearing globose, woody fruits on its trunk and main branches. The hard shells of the fruits are used to make containers and utensils.

cannon bone (kǎn'ən bôn) n. A supporting bone of the leg in some hoofed mammals, analogous to the metacarpus of the hand or the metatarsus of the foot in human beings.

can·non·eer (kǎn'ə-nîr') n. A soldier in the artillery; a gunner.

cannon fodder (kǎn'ən fôd'ər) n. Soldiers, sailors, or other military personnel regarded as likely to be killed or wounded in combat.

can·non·ry (kǎn'ən-rē) n. pl. can·non·ries. 1. A battery of cannons; artillery. 2. Artillery fire.

can·not (kǎn'ôt, kə-nô't', kǎ-) v. aux. The negative form of can¹.

USAGE NOTE: The idiomatic phrase cannot but has sometimes been criticized as a double negative, perhaps because it has been confused with can but. The but of cannot but, however, means “except,” as it does in phrases such as no one but, while the but of can but has the sense only, as it does in the sentence We had but a single bullet left. Both cannot but and can but are established as standard expressions. • The construction cannot help is used with a present participle to roughly the same effect as cannot but in a sentence such as We cannot help admiring his courage. But this construction is generally restricted to contexts in which a person is unable to affect an outcome that would normally be under his or her control. It would be more precise to say With all the public interest in the affair, the book cannot but attract the attention of reviewers (or... can but gain...) than to say the book cannot help attracting the attention of reviewers, which suggests that the book might have had a say in the matter. • The construction cannot help but probably arose as a blend of cannot help and cannot but; it has the meaning of the first and the syntax of the second: We cannot help but admire his courage. The construction has sometimes been criticized as a redundancy, but it is by now an established idiom with reputable precedent on its side. • The expression cannot (or can't) seem to has occasionally been criticized as illogical, and so it is. Brian can't seem to get angry does not mean “Brian is incapable of appearing to get angry,” as its syntax would seem to dictate; rather, it means “Brian appears to be unable to get angry.” But the idiom serves a useful purpose, since the syntax of English does not allow a logical equivalent like Brian seems to cannot...; and the cannot seem to construction is so widely used that it would be pedantic to object to it. See Usage Note at but. See Usage Note at care. See Usage Note at help.

can·nu·la also can·u·la (kǎn'yə-lə) n. pl. can·nu·las or can·nu·lae (-lē'). A flexible tube, usually containing a trocar at one end, that is inserted into a bodily cavity, duct, or vessel to drain fluid or administer a substance such as a medication. [Latin, diminutive of canna, reed. See CANE.]

can·nu·lar also can·u·lar (kǎn'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a tube; tubular.

can·nu·late also can·u·late (kǎn'yə-lāt') v. tr. can·nu·lat·ed, can·nu·lat·ing, can·nu·lates. To insert a cannula into (a bodily cavity, duct, or vessel), as for the drainage of fluid or the administration of medication. — adj. Tubular; hollow. — can'nu·la'tion n.

can·ny (kǎn'ē) adj. can·ni·er, can·ni·est. 1. Careful and shrewd, especially where one's own interests are concerned. 2. Cautious in spending money; frugal. 3. Scots. a. Steady, restrained, and gentle. b. Snug and quiet. [From CAN¹.] — can'ni·ly adv. — can'ni·ness n.

Ca·no·as (kə-nō'əs, kə-nô'äs) A city of southern Brazil, a suburb of Pôrto Alegre. Population, 213,999.

ca·noe (kə-nō'ə) Nautical. n. A light, slender boat that has pointed ends and is propelled by paddles. — v. ca·noed, ca·noe·ing, ca·noes. — v. tr. To carry or send by canoe. — v. intr. To travel in or propel a canoe. [French canoe, Spanish canoa (French, from Spanish) of Cariban origin.] — ca·noe'ist n.

canoe birch (kə-nō'ə bûrch) n. See paper birch.

can of worms (kǎn ũv wûrmz) n. pl. cans of worms. Informal. A source of unforeseen and troublesome complexity.

ca·no·la (kə-nō'lə) n. A rapeseed oil that is very low in erucic acid content. [Origin unknown.]

can·on¹ (kǎn'ən) n. Abbr. can. 1. An ecclesiastical law or code of laws established by a church council. 2. A secular law, rule, or code of law. 3. a. An established principle: the canons of polite society. b. A basis for judgment; a standard or criterion. 4. The books of the Bible officially accepted as Holy Scripture. 5. The works of a writer that have been accepted as authentic: the entire Sherlock Holmes canon. 6. Canon. The part of the Mass beginning after the Preface and Sanctus and ending just before the Lord's Prayer. 7. The calendar of saints accepted by the Roman Catholic Church. 8. Music. A composition or passage in which the same melody is repeated by one or more voices, overlapping in time in the same or a related key. [Middle English canoun, from Old English canon, and from Old French both from Latin canōn, rule, from Greek kanōn, measuring rod, rule.]

can·on² (kǎn'ən) n. 1. A member of a chapter of priests serving in a cathedral or collegiate church. 2. A member of certain religious communities living under a common rule and bound by vows. [Middle English canoun, from Norman

French canun, from Late Latin canōnicus, one living under a rule, from canōn, rule. See CANON¹.]

ca·ñon (kǎn'yən) n. Variant of canyon.

can·on·ess (kǎn'ə-nīs) n. A member of a religious community of women living under a common rule but not bound by vows.

ca·non·i·cal (kə-nōn'ī-kəl) also ca·non·ic (-īk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or required by canon law. 2. Of or appearing in the biblical canon. 3. Conforming to orthodox rules, as of procedure. 4. Of or belonging to a cathedral chapter. 5. Music. Having the form of a canon. —ca·non'ī·cal·ly adv. —can'on·ic'ī·ty (kǎn'ə-nīs'ī-tē) n.

canonical hours (kə-nōn'ī-kəl ourz) pl.n. Ecclesiastical. a. The times of day at which canon law prescribes certain prayers to be said. These times are matins with lauds, prime, tierce, sext, nones, vespers, and complin. b. The prayers said at these times.

ca·non·i·cals (kə-nōn'ī-kəlz) pl.n. The dress prescribed by canon for officiating clergy.

can·on·ist (kǎn'ə-nīst) n. A person specializing in canon law.
—can'on·is'tic, can'on·is'ti·cal adj.

can·on·ize (kǎn'ə-nīz') v. tr. can·on·ized, can·on·iz·ing, can·on·iz·es.

1. To declare (a deceased person) to be a saint and entitled to be fully honored as such. 2. To include in the biblical canon. 3. To approve as being within canon law. 4. To treat as sacred; glorify. —can'on·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.
—can'on·iz'er n.

canon law (kǎn'ən lô) n. The body of officially established rules governing the faith and practice of the members of a Christian church.

can·on·ry (kǎn'ən-rē) n. pl. can·on·ries. 1. The office or dignity of a canon. 2. Canons considered as a group.

ca·noo·dle (kə-nōōd'l) v. ca·noo·dled, ca·noo·dling, ca·noo·dles. Informal. — v. intr. To engage in caressing, petting, or lovemaking. — v. tr. To win over or convince by cajoling or flattering; wheedle: “his matchless ability to charm, bamboozle, or canoodle most of his political associates” (Timothy Garton Ash). [Of unknown origin; akin to English dialectal canoodle, donkey, fool, one who is foolish in love.]

Ca·no·pic or ca·no·pic (kə-nō'pīk, -nōp'īk) adj. Relating to or being an ancient Egyptian vase, urn, or jar used to hold the viscera of an embalmed body. [After Canopus¹.]

Ca·no·pus¹ (kə-nō'pəs) An ancient city of northern Egypt east of Alexandria. It was the site of a great temple honoring Serapis.

Ca·no·pus² (kə-nō'pəs) n. A star, 650 light-years from Earth, in the constellation Carina. It is the second-brightest star in the sky. [Latin, from Greek kanōpos, perhaps of Egyptian origin.]

can·o·py (kǎn'ə-pē) n. pl. can·o·pies. 1. A covering, usually of cloth, suspended over a throne or bed or held aloft on poles above an eminent person or a sacred object. 2. Architecture. An ornamental, rooflike projection over a niche, an altar, or a tomb. 3. A protective rooflike covering, often of canvas, mounted on a frame over a walkway or door. 4. A high, overarching covering, such as the sky: "I just look up at the stars and let the vastness of that black and twinkling canopy fill my soul" (Margaret Mason). 5. The uppermost layer in a forest, formed by the crowns of the trees. Also called crown canopy. 6. The transparent enclosure over the cockpit of an aircraft. 7. The part of a parachute that opens up to catch the air. — v. tr. can·o·pied, can·o·py·ing, can·o·pies. To cover with or as if with a canopy. [Middle English canape, from Medieval Latin canāpēum, mosquito net, from Latin cōnōpēum, from Greek kōnōpeion, bed with mosquito netting, from kōnōps, mosquito.]

ca·no·rous (kə-nōr'əs, -nōr'-, kǎn'ər-əs) adj. Richly melodious; tuneful: "Edward R. Murrow's canorous broadcasts of the blitz of London" (Newsweek). [From Latin canōrus, from canor, tune, from canere, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.] — ca·no'rous·ly adv. — ca·no'rous·ness n.

Ca·nos·sa (kə-nōs'ə, kǎ-nōs'sä) A village of north-central Italy in the Apennines. In January 1077 the Holy Roman emperor Henry IV did penance in the castle here to obtain a pardon from his excommunication by Pope Gregory VII.

Ca·no·va (kə-nō'və), Antonio. 1757-1822. Italian sculptor who was an important figure in the development of neoclassicism.

Can·so (kǎn'sō), Strait of. A narrow channel between Cape Breton Island and the northeast mainland of Nova Scotia, Canada.

canst (kǎnst) v. aux. Archaic. A second person singular present tense of can¹.

cant¹ (kǎnt) n. 1. Angular deviation from a vertical or horizontal plane or surface; an inclination or a slope. 2. A slanted or oblique surface. 3. a. A thrust or motion that tilts something. b. The tilt caused by such a thrust or motion.

4. An outer corner, as of a building. — v. cant·ed, cant·ing, cants. — v. tr. 1. To set at an oblique angle; tilt. 2. To give a slanting edge to; bevel. 3. To change the direction of suddenly. — v. intr. 1. To lean to one side; slant. 2. To take an oblique direction or course; swing around, as a ship. [Middle English, side, from Old North French, from Vulgar Latin cantus*, corner, from Latin canthus, rim of wheel, tire, of Celtic origin.]

cant² (kǎnt) n. 1. Monotonous talk filled with platitudes. 2. Hypocritically pious language. 3. The special vocabulary peculiar to the members of an underworld group; argot. 4. Whining speech, such as that used by beggars. 5. The special terminology understood among the members of a profession, discipline, or class but obscure to the general population; jargon. See Synonyms at dialect. — v. intr. cant·ed, cant·ing, cants. 1. To speak tediously or sententiously; moralize. 2. To speak in argot or jargon. 3. To speak in a whining, pleading tone.

[Anglo-Norman cant, song, singing, from canter, to sing, from Latin cantāre. See kan- in Appendix.] —cant'ing·ly adv. —cant'ing·ness n.

Cant. abbr. Bible. Canticle of Canticles.

can't (kǎnt) Cannot.

can·ta·bi·le (kǎn-tǎ'бі-lā') Music. adv. & adj. In a smooth, lyrical, flowing style. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. A cantabile passage or movement. [Italian, from Late Latin cantābilis, worthy to be sung, from Latin cantāre, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.]

Can·ta·bri·an Mountains (kǎn-tǎ'brē-ən moun'tənz) A range of northern Spain extending about 483 km (300 mi) along the coast of the Bay of Biscay from the Pyrenees to Cape Finisterre. It rises to 2,649.8 m (8,688 ft) at Torre de Cerredo.

Can·ta·brig·i·an (kǎn'tǎ-brīj'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to Cambridge, England, or Cambridge, Massachusetts. 2. Of or relating to Cambridge University. — n. 1. A native or resident of Cambridge, England, or Cambridge, Massachusetts. 2. A student or graduate of Cambridge University. [From Medieval Latin Cantabrigia, Cambridge, England.]

can·ta·la (kǎn-tǎ'lə) n. 1. A species of agave (Agave cantula) cultivated chiefly in warm regions of the Old World for its leaf fibers. 2. The fiber of this plant, used for twine, rope, and nets. [Origin unknown.]

can·ta·loupe also can·ta·loup (kǎn'tl-ōp') n. 1. A variety of melon (Cucumis melo var. reticulatus) having a tan rind with netlike ridges and a sweet, fragrant orange flesh. 2. Any of several other related or similar melons. [French cantaloup, perhaps from Italian cantalupo (from Cantalupo, a former papal villa near Rome), or from Cantaloup, a village of southern France.]

can·tan·ker·ous (kǎn-tǎng'kər-əs) adj. 1. Ill-tempered and quarrelsome; disagreeable. 2. Difficult to handle: “had to use liquid helium, which is supercold, costly and cantankerous” (Boston Globe). [Perhaps from Middle English contek, dissension (influenced by words such as RANCOROUS, CANKEROUS), from Anglo-Norman contec, possibly from Latin contāctus, past participle of contingere, to touch. See CONTACT.] —can·tan'ker·ous·ly adv. —can·tan'ker·ous·ness n.

can·ta·ta (kǎn-tǎ'tǎ) n. Music. A vocal and instrumental piece composed of choruses, solos, and recitatives. [Italian (aria) cantata, sung (aria), feminine past participle of cantare, to sing, from Latin cantāre. See kan- in Appendix.]

can·teen (kǎn-tēn') n. 1. a. A snack bar or small cafeteria, as on a military installation. b. A bar or small general store formerly established for the patronage of soldiers. 2. A recreation hall or social club where refreshments are available. 3. A temporary or mobile eating place, especially one set up in an emergency. 4. A flask for carrying drinking water, as on a hike. 5. a. A box with compartments for carrying cooking gear and eating utensils. b. A soldier's mess kit. 6. Chiefly British. A box used to store silverware. [French cantine, from Italian cantina, wine cellar.]

can·ter (kǎn'tər) n. A smooth gait, especially of a horse, that is slower than a gallop but faster than a trot. — v. can·tered, can·ter·ing, can·ters. — v. intr. 1. To ride a horse at a canter. 2. To go or move at a canter. — v. tr. To cause (a horse) to go at a canter. [Ultimately from phrases such as Canterbury gallop, after Canterbury, England, toward which pilgrims rode at an easy pace.]

WORD HISTORY: Most of those who have majored in English literature, and many more besides, know that Chaucer's Canterbury Tales were told by a group of pilgrims on their way to Canterbury to visit the shrine of England's famous martyr Thomas à Becket. Many pilgrims other than Chaucer's visited Canterbury on horse, and phrases such as Canterbury gallop, Canterbury pace, and Canterbury trot described the easy gait at which they rode to their destination. The first recorded instance of one of these phrases, Canterbury pace, is found in a work published before 1636. However, in a work written in 1631 we find a shortened form, the noun Canterbury, meaning "a canter," and later, in 1673, the verb Canterbury, meaning "to canter." This verb, or perhaps the noun, was further shortened, giving us the verb canter, first recorded in 1706, and the noun canter, first recorded in 1755.

Can·ter·bur·y (kǎn'tər-bĕr'ē, -brē, -tə-) 1. A city of southeast Australia, a suburb of Sydney. Population, 128,000. 2. A borough of southeast England on the Stour River east-southeast of London. Canterbury Cathedral (11th-16th century) is the seat of the archbishop and primate of the Anglican Communion. Built on the site of an abbey founded by Saint Augustine c. 600, it was the scene of the murder of Thomas à Becket (1170). Population, 36,000.

Canterbury bells (kǎn'tər-bĕr'ē ĭr'lənd) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A European biennial herb (Campanula medium) widely cultivated for its showy, bell-shaped, blue, pink, or white flowers. [From the association of the flowers with the bells on the horses of Canterbury pilgrims.]

can·tha·ris (kǎn'thər-ĭs) n. pl. can·thar·i·des (kǎn-thăr'ĭ-dĕz'). 1. A brilliant green blister beetle (Lytta vesicatoria or Cantharis vesicatoria) of central and southern Europe. 2. cantharides. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A toxic preparation of the crushed, dried bodies of this beetle, formerly used as a counterirritant for skin blisters and as an aphrodisiac. Also called Spanish fly [Latin cantharis, cantharid-, from Greek kantharis, from kantharos.]

can·thi (kǎn'thī') n. Plural of canthus.

can·thi·tis (kǎn-thī'tis) n. Inflammation of the canthus.

cant hook (kǎnt hōök) n. A wooden lever with a movable metal hook near one end, used for handling logs. It is similar to a peavey but has a blunt tip, often with teeth. [From CANT¹.]

can·thus (kǎn'thəs) n. pl. can·thi (-thī'). The angle formed by the meeting of the upper and lower eyelids at either side of the eye. [Late Latin, from Greek kanthos.]

can·ti·cle (kǎn'tī-kəl) n. 1. Music. A song or chant, especially a nonmetrical hymn with words taken from a biblical text. 2. Canticles. Bible. The Song of Songs. [Middle English, from Latin canticulum, diminutive of cantus, song from past participle of canere, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.]

Canticle of Can·ti·cles (kǎn'tī-kəl üv kǎn'tī-kəlz) n. Abbr. Cant. Bible. The Song of Songs.

Can·ti·gny (kǎn-tē-nyē') A village of northern France south of Amiens. It was the site of the first U.S. offensive (May 1918) in World War I.

can·ti·le·na (kǎn'tl-ē'nə) n. Music. A sustained, smooth-flowing melodic line. [Italian, from Latin cantilēna, song, from cantus. See CANTICLE.]

can·ti·le·ver (kǎn'tl-ē'vər, -ēv'ər) n. 1. A projecting structure, such as a beam, that is supported at only one end. 2. A member, such as a beam, that projects beyond a fulcrum and is supported by a balancing member or a downward force behind the fulcrum. 3. A bracket or block supporting a balcony or cornice. — v. can·ti·le·vered, can·ti·le·ver·ing, can·ti·le·vers. — v. tr. To construct as or in the manner of a cantilever. — v. intr. To extend outward as or in the manner of a cantilever. [Perhaps CANT¹ + LEVER.] cantilever bridge (kǎn'tl-ē'vər brīj) n. A bridge formed by two projecting beams or trusses that are joined in the center by a connecting member and are supported on piers and anchored by counterbalancing members.

can·til·late (kǎn'tl-āt') v. tr. intr. can·ti·lat·ed, can·ti·lat·ing, can·ti·lates. To chant or recite in a musical monotone. [Latin cantilāre, cantilāt-, to sing, from cantāre, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.] — can'til·la'tion n.

can·ti·na (kǎn-tē'nə) n. Southwestern U.S. A bar that serves liquor. [Spanish, canteen, from Italian, wine cellar.]

can·tle (kǎn'tl) n. 1. The raised rear part of a saddle. 2. A corner, segment, or portion; a piece: a cantle of land. [Middle English cantel, corner, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cantellus, from Vulgar Latin cantus*. See CANT¹.]

can·to (kǎn'tō) n. pl. can·tos. Abbr. can. One of the principal divisions of a long poem. [Italian, from Latin cantus, song. See CANTICLE.]

can·ton (kǎn'tən, -tōn') n. 1. a. A small territorial division of a country, especially one of the states of Switzerland. b. A subdivision of an arrondissement in France. 2. Heraldry. A small, square division of a shield, usually in the upper right corner. 3. A usually rectangular division of a flag, occupying the upper corner next to the staff. [French, from Old French, from Old Italian cantone, augmentative of canto, corner, from Vulgar Latin cantus*. See CANT¹.] —can'ton-al (kăn'tə-nəl, kăn-tŏn'əl) adj.

Can·ton (kăn'tən) 1. A town of eastern Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 18,530. 2. A city of northeast Ohio south-southeast of Akron. It was the home of President William McKinley. Population, 84,161. 3. (kăn'tŏn', kăn'tŏn') See Guangzhou.

Can·ton crepe (kăn'tŏn' krăp) n. A soft, silk or rayon fabric with a finely crinkled texture, similar to but heavier than crêpe de Chine. [After Canton (Guangzhou), China.]

Can·ton·ese (kăn'tə-nēz', -nēs') n. The dialect of Chinese spoken in and around Guangzhou (formerly Canton), China. —Can'ton·ese' adj.

Can·ton flannel (kăn'tŏn' flăn'əl) n. Flannelette. [After Canton (Guangzhou), China.]

Can·ton Island (kăn'tən ī'lənd) A coral atoll of the Phoenix Islands in the central Pacific Ocean southwest of Honolulu, Hawaii. An important aviation way station, it was placed under Anglo-American control in 1939.

can·ton·ment (kăn-tŏn'mənt, -tŏn'-) n. 1. a. A group of temporary billets for troops. b. Assignment of troops to temporary quarters. 2. A permanent military installation in India. [From CANTON, to quarter soldiers.]

Can·ton porcelain (kăn'tŏn' pŏr'sə-lĭn) n. Porcelain having a blue or white underglaze, decorated in the enameling workshops of Canton (now Guangzhou) and exported from China during the 18th and early 19th centuries. Also called Chinese export porcelain [After Canton (Guangzhou), China.]

Can·ton River (kăn'tŏn' rĭv'ər, kăn'tŏn') See Zhu Jiang.

can·tor (kăn'tər) n. 1. The Jewish religious official who leads the musical part of a service. 2. The person who leads a church choir or congregation in singing; a precentor. [Latin, singer, from canere, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.]

—can·to'ri-al (kăn-tŏr'ĭ-əl, -tŏr'-) adj.

Can·tor (kăn'tər), Eddie. 1892-1964. American entertainer known especially for his energetic, goggle-eyed performances in vaudeville and Broadway reviews.

can·trip (kăn'trĭp) n. 1. Scots. A magic spell; a witch's trick. 2. Chiefly British. A deceptive move; a sham. [Origin unknown.]

can·tus fir·mus (kăn'təs fĭr'məs, fŭr'-) n. Music. A plainsong melody serving as the basis of a polyphonic composition by the addition of contrapuntal voices, as in 15th-century polyphony. [Medieval Latin : Latin cantus, song + Latin fir-mus, fixed.]

Ca·nuck (kə-nŭk') n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Canadian, especially a French Canadian. [Probably alteration of CANADIAN.]

can·u·la (kăn'yə-lə) n. Variant of cannula.

can·u·lar (kăn'yə-lər) adj. Variant of cannular.

can·u·late (kăn'yə-lăt') v. & adj. Variant of cannulate.

Ca·nute also Cnut or Knut (kə-nōōt', -nyōōt'), Known as "the Great." 994?-1035. King of England (1016-1035), Denmark (1018-1035), and Norway (1028-1035) whose reign, at first brutal, was later marked by wisdom and temperance. He is the subject of many legends.

can·vas (kän'vəs) n. 1. A heavy, coarse, closely woven fabric of cotton, hemp, or flax, used for tents and sails. 2. a. A piece of such fabric on which a painting, especially an oil painting, is executed. b. A painting executed on such fabric. 3. A fabric of coarse open weave, used as a foundation for needlework. 4. The background against which events unfold, as in a historical narrative: a grim portrait of despair against the bright canvas of the postwar economy. 5. Nautical. A sail or set of sails. 6. a. A tent or group of tents. b. A circus tent. 7. Sports. The floor of a ring in which boxing or wrestling takes place. —idiom. under canvas. 1. Nautical. With sails spread. 2. In a tent or tents. [Middle English canavas, from Old French, and from Medieval Latin canavāsium both ultimately from Latin cannabis, hemp. See CANNABIS.]

can·vas·back (kän'vəs-bāk') n. A North American wild duck (Aythya valisineria) having a reddish-brown head and neck and a whitish back.

canvas duck (kän'vəs dük) n. A fabric made of lightweight cotton or linen.

can·vass (kän'vəs) v. can·vassed, can·vass·ing, can·vass·es. — v. tr.

1. To examine carefully or discuss thoroughly; scrutinize: "The evidence had been repeatedly canvassed in American courts" (Anthony Lewis). 2. a. To go through (a region) or go to (persons) to solicit votes or orders. b. To conduct a survey of (public opinion); poll. — v. intr. 1. To make a thorough examination or conduct a detailed discussion. 2. To solicit voters, orders, or opinions. — n. 1. An examination or discussion. 2. A solicitation of votes or orders. 3. A survey of public opinion. [From obsolete canvass, to toss in a canvas sheet as punishment, from CANVAS.] —can'vass·er n.

can·yon also ca·ñon (kän'yən) n. A narrow chasm with steep cliff walls, cut into the earth by running water; a gorge. [Spanish cañon, augmentative of caña, tube, cane, from Latin canna, reed, from Greek kanna. See CANE.]

can·zo·ne (kän-zō'nē, kănt-sô'nē) n. pl. can·zo·nes (-nēz, -nāz) or can·zo·ni (-nē). 1. A medieval Italian or Provençal lyric of varying stanzaic form, usually with a concluding envoy. 2. Music. A polyphonic song evolving from this form of poetry and resembling the madrigal in style. [Italian, from Latin cantiō, cantiōn-, song, from cantus, past participle of canere, to sing. See kan- in Appendix.]

can·zo·net (kän'zə-nēt') n. Music. A short, lighthearted air or song. [From Italian canzonetta, diminutive of canzone. See CANZONE.]

caou·tchouc (kou'chōök', -chōök') n. See rubber¹ (n., sense 1). [French, probably from Spanish caucho, from Tupi cau-ucha.]

cap¹ (kăp) n. 1. A usually soft and close-fitting head covering, either having no brim or with a visor. 2. a. A special head covering worn to indicate rank, occupation, or membership in a particular group: a cardinal's cap; a sailor's cap. b. An academic mortarboard. Used especially in the phrase cap and gown. 3. a. A protective cover or seal, especially one that closes off an end or a tip: a bottle cap; a 35-millimeter lens cap. b. A crown for covering or sealing a tooth. c. A tread for a worn pneumatic tire. d. A fitted covering used to seal a well or large pipe. 4. A summit or top, as of a mountain. 5. An upper limit; a ceiling: placed a cap on mortgage rates. 6. Architecture. The capital of a column. 7. Botany. a. The top part, or pileus, of a mushroom. b. A calyptra. 8. a. A percussion cap. b. A small explosive charge enclosed in paper for use in a toy gun. 9. Any of several sizes of writing paper, such as foolscap. — v. tr. capped, cap-ping, caps.

1. To cover, protect, or seal with a cap. 2. To award a special cap to as a sign of rank or achievement: capped the new women nurses at graduation. 3. To lie over or on top of; cover: hills capped with snow. 4. To apply the finishing touch to; complete: cap a meal with dessert. 5. To follow with something better; surpass or outdo: capped his last trick with a disappearing act that brought the audience to its feet. 6. To set an upper limit on: decided to cap cost-of-living increases. — idioms. cap in hand. Respectfully or humbly; unpretentiously. set (one's) cap for. To attempt to attract and win as a mate. [Middle English cappe, from Old English cæppe, from Late Latin cappa.]

cap² (kăp) Informal. n. A capital letter. — v. tr. capped, cap-ping, caps. To capitalize. [Shortened form of CAPITAL¹.]

CAP abbr. Civil Air Patrol.

cap. abbr. 1. Capacity. 2. Capital.

ca·pa·bil·i·ty (kă'pə-bīl'ī-tē) n. pl. ca·pa·bil·i·ties. 1. The quality of being capable; ability. 2. Often capabilities. A talent or ability that has potential for development or use: a student of great capabilities. 3. The capacity to be used, treated, or developed for a specific purpose: nuclear capability.

ca·pa·ble (kă'pə-bəl) adj. 1. Having capacity or ability; efficient and able: a capable administrator. 2. Having the ability required for a specific task or accomplishment; qualified: capable of winning. 3. Having the inclination or disposition: capable of violence. 4. Susceptible; permitting: an error capable of remedy. [Late Latin capābilis, from capere, to take. See kap- in Appendix.]

—ca'pa·ble·ness n. —ca'pa·bly adv.

ca·pa·cious (kə-pă'shəs) adj. Capable of containing a large quantity; spacious or roomy. See Synonyms at spacious. [From Latin capāx, capāc-, from capere, to take. See kap- in Appendix.] —ca·pa'cious·ly adv. —ca·pa'cious·ness n.

ca·pac·i·tance (kə-päs'ī-təns) n. 1. Symbol C The ratio of charge to potential on an electrically charged, isolated conductor. 2. Symbol C The ratio of the electric charge transferred from one to the other of a pair of conductors to the resulting potential difference between them. 3. a. The property of a circuit element that permits it to store charge. b. The part of the circuit exhibiting capacitance.

[CAPACIT(Y) + -ANCE.] —ca·pac/i·tive (-tĭv) adj. —ca·pac/i·tive·ly adv.

ca·pac·i·tate (kə-päs'ĭ-tāt') v. tr. ca·pac·i·tat·ed, ca·pac·i·tat·ing, ca·pac·i·tates. 1. To render fit or make qualified; enable. 2. Biology. To cause (spermatozoa) to undergo the physical changes needed to penetrate and fertilize an egg. [CAPACIT(Y) + -ATE¹.] —ca·pac/i·ta'tion n.

ca·pac·i·tor (kə-päs'ĭ-tər) n. An electric circuit element used to store charge temporarily, consisting in general of two metallic plates separated and insulated from each other by a dielectric. Also called condenser ca·pac·i·ty (kə-päs'ĭ-tē) n. pl. ca·pac·i·ties. Abbr. c., C., cap. 1. a. The ability to receive, hold, or absorb. b. A measure of this ability; volume. 2. The maximum amount that can be contained: a trunk filled to capacity. 3. a. Ability to perform or produce; capability. b. The maximum or optimum amount that can be produced: factories operating below capacity. 4. The power to learn or retain knowledge; mental ability. 5. Innate potential for growth, development, or accomplishment; faculty. See Synonyms at ability. 6. The quality of being suitable for or receptive to specified treatment: the capacity of elastic to be stretched. 7. The position in which one functions; role: in your capacity as sales manager. 8. Legal qualification or authority: the capacity to make an arrest. 9. Electricity. Capacitance. — adj. Filling a space with the most it can hold: a capacity crowd at the concert. [Middle English capacite, from Old French, from Latin capācītās, from capāx, capāc-, spacious. See CAPACIOUS.]

ca·par·i·son (kə-pär'ĭ-sən) n. 1. An ornamental covering for a horse or for its saddle or harness; trappings. 2. Richly ornamented clothing; finery. — v. tr. ca·par·i·soned, ca·par·i·son·ing, ca·par·i·sons. 1. To outfit (a horse) with an ornamental covering. 2. To dress (another) in rich clothing. [Obsolete French caparasson, from Old Spanish caparazón, from Medieval Latin cappa, cloak. See CAPE¹.]

Cap de la Ma·de·leine or Cap-de-la-Ma·de·leine (kăp' də lä mäd-lăn', -lĕn') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River northeast of Montreal. It is a manufacturing center with a shrine that is an important pilgrimage site. Population, 32,626.

cape¹ (kăp) n. A sleeveless outer garment fastened at the throat and worn hanging over the shoulders. [Middle English cape, partly variant of cope, cope; see COPE², and partly from Anglo-Norman cape (from Medieval Latin cāpa, variant of Late Latin cappa).]

cape² (kăp) n. Abbr. c., C. A point or head of land projecting into a body of water. [Middle English cap, from Old French, from Old Provençal, from Latin caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

Cape (kăp) or Cape of For names of actual capes, see the specific element of the names, for example, Hatteras, Cape; Good Hope, Cape of. Other geographic names beginning with Cape are entered under Cape, for example, Cape Coral, Florida; Cape York Peninsula.

Cape Bret-on Island (kāp brēt'n ī'lənd, brīt'n) An island forming the northeast part of Nova Scotia, Canada. It was under French sovereignty from 1632 to 1763.

Cape buffalo (kāp būf'ə-lō') n. A large, often fierce buffalo (Syncerus caffer) of Africa, having massive downward-curving horns.

Cape Cod Canal (kāp kōd kə-nāl') A waterway, about 28 km (17.5 mi) long, of southeast Massachusetts connecting Buzzards Bay with Cape Cod Bay, the southern part of Massachusetts Bay. The canal was built (1910-1914) to shorten the water route between New York and Boston.

Cape Cod cottage (kāp kōd kōt'ij) n. A compact house of one or one-and-a-half stories with a gabled roof and a central chimney.

Cape Coral (kāp kōr'əl) A city of southwest Florida on the estuary of the Caloosahatchee River southwest of Fort Myers. It grew rapidly during the 1970's. Population, 74,991.

Cape Fear River (kāp fir rīv'ər) A river rising in central North Carolina and flowing about 325 km (202 mi) southeast to the Atlantic Ocean north of Cape Fear.

Cape Gi-rar-deau (kāp jə-rär'dō, -rā'-) A city of southeast Missouri on the Mississippi River south-southeast of St. Louis. It was founded in 1793. Population, 34,438.

Cape gooseberry (kāp gōos'bēr'ē) n. A tropical South American plant (Physalis peruviana) having yellow flowers with purple centers and an inflated calyx enclosing an edible yellow berry used to make jam, sauces, and desserts.

Cape jasmine (kāp jās'mĭn) n. See gardenia.

Ča-pek (chā'pĕk'), Karel. 1890-1938. Czechoslovakian writer noted for his science fiction, such as the play R.U.R. (1921), and his psychologically penetrating novels, including An Ordinary Life (1934).

cap-e-lin (kăp'ə-lĭn, kăp'lĭn) also cap-lin (kăp'lĭn) n. A small, edible marine fish (Mallotus villosus) of northern Atlantic and Pacific waters, related to and resembling the smelt. [Canadian French capelan, from French, codfish, from Old Provençal, from Medieval Latin cappelānus. See CHAPLAIN.]

Ca-pel-la (kə-pĕl'ə) n. A double star in Auriga, the brightest star in the constellation, approximately 46 light-years from Earth. [Latin, diminutive of caper, goat.]

Cape primrose (kāp prĭm'rōz') n. Any of various chiefly African plants of the genus Streptocarpus, widely cultivated as houseplants for their attractive foliage and clusters of showy, colorful flowers. Also called streptocarpus

Cape Province (kāp prōv'ĭns) Officially Cape of Good Hope Province; formerly (before 1910) Cape Colony. Abbr. C.P. A province and historical region of southern South Africa on the Atlantic and Indian oceans. Settled by the Dutch in 1652, it was ceded to Great Britain in 1814 and became part of the newly formed Union of South Africa in 1910.

ca·per¹ (kā'pər) n. 1. A playful leap or hop. 2. A frivolous escapade or prank. 3. Slang. An illegal plot or enterprise, especially one involving theft. — v. intr. ca·pered, ca·per·ing, ca·pers. To leap or frisk about; frolic. [Alteration of CAPRIOLE.]

ca·per² (kā'pər) n. 1. A usually spiny Mediterranean shrub (Capparis spinosa) having white to pale lilac flowers and dehiscent fruits with reddish pulp. 2. A pickled flower bud of this plant, used as a pungent condiment in sauces, relishes, and various other dishes. [Middle English caperis, capar, from Latin capparis, from Greek kapparis.]

cap·er·cail·lie (kăp'ər-kāl'yē, -kāl'lē) also cap·er·cail·zie (-kāl'zē) n. A large grouse (Tetrao urogallus), native to northern Europe and having dark plumage and a fanlike tail. Also called wood grouse [Scottish Gaelic capull coille : capull, horse (from Middle Irish capall, from Old Irish, ultimately from Latin caballus, of Celtic origin) + coille, genitive of coille, forest (from Old Irish caill).]

Ca·per·na·um (kə-pûr'nē-əm) A city of ancient Palestine on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee. It was Jesus's home for much of his ministry and the site of many events in the New Testament. A nearby elevation is said to have been the setting for the Sermon on the Mount.

caper spurge (kā'pər spûrj) n. An ornamental European spurge (Euphorbia lathyris) having a latex considered to be a potential source of hydrocarbons that can be converted into fuel.

cape·skin (kăp'skîn') n. Soft leather made from sheepskin, used especially for gloves. [After, Cape of Good Hope.]

Ca·pet (kā'pīt, kăp'īt, kă-pā') A dynasty of French kings (987-1328), including Hugh Capet (940?-996), who was elected king in 987, thereby permanently removing the Carolingians from power, and ruled until his death. The expansion of territory and centralization of power under the Capets began the movement toward a unified France.

Ca·pe·tian (kə-pē'shən) adj. Of or relating to the French dynasty founded by Hugh Capet. — n. A member of this dynasty.

Cape Town or Cape·town (kăp'toun') The legislative capital of South Africa, in the extreme southwest part of the country on the Atlantic Ocean. It was founded in 1652 as a supply station for the Dutch East Indies Company. Population, 859,940.

Cape Verde (kăp vûrd) Abbr. C.V. An island country of the Atlantic Ocean west of Senegal. The islands were settled by the Portuguese in the mid-15th century, became a colony in 1495 and an overseas province in 1951, and gained independence in 1975. Praia, on São Tiago Island, is the capital. Population, 296,093.

Cape York Peninsula (kāp yôrk pə-nĭn'syə-lə) A peninsula of northeast Australia between the Gulf of Carpentaria and the Coral Sea.

cap·ful (kăp'fōōl') n. pl. cap·fuls. The amount that a cap can hold.

cap gun (kăp gŭn) n. A toy pistol with a hammer action that detonates a mildly explosive cap.

Cap Hai·tien (kăp' hā'shən) or Cap-Ha-ï-tien (kā-pä-ē-syăn') A city of northern Haiti on the Atlantic Ocean. Founded c. 1670, it is a tourist center. Population, 64,406.

ca·pi·as (kā'pē-əs) n. Law. A warrant for arrest. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Latin, second person sing. present subjunctive of capere, to seize (from the first word of the writ). See kap- in Appendix.]

cap·il·lar·i·ty (kăp'ə-lăr'ĭ-tē) n. pl. cap·il·lar·i·ties. The interaction between contacting surfaces of a liquid and a solid that distorts the liquid surface from a planar shape. Also called capillary action cap·il·lar·y (kăp'ə-lěr'ē) adj. 1. Relating to or resembling a hair; fine and slender. 2. Having a very small internal diameter: a capillary tube. 3. Anatomy. Of or relating to the capillaries. 4. Physics. Of or relating to capillarity. — n. pl.

cap·il·lar·ies. 1. Anatomy. One of the minute blood vessels that connect arterioles and venules. These blood vessels form an intricate network throughout the body for the interchange of various substances, such as oxygen and carbon dioxide, between blood and tissue cells. 2. A tube with a very small internal diameter. [From Latin capillāris, from capillus, hair.]

capillary action (kăp'ə-lěr'ē äk'shən) n. See capillarity.

capillary attraction (kăp'ə-lěr'ē ə-trăk'shən) n. The force that results from greater adhesion of a liquid to a solid surface than internal cohesion of the liquid itself and that causes the liquid to be raised against a vertical surface, as water is in a clean glass tube. It is the force that allows a porous material to soak up a liquid.

capillary bed (kăp'ə-lěr'ē bĕd) n. Anatomy. The network of capillaries in a particular area or organ of the body.

cap·i·tal¹ (kăp'ĭ-tl) n. 1. a. Abbr. cap. A town or city that is the official seat of government in a political entity, such as a state or nation. b. A city that is the center of a specific activity or industry: the financial capital of the world.

2. a. Wealth in the form of money or property, used or accumulated in a business by a person, partnership, or corporation. b. Material wealth used or available for use in the production of more wealth. c. Human resources considered in terms of their contributions to an economy: “[The] swift unveiling of his... plans provoked a flight of human capital” (George F. Will). 3. Accounting. The remaining assets of a business after all liabilities have been deducted; net worth. 4. Capital stock. 5. Capitalists considered as a group or class. 6. An asset or advantage: “profited from political capital accumulated by others” (Michael Mandelbaum). 7. Abbr. cap. A capital letter. — adj. 1. First and foremost; principal: a decision of capital importance. 2. First-rate; excellent: a capital idea. 3. Relating to or being a seat of government. 4. Extremely serious: a capital blunder. 5. Involving death or calling for the death penalty: a capital offense. 6. Of or relating to financial assets, especially being or related to those financial assets that add to the net worth of a business: made capital improvements at the plant site. 7. Abbr. cap. Relating to or being a capital letter. [From Middle English, principal, from Old French, from Latin capitālis, from caput, head, money laid out. See kaput- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The term for a town or city that serves as a seat of government is spelled capital. The term for the building in which a legislative assembly meets is spelled capitol.

cap·i·tal² (kăp'ī-tl) n. Architecture. The top part of a pillar or column. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Late Latin capitellum, diminutive of Latin caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

capital account (kăp'ī-tl ə-kount') n. 1. An account stating the amount of funds and assets invested in a business by the owners or stockholders, including retained earnings. 2. A statement of the net worth of a business at a given time.

capital asset (kăp'ī-tl äs'ět') n. A long-term asset, such as land or a building.

capital expenditure (kăp'ī-tl ik-spən'də-chər) n. Funds spent for the acquisition of a long-term asset.

capital flight (kăp'ī-tl flīt) n. Large-scale removal of individual and corporate investment capital and income from a country.

capital gain (kăp'ī-tl gān) n. The amount by which proceeds from the sale of a capital asset exceed the original cost.

capital goods (kăp'ī-tl gōodz) pl.n. Goods, such as machinery, used in the production of commodities; producer goods.

cap·i·tal·in·ten·sive (kăp'ī-tl-īn-těn'siv) adj. Requiring a large expenditure of capital in comparison to labor: a capital-intensive industry.

cap·i·tal·ism (kăp'ī-tl-iz'əm) n. An economic system in which the means of production and distribution are privately or corporately owned and development is proportionate to the accumulation and reinvestment of profits gained in a free market.

cap·i·tal·ist (kăp'ī-tl-ist) n. 1. A supporter of capitalism. 2. An investor of capital in business, especially one having a major financial interest in an important enterprise. 3. A person of great wealth. — adj. Capitalistic.

cap·i·tal·is·tic (kăp'ī-tl-īs'tik) adj. 1. Of or relating to capitalism or capitalists. 2. Favoring or practicing capitalism: a capitalistic country. — cap'·i·tal·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

cap·i·tal·i·za·tion (kăp'î-tl-î-zā'shən) n. 1. a. The practice or act of capitalizing. b. The sum that results from capitalizing. 2. a. The amounts and types of long-term financing used by a firm, including common stock, preferred stock, retained earnings, and long-term debt. b. The total par value or stated value of no-par capital stock issues. 3. The use of capital letters in writing or printing.

cap·i·tal·ize (kăp'î-tl-î-z') v. cap·i·tal·ized, cap·i·tal·iz·ing, cap·i·tal·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To use as or convert into capital. 2. To supply with capital or investment funds: capitalize a new business. 3. To authorize the issue of a certain amount of capital stock of: capitalize a corporation. 4. To convert (debt) into capital stock or shares. 5. To calculate the current value of (a future stream of earnings or cash flows). 6. To include (expenditures) in business accounts as assets instead of expenses. 7. a. To write or print in capital letters. b. To begin a word with a capital letter. — v. intr. To turn something to one's advantage; benefit: capitalize on an opponent's error. See Synonyms at benefit.

—cap·i·tal·iz'·a·ble adj.

capital letter (kăp'î-tl lět'ər) n. A letter written or printed in a size larger than and often in a form differing from its corresponding lowercase letter; an uppercase letter.

cap·i·tal·ly (kăp'î-tl-ē) adv. In an excellent manner; admirably.

capital punishment (kăp'î-tl pŭn'îsh-mənt) n. The penalty of death for the commission of a crime.

capital ship (kăp'î-tl shîp) n. A warship of the largest class, such as a battleship or an aircraft carrier.

capital stock (kăp'î-tl stök) n. Abbr. CS 1. The total amount of stock authorized for issue by a corporation, including common and preferred stock. 2. The total stated or par value of the permanently invested capital of a corporation.

cap·i·tate (kăp'î-tāt') adj. 1. Anatomy. Enlarged and globular at the tip, as a bone of the wrist having a rounded, knoblike end. 2. Botany. Forming a headlike mass or dense cluster, as the flowers of plants in the composite family. [Latin capitatus, having a head, from caput, capit-, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

cap·i·ta·tion (kăp'î-tā'shən) n. 1. A poll tax. 2. A payment or fee of a fixed amount per person. [Late Latin capitātiō, capitātiōn-, from Latin caput, capit-, head. See kaput- in Appendix.] —cap·i·ta'tive adj.

cap·i·tel·lum (kăp'î-těl'əm) n. pl. cap·i·tel·la (-těl'ə). Anatomy. The rounded protuberance at the lower end of the humerus that articulates with the radius. [Late Latin, diminutive of Latin caput, capit-, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

cap·i·tol (kăp'î-tl) n. 1. A building or complex of buildings in which a state legislature meets. 2. Capitol. The building in Washington, D.C., where the Congress of the United States meets. See Usage Note at capital¹. [Middle English Capitol, Jupiter's temple in Rome, from Old French capitole, from Latin Capitō- lium, after Capitōlinus, Capitoline, the hill on which Jupiter's temple stood, perhaps akin to caput, head. See CAPITAL¹.]

Capitol Hill (kăp'ī-tl hīl) n. Informal. The U.S. Congress.

Cap·i·to·line (kăp'ī-tə-līn') The highest of the seven hills of ancient Rome. It was the historic and religious center of the city. —Cap'i-to-line' adj.

Capitol Peak (kăp'ī-tl pēk) A mountain, 4,309.7 m (14,130 ft) high, in the Rocky Mountains of west-central Colorado.

ca·pit·u·la (kə-pīch'ə-lə) n. Plural of capitulum.

ca·pit·u·lar (kə-pīch'ə-lər) adj. Of or relating to a chapter, especially an ecclesiastical chapter. [Medieval Latin capitulāris, from capitulum, chapter. See CHAPTER.] —ca·pit'·u·lar·ly adv.

ca·pit·u·lar·y (kə-pīch'ə-lēr'ē) n. pl. ca·pit·u·lar·ies. 1. A member of an ecclesiastical or similar chapter. 2. a. An ecclesiastical or civil ordinance. b. A set of such ordinances, especially those promulgated by Charlemagne and his successors. [Medieval Latin capitulārius, from capitulum, chapter. See CHAPTER.]

ca·pit·u·late (kə-pīch'ə-lāt') v. intr. ca·pit·u·lat·ed, ca·pit·u·lat·ing, ca·pit·u·lates. 1. To surrender under specified conditions; come to terms. 2. To give up all resistance; acquiesce. See Synonyms at yield. [Medieval Latin capitulāre, capitulāt-, to draw up in chapters, from capitulum, chapter. See CHAPTER.] —ca·pit'·u·lant n. —ca·pit'·u·la'tor n.

ca·pit·u·la·tion (kə-pīch'ə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act of surrendering or giving up. See Synonyms at surrender. 2. A document containing the terms of surrender. 3. An enumeration of the main parts of a subject; a summary.

—ca·pit'·u·la·to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

ca·pit·u·lum (kə-pīch'ə-ləm) n. pl. ca·pit·u·la (-lə). 1. Botany. See flower head (n., sense 1). 2. Biology. A small knob or head-shaped part, such as a protuberance of a bone or the tip of an insect's antenna. [Latin, diminutive of caput, capit-, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

cap·let (kăp'līt) n. A smooth, coated, oval-shaped medicine tablet intended to be tamper-resistant. [CAP(SULE) + (TAB)LET.]

cap·lin (kăp'līn) n. Variant of capelin.

ca·po¹ (kā'pō) n. pl. ca·pos. Music. A small movable bar placed across the fingerboard of a guitar or similar instrument so as to raise the pitch of all the strings uniformly. [Italian capo (di tastiera), head (of the fingerboard), from Latin caput. See kaput- in Appendix.]

ca·po² (kā'pō, kăp'ō) n. pl. ca·pos. The head of a branch of an organized crime syndicate. [Italian, from Latin caput, head. See CAPO¹.]

ca·pon (kā'pŏn', -pən) n. A male chicken castrated when young to improve the quality of its flesh for food. [Middle English capoun, from Old English capūn, and from Old French capon both from Latin cāpō, cāpōn-.]

ca-po-na-ta (kă'pə-nă'tə) n. A seasoned mixture of eggplant and other vegetables served as an appetizer. [Italian, of Sicilian dialectal origin.]

Ca-pone (kə-pōn'), Alphonse. Known as "Al." Also called "Scarface." 1899-1947. Italian-born American gangster who ruthlessly ruled the Chicago underworld and was imprisoned (1931-1939) for tax evasion.

cap-o-ral (kăp'ər-əl, kăp'ə-răl') n. A strong dark tobacco. [French, short for (tabac de) caporal, corporal('s tobacco), from Italian caporale, from capo, head. See CAPO¹.]

ca-pote (kə-pōt') n. A long, usually hooded cloak or coat. [French, from Old French capote, capette, diminutive of cape, cloak, from Medieval Latin cāpa. See CAPE¹.]

Ca-po-te (kə-pō'tē), Truman. 1924-1984. American writer whose works, such as In Cold Blood (1966), concern alienated, sometimes psychopathic characters. He also wrote the novella Breakfast at Tiffany's (1958), detailing the New York life of an uninhibited playgirl, Holly Golightly.

Capp (kăp), Al. 1909-1979. American cartoonist noted for his comic strip L'il Abner (1934-1977).

Cap-pa-do-cia (kăp'ə-dō'shə, -shē-ə) An ancient region of Asia Minor in present-day east-central Turkey. Heart of a Hittite state and later a Persian satrapy, it was annexed by the Romans in A.D. 17. —Cap'pa-do'cian adj. & n.

cap-per (kăp'ər) n. 1. One that caps or makes caps. 2. Informal. Something that surpasses or completes what has gone before; a finishing touch or finale.

3. Slang. One who acts as a decoy, as in a confidence game.

cap pistol (kăp pɪs'təl) n. A cap gun.

cap-puc-ci-no (kăp'ə-chē'nō, kă'pə-) n. pl. cap-puc-ci-nos. Espresso coffee mixed or topped with steamed milk or cream. [Italian, Capuchin, cappuccino (from the resemblance of its color to the color of the monk's habit). See CAPUCHIN.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word cappuccino exemplifies how words can develop new senses because of resemblances that the original coiners of the terms might not have dreamed possible. The Capuchin order of friars, established after 1525, played an important role in bringing Catholicism back to Reformation Europe. Its Italian name came from the long, pointed cowl, or cappuccino, derived from cappuccio, "hood," that was worn as part of the order's habit. The French version of cappuccino was capuchin (now capucin), from which came English Capuchin. The name of this pious order was later used as the name (first recorded in English in 1785) for a type of monkey with a tuft of black, cowllike hair. In Italian cappuccino went on to develop another sense, "espresso coffee mixed or topped with steamed milk or cream," so called because the color of the coffee resembled the color of the habit of a Capuchin friar. The first use of cappuccino in English is recorded in 1948 in a work about San Francisco.

Cap-ra (kăp'ra), Frank. 1897-1991. American filmmaker who won an Academy Award for his direction of It Happened One Night (1934), Mr. Deeds Goes to Town (1936), and You Can't Take It with You (1938).

cap-re-o-my-cin (kăp'rē-ō-mī'sin) n. An antibiotic derived from a bacterium (Streptomyces capreolus) that is effective against the microorganism responsible for tuberculosis in human beings. [Latin capreolus diminutive of caper, capr-, goat + -MYCIN.]

Ca-pri (kə-prē', kăp'rē, kă'prē) An island of southern Italy on the southern edge of the Bay of Naples. A popular resort since Roman times, it is famous for its Blue Grotto, a picturesque cave indenting the island's high, precipitous coast.

cap-ric acid (kăp'rik äs'īd) n. A fatty acid, $\text{CH}_3(\text{CH}_2)_8\text{COOH}$, obtained from animal fats and oils and used in the manufacture of perfumes and fruit flavors. Also called decanoic acid [From Latin caper, capr-, goat (from the acid's nasty smell).]

ca-pric-cio (kə-prē'chō, -chē-ō') n. pl. ca-pric-cios. 1. Music. An instrumental work with an improvisatory style and a free form. 2. A prank; a caper. 3. A whim. [Italian. See CAPRICE.]

ca-pric-cio-so (kə-prē'chē-ō'sō, kă'prē-chō'sō) adj. Music. Lively and free. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from capriccio, caprice. See CAPRICE.]

ca-price (kə-prēs') n. 1. a. An impulsive change of mind. b. An inclination to change one's mind impulsively. c. A sudden, unpredictable action, change, or series of actions or changes: A hailstorm in July is a caprice of nature. 2. Music. A capriccio. [French, from Italian capriccio, from caporiccio, fright, sudden start : capo, head (from Latin caput); see kaput- in Appendix + riccio, curly (from Latin ēricius, hedgehog, from ēr).]

SYNONYMS: caprice, whim, whimsy, vagary, freak. These nouns are compared as they denote an impulsive or unexpected notion. Caprice strongly suggests lack of apparent motivation and can imply wanton and willful behavior: Before the establishment of labor unions, a worker could be discharged at the caprice of any manager. Whim and whimsy can both mean a quaint or fantastic idea, but whim more strongly suggests sudden inspiration, whimsy a playful or fanciful quality: That suggestion was no whim of the moment. "Talk of space stations, space manufacturing or space defense will be whimsy until the cost of reaching orbit comes down" (Gregg Easterbrook). Vagary emphasizes the erratic and unpredictable, even irresponsible nature of a notion or an act: "This is a time of life when a solicitous family does well to watch affectionately over the vagaries of its unattached relatives, particularly of those who are comfortably off" (J.P. Marquand). Freak is a sudden and seemingly motiveless turn of mind: "Sometimes goldfinches one by one will drop/

From low-hung branches... /Then off at once, as in a wanton freak" (John Keats).

ca·pri·cious (kə-prīsh'əs, -prē'shəs) adj. Characterized by or subject to whim; impulsive and unpredictable. See Synonyms at arbitrary. —ca·pri'cious·ly adv. —ca·pri'cious·ness n.

Cap·ri·corn (kăp'rī-kôrn') also Cap·ri·cor·nus (kăp'rī-kôrnəs) n. 1. A constellation in the equatorial region of the Southern Hemisphere, near Aquarius and Sagittarius. 2. a. The tenth sign of the zodiac in astrology. b. One who is born under this sign. Also called Goat [Middle English Capricorne, from Latin Capricornus: caper, capr-, goat + cornū, horn; see ker¹ in Appendix.]

Cap·ri·corn·i·an (kăp'rī-kôrnē-ən) n. One who is born under the sign of Capricorn.

Cap·ri·cor·nus (kăp'rī-kôrnəs) n. Variant of Capricorn.

cap·ri·fi·ca·tion (kăp'rə-fī-kā'shən) n. A method of assuring pollination of the Smyrna and other edible figs in which flower clusters of the caprifig are hung from trees of the edible fig, allowing wasps to carry pollen from the flowers of the caprifig to those of the edible varieties. [Latin caprificatio, caprificātiōn-, from caprificātus, past participle of caprificāre, to ripen figs by caprification, from caprificus, caprifig. See CAPRIFIG.]

cap·ri·fig (kăp'rə-fīg') n. A wild variety of Mediterranean fig (Ficus carica var. sylvestris) used in the caprification of certain edible figs. [Middle English, from Latin caprificus (influenced by Middle English fig, fig): caper, capr-, goat + ficus, fig; see FIG¹.]

cap·ri·ole (kăp'rē-ōl') n. 1. An upward leap made by a trained horse without going forward and with the hind legs kicked out. 2. A playful leap or jump; a caper. — v. intr. cap·ri·oled, cap·ri·ol·ing, cap·ri·oles. To perform a capriole. [French, from Italian capriola, somersault, from capriolo, roebuck, wild goat, from Latin capreolus, diminutive of caper, capr-, goat.]

ca·pri pants (kă'prē pānts, kə-prē') pl.n. Tight-fitting, calf-length women's pants, often having a slit on the outside of the leg bottoms. [After Capri.]

ca·pris (kă'prēz, kə-prēz') pl.n. Capri pants.

Ca·pri·vi Strip (kə-prē'vē strīp) A panhandle area of northeast Namibia. It passed from Great Britain to Germany in 1890 in order to give German South-West Africa access to the Zambezi River.

ca·pro·ic acid (kə-prō'ik əs'īd, kă-) n. A liquid fatty acid, $\text{CH}_3(\text{CH}_2)_4\text{COOH}$, found in animal fats and oils or synthesized and used in the manufacture of pharmaceuticals and flavorings. [From Latin caper, capr-, goat (from the acid's goatlike smell).]

ca·pryl·ic acid (kə-prīl'īk əs'īd, kă-) n. A liquid fatty acid, $\text{C}_8\text{H}_{16}\text{O}_2$, found in butter and other fats and oils and having a rancid taste. It is used in the manufacture of dyes and perfumes. [CAPR(IC ACID) + -YL + -IC.]

caps. abbr. Capsule.

cap-sa-i-cin (kăp-sā'ī-sĭn) n. A colorless, pungent, crystalline compound, $C_{18}H_{27}NO_3$, that is derived from capsicum and is a strong irritant to skin and mucous membranes. [CAPSIC(UM) (perhaps influenced by Latin capsa, box); see CAPSICUM + -IN.]

cap screw (kăp skrōō) n. A long-threaded bolt, usually with a square head, used in fastening machine parts.

Cap-si-an (kăp'sē-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or being a Paleolithic culture of northern Africa and southern Europe. [French capsien, from Latin Capsa, Gafsa, a town of west-central Tunisia.]

cap-si-cum (kăp'sĭ-kəm) n. 1. Any of various tropical American pepper plants of the genus Capsicum, especially any of the numerous cultivated forms of the species C. annuum and C. frutescens. 2. The fruit of any of these plants, especially the dried pungent types used as a condiment and in medicine. [New Latin Capsicum, genus name, perhaps from Latin capsa, box (from its podlike fruit).]

cap-sid (kăp'sĭd) n. The protein shell that surrounds a virus particle. [From Latin capsa, box.]

cap-size (kăp'sĭz', kăp-sĭz') v. intr. tr. cap-sized, cap-siz-ing, cap-siz-es. To overturn or cause to overturn: The boat capsized. I capsized the canoe. [Origin unknown.]

cap-so-mere (kăp'sə-mĭr') n. One of the individual subunits that makes up a capsid. [CAPS(ID) + -MERE.]

cap-stan (kăp'stən, -stăn') n. 1. Nautical. An apparatus used for hoisting weights, consisting of a vertical spool-shaped cylinder that is rotated manually or by machine and around which a cable is wound. 2. A small cylindrical shaft used to drive magnetic tape at a constant speed in a tape recorder. [Middle English, from Norman French, from Old Provençal cabestan, from cabestre, noose, from Latin capistrum, halter, probably from capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.]

cap-stone (kăp'stōn') n. 1. The top stone of a structure or wall. 2. The crowning achievement or final stroke; the culmination or acme.

cap-su-lar (kăp'sə-lər, -syōō-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a capsule.

cap-su-late (kăp'sə-lăt', -lĭt, -syōō-) also cap-su-lat-ed (-lăt'ĭd) adj. Enclosed in or formed into a capsule. — cap'su-la'tion n.

cap-sule (kăp'səl, -sōōl) n. Abbr. caps. 1. A small soluble container, usually made of gelatin, that encloses a dose of an oral medicine or a vitamin.

2. Anatomy. A fibrous, membranous, or fatty sheath that encloses an organ or part, such as the sac surrounding the kidney or the fibrous tissues that surround a joint. 3. Microbiology. A mucopolysaccharide outer shell enveloping certain bacteria. 4. Botany. a. A dry, dehiscent fruit that develops from two or more united carpels. b. The thin-walled, spore-containing structure of mosses and related plants. 5. A space capsule. 6. A brief summary; a condensation. — adj.

1. Highly condensed; very brief: a capsule description. 2. Very small; compact. — v. tr. cap-suled, cap-sul-ing, cap-sules. 1. To enclose in or furnish with a capsule. 2. To condense or summarize: capsuled the news. [French, from Latin capsula, diminutive of capsa, box.]

cap-sul-ize (kăp'sə-līz', -syŏō-) v. tr. cap-sul-ized, cap-sul-iz-ing, cap-sul-iz-es. To capsule: capsulized the news every 30 minutes.

cap-su-lot-o-my (kăp'sə-lŏt'ə-mē) n. Incision into a capsule, especially that of the crystalline lens of the eye, as to remove cataracts by surgery.

Capt. abbr. Captain.

cap-tain (kăp'tən) n. 1. Abbr. Capt. One who commands, leads, or guides others, especially: a. The officer in command of a ship, aircraft, or spacecraft. b. A precinct commander in a police or fire department, usually ranking above a lieutenant and below a chief. c. The designated leader of a team or crew in sports.

2. Abbr. Capt., Cpt., CPT a. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps that is above first lieutenant and below major. b. A commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above commander and below rear admiral. c. One who holds the rank of captain. 3. A figure in the forefront; a leader: a captain of industry. 4. One who supervises or directs the work of others, especially: a. A district official for a political party. b. A restaurant employee who is in charge of the waiters and usually attends to table seating. c. A bell captain. — v. tr. cap-tained, cap-tain-ing, cap-tains. To act as captain of; command or direct: captained the football team. [Middle English capitain, from Old French, from Late Latin capitāneus, chief, from Latin caput, capit-, head. See kaput- in Appendix.] — cap'tain-cy n. — cap'tain-ship' n.

cap-tain's chair (kăp'tənz châr) n. A wooden chair having a low back with spindles that curve forward to provide armrests.

captain's mast (kăp'tənz măst) n. A disciplinary hearing during which the commanding officer of a naval unit studies and disposes of cases against the enlisted personnel in the unit.

cap-tan (kăp'tən, -tăn') n. A white solid agricultural fungicide, C₉H₈O₂NSCl₃. [Short for MERCAPTAN.]

cap-tion (kăp'shən) n. 1. A title, short explanation, or description accompanying an illustration or a photograph. 2. A subtitle in a motion picture. 3. A title or heading, as of a document or article. 4. Law. The heading of a pleading or other document that identifies the parties, court, term, and number of the action. — v. tr. cap-tioned, cap-tion-ing, cap-tions. To furnish a caption for. [Middle English capcioun, arrest, from Old French capcion, from Latin captiō, captiōn-, from captus, past participle of capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.]

cap-tious (kăp'shəs) adj. 1. Marked by a disposition to find and point out trivial faults. See Synonyms at critical. 2. Intended to entrap or confuse, as in an argument: a captious question. [Middle English capcious, from Old French cap- tieux, from Latin captiōsus, from captiō, seizure, sophism, from capere, past participle of capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.] —cap'tious·ly adv.

—cap'tious-ness n.

cap·ti·vate (kăp'tə-vāt') v. tr. cap·ti·vat·ed, cap·ti·vat·ing, cap·ti·vates.

1. To attract and hold by charm, beauty, or excellence. See Synonyms at charm.

2. Archaic. To capture. [Late Latin captivāre, captivāt-, to capture, from Latin captivus, prisoner. See CAPTIVE.] —cap'ti·va'tion n. —cap'ti·va'tor n.

cap·tive (kăp'tiv) n. 1. One, such as a prisoner of war, that is forcibly confined, subjugated, or enslaved. 2. One held in the grip of a strong emotion or passion.

— adj. 1. Taken and held prisoner, as in war. 2. Held in bondage; enslaved.

3. Kept under restraint or control; confined: captive birds. 4. Restrained by circumstances that prevent free choice: a captive audience; a captive market.

5. Enraptured, as by beauty; captivated. [Middle English captif, from Old French, from Latin captivus, from captus, past participle of capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.]

kap- in Appendix.]

cap·tiv·i·ty (kăp-tiv'ī-tē) n. pl. cap·tiv·i·ties. The state or period of being imprisoned, confined, or enslaved.

cap·to·pril (kăp'tə-pril') n. A drug used in the treatment of hypertension that functions by inhibiting the enzymes that activate angiotensin. [(MER)CAP(T)AN) + pr(opano)-, propane (from PROPANE) + -YL.]

cap·tor (kăp'tər, -tôr') n. One that takes another as a captive. [Late Latin captor, hunter, from Latin capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.]

cap·ture (kăp'chər) v. tr. cap·tured, cap·tur·ing, cap·tures. 1. To take captive, as by force or craft; seize. 2. To gain possession or control of, as in a game or contest: capture the queen in chess; captured the liberal vote. 3. To attract and hold: tales of adventure that capture the imagination. 4. To succeed in preserving in lasting form: capture a likeness in a painting.

— n. 1. The act of catching, taking, or winning, as by force or skill. 2. One that has been seized, caught, or won; a catch or prize. 3. Physics. The phenomenon in which an atom or a nucleus absorbs a subatomic particle, often with the subsequent emission of radiation. [From French, capture, from Old French, from Latin captūra, a catching of animals, from captus, past participle of capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.]

Cap·u·a (kăp'yōō-ə, kă'pwä) A town of southern Italy north of Naples. The strategically important ancient Roman city of Capua was located nearby on the Appian Way. Population, 18,053.

ca·pu·che (kə-pōōch', -pōōsh') n. A hood on a cloak, especially the long, pointed cowl worn by a Capuchin monk. [Italian cappuccio, from cappa, hood, from Late Latin, cloak.]

cap·u·chin (kăp'yə-chīn, -shīn, kə-pyōō'-) n. 1. Capuchin. A monk belonging to the Order of Friars Minor Capuchin, an independent order of Franciscans founded in Italy in 1525-1528 and dedicated to preaching and missionary work.

2. A hooded cloak worn by women. 3. Any of several long-tailed monkeys of the genus Cebus, native to Central and South America and often having a hoodlike tuft of hair on the head. In this sense, also called sapajou [Obsolete French, from Italian cappuccino, pointed cowl, Capuchin, from cappuccio, hood. See CAPUCHE.]

cap·y·ba·ra (kăp'ə-bär'ə, -bär'ə) n. A large semiaquatic rodent (Hydrochoerus hydrochaeris) of tropical South America, having short limbs and a vestigial tail and often attaining lengths of more than 1.2 meters (4 feet). [Portuguese capybara, from Tupi capivara, capibara : capii, grass + urara, eater.]

car (kär) n. 1. An automobile. 2. A vehicle, such as a streetcar, that runs on rails: a railroad car. 3. A boxlike enclosure for passengers and freight on a conveyance: an elevator car. 4. The part of a balloon or airship that carries people and cargo. 5. Archaic. A chariot, carriage, or cart. [Middle English carre, cart, from Old North French, from Latin carra, pl. of carrus, carrum, a Gallic type of wagon. See kers- in Appendix.]

car. abbr. Carat.

car·a·bao (kăr'ə-bou', kă'rə-) n. pl. car·a·baos. See water buffalo. [Spanish, from Visayan karabáw, from Malay kêrbau.]

car·a·bid (kăr'ə-bīd, kə-răb'īd) n. Any of a large family (Carabidae) of chiefly black beetles that often inhabit the spaces under stones, logs, or piles of debris and feed on other insects. Also called ground beetle [From New Latin Cārabidae, family name, from Latin cārabus, crustacean, from Greek karabos, horned beetle.] —car'a·bid adj.

car·a·bi·neer also car·a·bi·nier (kăr'ə-bə-nîr') or car·bi·neer (kăr'bə-) n. A soldier armed with a carbine. [French carabinier, from carabine, carbine. See CARBINE.]

car·a·bi·ner also kar·a·bi·ner (kăr'ə-bē'nər) n. An oblong metal ring with a spring clip, used in mountaineering to attach a running rope to a piton or similar device. [German Karabiner, short for Karabinerhaken, hook for a carbine, from Karabiner, carbine, from French carabine. See CARBINE.]

car·a·bi·nier (kăr'ə-bə-nîr') n. Variant of carabineer.

ca·ra·bi·nie·re (kăr'ə-bīn-yâr'ē, kă'ră-bē-nyĕ'rĕ) n. pl. ca·ra·bi·nie·ri (-bīn-yâr'ē, -bē-nyĕ'rĕ). A member of the Italian police force. [Italian, from French carabinier. See CARABINEER.]

car·a·cal (kăr'ə-kăl') n. A wildcat (Lynx caracal) of Africa and southern Asia having short, fawn-colored fur and long, tufted ears. [French, from Ottoman Turkish qaraqūlāq : qara, black + qūlāq, ear.]

Car·a·cal·la (kăr'ə-kăl'ə), Real name Marcus Aurelius Antonius. A.D. 188-217. Emperor of Rome (211-217) who was obsessed with and sought to imitate Alexander the Great. His brutal, undisciplined rule of the empire, however, led to his assassination and left only a legacy of infamy.

car·a·car·a (kär'ə-kär'ə, -kə-rä') n. Any of several large, carrion-eating or predatory hawks of the subfamily Caracarinae, native to South and Central America and the southern United States. [Spanish, and Portuguese caracará both from Tupi caracara.]

Ca·ra·cas (kə-rä'kəs) The capital and largest city of Venezuela, in the northern part of the country near the Caribbean coast. It was founded by the Spanish in 1567 and grew rapidly during the oil boom of the 1950's. Population, 3,041,000.

car·ack (kär'ək) n. Nautical. Variant of carrack.

car·a·cole (kär'ə-kōl') also car·a·col (-kōl') n. A half turn to right or left performed by a horse and rider. — v. intr. car·a·coled, car·a·col-ing, car·a·coles. To perform a caracole. [French, from Spanish caracol, snail.]

car·a·cul (kär'ə-kəl) n. Variant of karakul.

ca·rafe (kə-räf') n. 1. A glass or metal bottle, often with a flared lip, used for serving water or wine. 2. A glass pot with a pouring spout, used in making coffee. [French, from Italian caraffa, from Spanish garrafa, probably from Arabic ḡarafa, to ladle, scoop.]

car·am·bo·la (kär'əm-bō'lə) n. 1. An ornamental evergreen tree (Averrhoa carambola), native to southeast Asia and having crisp, edible, yellow to orange, longitudinally ridged fruits that are star-shaped in cross section. 2. The fruit of this plant, eaten fresh or used to make jams and juices. In this sense, also called star fruit [Portuguese, perhaps from Marathi karambal.]

car·a·mel (kär'ə-məl, -mēl', kär'məl) n. 1. A smooth, chewy candy made with sugar, butter, cream or milk, and flavoring. 2. Burnt sugar, used for coloring and sweetening foods. 3. Color. A moderate yellow brown. [French, from Old French, from Old Spanish caramel, caramelo, from Portuguese caramel, from Late Latin calamellus, diminutive of Latin calamus, reed, cane, from Greek kalamos.]

car·a·mel·ize (kär'ə-mə-līz', kär'mə-) v. tr. intr. car·a·mel-ized, car·a·mel-iz-ing, car·a·mel-iz-es. To convert or be converted into caramel. —car'·a·mel-i-za'tion (-mə-lī-zā'shən) n.

ca·ran·gid (kə-rän'jīd, -räng'gīd) n. Any of a large family (Carangidae) of marine food and game fishes, such as the jacks and pompanos. [From New Latin Carangidae, family name, from French carangue, mackerel, from Spanish caranga.] —ca·ran'gid adj.

car·a·pace (kär'ə-pās') n. 1. Zoology. A hard bony or chitinous outer covering, such as the fused dorsal plates of a turtle or the portion of the exoskeleton covering the head and thorax of a crustacean. 2. A protective, shell-like covering likened to that of a turtle or crustacean: "He used to worry that Sarah would age the same way, develop the same brittle carapace" (Anne Tyler). [French, from Spanish carapacho.]

car·at (kär'ət) n. 1. Abbr. c, car. A unit of weight for precious stones, equal to 200 milligrams. 2. Variant of karat. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin quarātus, from Arabic qīrāt, weight of four grains, from Greek keration, a weight, diminutive of keras, horn. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

Ca-ra-vag-gio (kǎr'ə-vǎ'jō, kǎ'rǎ-vǎd'jō), Michelangelo Merisi da. 1573-1610. Italian painter of the baroque whose influential works, such as Deposition of Christ (1604), are marked by intense realism and revolutionary use of light.

car·a·van (kǎr'ə-vǎn') n. 1. A company of travelers journeying together, as across a desert or through hostile territory. 2. A single file of vehicles or pack animals. 3. A large covered vehicle; a van. 4. Chiefly British. A trailer or dwelling place on wheels. [French caravane, or Italian carovana both from Persian kārvān.]

car·a·van·sa·ry (kǎr'ə-vǎn'sə-rē) also car·a·van·se·rai (-rī') n. pl.

car·a·van·sa·ries also car·a·van·se·rais. 1. An inn built around a large court for accommodating caravans at night in the Near or Far East. 2. A large inn or hostelry. [French caravanserai, from Persian kārvānsarāy: kārvān, caravan + sarāy, camp, palace; see terə-² in Appendix.]

car·a·vel or car·a·velle (kǎr'ə-vəl') also car·vel (kǎr'vəl, -vəl') n. Nautical. Any of several types of small, light sailing ships, especially one with two or three masts and lateen sails used by the Spanish and Portuguese in the 15th and 16th centuries. [French caravelle, from Old French, from Old Portuguese caravela, diminutive of cáravo, ship, from Late Latin cārabus, a small wicker boat, from Late Greek karabos, light ship, from Greek, horned beetle.]

car·a·way (kǎr'ə-wā') n. 1. A biennial Eurasian herb (Carum carvi) in the parsley family, having finely divided leaves and clusters of small, white or pinkish flowers. 2. The seedlike fruit of this plant, widely used as a flavoring and seasoning in various foods. In this sense, also called caraway seed [Middle English carewei, from Old French carvi, caroi, probably from Medieval Latin carvi, carwi, ultimately from Arabic karāwiyā, from Greek karon.]

Car·a·way (kǎr'ə-wā'), Hattie Ophelia Wyatt. 1878-1950. American legislator. Appointed to fill out her husband's term in the U.S. Senate in 1931, she became in 1932 the first elected woman senator and served until 1945.

caraway seed (kǎr'ə-wā' sēd) n. See caraway (n., sense 2).

carb- pref. Variant of carbo-.

car·ba·mate (kǎr'bə-māt', kǎr-bām'āt') n. A salt or ester of carbamic acid, especially one used as an insecticide. [CARBAM(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

car·ba·maz·e·pine (kǎr'bə-mǎz'ə-pēn') n. An anticonvulsant and analgesic drug, C₁₅H₁₂N₂O, used in the treatment of certain forms of epilepsy and to relieve pain associated with trigeminal neuralgia. [Rearrangement of chemical name dibenzazepinecarboxamide.]

car·bam·ic acid (kǎr-bām'ik əs'īd) n. A hypothetical acid, NH₂COOH, that exists only in the form of its esters and salts. [CARBAM(IDE) + -IC.]

car·ba·mide (kǎr'bə-mīd', kǎr-bām'īd) n. See urea. [CARB(O)- + AMIDE.]

car·bam·o·yl (kär-bäm'ō-īl') n. The radical NH_2CO . [CARBAM(IC ACID) + -YL.]

car·ban·i·on (kär-bän'ī'ən, -ī'ön') n. An anion in which carbon carries a negative charge and an unshared pair of electrons.

car·ba·ryl (kär'bə-rīl') n. A carbamate, $\text{C}_{12}\text{H}_{11}\text{NO}_2$, used as a general-purpose insecticide. [CARB(AMATE) + AR(OMATIC) + -YL.]

car·ben·i·cil·lin (kär-běn'ī-sīl'īn) n. A semisynthetic derivative of penicillin that is effective in the treatment of infections caused by certain susceptible strains of Gram-negative bacteria, such as Pseudomonas and Proteus. [car(boxy)ben(zylpen)icillin, semisynthetic penicillin.]

car·bide (kär'bīd') n. 1. A binary compound consisting of carbon and a more electropositive element, especially calcium. 2. A hard material made of compacted binary compounds of carbon and heavy metals, used to make tools that cut metal.

car·bine (kär'bēn', -bīn') n. A lightweight rifle with a short barrel. [French carabine, from Old French carabin, soldier armed with a musket, perhaps from escarrabin, gravedigger, from scarabee, dung beetle. See SCARAB.]

car·bi·neer (kär'bə-nīr') n. Variant of carabineer.

car·bi·nol (kär'bə-nōl', -nōl', -nōl') n. 1. See methanol. 2. An alcohol derived from methanol.

carbo- or carb- pref. Carbon: carbohydrate. [French, from carbone, carbon. See CARBON.]

car·bo·cy·clic (kär'bō-sī'klīk, -sīk'līk) adj. Chemistry. Having a ring composed exclusively of carbon atoms, as benzene.

car·bo·hy·drase (kär'bō-hī'drās', -drāz') n. Any of various enzymes, such as amylase, that catalyze the hydrolysis of a carbohydrate.

car·bo·hy·drate (kär'bō-hī'drāt') n. Any of a group of organic compounds that includes sugars, starches, celluloses, and gums and serves as a major energy source in the diet of animals. These compounds are produced by photosynthetic plants and contain only carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen, usually in the ratio 1:2:1.

carbohydrate loading (kär'bō-hī'drāt' lō'dīŋ) n. A dietary practice that increases carbohydrate reserves in muscle tissue through the consumption of extra quantities of high-starch foods. Some marathoners and other endurance athletes follow this practice prior to competition.

car·bo·lat·ed (kär'bə-lā'tīd) adj. Containing or treated with carbolic acid.

car·bol·ic acid (kär-bōl'īk äs'īd) n. See phenol (n., sense 1). [CARB(O)- + -OL¹ + -IC.]

car·bo·load·ing (kär'bō-lō'dīŋ) n. Informal. Carbohydrate loading.
—car'bo-load' v.

car bomb (kär böm) n. A car wired with explosives that are then detonated, as by remote control, so as to kill persons or destroy property nearby.

car·bon (kär'bən) n. 1. Symbol C A naturally abundant nonmetallic element that occurs in many inorganic and in all organic compounds, exists freely as graphite and diamond and as a constituent of coal, limestone, and petroleum, and is capable of chemical self-bonding to form an enormous number of chemically, biologically, and commercially important molecules. Atomic number 6; atomic weight 12.01115; sublimation point above 3,500°C; boiling point 4,827°C; specific gravity of amorphous carbon 1.8 to 2.1, of diamond 3.15 to 3.53, of graphite 1.9 to 2.3; valence 2, 3, 4. 2. a. A sheet of carbon paper. b. A copy made by using carbon paper. 3. Electricity. a. Either of two rods through which current flows to form an arc, as in lighting or welding. b. A carbonaceous electrode in an electric cell. [French carbone, from Latin carbō, carbōn-, a coal, charcoal. See ker-³ in Appendix.] —car'bon-ous (-bənəs) adj.

carbon 14 (kär'bən;) n. A naturally radioactive carbon isotope with atomic mass 14 and half-life 5,780 years, used in determining the age of ancient organic, geologic, or archaeological specimens.

car·bon-14 dating (kär'bən-fôr-tēn' dā'tīng, -fôr-) n. Carbon dating.

car·bo·na·ceous (kär'bə-nā'shəs) adj. Consisting of, containing, relating to, or yielding carbon.

car·bo·na·do¹ (kär'bə-nā'dō, -nā'-) Archaic. n. pl. car·bo·na·does or car·bo·na·dos. A piece of scored and broiled fish, fowl, or meat. — v. tr.

car·bo·na·doed, car·bo·na·do·ing, car·bo·na·dos. 1. To score and broil (fish, fowl, or meat). 2. To slice or cut. [From Spanish carbonada, from carbón, charcoal, from Latin carbō, carbōn-. See CARBON.]

car·bo·na·do² (kär'bə-nā'dō, -nā'-) n. pl. car·bo·na·does. A form of opaque or dark-colored diamond used for drills. Also called black diamond [Portuguese, from carbone, carbon, from French. See CARBON.]

car·bo·na·ra (kär'bə-nār'ə) n. A sauce for pasta containing eggs, minced bacon or ham, grated cheese, and seasonings. [Italian (alla carbonara, (from) a charcoal grill, from carbone, charcoal, from Latin carbō, carbōn-. See CARBON.]

car·bon·ate (kär'bə-nāt') v. tr. car·bon·at·ed, car·bon·at·ing, car·bon·ates. 1. To charge (a beverage, for example) with carbon dioxide gas. 2. To burn to carbon; carbonize. 3. To change into a carbonate. — n. (-nāt', -nīt) A salt or ester of carbonic acid. —car'bon-a'tion n. —car'bon-a'tor n.

car·bon·at·ed water (kär'bə-nā'tīd wô'tər) n. See soda water (n., sense 1a).

carbon bisulfide (kär'bən bī-sül'fīd') n. Carbon disulfide.

carbon black (kär'bən blăk) n. Any of various finely divided forms of carbon derived from the incomplete combustion of natural gas or petroleum oil and used to reinforce rubber and as an ingredient in inks, paints, crayons, and polishes.

carbon copy (kär' bən kōp' ē) n. 1. Abbr. cc A duplicate, as of a letter, made by using carbon paper. 2. A person or thing that closely resembles another.

carbon cycle (kär' bən sī' kəl) n. 1. Physics. See carbon-nitrogen cycle.

2. Ecology. The combined processes, including photosynthesis, decomposition, and respiration, by which carbon as a component of various compounds cycles between its major reservoirs—the atmosphere, oceans, and living organisms.

Car-bon-dale (kär' bən-dāl') A city of southern Illinois southeast of East St. Louis. It is the seat of a branch of Southern Illinois University (established 1869). Population, 27,033.

carbon dating (kär' bən dā' tŭng) n. The determination of the approximate age of an ancient object, such as an archaeological specimen, by measuring the amount of carbon 14 it contains. —car'bon-date' (kär' bən-dāt') v.

carbon dioxide (kär' bən dī-ōk' sīd) n. A colorless, odorless, incombustible gas, CO₂, formed during respiration, combustion, and organic decomposition and used in food refrigeration, carbonated beverages, inert atmospheres, fire extinguishers, and aerosols. Also called carbonic acid gas carbon disulfide (kär' bən dī-sŭl' fīd') n. A clear, flammable liquid, CS₂, used to manufacture viscose rayon and cellophane, as a solvent for fats, rubber, resins, waxes, and sulfur, and in matches, fumigants, and pesticides.

carbon fiber (kär' bən fī' bər) n. An extremely strong thin fiber made by pyrolyzing synthetic fibers, such as rayon, until charred. It is used to make high-strength composites.

car-bon-ic acid (kär-bōn' ik əs' id) n. A weak, unstable acid, H₂CO₃, present in solutions of carbon dioxide in water.

carbonic acid gas (kär-bōn' ik əs' id gās) n. See carbon dioxide.

Car-bon-if-er-ous (kär' bə-nīf' ər-əs) adj. 1. Of, belonging to, or denoting a geologic division of the Paleozoic Era following the Devonian and preceding the Permian, including the Mississippian Period and the Pennsylvanian Period and characterized, especially in the Pennsylvanian, by swamp formation and deposition of plant remains later hardened into coal. 2. carboniferous. Producing or containing carbon or coal. — n. The Carboniferous Period.

car-bo-ni-um (kär-bō' nē-əm) n. An organic cation, such as H₃C, having one less electron than a corresponding free radical and with positive charge localized on the carbon atom.

car-bon-i-za-tion (kär' bə-nī-zā' shən) n. 1. The process of carbonizing.

2. The destructive distillation of bituminous coal, done in the absence of air in order to obtain coke and other fractions having a greater percentage of carbon than the original material.

car-bon-ize (kär' bə-nīz') v. tr. car-bon-ized, car-bon-iz-ing, car-bon-iz-es.

1. To reduce or convert a carbon-containing substance to carbon, as by partial burning. 2. To coat or combine with carbon. —car'bon-iz'er n.

- carbon monoxide (kär'bən mə-nŏk'sīd') n. A colorless, odorless, highly poisonous gas, CO, formed by the incomplete combustion of carbon or a carbonaceous material, such as gasoline.
- car·bon·ni·tro·gen cycle (kär'bən-nī'trə-jən sī'kəl) n. Physics. A chain of thermonuclear reactions in which nitrogen isotopes are formed in intermediate stages and carbon acts essentially as a catalyst to convert four hydrogen atoms into one helium atom with the emission of two positrons. The entire sequence is thought to generate significant amounts of energy in the sun and certain other stars. Also called carbon cycle, nitrogen cycle.
- carbon paper (kär'bən pā'pər) n. A lightweight paper coated on one side with a dark waxy pigment, placed between two sheets of blank paper so that the bottom sheet will receive a copy of what is typed or written on the top sheet.
- carbon process (kär'bən prŏs'ēs') n. A photographic printing process using permanent pigments, such as carbon, contained in a sensitized tissue or film of gelatin.
- carbon star (kär'bən stār) n. Any of a class of stars with high carbon-to-hydrogen ratios and primarily low temperatures.
- carbon tetrachloride (kär'bən tət'rə-klŏr'id') n. A poisonous, nonflammable, colorless liquid, CCl₄, used in fire extinguishers and as a dry-cleaning fluid.
- car·bon·yl (kär'bə-nīl') n. 1. The bivalent radical CO. Also called carbonyl group 2. A metal compound, such as Ni(CO)₄, containing the CO group.
—car'bon·yl'ic adj.
- car·bo·rane (kär'bə-rān') n. Any of a class of stable compounds containing carbon, hydrogen, and boron. [Blend of CARBON, and BORANE.]
- Car·bo·run·dum (kär'bə-rŭn'dəm) A trademark used for an abrasive of silicon carbide crystals.
- carboxy- pref. Carboxyl: carboxyhemoglobin. [From CARBOXYL.]
- car·box·y·he·mo·glo·bin (kär-bŏk'sē-hē'mə-glŏ'bīn) n. The compound that is formed when inhaled carbon monoxide combines with hemoglobin in the blood.
- car·box·yl (kär-bŏk'səl) n. The univalent radical, COOH, the functional group characteristic of all organic acids. [CARB(O)- + OX(Y)- + -YL.] —car'box·yl'ic (-sīl'ik) adj.
- car·box·yl·ase (kär-bŏk'sə-lās', -lāz') n. An enzyme that catalyzes a carboxylation or decarboxylation reaction.
- car·box·yl·a·tion (kär-bŏk'sə-lā'shən) n. The introduction of a carboxyl group into a compound or molecule.
- car·box·yl·ic acid (kär'bŏk-sīl'ik äs'id) n. An organic acid that contains one or more carboxyl groups.

car·box·y·meth·yl·cel·lu·lose (kär-bök'sē-mēth'əl-səl'yə-lōs') n. A derivative of cellulose whose sodium salt is used in the manufacture of processed foods as a stabilizing and emulsifying agent and in medicine as a laxative.

car·box·y·pep·ti·dase (kär-bök'sē-pēp'tī-dās', -dāz') n. An enzyme that catalyzes the hydrolysis of a terminal amino acid from the end of a peptide or polypeptide that contains a free carboxyl group.

car·boy (kär'boi') n. A large glass or plastic bottle, usually encased in a protective basket or crate and often used to hold corrosive liquids. [Persian qarābah, from Arabic qarrābah, big jug.]

car·bun·cle (kär'būng'kəl) n. 1. A painful localized bacterial infection of the skin and subcutaneous tissue that usually has several openings through which pus is discharged. 2. a. A deep-red garnet, unfaceted and convex. b. Obsolete. A red precious stone. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin carbunculus, small glowing ember, carbuncle, diminutive of carbō, carbōn-, coal. See ker⁻³ in Appendix.] —car'bun'cled adj. —car·bun'cu·lar (-kyə-lər) adj.

car·bu·ret (kär'bə-rāt', -rēt', -byə-) v. tr. car·bu·ret·ed or car·bu·ret·ted, car·bu·ret·ing or car·bu·ret·ting, car·bu·rets or car·bu·rets. To combine or mix (a gas, for example) with volatile hydrocarbons, so as to increase available fuel energy. [From carburet, carbide, from French carbure, from Latin carbō, carbon. See CARBON.] —car·bu·re'tion n.

car·bu·re·tor (kär'bə-rā'tər, -byə-) n. A device used in internal-combustion engines to produce an explosive mixture of vaporized fuel and air. [From CARBURET.]

car·bu·rize (kär'bə-rīz', -byə-) v. tr. car·bu·rized, car·bu·riz·ing, car·bu·riz·es. 1. To treat, combine, or impregnate with carbon, as when case-hardening steel. 2. To carburet. [CARBUR(ET) + -IZE.] —car'bu·ri·za'tion (-bər-ī-zā'shən, -byər-) n.

car·ca·jou (kär'kə-jōō', -zhōō') n. See wolverine (n., sense 1). [Canadian French, from Montagnais kuàkuàtsheu.]

car·ca·net (kär'kə-nēt', -nīt) n. Archaic. A jeweled necklace, collar, or headband. [From Old French carcan, collar, perhaps from Medieval Latin carcannum, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

car·cass (kär'kəs) n. 1. The dead body of an animal, especially one slaughtered for food. 2. The body of a human being. See Synonyms at body. 3. Remains from which the substance or character is gone: the carcass of a once glorious empire. 4. A framework or basic structure: the carcass of a burned-out building. [Middle English carcas, from Anglo-Norman carcais, and Medieval Latin carcasium.]

Car·cas·sonne (kär'-kə-sôn', -sôn', -kə-) A city of southern France southeast of Toulouse. Its medieval stronghold is a major tourist attraction. Population, 41,153.

Car-che-mish (kär'kə-mish', kär-kē'mish) An ancient Hittite and Assyrian city on the Euphrates River in present-day southern Turkey. Nebuchadnezzar II defeated the Egyptians here in 605 B.C.

carcino- pref. Cancer; cancerous: carcinogen. [Greek karkino-, from karkinos, crab, cancer. See kar- in Appendix.]

car·cin·o·gen (kär-sin'ə-jən, kär'sə-nə-jěn') n. A cancer-causing substance or agent. —car'ci·no·gen'e·sis (kär'sə-nə-jěn'ī-sīs) n. —car'cin·o·gen'ic (-jěn'ik) adj. —car'ci·no·ge·nic'i·ty (-jə-nīs'ī-tē) n.

car·ci·noid (kär'sə-noid') n. A small tumor, usually found in the gastrointestinal tract, that secretes serotonin.

car·ci·no·ma (kär'sə-nō'mə) n. pl. car·ci·no·mas or car·ci·no·ma·ta (-mə-tə). An invasive malignant tumor derived from epithelial tissue that tends to metastasize to other areas of the body. [Latin, cancerous ulcer, from Greek karkinōma, from karkinos, cancer. See kar- in Appendix.] —car'ci·no'ma·toid (-nō'mə-toid') adj. —car'ci·nom'a·tous (-nōm'ə-təs, -nō'mə-) adj.

car·ci·no·ma·to·sis (kär'sə-nō'mə-tō'sīs) n. A pathological condition characterized by the presence of carcinomas that have metastasized to many parts of the body. [Greek karkinōma, karkinōmat-, cancerous ulcer; see CARCINOMA + -OSIS.]

car coat (kär kōt) n. An overcoat with a length extending to about the middle of the thighs.

card¹ (kärd) n. 1. A flat, usually rectangular piece of stiff paper, cardboard, or plastic, especially: a. One of a set or pack bearing significant numbers, symbols, or figures, used in games and in divination. b. A greeting card. c. A post card. d. One bearing a person's name and other information, used for purposes of identification or classification. e. A business card. f. A credit card. g. A magnetic card. h. One used for recording information in a file: an index card; a recipe card. 2. cards. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Games. a. A game played with cards. b. The playing of games with cards. 3. A program, especially for a sports event. 4. a. A menu, as in a restaurant. b. A wine list. 5. Computer Science. a. A circuit board, especially for use in a microcomputer. b. A punch card. 6. A compass card. 7. Informal. An eccentrically amusing person. 8. Something, such as an advantageous circumstance or tactical maneuver, that can be used to help gain an objective: "[He believed that] Soviet Russia... had far more Iranian cards to play than had the United States" (Theodore Draper). — v. tr. card-ed, card-ing, cards. 1. To furnish with or attach to a card. 2. To list (something) on a card; catalogue. 3. To check the identification of, especially in order to verify legal age. — phrasal verbs. card in. To sign in, as at a place of business, by use of a magnetic card. card out. To sign out, as from a place of business, by use of a magnetic card. — idioms. card up (one's) sleeve. A secret resource or plan held in reserve: a tough negotiator who had a number of cards up his sleeve.

in the cards. Likely or certain to happen: My promotion to a higher position just isn't in the cards. put (one's) cards on the table (or lay (one's) cards on the table). To make frank and clear revelation, as of one's motives or intentions. [Middle English carde, from Old French carte, from Latin charta, paper made from papyrus, from Greek khartēs.]

card² (kärd) n. 1. A wire-toothed brush or a machine fitted with rows of wire teeth, used to disentangle fibers, as of wool, prior to spinning. 2. A device used to raise the nap on a fabric. — v. tr. card-ed, card-ing, cards. To comb out or brush with a card. [Middle English carde, from Medieval Latin cardus, from Latin carduus, thistle.] —card'er n.

Card. abbr. Roman Catholic Church. Cardinal.

car-da-mom (kär'də-məm) or car-da-mon (-mən) n. 1. a. A rhizomatous Indian herb (Elettaria cardamomum) having capsular fruits with aromatic seeds used as a spice or condiment. b. The seed of this plant. 2. Any of several plants of the related genus Amomum, used as a substitute for cardamom. [Middle English cardamome, from Old French cardemome, from Latin cardamōmum, from Greek kardamōmon : kardamon, cress + amōmon, an Indian spice.]

card-board (kärd'börd', -börd') n. A material similar to thick, stiff paper, that is made of pressed paper pulp or pasted sheets of paper. It is used for making cartons and signs, for example. — adj. 1. Made of or consisting of cardboard. 2. a. Flimsy; insubstantial. b. Lacking depth; superficial: a movie with only cardboard caricatures of its historical subjects.

card-car-ry-ing (kärd'kär'ē-īng) adj. 1. Being an enrolled member of a particular organization: a card-carrying Communist. 2. Avidly devoted to a group or cause: card-carrying fitness enthusiasts. [From the assumption that such a person carries a membership card.]

card catalog (kärd kät'l-ôg') n. An alphabetical listing, especially of books in a library, made with a separate card for each item.

Cár-de-nas (kär'dn-äs', -thě-näs') A city of northern Cuba on the Bay of Cárdenas, an inlet of the Straits of Florida. Cárdenas is a processing and shipping center. Population, 59,532.

Cár-de-nas (kär'dn-äs', -thě-näs'), Lázaro. 1895-1970. Mexican soldier and politician who as president (1934-1940) distributed land to peasants, instituted social reforms, and expropriated foreign-held properties.

card-hold-er (kärd'hōl'dər) n. One that holds a card, especially a credit card. —card/hold'ing adj.

cardi- pref. Variant of cardio-.

car-di-a (kär'dē-ə) n. pl. car-di-ae (-dē-ē') or car-di-as. 1. The opening of the esophagus into the stomach. 2. The upper portion of the stomach that adjoins this opening. [Greek kardia, heart, cardiac orifice of the stomach. See kerd- in Appendix.]

car·di·ac (kär'dē-äk') adj. 1. Of, near, or relating to the heart: cardiac arteries. 2. Of or relating to the cardia. — n. A person with a heart disorder. [Middle English, from Latin cardiacus, from Greek kardiakos, from kardia, heart. See kerd- in Appendix.]

cardiac arrest (kär'dē-äk' ə-rĕst') n. Sudden cessation of heartbeat and cardiac function, resulting in the loss of effective circulation.

cardiac glycoside (kär'dē-äk' glī'kə-sīd') n. Any of several glycosides obtained chiefly from plant sources such as the foxglove, used medicinally to increase the force of contraction of heart muscle and to regulate heartbeats.

cardiac massage (kär'dē-äk' mə-sāzh') n. A resuscitative procedure that employs the rhythmic compression of the chest and heart in an effort to restore and maintain the circulation after cardiac arrest or ventricular fibrillation. Also called heart massage cardiac muscle (kär'dē-äk' müs'əl) n. The specialized striated muscle tissue of the heart; the myocardium.

car·di·ae (kär'dē-ē') n. A plural of cardia.

car·di·al·gia (kär'dē-äl'jə, -jē-ə) n. 1. See heartburn. 2. Localized pain in the region of the heart. [Greek kardialgia : kardia, heart; see CARDIA + -algia, -algia.]

Car·diff (kär'dif) The capital and largest city of Wales, in the southeast part of the country on Bristol Channel. It was a prosperous coal-shipping port in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Population, 281,300.

car·di·gan (kär'dī-gən) n. A knitted upper garment, such as a sweater or a jacket, that opens down the front. [After the Seventh Earl of Cardigan, James Thomas Brudenell (1797-1868), British army officer.]

Car·di·gan Bay (kär'dī-gən bā) A wide-mouthed inlet of St. George's Channel on the western coast of Wales.

car·di·nal (kär'dn-əl, kărd'nəl) adj. 1. Of foremost importance; paramount: a cardinal rule; cardinal sins. 2. Color. Dark to deep or vivid red. — n. 1. Abbr. Card.

Roman Catholic Church. A high church official, ranking just below the pope, who has been appointed by a pope to membership in the College of Cardinals. 2. Color. A dark to deep or vivid red. 3. A North American finch (Cardinalis cardinalis) having a crested head, a short, thick bill, and bright red plumage in the male. 4. A short, hooded cloak, originally of scarlet cloth, worn by women in the 18th century. 5. A cardinal number. [Middle English, from Late Latin cardinālis, principal, pivotal, from Latin, serving as a hinge, from cardō, cardin-, hinge.] — car'di-nal-ship' n.

car·di·nal·ate (kär'dn-ə-līt, -lāt', kărd'nə-) n. Roman Catholic Church. 1. The position, rank, dignity, or term of a cardinal. 2. The College of Cardinals.

cardinal flower (kär'dn-əl flou'ər) n. A perennial lobelia (Lobelia cardinalis) native to central and eastern North America, having an elongate cluster of showy, brilliant red flowers.

cardinal number (kär'dn-əl nüm'bər) n. A number, such as 3 or 11 or 412, used in counting to indicate quantity but not order.

cardinal point (kär'dn-əl point) n. One of the four principal directions on a compass: north, south, east, or west.

cardinal virtue (kär'dn-əl vûr'chōō) n. One of the four paramount virtues in classical philosophy: justice, prudence, fortitude, or temperance.

cardio- or cardi- pref. Heart: cardiovascular. [Greek kardio-, from kardia, heart. See kerd- in Appendix.]

car·di·o·ac·cel·er·a·tor (kär'dē-ō'äk-sël'ə-rā'tər) n. An agent, such as a drug, that increases the heart rate. —car'di-o'ac-cel'er-a'tion n.

car·di·o·gen·ic (kär'dē-ō-jěn'ĭk, -jē'nĭk) adj. 1. Having origin in the heart.

2. Resulting from a disease or disorder of the heart.

car·di·o·gram (kär'dē-ə-grām') n. 1. The curve traced by a cardiograph, used in the diagnosis of heart disorders. 2. See electrocardiogram.

car·di·o·graph (kär'dē-ə-grăf') n. 1. An instrument used to record the mechanical movements of the heart. 2. See electrocardiograph.

—car'di-og'ra-phy (-ōg'rə-fē) n.

car·di·oid (kär'dē-oid') n. A heart-shaped plane curve, the locus of a fixed point on a circle that rolls on the circumference of another circle with the same radius.

car·di·ol·o·gy (kär'dē-ōl'ə-jē) n. The medical study of the structure, function, and disorders of the heart. —car'di-o-log'i-cal (-ə-lōj'ĭ-kəl) adj.

—car'di-ol'o-gist n.

car·di·o·meg·a·ly (kär'dē-ō-mëg'ə-lē) n. Enlargement of the heart. Also called megalocardia car·di·o·my·op·a·thy (kär'dē-ō-mī-ōp'ə-thē) n. pl.

car·di·o·my·op·a·thies. A disease or disorder of the heart muscle, especially of unknown or obscure cause.

car·di·op·a·thy (kär'dē-ōp'ə-thē) n. pl. car·di·op·a·thies. A disease or disorder of the heart.

car·di·o·pul·mo·nar·y (kär'dē-ō-pōōl'mə-nēr'ē, -pūl'-) adj. Of, relating to, or involving both the heart and the lungs.

cardiopulmonary bypass (kär'dē-ō-pōōl'mə-nēr'ē bĭ'pās') n. A procedure to circulate and oxygenate the blood while surgery is performed on the heart. It involves the diversion of blood from the heart and lungs through a heart-lung machine and the return of oxygenated blood to the aorta.

cardiopulmonary resuscitation (kär'dē-ō-pōōl'mə-nēr'ē rĭ-sūs'ĭ-tā'shən) n. Abbr. CPR An emergency procedure, often employed after cardiac arrest, in which cardiac massage, artificial respiration, and drugs are used to maintain the circulation of oxygenated blood to the brain.

car·di·o·res·pi·ra·to·ry (kär'dē-ō-rēs'pər-ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, -rī-spīr'ə-) adj. Of or relating to the heart and the respiratory system.

car·di·o·tho·rac·ic (kär'dē-ō-thə-rās'ik) adj. Of or relating to the heart and the chest.

car·di·o·vas·cu·lar (kär'dē-ō-väs'kyə-lər) adj. Abbr. CV Of, relating to, or involving the heart and the blood vessels: cardiovascular disease.

car·di·tis (kär-dī'tis) n. Inflammation of the muscle tissue of the heart.

car·doon (kär-dōon') n. A Mediterranean plant (Cynara cardunculus) closely related to the artichoke, cultivated for its edible leafstalks and roots. [Middle English cardoun, from Old French cardon, from Old Provençal, from Late Latin cardō, cardōn-, from Latin carduus, wild thistle.]

Car·do·zo (kär-dō'zō), Benjamin Nathan. 1870-1938. American jurist and writer who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1932-1938).

card·sharp (kärd'shärp') also card·sharp·er (-shär'pər) n. An expert in cheating at cards. — card'sharp'ing n.

Car·duc·ci (kär-dōō'chē), Giosuè. 1835-1907. Italian poet considered the national poet of modern Italy. He won the 1906 Nobel Prize for literature.

care (kâr) n. 1. A burdened state of mind, as that arising from heavy responsibilities; worry. 2. Mental suffering; grief. 3. An object or source of worry, attention, or solicitude: the many cares of a working parent. 4. Caution in avoiding harm or danger: handled the crystal bowl with care. 5. a. Close attention; painstaking application: painting the window frames and sashes with care. b. Upkeep; maintenance: a product for the care of fine floors; hair care products. 6. Watchful oversight; charge or supervision: left the child in the care of a neighbor.

7. Attentive assistance or treatment to those in need: a hospital that provides emergency care. — v. cared, car·ing, cares. — v. intr. 1. To be concerned or interested: Once inside, we didn't care whether it rained or not. 2. To provide needed assistance or watchful supervision: cared for the wounded; caring for an aged relative at home. 3. To object or mind: If no one cares, I'll smoke. 4. a. To have a liking or attachment: didn't care for the movie. b. To have a wish; be inclined: Would you care for another helping? — v. tr. 1. To wish; desire: Would you care to dance? 2. To be concerned to the degree of: I don't care a bit what critics think. [Middle English, from Old English cearu.]

SYNONYMS: care, charge, custody, keeping, supervision, trust. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “the function of watching, guarding, or overseeing”: left the house keys in my care; has charge of all rare books in the library; had custody of his friend's car during her absence; left the canary in the neighbors' keeping; assuming supervision of the first-grade pupils; documents that were committed to the bank's trust. See also Synonyms at anxiety

USAGE NOTE: It is true that a close examination of the syntax of the phrase I could care less reveals that it ought by rights to mean something like “I care more than I might,” rather than “I don’t care at all.” But while the illogicality of a phrase may be reason enough for excluding it from formal writing, this illogicality cannot be invoked as grounds for keeping it out of the colloquial language, particularly when the phrase is itself an expression of casual indifference. See Usage Note at cannot.

CARE abbr. Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere.

ca·reen (kə-rēn′) v. ca-reened, ca-reen-ing, ca-reens. — v. intr. 1. To lurch or swerve while in motion. 2. To rush headlong or carelessly; career: “He careened through foreign territories on a desperate kind of blitz” (Anne Tyler). 3. Nautical. a. To lean to one side, as a ship sailing in the wind. b. To turn a ship on its side for cleaning, caulking, or repairing. — v. tr. Nautical. 1. To cause (a ship) to lean to one side; tilt. 2. a. To lean (a ship) on one side for cleaning, caulking, or repairing. b. To clean, caulk, or repair (a ship in this position). — n. Nautical. 1. The act or process of careening a ship. 2. The position of a careened ship. [From French (en) carène, (on) the keel, from Old French carene, from Old Italian carena, from Latin carīna. See kar- in Appendix.] — ca-reen′er n.

USAGE NOTE: The implication of rapidity that most often accompanies the use of careen as a verb of motion may have arisen naturally through the extension of the nautical sense of the verb to apply to the motion of automobiles, which generally careen, that is, lurch or tip over, only when driven at high speed. There is thus no reason to conclude that this use of the verb is the result of a confusion of careen with career, “to rush.” Whatever the origin of this use, however, it is by now so well established that it would be pedantic to object to it.

ca·reer (kə-rîr′) n. 1. a. A chosen pursuit; a profession or occupation. b. The general course or progression of one’s working life or one’s professional achievements: an officer with a distinguished career; a teacher in the midst of a long career. 2. A path or course, as of the sun through the heavens. 3. Speed: “My hasting days fly on with full career” (John Milton). — adj. Doing what one does as a permanent occupation or lifework: career diplomats; a career criminal. — v. intr. ca-reered, ca-reer-ing, ca-reers. To move or run at full speed; rush. See Usage Note at careen. [French carrière, from Old French, racecourse, from Old Provençal carriera, street, from Medieval Latin (via) carrāria, (road) for carts, from Latin carrus, a Gallic type of wagon. See kers- in Appendix.]

ca·reer·ism (kə-rîr'îz'əm) n. Pursuit of professional advancement as one's chief or sole aim: "Rampant careerism, which makes many a work place a joyless site, was in check" (Mary McGrory). —ca·reer'ist n.

care-free (kâr'frē') adj. Free of worries and responsibilities.

care-ful (kâr'fəl) adj. 1. Attentive to potential danger, error, or harm; cautious: was careful when crossing the busy street; gave a careful answer. 2. Thorough and painstaking in action or execution; conscientious: a careful search; careful art restorers. 3. Protective; solicitous: Be careful of his feelings. 4. Full of cares or anxiety: "Thou art careful and troubled about many things" (Luke 10:41). —care'ful-ly adv. —care'ful-ness n.

SYNONYMS: careful, heedful, mindful, observant, watchful. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "cautiously attentive": was careful not to get her shoes muddy; heedful of the danger; mindful of his health; observant to avoid giving offense; a watchful nurse tending a critically ill patient. See also Synonyms at meticulous care-giv·er (kâr'gîv'ər) n. 1. An individual, such as a physician, nurse, or social worker, who assists in the identification, prevention, or treatment of an illness or disability. 2. An individual, such as a parent, foster parent, or head of a household, who attends to the needs of a child or dependent adult. —care'giv'ing adj. & n.

ANTONYM: careless

care-less (kâr'lîs) adj. 1. Taking insufficient care; negligent: a careless housekeeper; careless proofreading. 2. Marked by or resulting from lack of forethought or thoroughness: a careless mistake. 3. Showing a lack of consideration: a careless remark. 4. Unconcerned or indifferent; heedless: careless of the consequences. 5. Unstudied or effortless: danced with careless grace. 6. Exhibiting a disposition that is free from cares; cheerful: a careless grin; a careless wave of the hand. —care'less-ly adv. —care'less-ness n.

SYNONYMS: careless, heedless, thoughtless, inadvertent. These adjectives apply to what is marked by insufficient care or attention. Careless often implies negligence: "It is natural for careless writers to run into faults they never think of" (George Berkeley). Heedless suggests often reckless inattentiveness: "We have always known that heedless self-interest was bad morals; we know now that it is bad economics" (Franklin D. Roosevelt). Thoughtless applies to actions taken without due thought or consideration: "At length I recollected the thoughtless saying of a great princess, who, on being informed that the country people had no bread, replied, 'Let them eat cake'" (Jean Jacques Rousseau). Inadvertent is used of actions marked by unintentional lack of care: With an inadvertent gesture she swept the vase off the table onto the floor.

ca·ress (kə-rēs') n. A gentle touch or gesture of fondness, tenderness, or love.
— v. tr. ca·ressed, ca·ress·ing, ca·ress·es. 1. To touch or stroke in an affectionate or loving manner. 2. To touch or move as if with a caress: soft music that caressed the ears. 3. To treat fondly, kindly, or favorably; cherish. [French caresse, from Italian carezza, from caro, dear, from Latin cārus. See kā- in Appendix.]
—ca·ress'er n. —ca·ress'ing·ly adv. —ca·res'sive adj.

SYNONYMS: caress, cuddle, fondle, pet. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to touch or handle affectionately”: caressed the little boy's forehead; cuddled the kitten in her arms; fondling my hand; petting his pony.

car·et (kār'īt) n. A proofreading symbol (^) used to indicate where something is to be inserted in a line of printed or written matter. [Latin, there is lacking, third person sing. present tense of carēre, to lack. See kes- in Appendix.]

care·tak·er (kâr'tā'kər) n. 1. One that is employed to look after or take charge of goods, property, or a person; a custodian. 2. One that temporarily performs the duties of an office: The government resigned, but the premier served as caretaker until new leaders could be elected. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a caretaker government; a caretaker administration.

Ca·rew (kə-rōō'), Thomas. 1595?-1639?. English poet whose amorous, light lyrics were favored by Charles I.

care·worn (kâr'wōrn', -wōrn') adj. Showing the effects of worry, anxiety, or burdensome responsibility: the parent's careworn face. See Synonyms at haggard.

car·fare (kār'fâr') n. The fare charged a passenger, as on a streetcar or bus.

car·go (kār'gō) n. pl. car·goes or car·gos. The freight carried by a ship, an aircraft, or another vehicle. [Spanish, from cargar, to load, from Late Latin carriāre, from Latin carrus, a Gallic type of wagon. See kers- in Appendix.]

car·hop (kār'hōp') n. One who waits on customers at a drive-in restaurant.

Car·i·a (kâr'ē-ə) An ancient region of southwest Asia Minor with a coastline on the Aegean Sea. It was settled by Dorian and Ionian colonists and conquered by Alexander the Great in 334 B.C. —Car'i·an adj. & n.

Car·ib (kār'īb) n. pl. Carib or Car·ibs. 1. Also Car·i·ban (kār'ə-bən, kə-rē'bən'). A member of a group of American Indian peoples of northern South America, the Lesser Antilles, and the eastern coast of Central America. 2. Any of the languages of the Carib. [Spanish Caribe, of Cariban origin.] —Car'ib adj.

Car·i·ban (kār'ə-bən, kə-rē'bən) n. pl. Cariban or Cari·bans. 1. Variant of Carib (n., sense 1). 2. A language family comprising the Carib languages.
—Car'i·ban adj.

Car·ib·be·an (kär'ə-bē'ən, kə-rīb'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to the Caribbean Sea, its islands, or its Central or South American coasts or to the peoples or cultures of this region. 2. Of or relating to the Carib or their language or culture.
— n. A Carib.

Caribbean Sea (kär'ə-bē'ən sē) An arm of the western Atlantic Ocean bounded by the coasts of Central and South America and the West Indies. It has been an important shipping route since the opening of the Panama Canal in 1914. Its many islands and tropical climate make the Caribbean a major tourist area.

ca·ri·be (kə-rē'bē) n. See piranha. [American Spanish, from Spanish Caribe, Carib. See CARIB.]

Car·i·boo Mountains (kär'ə-bōō' moun'tənz) A range of eastern British Columbia, Canada, parallel to and west of the Rocky Mountains. It rises to 3,583.8 m (11,750 ft) at Mount Sir Wilfred Laurier. Gold was discovered in the western foothills in 1860.

car·i·bou (kär'ə-bōō') n. pl. caribou or car·i·bous. Any of several large reindeer native to northern North America. [Micmac ġalipu (influenced by Canadian French caribou, also from Micmac), from Proto-Algonquin mekālixpowa* : mekāl-, to scrape + -ixpo-, snow.]

car·i·ca·ture (kär'i-kə-chōōr', -chər) n. 1. a. A representation, especially pictorial or literary, in which the subject's distinctive features or peculiarities are deliberately exaggerated to produce a comic or grotesque effect. b. The art of creating such representations. 2. A grotesque imitation or misrepresentation: The trial was a caricature of justice. — v. tr. car·i·ca·tured, car·i·ca·tur·ing, car·i·ca·tures. To represent or imitate in an exaggerated, distorted manner. [French, from Italian caricatura, from caricare, to load, to exaggerate, from Late Latin carricāre, from Latin carrus, a Gallic type of wagon. See kers- in Appendix.]
— car'i·ca·tur'ist n.

SYNONYMS: caricature, burlesque, parody, travesty, satire, lampoon. These nouns denote artistic forms in which someone or something is imitated in an amusing and generally critical manner. A caricature grossly exaggerates a distinctive or striking feature, as of a person or group, with intent to ridicule. Burlesque, which usually denotes a stage work, suggests outlandish mimicry and broad comedy to provoke laughter. Parody, travesty, and satire generally apply to written works. Parody is writing that employs the manner and style of a well-known work or writer for a ludicrous effect. A travesty is a harshly distorted imitation. Satire usually involves holding up to ridicule the follies and vices of a people or time. A lampoon is a malicious but broadly humorous satire.

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word caricature takes us back to the Gaulish word ·karros, meaning “a wagon or cart,” which became Latin carrus, “a Gallic type of wagon.” This Latin word has continued to roll through the English language, giving us car, career, cargo, carry, and charge, among others. Caricature, another offspring of carrus, came to us via French from Italian, in which caricatura, the source of the French word, was derived from Italian caricare, “to load, burden, or exaggerate.” Caricare in turn came from Late Latin carricāre, “to load,” derived from the Romans’ Gaulish borrowing carrus.

car·ies (kâr'ēz) n. pl. caries. Decay of a bone or tooth, especially dental caries. [Latin cariēs.]

car·il·lon (kăr'ə-lŏn', -lən) n. Music. 1. A stationary set of chromatically tuned bells in a tower, usually played from a keyboard. 2. A composition written or arranged for these bells. — v. intr. car-il-loned, car-il-lon-ning, car-il-lons. To play a carillon. [French, alteration of Old French quarregnon, from Late Latin quaterniō, quaterniōn-, set of four. See QUATERNION.]

car·il·lon·neur (kăr'ə-lə-nûr') n. Music. A person who plays a carillon. [French, from carillon, carillon. See CARILLON.]

ca·ri·na (kə-rī'nə, -rē'-) n. pl. ca·ri·nae (-nē). A keel-shaped ridge or structure, such as that on the breastbone of a bird or of the fused lower two petals of flowers of many members of the pea family. [Latin carīna, keel. See kar- in Appendix.]

Ca·ri·na (kə-rī'nə) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Volans and Vela that contains the star Canopus. [Latin carīna, keel. See CARINA.]

ca·ri·nae (kə-rī'nē, -rē'-) n. Plural of carina.

car·i·nate (kăr'ə-nāt', -nīt) also car·i·nat·ed (-nā'tīd) adj. Shaped like or having a carina or keel; ridged.

car·ing (kâr'īng) adj. Usage Problem. Feeling and exhibiting concern and empathy for others: “We formed Generations United to argue for a caring society” (Jack Ossofsky).

USAGE NOTE: Some critics have objected to the use of caring as an adjective, perhaps because it appears to treat compassion as a chronic condition. The acceptability of the usage may therefore vary according to the relation between the source and object of the caring. Thus 74 percent of the Usage Panel accepts the sentence A child has a right to certain things: a secure home, a healthful environment, and caring parents. A smaller majority, 58 percent, accepts We are looking for a few caring people to help with this program, where the adjective appears to ascribe an indiscriminating disposition to care about whatever object of concern may present itself. Finally, only 29 percent of the Panel accepts A child has the right to grow up in a healthful, caring environment, where caring is applied to circumstances rather than to persons.

Ca·rin·thi·a (kə-rĭn'thē-ə) A region and former duchy of central Europe in southern Austria. It was part of the Hapsburg domains after 1335.

—Ca·rin'thi·an adj.

Car·i·o·ca (kär'ē-ō'kə) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

2. carioca. a. A dance similar to the samba. b. The music for this dance. [Portuguese, of Tupian origin.] —Car'i·o'can adj.

car·i·ole also car·ri·ole (kär'ē-ōl') n. 1. A small, open, two- or four-wheeled carriage drawn by one horse. 2. A light covered cart. [French carriole, from Old Provençal carriola, diminutive of carri, chariot, from Latin carrus, a Gallic type of wagon. See kers- in Appendix.]

car·i·ous (kâr'ē-əs) adj. Having caries, especially of the teeth; decayed.

—car'i·os'i·ty (-ös'ĭ-tē), car'i·ous·ness n.

car·jack (kär'jäk') v. tr. car-jacked, car-jack-ing, car-jacks. To commit forcible theft of (a vehicle) from its users. [CAR + (HI)JACK.]

cark (kärk) v. tr. intr. carked, cark-ing, carks. To burden or be burdened with trouble; worry. — n. A worry; a trouble: carks and cares. [Middle English carcken, from Norman French carquier, to burden, load, from Late Latin carricāre. See CARGO.]

Carl XVI Gus·tav (kär'l güs'täv, -täf, göös'-), Born 1946. King of Sweden (since 1973). He succeeded his grandfather Gustavus VI.

Carle·ton (kär'l'tən), Sir Guy First Baron Dorchester. 1724-1808. British general and colonial administrator who repelled an American attack on Quebec (1775-1776) and captured the fort at Crown Point, New York (1776).

car·line or car·lin (kär'lĭn) n. Scots. A woman, especially an old one. [Middle English kerling, from Old Norse, from karl, man.]

car·ling (kär'lĭng, -lĭn) n. Nautical. One of the short timbers running fore and aft that connect the transverse beams supporting the deck of a ship. [Middle English, from Old French calingue, and from Old Norse kerling, old woman (Old French, from Old Norse).]

Car·lisle (kär-lĭl', kär'lĭl') 1. A borough of northwest England near the Scottish border. Mary Queen of Scots was imprisoned in Carlisle's 11th-century castle from May to July 1568. Population, 71,200. 2. A borough of southern Pennsylvania west-southwest of Harrisburg. It was a headquarters for George Washington during the Whiskey Rebellion of 1794. Population, 18,419.

Car·list (kär'lĭst) n. A supporter of Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, or his heirs. —Car'lĭst adj.

car·load (kär'lōd') n. Abbr. c.l. 1. The quantity that a car can hold. 2. The official minimum weight necessary to ship freight at a reduced rate.

Car·los (kär'ləs, -lōs), Don Count of Molina. 1788-1855. Spanish pretender to the throne who claimed the title (1833) when his brother Ferdinand VII's daughter Isabella II inherited the crown because of Ferdinand's abrogation (1830) of the ancient Salic law prohibiting women from succeeding to the throne. Don Carlos waged an unsuccessful civil war until 1840. His claim was later revived by his heirs in 1860, 1869, and 1872.

Carlos de Aus-tri-a (kär'ləs dī ô'strē-ə, thĕ ou'strē-ä), Don. 1545-1568. Heir to the Spanish throne who died mysteriously after being convicted of conspiring to kill his father, Philip II, who intended to name a new heir.

Car-lo-ta (kär-lô'tə), 1840-1927. Belgian-born empress of Mexico (1864-1867) as the wife of Archduke Maximilian of Austria.

Car-lo-vin-gian (kär'lə-vīn'jən, -jē-ən) adj. & n. Variant of Carolingian.

Carls-bad (kärlz'bäd') 1. A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean north-northwest of San Diego. It is a health resort and manufacturing center. Population, 63,126. 2. A city of southeast New Mexico on the Pecos River near the Texas border. Large deposits of potash were discovered in the vicinity in 1931. Population, 24,952. 3. (also kärls'bät') See Karlovy Vary.

Carlsbad Caverns (kärlz'bäd' käv'ərnz) A group of limestone caverns in the Guadalupe Mountains of southeast New Mexico including spectacular stalactite and stalagmite formations.

Carl-son (kär'l'sən), Chester Floyd. 1906-1968. American inventor of the xerographic process for copying documents (first patented in 1940).

Carls-ru-he (kärlz'rōō'ə, kärls'-) See Karlsruhe.

Carl-ton (kär'l'tən) A city of central England, an industrial suburb of Nottingham. Population, 104,300.

Car-lyle (kär-līl', kär'līl), Thomas. 1795-1881. British historian and essayist whose works, such as The French Revolution (1837), are characterized by his trenchant social and political criticism and his complex literary style.

car-mak-er (kär'mā'kər) n. A manufacturer of automotive vehicles, such as cars, trucks, and vans.

Car-man (kär'mən), (William) Bliss. 1861-1929. Canadian poet noted for his ebullient nature poems, including the collection Low Tide on Grand Pré (1893).

Car-mar-then (kär-mär'thən) A municipal borough of southern Wales. One of the oldest towns in Wales, it was built on the site of a Roman fort. Population, 12,302.

Car-me (kär'mē) n. The satellite of Jupiter that is 15th in distance from the planet. [Greek Karmē, mother by Zeus of Britomartis, a Cretan goddess.]

Car-mel 1. (kär-mēl') or Also Car-mel-by-the-Sea (-bī-thə-sē') A city of western California on Carmel Bay at the southern end of the Monterey Peninsula. It is an artists' and writers' colony and a popular tourist spot. Population, 4,707. 2. (kär'məl) A city of central Indiana, a suburb of Indianapolis. Population, 25,380.

Car-mel (kär'məl), Mount. A limestone ridge of northwest Israel extending about 24 km (15 mi) from the Plain of Esdraelon northwest to the Mediterranean Sea. It rises to approximately 546 m (1,790 ft).

Car-mel-ite (kär'mə-līt') n. 1. A monk or mendicant friar belonging to the order of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, founded in 1155. Also called White Friar. 2. A member of a community of nuns of this order, founded in 1452.

—Car'mel-ite' adj.

Car-mi-chael (kär'mī-kəl) An unincorporated community of north-central California, a residential suburb of Sacramento. Population, 48,702.

Car-mi-chael (kär'mī-kəl), Hoagland Howard. Known as “Hoagy.” 1899-1981. American songwriter whose many popular works include “Stardust” (1929) and “Georgia on My Mind” (1930).

car-min-a-tive (kär-mīn'ə-tīv, kär'mə-nā'-) adj. Inducing the expulsion of gas from the stomach and intestines. — n. A drug or agent that induces the expulsion of gas from the stomach or intestines. [Middle English carminatīf, from Old French, from Latin carminātus, past participle of carmināre, to card wool, from carmen*, card for wool, from cārere, to card.]

car-mine (kär'mīn, -mīn') n. 1. Color. A strong to vivid red. 2. A crimson pigment derived from cochineal. — adj. Color. Strong to vivid red. [French carmin, from Medieval Latin carminium, probably blend of Arabic qirmiz, kermes; see KERMES, and Latin minium, cinnabar; see MINIMUM.]

Car-mo-na (kär-mō'nə), Antonio Oscar de Fragoso. 1869-1951. President of Portugal (1928-1951) who was a largely symbolic leader during the dictatorial reign of Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

Car-nac (kär'nāk, kär-nāk') A small village in northwest France on the coast of Brittany. It is famous for its prehistoric megalithic monuments that extend in parallel rows. —Car-na'cian (-nā'shən) adj.

car-nage (kär'nīj) n. 1. Massive slaughter, as in war; a massacre. 2. Corpses, especially of those killed in battle. [French, from Old French, from Old Italian carnaggio, from Medieval Latin carnāticum, meat, from Latin carō, carn-, flesh. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

car-nal (kär'nəl) adj. 1. Relating to the physical and especially sexual appetites: carnal desire. 2. Worldly or earthly; temporal: the carnal world. 3. Of or relating to the body or flesh; bodily: carnal remains. [Middle English, from Old North French carnele, from Latin carnālis, from Latin carō, carn-, flesh. See sker-¹ in Appendix.] —car-nal'i-ty (kär-nāl'ī-tē) n. —car'nal-ly adv.

carnal knowledge (kär'nəl nōl'ij) n. Sexual intercourse.

car-nall-ite (kär'nə-līt') n. A white, brownish, or reddish mineral, $KCl \cdot MgCl_2 \cdot 6H_2O$, an ore of potassium, used to manufacture potash salts. [After Rudolf von Carnall (1804-1874), German mining engineer.]

car·nas·si·al (kär-näs'ē-əl) adj. Adapted for tearing apart flesh: carnassial teeth. — n. A tooth adapted for tearing apart flesh, especially one of the last upper premolar or first lower molar teeth in carnivorous mammals. [From French carnassier, carnivorous, from Provençal, from carnasso, meat in abundance, from carn, flesh, from Latin carō, carn-. See sker-1 in Appendix.]

car·na·tion (kär-nā'shən) n. 1. a. Any of numerous cultivated forms of a perennial plant (Dianthus caryophyllus) having showy, variously colored, usually double, often fragrant flowers with fringed petals. b. A flower of this plant. Also called clove pink 2. A pinkish tint once used in painting. [From obsolete French, flesh-colored, from Old French (from Old Italian carnagione, skin, complexion, from carne, flesh), or from Late Latin carnātiō, carnātiōn-, flesh both from Latin carō, carn-. See sker-1 in Appendix.]

car·nau·ba (kär-nô'bə, -nou'-, -nōō'-) n. 1. A Brazilian palm tree (Copernicia prunifera) having densely waxy, fan-shaped leaves and toothed leafstalks. 2. A hard wax obtained from the leaves of this plant and used especially in polishes and floor waxes. In this sense, also called carnauba wax [Portuguese, from Tupi carnaúba.]

Car·ne·gie (kär'nə-gē, kär-nā'gē, -nĕg'ē), Andrew. 1835-1919. Scottish-born American industrialist and philanthropist who amassed a fortune in the steel industry and donated millions of dollars for the benefit of the public.

Car·ne·gie (kär'nə-gē), Dale. 1888-1955. American educator known for his self-improvement book How to Win Friends and Influence People (1936).

car·nel·ian (kär-nĕl'yən) also cor·nel·ian (kôr-) n. A pale to deep red or reddish-brown variety of clear chalcedony, used in jewelry. [Middle English corneline, from Old French, from cornel, cornel, from Latin cornus.]

car·net (kär-nā') n. 1. An official pass or permit, especially one for crossing national boundaries. 2. A book of postage stamps. [French, notebook, carnet, from Old French quernet, pocket notebook, from quaer, quire. See QUIRE1.]

car·ney (kär'nē) n. Informal. Variant of carny.

Car·nic Alps (kär'nĭk äłps) A range of the eastern Alps in southern Austria and northeast Italy rising to about 2,782 m (9,121 ft).

Car·ni·o·la (kär'nĕ-ō'lə, kärn-yō'l-) A mountainous region of northwest Yugoslavia. The earliest inhabitants, a Celtic people, were displaced by the Romans, who in turn were overrun by Slovenes in the sixth century A.D. —Car'nĭo'lan adj. & n.

car·ni·tine (kär'nĭ-tĕn') n. A betaine commonly occurring in the liver and in skeletal muscle that functions in fatty acid transport across mitochondrial membranes. [German Karnitin, from Karnin, a basic substance derived from meat, from Latin caro, carn-, flesh. See CARNAL.]

car·ni·val (kär'nə-vəl) n. 1. a. A festival marked by merrymaking and feasting during the season just before Lent. b. Merrymaking and feasting just before

Lent. 2. A traveling amusement show usually including rides, games, and side-shows. 3. A festival or revel: winter carnival. [Italian carnevale, from Old Italian carnelevare, Shrovetide : carne, meat (from Latin carō, carn-); see sker-¹ in Appendix + levare, to remove (from Latin levāre, to raise); see leg^{wh}- in Appendix.]

car·ni·vore (kär'nə-vôr', -vôr') n. 1. A flesh-eating animal. 2. Any of various predatory, flesh-eating mammals of the order Carnivora, including the dogs, cats, bears, weasels, hyenas, and raccoons. 3. An insectivorous plant. [From French, meat-eating, from Latin carnivorus. See CARNIVOROUS.]

car·niv·o·rous (kär-niv'ər-əs) adj. 1. Of or relating to carnivores. 2. Flesh-eating or predatory: a carnivorous bird. 3. Botany. Capable of trapping insects or other small organisms and absorbing nutrients from them; insectivorous. [From Latin carnivorus : carō, carn-, flesh; see sker-¹ in Appendix + -vorus, -vorous.] —car·niv·o·rous·ly adv. —car·niv·o·rous·ness n.

Car-not (kär-nō'), Lazare Nicolas Marguerite. 1753-1823. French military strategist for the Republican armies during the French Revolution. He later held high positions under Napoleon I.

Car-not (kär-nō'), (Marie François) Sadi. 1837-1894. French politician who served as president (1887-1894) of the Third Republic and was assassinated by an anarchist.

Car-not (kär-nō'), Nicolas Léonard Sadi. 1796-1832. French physicist and engineer who founded the science of thermodynamics.

car·no·tite (kär'nə-tīt') n. A yellow ore of uranium and radium with composition $K(VO_2)_2(VO_4)_2 \cdot 3H_2O$. [French, after Marie Adolphe Carnot (died 1920), French mining engineer.]

car·ny also car·ney (kär'nē) n. pl. car·nies also car·neys. Informal. 1. A carnival. 2. A person who works with a carnival.

car·ob (kär'əb) n. 1. An eastern Mediterranean evergreen tree (Ceratonia siliqua) in the pea family, having pinnately compound leaves and large, dark, leathery pods. 2. The pod of this plant, containing a sweet edible pulp and seeds that yield a gum used as a stabilizer in food products. Also called algarroba. 3. An edible powder or flour made from the ground seeds and pods of this plant, often used as a substitute for chocolate. [Middle English carabe, from Old French carobe, from Medieval Latin carrūbium, from Arabic ḥarrūbah.]

ca·roche (kə-rōch', -rōsh') n. A stately carriage of the late 16th and 17th centuries. [Obsolete French carroche, from Old Italian carrozza, ultimately from carro, cart, from Latin carrus, a Gallic type of wagon. See kers- in Appendix.]

car·ol (kär'əl) n. 1. Music. A song of praise or joy, especially for Christmas. 2. An old round dance often accompanied by singing. — v. car·oled also car·olled, car·ol·ing also car·ol·ling, car·ols also car·ols. — v. intr. 1. To sing in a loud, joyous manner. 2. To go from house to house singing Christmas songs. — v. tr. 1. To celebrate in or as if in song: caroling the victory. 2. To sing loudly and joyously. [Middle English carole, a kind of round dance with singing, from Old French carole, probably from Late Latin choraula, choral song, from Latin choraulēs, accompanist, from Greek khoraulēs: khoros, choral dance; see CHORUS + aulos, flute.] —car'ol-er n.

Car-ol II (kă'r'əl), 1893-1953. King of Romania (1930-1940) who renounced his right of succession (1925) because of his love for a commoner, Magda Lupescu (1896?-1977), but reclaimed the throne in 1930. In 1940 he was ousted by a Nazi-influenced revolt.

Carol City (kă'r'əl sīt'ē) An unincorporated community of southeast Florida northwest of Miami Beach. It is mainly residential. Population, 53,331.

Car-o-le-an (kă'r'ə-lē'ən) adj. Of or relating to Charles I or Charles II of England. [From Medieval Latin Carolus, Charles.]

Ca-ro-li-na 1. (kă'r'ə-lī'nə) An English colony of southeastern North America, first settled in 1653 and divided into North Carolina and South Carolina in 1729.

2. (kă'r'ô-lē'nä) A city of northeast Puerto Rico east-southeast of San Juan. It is a processing center with a textile industry. Population, 147,835.

Carolina allspice (kă'r'ə-lī'nə ôl'spīs') n. A species of sweet shrub (Calycanthus floridus) native chiefly to the southeast United States. Also called strawberry shrub Carolina jasmine also Carolina jessamine (kă'r'ə-lī'nə jăz'mĭn) n. Any of several poisonous, woody, evergreen vines of the genus Gelsemium, especially G. sempervirens, of the southeast United States, having fragrant, yellow, funnel-shaped flowers. Also called Carolina yellow jasmine, evening trumpet flower, jasmine, yellow jessamine.

Ca-ro-li-nas (kă'r'ə-lī'nəz) The colonies (after 1729) or present-day states of North Carolina and South Carolina.

Carolina yellow jasmine (kă'r'ə-lī'nə yĕl'ō jăz'mĭn) n. See Carolina jasmine.

Car-o-line (kă'r'ə-lĭn', -lĭn) adj. Relating to the life and times of Charles I or Charles II of England. [Medieval Latin Carolĭnus, from Carolus, Charles.]

Caroline Islands (kă'r'ə-lĭn' ī'ləndz) An archipelago of the western Pacific Ocean east of the Philippines. The islands were controlled successively by Spain, Germany, and Japan before being included in the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands in 1947.

Caroline of Bruns-wick (kă'r'ə-lĭn' ūv brŭnz'wĭk), 1768-1821. Consort of George IV of Great Britain. She married the Prince of Wales in 1795 but separated from him in 1796 and spent most of her time abroad until he succeeded to the throne in 1820. George then attempted to divorce her, and although the suit was dropped, Caroline was forcibly excluded from the coronation in July 1821.

Car·o·lin·gian (kǎr'ə-lĭn'-jən, -jē-ən) also Car·lo·vin·gian (kǎr'lə-vĭn'jən, -jē-ən) adj. Of or relating to the Frankish dynasty that was founded by Pepin the Short in 751 and that lasted until 987 in France and 911 in Germany. — n. A member of the Carolingian dynasty. [French Carolingien, alteration of Carlovingien, blend of Medieval Latin Carolus, Charles,, and French Mérovingien, Merovingian.]

Car·o·lin·i·an (kǎr'ə-lĭn'ē-ən) adj. 1. Caroline. 2. Of or relating to Charlemagne and his times. 3. Of or relating to Carolina or the Carolinas. — n. A native or inhabitant of Carolina or the Carolinas.

Carol Stream (kǎr'əl strēm) A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 31,716.

car·om (kǎr'əm) n. 1. A collision followed by a rebound. 2. Games. a. A shot in billiards in which the cue ball successively strikes two other balls. Also called billiard b. A similar shot in a related game, such as pool. — v. car·omed, car·om·ing, car·oms. — v. intr. 1. To collide and rebound; glance: The car caromed off the guard rail into the ditch. 2. Games. To make a carom, as in billiards. — v. tr. To cause to carom. [Short for carambole, a stroke at billiards, from French, a billiard ball, from Spanish carambola, a stroke at billiards, perhaps from Portuguese, carambola. See CARAMBOLA.]

Ca·ro·ní (kǎr'ə-nē') A river rising in southeast Venezuela near the Guyana border and flowing 885 km (550 mi) northward to join the Orinoco River.

car·o·tene (kǎr'ə-tēn') also car·o·tin (-tĭn) n. An orange-yellow to red crystalline pigment, C₄₀H₅₆, found in animal tissue and certain plants, such as carrots and squash. It exists in three isomeric forms and is converted to vitamin A in the liver. [German Karotin, from Latin carōta, carrot. See CARROT.]

car·o·te·ne·mi·a (kǎr'ə-tə-nē'mē-ə) n. The presence of excess carotene in the blood, often resulting in yellowing of the skin.

ca·rot·e·noid (kə-rōt'n-oid') n. Any of a class of yellow to red pigments, including the carotenes and the xanthophylls. — adj. Of or relating to such a pigment.

Ca·roth·ers (kə-rŭth'ərz), Wallace Hume. 1896-1937. American chemist who developed the synthetic material nylon, which was patented in 1937.

ca·rot·id (kə-rōt'ĭd) n. Either of the two major arteries, one on each side of the neck, that carry blood to the head. — adj. Of or relating to either of these arteries. [French carotide, from Greek karōtides, carotid arteries, from karoun, to stupefy. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

carotid body (kə-rōt'ĭd bōd'ē) n. A chemoreceptor located near the bifurcations of the carotid arteries that monitors changes in the oxygen content of the blood and helps control respiratory activity.

carotid sinus (kə-rōt'īd sī'nəs) n. A dilated area located at the bifurcations of the carotid arteries and containing numerous baroreceptors that function in the control of blood pressure by mediating changes in the heart rate.

car·o·tin (kär'ə-tīn) n. Variant of carotene.

ca·rous·al (kə-rou'zəl) n. A riotous drinking party; boisterous merrymaking; revelry.

ca·rouse (kə-rouz') n. Boisterous, drunken merrymaking; a carousal. — v. intr. ca-roused, ca-rousing, ca-rouses. 1. To engage in boisterous, drunken merrymaking. 2. To drink excessively. [German garaus, all out, drink up : gar, completely (from Middle High German, from Old High German garo) + aus, out, up (from Middle High German ūz, from Old High German ūz); see ud- in Appendix.] —ca-rous'er n.

WORD HISTORY: The origin of the word carouse can be found in a German interjection that meant “time to leave the bar.” German garaus, which is derived from the phrase gar (“all”) aus (“out”), meaning “all out,” then came to mean “drink up, bottoms up,” and “a last drink before closing time.” The English borrowed this noun, with the meaning “the practice of sitting around drinking until closing time,” sometimes spelling the word garaus but usually spelling it closer to the way it is spelled today. Soon after the word is first recorded as a noun in 1559, we find the verb carouse, in 1567.

car·ou·sel or car·rou·sel (kär'ə-səl', -zəl') n. 1. A merry-go-round, as one at an amusement park. 2. A circular conveyor on which objects are displayed or rotated: a baggage carousel in an airport. 3. A tournament in which knights or horsemen engaged in various exercises and races. [French carrousel, tilting match, carousel, from Italian carosello, tilting match.]

carp¹ (kärp) v. intr. carped, carp-ing, carps. To find fault in a disagreeable way; complain fretfully. See Synonyms at quibble. [Middle English carpen, from Old Norse karpa, to boast.] —carp'er n.

carp² (kärp) n. pl. carp or carps. 1. An edible freshwater fish (Cyprinus carpio) of Europe and Asia that is frequently bred in ponds and lakes. 2. Any of various fishes of the family Cyprinidae. [Middle English carpe, from Old French carpe, from Medieval Latin carpa, of Germanic origin.]

-carp suff. Fruit; part of a fruit; fruitlike structure: mesocarp. [New Latin -carpium, from Greek -karpion, from karpos, fruit. See kerp- in Appendix.]

car·pac·cio (kär-pä'chō) n. Very thinly sliced raw beef or tuna garnished with a sauce. [Italian, after Vittore CARPACCIO, who favored red pigments.]

Car·pac·cio (kär-pä'chē-ō, -chō), Vittore. 1460?-1525?. Italian painter noted for his vivid narrative series on religious subjects.

car·pal (kär'pəl) adj. Of, relating to, or near the carpus. — n. A bone of the carpus. [New Latin carpālis, from Greek karpos, wrist.]

Car·pa·thi·an Mountains (kär-pā'thē-ən moun'tənz) A major mountain system of central Europe in Slovakia, southern Poland, western Ukraine, and northeast Romania. Extending in an arc about 2,253 km (1,400 mi) long, the range links the Alps with the Balkan Mountains and is a popular year-round resort area.

car·pe di·em (kär'pě dē'ēm', -əm, dī'-) n. The admonition to seize the pleasures of the moment without thought for the future. [Latin : carpe, seize + diem, day.]

car·pel (kär'pəl) n. One of the structural units of a pistil, representing a modified, ovule-bearing leaf. [New Latin carpellum, from Greek karpos, fruit. See kerp- in Appendix.] — car'pel·lar'y (-pə-lēr'ē) adj.

car·pel·late (kär'pə-lāt', -līt) adj. Botany. Having carpels; pistillate.

Car·pen·tar·i·a (kär'pən-târ'ē-ə), Gulf of. A wide inlet of the Arafura Sea indenting the northern coast of Australia.

car·pen·ter (kär'pən-tər) n. A skilled worker who makes, finishes, and repairs wooden objects and structures. — v. car·pen·tered, car·pen·ter·ing, car·pen·ters. — v. tr. To make, finish, or repair (wooden structures). — v. intr. To work as a carpenter. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin carpentārius (artifex), (maker) of a carriage, from carpentum, a two-wheeled carriage. See kers- in Appendix.] — car'pen·try (-trē) n.

carpenter ant (kär'pən-tər änt) n. Any of various large ants of the genus Camponotus that nest in and are destructive to wood.

carpenter bee (kär'pən-tər bē) n. Any of various solitary bees of the family Apidae that bore tunnels into wood to lay their eggs.

Car·pen·ters·ville (kär'pən-tərz-vīl') A village of northeast Illinois west-northwest of Chicago. It was settled in 1834. Population, 23,049.

car·pet (kär'pīt) n. 1. a. A thick, heavy covering for a floor, usually made of woven wool or synthetic fibers; a rug. b. The fabric used for this floor covering. 2. A surface or surface covering that is similar to a rug: a carpet of leaves and pine needles on the forest floor. — v. tr. car·pet·ed, car·pet·ing, car·pets. To cover with or as if with a carpet: carpet the stairs; snow that carpeted the sidewalks.

—idiom. on the carpet. 1. In a position of being reprimanded by one in authority: was called on the carpet for cheating. 2. Under discussion or consideration: Several important matters will be on the carpet at today's meeting. [Middle English, from Old French carpite, from Medieval Latin carpita, from Old Italian carpita, from carpire, to pluck, from Latin carpere. See kerp- in Appendix.]

car·pet·bag (kär'pīt-bäg') n. A traveling bag made of carpet fabric that was used chiefly in the United States during the 19th century. — adj. Of or relating to carpetbaggers.

car·pet·bag·ger (kär'pīt-bäg'ər) n. 1. A Northerner who went to the South after the Civil War for political or financial advantage. 2. An outsider, especially a politician, who presumptuously seeks a position or success in a new locality. [So called because they carried their belongings in a carpetbag.] —car'pet·bag'ger·y n.

carpet beetle (kär'pīt bēt'l) n. Any of various small beetles of the genera Anthrenus and Attagenus having larvae that are injurious to fabrics and furs. Also called buffalo bug car·pet·bomb (kär'pīt-böm') v. tr. intr. car·pet·bombed, car·pet·bomb·ing, car·pet·bombs. To bomb in a systematic and extensive pattern, so as to devastate a large target area uniformly. —car'pet·bomb'ing n.

carpet grass or car·pet·grass (kär'pīt-gräs') n. Any of several coarse, sod-forming grasses of the chiefly New World genus Axonopus, especially A. affinis, cultivated for turf and pasture in warm, humid regions.

car·pet·ing (kär'pī-tīng) n. 1. Material used for carpets. 2. A carpet or carpets.

car·pet·weed (kär'pīt-wēd') n. A prostrate, mat-forming annual plant (Mollugo verticillata) widespread as a weed throughout North America and having whorled leaves and small, greenish-white flowers.

car·pi (kär'pī') n. Plural of carpus.

Car·pi (kär'pē) A city of northern Italy north of Modena. It is a rail junction and processing center. Population, 52,400.

-carpic suff. Variant of -carpous.

carp·ing (kär'pīng) adj. Naggingly critical or complaining. —carp'ing·ly adv.

carpo- pref. Fruit: carpophore. [Greek karpo-, from karpos, fruit. See kerp- in Appendix.]

car pool (kär pōol) n. 1. An arrangement whereby several participants or their children travel together in one vehicle, the participants sharing the costs and often taking turns providing the vehicle and driver. 2. A group, as of commuters or parents, participating in a car pool.

car·pool (kär'pōol') v. car·pooled, car·pool·ing, car·pools. — v. intr. To travel in a car pool. — v. tr. To transport by means of a car pool: car·pool the children to school. —car'pool'er n.

car·poph·a·gous (kär-pōf'ə-gəs) adj. Feeding on fruit; fruit-eating.

car·po·phore (kär'pə-fôr', -fôr') n. A slender stalk that supports each half of a dehisced fruit in many members of the parsley family.

car·port (kär'pōrt', -pōrt') n. An open-sided shelter for an automotive vehicle, formed by a roof projecting from the side of a building.

-carpous or -carpic suff. A specified number or kind of carpel or fruit: apocarpous. [From New Latin -carpus, from Greek karpos, fruit. See kerp- in Appendix.]

car·pus (kär'pəs) n. pl. car·pi (-pī'). 1. The group of eight bones forming the joint between the forearm and the hand. Also called wrist 2. A joint in quadrupeds corresponding to the wrist. [New Latin, from Greek karpos, wrist.]

Car·rac·ci (kə-rä'chē, kä-rät'-) Family of Bolognese painters, including Agostino (1557-1602), his brother Annibale (1560-1609), and their cousin Lodovico (1555-1619). Their works and influence led a reform of Mannerism that provided a transition to the baroque style.

car·rack also car·ack (kär'ək) n. Nautical. A large galleon used in the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries. [Middle English carike, from Medieval Latin carrica, and from Old French caraque (from Old Spanish carraca) both from Arabic qarāqīr, pl. of qurqūr.]

car·ra·geen also car·ra·gheen (kär'ə-gēn') n. See Irish moss. [After Carraheen, a village of southeast Ireland.]

car·ra·geen·an also car·ra·geen·in (kär'ə-gē'nən) n. Any of a group of closely related colloids derived from Irish moss and several other red algae, widely used as a thickening, stabilizing, emulsifying, or suspending agent in industrial, pharmaceutical, and food products.

car·ra·gheen (kär'ə-gēn') n. Variant of carrageen.

Car·ran·tuo·hill (kär'ən-tōō'əl) The highest mountain of Ireland, rising to 1,041.3 m (3,414 ft) in the southwest part of the country in Macgillicuddy's Reeks.

Car·ran·za (kə-rän'zə, kä-rän'sä), Venustiano. 1859-1920. Mexican revolutionary politician who was the first president (1915-1920) of the new Mexican Republic after the overthrow of dictator Porfirio Díaz (1911).

Car·ra·ra (kə-rär'ə, kä-rä'rä) A city of northern Italy near the Ligurian Sea east of Genoa. It is famous for the white marble quarried nearby that was favored by Michelangelo. Population, 68,460.

car·re·four (kär'ə-fōōr') n. 1. A crossroads. 2. A public square; a plaza. [French, from Old French carrefor, from Latin quadrifurcus, four-forked : quadri-, quadri- + furca, fork.]

car·rel also car·rell (kär'əl) n. A partially partitioned nook in or near the stacks in a library, used for private study. [Middle English carole, round dance ring, circle, stall for study. See CAROL.]

Car·rel (kə-rěl', kä'r'əl), Alexis. 1873-1944. French-born American surgeon and biologist. He won a 1912 Nobel Prize for his work on vascular ligation and grafting of blood vessels and organs.

Car·rère (kə-râr'), John Mervin. 1858-1911. American architect who with his partner Thomas Hastings designed the office buildings of the U.S. Senate (1905) and House of Representatives (1906) and the New York Public Library (1897-1911).

car-riage (kăř'ij) n. 1. A wheeled vehicle, especially a four-wheeled horse-drawn passenger vehicle, often of an elegant design. 2. Chiefly British. A railroad passenger car. 3. A baby carriage. 4. A wheeled support or frame for carrying a heavy object, such as a cannon. 5. A moving part of a machine for holding or shifting another part: the carriage of a typewriter. 6. a. The act or process of transporting or carrying. b. (kăř'ē-ij) The cost of or the charge for transporting. 7. The manner of holding and moving one's head and body; bearing. See Synonyms at posture. 8. Archaic. Management; administration. [Middle English cariage, from Norman French, from carier, to carry. See CARRY.] carriage dog (kăř'ij dôg) n. See Dalmatian (n., sense 2).

carriage trade (kăř'ij trād) n. Wealthy patrons or customers, as of a store.

car-rick bend (kăř'ik bënd) n. Nautical. A type of knot used to fasten two cables or hawsers together. [From obsolete carrick, variant of CARRACK.]

carrick bitt (kăř'ik bīt) n. Nautical. Either of the two posts that support the windlass on a ship's deck. [Probably from obsolete carrick, variant of CARRACK.]

car-ri-er (kăř'ē-ər) n. 1. One that transports or conveys: baggage carriers; a message carrier. 2. One, such as a person, a business, or an organization, that deals in the transport of passengers or goods. 3. A mechanism or device by which something is conveyed or conducted. 4. Medicine. A person or an animal that shows no symptoms of a disease but harbors the infectious agent of that disease and is capable of transmitting it to others. 5. Genetics. An individual that carries one gene for a particular recessive trait. A carrier does not express the trait but, when mated with another carrier, can produce offspring that do. 6. Electronics. a. A carrier wave. b. A charge-carrying entity, especially an electron or a hole in a semiconductor. 7. An aircraft carrier. 8. A telecommunications company.

carrier pigeon (kăř'ē-ər pīj'ən) n. 1. A homing pigeon, especially one trained to carry messages. 2. Any of various large domestic pigeons having a prominent wattle.

carrier wave (kăř'ē-ər wāv) n. An electromagnetic wave that can be modulated, as in frequency, amplitude, or phase, to transmit speech, music, images, or other signals.

car-ri-ole (kăř'ē-ōl') n. Variant of cariole.

car-ri-on (kăř'ē-ən) n. Dead and decaying flesh. — adj. 1. Of or similar to dead and decaying flesh. 2. Feeding on such flesh. [Middle English careine, from Anglo-Norman, from Vulgar Latin carōnia*, from Latin carō, flesh. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

carriion crow (kăř'ē-ən krō) n. A common European crow (Corvus corone) having glossy black plumage.

carriion flower (kăř'ē-ən flou'ər) n. 1. Any of several North American plants of the genus Smilax, especially S. herbacea, an herbaceous tendril-bearing vine having clusters of small greenish flowers with the odor of decaying flesh. 2. See starfish flower.

Car-roll (kär'əl), Anna Ella. 1815-1893. American political pamphleteer and adviser who wrote prolifically for anti-Catholic and pro-Union causes. In 1862 she published a pamphlet that outlined what was to become President Abraham Lincoln's constitutional theory concerning the rebellious states.

Car-roll (kär'əl), Charles. Known as "Carroll of Carrollton." 1737-1832. American Revolutionary leader and legislator who was a member of the Continental Congress (1776-1778), signed the Declaration of Independence (1776), and served as a U.S. senator (1789-1792).

Car-roll (kär'əl), Lewis. See Charles Lutwidge Dodgson.

Car-roll-ton (kär'əl-tən) A city of northern Texas, a residential and industrial suburb of Dallas. Population, 82,169.

car·rot (kär'ət) n. 1. A biennial Eurasian plant (Daucus carota subsp. sativus) in the parsley family, widely cultivated as an annual for its edible taproot. 2. The usually tapering, elongate, fleshy orange root of this plant, eaten as a vegetable. 3. Queen Anne's lace. 4. A reward offered for desired behavior; an inducement: "The U.S. should use a moratorium on [strategic defense initiative] development as a carrot to bring an acceptable offensive arms limitation" (C. Peter Gall). [French carotte, from Old French garroite, from Latin carōta, from Greek karōton. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

car·rot-and-stick (kär'ət-ən-stĭk') adj. Combining a promised reward with a threatened penalty: took a carrot-and-stick approach to the rehabilitation of juvenile offenders.

car·rot-y (kär'ə-tē) adj. 1. Bright orange in color. 2. Having carrot-colored hair.

car·rou-sel (kär'ə-sĕl', -zĕl') n. Variant of carousel.

car·ry (kär'ē) v. car-ried, car-ry-ing, car-ries. — v. tr. 1. To hold or support while moving; bear: carried the baby in my arms; carrying a heavy backpack. See Synonyms at convey. 2. a. To take from one place to another; transport: a train carrying freight; a courier carrying messages. b. Chiefly Southern U.S. To transport (someone) in a motor vehicle, such as an automobile. 3. To serve as a means for the conveyance of; transmit: pipes that carry waste water; a bridge that carries traffic between the two cities. 4. a. To communicate; pass on: The news was carried by word of mouth to every settlement. b. To express or contain: harsh words that carried a threat of violence. 5. To have (something) on the surface or skin; bear: carries scars from acne. 6. To hold or be capable of holding: The tank carries 16 gallons when full. 7. To support the weight or responsibility of: carried a heavy academic load last semester. 8. To keep or have on one's person: stopped carrying credit cards. 9. To be pregnant with. 10. a. To hold and move (the body or a part of it) in a particular way: carried her head proudly. b. To behave or conduct (oneself) in a specified manner. 11. To extend or continue in space, time, or degree: carried the line to the edge of the page; carry a joke too far. 12. a. To give impetus to; propel: The wind carried the ball over the fence. b. To take further; advance: carry a cause. 13. To take or seize, especially by force; capture. 14. a. To be successful in; win: lost the game but carried the match. b. To gain victory, support, or acceptance for: The motion was carried in a close vote. c. To win a majority of the votes in: Roosevelt carried all but two states in the 1936 presidential election. d. To gain the sympathy of; win over: The amateurs' enthusiasm carried the audience. 15. To include or keep on a list: carried a dozen workers on the payroll. 16. a. To have as an attribute or accompaniment: an appliance carrying a full-year guarantee. b. To involve as a condition, consequence, or effect: The crime carried a five-year sentence. 17. To transfer from one place, as a column, page, or book, to another: carry a number in addition. 18. To keep in stock; offer for sale: a store that carries a full line of electronic equipment. 19. To keep in one's accounts as a debtor: carried the unemployed customer for 90 days. 20. a. To maintain or support (one that is weaker or less competent, for example). b. To compensate for (a weaker member or partner) by one's performance. 21. To place before the public; print or broadcast: The morning papers carried the story. The press conference was carried by all networks. 22. To produce as a crop. 23. To provide forage for (livestock): land that carries sheep. 24. To sing (a melody, for example) on key: carry a tune. 25. Sports. a. To cover (a distance) or advance beyond (a point or object) in one golf stroke. b. Football. To hold and rush with (the ball). c. Basketball. To palm (the ball) in violation of the rules. — v. intr. 1. To act as a bearer: teach a dog to fetch and carry. 2. To be transmitted or conveyed; cover a range: a voice that carries well. 3. To admit of being transported: Unbalanced loads do not carry easily. 4. To hold the neck and head in a certain way. Used of a horse. 5. To be accepted or approved: The proposal carried by a wide margin. — n. pl. car-ries. 1. The act or process of carrying. 2. A portage, as between two navigable bodies of water. 3. a. The range of a gun or projectile. b. The distance traveled by a hurled or struck ball. c. Reach; projection: "a voice that had far more carry to it than at any time in the term thus far" (Jimmy Breslin). 4. Football. An act of rushing with the ball: a carry of two yards. — phrasal verbs. carry away. To move or excite greatly: was carried away by desire. carry forward. Accounting. To transfer (an entry) to the next column, page, or book, or to another account. carry off. 3. To cause the death of: was carried off by a fever. 4. To handle successfully: carried off the difficult situation with aplomb. carry on. 5. To conduct; maintain: carry on a thriving business. 6. To engage in: carry on a love affair. 7. To continue without halting; persevere: carry on in the face of disaster. 8. To behave in an excited, improper, or silly manner. carry out. 9. To put into practice or effect: carry out a new policy. 10. To follow or obey: carry out instructions. 11. To bring to a conclusion; accomplish: carried out the mission successfully. carry over. 12. Accounting. a. To transfer (an account) to the next column, page, or book relating to the same account. b. To retain (merchandise or other goods) for a subsequent, usually the next, season. 13. To deduct (an unused tax credit or a loss, for example) for taxable income of a subsequent period. 14. To persist to another time or situation: The confidence gained in remedial classes carried over into the children's regular school work. carry through. 15. To accomplish; complete: carry a project through despite difficulties. 16. To survive; persist: prejudices that have carried through over the centuries. 17. To enable to endure; sustain: a faith that carried them through the ordeal. —idioms. carry a torch (or carry the torch). To feel a painful, unreciprocated love: still carrying a torch for an old sweetheart. carry the ball. Informal. To assume the leading role; do most of the work. carry the day. To be victorious; win. [Middle English carien, from Old North French carier, from carre, cart. See CAR.]

REGIONAL NOTE: A non-Southerner is always amused when a Southerner offers to “carry” rather than to drive him or her somewhere, imagining it to be an invitation to be picked up and bodily lugged to the destination. However, the verb carry, which to Southerners means “to transport (someone) in a motor vehicle, such as an automobile,” is etymologically more precise in the Southern usage than anywhere else. Carry derives from the Latin noun carrus, “cart,” from which we get the nouns carriage and our modern car. Therefore, carry is more closely related to car than is drive, which only makes literal sense if the vehicle is drawn by a team of animals.

car·ry·all (kăř'ē-ôl') n. 1. A large receptacle, such as a bag, basket, or pocket-book, used to carry things from one place to another. 2. A closed automobile with two lengthwise seats facing each other. 3. A covered one-horse carriage with two seats. [Alteration of CARIOLE.] car·ry·ing capacity (kăř'ē-īng kə-päs'ī-tē) n. 1. The maximum number of persons or things that a vehicle or a receptacle can carry: a van with a carrying capacity of 12. 2. Ecology. The maximum number of individuals or inhabitants that a given environment can support without detrimental effects.

carrying charge (kăř'ē-īng chăřj) n. The interest charged on the balance owed when paying in installments.

car·ry·on (kăř'ē-ön') adj. Small or compact enough to be carried aboard an airplane, a train, or a bus by a passenger: carryon luggage. — n. A bag, suitcase, or other item that can be carried aboard a commercial transport vehicle.

car·ry·out (kăř'ē-out') adj. Intended to be consumed away from the place of sale; takeout: a shop offering carryout sandwiches. — n. An item of food or a meal that is to be consumed away from the place of sale.

car·ry·o·ver (kăr'ē-ō'vər) n. 1. Something that is transferred or extended from an earlier time or another place: a showing of new fashions as well as carryovers from last spring; a carryover of good will from the previous meeting.

2. Accounting. A sum transferred to a new column, page, or book relating to the same account.

car seat (kăr sēt) n. A small removable seat, usually equipped with safety straps, that fastens to the seat of a vehicle and is used for securing young children.

car·sick (kăr'sīk') adj. Suffering from motion sickness caused by travel in a motor vehicle. —car'sick'ness n.

Car·son (kăr'sən) A city of southern California, a residential and industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 83,995.

Car·son (kăr'sən), Christopher. Known as “Kit.” 1809-1868. American frontiersman who was the renowned guide of John C. Frémont’s western expeditions in the 1840’s, an agent for the Ute (1853-1861), and a Union general in the Civil War.

Car·son (kăr'sən), Johnny. Born 1925. American comedian and mainstay of late-night television as the host of The Tonight Show (since 1962).

Car·son (kăr'sən), Rachel Louise. 1907-1964. American environmentalist and writer whose best-known work, Silent Spring (1962), condemns the use of pesticides hazardous to wildlife.

Carson City (kăr'sən sīt'ē) The capital of Nevada, in the western part of the state near the California border. It was laid out in 1858 on the site of an earlier trading post and named in honor of Kit Carson. Population, 40,443.

Carson River (kăr'sən rīv'ər) A river rising in western Nevada near Carson City and flowing about 201 km (125 mi) northeast to Carson Sink, an intermittent lake.

cart (kärt) n. 1. A small wheeled vehicle typically pushed by hand: a shopping cart; a pastry cart. 2. A two-wheeled vehicle drawn by an animal and used in farm work and for transporting goods. 3. a. An open two-wheeled carriage.

b. A light motorized vehicle: a golf cart. — v. tr. cart·ed, cart·ing, carts.

1. To convey in a cart or truck: cart away garbage. 2. To convey laboriously or unceremoniously; lug: carted the whole gang off to jail. [Middle English, wagon, from Old English cræt, and from Old Norse kartr.] —cart'a·ble adj. —cart'er n.

cart·age (kăr'tij) n. Abbr. ctg., ctge. 1. The act or process of carting. 2. The cost of carting.

Car·ta·ge·na (kăr'tə-gā'nə, -jē'-, -hě'nä) 1. A city of northwest Colombia on the Bay of Cartagena, an inlet of the Caribbean Sea. Founded in 1533, Cartagena was once the richest port on the Spanish Main. Population, 495,028. 2. A city of southeast Spain on the Mediterranean Sea south-southeast of Murcia. It was settled c. 225 B.C. and soon became the chief Carthaginian sea base in Spain. Population, 142,300.

Carte (kärt), Richard D'Oyly. 1844-1901. British theatrical producer associated with the works of W.S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan.

carte blanche (kärt blänsh', kärts blänch', blänch) n. pl. cartes blanches (kärt blänsh', kärts blänch', blänch'). Unrestricted power to act at one's own discretion; unconditional authority: had given the interior decorator carte blanche and then detested the results. [French : carte, ticket + blanche, blank.]

car·tel (kär-tél') n. 1. A combination of independent business organizations formed to regulate production, pricing, and marketing of goods by the members. 2. An official agreement between governments at war, especially one concerning the exchange of prisoners. 3. A group of parties, factions, or nations united in a common cause; a bloc. [German Kartell, from French cartel, from Italian cartello, placard, from Medieval Latin cartellus, charter, diminutive of Latin charta, carta, paper made from papyrus. See CARD¹.]

Car·ter (kär'tər), Howard. 1873-1939. British archaeologist who worked in Egypt after 1890 and discovered (1922) the tomb of Tutankhamen.

Car·ter (kär'tər), James Earl, Jr. Known as "Jimmy." Born 1924. The 39th President of the United States (1977-1981), who is credited with establishing energy-conservation measures, concluding the Panama Canal treaties (1978), and negotiating the Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel (1979).

Car·ter (kär'tər), Rosalynn Smith. Born 1928. First Lady of the United States (1977-1981) as the wife of President Jimmy Carter. She worked on better care for the elderly and for the mentally and emotionally disadvantaged.

Car·ter·et (kär'tə-rēt') A borough of northeast New Jersey south of Elizabeth opposite Staten Island. It is an industrial center. Population, 19,025.

Car·ter·et (kär'tər-īt), John Earl Granville. 1690-1763. British statesman and diplomat who twice served as secretary of state (1721-1724 and 1742-1744).

Car·te·sian (kär-tē'zhən) adj. Of or relating to the philosophy or methods of Descartes. [French cartésien (from Ren DESCARTESÉ), New Latin Cartesiānus (from Cartesius, Latin form of Descartes).] —Car·te'sian·ism n.

Cartesian coordinate (kär-tē'zhən kō-ôr'dn-āt') n. A member of the set of numbers that locates a point in a Cartesian coordinate system.

Cartesian coordinate system (kär-tē'zhən kō-ôr'dn-āt' sīs'təm) n. 1. A two-dimensional coordinate system in which the coordinates of a point in a plane are its distances from two perpendicular lines that intersect at an origin, the distance from each line being measured along a straight line parallel to the other.

2. A three-dimensional coordinate system in which the coordinates of a point in space are its distances from each of three perpendicular lines that intersect at an origin.

Cartesian plane (kär-tē'zhən plān) n. A plane having all points described by Cartesian coordinates.

Cartesian product (kär-tē'zhən pröd'əkt) n. A set of all pairs of elements (x , y) that can be constructed from given sets, X and Y , such that x belongs to X and y to Y .

Car-thage (kär'thij) An ancient city and state of northern Africa on the Bay of Tunis northeast of modern Tunis. It was founded by the Phoenicians in the ninth century B.C. and became the center of Carthaginian power in the Mediterranean after the sixth century B.C. The city was destroyed by the Romans at the end of the Third Punic War (146 B.C.) but was rebuilt by Julius Caesar and later (A.D. 439-533) served as capital of the Vandals before its virtual annihilation by the Arabs (698). —Car'tha-gin'i-an (kär'thə-jīn'ē-ən) adj. & n.

Car-thu-sian (kär-thōō'zhən) Roman Catholic Church. n. A member of a contemplative order founded during the 11th century by Saint Bruno. — adj. Of or relating to the Carthusian order. [Medieval Latin Carthusiānus, from Cartusia, Chartreuse, France, where the order's first monastery was built.]

Car-tier (kär-tyā', kär'tē-ā'), Sir George Étienne. 1814-1873. Prime minister of Canada (1858-1862) who served jointly with Sir John Macdonald. He persuaded French Canadians to accept Canada's confederation (1867).

Car-tier (kär-tyā', kär'tē-ā'), Jacques. 1491-1557. French explorer who navigated the St. Lawrence River (1535) and laid claim to the region for France.

Car-tier-Bres-son (kär-tyā'brě-sôn'), Henri. Born 1908. French photographer noted for his black-and-white documentary photographs of daily life.

car-ti-lage (kär'tl-ij) n. A tough, elastic, fibrous connective tissue found in various parts of the body, such as the joints, outer ear, and larynx. A major constituent of the embryonic and young vertebrate skeleton, it is converted largely to bone with maturation. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cartilāgō, cartilāgin-.]

cartilage bone (kär'tl-ij bōn) n. A bone developed from cartilage.

car-ti-lag-i-nous (kär'tl-āj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or consisting of cartilage. 2. Having a skeleton consisting mainly of cartilage. 3. Having the texture of cartilage; firm and tough, yet flexible.

cartilaginous fish (kär'tl-āj'ə-nəs fīsh) n. A fish whose skeleton consists mainly of cartilage, especially a member of the class Chondrichthyes, such as a shark, skate, or ray.

cart-load (kärt'lōd') n. The amount of something, such as dirt, that a cart can carry.

car-to-gram (kär'tə-grām') n. A presentation of statistical data in geographical distribution on a map. [French cartogramme : carte, map (from Old French, card, from Latin charta, carta, paper made from papyrus); see CARD¹ + -gramme, a record (from Late Latin gramma, something written); see -GRAM.]

car·tog·ra·phy (kär-tōg'rə-fē) n. The art or technique of making maps or charts. [French cartographie : carte, map (from Old French, from Latin charta, carta, paper made from papyrus); see CARD¹ + -graphie, writing (from Greek graphia); see -GRAPHY.] — car·tog'ra·pher n. — car'to·graph'ic (kär'tə-gräf'ik), car'to·graph'i·cal adj.

car·ton (kär'tn) n. Abbr. c., C., ctn. 1. Any of various containers made from cardboard or coated paper: cans packed in cartons; a milk carton. 2. The contents of a carton: dyed the whole carton of eggs. — v. tr. car·toned, car·ton·ing, car·tons. To place (something) in a carton. [French, from Italian cartone, pasteboard, augmentative of carta, card, paper, from Latin charta, carta, paper made from papyrus. See CARD¹.]

car·toon (kär-tōn') n. 1. A drawing depicting a humorous situation, often accompanied by a caption. 2. A drawing representing current public figures or issues symbolically and often satirically: a political cartoon. 3. A preliminary sketch similar in size to the work, such as a fresco, that is to be copied from it. 4. An animated cartoon. 5. A comic strip. — v. car·toon·ed, car·toon·ing, car·toons. — v. tr. To draw a humorous or satirical representation of; caricature. — v. intr. To make humorous or satirical drawings. [French carton, drawing, from Italian cartone, pasteboard. See CARTON.] — car·toon'ish adj. — car·toon'ist n.

car·top (kär'töp') adj. Designed for use or suitable for carrying on top of a vehicle: a cartop luggage rack; a cartop boat.

car·touche or car·touch (kär-tōsh') n. 1. A structure or figure, often in the shape of an oval shield or oblong scroll, used as an architectural or graphic ornament or to bear a design or inscription. 2. An oval or oblong figure in ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics that encloses characters expressing the names or epithets of royal or divine personages. 3. A heavy paper cartridge case. [French, from Italian cartoccio, paper cornet, from carta, card, paper. See CARTON.]

car·tridge (kär'trij) n. 1. a. A cylindrical, usually metal casing containing the primer and charge of ammunition for firearms. b. Such a casing fitted with a bullet. c. A similar piece of ammunition, such as a shotgun shell. 2. A case filled with high explosives, used in blasting. 3. A small modular unit designed to be inserted into a larger piece of equipment: an ink cartridge; a disposable cartridge of caulking compound. 4. A removable case containing the stylus and electric conversion circuitry in a phonograph pickup. 5. a. A case containing magnetic tape in a reel; a cassette. b. A case containing a ribbon in a spool, for use in printers and electric typewriters. 6. A lightproof case with photographic film that can be loaded directly into a camera. [Alteration of earlier cartage, alteration of French cartouche, from Italian cartuccio, variant of cartoccio, roll of paper. See CARTOUCHE.]

cartridge belt (kär'trij bēlt) n. A belt with loops or pockets for carrying ammunition or other kinds of equipment.

cartridge clip (kär'trij klīp) n. A metal container or frame for holding cartridges to be loaded into an automatic rifle or pistol.

car-tu-lar-y also char-tu-lar-y (kär'chə-lēr'ē) n. pl. car-tu-lar-ies. A collection of deeds or charters, especially a register of titles to all the property of an estate or a monastery. [Middle English cartularie, collection of documents, from Medieval Latin cartulārium, from Latin cartula, chartula, document. See CHARTER.] cart-wheel (kärt'hwēl', -wēl') n. 1. A handspring in which the body turns over sideways with the arms and legs spread like the spokes of a wheel. 2. Slang. A large coin, such as a silver dollar.

Cart-wright (kärt'rīt'), Edmund. 1743-1823. British cleric and inventor of the power loom (1785-1790).

Car-ty (kär'tē), John Joseph. 1861-1932. American electrical engineer noted for his improvements to the telephone.

Ca-rua-ru (kär'wä-rōō') A city of northeastern Brazil west of Recife. It is a manufacturing and processing center. Population, 137,502.

ca-run-cle (kə-rüŋg'kəl, kär'üŋg'-) n. 1. Biology. A fleshy, naked outgrowth, such as a fowl's wattles. 2. Botany. An outgrowth or appendage at or near the hilum of certain seeds, as of the castor-oil plant. [Obsolete French caruncule, from Latin caruncula, diminutive of carō, flesh. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

—ca-run/cu-lar (-kyə-lər) adj. —ca-run/cu-late (-līt, -lāt'), ca-run/cu-lat'ed (-lā'tīd) adj.

Ca-ru-so (kə-rōō'sō, -zō), Enrico. 1873-1921. Italian operatic tenor who with his powerful, pure, emotive voice is considered one of the greatest singers ever.

car-va-crol (kär'və-krōl', -krōl') n. An aromatic phenolic compound, C₁₀H₁₄O, found in plants such as oregano and savory and used in flavorings and fungicides. [New Latin carvi (specific epithet of (Carum) carvi, caraway, from Medieval Latin); see CARAWAY + Latin ācer, acr-, sharp; see ak- in Appendix + -OL¹.] carve (kärv) v. carved, carv-ing, carves. — v. tr. 1. a. To divide into pieces by cutting; slice: carve a roast turkey. b. To divide by parceling out: carve up an estate. 2. To cut into a desired shape; fashion by cutting: carve the wood into a figure. 3. To make or form by or as if by cutting: carve initials in the bark; carved out an empire. 4. To decorate by cutting and shaping carefully. — v. intr. 1. To engrave or cut figures as an art, a hobby, or a trade. 2. To disjoint, slice, and serve meat or poultry. [Middle English kerven, from Old English ceorfan. See gerbh- in Appendix.] —carv'er n.

car-vel (kär'vəl, -vəl') n. Variant of caravel.

car-vel-built (kär'vəl-bīlt', -vēl'-) adj. Nautical. Built with the hull planks lying flush or edge to edge rather than overlapping: a carvel-built ship.

carv-en (kär'vən) v. Archaic. A past tense and a past participle of carve. — adj. That has been wrought or decorated by carving.

Car-ver (kär'vær), George Washington. 1864?-1943. American botanist, agricultural chemist, and educator who developed hundreds of uses for the peanut, soybean, and sweet potato, prompting Southern farmers to produce these soil-enriching cash crops.

Car-ver (kär'vær), John. 1576?-1621. English-born Pilgrim colonist who was the first governor of Plymouth Colony (1620-1621).

carv-ing (kär'vɪŋ) n. 1. The cutting of material such as stone or wood in order to form a figure or design. 2. A figure or design formed by this kind of cutting.

car wash (kär wōsh) n. An area, place, or business equipped for cleaning and washing motor vehicles such as cars, vans, and small trucks.

Car-y (kär'ē) A town of east-central North Carolina, an industrial suburb of Raleigh. Population, 43,858.

Car-y (kär'ē), Alice. 1820-1871. American poet noted for her hymns. Her sister Phoebe (1824-1871) was also a poet.

Car-y (kär'ē), (Arthur) Joyce (Lunel). 1888-1957. British writer whose novels, including The Horse's Mouth (1944), concern the necessity of personal freedom.

Car-y (kär'ē), Henry Francis. 1772-1844. British poet and translator (1805-1814) of Dante's Divine Comedy.

car-y-at-id (kär'ē-ăt'īd) n. pl. car-y-at-ids or car-y-at-i-des (-ī-dēz'). Architecture. A supporting column sculptured in the form of a draped female figure.

[From Latin Caryatides, maidens of Caryae, caryatids, from Greek Karuatides, from Karuai, Caryae, a village of Laconia in southern Greece.] — car'y-at/i-dal (-ī-dəl), car'y-at/i-de'an (-ī-dē'ən), car'y-a-tid'ic (-ə-tīd'ik) adj.

caryo- pref. Variant of karyo-.

car-y-op-sis (kär'ē-öp'sīs) n. pl. car-y-op-ses (-öp'sēz') or car-y-op-si-des (-öp'sī-dēz'). See grain (n., sense 1a). [cary(o)- variant of KARYO- + -OPSIS.]

CAS abbr. Certificate of Advanced Study.

ca-sa-ba also cas-sa-ba (kə-sä'bə) n. A variety of winter melon (Cucumis melo var. Inodorus) having a yellow rind and sweet, whitish flesh. [After Kasaba (Turgutlu), a city of western Turkey.]

Cas-a-blan-ca (käs'ə-bläng'kə, kə'sə-bläng'kə) A city of northwest Morocco on the Atlantic Ocean south-southwest of Tangier. Founded by the Portuguese in the 16th century, it became a center of French influence in Africa after 1907. It is now Morocco's largest city. Population, 2,139,204.

Ca-sals (kə-sälz', -sälz'), Pablo. 1876-1973. Spanish cellist considered the greatest of his time.

Cas·a·no·va (kās'ə-nō'və, kăz'-) n. 1. A man who is amorously and gallantly attentive to women. 2. A promiscuous man; a philanderer. [After Giovanni Jacopo CASANOVA DE SEINGALT.]

Cas·a·no·va de Sein·galt (kās'ə-nō'və də səN-gält', kăz'-, kă'sä-nô'vä), Giovanni Jacopo. 1725-1798. Italian adventurer who after his expulsion from a seminary wandered Europe, meeting luminaries, working in a variety of occupations, and establishing a legendary reputation as a lover. His memoirs chronicle his adventures.

Cas·bah also Kas·bah (kăz'bä', kăz'-) n. 1. A castle or palace in northern Africa. 2. Often casbah. The older section of a city in northern Africa or the Middle East. [French, from Arabic dialectal qaṣbah, from Arabic qaṣabah, fortress.]

cas·cade (kă-skād') n. 1. A waterfall or a series of small waterfalls over steep rocks. 2. Something, such as lace, thought to resemble a waterfall or series of small waterfalls, especially an arrangement or fall of material. 3. A succession of stages, processes, operations, or units. 4. Electronics. A series of components or networks, the output of each of which serves as the input for the next. — v. intr. tr. cas·cad·ed, cas·cad·ing, cas·cades. To fall or cause to fall in or as if in a cascade. [French, from Italian cascata, from cascare, to fall, from Vulgar Latin casicāre*, from Latin cadere. See kad- in Appendix.]

Cas·cade Range (kās-kād' rānj) A mountain chain of western Canada and the United States extending about 1,126 km (700 mi) south from British Columbia through western Washington and Oregon to northern California, where it joins the Sierra Nevada. Mount Rainier, 4,395.1 m (14,410 ft), is the highest peak and one of many snow-capped volcanic cones in the range.

cas·car·a (kă-skăr'ə) n. A buckthorn (Rhamnus purshiana) native to northwest North America, the bark of which is the source of cascara sagrada. [Spanish cáscara, bark, from cascar, to break off, from Vulgar Latin quassicāre*, from Latin quassāre, frequentative of quatere, to shake. See kwēt- in Appendix.]

cascara sa·gra·da (kă-skăr'ə sə-grä'də) n. The dried bark of the cascara buckthorn, used as a laxative. [American Spanish cáscara sagrada: Spanish cáscara, bark + Spanish sagrada, sacred.]

cas·ca·ril·la (kās'kə-ril'ə) n. 1. A tropical shrub or tree (Croton eluteria) native to the West Indies and northern South America, having a bark that yields an aromatic, spicy oil used as a flavoring and fragrance. 2. The bark of this plant. [Spanish, diminutive of cáscara, bark. See CASCARA.]

Cas·co Bay (kăs'kō bā) A deep inlet of the Atlantic Ocean in southwest Maine. The bay, with its wooded, hilly islands, is a popular vacation area.

case¹ (kās) n. 1. An instance of something; an occurrence; an example: a case of mistaken identity. See Synonyms at example. 2. An occurrence of a disease or disorder: a mild case of flu. 3. A set of circumstances or a state of affairs; a situation: It may rain, in which case the hike will be canceled. 4. Actual fact; reality: We suspected the walls were hollow, and this proved to be the case. 5. A question or problem; a matter: It is simply a case of honor. 6. A situation that requires investigation, especially by a formal or official body. 7. Law. a. An action or a suit or just grounds for an action. b. The facts or evidence offered in support of a claim. 8. A set of reasons or supporting facts; an argument: presented a good case for changing the law. 9. A person or group of persons being assisted, treated, or studied, as by a physician, lawyer, or social worker. 10. Informal. A peculiar or eccentric person; a character. 11. Linguistics. a. The syntactic relationship of a noun, a pronoun or a determiner to the other words of a sentence, indicated by declensional endings, by the position of the words within the sentence, by prepositions, or by postpositions. b. The form or position of a word that indicates this relationship. c. Such forms, positions, and relationships considered as a group. d. A pattern of inflection of nouns, pronouns, and adjectives to express different syntactic functions in a sentence. e. The form of such an inflected word. — v. tr. cased, cas-ing, cas-es. Informal. To examine carefully, as in planning a crime: cased the bank before robbing it. — idioms. in any case. Regardless of what has occurred or will occur. in case. 2. If it happens that; if. 3. As a precaution: took along an umbrella, just in case. in case of. If there should happen to be: a number to call in case of emergency. [Middle English cas, from Old French, from Latin cāsus, from past participle of cadere, to fall. See kad- in Appendix.]

case² (kāś) n. 1. A container; a receptacle: a jewelry case; meat-filled cases of dough. 2. Abbr. c., C., cs. A container with its contents. 3. A decorative or protective covering or cover. 4. A set or pair: a case of pistols. 5. The frame or framework of a window, door, or stairway. 6. The surface or outer layer of a metal alloy. — v. tr. cased, cas-ing, cas-es. To put into or cover with a case; encase. [Middle English, from Norman French casse, from Latin capsa.]

ca-se-ate (kā'sē-āt') v. intr. ca-se-at-ed, ca-se-at-ing, ca-se-ates. To undergo caseation. [Back-formation from CASEATION.]

ca-se-a-tion (kā'sē-ā'shən) n. Necrotic degeneration of bodily tissue into a soft, cheeselike substance. [From Latin cāseus, cheese.]

case-book (kāś'bōōk') n. A book containing source materials in a specific area, used as a reference and in teaching.

case goods (kāś gōōdz) pl.n. 1. a. Furniture, such as bookcases or chests of drawers, that provide the user with interior storage space. b. Dining and bedroom furniture sold as sets. 2. Food and beverage products sold by the case.

case-hard-en (kāś'hār'dn) v. tr. case-hard-ened, case-hard-en-ing, case-hard-ens. 1. To harden the surface or case of (iron or steel) by high-temperature shallow infusion of carbon followed by quenching. 2. To make callous or insensitive.

case history (kās hīs'tə-rē) n. A detailed account of the facts affecting the development or condition of a person or group under treatment or study, especially in medicine, psychiatry, or psychology.

ca-sein (kā'sēn', -sē-ĭn) n. A white, tasteless, odorless protein precipitated from milk by rennin. It is the basis of cheese and is used to make plastics, adhesives, paints, and foods. [Ultimately from Latin cāseus, cheese.]

case in point (kās ĭn point) n. pl. cases in point. A relevant illustrative example.

case knife (kās nĭf) n. 1. A knife kept in a sheath or case. 2. A table knife.

case law (kās lô) n. Law based on judicial decision and precedent rather than on statutes.

case-load (kās'lôd') n. The number of cases handled in a given period, as by an attorney or by a clinic or social services agency.

case-mate (kās'māt') n. 1. A fortified enclosure for artillery on a warship.

2. An armored compartment for artillery on a rampart. [French, from Italian casamatta : perhaps casa, house (from Latin cāsa) + matto, mad, crazy (from Latin mattus, drunk, past participle of madēre, to be drunk).] —case/mat'ed adj.

case-ment (kās'mənt) n. 1. a. A window sash that opens outward by means of hinges. b. A window with such sashes. 2. A case or covering. [Middle English, a hollow molding, possibly from Middle English case, chest, frame. See CASE².]

—case/ment-ed adj.

Case-ment (kās'mənt), Sir Roger David. 1864-1916. British diplomat who sought German assistance in the Irish nationalist cause during World War I and was executed for treason.

ca-se-ous (kā'sē-əs) adj. Resembling cheese. [From Latin cāseus, cheese.]

ca-sern also ca-serne (kə-zŭrn') n. A military barracks or garrison. [French caserne, from Old French, small room for the night watch, from Old Provençal cazerna, group of four men, from Latin quaterna, four together, from Latin quaternī, by four. See QUATERNION.]

Ca-se-ros (kā-sē'rōs) A city of eastern Argentina, a suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 343,004.

Ca-ser-ta (kə-zēr'tə, kā-zēr'tä) A city of southern Italy north-northeast of Naples. German World War II forces in Italy surrendered to the Allies here on April 29, 1945. Population, 66,754.

case shot (kās shōt) n. 1. a. A shot-packed metallic cylinder used as ammunition in a firearm; a canister. b. The shot in such a cylinder. 2. A shrapnel shell.

case study (kās stŭd'ē) n. 1. A detailed analysis of a person or group, especially as a model of medical, psychiatric, psychological, or social phenomena.

2. a. A detailed, intensive study of a unit, such as a corporation or a division within a corporation, that stresses factors contributing to its success or failure.

b. An exemplary or cautionary model; an instructive example: “Before they lost their independence, [the two companies] were case studies in unsuccessful long-term planning” (T. Boone Pickens, Jr.). case system (kās sīs’təm) n. A method of teaching law that emphasizes the study of selected cases rather than textbooks.

case-work (kās’wûrk’) n. Social work devoted to the needs of individual clients or cases. — case/work’er n.

cash¹ (kăsh) n. 1. Money in the form of bills or coins; currency. 2. Payment for goods or services in currency or by check. — v. tr. cash*ed, cash-ing, cash-es. To exchange for or convert into ready money: cash a check; cash in one’s gambling chips. — phrasal verbs. cash in. 1. To withdraw from a venture by or as if by settling one’s account. 2. Informal. To obtain a profit or other advantage by timely exploitation: Profiteers cashed in during the gasoline shortage. 3. Slang. To die. cash out. To dispose of a long-held asset for profit: Hard-pressed farmers are tempted to cash out by selling their valuable land. [Obsolete French casse, money box (from Norman French); see CASE², or from Italian cassa (from Latin capsa, case).] — cash/less adj.

cash² (kăsh) n. pl. cash. Any of various Asian coins of small denomination, especially a copper and lead coin with a square hole in its center. [Portuguese caixa, from Tamil kācu, a small coin.]

cash-and-car-ry (kăsh’ən-kăr’ē) adj. Sold for cash, usually without delivery service. — n. The policy of selling goods for cash, usually without delivery service.

cash bar (kăsh bār) n. A bar, such as one at a large party, where drinks are sold by the glass.

cash-book (kăsh’böök’) n. A book in which a record of cash receipts and expenditures is kept.

cash cow (kăsh kou) n. Slang. A steady, dependable source of funds or income: “a collapse of its profitable cash cow, the clusters of word-processing machines” (Christian Science Monitor).

cash crop (kăsh kröp) n. A crop, such as tobacco, grown for direct sale rather than for livestock feed.

cash discount (kăsh dīs’kount’) n. Abbr. c.d. A reduction in the price of an item for sale allowed if payment is made within a stipulated period.

cash-ew (kăsh’ōō, kə-shōō’) n. 1. A tropical American evergreen tree (Anacardium occidentale) widely cultivated for its edible nutlike kernels. 2. The kidney-shaped seed of this tree, eaten after roasting. [Probably Portuguese acajú, from Tupi acajú, from cajú, yellow fruit, acidic.]

cashew apple (kăsh’ōō äp’əl) n. The soft, swollen, pear-shaped edible stalk of the fruit of the cashew, used for beverages, preserves, or jams.

cashew nut (kăsh’ōō nüt) n. The edible seed of the cashew tree.

cash flow (kăsh flō) n. 1. The pattern of income and expenditures, as of a company or person, and the resulting availability of cash: The city improved its cash flow by borrowing against future revenues. 2. The cash receipts or net income from one or more assets for a given period, reckoned after taxes and other disbursements, and often used as a measure of corporate worth. —cash'-flow' (kăsh'flō') adj.

cash-ier¹ (kă-shîr') n. 1. The officer of a bank or business concern in charge of paying and receiving money. 2. A store employee who handles cash transactions with customers. [Dutch cassier, or French caissier both from caisse, money box, from Old Provençal caisa, from Vulgar Latin capsea*, from Latin capsa, case.]

ca-shier² (kă-shîr') v. tr. ca-shiered, ca-shier-ing, ca-shiers. To dismiss from a position of command or responsibility, especially for disciplinary reasons. See Synonyms at dismiss. [Dutch casseren, from Old French casser, to dismiss, annul. See QUASH¹.]

ca-shier's check (kă-shîrz' chĕk) n. A check drawn by a bank on its own funds and signed by the bank's cashier.

cash machine (kăsh mə-shĕn') n. See automated teller machine.

cash-mere (kăzh'mîr', kăsh'-) n. 1. Fine, downy wool growing beneath the outer hair of the Cashmere goat. 2. A soft fabric made of this wool or of similar fibers. [After Kashmir.]

Cash-mere (kăsh'mîr', kăsh-mîr') See Kashmir.

Cashmere goat also Kashmir goat (kăzh'mîr' gōt) n. A goat native to the Himalayan regions of India and Tibet and prized for its wool.

cash register (kăsh rĕj'î-stər) n. A machine that tabulates the amount of sales transactions, makes a permanent and cumulative record of them, and has a drawer in which cash can be kept.

cas-i-mere (kăz'ə-mîr', kăs'-) n. Variant of cassimere.

cas-ing (kă'sîng) n. 1. An outer cover: a shell casing. 2. The frame or framework for a window or door. 3. A metal pipe or tube used as a lining for a water, oil, or gas well. 4. A membranous case, often made of animal intestine, used to contain sausage or other processed meat.

ca-si-no (kə-sē'nō) n. pl. ca-si-nos. 1. A public room or building for gambling and other entertainment. 2. Also cas-si-no. Games. A card game for two to four players in which cards on the table are matched by cards in the hand. 3. A summer or country house in Italy. [Italian, diminutive of casa, house, from Latin casa.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word casino reveals a transformation from a cottage to a gambling palace. The source of our word, Italian casino, is a diminutive of casa, “house,” itself from Latin cāsa, “cottage, hut, hovel.” Central to the transformation is the development of the senses of casino in Italian. The word was first applied to a country house and then came to be used for a social gathering place, a room or building where one could dance, listen to music, and gamble. This last pastime seems to have gained precedence over the others, at least as far as the development of the word is concerned, and casino took on the meaning “gambling establishment.” These senses of the Italian word have all been borrowed into English, the sense “social gathering place” being recorded first in the 18th century, the sense “gambling establishment” first in 1851.

cas·k (kăsk) n. Abbr. ck., csk. 1. A sturdy cylindrical container for storing liquids; a barrel. 2. The quantity that such a container can hold. [Middle English caske, possibly from Old Spanish casco, potsherd, helmet, from cascar, to break. See CASCARA.]

cas·ket (kăs/kīt) n. 1. A small case or chest, as for jewels and other valuables. 2. A coffin. — v. tr. cas·ket·ed, cas·ket·ing, cas·kets. To enclose in a case, chest, or coffin. [Middle English, possibly alteration of Old French cassette. See CASSETTE.]

Cas·lon (kăz/lən), William. 1692-1766. English type designer whose typefaces, such as Caslon, were widely used in the 18th century.

Ca·so·ri·a (kə-sôr/ē-ə, kă-) A city of southern Italy, a suburb of Milan. Population, 68,355.

Cas·par (kăs/pär', -pər) also Gas·par (găs/-) In the New Testament, one of the three wise men from the East who came bearing gifts for the infant Jesus, guided by the Star of Bethlehem.

Cas·per (kăs/pər) A city of east-central Wyoming on the North Platte River northwest of Cheyenne. It was founded in 1888 with the coming of the railroad and grew rapidly after the discovery of oil nearby. Population, 46,742.

Cas·pi·an Sea (kăs/pē-ən sē) A saline lake between southeast Europe and western Asia. Its water level is decreasing because of dam construction on the Volga River, which feeds the lake.

casque (kăsk) n. 1. A helmet, especially an ornate, visorless headpiece of the 16th century. 2. Zoology. A helmetlike structure or protuberance. [French, from Spanish casco. See CASK.] — casqued (kăskt) adj.

Cass (kăs), Lewis. 1782-1866. American soldier, politician, and diplomat who held several governmental positions, including U.S. secretary of war (1831-1836) during the Black Hawk and Seminole wars.

cas·sa·ba (kə-să/bə) n. Variant of casaba.

Cas·san·dra (kə-săn/drə) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A daughter of Priam, the king of Troy, endowed with the gift of prophecy but fated by Apollo never to be believed. 2. One that utters unheeded prophecies. [Latin, from Greek Kassandra.]

cas·sa·tion (kă-sā'shən) n. Abrogation or annulment by a higher authority.

[Middle English cassatioun, from Old French cassation, from Late Latin cassātiō, cassātiōn-, from cassātus, past participle of cassāre, to annul. See QUASH¹.]

Cas·satt (kə-săt'), Mary Stevenson. 1844?-1926. American painter noted for her studies of mothers and their children, such as The Bath (1891-1892). She was associated with the French impressionists.

cas·sa·va (kə-sä'və) n. 1. A shrubby tropical American plant (Manihot esculenta) widely grown for its large, tuberous, starchy roots. 2. The root of this plant, eaten as a staple food in the tropics only after leaching and drying to remove cyanide. Cassava starch is also the source of tapioca. Also called manioc [Ultimately from Taino casavi, flour from manioc.]

Cas·sel (käs'əl, kä'səl) See Kassel.

Cas·sel·ber·ry (käs'əl-bēr'ē) A city of east-central Florida, a suburb of Orlando. Population, 18,911.

cas·se·na (kə-sē'nə) n. Botany. Variant of cassina.

cas·se·ne (kə-sē'nə) n. Botany. Variant of cassina.

cas·se·role (käs'ə-rōl') n. 1. a. A dish, usually of earthenware, glass, or cast iron, in which food is both baked and served. b. Food prepared and served in such a dish. 2. Chemistry. A small-handled, deep porcelain crucible used for heating and evaporating. [French, saucepan, diminutive of Old French casse, ladle, pan, from Old Provençal cassa, from Medieval Latin cattia, dipper, from Greek kuathion, diminutive of kuathos, ladle.]

cas·sette (kə-sět', kă-) n. 1. A small, flat case containing two reels and a length of magnetic tape that winds between them, used in audio or video tape recorders or players. 2. A lightproof cartridge containing photographic film or plates, used in specially designed cameras. 3. A cartridge for holding and winding typewriter or printer ribbon while in the machine. [French, small box, from Old French, diminutive of Norman French casse, case. See CASE².]

cassette deck (kə-sět' dĕk) n. A tape deck designed for recording or playing audiocassettes.

cassette memory (kə-sět' mĕm'ə-rĕ) n. Computer Science. A removable cartridge containing magnetic tape that stores programs.

cassette player (kə-sět' plā'ər) n. A tape player designed to play recorded cassettes.

cas·sia (kăsh'ə) n. 1. Any of various chiefly tropical or subtropical trees, shrubs, or herbs of the genus Cassia in the pea family, having pinnately compound leaves, usually yellow flowers, and long, flat or cylindrical pods. 2. a. A tropical Asian evergreen tree (Cinnamomum cassia) having aromatic bark used as a substitute for cinnamon. b. The bark of this tree. [Middle English, from Latin, a kind of plant, from Greek kassia, of Semitic origin.]

cas-si-mere also cas-i-mere (kăz'ə-mîr', kăs'-) n. A plain or twilled woolen cloth used for suits. [Variant of CASHMERE.]

Cas-sin (kă-săN'), René. 1887-1976. French jurist and public official. He won the 1968 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to safeguard human rights.

cas-si-na also cas-se-na or cas-se-ne or cas-si-ne (kə-sē'nə) n. Botany. 1. See dahoon. 2. See yaupon. [American Spanish, yaupon, from Timucua kasine.]

Cas-sin-gle (kə-sīng'gəl, kă-) A trademark used for a prerecorded magnetic tape cassette typically containing one song.

Cas-si-ni (kə-sē'nē, kă-), Giovanni Domenico or Jean Dominique. 1625-1712. Italian-born French astronomer and first director of the Royal Observatory in Paris (1669).

cas-si-no (kə-sē'nō) n. Games. Variant of casino (n., sense 2).

Cas-si-no (kə-sē'nō, kăs-) A town of central Italy in the Apennines northwest of Naples. In World War II the town and nearby Benedictine monastery of Monte Cassino were reduced to rubble during fierce German-Allied fighting (February-May 1944). Population, 26,300.

Cas-si-o-dor-us (kăs'ē-ə-dôr'əs, -dôr'-), Flavius Magnus Aurelius. Sixth century A.D. Roman statesman and historian who wrote Chronicon, a universal history to A.D. 519, and Institutiones, a broad course of study for a monastery.

Cas-si-o-pe-ia (kăs'ē-ə-pē'ə) n. A W-shaped constellation in the Northern Hemisphere between Andromeda and Cepheus. [Latin Cassiopēa, from Greek Kassiopeia.]

Cas-sir-er (kə-sîr'ər, kă-), Ernst. 1874-1945. German philosopher who was concerned with the formation of concepts in the mind and the theory of scientific knowledge.

cas-sis (kə-sēs') n. 1. A Eurasian currant (Ribes nigrum) bearing black berries. 2. A cordial made from the berries of this plant. [French, from Latin cassia, a kind of plant. See CASSIA.]

cas-sit-er-ite (kə-sīt'ə-rīt') n. A light yellow, red-brown, or black mineral, SnO₂, that is an important tin ore. Also called tinstone [French cassitérite, from Greek kassiteros, tin.]

Cas-sius Lon-gi-nus (kăsh'əs lōn-jī'nəs), Gaius. Died 42 B.C. Roman general and politician who was a leading member of the conspiracy to assassinate Julius Caesar.

cas-sock (kăs'ək) n. An ankle-length garment with a close-fitting waist and sleeves, worn by the clergy and others assisting in church services. [French casaque, long coat, from Old French, perhaps from Italian casacca, from Persian kazhāgand, padded garment : kazh, raw silk + āgand, stuffed.]

cas-sou-let (kăs'ōō-lā') n. A casserole of white beans, various meats, vegetables, and herbs, slowly simmered or baked in a slow oven. [French, stove dish, diminutive of cassolo, earthenware vessel, from casso, from Old Provençal cassa.

See CASSEROLE.]

cas·so·war·y (käs'ə-wēr'ē) n. pl. cas·so·war·ies. Any of several large flightless birds of the genus Casuarium of Australia, New Guinea, and adjacent areas, having a large, bony projection on the top of the head and brightly colored wattles. [Malay kěsuari.]

cast (kăst) v. cast, cast·ing, casts. — v. tr. 1. a. To throw (something, especially something light): The angler cast the line. b. To throw with force; hurl: waves that cast driftwood far up on the shore. See Synonyms at throw. 2. To shed; molt. 3. To throw forth; drop: cast anchor. 4. To throw on the ground, as in wrestling. 5. To deposit or indicate (a ballot or vote). 6. To turn or direct: All eyes were cast upon the speaker. 7. To cause to fall onto or over something or in a certain direction, as if by throwing: candles casting light; cast aspersions on my character; findings that cast doubt on our hypothesis. 8. To bestow; confer: "The government I cast upon my brother" (Shakespeare). 9. a. To roll or throw (dice, for example). b. To draw (lots). 10. To give birth to prematurely: The cow cast a calf. 11. To cause (hunting hounds) to scatter and circle in search of a lost scent. 12. a. To choose actors for (a play, for example). b. To assign a certain role to (an actor): cast her as the lead. c. To assign an actor to (a part): cast each role carefully. 13. To form (liquid metal, for example) into a particular shape by pouring into a mold. 14. To give a form to; arrange: decided to cast the book in three parts. 15. To contrive; devise: cast a plan. 16. To calculate or compute; add up (a column of figures). 17. To calculate astrologically: cast my horoscope. 18. To warp; twist: floorboards cast by age. 19. Nautical. To turn (a ship); change to the opposite tack. — v. intr. 1. To throw something, especially to throw out a lure or bait at the end of a fishing line. 2. To add a column of figures; make calculations. 3. To make a conjecture or a forecast. 4. To receive form or shape in a mold. 5. To search for a lost scent in hunting with hounds. 6. Nautical. a. To veer to leeward from a former course; fall off. b. To put about; tack. 7. To choose actors for the parts in a play, movie, or other theatrical presentation. 8. Obsolete. To estimate; conjecture. — n. 1. a. The act or an instance of casting or throwing. b. The distance thrown. 2. a. A throwing of a fishing line or net into the water. b. The line or net thrown. 3. a. A throw of dice. b. The number thrown. 4. A stroke of fortune or fate; lot. 5. a. A direction or expression of the eyes. b. A slight squint. 6. Something, such as molted skin, that is thrown off, out, or away. 7. The addition of a column of figures; calculation. 8. A conjecture; a forecast. 9. a. The act of pouring molten material into a mold. b. The amount of molten material poured into a mold at a single operation. c. Something formed by this means: The sculpture was a bronze cast. 10. An impression formed in a mold or matrix; a mold: a cast of her face made in plaster. 11. A rigid dressing, usually made of gauze and plaster of Paris, used to immobi-lize an injured body part, as in a fracture or dislocation. Also called plaster cast

12. The form in which something is made or constructed; arrangement: the close-set cast of her features. 13. Outward form or look; appearance: a suit of stylish cast. 14. Sort; type: fancied himself to be of a macho cast. 15. An inclination; tendency: her thoughtful cast of mind. 16. The actors in a theatrical presentation. 17. A slight trace of color; a tinge. 18. A distortion of shape. 19. The circling of hounds to pick up a scent in hunting. 20. A pair of hawks released by a falconer at one time. See Synonyms at flock¹. —phrasal verbs. cast about. 1. To make a search; look: had to cast about for an hour, looking for a good campsite. 2. To devise means; contrive: cast about for new ways to proceed. cast around. To search about: cast around for solutions to the problem. cast off. 4. To discard; reject: cast off old clothing. 5. To let go; set loose: cast off a boat; cast off a line. 6. To make the last row of stitches in knitting. 7. Printing. To estimate the space a manuscript will occupy when set into type. cast on. To make the first row of stitches in knitting. cast out. To drive out by force; expel. —idiom. cast (one's) lot with. To join or side with for better or worse. [Middle English casten, from Old Norse kasta.]

Cas·ta·gno (kä-stä'n'yō), Andrea del. 1423-1457. Florentine painter noted for his Last Supper, part of the Passion of Christ Cycle that he painted for the Church of Sant' Apollonia in Florence.

cas·ta·net (käs'tə-nět') n. Music. A rhythm instrument consisting of a pair of slightly concave shells of ivory or hardwood, held in the palm of the hand by a connecting cord over the thumb and clapped together with the fingers. Often used in the plural. [Spanish castañeta, from castaña, chestnut, from Latin castanea. See CHESTNUT.]

cast·a·way (käst'ə-wā') adj. 1. Cast adrift or ashore; shipwrecked.

2. Discarded; thrown away. — n. 1. A shipwrecked person. 2. A rejected or discarded person or thing.

caste (käst) n. 1. a. Any of four classes, comprising numerous subclasses, constituting Hindu society. b. Any of numerous hereditary, endogamous social subclasses stratified according to Hindu ritual purity. 2. A social class separated from others by distinctions of hereditary rank, profession, or wealth. 3. a. A social system or the principle of grading society based on castes. b. The social position or status conferred by a system based on castes: lose caste by doing work beneath one's station. 4. A specialized level in a colony of social insects, such as ants, in which the members, such as workers or soldiers, carry out a specific function. [Spanish casta, race, and Portuguese casta, race, caste, both from feminine of casto, pure from Latin castus. See kes- in Appendix.]

Cas·tel Gan·dol·fo (kä-stěl' gän-dôl'fō) A town of central Italy on Lake Albano southeast of Rome. It is the site of the papal summer residence. Population, 3,600.

Cas-tel-lam-ma-re di Sta-bia (kā-stĕl'ə-mär'ā dī stāb'yə, kā-stĕl'lām-mä'rĕ dē stä'byä) A city of southern Italy on the Bay of Naples west of Salerno. A summer resort and spa, it has thermal mineral springs known since Roman times. Population, 70,317.

cas-tel-lan (käs'tə-lən) n. The keeper or governor of a castle. [Middle English castelain, from Norman French, from Medieval Latin castellānus, from Latin, of a fortress, from castellum, stronghold. See CASTLE.]

cas-tel-lat-ed (käs'tə-lā'tīd) adj. 1. Furnished with turrets and battlements in the style of a castle. 2. Having a castle. [Medieval Latin castellātus, past participle of castellāre, to fortify as a castle, from Latin castellum, fort. See CASTLE.] —cas'tel-la'tion n.

Cas-tel-lón de la Pla-na (käs'təl-yōn' də lä plä'nə, kā'stĕlyōn' də lä plä'nä) A city of eastern Spain on the Mediterranean Sea north-northeast of Valencia. A port and manufacturing center, it was captured from the Moors in 1233. Population, 129,518.

cast-er (käs'tər) n. 1. One that casts: a caster of nets. 2. Also cas-tor (käs'tər). A small wheel on a swivel, attached under a piece of furniture or other heavy object to make it easier to move. 3. Also castor. a. A small bottle, pot, or shaker for holding a condiment. b. A stand for a set of condiment containers.

cas-ti-gate (käs'tī-gāt') v. tr. cas-ti-gat-ed, cas-ti-gat-ing, cas-ti-gates.

1. To inflict severe punishment on. See Synonyms at punish. 2. To criticize severely. [Latin castīgāre, castīgāt-, from castus, pure. See kes- in Appendix.]

—cas'ti-ga'tion n. —cas'ti-ga'tor n.

Cas-ti-glio-ne (kā'stīl-yō'nā, kā'stĕ-lyô'nĕ), Count Baldassare. 1478-1529.

Italian diplomat and writer best known for Il Cortegiano (1528), which describes the perfect courtier.

Cas-tile (käs-tĕl') A region and former kingdom of central and northern Spain. Autonomous from the tenth century, it joined with Aragon after the marriage of Isabella and Ferdinand in 1479, thus forming the nucleus of modern Spain.

Castile soap also cas-tile soap (käs-tĕl' sōp) n. A fine, hard, white, odorless soap made with olive oil and sodium hydroxide. [After Castile.]

Cas-ti-lho (kəsh-tĕ'lyō), Antonio Feliciano de. 1800-1875. Portuguese author and translator who became a leader of the romantic movement in Portugal. He is known for his poems and his translations of Virgil, Ovid, and Shakespeare.

Cas-til-ian (kā-stīl'yən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Castile. 2. a. The Spanish dialect of Castile. b. The standard literary and official form of Spanish, which is based on this dialect. — adj. Of or relating to Castile or its people, language, or culture.

cast-ing (käs'tīng) n. 1. a. The act or process of making casts or molds.

b. Something cast in a mold. 2. The act of throwing a fishing line.

3. Something cast off or out. 4. Selection of actors or performers for the parts of a presentation.

casting vote (käs'tíng vōt) n. The vote of a presiding officer in an assembly or council, given to break a tie.

cast iron (kăst ī'ərn) n. A hard, brittle, nonmalleable iron-carbon alloy, cast into shape, containing 2 to 4.5 percent carbon, 0.5 to 3 percent silicon, and lesser amounts of sulfur, manganese, and phosphorus.

cast-iron (kăst'ī'ərn) adj. 1. Made of cast iron. 2. Rigid; inflexible: a cast-iron rule. 3. Exceptionally strong or resistant: a cast-iron stomach.

cast-iron plant (kăst'ī'ərn plănt) n. See aspidistra.

cas-tle (kăs'əl) n. 1. a. A large fortified building or group of buildings with thick walls, usually dominating the surrounding country. b. A fortified stronghold converted to residential use. c. A large, ornate building similar to or resembling a fortified stronghold. 2. A place of privacy, security, or refuge. 3. Games. See rook². — v. cas-tled, cas-ting, cas-tles. — v. intr. Games. To move the king in chess from its own square two empty squares to one side and then, in the same move, bring the rook from that side to the square immediately past the new position of the king. — v. tr. 1. To place in or as if in a castle. 2. Games. To move (the king in chess) by castling. [Middle English castel, from Old English, and from Norman French both from Latin castellum, diminutive of castrum. See kes- in Appendix.]

Cas-tle (kăs'əl), Vernon Blythe. 1887-1918. British-born dancer who together with his wife, Irene Foote Castle (1893-1969), gained recognition for innovative dancing.

cas-tled (kăs'əld) adj. Castellated.

Castle Peak (kăs'əl pēk) A mountain, 4,350.8 m (14,265 ft) high, in the Elk Mountains of west-central Colorado. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Cas-tle-reagh (kăs'əl-rā'), Viscount Title of Robert Stewart, Second Marquis of Londonderry. 1769-1822. British politician who as chief secretary for Ireland (1798-1801) was able to quell the 1798 rebellion and form a political union between Ireland and Great Britain (1800).

cast-off (kăst'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. One that has been discarded. 2. Printing. A calculation of the amount of space a manuscript will occupy when set into type.

cast-off (kăst'ôf', -ôf') adj. Discarded; rejected.

cas-tor¹ (kăs'tər) n. 1. An oily, brown, odorous substance obtained from glands in the groin of the beaver and used as a perfume fixative. 2. A hat made of beaver fur or an imitation. 3. A heavy wool fabric used especially for overcoats. [Middle English, from Latin, beaver, from Greek kastōr.]

cas-tor² (kăs'tər) n. Variant of caster.

Cas·tor (käs'tər) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of the Dioscuri. 2. A double star in the constellation Gemini, the brightest star in the group, approximately 46 light-years from Earth. [Latin, from Greek Kastōr, twin of Pollux.]

castor bean (käs'tər bēn) n. 1. The castor-oil plant. 2. The poisonous seed of the castor-oil plant, from which castor oil is obtained. [CASTOR (OIL) + BEAN.]

castor oil (käs'tər oil) n. A colorless or pale yellowish oil extracted from the seeds of the castor-oil plant, used pharmaceutically as a laxative and skin softener and industrially as a lubricant. [Possibly from a former use as a substitute for castor in medicine.]

cas·tor-oil plant (käs'tər-oil' plānt) n. A poisonous, ornamental, tropical African herb or tree (Ricinus communis) having palmately lobed leaves and unisexual flowers and yielding a seed oil of commercial and medicinal value.

cas·trate (käs'trāt') v. tr. cas·trat·ed, cas·trat·ing, cas·trates. 1. To remove the testicles of (a male); geld or emasculate. 2. To remove the ovaries of (a female); spay. 3. To deprive of virility or spirit; emasculate. — n. An individual who is incapable of reproduction as a result of removal, destruction, or inactivation of the gonads. [Latin castrāre, castrāt-. See kes- in Appendix.]

—cas'trat·er, cas'tra·tor n. —cas'tra'tion n.

ca·stra·to (kā-strā'tō, kə-) n. pl. ca·stra·ti (-tē) or ca·stra·tos. Music. A male singer castrated before puberty so as to retain a soprano or alto voice. [Italian, from Latin castrātus, past participle of castrāre, to castrate. See CASTRATE.]

Cas·tries (käs'trēz', -trēs') The capital of St. Lucia, in the Windward Islands of the British West Indies. It was founded by the French in 1650. Population, 50,798.

Cas·tro (käs'trō, kā'strō), Cipriano. 1858?-1924. Venezuelan soldier and politician who was president from 1902 to 1908, when he was suspended by the congress for his dictatorial policies.

Cas·tro (käs'trō, kā'strō), Fidel. Born 1927. Cuban revolutionary leader who overthrew the corrupt regime of the dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1959 and established a socialist state. He has supported other liberation struggles in Latin America and Africa and maintained close ties with the Soviet Union.

Cas·tro·ism (käs'trō-iz'əm) n. The political and socioeconomic principles and policies of Fidel Castro. —Cas'tro·ist, Cas'tro·ite' (-īt') adj. & n.

Cas·trop-Rau·xel (käs'trôp-rouk'səl) A city of western Germany in the Ruhr Valley south-southwest of Münster. It is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 76,428.

Cas·tro Valley (käs'trō vāl'ē) An unincorporated community of western California southeast of Oakland. It is mainly residential. Population, 48,619.

ca·su·al (kăzh'ō-əl) adj. 1. Occurring by chance. See Synonyms at chance.

2. a. Occurring at irregular or infrequent intervals; occasional: casual employment at a factory; a casual correspondence with a former teacher.

b. Unpremeditated; offhand: a casual remark. 3. a. Being without ceremony or formality; relaxed: a casual evening with friends. b. Suited for everyday wear or use; informal. 4. Not serious or thorough; superficial: a casual inspection.

5. a. Showing little interest or concern; nonchalant: a casual disregard for cold weather. b. Lenient; permissive: a casual attitude toward drugs. 6. Not close or intimate; passing: a casual acquaintance with avant-garde music. — n. 1. One that serves or appears at irregular intervals, especially a temporary worker. 2. Often casuals. Casual clothing. 3. A soldier temporarily attached to a unit while awaiting permanent assignment. [Middle English casuel, from Old French, from Latin cāsuālis, from cāsus, event. See CASE¹.] —ca'su-al-ly adv. —ca'su-al-ness n.

ca-su-al-ty (kăzh'ōō-əl-tē) n. pl. ca-su-al-ties. 1. An accident, especially one involving serious injury or loss of life. 2. One injured or killed in an accident: a train wreck with an unknown number of casualties. 3. a. One injured, killed, captured, or missing in action through engagement with an enemy. b. Often casualties. Loss in numbers especially through engagement with an enemy: Battlefield casualties were high. 4. One that is harmed or eliminated as a result of an action or circumstance: The corner grocery was a casualty of the expanding supermarkets. [Middle English casuelte, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cāsuālitās, chance, accident, from Latin cāsuālis, fortuitous. See CASUAL.]

ca-su-a-ri-na (kăzh'ōō-ə-rī'nə) n. See beefwood. [New Latin Casuarina, genus name, from Malay kěsuari, cassowary (from the resemblance of its twigs to the drooping feathers of the cassowary).]

ca-su-ist (kăzh'ōō-ist) n. A person who is expert in or given to casuistry. [French casuiste, from Spanish casuista, from Latin cāsus, case. See CASE¹.]

ca-su-is-tic (kăzh'ōō-is'tik) also ca-su-is-ti-cal (-tī-kəl) adj. Of or relating to casuists or casuistry. —ca'su-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

ca-su-ist-ry (kăzh'ōō-ī-strē) n. pl. ca-sui-ist-ries. 1. Specious or excessively subtle reasoning intended to rationalize or mislead. 2. The determination of right and wrong in questions of conduct or conscience by the application of general principles of ethics. [From CASUIST.]

ca-sus bel-li (kā'səs bəl'lī, kā'səs bəl'lē) n. pl. casus belli. An act or event that provokes or is used to justify war. [New Latin cāsus bellī: Latin cāsus, occasion + Latin bellī, genitive of bellum, war.]

cat (kăt) n. 1. a. A small carnivorous mammal (Felis catus or F. domesticus) domesticated since early times as a catcher of rats and mice and as a pet and existing in several distinctive breeds and varieties. b. Any of various other carnivorous mammals of the family Felidae, which includes the lion, tiger, leopard, and lynx. c. The fur of a domestic cat. 2. A woman who is regarded as spiteful. 3. A cat-o'-nine-tails. 4. A catfish. 5. Nautical. a. A cathead. b. A device for raising an anchor to the cathead. c. A catboat. d. A catamaran. 6. Slang. a. A person, especially a man. b. A player or devotee of jazz music. — v. cat-ted, cat-ting, cats. — v. tr. Nautical. To hoist an anchor to (the cathead). — v. intr. Slang. To look for sexual partners; have an affair or affairs: “catting around with every lady in sight” (Gore Vidal). — idiom. let the cat out of the bag. To let a secret be known. [Middle English, from Old English catt, from Germanic kat-tuz*.]

CAT (kăt) abbr. 1. Clear-air turbulence. 2. Computerized axial tomography.

cat. abbr. Catalog.

cata- pref. 1. Down: catadromous. 2. Reverse; backward; degenerative: cataplasia. [Greek kata-, from kata, down, downwards, thoroughly. See kat- in Appendix.]

ca·tab·o·lism (kə-tăb'ə-līz'əm) n. The metabolic breakdown of complex molecules into simpler ones, often resulting in a release of energy. [CATA- + (META)BOLISM.] — cat'a·bol'ic (kăt'ə-böl'ik) adj. — cat'a·bol'i·cal·ly adv.

ca·tab·o·lite (kə-tăb'ə-līt') n. A substance produced by the process of catabolism. [CATABOL(ISM) + -ITE².]

ca·tab·o·lize (kə-tăb'ə-līz') v. intr. tr. ca·tab·o·lized, ca·tab·o·liz·ing, ca·tab·o·liz·es. To undergo or cause to undergo catabolism.

cat·a·chre·sis (kăt'ə-krē'sis) n. pl. cat·a·chre·ses (-sēz). 1. a. Strained use of a word or phrase, as for rhetorical effect. b. A deliberately paradoxical figure of speech. 2. The improper use of a word or phrase, especially in application to something it does not denote, as the use of blatant to mean “flagrant.” [Latin cat-achrēsis, improper use of a word, from Greek katakhrēsis, excessive use, from katakhrēsthai, to misuse : kata-, completely; see CATA- + chrēsthai, to use; see gher⁻² in Appendix.] — cat'a·chres'tic (-krēs'tik), cat'a·chres'ti·cal (-tī-kəl) adj. — cat'a·chres'ti·cal·ly adv.

cat·a·clysm (kăt'ə-klīz'əm) n. 1. A violent upheaval that causes great destruction or brings about a fundamental change. See Synonyms at disaster. 2. A violent and sudden change in the earth's crust. 3. A devastating flood. [French cataclysm, from Latin cataclysmos, deluge, from Greek kataklysmos, from katak-luzein, to inundate : kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + kluzein, to wash away.] — cat'a·clys'mic (-klīz'mik), cat'a·clys'mal (-klīz'məl) adj.

cat·a·comb (kăt'ə-kōm') n. 1. Often catacombs. An underground cemetery consisting of chambers or tunnels with recesses for graves. 2. An underground burial place. [Probably French catacombe, from Old French, from Late Latin cat-acumba.]

ca·tad·ro·mous (kə-tăd'rə-məs) adj. Living in fresh water but migrating to marine waters to breed. Used of fish.

cat·a·falque (kăt'ə-fălk', -fôlk') n. 1. A decorated platform or framework on which a coffin rests in state during a funeral. 2. Roman Catholic Church. A coffin-shaped structure draped with a pall, used to represent the corpse at a requiem Mass celebrated after the burial. [French, from Italian catafalco.]

Cat·a·lan (kăt'1-ăn', -ən, kăt'1-ăn') adj. Of or relating to Catalonia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Catalonia. 2. The Romance language spoken especially in Catalonia, the Balearic Islands, Andorra, and the Roussillon region of France. [Middle English Catalane, possibly from Catalan catalana, from Catalunya, Catalonia.]

cat·a·lase (kăt'1-ās', -āz') n. An enzyme found in the blood and in most living cells that catalyzes the decomposition of hydrogen peroxide into water and oxygen. [CATAL(YSIS) + -ASE.] — cat'·a·lat'ic (kăt'1-ăt'ik) adj.

cat·a·lec·tic (kăt'1-ĕk'tik) adj. Lacking one or more syllables, especially in the final foot. Used of verse. [Late Latin catalēcticus, from Greek katalēktikos, from katalēgein, to leave off : kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + lēgein, to cease, terminate; see slēg- in Appendix.]

cat·a·lep·sy (kăt'1-ĕp'sē) n. pl. cat·a·lep·sies. A condition characterized by lack of response to external stimuli and by muscular rigidity, so that the limbs remain in whatever position they are placed. It is known to occur in a variety of physical and psychological disorders, such as epilepsy and schizophrenia, and can be induced by hypnosis. [Middle English catalempsi, from Late Latin catalēmpsia, from Greek katalēpsis, from katalambanein, to seize upon : kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + lambanein, lēp-, to seize.] — cat'·a·lep'tic (kăt'1-ĕp'tik) adj.

cat·a·lex·is (kăt'1-ĕk'sis) n. The absence of one or more syllables in a line of verse, especially in the last foot. [Greek katalēxis, from katalēgein, to leave off. See CATALECTIC.]

Cat·a·li·na Island (kăt'1-ē'nə ī'lənd) See Santa Catalina Island.

cat·a·lo (kăt'1-ō') n. Variant of cattalo.

cat·a·log or cat·a·logue (kăt'1-ôg', -ôgz') n. Abbr. cat. 1. a. A list or itemized display, as of titles, course offerings, or articles for exhibition or sale, usually including descriptive information or illustrations. b. A publication, such as a book or pamphlet, containing such a list or display: a catalog of fall fashions; a seed catalog. 2. A list or enumeration: “the long catalogue of his concerns: unemployment, housing, race, drugs, the decay of the inner city, the environment and family life” (Anthony Holden). 3. A card catalog. — v. cat·a·loged or cat·a·logued, cat·a·log·ing or cat·a·logu·ing, cat·a·logs or cat·a·logues.

— v. tr. 1. To make an itemized list of: catalog a record collection. 2. a. To list or include in a catalog. b. To classify (a book or publication, for example) according to a categorical system. — v. intr. 1. To make a catalog. 2. To be listed in a catalog: an item that catalogs for 200 dollars. [Middle English cathalogue, list, register, from Old French catalogue, from Late Latin catalogus, from Greek katalogos, from katalegein, to list : kata-, down, off; see CATA- + legein, to count; see leg- in Appendix.] — cat'·a·log'er, cat'·a·logu'er n.

ca·ta·logue rai·son·né (kăt'1-ôgz' rā'zə-nā', -ôgz', kă-tă-lôgz' rĕ-zô-nā') n. pl. ca·ta·logues rai·son·nés (kăt'1-ôgz' rā'zə-nā', -ôgz', kă-tă-lôgz' rĕ-zô-nā'). A publication listing titles of articles or literary works, especially the contents of an exhibition, along with related descriptive or critical material. [French : catalogue, catalog + raisonné, methodical, descriptive, from past participle of raisonner, to reason, analyze.]

Cat·a·lo·nia (kăt'1-ōn'yə, -ō'nē-ə) A region of northeast Spain bordering on France and the Mediterranean Sea. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries it was a center of socialist and anarchist activity. The Catalans established a separate state in the 1930's. —Cat'a·lo'nian adj. & n.

ca·tal·pa (kə-tăl'pə, -tôl'-) n. Any of various, usually deciduous trees of the genus Catalpa, especially C. bignonioides or C. speciosa, native to the United States and having whorled, heart-shaped leaves, showy clusters of white flowers, and long, slender, cylindrical pods. Also called Indian bean [Creek katalpa : ka-, head + talpa, wing (from the shape of its flowers).]

ca·tal·y·sis (kə-tăl'ī-sīs) n. pl. ca·tal·y·ses (-sēz'). The action of a catalyst, especially an increase in the rate of a chemical reaction. [Greek katalusis, dissolution, from kataluein, to dissolve : kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + luein, to loosen; see leu- in Appendix.]

cat·a·lyst (kăt'1-īst) n. 1. Chemistry. A substance, usually used in small amounts relative to the reactants, that modifies and increases the rate of a reaction without being consumed in the process. 2. One that precipitates a process or event, especially without being involved in or changed by the consequences. [From CATALYSIS.]

SYNONYMS: catalyst, ferment, leaven, leavening, yeast. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “an agent that stimulates or precipitates a reaction, development, or change”: a serious breach of trust that was the catalyst for the divorce; love, the most powerful ferment; the leaven of reform working in their minds; a leavening of humor; the yeast of revolution.

cat·a·lyt·ic (kăt'1-īt'īk) adj. Of, involving, or acting as a catalyst: “Deregulation's catalytic power... is still reshaping the banking, communications, and transportation industries” (Ellyn E. Spragins). [Greek katalutikos, able to dissolve, from katalusis, dissolution. See CATALYSIS.] —cat'a·lyt'i·cal·ly adv.

catalytic converter (kăt'1-īt'īk kən-vūr'tər) n. A reaction chamber typically containing a finely divided platinum-iridium catalyst into which exhaust gases from an automotive engine are passed together with excess air so that carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon pollutants are oxidized to carbon dioxide and water.

catalytic cracker (kăt'1-īt'īk krāk'ər) n. An oil refinery unit in which the cracking of petroleum takes place in the presence of a catalyst.

cat·a·lyze (kăt'1-īz') v. tr. cat·a·lyzed, cat·a·lyz·ing, cat·a·lyz·es. 1. To modify, especially to increase, the rate of (a chemical reaction) by catalysis. 2. To bring about; initiate: “The technology bred of science has catalyzed stupendous economic growth” (Nature). 3. To produce fundamental change in; transform: changes in student enrollment that have catalyzed the educational system. [From CATALYSIS.] —cat'a·lyz'er n.

cat·a·ma·ran (kăt'ə-mə-răn') n. Nautical. 1. A boat with two parallel hulls or floats, especially a light sailboat with a mast mounted on a transverse frame joining the hulls. 2. A raft of logs or floats lashed together and propelled by paddles or sails. [Tamil kaṭṭumaram : kaṭṭu, to tie + maram, tree, log.]

cat·a·me·ni·a (kăt'ə-mē'nē-ə) n. See menses. [Greek katamēnia, from neuter pl. of katamēnios, monthly : kata-, according to, per; see CATA- + mēn, month; see mē⁻² in Appendix.] —cat'a·me'ni-al adj.

cat·a·mite (kăt'ə-mīt') n. A boy who has a sexual relationship with a man. [Latin catamītus, from Catamītus, Ganymede, from Etruscan Catmite, from Greek Ganumēdēs.]

cat·a·mount (kăt'ə-mount') n. See mountain lion. [Short for CATAMOUNTAIN.]

cat·a·moun·tain (kăt'ə-moun'tən) n. Any of various wild felines, such as the leopard or a wildcat. [Alteration of cat of the mountain.]

cat-and-mouse (kăt'n-mous') adj. 1. Playfully or teasingly cruel, as in prolonging the pain or torment of another: the cat-and-mouse tactics of the interrogators. 2. Of or involving a suspenseful and sometimes alternating relation between hunter and hunted: “another cat-and-mouse thriller” (New York Times).

Ca·ta·nia (kə-tān'yə, -tā'nē-ə, kə-tā'nyä) A city of eastern Sicily, Italy on the Gulf of Catania, an inlet of the Ionian Sea. Founded in the eighth century B.C., Catania was a flourishing Greek community and later a Roman colony. Population, 378,521.

Ca·tan·za·ro (kə'tān-zär'ō, -dzär'ō) A city of southern Italy near the Ionian Sea. It was founded in the tenth century. Population, 100,637.

cat·a·pho·re·sis (kăt'ə-fə-rē'sis) n. See electrophoresis (n., sense 1). —cat'a·pho-ret'ic (-rēt'ik) adj. —cat'a·pho-ret'i-cal·ly adv.

cat·a·pla·sia (kăt'ə-plā'zhə, -zhē-ə) n. Pathology. Degenerative reversion of cells or tissue to a less differentiated form. —cat'a·plas'tic (-plās'tik) adj.

cat·a·plasm (kăt'ə-plāz'əm) n. See poultice. [Middle English cathaplasma, and French cataplasme both from Latin cataplasma, from Greek kataplasma, from kataplassein, to plaster over : kata-, down, onto, over; see CATA- + plassein, to mold, form; see PLASMA.]

cat·a·plex·y (kăt'ə-plĕk'sē) n. A sudden loss of muscle tone and strength, usually caused by an extreme emotional stimulus. [From Greek kataplēxis, fixation (of the eyes), from kataplēssein, to astound, terrify : kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + plēssein, plĕk-, to strike; see plāk⁻² in Appendix.] —cat'a·plec'tic (-plĕk'tik) adj.

cat·a·pult (kăt'ə-pŭlt', -pöolt') n. 1. A military machine for hurling missiles, such as large stones or spears, used in ancient and medieval times. 2. A mechanism for launching aircraft at a speed sufficient for flight, as from the deck of a carrier. 3. A slingshot. — v. cat·a·pult·ed, cat·a·pult·ing, cat·a·pults. — v. tr. To hurl or launch from or as if from a catapult. — v. intr. To become catapulted; spring or bolt. [French catapulte, from Old French, from Latin catapulta, from Greek katapultēs: kata-, cata- + pallein, to brandish, poise a weapon before hurling; see pōl- in Appendix.]

cat·a·ract (kăt'ə-răkt') n. 1. A large or high waterfall. 2. A great downpour; a deluge. 3. Pathology. Opacity of the lens or capsule of the eye, causing impairment of vision or blindness. [Middle English cataracte, from Old French, from Latin cataracta, from Greek katarraktēs, kataraktēs, probably from katarassein, to dash down (kat-, kata-, cata- + arassein, to strike).]

ca·tarrh (kə-tăr') n. Inflammation of mucous membranes, especially of the nose and throat. [Middle English catarre, from Old French catarrhe, from Late Latin catarrhus, from Greek katarrou, from katarrein, to flow down: kata-, cata- + rhein, to flow; see sreu- in Appendix.] — ca·tarrh'al, ca·tarrh'ous adj. — ca·tarrh'al·ly adv.

ca·tas·ta·sis (kə-tăs'tə-sīs) *n. pl. ca·tas·ta·ses (-sēz'). 1. The intensified part of the action directly preceding the catastrophe in classical tragedy. 2. The climax of a drama. [Greek katastasis, settled state, from kathistanai, to come into a certain state: kat-, kata-, cata- + histanai, to set; see stā- in Appendix.]*

ca·tas·tro·phe (kə-tăs'trə-fē) n. 1. A great, often sudden calamity. See Synonyms at disaster. 2. A complete failure; a fiasco: The food was cold, the guests quarreled—the whole dinner was a catastrophe. 3. The concluding action of a drama, especially a classical tragedy, following the climax and containing a resolution of the plot. 4. A sudden violent change in the earth's surface; a cataclysm. [Greek katastrophē, an overturning, ruin, conclusion, from katastrephein, to ruin, undo: kata-, cata- + strephein, to turn; see streb(h)- in Appendix.]

cat·a·stroph·ic (kăt'ə-strōf'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or involving a catastrophe. 2. Involving or resulting in substantial, often ruinous medical expense: a catastrophic illness. — cat'a·stroph'i·cal·ly adv.

ca·tas·tro·phism (kə-tăs'trə-fiz'əm) n. 1. Geology. The doctrine that major changes in the earth's crust result from catastrophes rather than evolutionary processes. 2. The prediction or expectation of cataclysmic upheaval, as in political or social developments. — ca·tas'tro·phist n.

cat·a·to·ni·a (kăt'ə-tō'nē-ə) n. An abnormal condition variously characterized by stupor, stereotypy, mania, and either rigidity or extreme flexibility of the limbs. It is most often associated with schizophrenia. [New Latin, from German Katatonie, from Greek katatonos, stretching tight, from katateinein, to stretch tight : kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + teinein, to stretch; see ten- in Appendix.]

—cat'a-ton'ic (-tŏn'ĭk) adj., n. —cat'a-ton'i-cal-ly adv.

Ca·taw·ba¹ (kə-tô'bə) n. pl. Catawba or Ca·taw·bas. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting territory along the Catawba River in North and South Carolina and now located in western South Carolina. b. A member of this people. c. The Siouan language of the Catawba.

Ca·taw·ba² (kə-tô'bə) n. pl. Ca·taw·bas. 1. A reddish North American grape developed from the fox grape. 2. Wine made from such grapes. [After Catawba (River).]

Catawba River (kə-tô'bə rĭv'ər) A river rising in the Blue Ridge of western North Carolina and flowing about 402 km (250 mi) generally southward into South Carolina, where it is called the Wateree River.

cat·bird (kăt'bûrd') n. A North American songbird (Dumetella carolinensis) having predominantly slate plumage. [From the resemblance of one of its calls to the mew of a cat.]

catbird seat (kăt'bûrd' sēt) n. A position of power or prominence.

cat·boat (kăt'bōt') n. Nautical. A broad-beamed sailboat carrying a single sail on a mast stepped well forward and often fitted with a centerboard.

cat·bri·er (kăt'brī'ər) n. Any of several woody, usually prickly dioecious vines of the genus Smilax, having greenish, unisexual flowers, heart-shaped leaves, and usually bluish to black berries. Also called greenbrier, smilax.

cat burglar (kăt bûr'glər) n. A burglar who is especially skilled at stealthy or undetected entry of a premises.

cat·call (kăt'kôl') n. A harsh or shrill call or whistle expressing derision or disapproval. — v. cat·called, cat·call·ing, cat·calls. — v. tr. To express derision or disapproval of with catcalls. — v. intr. To make catcalls.

catch (kăch, kěch) v. caught (kôt), catch·ing, catch·es. — v. tr. 1. To capture or seize, especially after a chase. 2. To take by or as if by trapping or snaring. 3. a. To discover or come upon suddenly, unexpectedly, or accidentally: He was caught in the act of stealing. b. To become cognizant or aware of suddenly: caught her gazing out the window. 4. a. To take hold of, especially forcibly or suddenly; grasp: caught me by the arm; caught the reins. b. To grab so as to stop the motion of: catch a ball. 5. a. To overtake: The green car caught me on the straightaway. b. To reach just in time; take: caught the bus to town; catch a wave. 6. a. To hold, as by snagging or entangling. b. To cause to become suddenly or accidentally hooked, entangled, or fastened: caught my hem on the stair. c. To hold up; delay: was caught in traffic for an hour. 7. To hit; strike: a punch that caught me in the stomach. 8. To check (oneself) during an action: I caught myself before replying. 9. To become subject to or to contract, as by exposure to a pathogen: catch a cold. 10. a. To become affected by or infused with: caught the joyous mood of the festival. b. To suffer from the receipt of (criticism, for example): caught hell for being late. 11. To take or get suddenly, momentarily, or quickly: We caught a glimpse of the monarch. I caught a hint of sarcasm in your response. 12. a. To grasp mentally; apprehend: I don't catch your meaning. b. To apprehend and reproduce accurately by or as if by artistic means: an impressionist who caught the effects of wind and water in his paintings. 13. To attract and fix; arrest: couldn't catch their attention; caught the teacher's eye. 14. To charm; captivate. 15. a. Informal. To go to see (a performance, for example): caught the midnight show. b. To get (something required), usually quickly or for a brief period: catch some sleep. — v. intr. 1. To become held, entangled, or fastened: My coat caught in the car door. 2. To act or move so as to hold or grab someone or something: tried to catch at the life preserver. 3. To be communicable or infectious; spread. 4. To ignite: The fire caught. 5. Baseball. To act as catcher. — n. 1. The act of catching; a taking and holding. 2. Something that catches, especially a device for fastening or for checking motion. 3. a. Something caught: The mistake you found was a good catch. b. Informal. One, such as a person or thing, that is worth catching. 4. Sports. a. The grabbing and holding of a thrown, kicked, or batted ball before it hits the ground. b. A game of throwing and catching a ball. 5. A quantity that is caught: The catch amounted to 50 fish. 6. A choking or stoppage of the breath or voice. 7. A stop or break in the operation of a mechanism. 8. Informal. A tricky or previously unsuspected condition or drawback: It sounds like a good offer, but there may be a catch. 9. A snatch; a fragment. 10. Music. A canonical, often rhythmically intricate composition for three or more voices, popular especially in the 17th and 18th centuries. — phrasal verbs. catch on. 1. To understand; perceive. 2. To become popular: Skateboarding caught on quickly. catch out. To detect (another) in the act or process of wrongdoing. catch up. 4. To snatch: The mugger caught the wallet up and fled. 5. To detect (another) in a mistake or wrongdoing: Auditors caught up with the embezzler. 6. To come up from behind; overtake. 7. a. To become involved with, often unwillingly: was caught up in the scandal. b. To captivate; enthrall: I was caught up in the mood of the evening. 8. a. To bring up to date; brief: Let me catch you up on all the gossip. b. To bring an activity nearer to completion: I must catch up on my correspondence. — idioms. catch fire. 1. To ignite. 2. To become very enthusiastic. 3. To become the subject of great interest and widespread enthusiasm: an idea that caught fire all over the country. catch it. Informal. To receive a punishment or scolding. catch (one's) breath. To rest so as to be able to continue an activity. [Middle English cacchen, from Old North French cachier, to chase, from Latin captāre, frequentative of capere, to seize. See kap- in Appendix.] — catch/a-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: catch, enmesh, ensnare, entangle, entrap, snare, tangle, trap. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to take in and hold as if by using bait or a lure”: caught in her own lies; enmeshed in the neighbors’ dispute; ensnaring an unsuspecting dupe with fast talk; became entangled in his own contradictions; entrapped by a skillful interviewer into making a damaging statement; snared by false hopes; tangled by his own duplicity; trapped into making an incriminating admission.

Catch-22 also catch-22 (käch'twĕn-tĕ-tōō', kĕch'-) n. pl. Catch-22's or Catch-22s also catch-22's or catch-22s. 1. a. A situation in which a desired outcome or solution is impossible to attain because of a set of inherently illogical rules or conditions: “In the Catch-22 of a closed repertoire, only music that is already familiar is thought to deserve familiarity” (Joseph McLennan). b. The rules or conditions that create such a situation. 2. A situation or predicament characterized by absurdity or senselessness. 3. A contradictory or self-defeating course of action: “The Catch-22 of his administration was that every grandiose improvement scheme began with community dismemberment” (Village Voice). 4. A tricky or disadvantageous condition; a catch: “Of course, there is a Catch-22 with Form 4868—you are supposed to include a check if you owe any additional tax, otherwise you face some penalties” (New York). [After Catch-22, a novel by Joseph Heller (born 1923), American writer.] —Catch'-22' adj.

catch-all (käch'ōl', kĕch'-) n. 1. A receptacle or storage area for odds and ends. 2. Something that encompasses a wide variety of items or situations: a word that serves as a catchall for a bewildering array of computer accessories. —catch'all' adj.

catch-as-catch-can (käch'əz-käch-kän', kĕch'əz-kĕch-) adj. Using or making do with whatever means are available; irregular: made a catch-as-catch-can living doing odd jobs. — adv. However or by whatever means possible: “Reading was learned catch-as-catch-can, while reindeer farming was learned deeply and thoroughly through the daily rigors of survival” (Bunny McBride).

catch basin (käch bā'sin) n. 1. A receptacle at the entrance to a sewer designed to keep out large or obstructive matter. 2. A reservoir for collecting surface drainage or runoff.

catch colt (käch kōlt) n. Western U.S. See old-field colt. See Regional note at old-field colt.

catch-er (käch'ər, kĕch'-) n. Abbr. c., C. One that catches, especially the baseball player positioned behind home plate who signals for and receives pitches.

catch-fly (käch'flī', kĕch'-) n. Any of several plants of the genera Silene and Lychnis, native chiefly to the Northern Hemisphere and having white, pink, red, or purplish flowers and sticky stems and calyxes on which small insects may become stuck.

catch-ing (käch'ing, kĕch'-) adj. 1. Infectious. 2. Attractive; catchy.

catch·ment (kăch/'mənt, kĕch'/-) n. 1. A catching or collecting of water, especially rainwater. 2. a. A structure, such as a basin or reservoir, used for collecting or draining water. b. The amount of water collected in such structure. 3. A catchment area.

catchment area (kăch/'mənt âr/'ē-ə) n. 1. The area drained by a river or body of water. Also called catchment basin 2. The surrounding area served by an institution, such as a hospital or school.

catch·pen·ny (kăch/'pĕn/'ē, kĕch'/-) adj. Designed and made to sell without concern for quality; cheap. — n. A cheap item.

catch phrase (kăch frāz) n. A phrase in wide or popular use, especially one serving as a slogan for a group or movement.

catch·pole also catch·poll (kăch/'pōl', kĕch'/-) n. A sheriff's officer, especially one who arrests debtors. [Middle English cacchepol, from Norman French cacchepol, probably from Old French chacepol: chacier, to chase; see CHASE¹ + poul, rooster (from Latin pullus, chicken); see pau- in Appendix.]

catch·up (kăch/'əp, kĕch'/-) n. Variant of ketchup.

catch-up (kăch/'ŭp', kĕch'/-) n. 1. An approach or strategy intended to overcome a disadvantage or lead: The competition will be playing catch-up for the rest of the season. 2. An increase intended to bring an amount or rate up to a standard: "the statutory catch-up of Social Security benefits with the cost of living" (Nation). —catch'-up' adj.

catch·word (kăch/'wŭrd', kĕch'/-) n. 1. a. A well-known word or phrase, especially one that exemplifies a notion, class, or quality: "Glasnost has entered the international vocabulary as a catchword for a general liberalization of Soviet society" (Bill Keller). b. A catchy name or slogan: "the top management of major corporations... busy coining catchwords for their new management concepts" (Japan Economic Journal). 2. Printing. a. A guideword. b. The first word of a page printed in the bottom right-hand corner of the preceding page.

catch·y (kăch/'ē, kĕch'/'ē) adj. catch·i·er, catch·i·est. 1. Attractive or appealing: a catchy idea for a new television series. 2. Easily remembered: a song with a catchy tune. 3. Tricky; deceptive: a catchy question on an exam. 4. Fitful or spasmodic: catchy breathing. —catch'i·ness n. cate (kāt) n. Archaic. A choice or dainty food; a delicacy. [Short for acate, from Middle English acat, a purchase, from Norman French, from acater, to buy. See CATER.]

cat·e·che·sis (kăt/'ĭ-kĕ/'sĭs) n. pl. cat·e·che·ses (-sēz). Oral instruction given to catechumens. [Late Latin catēchēsis, from Greek katēkhēsis, oral instruction, from katēkhein, to teach by word of mouth. See CATECHIZE.] —cat'e·chet'i·cal (-kĕt'ĭ-kəl) adj.

cat·e·chin (kăt/'ĭ-kĭn') n. A crystalline substance, C₁₅H₁₄O₆, derived from catechu and used in tanning and dyeing. Also called catechol [CATECH(U) + -IN.]

cat·e·chism (kăt'ī-kīz'əm) n. 1. A book giving a brief summary of the basic principles of Christianity in question-and-answer form. 2. A manual giving basic instruction in a subject, usually by rote or repetition. 3. A body of fundamental principles or beliefs, especially when accepted uncritically: “the core of the catechism of the antinuclear left, the notion that the threat to peace is technological, not political” (George F. Will). 4. A close questioning or examination, as of a political figure. [French catechisme, from Old French, from Late Latin catēchismus, from Late Greek katēkhismos, from katēkhizein, to teach by word of mouth. See CATECHIZE.]

cat·e·chist (kăt'ī-kīst) n. A person who catechizes, especially one who instructs catechumens in preparation for admission into a Christian church. [French catechiste, from Old French, from Late Latin catēchista, from Late Greek katēkhistēs, from katēkhizein, to teach by word of mouth. See CATECHIZE.] —cat'·e·chis'tic, cat'·e·chis'ti-cal adj.

cat·e·chize (kăt'ī-kīz') v. tr. cat·e·chized, cat·e·chiz-ing, cat·e·chiz-es.

1. To teach the principles of Christian dogma, discipline, and ethics by means of questions and answers. 2. To question or examine closely or methodically: “Boswell was eternally catechizing him on all kinds of subjects” (Macaulay). [Middle English catecizen, from Old French catechiser, from Medieval Latin catēchizāre, from Late Greek katēkhizein, from Greek katēkhein : kata-, down, off, out; see CATA- + ēkhein, to sound (from ēkhē, sound).] —cat'·e·chi-za'tion (-kī-zā'shən) n. —cat'·e·chiz'er n.

cat·e·chol (kăt'ī-kōl', -kōl', -kōl') n. 1. See catechin. 2. A biologically important organic phenol, having two hydroxyl groups attached to the benzene ring. [CATECH(U) + -OL¹.]

cat·e·cho·la·mine (kăt'ī-kō'lə-mēn', -kōl'-) n. Any of a group of amines derived from catechol that have important physiological effects as neurotransmitters and hormones and include epinephrine, norepinephrine, and dopamine.

cat·e·chu (kăt'ə-chōō') n. 1. a. A spiny Asian tree (Acacia catechu) having bipinnately compound leaves, spikes of yellow flowers, and dark heartwood. b. A raw material obtained from the heartwood of this plant, used in the preparation of tannins and brown dyes. Also called cutch. 2. See betel palm. [Probably from Malay kachu, probably from Dravidian karaiyal, karaiccal, that which is dissolved, from karai, to melt.]

cat·e·chu·men (kăt'ī-kyōō'mən) n. 1. One who is being taught the principles of Christianity. 2. One who is being instructed in a subject at an elementary level. [Middle English cathecumine, from Old French catechumene, from Latin catēchūmenus, from Greek katēkhōumenos, present passive participle of katēkhein, to instruct. See CATECHIZE.]

cat·e·gor·i·cal (kăt'ī-gōr'ī-kəl, -gōr'-) also cat·e·gor·ic (-īk) adj. 1. Being without exception or qualification; absolute. See Synonyms at explicit. 2. a. Of or relating to a category or categories. b. According to or using categories: a categorical arrangement of specimens. —cat'e-gor'i-cal-ly adv.

—cat'e-gor'i-cal-ness n.

categorical imperative (kăt'ĩ-gôr'ĩ-kəl ĩm-pĕr'ə-tĭv) n. In the ethical system of Immanuel Kant, an unconditional moral law that applies to all rational beings and is independent of any personal motive or desire.

cat·e·go·rize (kăt'ĩ-gə-rīz') v. tr. cat·e·go·rized, cat·e·go·riz·ing, cat·e·go·riz·es. To put into a category or categories; classify.

—cat'e-go-riz'a·ble adj. —cat'e-go-ri-za'tion (-gər-ĩ-zā'shən) n.

cat·e·go·ry (kăt'ĩ-gôr'ē, -gôr'ē) n. pl. cat·e·go·ries. 1. A specifically defined division in a system of classification; a class. 2. A general class of ideas, terms, or things that mark divisions or coordinations within a conceptual scheme, especially: a. Aristotle's modes of objective being, such as quality, quantity, or relation, that are inherent in everything. b. Kant's modes of subjective understanding, such as singularity, universality, or particularity, that organize perceptions into knowledge. c. A basic logical type of philosophical conception in post-Kantian philosophy. [French catégorie, from Old French, from Late Latin catēgoria, class of predicables, from Greek katēgoria, accusation, charge, from katēgorein, to accuse, predicate : kata-, down, against; see CATA- + agoreuein, ēgor-, to speak in public (from agora, marketplace, assembly); see ger- in Appendix.]

category killer (kăt'ĩ-gôr'ē kĭl'ər) n. Slang. A large retail store or chain of stores specializing in a single kind of merchandise that is stocked in great quantity and variety and sold at discount prices.

ca·te·na (kə-tĕ'nə) n. pl. ca·te·nae (-nĕ) or ca·te·nas. A closely linked series, especially of excerpted writings or commentaries. [Latin catēna, chain.]

cat·e·nar·y (kăt'n-ĕr'ē, kə-tĕ'nə-rĕ) n. pl. cat·e·nar·ies. 1. The curve theoretically formed by a perfectly flexible, uniformly dense, and inextensible cable suspended from its endpoints. 2. Something having the general shape of this curve. [New Latin catēnāria, from Latin, feminine of catēnārius, relating to a chain, from catēna, chain.] —cat'e-nar'y adj.

cat·e·nate (kăt'n-āt') v. tr. cat·e·nat·ed, cat·e·nat·ing, cat·e·nates. To connect in a series of ties or links; form into a chain. [Latin catēnāre, catēnāt-, from catēna, chain.]

ca·ter (kā'tər) v. ca·tered, ca·ter·ing, ca·ters. — v. intr. 1. To provide food or entertainment. 2. To be particularly attentive or solicitous; minister: The nurses catered to my every need. The legislation catered to various special interest groups. — v. tr. 1. To provide food service for: a business that caters banquets and weddings. 2. To attend to the wants or needs of. [From obsolete cater, a buyer of provisions, from Middle English catour, short for acatour, from Norman French, from acater, to buy, from Vulgar Latin accaptāre* : Latin ad-, ad- + Latin captāre, to chase; see CATCH.] —ca'ter·er n.

cat·er·cor·nered (kăt'ər-kôr'nərd, kăt'ē-) also cat·er·cor·ner (-nər) or cat·ty·cor·nered (kăt'ē-kôr'nərd) or cat·ty·cor·ner (-nər) or kit·ty·cor·nered (kīt'ē-kôr'nərd) or kit·ty·cor·ner (-kôr'nər) adj. Diagonal. — adv. In a diagonal position. [From obsolete cater, four at dice, from Middle English, from Old French catre, four, from Latin quattuor. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

cat·er·pil·lar (kăt'ər-pīl'ər, kăt'ə-) n. 1. The wormlike, often brightly colored, hairy or spiny larva of a butterfly or moth. 2. Any of various insect larvae similar to those of the butterfly or moth. [Middle English catirpel, catirpeller, probably alteration of Old North French catepelose* : cate, cat (from Latin cattus) + pelose, hairy (from Latin pilōsus); see PILOSE.]

WORD HISTORY: It seems that the larvae of moths and butterflies are particularly seen as resembling other, larger animals. Consider the Italian dialect word gatta, “cat, caterpillar”; the German dialect term tüfelskatz, “caterpillar” (literally “devil’s cat”); the French word chenille, “caterpillar” (from a Vulgar Latin diminutive, ·canīcula, of canis, “dog”); and last but not least, our own word caterpillar, which appears probably to have come through Northern French from the Old French term chatepelose, meaning literally “hairy cat.” Our word caterpillar is first recorded in English in 1440 in the form catyrpel. Catyr, the first part of catyrpel, may indicate the existence of an English word ·cater, meaning “tomcat,” otherwise attested only in caterwaul. Cater would be cognate with Middle High German kater and Dutch kater. The latter part of catyrpel seems to have become associated with the word pillor, “plunderer.” By giving the variant spelling -ar, Johnson’s Dictionary set the spelling caterpillar with which we are familiar today.

Cat·er·pil·lar (kăt'ər-pīl'ər, kăt'ə-) A trademark used for a tractor equipped with continuous chain treads.

cat·er·waul (kăt'ər-wôl') v. intr. cat·er·wauled, cat·er·waul·ing, cat·er·wauls. 1. To cry or screech like a cat in heat. 2. To make a shrill, discordant sound. 3. To have a noisy argument. — n. A shrill, discordant sound. [Middle English caterwawlen* : cater*, tomcat; akin to Low German kater+wawlen, wrawlen, to yowl (ultimately of imitative origin).]

Cates·by (kăts'bē), Mark. 1679?-1749. British naturalist who studied American flora and brought many specimens back to Great Britain.

Cates·by (kăts'bē), Robert. 1573-1605. English conspirator who along with Guy Fawkes was involved in the Gunpowder Plot (1604-1605) to assassinate James I. He was killed resisting arrest.

cat·fight (kăt'fit') n. 1. A fight between or among cats. 2. Informal. A vociferous dispute: a catfight between farmers and the government over subsidies.

cat·fish (kăt'fish') n. pl. catfish or cat·fish-es. Any of numerous scaleless, chiefly freshwater fishes of the suborder Siluroidei, characteristically having whiskerlike barbels extending from the upper jaw. Regional. Also called bullhead-Regional., mud catRegional., mud puppy.

cat·gut (kăt'güt') n. A tough, thin cord made from the treated and stretched intestines of certain animals, especially sheep, and used for stringing musical instruments and tennis rackets and for surgical ligatures.

cath. abbr. 1. Cathedral. 2. Cathode.

Cath·ar (käth'är) n. pl. Cath·a·ri (-ə-rī') or Cath·ars. A member of a heretical Christian sect that flourished in western Europe in the 12th and 13th centuries and professed a dualistic belief emphasizing ascetic renunciation of the world. [French Cathare, from sing. of Medieval Latin Catharī, from Late Greek Katharoi, from pl. of Greek katharos, pure.] —Cath'ar adj. —Cath'a-rism n.

—Cath'a-rist adj. & n.

ca·thar·sis (kə-thär'sis) n. pl. ca·thar·ses (-sēz). 1. Medicine. Purgation, especially for the digestive system. 2. A purifying or figurative cleansing of the emotions, especially pity and fear, described by Aristotle as an effect of tragic drama on its audience. 3. A release of emotional tension, as after an overwhelming experience, that restores or refreshes the spirit. 4. Psychology. a. A technique used to relieve tension and anxiety by bringing repressed feelings and fears to consciousness. b. The therapeutic result of this process; abreaction. [New Latin, from Greek katharsis, from kathairein, to purge, from katharos, pure.]

ca·thar·tic (kə-thär'tik) adj. Inducing catharsis; purgative. — n. An agent for purging the bowels, especially a laxative. [Late Latin catharticus, from Greek kathartikos, from kathairein, to purge. See CATHARSIS.]

Ca·thay (kä-thā') A medieval name for China popularized by Marco Polo in accounts of his travels. It usually applied only to the area north of the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang).

cat·head (kăt'hēd') n. Nautical. A beam projecting outward from the bow of a ship and used as a support to lift the anchor.

ca·thect (kə-thēkt', kə-) v. tr. ca·thect-ed, ca·thect-ing, ca·thects. To concentrate emotional energy on (an object or idea). [Back-formation from CATHEXIS.] —ca·thec'tic adj.

ca·the·dra (kə-thē'drə) n. pl. ca·the·drae (-drē). 1. A bishop's official chair or throne. 2. The office or see of a bishop. 3. The official chair of an office or position, as of a professor. [Middle English, from Latin, chair, from Greek kathedra: kat-, kata-, cata- + hedra, seat; see sed- in Appendix.]

ca·the·dral (kə-thē'drəl) n. Abbr. cath. 1. The principal church of a bishop's diocese, containing the episcopal throne. 2. A large, important church.

3. Something that resembles a cathedral, as in grandeur or authority. — adj.

1. Of, relating to, or containing a bishop's throne: a cathedral church. 2. Relating to or issuing from a chair of office or authority; authoritative. 3. Of, relating to, or resembling a cathedral: tall trees whose branches met to form cathedral arches over the path. [Short for cathedral church, from Middle English cathedral, of a diocese, from Old French, from Medieval Latin cathedrālis, of a bishop's see, from Latin cathedra, chair. See CATHEDRA.]

cathedral ceiling (kə-thē'drəl sē'ling) n. A high, open, usually slanting or pointed ceiling.

ca-thep-sin (kə-thēp'sin) n. Any of various proteolytic enzymes found in animal tissue that catalyze the hydrolysis of proteins into polypeptides. [German Kathepsin, from Greek kathepsin, to digest : kat-, kata-, cata- + hepsin, to boil.]

Cath-er (kăth'ər), Willa Sibert. 1873-1947. American author who wrote about frontier life. Her novel One of Ours (1922) won a Pulitzer Prize.

Cath-e-rine I (kăth'ər-ĭn, kăth'rĭn), 1684?-1727. Empress of Russia (1725-1727) as successor to her husband, Peter the Great. She founded the Russian Academy of Sciences (1725).

Cath-e-rine II (kăth'ər-ĭn, kăth'rĭn), Known as "Catherine the Great." 1729-1796. Empress of Russia (1762-1796) after her husband, Peter III (1728-1762), was deposed by a group led by her lover. She vastly increased the territory of the empire through conquest and three partitions of Poland.

Cath-e-rine de Mé-di-cis (kăth'ər-ĭn də mēd'ĭ-chē', kăth'rĭn, kăt-rĕn' də mā-dē-sēs'), 1519-1589. Queen of France as the wife of Henry II and regent during the minority (1560-1563) of her son Charles IX. She continued to wield power until the end of Charles's reign (1574).

Cath-e-rine of Ar-a-gon (kăth'ər-ĭn ÷v ăr'ə-gŏn', kăth'rĭn; ăr'ə-gŏn'), 1485-1536. The first wife of Henry VIII of England. Henry's insistence on a divorce from her (1533) caused his break with Roman Catholicism and the beginning of the English Reformation.

Catherine of Bra-gan-za (kăth'ər-ĭn ÷v brə-gän'zə), 1638-1705. Portuguese princess and queen of England as the wife of Charles II.

Catherine of Si-en-a (kăth'ər-ĭn ÷v sē-ĕn'ə, syĕ'nä), Saint. 1347-1380. Italian religious leader who mediated a peace between the Florentines and Pope Urban VI in 1378.

cath-er-ine wheel (kăth'ər-ĭn hwĕl, kăth'rĭn) n. See pinwheel (n., sense 2). [After Saint Catherine of Alexandria (died A.D. 307), who was condemned to be tortured on a wheel.]

cath-e-ter (kăth'ĭ-tər) n. A hollow, flexible tube for insertion into a body cavity, duct, or vessel to allow the passage of fluids or distend a passageway. Its uses include the drainage of urine from the bladder through the urethra or insertion through a blood vessel into the heart for diagnostic purposes. [Late Latin, from Greek kathetēr, from kathienai, to send down : kat-, kata-, cata- + hiēnai, hē-, to send; see yē- in Appendix.]

cath·e·ter·ize (kăth'ī-tə-rīz') v. tr. cath·e·ter·ized, cath·e·ter·iz·ing, cath·e·ter·izes. To introduce a catheter into. —cath'e·ter·i·za'tion (-rī-zā'shən) n.

ca·thex·is (kə-thĕk'sīs) n. pl. ca·thex·es (-thĕk'sēz). Concentration of emotional energy on an object or idea. [Greek kathexis, holding, retention, from katekhein, to hold fast : kat-, kata-, intensive pref.; see CATA- + ekhein, to hold; see segh- in Appendix.]

cath·ode (kăth'ōd') n. Abbr. cath., ka 1. A negatively charged electrode, as of an electrolytic cell, a storage battery, or an electron tube. 2. The positively charged terminal of a primary cell or a storage battery that is supplying current. [Greek kathodos, descent : kat-, kata-, cata- + hodos, way, path.] —ca·thod'ic (kă-thōd'ik) adj. —ca·thod'i·cal·ly adv.

cathode ray (kăth'ōd' rā) n. 1. A stream of electrons emitted by the cathode in electrical discharge tubes. 2. One of the electrons that is emitted in a stream from a cathode-ray tube.

cath·ode·ray tube (kăth'ōd-rā' tōōb) n. Abbr. CRT A vacuum tube in which a hot cathode emits electrons that are accelerated as a beam through a relatively high voltage anode, further focused or deflected electrostatically or electromagnetically, and allowed to fall on a phosphorescent screen.

cath·o·lic (kăth'ə-līk, kăth'lik) adj. 1. Of broad or liberal scope; comprehensive: “The 100-odd pages of formulas and constants are surely the most catholic to be found” (Scientific American). 2. Including or concerning all humankind; universal: “what was of catholic rather than national interest” (J.A. Froude). 3. Catholic. Abbr. C. a. Of or involving the Roman Catholic Church. b. Of or relating to the universal Christian church. c. Of or relating to the ancient undivided Christian church. d. Of or relating to those churches that have claimed to be representatives of the ancient undivided church. — n. also Catholic Abbr. C. A member of a Catholic church, especially a Roman Catholic. [Middle English catholik, universally accepted, from Old French catholique, from Latin catholicus, universal, from Greek katholikos, from katholou, in general : kat-, kata-, down, along, according to; see CATA- + holou, from neuter genitive of holos, whole; see sol- in Appendix.] —ca·thol'i·cal·ly (kə-thōl'ik-lē) adv.

Catholic Church (kăth'ə-līk chûrch) n. The Roman Catholic Church.

Catholic Epistles (kăth'ə-līk ĭ-pīs'əlz) pl.n. Bible. The five New Testament epistles (James, I and II Peter, I John, and Jude) that were addressed to the universal church rather than to particular Christian communities.

Ca·thol·i·cism (kə-thōl'ī-sīz'əm) n. The faith, doctrine, system, and practice of a Catholic church, especially the Roman Catholic Church.

cath·o·lic·i·ty (kăth'ə-līs'ī-tē) n. 1. The condition or quality of being catholic; breadth or inclusiveness. 2. General application or acceptance; universality.

3. Catholicity. Roman Catholicism.

ca·thol·i·cize (kə-thŏl'ī-sīz') v. tr. intr. ca·thol·i·cized, ca·thol·i·ciz·ing, ca·thol·i·ciz·es. 1. To make or become catholic. 2. To convert or be converted to Catholicism.

ca·thol·i·con (kə-thŏl'ī-kŏn') n. A universal remedy; a panacea. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin, from Greek katholikon, generic description, from neuter of katholikos, universal. See CATHOLIC.] cat·house (kăt'hous') n. Slang. A house of prostitution.

Cat·i·line (kăt'līn'), 108?-62 B.C. Roman politician and conspirator who led an unsuccessful revolt against the Roman Republic while Cicero was a consul.

cat·i·on (kăt'ī'ən) n. An ion or group of ions having a positive charge and characteristically moving toward the negative electrode in electrolysis. [Greek kation, something going down, from neuter of katiōn present participle of katiēnai : kat-, kata-, cata- + ienai, to go; see ei- in Appendix.] —cat'·i·on'·ic (kăt'ī-ŏn'ik) adj.

cation exchange (kăt'ī'ən ĩks-chānj') n. A chemical process in which cations of like charge are exchanged equally between a solid, such as zeolite, and a solution, such as water. The process is often used to soften water.

cat·jang (kă-chǎng') n. 1. See cajan pea. 2. See cowpea. [Dutch katjang, from Malay kachang, pea, bean.]

cat·kin (kăt'kĭn) n. A usually dense, cylindrical, often drooping cluster of unisexual, apetalous flowers found in willows, birches, and oaks. Also called *ament*¹ [From obsolete Dutch katteken, kitten, diminutive of katte, cat (from its resemblance to a kitten's tail), from Germanic kattuz*.]

cat·like (kăt'lĭk') adj. Resembling a cat, especially in being quiet or stealthy.

Cat·lin (kăt'lĭn), George. 1796-1872. American artist who painted portraits and tribal scenes in the American West and in South and Central America.

cat·mint (kăt'mĭnt') n. 1. Any of various aromatic, ornamental, annual or perennial plants of the genus Nepeta, having opposite leaves and variously colored flowers with two-lipped corollas. 2. Chiefly British. Catnip.

cat·nap (kăt'năp') n. A short nap; a light sleep. — v. intr. cat·napped, cat·nap·ping, cat·naps. To take a short nap; doze lightly.

cat·nip (kăt'nĭp') n. 1. A hairy, aromatic perennial herb (Nepeta cataria) in the mint family, native to Eurasia and containing an aromatic oil to which cats are strongly attracted. 2. Any of various other mostly aromatic plants in the genus Nepeta, cultivated for their ornamental foliage and clusters of blue, lavender, or white flowers. [CAT + nĭp, catnip (variant of nep, from Middle English nept, nep, from Old English nepte, from Latin nepeta, aromatic herb, perhaps of Etruscan origin).]

Ca·to¹ (kă'tō), Marcus Porcius. Known as "the Elder" or "the Censor." 234-149 B.C. Roman politician and general who wrote the first history of Rome. As censor he attempted to restore simplicity to Roman life.

Ca-to² (kā'tō), Marcus Porcius. Known as “the Younger.” 95-46 B.C. Roman politician and great-grandson of Cato the Elder. A conservative opponent of Julius Caesar’s political ambitions, he supported Pompey against Caesar in the civil war and committed suicide after Caesar’s decisive victory at Thapsus.

Ca-toc-tin Mountains (kā-tōk'tin moun'tənz) A section of the Blue Ridge in northern Maryland extending from the Pennsylvania border south to Virginia. Camp David is located in the northern part.

cat-o'-nine-tails (kăt'ə-nīn'tālz') n. pl. cat-o'-nine-tails. A whip consisting of nine knotted cords fastened to a handle, used in flogging. [So called because it leaves marks like the scratches of a cat.]

Ca-tons-ville (kāt'nz-vīl') An unincorporated community of north-central Maryland, a suburb of Baltimore. Population, 35,233.

ca-top-tric (kā-tōp'trīk) also ca-top-tri-cal (-trī-kəl) adj. Of or relating to mirrors and reflected images. [Greek katoptrikos, from katoptron, mirror. See ok^w-in Appendix.] —ca-top'trics n.

cat rig (kăt rīg) n. Nautical. The rig of a catboat.

Cat-ron (kăt'rən), John. 1786?-1865. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1837-1865).

CAT scan (kăt skăn) n. An image produced by a CAT scanner. Also called CT scan CAT scanner (kăt skăn'ər) n. A device that produces cross-sectional views of an internal body structure using computerized axial tomography. Also called CT scanner cat's cradle (kăts krād'l) n. 1. A game in which a string is looped on the fingers to form an intricate pattern between a player’s hands that can be successively varied or transferred to another player’s hands. 2. An intricate pattern: “Their computers devised a cat’s cradle of infinite complexity for the flight tracks of half a dozen space cameras around the globe’s surface” (Frederick Forsyth).

cat scratch disease (kăt skrăch dĩ-zēz') n. A disease thought to be transmitted to humans by the scratch or bite of a cat and characterized by fever and swollen lymph nodes. Also called cat scratch fever cat's-eye (kăts'ī') n. pl. cat's-eyes. 1. Any of various semiprecious gems such as chrysoberyl, BeAl₂O₄, reflecting a band of light that shifts position as the gem is turned. 2. A glass or plastic reflector designed to glow in the beam of a headlight, used on a vehicle as a safety device or set in rows along a highway as lane markers. 3. A marble having an eyelike design, such as concentric circles or a colored center set in clear glass.

Cats-kill Mountains (kăt'skīl' moun'tənz) A range of the Appalachian Mountains in southeast New York just west of the Hudson River. The mountains, rising to 1,282.2 m (4,204 ft), include many popular resort areas.

cat's-paw also cats-paw (kăts'pô') n. pl. cat's-paws also cats-paws. 1. A person used by another as a dupe or tool. 2. A light breeze that ruffles small areas of a water surface. 3. Nautical. A knot made by twisting a section of rope to form two adjacent eyes through which a hook is passed, used in hoisting. [From a fable about a monkey that used a cat's paw to pull chestnuts out of a fire.]

cat-sup (kăt'səp, kăch'əp, kěch'-) n. Variant of ketchup.

Catt (kăt), Carrie (Lane) Chapman. 1859-1947. American suffragist who was an organizer and president (1900-1904 and 1915-1947) of the National American Woman Suffrage Association. She organized the League of Women Voters in 1919, the year before the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was ratified.

cat-tail (kăt'tāl') n. Any of various perennial herbs of the genus Typha, widespread in marshy places and having long, straplike leaves and a dense, cylindrical cluster of minute flowers and fruits. Also called reed mace cat-ta-lo also cat-a-lo (kăt'l-ō') n. pl. cat-ta-loes or cat-ta-los. See beefalo. [CATT(LE) + (BUFF)ALO.]

cat-tie (kăt'ē) n. Variant of catty².

cat-tle (kăt'l) pl.n. 1. Any of various mammals of the genus Bos, including cows, steers, bulls, and oxen, often raised for meat and dairy products. 2. Human beings, especially when viewed contemptuously or as a mob. [Middle English catel, property, livestock, from Old North French, from Old Provençal capdal, from Medieval Latin capitāle, holdings, funds, from neuter of Latin capitālis, principal, original, from caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

cattle call (kăt'l kôl) n. Informal. An audition in which a large number of often inexperienced actors or performers try out.

cattle egret (kăt'l ē'grīt) n. A small egret (Bubulus ibis) native to Africa and southern Eurasia that feeds among grazing cattle.

cattle grub (kăt'l grüb) n. The larva of a warble fly, especially of the genus Hypoderma, that parasitizes cattle and causes a boillike swelling under the hide.

cattle guard (kăt'l gärd) n. A grid, usually of parallel metal bars, set at ground level in a road or gateway as a barrier to cattle while allowing the passage of vehicles and pedestrians.

cat-tle-man (kăt'l-mən, -män') n. A man who raises or tends cattle.

cattle prod (kăt'l pröd) n. A usually electrified prod designed for driving cattle.

cattle tick (kăt'l tĭk) n. A brown tick (Boophilus annulatus) whose bite transmits the causative agent of Texas fever in cattle.

cat-tle-ya (kăt'lē-ə) n. Any of various tropical American, mostly epiphytic orchids of the genus Cattleya, much hybridized and extensively cultivated for their showy, variously colored flowers. [New Latin Cattleya, genus name, after William Cattley (died 1832), British patron of botany.]

Cat-ton (kăt'n), (Charles) Bruce. 1899-1978. American historian and editor who wrote extensively on the Civil War and edited (1954-1959) American Heritage magazine.

cat-ty¹ (kăt'ē) adj. cat-ti-er, cat-ti-est. 1. Subtly cruel or malicious; spiteful: a catty remark. 2. Catlike; stealthy. —cat'ti-ly adv. —cat'ti-ness n.

cat-ty² also cat-tie (kăt'ē) n. pl. cat-ties. Any of various units of weight used in Southeast Asia, especially a Chinese measure equal to 500 grams (approximately 1.1 pounds). [Malay kati.]

cat-ty-cornered (kăt'ē-kôr'nərd) or cat-ty-corner (-nər) adj. & adv.
Variants of cater-cornered.

Ca-tul-lus (kə-tül'əs), Gaius Valerius. 84?-54? B.C. Roman lyric poet known for his love poems to "Lesbia," an aristocratic Roman woman whose real name was Clodia.

CATV abbr. Community antenna television.

cat-walk (kăt'wôk') n. A narrow, often elevated walkway, as on the sides of a bridge or in the flies above a theater stage.

Cau-ca (kou'kə) A river rising in the Cordillera Central of western Colombia and flowing about 965 km (600 mi) northward to the Magdalena River.

Cau-ca-sia (kô-kā'zhə, -shə) See Caucasus.

Cau-ca-sian (kô-kā'zhən, -kăzh'ən) adj. 1. Anthropology. Of, relating to, or being a major human racial division traditionally distinguished by physical characteristics such as very light to brown skin pigmentation and straight to wavy or curly hair, and including peoples indigenous to Europe, northern Africa, western Asia, and India. No longer in scientific use. 2. Of or relating to the Caucasus region or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. 1. Anthropology. A member of the Caucasian racial division. No longer in scientific use. 2. A native or inhabitant of the Caucasus.

Cau-ca-soid (kô'kə-soid') Anthropology. adj. Of or relating to the Caucasian racial division. No longer in scientific use. — n. A member of the Caucasian racial division. No longer in scientific use.

Cau-ca-sus (kô'kə-səs) also Cau-ca-sia (kô-kā'zhə, -shə) A region between the Black and Caspian seas that includes Russia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, and Armenia. Inhabited before 2000 B.C., it was the scene of countless invasions over the millenniums. The region's vast oil resources were a major German objective in World War II.

Caucasus Mountains (kô'kə-səs moun'tənz) A range extending from the north to the southeast in the Caucasus. Mount Elbrus, 5,645.6 m (18,510 ft), is the highest elevation.

cau-cus (kô'kəs) n. pl. cau-cus-es or cau-cus-ses. 1. a. A meeting of the local members of a political party especially to select delegates to a convention or register preferences for candidates running for office. b. A closed meeting of party members within a legislative body to decide on questions of policy or leadership.

c. A group within a legislative or decision-making body seeking to represent a specific interest or influence a particular area of policy: a minority caucus.

2. Chiefly British. A committee within a political party charged with determining policy. — v. cau-cused or cau-cussed, cau-cus-ing or cau-cus-sing, cau-cus-es or cau-cus-ses. — v. intr. To assemble in or hold a caucus. — v. tr. To assemble or canvass (members of a caucus). [After the Caucus Club of Boston (in the 1760's), possibly from Medieval Latin caucus, drinking vessel.]

cau-dad (kô'dăd') adv. Anatomy. Toward the tail or posterior end of the body; caudally. [Latin cauda, tail + -AD.]

cau-dal (kôd'l) adj. Anatomy. 1. a. Of, at, or near the tail or hind parts; posterior: the caudal fin of a fish. b. Situated beneath or on the underside; inferior.

2. Zoology. Taillike. [New Latin caudālis, from Latin cauda, tail.] — cau/dal-ly adv.

cau-date (kô'dāt') also cau-dat-ed (-dā'tid) adj. Having a tail or taillike appendage. [Medieval Latin caudātus, from Latin cauda, tail.] — cau-da'tion n.

caudate nucleus (kô'dāt' nōō'klē-əs) n. A basal ganglion located in the lateral ventricle of the brain that has a curved, taillike extension and functions in motor control.

cau-dex (kô'děks') n. pl. cau-di-ces (-dī-sēz') or cau-dex-es. 1. The thickened, usually underground base of the stem of many perennial herbaceous plants, from which new leaves and flowering stems arise. 2. The trunk of a palm or tree fern. [Latin caudex, tree trunk.]

cau-dil-lis-mo (kô'dēl-yēz'mō, -dē-yēz'-, kou'thēl-, -thē-) n. The practice or system of rule by a caudillo. [Spanish, from caudillo, leader. See CAUDILLO.]

cau-dil-lo (kô-dēl'yō, -dē'yō, kou-thēl'-, -thē'-) n. pl. cau-dil-los. 1. A leader or chief, especially a military dictator. 2. A political boss; an overlord. [Spanish, leader, from Late Latin capitellum, diminutive of Latin caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

cau-dle (kôd'l) n. A warm drink consisting of wine or ale mixed with sugar, eggs, bread, and various spices, sometimes given to ill persons. [Middle English caudel, from Old North French, from Medieval Latin caldellus, from Latin cal-dum, hot drink, from caldus, calidus, warm, hot. See kelə-¹ in Appendix.]

caught (kôt) v. Past tense and past participle of catch.

caul (kôl) n. 1. A portion of the amnion, especially when it covers the head of a fetus at birth. Also called pileus. 2. See greater omentum. [Middle English calle, from Old English cawl, basket.]

caul-dron (kôl'drən) n. Variant of caldron.

cau-les-cent (kô-lēs'ənt) adj. Botany. Having a well-developed aboveground stem. [Latin caulis, stem + -ESCENT.]

cau·li·flor·y (kô'lə-flôr'ē, -flôr'ē) n. The production of flowers and fruits on the older branches or trunks of woody plants, such as the redbud, and many mostly tropical plants, including cacao. [From Latin caulis, stem + flōs, flōr-, flower; see FLOWER.] —cau'li-flor'ous adj.

cau·li·flow·er (kô'lī-flou'ər, kôl'ī-) n. An herb (Brassica oleracea var. botrytis) in the mustard family, related to the cabbage and broccoli and having a whitish undeveloped flower with a large, edible head. [Probably alteration (influenced by FLOWER), of New Latin cauliflora : Latin caulis, stem + Latin flōs, flōr-, flower; see FLOWER.]

cauliflower ear (kô'lī-flou'ər îr) n. An ear swollen and deformed by repeated blows.

cau·line (kô'līn') adj. Botany. Of, having, or growing on a stem. Used especially of leaves arising from the upper part of a stem. [Latin caulis, stem + -INE¹.]

caulk also calk (kôk) v. caulked also calked, caulk·ing also calk·ing, caulks also calks. — v. tr. 1. To make watertight or airtight by filling or sealing: caulk a pipe joint; caulked the cracks between the boards with mud. 2. Nautical. To make (a boat) watertight by packing seams with a waterproof material, such as oakum or pitch. — v. intr. To apply caulking: caulked all around the window frame. — n. Caulking. [Middle English cauken, to press, from Old North French cauquer, from Latin calcāre, to tread, from calx, heel.] —caulk'er n.

caulk·ing (kô'kĭng) n. A usually impermeable substance used for caulking. Also called caulking compound caus. abbr. Causative.

caus·al (kô'zəl) adj. 1. Of, involving, or constituting a cause: a causal relationship between scarcity of goods and higher prices. 2. Indicative of or expressing a cause. — n. A word or grammatical element, such as since or because, expressing a cause or reason. —caus'al·ly adv.

cau·sal·i·ty (kô-zăl'ī-tē) n. pl. cau·sal·i·ties. 1. The principle of or relationship between cause and effect. 2. A causal agency, force, or quality.

cau·sa·tion (kô-zā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of causing. 2. A cause. 3. Causality.

caus·a·tive (kô'zə-tĭv) adj. 1. Functioning as an agent or cause. 2. Abbr. caus. Expressing causation. Used of a verb or verbal affix. —caus'a·tive n. —caus'a·tive·ly adv.

cause (kôz) n. 1. a. The producer of an effect, result, or consequence. b. The one, such as a person, an event, or a condition, that is responsible for an action or a result. 2. A basis for an action or a response; a reason: The doctor's report gave no cause for alarm. 3. A goal or principle served with dedication and zeal: "the cause of freedom versus tyranny" (Hannah Arendt). 4. The interests of a person or group engaged in a struggle: "The cause of America is in great measure the cause of all mankind" (Thomas Paine). 5. Law. a. A ground for legal action. b. A lawsuit.

6. A subject under debate or discussion. — v. tr. caused, caus-ing, caus-es.

1. To be the cause of or reason for; result in. 2. To bring about or compel by authority or force: The moderator invoked a rule causing the debate to be ended.

[Middle English, from Old French, from Latin causa, reason, purpose.]

—caus/a-ble adj. —cause/less adj. —caus'er n.

SYNONYMS: cause, reason, occasion, antecedent. These nouns denote what brings about or is associated with an effect or result. A cause is an agent or condition that permits the occurrence of an effect or necessarily or ineluctably leads to a result: “He is not only dull in himself, but the cause of dullness in others” (Samuel Foote). Reason refers to what explains the occurrence or nature of an effect: There was no obvious reason for the accident. Occasion is a situation that permits or stimulates existing causes to come into play: “Such were the causes; but the immediate occasion of his departure... was the favorable opportunity... of migrating in a pleasant way” (Thomas De Quincey). Antecedent refers to what has gone before and implies a relationship—but not necessarily a causal one—with what ensues: Some of the antecedents of World War II lie in economic conditions in Europe following World War I.

'cause (kôz, kûz) conj. Informal. Because.

cause cé-lè-bre (kôz' sâ-lëb'rə) n. pl. causes cé-lè-bres (kôz' sâ-lëb'rə).

1. An issue arousing widespread controversy or heated public debate. 2. A celebrated legal case. [French : cause, case + célèbre, celebrated.]

cau-se-rie (kôz-rē') n. 1. An informal discussion or chat, especially of an intellectual nature. 2. A short, conversational piece of writing or criticism. [French, from causer, to talk, from Latin causārī, to plead, discuss, from causa, case, cause.]

cause-way (kôz'wā') n. 1. A raised roadway, as across water or marshland.

2. A paved highway. [Middle English caucewei : cauce, raised road (from Norman French caucie, from Medieval Latin calciāta (via), paved (road), from Latin calx, calc-, limestone); see CALX + wei, road (variant of way); see WAY.]

caus-tic (kô'stīk) adj. 1. Capable of burning, corroding, dissolving, or eating away by chemical action. 2. Corrosive and bitingly trenchant; cutting. See Synonyms at sarcastic. 3. Causing a burning or stinging sensation, as from intense emotion: “Most of all, there is caustic shame for my own stupidity” (Scott Turow). 4. Of or relating to light emitted from a point source and reflected or refracted from a curved surface. — n. 1. A caustic material or substance. 2. A hydroxide of a light metal. 3. A caustic curve or surface. [Middle English caustik, from Latin causticus, from Greek kaustikos, from kaustos, from kaiein, kau-, to burn.]

—caus'ti-cal-ly adv. —caus-tic'i-ty (kô-stīs'ī-tē) n.

caustic potash (kô'stīk pŏt'ăsh') n. See potassium hydroxide.

caustic soda (kô'stîk sô'də) n. See sodium hydroxide.

cau-ter-ize (kô'tə-rīz') v. tr. cau-ter-ized, cau-ter-iz-ing, cau-ter-iz-es.

1. To burn or sear with a cautery. 2. To deaden, as to feelings or moral scruples; callous. [Middle English cauterizen, from Late Latin cautērizāre, to cauterize, brand, from Latin cautērium, cautery. See CAUTERY.] —cau'ter-i-za'tion (-tər-ī-zā'shən) n.

cau-ter-y (kô'tə-rē) n. pl. cau-ter-ies. 1. An agent or instrument used to destroy abnormal tissue by burning, searing, or scarring, including caustic substances, electric currents, lasers, and very hot or very cold instruments. 2. The act or process of cauterizing. [Middle English cauterie, from Latin cautērium, branding iron, cautery, from Greek kautērion, from kaiein, kau-, to burn.]

cau-tion (kô'shən) n. 1. a. Careful forethought to avoid danger or harm. b. Close attention or vigilance to minimize risk: The car proceeded over the rickety bridge with caution. 2. Prudence or restraint in action or decision: advised caution in choosing a school. 3. A warning or admonishment, especially to take heed: I received a caution from the doctor about fat in my diet. 4. A cautious action; a precaution: The climbers took the necessary cautions in preparing for the ascent. 5. Informal. One that is striking or alarming. — v. tr. cau-tioned, cau-tion-ing, cau-tions. To advise to take heed; warn or admonish. See Synonyms at warn. [Middle English caucioun, from Old French caution, from Latin cautiō, cautiōn-, from cautus, past participle of cavēre, to take care.]

cau-tion-ar-y (kô'shə-nĕr'ē) adj. Giving or serving as a warning; admonitory: a cautionary tale; cautionary advice.

cau-tious (kô'shəs) adj. 1. Showing or practicing caution; careful. 2. Tentative or restrained; guarded: felt a cautious optimism that the offer would be accepted. —cau'tious-ly adv. —cau'tious-ness n.

cav. abbr. 1. Cavalier. 2. Cavalry. 3. Cavity.

cav-al-cade (käv'əl-kād', käv'əl-kād') n. 1. A procession of riders or horse-drawn carriages. 2. A ceremonial procession or display. 3. A succession or series: starred in a cavalcade of Broadway hits. [French, from Old French, from Old Italian cavalcata, from cavalcare, to ride on horseback, from Medieval Latin caballicāre, from Latin caballus, horse.]

cav-a-lier (käv'ə-līr') n. 1. Abbr. cav. A gallant or chivalrous man, especially one serving as escort to a woman of high social position; a gentleman. 2. Abbr. cav. A mounted soldier; a knight. 3. Cavalier. A supporter of Charles I of England in his struggles against Parliament. Also called Royalist — adj. 1. Showing arrogant or offhand disregard; dismissive: a cavalier attitude toward the suffering of others. 2. Carefree and nonchalant; jaunty. 3. Cavalier. Of or relating to a group of 17th-century English poets associated with the court of Charles I. [French, horseman, from Old Italian cavaliere, from Medieval Latin caballārius, from Latin caballus, horse.] —cav'a-lier/ly adv.

ca·val·la (kə-väl'ə) n. pl. ca·va·las or cavalla. 1. Any of various tropical marine food fishes of the family Carangidae, which includes the jacks and pompanos. 2. See king mackerel. [Spanish caballa, horse mackerel, from Late Latin, from Latin caballus, horse.]

cav·al·ry (käv'əl-rē) n. pl. cav·al·ries. Abbr. cav. 1. A highly mobile army unit using vehicular transport, such as light armor and helicopters. 2. Troops trained to fight on horseback. [French cavalerie, from Italian cavalleria, from cavaliere, cavalier. See CAVALIER.] —cav'al·ry·man n.

cav·a·tel·li (käv'ə-těl'ē) n. Small shell-shaped or bullet-shaped pasta. [Italian, from pl. diminutive of cavato past participle of cavare, to hollow out, from Latin cavāre. See EXCAVATE.]

cave (kāv) n. A hollow or natural passage under or into the earth with an opening to the surface. — v. caved, cav·ing, caves. — v. tr. 1. To dig or hollow out. 2. To cause to collapse or yield. 3. To crumple or smash: The top of the car was caved in by the impact. — v. intr. 1. To fall in; collapse: The walls caved in during the earthquake. 2. To give up all opposition; yield: The school committee finally caved in to the demands of parents and teachers. 3. To explore caves. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cava, from neuter pl. of cavus, hollow. See keuə- in Appendix.] —cav'er n.

ca·ve·at (kā'vē-ăt', käv'ē-, kä'vē-ăt') n. 1. a. A warning or caution: "A final caveat: Most experts feel that clients get unsatisfactory results when they don't specify clearly what they want" (Savvy). b. A qualification or explanation. 2. Law. A formal notice filed by an interested party with a court or officer, requesting the postponement of a proceeding until the filer is heard. — v. ca·ve·at·ed or ca·ve·at·ted, ca·ve·at·ing or ca·ve·at·ting, ca·ve·ats or ca·ve·ats. — v. intr. Law. To enter a caveat. — v. tr. Informal. To qualify with a warning or clarification: The spokesperson caveated the statement with a reminder that certain facts were still unknown. [From Latin, let him beware, imperative of cavēre, to beware.] caveat emp·tor (kā'vē-ăt' ěmp'tô'r') n. The axiom or principle in commerce that the buyer alone is responsible for assessing the quality of a purchase before buying. [From Latin, let the buyer beware : caveat, imperative of cavēre, to beware + emptor, buyer.]

cave dweller (kāv dwěl'ər) n. One that dwells in a cave, especially a prehistoric human. —cave'-dwell'ing (kāv'dwěl'ing) adj.

cave·fish (kāv'fīsh') n. pl. cavefish or cave·fish·es. Any of various freshwater fishes of the family Amblyopsidae, found in subterranean waters and having rudimentary, nonfunctioning eyes.

cave·in (käv'in') n. 1. a. A collapse, as of a tunnel or structure. b. A place where a cave-in has occurred. 2. An act or instance of ceasing opposition or resistance: The vote was seen as a cave-in to the demands of the administration.

Cav·ell (käv'əl, kə-věl'), Edith Louisa. 1865-1915. British nurse who remained in Brussels after the German occupation (1915) to help smuggle Allied troops to the Dutch border. She was caught by the Germans and executed.

cave·man also cave man (kāv'män') n. 1. A prehistoric or primitive human living in caves. 2. Informal. A man who is crude or brutal, especially toward women. —cave'man', cave'-man' adj.

Cav·en·dish (käv'ən-dīsh), Henry. 1731-1810. British chemist and physicist who discovered the properties of hydrogen and established that water is a compound of hydrogen and oxygen.

Cav·en·dish (käv'ən-dīsh), Spencer Compton Eighth Duke of Devonshire. Known as “the Marquis of Hartington.” 1833-1908. British politician and leader of the Liberal opposition in the House of Commons (1875-1880).

Cav·en·dish (käv'ən-dīsh), Thomas. 1555?-1592. English navigator and freebooter who died while attempting his third voyage around the world.

cav·ern (käv'ərn) n. 1. A large cave. 2. A large underground chamber, as in a cave. — v. tr. cav·erned, cav·ern·ing, cav·erns. 1. To enclose in or as if in a cavern. 2. To hollow out. [Middle English caverne, from Old French, from Latin caverna, from cavus, hollow. See keuə- in Appendix.]

cav·er·nic·o·lous (käv'ər-nīk'ə-ləs) adj. Inhabiting caverns or caves: cavernicolous animals.

cav·ern·ous (käv'ər-nəs) adj. 1. Filled with caverns. 2. Resembling a cavern, as in depth, vastness, or effect: a cavernous yawn; cavernous echoes. 3. Anatomy. Filled with cavities or hollow areas; porous. —cav'ern·ous·ly adv.

ca·vet·to (kə-vět'ō) n. pl. ca·vet·ti (-vět'ē) or ca·vet·tos. A concave molding with a cross section that approximates a quarter circle. [Italian, diminutive of cavo, hollow, from Latin cavus. See keuə- in Appendix.]

cav·i·ar also cav·i·are (käv'ē-är', käv'vē-) n. The roe of a large fish, especially sturgeon, that is salted, seasoned, and eaten as a delicacy or relish. [Alteration of caviarie (probably from obsolete Italian caviari, pl. of caviaro), or from French caviare both from Turkish havyar, from Persian khāvyār; akin to khāyah, egg, from Middle Persian khāyak. See awi- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: Although caviar might seem to be something quintessentially Russian, the word caviar is not a native one, the Russian term being ikra. Caviar first came into English in the 16th century, probably by way of French and Italian, which, along with other European languages, borrowed it from Turkish havyar. The source of the Turkish word is apparently an Iranian dialectal form related to the Persian word for “egg,” khāyah, and this in turn goes back to the same Indo-European root that gives us the English words egg and oval. This rather exotic etymology is appropriate to a substance that is not to everyone’s taste, giving rise to Shakespeare’s famous phrase, “’twas caviary to the general,” the general public, that is.

cav·il (käv'əl) v. cav·iled also cav·illed, cav·il·ing also cav·il·ling, cav·ils also cav·ils. — v. intr. To find fault unnecessarily; raise trivial objections. See Synonyms at quibble. — v. tr. To quibble about; detect petty flaws in. — n. A carping or trivial objection. [French caviller, from Old French, from Latin cavillārī, to jeer, from cavilla, a jeering.] — cav'iler n.

cav·i·ta·tion (käv'ī-tā'shən) n. 1. The sudden formation and collapse of low-pressure bubbles in liquids by means of mechanical forces, such as those resulting from rotation of a marine propeller. 2. The pitting of a solid surface.

3. Medicine. The formation of cavities in a body tissue or an organ, especially those formed in the lung as a result of tuberculosis. [From CAVITY.]

—cav'i·tate' v.

Ca·vi·te (kə-vē'tē, kə-vē'tě) A city of southwest Luzon, Philippines, on Manila Bay southwest of Manila. It has been an important naval base since Spanish times. The American facilities here were virtually destroyed in bombing raids by the Japanese on December 10, 1941. Population, 87,666.

cav·i·ty (käv'ī-tē) n. pl. cav·i·ties. Abbr. cav. 1. A hollow; a hole. 2. A hollow area within the body: a sinus cavity. 3. A pitted area in a tooth caused by caries. See Synonyms at hole. [French cavité, from Late Latin cavitās, from Latin cavus, hollow. See keuə- in Appendix.]

ca·vort (kə-vört') *v. intr. ca·vort·ed, ca·vort·ing, ca·vorts. 1. To bound or prance about in a sprightly manner; caper. 2. To have lively or boisterous fun; romp: The children cavorted in the water, splashing and ducking each other. [Possibly alteration of CURVET.]*

Ca·vour (kə-vöör', kə-vöör'), Conte Camillo Benso di. 1810-1861. Italian political leader who was premier of Sardinia (1852-1859 and 1860-1861) and assisted in the unification of Italy under Victor Emmanuel II, the king of Sardinia.

ca·vy (kā'vē) n. pl. ca·vies. 1. Any of various tailless South American rodents of the family Caviidae, which includes the guinea pig. 2. Any of various similar or related rodents, such as the capybara, coypu, and agouti. [From New Latin Cavia, genus name, perhaps from Galibi cabiai.]

caw (kô) n. The hoarse, raucous sound characteristic of a crow or similar bird. — v. intr. cawed, caw·ing, caws. To utter such a hoarse, raucous sound. [Imitative.]

Caw·n·pore (kôn'pôr', -pôr') See Kanpur.

Ca·xi·as (kə-shē'əs), Duke of Title of Luiz Alves de Lima y Silva. 1803-1880. Brazilian general and statesman who commanded the Brazilian army that drove the Argentine dictator Juan Manuel de Rosas from Buenos Aires (1851).

Caxias do Sul (kə-shē'əs də sōl') A city of southern Brazil north of Pôrto Alegre. It is an industrial center in a wine-producing region. Population, 198,683.

Cax·ton (kăk'stən), William. 1422?-1491. English printer who published the first book in English, Recuyell of the Historyes of Troye (c. 1475).

cay (kē, kā) n. A small, low island composed largely of coral or sand. [Alteration (influenced by QUAY), of Spanish cayo, probably from Taino.]

Cay·enne (kī-ĕn', kā-) The capital of French Guiana, on Cayenne Island at the mouth of the Cayenne River. Founded by the French in 1643, it was the center of a penal colony from the 1850's until the 1940's. Population, 38,093.

cay·enne pepper (kī-ĕn' pĕp'ər, kā-) n. An orange-red to dark red condiment consisting of the ground ripe fruits of any of several pungent varieties of capsicum. Also called red pepper [Alteration (by folk etymology from Cayenne), of kian, chian, from Tupi quiinia, hot pepper.]

cay·man (kā'mən) n. Variant of caiman.

Cay·man Islands (kā-măn' ī'ləndz, kā'mən) A British-administered island group in the Caribbean Sea northwest of Jamaica, including Grand Cayman, Little Cayman, and Cayman Brac. The islands were discovered by Columbus in 1503. Georgetown, on Grand Cayman, is the capital. Population, 16,677.

Ca·yu·ga (kā-yōō'gə, kī-) n. pl. Cayuga or Ca·yu·gas. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting the shores of Cayuga Lake in west-central New York, with present-day populations in Ontario, western New York, Wisconsin, and Oklahoma. The Cayuga are one of the five original tribes of the Iroquois confederacy. b. A member of this people. 2. The Iroquoian language spoken by the Cayuga.

Cayuga Lake (kā-yōō'gə lāk) A lake of west-central New York. The longest of the Finger Lakes, it is a popular resort area.

cay·use (kī-yōōs', kī'yōōs') n. Pacific Northwest. A horse, especially an Indian pony. [Short for cayuse pony, from CAYUSE.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The noun cayuse comes from the name of the Cayuse people in the Pacific Northwest. Cayuse is used chiefly in the territory of the word's origin—the states of Washington, Oregon, and Idaho—although its use has also spread into other Western states. A verb meaning “to buck,” derived from the noun, is cited by Ramon F. Adams in Old-Time Cowhand (1961): “What cowboys in other sections called buckin', the Texan called pitchin', and a term used in South Texas, though seldom heard in other sections, was cayusein'”

Cay·use (kī-yōōs', kī'yōōs') n. pl. Cayuse or Cay·us·es. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting northeast Oregon and southeast Washington. b. A member of this people. 2. a. The extinct traditional language of the Cayuse, not closely related to any other. b. The dialect of Nez Perce spoken by the Cayuse in the 19th and 20th centuries.

Cb The symbol for the element columbium.

CB (sē-bē') abbr. Citizens band.

CBC abbr. 1. Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. 2. Complete blood count.

C.B.D. abbr. Cash before delivery.

CB·er (sē-bē'ər) n. One that uses a CB radio.

CBI abbr. Cumulative book index.

CBW abbr. Chemical and biological warfare.

cc abbr. 1. Carbon copy. 2. Cubic centimeter.

cc. abbr. Chapters.

C.C.A. abbr. Law. Circuit Court of Appeals.

CCC abbr. 1. Civilian Conservation Corps. 2. Commodity Credit Corporation.

CCD abbr. Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

CCF or C.C.F. abbr. Cooperative Commonwealth Federation of Canada.

CCK abbr. Cholecystokinin.

cckw. abbr. Counterclockwise.

C clef (sē' klēf) n. Music. A symbol indicating which line of a staff represents the pitch of middle C. On the bottom line it becomes the soprano clef, on the middle line the alto clef, and on the third line above the bottom the tenor clef.

CCS abbr. Combined chiefs of staff.

CCTV abbr. Closed-circuit television.

CCU abbr. Coronary care unit.

ccw. abbr. Counterclockwise.

cd abbr. Candela.

Cd The symbol for the element cadmium.

CD abbr. 1. Also C/D. Certificate of deposit. 2. Also C.D.. Civil defense.

3. Compact disk. 4. French. Corps diplomatique (diplomatic corps).

cd. abbr. Cord.

c.d. abbr. Cash discount.

CDC abbr. Centers for Disease Control.

Cdr. or CDR abbr. Commander.

CD-ROM (sē'dē'rōm') n. Computer Science. A compact disk that functions as a read-only memory.

CDT or C.D.T. abbr. Central Daylight Time.

Ce The symbol for the element cerium.

C.E. abbr. 1. Chemical engineer. 2. Civil engineer. 3. Common Era.

ce·a·no·thus (sē'ə-nô'thəs) n. Any of various shrubs or small trees of the genus Ceanothus, native mostly to western North America and often cultivated for their ornamental foliage and showy clusters of usually blue or whitish flowers. Also called redroot [New Latin, genus name, from Greek keanōthos, corn-thistle.]

cease (sēs) v. ceased, ceasing, ceases. — v. tr. To put an end to; discontinue: The factory ceased production. See Synonyms at stop. — v. intr. 1. To come to an end; stop: a process that never ceases. 2. To stop performing an activity or action; desist: “fold our wings,/And cease from wanderings” (Tennyson). — n. Cessation; pause: We worked without cease to get the project finished on time. [Middle English cesen, from Old French cesser, from Latin cessāre, to stop, frequentative of cēdere, to yield. See ked- in Appendix.]

cease-fire or cease-fire (sēs/'fir') n. 1. An order to stop firing. 2. Suspension of active hostilities; a truce.

cease-less (sēs/'līs) adj. Without stop or pause; constant. See Synonyms at continual. — cease/less-ly adv. — cease/less-ness n.

Ceau-ses-cu (chou-shēs/'kōō), Nicolae. 1918-1989. Romanian politician who was the absolute ruler after 1965. His regime was overthrown in December 1989, and Ceausescu was executed for crimes against the state.

Ce-bu (sē-bōō') An island of the central Philippines in the Visayan Islands between Leyte and Negros. Magellan landed on the island in 1521. The city of Cebu is an important harbor on the eastern coast. Its population is 490,281.

ce-ca (sē/'kə) n. Plural of cecum.

Cec-il (sēs/'əl), (Edgar Algernon) Robert First Viscount Cecil of Chelwood. 1864-1958. British public official who helped draft the League of Nations Covenant and was president of the League of Nations Union (1923-1945). He won the 1937 Nobel Peace Prize.

Cec-il (sēs/'əl), Robert First Viscount Cranborne and First Earl of Salisbury. 1563?-1612. English statesman who helped secure the throne for James I after the death of Elizabeth I (1603).

Cec-il (sēs/'əl), Robert Arthur Talbot Gascoyne Third Marquis of Salisbury. 1830-1903. British politician who was foreign minister under Benjamin Disraeli and prime minister (1885-1892 and 1895-1902).

Cec-il (sēs/'əl), William First Baron Burghley or Burleigh. 1520-1598. English statesman and chief adviser to Elizabeth I. He persuaded the queen to execute Mary Queen of Scots.

Ce-cil-ia (sī-sēl/'yə), Saint. Third century A.D. Christian martyr traditionally regarded as the patron saint of music.

ce-cro-pi-a moth (sī-krō/'pē-ə môth) n. A large North American silkworm moth (Hyalophora cecropia) having wings with red, white, and black markings. [New Latin cecropia, species name, from Latin, feminine of Cecropius, Athenian, from Greek Kekropios, from Kekrops, Cecrops, a legendary Athenian knight.]

ce-cum also cae-cum (sē/'kəm) n. ce-ca (-kə). 1. A saclike cavity with only one opening. 2. Anatomy. The large blind pouch forming the beginning of the large intestine. In this sense, also called blind gut [Middle English, from Latin (intestī- num) caecum, blind (intestine), from caecus, blind.] —ce'cal adj. —ce'cal·ly adv.

CED abbr. Committee for Economic Development.

ce·dar (sē'dār) n. a. Any of several Old World evergreen coniferous trees of the genus Cedrus, having stiff needles on short shoots and large, erect seed cones with broad deciduous scales. b. Any of several other evergreen coniferous trees or shrubs, such as the Alaska cedar, incense cedar, or red cedar. c. The durable, aromatic wood of any of these plants, especially that of the red cedar, often used to make chests. [Middle English cedre, from Old French, from Latin cedrus, from Greek kedros.]

ce·dar·ap·ple rust (sē'dār-äp'əl rüst) n. A disease caused by a rust fungus (Gymnosporangium juniperi-virginianae) that spends part of its life cycle on certain junipers, causing galls and twig dieback, and the remainder of its life cycle on susceptible apples or crab apples, causing lesions and early shedding of leaves or fruit.

ce·dar·bird (sē'dār-bûrd') n. See cedar waxwing.

Ce·dar Falls (sē'där fôlz) A city of northeast Iowa, a manufacturing suburb of Waterloo on the Cedar River. Population, 36,322.

cedar of Lebanon (sē'där üv lëb'ə-nən) n. pl. cedars of Lebanon. A large, long-lived cedar (Cedrus libani), native to Lebanon and Turkey and having spreading horizontal branches at maturity.

Cedar Rapids (sē'där räp'idz) A city of east-central Iowa on the Cedar River west-northwest of Davenport. It is a major commercial, industrial, and transportation center. Population, 108,751.

Cedar River (sē'där rîv'ər) A river rising in southeast Minnesota and flowing about 531 km (330 mi) southeastward to the Iowa River in southeast Iowa.

cedar waxwing (sē'där wäks'wîng') n. A North American bird (Bombycilla cedrorum) having a crested head, a yellow-tipped tail, and predominantly brown plumage. Also called cedarbird [Probably so called because it eats the berries of the red cedar.]

cede (sēd) v. tr. ced·ed, ced·ing, cedes. 1. To surrender possession of, especially by treaty. See Synonyms at relinquish. 2. To yield; grant: The debater refused to cede the point to her opponent. [French céder, from Old French, from Latin cēdere. See ked- in Appendix.]

ce·di (sā'dē) n. pl. cedi or ce·dis. A basic unit of currency in Ghana. See Table at currency. [Possibly from Akan (Fante) sedj, small shell, cowry.]

ce·dil·la (sī-dîl'ə) n. A mark (,) placed beneath the letter c, as in the spelling of the French word garçon, to indicate that the letter is to be pronounced (s). [Obsolete Spanish, diminutive of ceda, the letter z (so called because a small z was formerly written after a c, and later below it, to indicate that the normal hard c was to be pronounced as a sibilant, like s or z), from Late Latin zeta, zeta. See ZETA.]

cee (sē) n. The letter c.

CEEB abbr. College Entry Examination Board.

cei·ba (sā'bə) n. The silk-cotton tree. [Spanish, probably from Arawakan.]

ceil (sēl) v. tr. ceiled, ceil·ing, ceils. 1. To provide or cover with a ceiling.

2. Nautical. To provide (a ship) with interior planking or lining. [Middle English celen, probably from Old French celer*, from Latin caelāre, to carve, from caelum, chisel. See CAELUM.]

cei·lidh (kā'lē) n. An Irish or Scottish social gathering with traditional music, dancing, and storytelling. [Irish Gaelic céilidhe, from Old Irish célide, visit, from céle, companion. See kei¹ in Appendix.]

ceil·ing (sē'līng) n. 1. a. The upper interior surface of a room. b. Material used to cover this surface. 2. Something resembling a ceiling: a ceiling of leaves over the arbor. 3. An upper limit, especially as set by regulation: wage and price ceilings. 4. a. The highest altitude under particular weather conditions from which the ground is still visible. b. The altitude of the lowest layer of clouds. c. Absolute ceiling. 5. Nautical. The planking applied to the interior framework of a ship. [Middle English celing, from celen, to ceil. See CEIL.] —ceil'inged adj.

ceil·om·e·ter (sē-lōm'ī-tər) n. A photoelectric instrument for ascertaining cloud heights. [CEIL(ING) + -METER.]

cel·a·don (səl'ə-dŏn') n. 1. Color. A pale to very pale green. 2. A type of pottery having a pale green glaze, originally produced in China. [French, after Céladon, a character in L'Astrée, a romance by Honoré d'Urfé (1568-1625), French writer, (after Celadōn, a character in Ovid's Metamorphoses).] —cel'a·don' adj.

cel·a·don·ite (səl'ə-dn-īt') n. A soft mica having a green hue and a high iron content.

Ce·lae·no (sī-lē'nō) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of the Pleiades. 2. One of the six stars in the Pleiades cluster visible to the naked eye. [Latin Celaenō, from Greek Kelainō.]

cel·an·dine (səl'ən-dīn', -dēn') n. 1. A perennial Eurasian herb (Chelidonium majus) having deeply divided leaves, showy yellow flowers, and yellow-orange latex. Also called swallowwort 2. The lesser celandine. [Middle English celidoine, from Old French, from Medieval Latin celidōnia, from Latin chelidonia, feminine of chelidonium, from Greek khelidonion, from khelidōn, swallow (from the association by ancient writers of the blossoming of the plant with the return of the swallows in spring). See ghel¹ in Appendix.]

celandine poppy (səl'ən-dīn' pŏp'ē) n. A perennial herb (Stylophorum diphyllum) native to midwest North America and somewhat similar in appearance to the celandine.

Ce·la·ya (sə-lī'ə, sə-lä'yä) A city of central Mexico northwest of Mexico City. It was founded in 1571. Population, 141,675.

-cele¹ suff. Tumor; hernia: cystocele. [From Greek kēlē, tumor.]

-cele² suff. -coel.

ce·leb (sə-lĕbʹ) n. Informal. A celebrity.

Cel·e·bes (sĕlʹə-bĕzʹ, sə-lĕʹbĕzʹ, sĕ-lāʹbĕs) also Su·la·we·si (sōōʹlä-wāʹsĕ) An irregularly shaped island of central Indonesia on the equator east of Borneo. The Portuguese first visited Celebes in 1512 but were ousted by the Dutch in the 1600's. The island is noted for its rare species of fauna.

Celebes Sea (sĕlʹə-bĕzʹ sĕ) A section of the western Pacific Ocean between Celebes and the southern Philippines. It is connected with the Java Sea by Makassar Strait.

cel·e·brant (sĕlʹə-brənt) n. 1. a. A person who participates in a religious ceremony or rite. b. The priest officiating at the celebration of the Eucharist. 2. A participant in a celebration.

USAGE NOTE: Strictly speaking, celebrant should be reserved for an official participant in a religious ceremony or rite. In an earlier survey, however, a majority of the Usage Panel accepted the use of celebrant to mean “a participant in a celebration” (as in New Year's Eve celebrants). In this more general sense, celebrator is an undisputed alternative.

cel·e·brate (sĕlʹə-brātʹ) v. cel·e·brat·ed, cel·e·brat·ing, cel·e·brates. — v. tr. 1. To observe (a day or event) with ceremonies of respect, festivity, or rejoicing. See Synonyms at observe. 2. To perform (a religious ceremony): celebrate Mass. 3. To extol or praise: a sonnet that celebrates love. 4. To make widely known; display: “a determination on the author's part to celebrate... the offenses of another” (William H. Pritchard). — v. intr. 1. To observe an occasion with appropriate ceremony or festivity. 2. To perform a religious ceremony. 3. To engage in festivities: went out and celebrated after the victory. [Middle English celebraten, from Latin celebrāre, celebrāt-, to frequent, celebrate, from celeber, celebr-, frequented, famous.] — celʹe·braʹtion n. — celʹe·braʹtor n.

— celʹe·bra·toʹry (sĕlʹə-brə-tōrʹĕ, -tōrʹĕ, sə-lĕbʹrə-) adj.

cel·e·brat·ed (sĕlʹə-brāʹtĭd) adj. Known and praised widely; noted. See Synonyms at noted.

ce·leb·ri·ty (sə-lĕbʹrĭ-tĕ) n. pl. ce·leb·ri·ties. 1. A famous person. 2. Renown; fame. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a celebrity fundraising dinner; celebrity exercise books. [Middle English celebrite, fame, from Old French, from Latin celebritās, from celeber, celebr-, famous.] — ce·leb·ri·ty·hoodʹ n.

SYNONYMS: celebrity, hero, luminary, name, notable, personage. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a widely known person”: social celebrities; the heroes of science; a theatrical luminary; a big name in sports; a notable of the concert stage; a personage in the field of philosophy.

ce-le-ri-ac (sə-lîr'ē-ăk', -lēr'-) n. An edible variety of celery (Apium graveolens var. rapaceum) cultivated for its swollen, knobby root. Also called celery root, tur-nip-rooted celery. [Alteration of CELERY.]

ce-ler-i-ty (sə-lēr'ī-tē) n. Swiftness of action or motion; speed. See Synonyms at haste. [French célérité, from Old French, from Latin celeritās, from celer, swift.]

cel-er-y (sĕl'ə-rē) n. pl. cel-er-ies. 1. A biennial European plant (Apium graveolens var. dulce) in the parsley family, having edible roots, leafstalks, leaves, and fruits. 2. The crisp, thick leafstalks of this plant. 3. The seedlike fruits of this plant used as a flavoring. [French cĕleri, from Italian dialectal seleri, pl. of selero, alteration of Late Latin selīnon, parsley, from Greek selinon.]

celery cabbage (sĕl'ə-rē kăb'ij) n. See Chinese cabbage.

celery root (sĕl'ə-rē rōōt) n. See celeriac.

ce-les-ta (sə-lĕs'tə) also ce-leste (-lĕst') n. Music. An instrument with a keyboard and metal plates struck by hammers that produce bell-like tones. [French cĕlesta, from cĕleste, celestial, from Latin caelestis. See CELESTIAL.]

ce-les-tial (sə-lĕs'chəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the sky or the heavens: Planets are celestial bodies. 2. Of or relating to heaven; divine: celestial beings.

3. Supremely good; sublime: celestial happiness. 4. Celestial. Of or relating to the Chinese people or to the former Chinese Empire. — n. A heavenly being; a god or angel. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin celestiālis, from Latin caelestis, from caelum, sky.] — ce-les'tial-ly adv.

Celestial Empire (sə-lĕs'chəl ěm'pīr') An old name for China or the Chinese Empire.

celestial equator (sə-lĕs'chəl ĭ-kwā'tər) n. A great circle on the celestial sphere in the same plane as the earth's equator. Also called equinoctial, equinoctial circle.

celestial globe (sə-lĕs'chəl glōb) n. A model of the celestial sphere showing the positions of the stars and other celestial bodies.

celestial horizon (sə-lĕs'chəl hə-rī'zən) n. A great circle on the celestial sphere having a plane that passes through the center of the earth and is parallel to an observer's horizon. Also called rational horizon celestial longitude (sə-lĕs'chəl lŏn'jī-tōōd') n. The angular distance eastward from the vernal equinox to the great circle drawn through the pole of the ecliptic and a celestial body.

celestial mechanics (sə-lĕs'chəl mĭ-kăn'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The science of the motion of celestial bodies under the influence of gravitational forces.

celestial navigation (sə-lēs'chəl nāv'ĩ-gā'shən) n. Navigation of a ship or an aircraft based on the positions of celestial bodies. Also called astronavigation celestial pole (sə-lēs'chəl pōl) n. Either of two diametrically opposite points at which the extensions of the earth's axis intersect the celestial sphere.

celestial sphere (sə-lēs'chəl sfır) n. An imaginary sphere of infinite extent with the earth at its center on which the stars, planets, and other heavenly bodies appear to be located.

cel·es·tine (sěl'ĩ-stīn', -stīn', sə-lēs'tīn, -tīn) n. See celestite. [German Zölestin, from Latin caelestis, celestial. See CELESTIAL.]

cel·es·tite (sěl'ĩ-stīt', sə-lēs'tīt') n. A white, red-brown, orange, or light blue principal strontium ore, essentially strontium sulfate, SrSO₄, found in sedimentary rock. Also called celestine [CELESTINE + -ITE¹.]

ce·li·ac also coe·li·ac (sē'lē-āk') adj. Of or relating to the abdomen or abdominal cavity. [Latin coeliacus, from Greek koiliakos, from koilia, abdomen, from koilos, hollow. See keu- in Appendix.]

celiac disease (sē'lē-āk' dī-zēz') n. A chronic nutritional disturbance, usually of young children, caused by the inability to metabolize gluten, which results in malnutrition, a distended abdomen, muscle wasting, and the passage of stools having a high fat content. The disorder can be controlled by a special diet that emphasizes the elimination of all foods containing gluten.

cel·i·ba·cy (sěl'ə-bə-sē) n. 1. Abstinence from sexual intercourse, especially by reason of religious vows. 2. The condition of being unmarried.

cel·i·bate (sěl'ə-bīt) n. 1. One who abstains from sexual intercourse, especially by reason of religious vows. 2. One who is unmarried. — adj. 1. Abstaining from sexual intercourse, especially by reason of religious vows. 2. Unmarried; unwed. [Latin caelibātus, From caelebs, caelib-, unmarried.]

USAGE NOTE: Historically, celibate means only “unmarried”; its use to mean “abstaining from sexual intercourse” is a 20th-century development. But the new sense of the word appears more or less to have displaced the old, and the use of celibate to mean “unmarried” is now almost sure to invite misinterpretation in other than narrowly ecclesiastical contexts. Sixty-eight percent of the Usage Panel rejected the older use in the sentence He remained celibate [unmarried], although he engaged in sexual intercourse.

cell (sěl) n. 1. A narrow, confining room, as in a prison or convent. 2. A small enclosed cavity or space, such as a compartment in a honeycomb or within a plant ovary or an area bordered by veins in an insect's wing. 3. Biology. The smallest structural unit of an organism that is capable of independent functioning, consisting of one or more nuclei, cytoplasm, and various organelles, all surrounded by a semipermeable cell membrane. 4. The smallest organizational unit of a centralized group or movement, especially of a political party of Leninist structure. 5. Electricity. a. A single unit for electrolysis or conversion of chemical into electric energy, usually consisting of a container with electrodes and an electrolyte. Also called electrochemical cell. b. A single unit that converts radiant energy into electric energy: a solar cell. 6. Computer Science. A basic unit of storage in a computer memory that can hold one unit of information, such as a character or word. 7. A geographic area or zone surrounding a transmitter in a cellular telephone system. 8. A small, humble abode, such as a hermit's cave or hut. 9. A small religious house dependent on a larger one, such as a priory within an abbey. — v. celled, cell-ing, cells. — v. tr. 1. To put or confine in a cell. 2. To store in a honeycomb. — v. intr. To live in or share a cell. [Middle English celle, from Old English cell, and from Old French both from Latin cella, chamber. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

cel·la (sĕl'ə) n. pl. cel·lae (sĕl'ē). The inner room or sanctuary of an ancient Greek or Roman temple. [Latin. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

cel·lar (sĕl'ər) n. 1. A room or enclosed space used for storage, usually beneath the ground or under a building. 2. A basement. 3. An underground shelter, as from storms. 4. A wine cellar. 5. Slang. The lowest level, especially in the standing of an athletic team: The revitalized team came from the cellar to win the pennant. — v. tr. cel·lared, cel·lar-ing, cel·lars. To store in a cellar. [Middle English celer, from Old French, from Late Latin cellārium, pantry, from Latin cella, storeroom. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

cel·lar-age (sĕl'ər-ij) n. 1. A fee charged for storage in a cellar. 2. A cellar or several cellars.

cel·lar-er (sĕl'ər-ər) n. A person, as in a monastic community, who is responsible for maintaining the supply of food and drink. [Middle English celerer, from Old French, from Latin cellārius, steward, from cella, storeroom. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

cel·lar-ette also cel·lar-et (sĕl'ə-rĕt') n. A cabinet for storing bottles of wine or liquor.

cell-block (sĕl'blök') n. A group of cells that make up a section or unit of a prison.

cell body (sĕl bōd'ē) n. The portion of a nerve cell that contains the nucleus but does not incorporate the dendrites or axon. Also called soma cell cycle (sĕl sī'kəl) n. The series of events involving the growth, replication, and division of a eukaryotic cell.

cell division (sĕl dī-vīzh'ən) n. The process by which a cell divides to form two daughter cells. Upon completion of the process, each daughter cell contains the same genetic material as the original cell and roughly half of its cytoplasm.

Cel·le (sĕl'ə, tsĕl'ə) A city of northern Germany south of Hamburg. It was founded in 1292. Population, 70,754.

Cel·li·ni (chə-lē'nē, chě-), Benvenuto. 1500-1571. Italian writer and sculptor who is known for his Autobiography and his sculpture of Perseus.

cell-mate (sĕl'māt') n. A person with whom one shares a cell, especially in a prison.

cell-med-i-at-ed immune response (sĕl'mē'dē-ā'tīd ĭ-myoōn' rī-spōns') n. The immune response produced when sensitized T cells directly attack foreign antigens and secrete lymphokines that initiate the body's humoral immune response. Also called cellular immune response cell membrane (sĕl mĕm'brān') n. The semipermeable membrane that encloses the cytoplasm of a cell. Also called cytomembrane, plasmalemma, plasma membrane.

cel·lo¹ (chĕl'ō) n. pl. cel·los. Music. A four-stringed instrument of the violin family, pitched lower than the viola but higher than the double bass. [Short for VIOLONCELLO.] —cel'list (chĕl'īst) n.

cel·lo² (sĕl'ō) n. Cellophane. —cel·lo adj.

cel·lo·bi·ose (sĕl'ə-bī'ōs', -ōz') n. A disaccharide that is produced from the partial hydrolysis of cellulose. [CELL(ULOSE) + BI⁻¹ + -OSE².]

cel·loi·din (sə-loid'n) n. A pure form of pyroxylin in which specimens for microscopic examination are embedded. [CELL(ULOSE) + -OID + -IN.]

cel·lo·phane (sĕl'ə-fān') n. A thin, flexible, transparent cellulose material made from wood pulp and used as a moistureproof wrapping. [Originally a trademark.] —cel'lo·phane' adj.

cellophane noodle (sĕl'ə-fān' nōōd'l) n. A thin, transparent noodle.

cell plate (sĕl plāt) n. A partition formed during cell division in plants and some algae that separates the two newly formed daughter cells.

cell sap (sĕl sǎp) n. The liquid contained within a vacuole of a plant cell.

cel·lu·lar (sĕl'yə-lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a cell. 2. Consisting of or containing a cell or cells: the cellular construction of a beehive; the cellular nature of plant and animal tissue. 3. Of or involving the cells of an organization or movement: "The assessment of opposition to any totalitarian regime... is notoriously difficult, for any effective movement must be secretive and cellular" (Anthony Sampson). [From Latin cellula, cellule. See CELLULE.] —cel'lu·lar'i·ty (-lăr'ī-tē) n. —cel'lu·lar·ly adv.

cellular immune response (sĕl'yə-lər ĭ-myoōn' rī-spōns') n. See cell-mediated immune response.

cellular respiration (sĕl'yə-lər rĕs'pə-rā'shən) n. The series of metabolic processes by which living cells produce energy through the oxidation of organic substances.

cellular slime mold (sĕl'yə-lər slīm mōld) n. See slime mold (n., sense 1).

cellular telephone (sĕl'yə-lər tĕl'ə-fōn') n. A mobile radiotelephone, often in an automobile, that uses a network of short-range transmitters located in overlapping cells throughout a region, with calls automatically switched from one transmitter to the next as the caller enters an adjoining cell. A central station switches the calls and makes connections to regular telephone lines.

cel·lu·lase (sĕl'yə-lās', -lāz') n. Any of several enzymes produced chiefly by fungi, bacteria, and protozoans that catalyze the hydrolysis of cellulose. [CELLULO(ASE) + -ASE.]

cel·lule (sĕl'yōōl) n. A small cell. [French, from Latin cellula, diminutive of cella, chamber. See CELLA.]

cel·lu·lite (sĕl'yə-līt') n. A fatty deposit causing a dimpled or uneven appearance, as around the thighs and buttocks. [French : cellule, cellule; see CELLULE + -ite, disease (from New Latin -itis, -itis).]

cel·lu·li·tis (sĕl'yə-lī'tis) n. A spreading inflammation of subcutaneous or connective tissue. [CELLUL(E) + -ITIS.]

cel·lu·loid (sĕl'yə-loid') n. 1. A colorless, flammable material made from nitrocellulose and camphor and used to make photographic film. 2. a. Motion-picture film: “a strange, anachronistic sight: theater pieces transferred to celluloid” (David Ansen). b. The cinema; motion pictures: “There are no heroes but in celluloid” (Charles Langbridge Morgan). — adj. 1. Made of or using a material made from nitrocellulose and camphor. 2. Of or portrayed on film or in motion pictures. 3. Artificial; synthetic: a novel with flat, celluloid characters. [Originally a trademark.]

cel·lu·lo·lyt·ic (sĕl'yə-lō-līt'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or causing the hydrolysis of cellulose: cellulolytic organisms. [CELLULO(SE) + -LYTIC.]

cel·lu·lose (sĕl'yə-lōs', -lōz') n. A complex carbohydrate, (C₆H₁₀O₅)_n, that is composed of glucose units, forms the main constituent of the cell wall in most plants, and is important in the manufacture of numerous products, such as paper, textiles, pharmaceuticals, and explosives. [French, from cellule, biological cell. See CELLULE.] — cel'lu·lo'sic (-lō'sik, -z'ik) adj.

cellulose acetate (sĕl'yə-lōs' äs'i-tāt') n. A cellulose resin used in lacquers, photographic film, transparent sheeting, and cigarette filters.

cellulose nitrate (sĕl'yə-lōs' nī'trāt') n. See nitrocellulose.

cell wall (sĕl wōl) n. The rigid outermost cell layer found in plants and certain algae, bacteria, and fungi but characteristically absent from animal cells.

ce·lom (sĕ'ləm) n. Variant of coelom.

ce·lo·sia (sə-lō'zhə, -zhē-ə) n. See cockscorn (n., sense 3). [New Latin Cēlosia, genus name, from Greek kēlos, dry, burnt (from its color), from kaiein, to burn.]

Cel·o·tex (sĕl'ə-tĕks') A trademark used for a building board that is employed as insulation or paneling.

Cel·si·us (sĕl'sē-əs, -shəs) adj. Abbr. C Of or relating to a temperature scale that registers the freezing point of water as 0° and the boiling point as 100° under normal atmospheric pressure. See Table at measurement. [After Anders CELSIUS.]

Cel·si·us (səl'sē-əs, -shəs), Anders. 1701-1744. Swedish astronomer who devised (1742) the centigrade thermometer.

celt (səlt) n. A common prehistoric tool of stone or metal, shaped like a chisel or ax head. [Late Latin celtis*, chisel.]

Celt (kəlt, səlt) also Kelt (kəlt) n. 1. One of an Indo-European people originally of central Europe and spreading to western Europe, the British Isles, and southeast to Galatia during pre-Roman times, especially a Briton or Gaul. 2. A speaker of a modern Celtic language or a descendant of such a speaker, especially a modern Gael, Welshman, Cornishman, or Breton. [French Celte, sing. of Celtes, from Latin Celtae, from Greek Keltoi.]

Celt·i·ber·i·an (kəl'tī-bēr'ē-ən, səlt'-) n. 1. One of an ancient Celtic people of northern Spain. 2. The language of this people, known from place and personal names and from inscriptions. — adj. Of or relating to the Celtiberians or to their language or culture.

Celt·ic (kəl'tik, səlt'-) also Kelt·ic (kəl'-) n. Abbr. C. A subfamily of the Indo-European language family comprising the Brittonic and the Goidelic branches. — adj. Of or relating to the Celtic people and languages.

Celtic cross (kəl'tik krôs) n. A Latin cross with a circle superimposed on its center.

Celt·i·cism (kəl'tī-sīz'əm, səlt'-) n. 1. A Celtic custom. 2. A Celtic idiom. 3. A fondness for Celtic culture.

Celt·i·cist (kəl'tī-sīst, səlt'-) n. A specialist in Celtic culture or Celtic languages.

cem·ba·lo (chēm'bə-lō') n. pl. cem·ba·los. Music. A harpsichord. [Italian, short for clavicembalo, from Medieval Latin clāvicymbalum: Latin clāvis, key + Latin cymbalum, cymbal; see CYMBAL.] — cem'ba·list (-bə-līst) n.

ce·ment (sī-mənt') n. 1. a. A building material made by grinding calcined limestone and clay to a fine powder, which can be mixed with water and poured to set as a solid mass or used as an ingredient in making mortar or concrete. b. Portland cement. c. Concrete. 2. A substance that hardens to act as an adhesive; glue. 3. Something that serves to bind or unite: "Custom was in early days the cement of society" (Walter Bagehot). 4. Geology. A chemically precipitated substance that binds particles of clastic rocks. 5. Dentistry. A substance used for filling cavities or anchoring crowns, inlays, or other restorations. 6. Variant of cementum. — v. ce·ment·ed, ce·ment·ing, ce·ments. — v. tr. 1. To bind with or as if with cement. 2. To cover or coat with cement. — v. intr. To become cemented. — idiom. in cement. Firmly settled or determined; unalterable: The administration's position on taxes was set in cement despite the unfavorable public response. [Middle English, from Old French ciment, from Latin caementum, rough-cut stone, from caedere, to cut. See kaə-id- in Appendix.]

—ce·ment'er n.

ce·men·ta·tion (sē'měn-tā'shən) n. 1. The act, process, or result of cementing. 2. A metallurgical coating process in which iron or steel is immersed in a powder of another metal, such as zinc, chromium, or aluminum, and heated to a temperature below the melting point of either.

ce·ment·ite (sī-měn'tīt') n. A hard, brittle iron carbide, Fe₃C, found in steel with more than 0.85 percent carbon. [From CEMENT.]

ce·men·ti·tious (sē'měn-tīsh'əs) adj. Of or relating to a chemical precipitate, especially of carbonates, having the characteristics of cement.

cement mixer (sī-měnt' mīk'sər) n. A machine, often mounted on a truck, having a revolving drum in which cement, sand, gravel, and water are combined into concrete.

ce·men·tum (sī-měn'təm) also ce·ment (-měnt') n. A bonelike substance covering the root of a tooth. [New Latin, from Latin caementum, rough stone. See CEMENT.]

cem·e·ter·y (sēm'i-tēr'ē) n. pl. cem·e·ter·ies. A place for burying the dead; a graveyard. [Middle English cimiterie, from Old French cimitiere, from Medieval Latin cimitērium, from Late Latin coemētērium, from Greek koimētērion, from koiman, to put to sleep. See kei-¹ in Appendix.]

CEMF abbr. Counter-electromotive force.

cen. abbr. 1. Central. 2. Century.

cen·a·cle (sě'n'ə-kəl) n. 1. A clique or circle, especially of writers. 2. A small dining room, usually on an upper floor. [French cénacle, from Old French, the room where the Last Supper took place, from Latin cēnāculum, dining room, garret, from cēna, meal; see sker-¹ in Appendix. Sense 2, Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cēnāculum.]

Cen·ci (chě'n'chē), Beatrice. 1577-1599. Italian noblewoman who was hanged for patricide. She was the subject of a number of poems and other works of art, including Shelley's The Cenci (1819).

-cene suff. Recent. Used in names of geological periods: Oligocene. [From Greek kainos, new. See ken- in Appendix.]

Ce·nis (sə-nē'), Mont. A mountain pass, 2,083.5 m (6,831 ft) high, in the Alps on the French-Italian border. It was long important as an invasion route.

cen- pref. Variant of coeno-.

cen·o·bite also coen·o·bite (sě'n'ə-bīt', sē'nə-) n. A member of a convent or other religious community. [Middle English, from Late Latin coenobīta, from coenobium, convent, from Greek koinobion, from koinobios, living in community : koinos, common; see kom in Appendix + bios, life; see g^wei- in Appendix.]

—cen'o·bit'ic (-bīt'ik), cen'o·bit'i·cal adj.

ce·no·spe·cies (sē'nə-spē'shēz, -sēz, sēn'ə-) n. A group of related ecospecies capable of interbreeding so as to produce at least partially fertile hybrids.

cen·o·taph (sĕn'ə-tăf') n. A monument erected in honor of a dead person whose remains lie elsewhere. [French cénotaphe, from Old French, from Latin cenotaphium, from Greek kenotaphion : kenos, empty + taphos, tomb.]

—cen'·o·taph'ic adj.

Ce·no·zo·ic (sē'nə-zō'ik, sĕn'ə-) adj. Of, belonging to, or designating the latest era of geologic time, which includes the Tertiary Period and the Quaternary Period and is characterized by the formation of modern continents, glaciation, and the diversification of mammals, birds, and plants. — n. The Cenozoic Era. [Greek kainos, new; see ken- in Appendix + -ZOIC.] cense (sĕns) v. tr. censed, cens·ing, cens·es. 1. To perfume with incense.

2. To burn incense to. [Middle English censen, short for encensen, from encens, incense. See INCENSE².]

cen·ser (sĕn'sər) n. A vessel in which incense is burned, especially during religious services. [Middle English, short for encenser, from Anglo-Norman encensier, from encens, incense, from Old French. See INCENSE².]

cen·sor (sĕn'sər) n. 1. A person authorized to examine books, films, or other material and to remove or suppress what is considered morally, politically, or otherwise objectionable. 2. An official, as in the armed forces, who examines personal mail and official dispatches to remove information considered secret or a risk to security. 3. One that condemns or censures. 4. One of two officials in ancient Rome responsible for taking the public census and supervising public behavior and morals. 5. Psychology. The agent in the unconscious that is responsible for censorship. — v. tr. cen·sored, cen·sor·ing, cen·sors. To examine and expurgate. [Latin cēnsor, Roman censor, from cēnsēre, to assess. See kens- in Appendix.] —cen'sor·a·ble adj. —cen·so'ri·al (sĕn-sōr'ē-əl, -sōr'-) adj.

cen·so·ri·ous (sĕn-sōr'ē-əs, -sōr'-) adj. 1. Tending to censure; highly critical.

2. Expressing censure. See Synonyms at critical. [Latin cēnsōrius, of a censor, from cēnsor, Roman censor. See CENSOR.] —cen·so'ri·ous·ly adv.

—cen·so'ri·ous·ness n.

cen·sor·ship (sĕn'sər-shīp') n. 1. The act, process, or practice of censoring.

2. The office or authority of a Roman censor. 3. Psychology. Prevention of disturbing or painful thoughts or feelings from reaching consciousness except in a disguised form.

cen·sur·a·ble (sĕn'shər-ə-bəl) adj. Deserving of or open to censure. See Synonyms at blameworthy. —cen'sur·a·ble·ness, cen'sur·a·bil'i·ty n. —cen'sur·a·bly adv.

cen·sure (sĕn'shər) n. 1. An expression of strong disapproval or harsh criticism. 2. An official rebuke, as by a legislature of one of its members. — v. tr.

cen·sured, cen·sur·ing, cen·sures. 1. To criticize severely; blame. See Synonyms at criticize. 2. To express official disapproval of: “whether the Senate will censure one of its members for conflict of interest” (Washington Post). [Middle English, from Latin cēnsūra, censorship, from cēnsor, Roman censor. See CENSOR.]

—cen'sur-er n.

cen·sus (sĕn'səs) n. 1. An official, usually periodic enumeration of a population, often including the collection of related demographic information. 2. In ancient Rome, a count of the citizens and an evaluation of their property for taxation purposes. [Latin cēnsus, registration of citizens, from cēnsēre, to assess. See kens- in Appendix.]

cent (sĕnt) n. Abbr. c., ct., C. A unit of currency in Australia, Bahamas, Barbados, Belize, Brunei, Canada, Cayman Islands, Republic of China (Taiwan), Cyprus, Dominica, Ethiopia, Fiji, Grenada, Guyana, Hong Kong, Jamaica, Kenya, Liberia, Kiribati, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Namibia, Nauru, Netherlands, Netherlands Antilles, New Zealand, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, Somalia, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Suriname, Swaziland, Tanzania, Trinidad and Tobago, Tuvalu, Uganda, United States, and Zimbabwe. See Table at currency. [Middle English, from Old French, hundred, from Latin centum. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cent. abbr. 1. Centigrade. 2. Central. 3. Latin. Centum (hundred). 4. Century.

cen·tal (sĕn'tl) n. See hundredweight (n., sense 1). [From Latin centum, hundred. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cen·taur (sĕn'tôr') n. Greek Mythology. One of a race of monsters having the head, arms, and trunk of a man and the body and legs of a horse. [Middle English, from Latin Centaurus, from Greek Kentauros.]

Cen·tau·rus (sĕn-tôr'əs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Vela and Lupus. [Latin Centaurus, centaur. See CENTAUR.]

cen·tau·ry (sĕn'tôr'ē) n. pl. cen·tau·ries. Any of several herbs of the genus Centaureum, especially a Eurasian species (C. erythraea) that has clusters of pink flowers and has long been used in herbal medicine. [Middle English, from Old English centaurie, from Latin centaurēum, from Greek kentaureion, from Kentauros, centaur (from the legend that the plant's medicinal properties were discovered by the centaur Chiron).]

cen·ta·vo (sĕn-tă'vō) n. pl. cen·ta·vos. Abbr. c., C. A unit of currency in Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Cape Verde, Colombia, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Guinea-Bissau, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Phillipines, Portugal, and São Tomé and Príncipe. See Table at currency. [Spanish, hundredth, from Latin centum, hundred. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cen·te·nar·i·an (sĕn'tə-nâr'ē-ən) n. One that is 100 years old or older. [From Latin centēnārius, of a hundred. See CENTENARY.] —cen'te·nar'i·an adj.

cen·ten·a·ry (sĕn-tĕn'ə-rē, sĕn'tə-nĕr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to a 100-year period. 2. Occurring once every 100 years. — n. pl. cen·ten·a·ries. 1. A 100-year period. 2. A centennial. [Latin centēnārius, of a hundred, from centum, hundred. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cen·ten·ni·al (sĕn-tĕn'tē-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to an age or period of 100 years. 2. Occurring once every 100 years: a centennial commemoration. 3. Of or relating to a 100th anniversary. — n. A 100th anniversary or a celebration of it. [Latin centum, hundred; see dekṃ in Appendix + (BI)ENNIAL.]

—cen·ten'ni·al·ly adv.

cen·ter (sĕn'tər) n. Abbr. ctr. 1. A point or place that is equally distant from the sides or outer boundaries of something; the middle: the center of town; the center of a stage. 2. a. A point equidistant from the vertexes of a regular polygon. b. A point equidistant from all points on the circumference of a circle or on the surface of a sphere. 3. A point around which something rotates or revolves: The sun is the center of our solar system. 4. A part of an object that is surrounded by the rest; a core: chocolates with soft centers. 5. a. A place where a particular activity or service is concentrated: a medical center. b. A point of origin, as of influence, ideas, or actions: a center of power; a center of unrest. c. An area of dense population: a metropolitan center. 6. A person or thing that is the chief object of attention, interest, activity, or emotion. 7. A person, object, or group occupying a middle position. 8. Often Center. A political group or a set of policies representing a moderate view between those of the right and the left. 9. Physiology. A group of neurons in the central nervous system that control a particular function: the vasomotor center. 10. Sports. A player who holds a middle position on the field, court, or forward line in some team sports, such as football and basketball. 11. Baseball. Center field. 12. a. A small conical hole made in a piece of work with a center punch so that a drill can be accurately positioned within it. b. A bar with a conical point used to support work, as during turning on a lathe. — v. cen·tered, cen·ter·ing, cen·ters. — v. tr. 1. To place in or at the center: centered the vase on the table. 2. To direct toward a center or central point; concentrate or focus: tried to center the discussion on the main issues. 3. Football. To pass (the ball) back between the legs to begin a down. — v. intr. 1. To be concentrated; cluster: The epidemic centered in the urban areas. 2. To have a central theme or concern; be focused: Her novels center on the problems of adolescence. [Middle English centre, from Old French, from Latin centrum, from Greek ken·tron, center of a circle, from kentein, to prick. See kent- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: center, focus, headquarters, heart, hub, seat. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a region, person, or thing around which something, such as an activity, is concentrated”: a great cultural center; the focus of research efforts; the headquarters of a multinational corporation; a town that is the heart of the colony; the hub of a steel empire; the seat of government.

USAGE NOTE: According to traditional canons of usage, the verb center may be freely used with the prepositions on, upon, in, or at; but its use with around is excoriated as “ungrammatical,” “illogical,” “geometrically senseless,” and “physically impossible.” But the fact that writers persist in using this phrase in sentences such as The discussion centered around the need for curriculum revision (where traditionalists would require revolved around) suggests a widespread perception that center around, for all its apparent illogicality, may sometimes represent the true nature of experience. Center may denote a variety of relations involving having, finding, or turning about a center, and the choice of a preposition depends on what is intended. There is reputable precedent for usages such as Our hope centered in the young sovereign; His thoughts centered on the long journey before him; and The trade is centered at Amsterdam; as well as for usages such as A storm of battle centered around the king, in which example around seems to be the only appropriate choice. See Usage Note at equal.

center back (sĕn'tər bāk) n. Sports. The player in the back line during a volleyball or water polo game.

center bit (sĕn'tər bīt) n. A drill bit having a sharp center point, used in carpentry for boring holes.

cen-ter-board (sĕn'tər-bōrd', -bōrd') n. Nautical. A movable keel in a sailboat that can be pivoted upward to reduce the boat's draft in shallow water.

Cen-ter-each (sĕn'tə-rĕch') A community of southeast New York on central Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,720.

cen-tered (sĕn'tərd) adj. 1. Being at or placed in the center. 2. Having a specified center. Often used in combination: a soft-centered candy; a yellow-centered daisy. 3. Self-confident and well-balanced: “He's a centered guy. He's always seemed to know what he wanted, and gone after it in a concrete way” (Vanity Fair).

center field (sĕn'tər fĕld) n. Abbr. CF Baseball. 1. The middle third of the outfield, behind second base. 2. The position played by the center fielder.

center fielder (sĕn'tər fĕl'dər) n. Abbr. CF Baseball. The player who defends center field.

cen-ter-fold (sĕn'tər-fōld') n. 1. A magazine center spread, especially a fold-out of an oversize photograph or feature. 2. a. The subject of a photograph used as a centerfold, often a nude model. b. A feature, such as an advertisement or calender, inserted as a centerfold.

cen-ter-line (sĕn'tər-lĭn') n. A painted line running along the center of a road or highway that divides it into two sections for traffic moving in opposite directions, or, in the case of a divided highway, for lines of traffic moving in the same direction at different speeds.

center of gravity (sĕn'tər ūv grāv'ĭ-tē) n. pl. centers of gravity. 1. Abbr. c.g. The point in or near a body at which the gravitational potential energy of the body is equal to that of a single particle of the same mass located at that point and through which the resultant of the gravitational forces on the component particles of the body acts. 2. The point of greatest importance, interest, or activity: “The center of gravity for the English language is no longer Britain. American English is the greatest influence on English everywhere” (Robert W. Burchfield).

center of mass (sĕn'tər ūv mäs) n. pl. centers of mass. Abbr. c.m. The point in a system of bodies at which the mass of the system may be considered to be concentrated and at which external forces may be considered to be applied. Also called barycenter, centroid.

cen-ter-piece (sĕn'tər-pĕs') n. 1. Something in a central position, especially a decorative object or arrangement placed at the center of a table. 2. The central or most important feature: “Now comes decontrol, the centerpiece of [the President's] energy program” (Tom Alexander).

center punch (sĕn'tər pŭnch) n. A tool with a sharp point used in metalworking to mark centers or center lines on pieces to be drilled.

center spread (sĕn'tər sprĕd) n. 1. The two facing pages in the center of a magazine or newspaper. 2. A feature that occupies the center of a magazine or newspaper: a four-page center spread devoted to the championship playoffs.

Cen-ter-ville (sĕn'tər-vīl') A city of southwest Ohio, a suburb of Dayton. Population, 18,886.

cen-tes-i-mal (sĕn-tĕs'ə-məl) adj. Relating to or divided into hundredths. [From Latin centēsimus, from centum, hundred. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

—cen-tes'i-mal-ly adv.

cen-tes-i-mo¹ (sĕn-tĕs'ə-mō') n. pl. cen-tes-i-mos or cen-tes-i-mi (-mĕ). A unit of currency in Italy, San Marino, and Vatican City. See Table at currency. [Italian, hundredth, from Latin centēsimus. See CENTESIMAL.]

cen-tes-i-mo² (sĕn-tĕs'ə-mō') n. pl. cen-tes-i-mos. A unit of currency in Chile, Panama, and Uruguay. See Table at currency. [Spanish centésimo, hundredth, from Latin centēsimus. See CENTESIMAL.]

centi- pref. 1. One hundredth part (10^{-2}): centiliter. 2. One hundred: centipede. [French, from Latin centi-, hundred, from centum. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cen-ti-grade (sĕn'tī-grād') adj. Abbr. C, cent. Celsius. See Table at measurement. [French : centi-, centi- + grade, degree (from Italian grado, rank, degree, from Latin gradus, step); see ghredh- in Appendix.]

cen-ti-gram (sĕn'tī-grām') n. Abbr. cg, cgm A metric unit of mass equal to one hundredth (10^{-2}) of a gram.

cen-ti-li-ter (sĕn'tə-lĕ'tər) n. Abbr. cl A metric unit of volume equal to one hundredth (10^{-2}) of a liter.

cen-time (sän'tēm', sän-tēm') n. Abbr. c., C. A unit of currency in Algeria, Belgium, Benin, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Comoros, Congo, Djibouti, France, Gabon, Haiti, Ivory Coast, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Mali, Monaco, Morocco, Niger, Rwanda, Senegal, Switzerland, Togo, and Vanuatu. See Table at currency. [French, from Old French centisme, from Latin centēsimus, hundredth, from centum, hundred. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cen-ti-me-ter (sĕn'tə-mē'tər) n. Abbr. cm A unit of length equal to one hundredth (10^{-2}) of a meter. See Table at measurement.

cen-ti-me-ter-gram-sec-ond system (sĕn'tə-mē'tər-grām'sĕk'ənd sīs'təm) n. Abbr. cgs, CGS An absolute metric system in which the basic units of length, mass, and time are the centimeter, gram, and second, in the United States used chiefly in science, medicine, and engineering.

cen-ti-mo (sĕn'tə-mō') n. pl. cen-ti-mos. A unit of currency in Andorra, Costa Rica, Paraguay, Spain, and Venezuela. See Table at currency. [Spanish céntimo, from French centime. See CENTIME.]

cen-ti-pede (sĕn'tə-pĕd') n. Any of various wormlike arthropods of the class Chilopoda, having a flattened body composed of segments, each bearing a pair of jointed appendages. The appendages of the foremost body segment are modified into venomous biting organs with which it preys on insects, such as cockroaches. [Latin centipeda : centi-, centi- + pēs, ped-, foot; see -PED.]

centipede grass (sĕn'tə-pĕd' grās) n. A low, mat-forming perennial grass (Eremochloa ophiuroides) native to southeast Asia and cultivated for lawns in warm regions such as the southeast United States.

cen-ti-poise (sĕn'tə-poiz') n. Abbr. cP A centimeter-gram-second unit of dynamic viscosity equal to one hundredth (10^{-2}) of a poise.

cent-ner (sĕnt'nər) n. 1. a. A unit of weight in Germany and Scandinavia corresponding to the hundredweight and equal to 50 kilograms (110.23 pounds).

b. A unit of weight in the Soviet Union equal to 100 kilograms (220.46 pounds).

2. An assaying unit equal to one dram. [German Zentner, from Old High German cĕntenāri, from Latin centĕnārius, of a hundred. See CENTENARY.]

cen-to (sĕn'tō) n. pl. cen-tos. A literary work pieced together from the works of several authors. [Latin centō, patchwork.]

centr- pref. Variant of centro-.

cen-tra (sĕn'trə) n. A plural of centrum.

cen-tral (sĕn'trəl) adj. Abbr. cent., cen. 1. Situated at, in, or near the center: the central states. 2. Forming the center. 3. Having dominant or controlling power or influence: the central office of the corporation. 4. Of basic importance; essential or principal: "Performance, including technological invention and artistic creation, will become central to education at all levels" (Frederick Turner). 5. Easily reached from various points: a central location for the new store. 6. Of or constituting a single source controlling all components of a system: central air conditioning. 7. Anatomy. a. Of, relating to, or originating from the nervous system. b. Relating to a centrum. 8. Linguistics. Neither front nor back. Used of vowels, as the u in cut. — n. 1. a. A telephone exchange. b. An operator at a telephone exchange. 2. An office or agency that is at the center of a group of related activities and serves to control and coordinate them: traffic central. [Latin centrālis, from centrum, center. See CENTER.] —cen'tral·ly adv.

Central Af-ri-can Republic (sĕn'trəl ăf'ri-kən rĭ-püb'lĭk) Formerly (1976-1979) Central African Empire. A country of central Africa. Part of French Equatorial Africa after the 1890's, it became independent in 1960. Bangui is the capital and the largest city. Population, 2,395,000.

Central A-mer-i-ca (sĕn'trəl ə-mĕr'ĭ-kə) Abbr. C.A. A region of southern North America extending from the southern border of Mexico to the northern border of Colombia. It separates the Caribbean Sea from the Pacific Ocean and is linked to South America by the Isthmus of Panama. —Central A-mer'i-can adj. & n.

central angle (sĕn'trəl ăng'gəl) n. Mathematics. An angle having its vertex at the center of a circle.

Central A-sian U.S.S.R. (sĕn'trəl ā'zhən; ā'shən) A historical region of the southern U.S.S.R. stretching from the Caspian Sea to just beyond the Irtysh River. It included Kazakhstan, Kirghiz, Tadjikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan.

central bank (sĕn'trəl băngk) n. A nation's principal monetary authority, such as the Federal Reserve Bank, which regulates the money supply and credit, issues currency, and manages the rate of exchange.

central city (sĕn'trəl sĭt'ē) n. A heavily populated city at the core of a large metropolitan area.

Central Falls (sĕn'trəl fôlz) A city of northeast Rhode Island, an industrial suburb of Providence. Population, 16,995.

Cen-tra-lia (sĕn-trāl'ya) A city of south-central Illinois east of East St. Louis. It was founded in 1853. Population, 15,126.

Central I-slip (sĕn'trəl ĭ'slĭp) A community of southeast New York on central Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,028.

cen-tral-ism (sĕn'trə-lĭz'əm) n. Concentration of power and authority in a central organization, as in a political system. —cen'tral-ist n. —cen'tral-is'tic adj.

cen-tral-i-ty (sĕn-trāl'ĭ-tē) n. 1. The state or quality of being central. 2. A tendency to be or remain at the center.

cen-tral-ize (sĕn'trə-lĭz') v. cen-tral-ized, cen-tral-iz-ing, cen-tral-iz-es. — v. tr. 1. To draw into or toward a center; consolidate. 2. To bring under a single, central authority. — v. intr. To come together at a center; concentrate.

—cen'tral-i-za'tion (-trə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. —cen'tral-iz'er n.

Central Kar-roo (sĕn'trəl kə-rōō') See Karoo.

central nervous system (sĕn'trəl nûr'vəs sĭs'təm) n. Abbr. CNS The portion of the vertebrate nervous system consisting of the brain and spinal cord.

Central Park (sĕn'trəl pārk) An extensive recreational area of New York City extending north to south in central Manhattan. The land, acquired in 1856, was developed according to plans drawn up by the landscape artists Frederick Law Olmsted and Calvert Vaux.

central processing unit (sĕn'trəl prŏs'ĕs'ing yōō'nīt) n. Abbr. CPU Computer Science. The part of a computer that interprets and executes instructions.

Central Provinces (sĕn'trəl prŏv'in-sīz) The Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Central Standard Time (sĕn'trəl stān'dərd tīm) n. Abbr. CST, C.S.T. Standard time in the sixth time zone west of Greenwich, England, reckoned at 90° W and used in the central United States. Also called Central Time Central Valley (sĕn'trəl vāl'ē) A rich agricultural valley of central California between the Sierra Nevada and the Coast Ranges.

cen·tre (sĕn'tər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of center.

centri- pref. Variant of centro-.

cen·tric (sĕn'trĭk) also cen·tri·cal (-trĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Situated at or near the center; central. 2. Having a center. 3. Of or relating to diatoms of the class Centrales, distinguished by their radially symmetrical form. —cen'tri·cal·ly adv. —cen·tric'i·ty (sĕn-trĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

-centric suff. 1. Having a specified kind or number of centers: polycentric.

2. Having a specified object as the center: geocentric.

cen·tri·cal (sĕn'trĭ-kəl) adj. Variant of centric.

cen·trif·u·gal (sĕn-trĭf'yə-gəl, -trĭf'ə-) adj. 1. Moving or directed away from a center or axis. 2. Operated by means of centrifugal force. 3. Physiology. Transmitting nerve impulses away from the central nervous system; efferent.

4. Botany. Developing or progressing outward from a center or axis, as in a flower cluster in which the oldest flowers are in the center and the youngest flowers are near the edge. 5. Tending or directed away from centralization, as of authority: "The division of Europe into two warring blocs, each ultimately dependent on a superpower patron, is subject to ever-increasing centrifugal stress" (Scott Sullivan).

[From New Latin centrifugus : Latin centrum, center; see CENTER + Latin fugere, to flee.] —cen·trif'·u·gal·ism n. —cen·trif'·u·gal·ly adv.

centrifugal force (sĕn-trĭf'yə-gəl fōrs) n. The component of apparent force on a body in curvilinear motion, as observed from that body, that is directed away from the center of curvature or axis of rotation.

cen·tri·fuge (sĕn'trə-fyōōj') n. a. An apparatus consisting essentially of a compartment spun about a central axis to separate contained materials of different specific gravities, or to separate colloidal particles suspended in a liquid.

b. An apparatus in which human beings or animals are enclosed and which is revolved to simulate the effects of acceleration in a spacecraft. — v. tr.

cen·tri·fuged, cen·tri·fug·ing, cen·tri·fug·es. To rotate (something) in a centrifuge or to separate, dehydrate, or test by means of this apparatus. [French, centrifugal, from New Latin centrifugus. See CENTRIFUGAL.] —cen·trif·u·ga'tion (sĕn-trĭf'yə-gā'shən, -trĭf'ə-) n.

cen·tri·ole (sĕn'trĭ-ōl') n. One of two cylindrical cellular structures that are composed of nine triplet microtubules and form the asters during mitosis. [New Latin centriolum, diminutive of Latin centrum, center. See CENTER.]

cen·trip·e·tal (sĕn-trĭp'ĭ-tl) adj. 1. Moving or directed toward a center or axis. 2. Operated by means of centripetal force. 3. Physiology. Transmitting nerve impulses toward the central nervous system; afferent. 4. Botany. Developing or progressing inward toward the center or axis, as in the head of a sunflower, in which the oldest flowers are near the edge and the youngest flowers are in the center. 5. Tending or directed toward centralization: the centripetal effects of a homogeneous population. —cen·trip'e·tal·ly adv.

centripetal force (sĕn-trĭp'ĭ-tl fôrs) n. The component of force acting on a body in curvilinear motion that is directed toward the center of curvature or axis of rotation.

cen·trism (sĕn'trĭz'əm) n. The political philosophy of avoiding the extremes of right and left by taking a moderate position.

cen·trist (sĕn'trĭst) n. One who takes a position in the political center; a moderate. — adj. Marked by or adhering to a moderate political view: “The deep pool of centrist opinion in the country, that essential guarantee against violent political upheavals, is being dangerously shaken” (New York Times).

centro- or centr- or centri- pref. Center: centroid. [From Latin centrum, and Greek kentron; see CENTER.]

cen·tro·bar·ic (sĕn'trə-bār'ĭk) adj. Of or relating to the center of gravity. [From Greek kentrobarikē, theory of the center of gravity : kentron, center; see CENTER + baros, weight; see g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

cen·troid (sĕn'troid') n. 1. See center of mass. 2. The point in a system of masses each of whose coordinates is a weighted mean of coordinates of the same dimension of points within the system, the weights being determined by the density function of the system.

cen·tro·lec·i·thal (sĕn'trə-lĕs'ə-thəl) adj. Biology. Having the yolk located in the center: a centrolecithal egg. [CENTRO- + LECITH(IN) + -AL¹.]

cen·tro·mere (sĕn'trə-mĭr') n. The most condensed and constricted region of a chromosome to which the spindle fiber is attached during mitosis. —cen·tro·mer'ic (-mĕr'ĭk, -mĭr'-) adj.

cen·tro·some (sĕn'trə-sōm') n. A small region of cytoplasm adjacent to the nucleus that contains the centrioles and serves to organize microtubules. —cen·tro·so'mic (-sō'mĭk) adj.

cen-tro-sphere (sĕn'trə-sfīr') n. 1. The mass of cytoplasm surrounding the centriole in a centrosome. 2. The central core of the earth. In this sense, also called barysphere cen-trum (sĕn'trəm) n. pl. cen-trums or cen-tra (-trə). The major part of a vertebra, exclusive of the bases of the neural arch. [Latin, center. See CENTER.]

cen-tum (kĕn'təm) adj. Of, relating to, or comprising the Indo-European languages that maintained a distinction between the reflexes of Indo-European velar k, g, gh and labiovelar k^w, g^w, g^{wh}. [Latin, hundred (a word whose initial sound in classical Latin illustrates the preservation of the Indo-European velar k). See dekṃ in Appendix.]

cen-tu-ri-on (sĕn-tōōr'ē-ən, -tyōōr'-) n. The commander of a century in the Roman army. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin centuriō, centuriōn-, from centuria, group of a hundred. See CENTURY.] —cen-tu/ri-al adj.

cen-tu-ry (sĕn'chə-rē) n. pl. cen-tu-ries. 1. Abbr. C., c., cen., cent. a. A period of 100 years. b. Each of the successive periods of 100 years before or since the advent of the Christian era. 2. a. A unit of the Roman army originally consisting of 100 men. b. One of the 193 electoral divisions of the Roman people. 3. A group of 100 things. [Latin centuria, a group of a hundred, from centum, hundred. See dekṃ in Appendix.] —cen'tu-ry-long' adj.

century plant (sĕn'chə-rē plānt) n. See agave.

CEO or C.E.O. abbr. Chief executive officer.

ce-orl (chā'ōrl) n. A freeman of the lowest class in Anglo-Saxon England. [Old English.]

cep or cèpe (sĕp) n. A species of edible mushroom (Boleteus edulis) widely distributed in woodlands. [French cèpe, from Gascon cep, tree trunk, cep, from Latin cipus, cippus, post, boundary marker.]

cephal- pref. Variant of cephalo-.

ceph-a-lad (sĕf'ə-lād') adv. Biology. Toward the head or anterior section.

ceph-al-al-gia (sĕf'ə-lāl'jə, -jē-ə) n. Pain in the head; a headache.

ceph-a-lex-in (sĕf'ə-lĕk'sīn) n. A semisynthetic analogue of cephalosporin used especially in the treatment of respiratory and urinary tract infections. [CEPHAL(OSPORIN) + -ex- of unknown origin + -in.]

ce-phal-ic (sə-fāl'īk) adj. 1. Of or relating to the head. 2. Located on, in, or near the head. [French céphalique, from Latin cephalicus, from Greek kephalikos, from kephalē, head. See ghebh-el- in Appendix.] —ce-phal/i-cal-ly adv.

-cephalic suff. Having a specified kind or number of heads: dolichocephalic.

cephalic index (sə-fāl'īk ĭn'dĕks') n. The ratio of the maximum width of the head to its maximum length, multiplied by 100.

ceph-a-lin (sĕf'ə-līn) also keph-a-lin (kĕf'-) n. Any of a group of phospholipids having hemostatic properties and found especially in the nervous tissue of the brain and spinal cord.

- ceph·a·li·za·tion (sĕf'ə-lī-zā'shən) n. An evolutionary trend in the animal kingdom toward centralization of neural and sensory organs in the head or anterior region of the body.
- cephalo- or cephal- pref. Head: cephalothorax. [New Latin, from Greek kephalo-, from kephalē, head. See ghebh-el- in Appendix.]
- ceph·a·lo·chor·date (sĕf'ə-lə-kôr'dāt') n. Any of various primitive chordate animals of the subphylum Cephalochordata, such as the lancet, that lack a true vertebral column. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the subphylum Cephalochordata. [From New Latin Cephalochordata, subphylum name : CEPHALO- + Chordata, chordate phylum; see CHORDATE.]
- ceph·a·lo·me·ter (sĕf'ə-lôm'i-tər) n. A device for measuring the head.
- ceph·a·lom·e·try (sĕf'ə-lôm'i-trĕ) n. Scientific measurement of the head.
—ceph'a·lo·met'ric (-lō-mĕt'rik) adj.
- Ceph·a·lo·ni·a (sĕf'ə-lō'nĕ-ə, -lōn'yo) also Ke·fal·li·nī·a (kĕ'fä-lĕ-nĕ'ä) The largest of the Ionian Islands off the western coast of Greece. It was held by the British from 1809 to 1864.
- ceph·a·lo·pod (sĕf'ə-lə-pōd') n. Any of various marine mollusks of the class Cephalopoda, such as the octopus, squid, cuttlefish, or nautilus, having a large head, large eyes, prehensile tentacles, and, in most species, an ink sac containing a dark fluid used for protection or defense. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the class Cephalopoda. [From New Latin Cephalopoda, class name : CEPHALO- + -poda, -pod.] —ceph'a·lop'o·dan (sĕf'ə-lōp'ə-dən) n. & adj.
- ceph·a·lo·spo·rin (sĕf-ə-lə-spōr'in, -spōr'-) n. Any of various broad-spectrum antibiotics, closely related to the penicillins, that were originally derived from the fungus Cephalosporium acremonium. [New Latin Cephalosporium, genus name (CEPHALO- + spora, spore); see SPORE + -IN.]
- ceph·a·lo·thin (sĕf'ə-lə-thĭn) n. A semisynthetic analogue of cephalosporin having a broad spectrum of antibiotic activity that is administered parenterally and used especially to treat systemic infections caused by susceptible microorganisms. [CEPHALO(SPORIN) + THI(O)- + -(I)N.]
- ceph·a·lo·tho·rax (sĕf'ə-lə-thôr'äks', -thōr'-) n. The anterior section of arachnids and many crustaceans, consisting of the fused head and thorax.
- cephalous suff. Having a specified kind of head or number of heads: dicephalous. [From Greek -kephalos, from kephalē, head. See ghebh-el- in Appendix.]
- cephaly suff. A specified condition of the head: microcephaly.
- Ce·phe·id (sĕ'fĕ-ĭd, sĕf'ĕ-) n. Any of a class of intrinsically variable stars with exceptionally regular periods of light pulsation. [From CEPHEUS.]
- Ce·pheus (sĕ'fyōōs', -fĕ-əs, sĕf'ĕ-) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Cassiopeia and Draco. [Latin Cēpheus, from Greek Kēpheus.]
- ce·ra·ceous (sə-rā'shəs) adj. Waxy or waxlike. [Latin cēra, wax; see CERATE + -ACEOUS.]

Ce·ram (sā'rām', sĕ-rāN') An island of eastern Indonesia in the Moluccas west of New Guinea. It borders on the Ceram Sea, a section of the western Pacific Ocean.

ce·ram·al (sə-rām'əl) n. See cermet. [CERAM(IC) + AL(LOY).]

ce·ram·ic (sə-rām'ik) n. 1. Any of various hard, brittle, heat-resistant and corrosion-resistant materials made by shaping and then firing a nonmetallic mineral, such as clay, at a high temperature. 2. a. An object, such as earthenware, porcelain, or tile, made of ceramic. b. ceramics. (used with a sing. verb). The art or technique of making objects of ceramic, especially from fired clay. [From Greek keramikos, of pottery, from keramos, potter's clay. See ker-³ in Appendix.] —ce·ram'ic adj.

ce·ram·ist (sə-rām'ist, sĕr'ə-mĭst) n. One who makes objects of ceramic.

ce·ras·tes (sə-rās'tēz) n. pl. cerastes. Any of several venomous snakes of the genus Cerastes, such as the horned viper, having hornlike projections over each eye. [Middle English, from Latin cerastēs, from Greek kerastēs, horned serpent, from keras, horn. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

cerat- pref. Variant of kerato-.

ce·rate (sĭr'āt') n. A hard, unctuous, fat- or wax-based solid, sometimes medicated, formerly applied to the skin directly or on dressings. [Latin cērātum, from cērātus, past participle of cērāre, to cover with wax, from cĕra, wax; akin to Greek kĕros.]

ce·rat·ed (sĭr'ā'tĭd) adj. 1. Coated with wax or resin. 2. Having a cere: a cerated beak. [From Latin cērātus. See CERATE.]

cerato- pref. Variant of kerato-.

ce·rat·o·dus (sə-rāt'ə-dəs) n. pl. ce·rat·o·dus·es. 1. Any of various extinct lungfishes of the genus Ceratodus, of the Triassic and Cretaceous periods. 2. See barramunda. [New Latin Ceratodus, genus name : Greek keras, kerat-, horn; see ker-¹ in Appendix + Greek odous, tooth; see dent- in Appendix.]

cer·a·toid (sĕr'ə-toĭd') adj. Similar to a horn; hornlike.

Cer·ber·us (sĭr'bĕr-əs) n. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. A three-headed dog guarding the entrance to Hades. —Cer'ber·e'an (sĭr'bĕ-rĕ'an) adj.

cer·car·i·a (sĕr-kâr'ĕ-ə) n. pl. cer·car·i·ae (-ĕ-ĕ') or cer·car·i·as. The parasitic larva of a trematode worm, having a tail that disappears in the adult stage. [New Latin : Greek kerkos, tail + -aria feminine of Latin -arius, -ary.] —cer·car'i·al adj.

cer·cus (sĭr'kəs, kĕr'-) n. pl. cer·ci (sĭr'sĭ, -kĭ, kĕr'kĕ). Either of a pair of terminal, dorsolateral sensory appendages of certain insects, such as the female mosquito. [New Latin, from Greek kerkos, tail.]

cere¹ (sîr) v. tr. cered, cer-ing, ceres. To wrap in or as if in cerecloth. [Middle English ceren, ciren, from Old French cirer, to cover with wax, from Latin cērāre. See CERATE.]

cere² (sîr) n. A fleshy or waxlike swelling at the base of the upper part of the beak in certain birds, such as parrots. [Middle English sere, from Old French cire, from Medieval Latin cēra, from Latin, wax. See CERATE.] —cered adj.

ce-re-al (sîr'ē-əl) n. 1. a. A grass such as wheat, oats, or corn, the starchy grains of which are used as food. b. The grain of such a grass. 2. Any of several other plants or their edible seed or fruit, such as buckwheat or grain amaranth. 3. A food prepared from any of these plants, especially a breakfast food made from commercially processed grain. — adj. Consisting of or relating to grain or to a plant producing grain. [From Latin cereālis, of grain, from Cerēs, Ceres. See ker-² in Appendix.]

cereal leaf beetle (sîr'ē-əl lēf bēt'l) n. An Old World beetle (Oulema melanopus) now found in the United States, where it is a serious pest of grain crops as a result of its consumption of cereal grasses.

cer-e-bel-lum (sēr'ə-běl'əm) n. pl. cer-e-bel-lums or cer-e-bel-la (-běl'ə). The trilobed structure of the brain, lying posterior to the pons and medulla oblongata and inferior to the occipital lobes of the cerebral hemispheres, that is responsible for the regulation and coordination of complex voluntary muscular movement as well as the maintenance of posture and balance. [Medieval Latin, from Latin, diminutive of cerebrum, brain. See ker-¹ in Appendix.]

—cer'e-bel'lar (-běl'ər) adj.

cerebr- pref. Variant of cerebro-.

cer-e-bra (sēr'ə-brə, sə-rē'brə) n. A plural of cerebrum.

cer-e-bral (sēr'ə-brəl, sə-rē'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the brain or cerebrum. 2. Appealing to or requiring the use of the intellect; intellectual rather than emotional: “His approach is cerebral, analytical, cautious” (Helen Dewar).

—cer-e'bral-ly adv.

cerebral accident (sēr'ə-brəl äk'sĩ-dənt) n. See stroke¹ (n., sense 6).

cerebral cortex (sēr'ə-brəl kôr'těks') n. The extensive outer layer of gray matter of the cerebral hemispheres, largely responsible for higher brain functions, including sensation, voluntary muscle movement, thought, reasoning, and memory.

cerebral hemisphere (sēr'ə-brəl hēm'ĩ-sfîr') n. Either of the two symmetrical halves of the cerebrum, as divided by the longitudinal cerebral fissure.

cerebral palsy (sēr'ə-brəl pôl'zē) n. A disorder usually caused by brain damage occurring at or before birth and marked by muscular impairment. Often accompanied by poor coordination, it sometimes involves speech and learning difficulties. —cer'e-bral-pal'sied (sēr'ə-brəl-pôl'zēd, sə-rē'-) adj.

cer·e·brate (sĕr'ə-brāt') v. intr. cer·e·brat·ed, cer·e·brat·ing, cer·e·brates.

To use the power of reason; think. See Synonyms at think. [Back-formation from cerebration, from Latin cerebrum, brain. See CEREBRUM.] —cer'e·bra'tion n.

cerebro- or cerebr- pref. Brain; cerebrum: cerebroside. [From CEREBRUM.]

cer·e·bro·side (sĕr'ə-brə-sīd', sə-rĕ'-) n. Any of various lipid compounds containing glucose or galactose and glucose, and found in the brain and other nerve tissue. [CEREBR(O)- + -OS(E)² + -IDE.]

cer·e·bro·spi·nal (sĕr'ə-brō-spī'nəl, sə-rĕ'brō-) adj. Of or relating to the brain and spinal cord.

cerebrospinal fluid (sĕr'ə-brō-spī'nəl flōō'īd) n. Abbr. CSF The serumlike fluid that circulates through the ventricles of the brain, the cavity of the spinal cord, and the subarachnoid space, functioning in shock absorption.

cerebrospinal meningitis (sĕr'ə-brō-spī'nəl mĕn'īn-jī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the meninges of both the brain and the spinal cord.

cer·e·bro·vas·cu·lar (sĕr'ə-brō-vās'kyə-lər, sə-rĕ'brō-) adj. Of or relating to the blood vessels that supply the brain.

cerebrovascular accident (sĕr'ə-brō-vās'kyə-lər äk'sī-dənt) n. Abbr. CVA See stroke¹ (n., sense 6).

cer·e·brum (sĕr'ə-brəm, sə-rĕ'-) n. pl. cer·e·brums or cer·e·bra (-brə). The large, rounded structure of the brain occupying most of the cranial cavity, divided into two cerebral hemispheres that are joined at the bottom by the corpus callosum. It controls and integrates motor, sensory, and higher mental functions, such as thought, reason, emotion, and memory. [Latin, brain. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

cere·cloth (sîr'klôth', -klôth') n. Cloth coated with wax, formerly used for wrapping the dead.

cer·e·ment (sĕr'ə-mənt, sîr'mənt) n. 1. Cerecloth. 2. Often cerements. A burial garment.

cer·e·mo·ni·al (sĕr'ə-mō'nĕ-əl) adj. 1. Of, appropriate to, or characterized by ceremony; formal or ritual. 2. Involved or used in ceremonies: ceremonial garb.

— n. 1. A set of ceremonies prescribed for an occasion; a ritual. 2. A ceremony or rite. —cer'e·mo'ni-al-ism n. —cer'e·mo'ni-al-ist n.

—cer'e·mo'ni-al-ly adv.

cer·e·mo·ni·ous (sĕr'ə-mō'nĕ-əs) adj. 1. Strictly observant of or devoted to ceremony, ritual, or etiquette; punctilious: "borne on silvery trays by ceremonious world-weary waiters" (Financial Times). 2. a. Characterized by ceremony: "Putting on a hat can be a ceremonious act, an elegant gesture in the ritual of dressing" (Ruth La Ferla). b. In accord with prescribed or customary usage; rigidly formal: Their ceremonious greetings did not seem heartfelt. —cer'e·mo'ni-ous-ly adv.

—cer'e·mo'ni-ous-ness n.

cer·e·mo·ny (sĕr'ə-mō'nē) n. pl. cer·e·mo·nies. 1. A formal act or set of acts performed as prescribed by ritual or custom: a wedding ceremony; the Japanese tea ceremony. 2. A conventional social gesture or act of courtesy: the ceremony of shaking hands when introduced. 3. A formal act without intrinsic purpose; an empty form: ignored the ceremony of asking for comments and suggestions from other committee members. 4. Strict observance of formalities or etiquette: The head of state was welcomed with full ceremony. [Middle English ceremonie, from Latin caerimōnia, religious rite.]

Ce·ren·kov (chə-rĕng'kôf, -kəf, chĭ-ryĭn-kôf'), Pavel Alekseevich. See Pavel Alekseevich Cherenkov.

Ce·ren·kov effect also Ch·e·ren·kov effect (chə-rĕng'kôf ĭ-fĕkt', -kəf) n. The emission of light by a charged particle passing through a transparent non-conducting liquid or solid material at a speed greater than the speed of light in that material. [After Pavel Alekseevich CHERENKOV.]

Cerenkov radiation also Cherenkov radiation (chə-rĕng'kôf rā'dē-ā'shən) n. Light emitted in the Cerenkov effect.

Ce·res (sĭr'ĕz) n. 1. Roman Mythology. The goddess of agriculture. 2. The largest asteroid and the first to be discovered, having an orbit between Mars and Jupiter. [Latin Cerēs. See ker-² in Appendix.]

ce·re·us (sĭr'ĕ-əs) n. Any of several cacti of the genus Cereus or closely related genera, such as a night-blooming cereus. [New Latin Cĕreus, genus name, from Latin cĕreus, candle (from its shape), from cĕra, wax. See CERATE.]

Cerf (sûrf), Bennett Alfred. 1898-1971. American editor and publisher. Known for his love of puns, he was also a panelist on the television show What's My Line? (1952-1968).

ce·ric (sĭr'ĭk, sĕr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or containing cerium, especially with valence 4. [CER(IUM) + -IC.]

ceric oxide (sĭr'ĭk ôk'sĭd') n. A pale yellow-white powder, CeO₂, used in ceramics, to polish glass, and to sensitize photosensitive glass.

cer·iph (sĕr'ĭf) n. Chiefly British. Variant of serif.

ce·rise (sə-rĕs', -rĕz') n. Color. A deep to vivid purplish red. [French, from Old French, cherry. See CHERRY.] —ce·rise' adj.

ce·ri·um (sĭr'ĕ-əm) n. Symbol Ce A lustrous, iron-gray, malleable metallic rare-earth element that occurs chiefly in the minerals monazite and bastnaesite, exists in four allotropic states, is a constituent of lighter flint alloys, and is used in various metallurgical and nuclear applications. Atomic number 58; atomic weight 140.12; melting point 795°C; boiling point 3,468°C; specific gravity 6.67 to 8.23; valence 3, 4. [CER(ES) + -IUM.]

cer·met (sûr'mĕt') n. A material consisting of processed ceramic particles bonded with metal and used in high-strength and high-temperature applications. Also called ceramal [CER(AMIC) + MET(AL).]

cer·nu·ous (sûr'nyōō-əs) adj. Botany. Nodding; drooping. [From Latin cernuus, bowing forward.]

ce·ro (sîr'ō, sĕr'ō) n. pl. ce·ros or cero. An edible fish (Scomberomorus regalis) of western Atlantic waters, having silvery sides and a dark-blue back. Also called sierra [Alteration of Spanish sierra, saw, sawfish. See SIERRA.]

ce·ro·tic acid (sə-rō'tik əs'id, -rōt'ik) n. A fatty acid, $\text{CH}_3(\text{CH}_2)_{24}\text{COOH}$, occurring in waxes, such as beeswax or carnauba wax. [From Latin cērōtum, wax plaster, from Greek kērōton, from neuter of kēroun, to wax, from kēros, wax.]

ce·ro·type (sîr'ə-tīp', sĕr'ə-) n. The process of preparing a printing surface for electrotyping by first engraving on a wax-coated metal plate. [Greek kēros, wax + TYPE.]

ce·rous (sîr'əs) adj. Of, relating to, or containing cerium, especially with valence 3. [CER(IUM) + -OUS.]

Cer·re·do (sə-rā'dō, sĕ-rĕ'thō), Torre de. See Torre de Cerredo.

Cer·ri·tos (sə-rĕ'təs) A city of southern California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 53,240.

Cer·ro de Pun·ta (sĕr'ō də pōon'tə, -tā) A mountain, 1,338.6 m (4,389 ft) high, of central Puerto Rico in the Cordillera Central. It is the highest elevation on the island.

Cerro Gor·do (sĕr'ō gôr'dō) A mountain pass of southeast Mexico between Veracruz and Mexico City. It was the site of a U.S. victory (April 18, 1847) in the Mexican War.

cert. abbr. 1. Certificate; certification. 2. Certified.

cer·tain (sûr'tn) adj. 1. Definite; fixed: set aside a certain sum each week.

2. Sure to come or happen; inevitable: certain success. 3. Established beyond doubt or question; indisputable: What is certain is that every effect must have a cause. 4. Capable of being relied on; dependable: a quick and certain remedy.

5. Having or showing confidence; assured. 6. a. Not specified or identified but assumed to be known: a certain popular teacher; felt that certain breeds did not make good pets. b. Named but not known or previously mentioned: a certain Ms. Johnson. 7. Perceptible; noticeable: a certain cozy charm; kept a certain air of mystery about him. 8. Not great; calculable: to a certain degree; a certain delay in the schedule. — pron. An indefinite but limited number; some: Certain of the products are faulty. — idiom. for certain. Without doubt; definitely. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin certānus*, from Latin certus, past participle of cernere, to determine. See krei- in Appendix.]

— idiom. for certain. Without doubt; definitely. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin certānus*, from Latin certus, past participle of cernere, to determine. See krei- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: certain, inescapable, inevitable, sure, unavoidable. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “impossible to avoid or evade”: certain death; an inescapable conclusion; an inevitable result; sudden but sure regret; an unavoidable accident. See also Synonyms at sure

USAGE NOTE: Although certain appears to be an absolute term, it is frequently qualified by adverbs, as in fairly certain or quite certain. In an earlier survey, a majority of the Usage Panel accepted the construction Nothing could be more certain.

cer·tain·ly (sûr'tn-lē) adv. 1. Undoubtedly; definitely: This is certainly not my writing. 2. By all means; of course: You may certainly join us. 3. Surely: They certainly are hard workers.

cer·tain·ty (sûr'tn-tē) n. pl. cer·tain·ties. 1. The fact, quality, or state of being certain: the certainty of death. 2. Something that is clearly established or assured: "On the field of battle there are no certainties" (Tom Clancy).

SYNONYMS: certainty, certitude, assurance, conviction. These nouns mean freedom from doubt. Certainty implies an absence of doubt that is based on a thorough consideration of evidence: "Jealousy feeds upon suspicion, and it turns into fury or it ends as soon as we pass from suspicion to certainty" (La Rochefoucauld). Certitude is certainty that is based more on personal belief than on objective facts: "Certitude is not the test of certainty" (Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.). Assurance is a feeling of confidence resulting from subjective experience: "There is no such thing as absolute certainty, but there is assurance sufficient for the purposes of human life" (John Stuart Mill). Conviction is certainty arising from the vanquishment of doubt: "The supreme happiness of life is the conviction that we are loved" (Victor Hugo).

cer·tes (sûr'tēz, sûrts) adv. Archaic. Certainly; truly. [Middle English, from Old French (a) certes, perhaps from Latin ad certās, or from Vulgar Latin certānus* both from Latin certus, certain. See CERTAIN.]

certif. abbr. Certificate.

cer·ti·fi·a·ble (sûr'tə-fī'ə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be certified: a certifiable fact; certifiable data. 2. Fit to be declared insane. —cer'ti-fi'a·bly adv.

cer·tif·i·cate (sər-tif'i-kīt) n. Abbr. cert., certif., ctf., ct. 1. A document testifying to the truth of something: a certificate of birth. 2. A document issued to a person completing a course of study not leading to a diploma. 3. A document certifying that a person may officially practice in certain professions. 4. A document certifying ownership. — v. tr. cer-tif-i-cat-ed, cer-tif-i-cat-ing, cer-tif-i-cates (-kāt'). To furnish with, testify to, or authorize by a certificate.

[Middle English certificat, from Old French, from Medieval Latin certificātum, something certified, from neuter of Late Latin certificātus, past participle of certificāre, to certify. See CERTIFY.] —cer-tif'i-ca-to'ry (-kə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

certificate of deposit (sər-tif'i-kīt ūv dī-pöz'it) n. pl. certificates of deposit. Abbr. CD, C/D A certificate from a bank stating that the named party has a specified sum on deposit, usually for a given period of time at a fixed rate of interest.

cer-ti-fi-ca-tion (sûr'tə-fī-kā'shən) n. Abbr. cert. 1. a. The act of certifying. b. The state of being certified. 2. A certified statement.

cer-ti-fied check (sûr'tə-fīd' chĕk) n. A check guaranteed by a bank to be covered by sufficient funds on deposit.

certified mail (sûr'tə-fīd' māl) n. Uninsured first-class mail for which proof of delivery is obtained.

certified public accountant (sûr'tə-fīd' pŭb'lik ə-koun'tənt) n. Abbr. CPA, C.P.A. A public accountant who has been certified by a state examining board as having met the state's legal requirements.

cer-ti-fy (sûr'tə-fī') v. cer-ti-fied, cer-ti-fy-ing, cer-ti-fies. — v. tr. 1. a. To confirm formally as true, accurate, or genuine. b. To guarantee as meeting a standard: butter that was certified Grade A. See Synonyms at approve. 2. To acknowledge in writing on the face of (a check) that the signature of the maker is genuine and that there are sufficient funds on deposit for its payment. 3. To issue a license or certificate to. 4. To declare legally insane. 5. Archaic. To inform positively; assure. — v. intr. To testify: certify to the facts. [Middle English certifien, from Old French certifier, from Late Latin certificāre: Latin certus, certain; see CERTAIN + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —cer'ti-fi'er n.

cer-ti-o-rar-i (sûr'shē-ə-rār'ē, -rār'rē) n. Law. A writ from a higher court to a lower one requesting a transcript of the proceedings of a case for review. [Middle English, from Latin certiorārī (volumus), (we wish) to be informed (from the word's occurrence in the writ), passive of certiōrāre, to inform, apprise, from certior, comparative of certus, certain. See CERTAIN.]

cer-ti-tude (sûr'tī-tōod', -tyōod') n. 1. The state of being certain; complete assurance; confidence. 2. Sureness of occurrence or result; inevitability. 3. Something that is assured or unfailing: "eager to swap the hazards of American freedom for the gray certitudes of Soviet life" (Time). See Synonyms at certainty. [Middle English, from Late Latin certitūdō, from Latin certus, certain. See CERTAIN.]

ce-ru-le-an (sə-rōō'lē-ən) adj. Color. Azure; sky-blue. [From Latin caeruleus, dark blue; akin to caelum, sky.]

ce-ru-lo-plas-min (sə-rōō'lō-plăz'mĭn) n. A blood glycoprotein to which copper is bound during transport and storage. [CERUL(EAN) + PLASM(A) + -IN.]

ce-ru-men (sə-rōō'mən) n. See earwax. [New Latin, from Latin cĕra, wax. See CERATE.] —ce-ru'mi-nous (-mə-nəs) adj.

ce-ruse (sə-rōōs', sĭr'ōōs') n. A white lead pigment, sometimes used in cosmetics. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cĕrussa.] ce-rus-site (sə-rŭs'īt') n. A colorless or white mineral, PbCO₃, that is an ore of lead; lead carbonate. [German Zerussit, from Latin cĕrussa, ceruse.]

- Cer·van·tes Sa·a·ve·dra (sər-văn'tēz sə'ə-vā'drə, thēr-băn'tēs sə'ä-bēth'rä), Miguel de. 1547-1616. Spanish writer who is best known for his classic satirical novel Don Quixote (1605-1615).
- cer·vi·cal (sûr'vī-kəl) adj. Of or relating to a neck or a cervix. [From Latin cervix, cervic-, neck. See CERVIX.]
- cervical cap (sûr'vī-kəl kăp) n. A small, rubber, cup-shaped contraceptive device that fits over the uterine cervix to prevent the entry of sperm.
- cer·vi·ces (sûr'vī-sēz', sər-vī'sēz) n. A plural of cervix.
- cer·vi·ci·tis (sûr'vī-sī'tis) n. Inflammation of the cervix of the uterus.
- cer·vine (sûr'vīn') adj. Relating to, resembling, or characteristic of deer. [Latin cervinus, from cervus, deer. See ker⁻¹ in Appendix.]
- cer·vix (sûr'vīks) n. pl. cer·vix·es or cer·vi·ces (sûr'vī-sēz', sər-vī'sēz). 1. The neck. 2. A neck-shaped anatomical structure, such as the narrow outer end of the uterus. [Latin cervix, neck. See ker⁻¹ in Appendix.]
- ce·sar·e·an also cae·sar·e·an or cae·sar·i·an or ce·sar·i·an (sī-zâr'ē-ən) adj. Of or relating to a cesarean section. — n. A cesarean section.
- cesarean section also caesarean section (sī-zâr'ē-ən sĕk'shən) n. A surgical incision through the abdominal wall and uterus, performed to deliver a fetus. [From the traditional belief that Julius CAESAR (or his eponymous ancestor) was born by this operation.]
- ce·sar·i·an (sī-zâr'ē-ən) adj. & n. Variant of cesarean.
- Ce·se·na (chə-zā'nə, chĕ-zĕ'nä) A city of north-central Italy east-northeast of Florence. It flourished under the Malatesta family (1379)-1465), who founded its Renaissance-style library. Population, 67,600.
- ce·si·um also cae·si·um (sē'zē-əm) n. Symbol Cs A soft, silvery-white ductile metal, liquid at room temperature, the most electropositive and alkaline of the elements, used in photoelectric cells and to catalyze hydrogenation of some organic compounds. Atomic number 55; atomic weight 132.905; melting point 28.5°C; boiling point 690°C; specific gravity 1.87; valence 1. [From Latin caesius, bluish gray (from its blue spectral lines).]
- Čes·ké Bu·dě·jo·vi·ce (chĕs'kĕ bööd'yə-yô-vī-tsĕ) A city of south-central Czech Republic on the Vltava River south of Prague. It was founded in the 13th century. Population, 93,520.
- ces·pi·tose (sĕs'pī-tōs') adj. Botany. Growing in tufts or clumps. [New Latin caespitōsus, from Latin caespes, caespit-, turf.] — ces'pi·tose'ly adv.
- cess (sĕs) n. Irish. Luck. [Possibly short for SUCCESS.]
- ces·sa·tion (sĕ-sā'shən) n. A bringing or coming to an end; a ceasing: a cessation of hostilities. [Middle English cessacioun, from Old French cessation, from Latin cessātiō, cessātiōn-, from cessātus, past participle of cessāre, to stop. See CEASE.]

ces·sion (sěsh'ən) n. 1. A ceding or surrendering, as of territory to another country by treaty. 2. Something, such as territory, that is ceded. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin cessiō, cessiōn-, from cessus, past participle of cēdere, to yield. See ked- in Appendix.]

cess·pit (sěs'pīt') n. A pit for refuse or sewage. [CESS(POOL) + PIT¹.]

cess·pool (sěs'pōōl') n. 1. A covered hole or pit for receiving drainage or sewage, as from a house. 2. A filthy, disgusting, or morally corrupt place. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by POOL¹), of obsolete cesperalle, drainpipe, from Middle English suspiral, vent, from Old French sospirail, breathing hole, from souspirer, to breathe, from Latin suspīrāre, to sigh. See SUSPIRE.]

ces·ta (sěs'tə) n. Sports. A scoop-shaped wicker basket that is worn over the hand and used to catch and throw the ball in jai alai. [Spanish, basket, from Latin cista, chest. See CHEST.]

ces·ti (sěs'tī) n. Plural of cestus¹.

ces·tode (sěs'tōd') n. Any of various parasitic flatworms of the class Cestoda, including the tapeworms, having a long, flat body equipped with a specialized organ of attachment at one end. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the class Cestoda. [From New Latin Cestoda, class name, from Latin cestus, belt, from Greek kestos. See CESTUS¹.]

ces·tus¹ (sěs'təs) n. pl. ces·ti (-tī). A woman's belt or girdle, especially as worn in ancient Greece. [Latin, belt, from Greek kestos. See kent- in Appendix.]

ces·tus² also caes·tus (sěs'təs) n. pl. ces·tus·es. A covering for the hand made of leather straps weighted with iron or lead and worn by boxers in ancient Rome. [Latin caestus, from caedere, to strike. See kaə-id- in Appendix.]

ce·su·ra (sī-zhōōr'ə, -zōōr'ə) n. Variant of caesura.

CET or C.E.T. abbr. Central European Time.

CETA abbr. Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

ce·ta·cean (sī-tā'shən) n. Any of various aquatic, chiefly marine mammals of the order Cetacea, including the whales, dolphins, and porpoises, characterized by a nearly hairless body, anterior limbs modified into broad flippers, vestigial posterior limbs, and a flat, notched tail. — adj. also ce·ta·ceous (sī-tā'shəs) Of, relating to, or belonging to the order Cetacea. [From New Latin Cētācea, order name, from Latin cētus, whale. See CETUS.]

ce·tane (sē'tān') n. A colorless liquid, C₁₆H₃₄, used as a solvent and in standardized hydrocarbons. [Latin cētus, whale (so called because it is found in sperm whale oil); see CETUS + -ANE.]

cetane number (sē'tān' nŭm'bər) n. The performance rating of a diesel fuel, corresponding to the percentage of cetane in a cetane-methylnaphthalene mixture with the same ignition performance. A higher cetane number indicates greater fuel efficiency. Also called cetane rating cete (sēt) n. A company of badgers. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English, possibly from Medieval Latin cetus, assembly, from Latin coetus, a coming together, variant of coitus. See COITUS.]

ce-ter-is par-i-bus (kā'tər-ĭs pār'ə-bəs) adv. Abbr. cet. par. With all other factors or things remaining the same. [New Latin cēterīs pārībus, with other things equal : Latin cēterīs, ablative pl. of cēterus, the other + Latin pārībus, ablative pl. of pārs, equal.]

ce-tol-o-gy (sĭ-tŏl'ə-jē) n. The zoology of whales and related aquatic mammals. [Latin cētus, whale; see CETUS + -LOGY.] —ce'to-log'i-cal (sēt'l-ŏj'ĭ-kəl) adj. —ce-tol'o-gist n.

cet. par. abbr. Ceteris paribus.

Ce-tus (sē'təs) n. A constellation in the equatorial region of the Southern Hemisphere near Aquarius and Eridanus. [Latin cētus, whale, from Greek kētos.]

ce-tyl alcohol (sēt'l äĭ'l'kə-hŏl') n. A waxy alcohol, C₁₅H₃₃OH, used in cosmetics and pharmaceuticals. [Latin cētus, whale; see CETUS + -YL.]

Ceu-ta (syŏŏ'tə, thĕ'ŏŏ-tä, sĕ'-) A Spanish city of northwest Africa, an enclave in Morocco on the Strait of Gibraltar. A flourishing trade city under the Arabs, it was taken by the Portuguese in 1415 and passed to Spain in 1580. Population, 68,882.

Cé-vennes (sā-vĕn') A mountain range of southern France west of the Rhone River. Its highest elevation is 1,754.7 m (5,753 ft).

ce-vi-che or se-vi-che (sə-vĕ'chā, sĕ'-) n. Raw fish marinated in lime or lemon juice with olive oil and spices and served as an appetizer. [American Spanish, from Spanish cebiche, fish stew, from cebo, fodder, bait, from Latin cibus, food.]

Cey-lon (sĭ-lŏn', sā-) See Sri Lanka. —Cey'lo-nese' (-nĕz', -nĕs') adj. & n.

Ce-yx (sē'ĭks) n. Greek Mythology. The husband of Alcyone.

Cé-zanne (sā-zăn', -zăn'), Paul. 1839-1906. French artist and leading postimpressionist figure. His most famous paintings include Mont Sainte-Victoire (1885-1887) and The Card Players (1890-1892). —Cé-zan'nesque' (-zăn'ĕsk') adj.

Cf The symbol for the element californium.

CF abbr. 1. Baseball. Center field; center fielder. 2. Cystic fibrosis.

cf. abbr. 1. Calfskin. 2. Latin. Confer (compare).

c.f. or C.F. abbr. Cost and freight.

C/F abbr. Accounting. Carried forward.

CFC abbr. Chlorofluorocarbon.

c.f.i. or C.F.I. abbr. Cost, freight, and insurance.

cfm or c.f.m. abbr. Cubic feet per minute.

cfs or c.f.s. abbr. Cubic feet per second.

cg abbr. Centigram.

c.g. abbr. 1. Center of gravity. 2. Or C.G.. Consul general.

C.G. abbr. 1. Coast guard. 2. Commanding general.

cgm abbr. Centigram.

cgs or CGS abbr. Centimeter-gram-second system.

ch abbr. 1. Chain (measurement). 2. Games. Check (chess).

ch. abbr. 1. Or Ch. Chaplain. 2. Chapter. 3. Check (bank order). 4. Or Ch. Chief. 5. Child; children. 6. Or Ch. Church.

Ch. abbr. China.

c.h. or C.H. abbr. 1. Clearing-house. 2. Courthouse. 3. Customhouse.

Cha·blis (shă-blē', shă-, shăb'lē) n. 1. A very dry white Burgundy wine originally from east-central France. 2. A blended white table wine of California.

[After Chablis, a village of north-central France.]

cha-cha (chă'chä) n. A rhythmic ballroom dance that originated in Latin America. — v. intr. cha·chaed, cha·cha-ing, cha·chas. To perform this rhythmic ballroom dance. [American Spanish chachachá.] chach·ka or tchotch·ke (chöch'kə) also tsats·ke (tsäts'kə) n. Slang. A cheap, showy trinket. [Yiddish tshatshke, from Polish dialectal czaczka.] chac·ma (chäk'mə) n. A grayish-black baboon (Papio ursinus) of southern and eastern Africa. [Possibly of Khokhoin origin.]

Cha·co (chä'kō) See Gran Chaco.

cha-conne (shä-kôn', -kōn') n. 1. A slow, stately dance of the 18th century or the music for it. 2. Music. A form consisting of variations based on a reiterated harmonic pattern. [French, from Spanish chacona, a kind of dance.]

chad (chäd) n. Small pieces of paper or cardboard generated by punching holes in paper tape or data cards. [Origin unknown.] — chad/less adj.

Chad (chäd) A country of north-central Africa. Formerly part of French Equatorial Africa, it became independent in 1960. Ndjamena is the capital and the largest city. Population, 4,405,000. — Chad/i-an adj. & n.

Chad, Lake. A shallow lake of north-central Africa in Chad, Cameroon, Niger, and Nigeria. It was first explored by Europeans in 1823.

Chad·ic (chäd'ik) n. A branch of the Afro-Asiatic language family, spoken in west-central Africa and including Hausa as its best-known member.

cha·dor (chä-dôr') n. A loose, usually black robe worn by Muslim women that covers the body from head to toe and most of the face. [Urdu chādar, cover, cloth, from Persian, screen, tent, from Sanskrit chattram, screen, parasol. See CHUDDAR.]

Chad·wick (chäd'wĭk), Henry. 1824-1908. British-born American sports-writer who helped organize professional baseball. In 1869 he began an annual baseball handbook, which later became Spalding's Official Baseball Guide.

Chad·wick (chäd'wĭk), Sir James. 1891-1974. British physicist. He won a 1935 Nobel Prize for his discovery of the neutron.

Chae·o·ne·a (kĕr'ə-nĕ'ə, kîr'-) An ancient city of eastern Greece. Philip of Macedon defeated a confederation of Greek states here in 338 B.C.

chae·ta (kĕ'tə) n. pl. chae·tae (-tĕ'). A bristle or seta, especially of an annelid worm. [New Latin, from Greek khaitē, long hair.]

chae·tog·nath (kĕ'tŏg-năth') n. Any of various marine worms of the phylum Chaetognatha, which includes the arrow worms. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the phylum Chaetognatha. [From New Latin Chaetognatha, phylum name : chaeta, chaeta; see CHAETA + Greek gnathos, jaw; see genu-² in Appendix.] — chae·tog·na·thous (-nə-thəs) adj.

chafe (chāf) v. chafed, chaf·ing, chafes. — v. tr. 1. To wear away or irritate by rubbing. 2. To annoy; vex. 3. To warm by rubbing, as with the hands. — v. intr. 1. To rub and cause irritation or friction: The high collar chafed against my neck. 2. To become worn or sore from rubbing. 3. To feel irritated or impatient: chafed at the delay. — n. 1. Warmth, wear, or soreness produced by friction. 2. Annoyance; vexation. [Middle English chafen, from Old French chauser, to warm, from Vulgar Latin calefāre*, alteration of Latin calefacere : calĕre, to be warm; see kelə-¹ in Appendix + facere, to make; see dhĕ- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: chafe, abrade, excoriate, fret, gall. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to wear down or rub away a surface by or as if by scraping”: chafed my skin; a swift stream abrading boulders; an excoriated elbow; rope that fretted a groove in the post; his heel galled by an ill-fitting shoe.

Cha·fee (chā'fĕ), Zechariah. 1885-1957. American lawyer and civil libertarian whose influential works include The Inquiring Mind (1928) and Free Speech in the United States (1941).

cha·fer (chā'fər) n. Any of various beetles of the family Scarabaeidae, such as the cockchafer. [Middle English, a kind of beetle, from Old English ceafor.]

chaff¹ (chăf) n. 1. Botany. Thin, dry bracts or scales, especially: a. The dry bracts enclosing mature grains of wheat and some other cereal grasses, removed during threshing. b. The scales or bracts borne on the receptacle among the small, individual flowers of many plants in the composite family. 2. Finely cut straw or hay used as fodder. 3. Trivial or worthless matter. 4. Strips of metal, foil, or glass fiber with a metal content, cut into various lengths and having varying frequency responses, that are used to reflect electromagnetic energy as a radar countermeasure. These materials, usually dropped from aircraft, also can be deployed from shells or rockets. [Middle English chaf, from Old English ceaf.] — chaf'fy adj.

chaff² (chăf) v. chaffed, chaff·ing, chaffs. — v. tr. To make fun of in a good-natured way; tease. — v. intr. To engage in playful teasing. See Synonyms at banter. — n. Good-natured teasing; banter. [Possibly alteration of CHAFE, or CHAFF¹.]

chaff-er¹ (chăf'ər) n. One who engages in banter or good-natured teasing.

chaf-fer² (chăf'ər) v. chaf-fered, chaf-fer-ing, chaf-fers. — v. intr. 1. To bargain or haggle. 2. Chiefly British. To bandy words; engage in small talk. — v. tr. To bargain or haggle for. — n. Archaic. A bargaining or haggling. [Middle English chaffaren, to haggle, from chaffare, cheapfare, bargaining : chep, purchase; see CHEAP + fare, journey, business (from Old English faru, from faran, to travel); see FARE.] — chaf-fer-er n.

chaf-finch (chăf'inch) n. A small European songbird (Fringilla coelebs), the male of which has predominantly reddish-brown plumage. [Middle English chaffinche, from Old English ceaffinc : ceaf, chaff, husk + finch, finch.]

chaf-ing dish (chă'fing dīsh) n. A metal dish or pan mounted above a heating device and used to cook food or keep it warm at the table.

Cha-gall (shə-gäl', -gäl', shä-), Marc. 1887-1985. Russian-born artist noted for his dreamlike, fanciful imagery and brilliantly colored canvases. Among his works are two huge murals designed for the New York City Metropolitan Opera House (1966).

Cha-gas' disease (shă'gəs dī-zēz') n. A South American form of trypanosomiasis caused by the protozoan Trypanosoma cruzi that is characterized by fever and enlargement of the spleen and lymph nodes. [After Carlos Chagas (1879-1934), Brazilian physician.]

Chag-a-tai (chăg'ə-tī') See Jagatai.

Cha-gres (chă'grēs) A river rising in central Panama, flowing southwest to Gatún Lake (formed by a dam on the river), then draining northwest to the Caribbean Sea.

cha-grin (shə-grīn') n. A keen feeling of mental unease, as of annoyance or embarrassment, caused by failure, disappointment, or a disconcerting event: To her chagrin, the party ended just as she arrived. — v. tr. cha-grined, cha-grin-ing, cha-grins. To cause to feel chagrin; mortify or discomfit: He was chagrined at the poor sales of his book. See Synonyms at embarrass. [French, possibly from dialectal French chagraigner, to distress, become gloomy, from Old French graim, sorrowful, gloomy, of Germanic origin.]

WORD HISTORY: The ultimate etymology of the word chagrin, which comes directly to us from French, is considered uncertain by many etymologists. At one time chagrin was thought to be the same word as shagreen, “a leather or skin with a rough surface,” derived from French chagrin. The reasoning was that in French the word for this rough material, which was used to smooth and polish things, was extended to the notion of troubles that fret and annoy a person. It was later decided, however, that the sense “rough leather” and the sense “sorrow” each belonged to a different French word chagrin. Other etymologists have offered an alternative explanation, suggesting that the French word chagrin, “sorrow,” is a loan translation of the German word Katzenjammer, “a morning-after-the-night-before feeling.” A loan translation is a type of borrowing from another language in which the elements of a foreign word, as in Katzen, “cats,” and Jammer, “distress, seediness,” are assumed to be translated literally by corresponding elements in another language, in this case, chat, “cat,” and grigner, “to grimace.” The actual etymology is less colorful, with the word probably going back to a Germanic word, gramī*, meaning “sorrow, trouble.” Chagrin is first recorded in English in 1656 in the now obsolete sense “anxiety, melancholy.”

chain (chān) n. 1. a. A connected, flexible series of links, typically of metal, used especially for holding objects together or restraining or for transmitting mechanical power. b. Such a set of links, often of precious metal and with pendants attached, worn as an ornament or symbol of office. 2. A restraining or confining agent or force. 3. chains. a. Bonds, fetters, or shackles. b. Captivity or oppression; bondage: threw off the chains of slavery. 4. A series of closely linked or connected things: a chain of coincidences. See Synonyms at series. 5. A number of establishments, such as stores, theaters, or hotels, under common ownership or management. 6. A range of mountains. 7. Chemistry. A group of atoms bonded in a spatial configuration like links in a chain. 8. a. An instrument used in surveying, consisting of 100 linked pieces of iron or steel and measuring 66 feet (20.1 meters). Also called Gunter’s chain b. A similar instrument used in engineering, measuring 100 feet (30.5 meters). c. Abbr. ch A unit of measurement equal to the length of either of these instruments. — v. tr. chained, chain-ing, chains. 1. To bind or make fast with a chain or chains: chained the dog to a tree. 2. To restrain or confine as if with chains: workers who were chained to a life of dull routine. [Middle English chaine, from Old French, from Latin catēna.]

Chain (chān), Sir Ernst Boris. 1906-1979. German-born British biochemist. He shared a 1945 Nobel Prize for isolating and purifying penicillin, discovered in 1928 by Sir Alexander Fleming.

chain fern (chān fûrn) n. Any of various terrestrial ferns of the genus Woodwardia, native chiefly to the Northern Hemisphere, having pinnately compound or divided leaves that when fertile bear chainlike rows of spore cases.

chain gang (chān gǎng) n. A group of convicts chained together, especially for outdoor labor.

chain letter (chān lětʹər) n. A letter sent to a number of people asking each recipient to send copies with the same request to a specified number of others. The circulation of a chain letter increases in geometrical progression as long as the instructions are followed by all recipients.

chain-link fence (chān'lingk' fēns) n. A fence made of thick steel wire interwoven in a diamond pattern.

chain mail (chān māl) n. Flexible armor made of joined metal links or scales.

chain-man (chān'mən) n. Either of the two persons who hold a surveyor's measuring chain.

chain of command (chān ūv kə-mānd') n. pl. chains of command. A system whereby authority passes down from the top through a series of executive positions or military ranks in which each is accountable to the one directly superior.

chain pickerel (chān pīk'ər-əl) n. A freshwater game and food fish (Esox niger) of eastern North America.

chain-re-act (chān'rē-ākt') v. intr. chain-re-act-ed, chain-re-act-ing, chain-re-acts. To undergo a chain reaction.

chain reaction (chān rē-āk'shən) n. 1. A series of events in which each induces or influences the next. 2. Physics. A multistage nuclear reaction, especially a self-sustaining series of fissions in which the release of neutrons from the splitting of one atom leads to the splitting of others. 3. Chemistry. A series of reactions in which one product of a reacting set is a reactant in the following set.

chain saw (chān sô) n. A portable power saw with teeth linked in an endless chain. —chain'-saw' (chān'sô') v.

chain-smoke (chān'smōk') v. chain--smoked, chain--smok-ing, chain-smokes. — v. intr. To smoke continually, as by lighting the next cigarette from the previous one. — v. tr. To smoke (cigarettes, for example) in continuing succession. —chain smoker n.

chain stitch (chān stīch) n. A decorative sewing stitch in which loops are connected like the links of a chain.

chain store (chān stôr) n. One of a number of retail stores under the same ownership and dealing in the same merchandise.

chair (châr) n. 1. A piece of furniture consisting of a seat, legs, back, and often arms, designed to accommodate one person. 2. A seat of office, authority, or dignity, such as that of a bishop. 3. a. An office or position of authority, such as a professorship. b. A person who holds an office or a position of authority, such as one who presides over a meeting or administers a department of instruction at a college; a chairperson. 4. The position of a player in an orchestra. 5. Slang. The electric chair. 6. A seat carried about on poles; a sedan chair. 7. Any of several devices that serve to support or secure, such as a metal block that supports and holds railroad track in position. — v. tr. chaired, chair-ing, chairs. 1. To install in a position of authority, especially as a presiding officer. 2. To preside over as chairperson: chair a meeting. [Middle English chaiere, from Old French, from Latin cathedra. See CATHEDRA.]

chair car (châr kâr) n. See parlor car.

chair lift (châr lift) n. A mechanized, cable-suspended, aerial chair assembly used to transport skiers and others up or down a mountain slope.

chair·man (châr'mən) n. Abbr. chm., Chmn 1. The presiding officer of an assembly, a meeting, a committee, or a board. 2. The administrative head of a department of instruction, as at a college. See Usage Note at man. — v. tr.

chair-manned, chair-man-ning, chair-mans. To act as chairman of.

chair·man·ship (châr'mən-shīp') n. The office or term of a chairman.

chair·per·son (châr'pûr'sən) n. A chairman or chairwoman. See Usage Note at man.

chair·wom·an (châr'wōm'ən) n. 1. A woman presiding officer of an assembly, meeting, committee, or board. 2. A woman administrative head of a department of instruction, as at a college. See Usage Note at man.

chaise (shāz) n. 1. Any of various light, open carriages, often with a collapsible hood, especially a two-wheeled carriage drawn by one horse. 2. A post chaise.

3. A chaise longue. [French, chair, variant of Old French chaiere. See CHAIR.]

chaise longue (shāz lông') n. pl. chaise longues or chaises longues (shāz lông'). A reclining chair with a lengthened seat that supports the outstretched legs. [French : chaise, chair + longue, long.]

chak·ra (chŭk'rə) n. One of the seven centers of spiritual energy in the human body according to yoga philosophy. [Sanskrit cakram, wheel, circle. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

cha·lah (KHä'lə) n. Variant of challah.

cha·la·za (kə-lā'zə, -lāz'ə) n. pl. cha·la·zæ (-zē) or cha·la·zas. 1. Biology. One of two spiral bands of tissue in an egg that connect the yolk to the lining membrane at either end of the shell. 2. Botany. The region of an ovule that is opposite the micropyle, where the integuments and nucellus are joined. [Greek khalaza, hard lump, hailstone.] — cha·la'zal adj.

cha·la·zi·on (kə-lā'zē-ən, -ōn') n. pl. cha·la·zi·a (-zē-ə). A cyst of a tarsal gland. [Greek khalazion, diminutive of khalaza, hard lump, hailstone.]

Chal·ce·don (kāl'sī-dŏn', käl-sēd'n) An ancient Greek city of northwest Asia Minor on the Bosphorus near present-day Istanbul. It was founded in 685 B.C. and passed to Rome in A.D. 74.

chal·ced·o·ny also cal·ced·o·ny (kāl-sēd'n-ē) n. pl. chal·ced·o·nies. A translucent to transparent milky or grayish quartz with distinctive microscopic crystals arranged in slender fibers in parallel bands. [Late Latin chalcēdonius, from Greek khalkēdōn, a mystical stone (Rev. 21:19), perhaps from Khalkēdōn, Chalcedon.] — chal'ce·don'ic (kāl'sī-dŏn'ik) adj.

chal·cid (kāl'sīd) n. Any of various minute wasps of the superfamily Chalcidoidea, many of whose larvae parasitize the larvae of other insects. [From New Latin Chalcis, type genus, from Greek khalkos, copper (from the wasp's metallic color).]

Chal·cid·i·ce (käl-sīd'ī-sē) also Khal·ki·dhi·kí (käl-kē'thē-kē', KHäl-) A mountainous peninsula of northeast Greece projecting into the northern Aegean Sea with three fingerlike extensions. —Chal·cid'ī·an adj. & n.

Chal·cis (käl'sīs) also Khal·kís (käl-kēs', KHäl-) An ancient city of southeast Greece on the western coast of Euboea. It was a prosperous trading center after the eighth century B.C., establishing outposts in Italy, Syria, Sicily, and mainland Greece.

chal·co·cite (käl'kə-sīt') n. A dark gray mineral, essentially Cu_2S , that is an important ore of copper. [Alteration of obsolete chalcosine, from Greek khalkos, copper.]

chal·co·py·rite (käl'kə-pī'rīt') n. A yellow mineral, essentially CuFeS_2 , that is an important ore of copper. Also called copper pyrites [New Latin chalcopyrites : Greek khalkos, copper + PYRITES.]

Chal·de·a or Chal·dae·a (käl-dē'ə) An ancient region of southern Mesopotamia. Settled c. 1000 B.C., it reached the height of its power under Nebuchadnezzar II. The Chaldean empire was destroyed by Persians in 539 B.C.

Chal·de·an also Chal·dae·an (käl-dē'ən) or Chal·dee (käl'dē') adj. Of or relating to Chaldea or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A member of an ancient Semitic people who ruled in Babylonia. 2. See Aramaic. 3. A person versed in occult learning. —Chal·da'ic (-dā'ik) adj. & n.

chal·dron (chōl'drən) n. A unit of dry measure formerly used in England, equal to 4 quarters or about 32 bushels for grain and 36 bushels for coal. [Middle English, from Old French chauderon, augmentative of chaudiere, kettle, from Late Latin caldāria. See CALDRON.]

cha·let (shā-lā', shāl'ā) n. 1. a. A wooden dwelling with a sloping roof and widely overhanging eaves, common in Switzerland and other Alpine regions. b. A cottage or lodge built in this style. 2. The hut of a herder in the Swiss Alps. [French, from Swiss French, possibly diminutive of cala*, shelter.]

Cha·leur Bay (shə-lōōr' bā, -lūr') An inlet of the Gulf of St. Lawrence between eastern Quebec and northern New Brunswick, Canada. It is an important fishing ground.

Cha·lia·pin (shā-lyä'pīn), Feodor Ivanovich. 1873-1938. Russian-born French operatic basso who gained fame for his performance in Arrigo Boito's Mefistofele.

chal·ice (chäl'īs) n. 1. A cup or goblet. 2. A cup for the consecrated wine of the Eucharist. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin calix, calic-.]

chal·i·co·there (käl'ī-kə-thîr') n. Any of various extinct ungulate mammals of the Eocene to Pleistocene epochs, having distinctive three-clawed, three-toed feet. [New Latin Chalicotherium, genus name : Greek khalix, khalik-, pebble + Greek thērion, diminutive of thēr, beast; see ghwer- in Appendix.]

chalk (chôk) n. 1. A soft, compact calcite, CaCO_3 , with varying amounts of silica, quartz, feldspar, or other mineral impurities, generally gray-white or yellow-white and derived chiefly from fossil seashells. 2. a. A piece of chalk or chalklike substance in crayon form, used for marking on a blackboard or other surface. b. Games. A small cube of chalk used in rubbing the tip of a billiard or pool cue to increase its friction with the cue ball. 3. A mark made with chalk. 4. Chiefly British. A score or tally. — v. tr. chalked, chalk-ing, chalks. 1. To mark, draw, or write with chalk: chalked my name on the blackboard. 2. To rub or cover with chalk, as the tip of a billiard cue. 3. To make pale; whiten. 4. To treat (soil, for example) with chalk. — phrasal verb. chalk up. 1. To earn or score: chalk up points. 2. To credit or ascribe: Chalk that up to experience. [Middle English, from Old English cealk, from Latin calx, calc-, lime. See CALX.] — chalk'i-ness n. — chalk'y adj.

chalk-board (chôk'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A smooth, hard panel, usually green or black, for writing on with chalk; a blackboard.

chalk-stone (chôk'stôn') n. Pathology. See tophus (n., sense 1).

chalk talk (chôk tôk) n. A lecture, often informal, illustrated with diagrams chalked on a blackboard.

chal·lah also cha·lah or hal·lah (KHä'lə, hä'-) n. A loaf of yeast-leavened, white egg bread, usually braided, traditionally eaten by Jews on the Sabbath, holidays, and other ceremonial occasions. [Hebrew ḥallâ.] chal·lenge (chäl'ənj) n. 1. a. A call to engage in a contest, fight, or competition: a challenge to a duel. b. An act or statement of defiance; a call to confrontation: a challenge to the government's authority. 2. A demand for explanation or justification; a calling into question: a challenge to a theory. 3. A sentry's call to an unknown party for proper identification. 4. A test of one's abilities or resources in a demanding but stimulating undertaking: a career that offers a challenge. 5. A claim that a vote is invalid or that a voter is unqualified. 6. Law. A formal objection to the inclusion of a prospective juror in a jury. 7. Immunology. The induction or evaluation of an immune response in an organism by administration of a specific antigen to which it has been sensitized. — v. chal·lenged, chal·leng-ing, chal·leng-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To call to engage in a contest, fight, or competition: challenged me to a game of chess. b. To invite with defiance; dare: challenged him to contradict her. See Synonyms at defy. 2. To take exception to; call into question; dispute: a book that challenges established beliefs. 3. To order to halt and be identified, as by a sentry. 4. Law. To take formal objection to (a prospective juror). 5. To question the qualifications of (a voter) or validity of (a vote). 6. To have due claim to; call for: events that challenge our attention. 7. To summon to action, effort, or use; stimulate: a problem that challenges the imagination. 8. Immunology. To induce or evaluate an immune response in (an organism) by administering a specific antigen to which it has been sensitized. — v.

intr. 1. To make or give voice to a challenge. 2. To begin barking upon picking up the scent. Used of hunting dogs. [Middle English chalenge, from Old French, from Latin calumniā, trickery, false accusation; see CALUMNY. V., from Middle English challengen from Old French chalangier, from Latin calumniārī, from calumniā, calumny.] —chal'enge-a-ble adj.

chal·leng·er (chäl'ən-jər) n. 1. One that challenges: a challenger of established authority. 2. Sports. One who competes against the holder of a title or championship, as in boxing.

chal·leng·ing (chäl'ən-jīng) adj. 1. Calling for full use of one's abilities or resources in a difficult but stimulating effort: a challenging course of study; a challenging role for an inexperienced performer. 2. Absorbing; intriguing: a challenging idea.

chal·lis (shäl'ē) n. A soft, lightweight, usually printed fabric made of wool, cotton, or rayon. [Possibly from the surname Challis.]

Chal·mette (shäl-mēt') A village of extreme southeast Louisiana on the east bank of the Mississippi River just below New Orleans. It is a processing center. Population, 31,860.

cha·lone (kā'lōn', käl'ōn') n. Any of several polypeptides that are produced by a body tissue and that cause the reversible inhibition of mitosis in the cells of that tissue. [From Greek khalōn, present participle of khalan, to slacken.]

Châ·lons-sur-Marne (shä-lōn'sūr'märn', -sür-) A city of northeast France east of Paris. The Huns under Attila were defeated here in A.D. 451. Population, 51,137.

Cha·lon-sur-Saône (shä-lōn'sūr-sōn', -sür-) A city of east-central France north of Mâcon. It is an inland port and a manufacturing center. Population, 56,194.

cha·lyb·e·ate (kə-līb'ē-īt, -lē'bē-) adj. 1. Impregnated with or containing salts of iron. 2. Tasting like iron, as water from a mineral spring. — n. Water or medicine containing iron in solution. [New Latin chalybeātus, from Latin chalybs, steel, from Greek khalups, khalub-, possibly from Khalups sing. of Khalubes, Chalybes, people of Asia Minor famous for their steel.]

cham (kām) n. Archaic. A Tartar or Mogul khan. [French, from Turkish khān, lord, prince. See KHAN¹.]

Cha·mae·leon also Cha·me·leon (kə-mēl'yən, -mē'lē-ən) n. A constellation in the southern polar region near Apus and Mensa. [Latin chamaeleōn, chameleon. See CHAMELEON.]

cham·ae·phyte (kām'ə-fīt') n. A low-growing perennial plant whose dormant overwintering buds are borne at or just above the surface of the ground. [Greek khamai, on the ground; see dhghem- in Appendix + -PHYTE.]

cham·ber (chām'bər) n. 1. A room in a house, especially a bedroom. 2. A room where a person of authority, rank, or importance receives visitors.

3. chambers. A room in which a judge may consult privately with attorneys or hear cases not taken into court. 4. chambers. Chiefly British. A suite of rooms, especially one used by lawyers. 5. A hall for the meetings of a legislative or other assembly. 6. A legislative or judicial body. 7. A board or council. 8. A place where municipal or state funds are received and held; a treasury. 9. a. An enclosed space or compartment: the chamber of a pump; a compression chamber. b. An enclosed space in the body of an organism; a cavity: the four chambers of the heart. 10. a. A compartment in a firearm, as in the breech of a rifle or the cylinder of a revolver, that holds the cartridge in readiness for firing. b. An enclosed space in the bore of a gun that holds the charge. — v. tr.

cham·bered, cham·ber·ing, cham·bers. 1. To put in or as if in a chamber; enclose or confine. 2. To furnish with a chamber. [Middle English chaumbre, from Old French chambre, from Late Latin camera, chamber, from Latin, vault, from Greek kamara.]

cham·bered nautilus (chām'bərd nôt'l-əs) n. See nautilus (n., sense 1).

cham·ber·lain (chām'bər-lən) n. 1. a. An officer who manages the household of a sovereign or a noble; a chief steward. b. A high-ranking official in various royal courts. 2. An official who receives the rents and fees of a municipality; a treasurer. 3. Roman Catholic Church. An often honorary papal attendant. [Middle English chaumberlein, from Old French chamberlenc, from Frankish kamerling*: Late Latin camera, chamber; see CHAMBER + Germanic -linga-*, one connected with; see -LING¹.]

Cham·ber·lain (chām'bər-līn), (Arthur) Neville. 1869-1940. British politician and prime minister (1937-1940) who advocated a policy of appeasement toward the fascist regimes of Europe. He was forced to declare war on Germany after its invasion of Poland in 1939.

Cham·ber·lain (chām'bər-līn), Joseph. 1836-1914. British politician who served as the mayor of Birmingham (1873-1876), president of the Board of Trade (1880-1885), and colonial secretary (1895-1903).

Cham·ber·lain (chām'bər-līn), Sir (Joseph) Austen. 1863-1937. British politician who helped establish the Locarno Pact. He won the 1925 Nobel Peace Prize.

Cham·ber·lain (chām'bər-līn), Owen. Born 1920. American physicist. He shared a 1959 Nobel Prize for demonstrating the existence of the antiproton.

Cham·ber·lin (chām'bər-līn), Thomas Chrowder. 1843-1928. American geologist who with the astronomer Forest Ray Moulton (1872-1952) proposed (1906) the planetismal hypothesis for the formation of the planets in the solar system.

cham·ber·maid (chām'bər-mād') n. A maid who cleans and cares for bedrooms, as in a hotel.

- chamber music (chām'ber myōō'zīk) n. Music. Compositions traditionally intended for performance in a private room or small concert hall and written for an instrumental ensemble, such as a trio or quartet, with one player for each part.
- chamber of commerce (chām'ber ūv kōm'ərs) n. pl. chambers of commerce. Abbr. C. of C. An association of businesspersons and merchants for the promotion of commercial interests in the community.
- chamber pot (chām'ber pōt) n. A portable vessel used in a bedroom as a toilet.
- Cham·bers (chām'bərz), (Jay David) Whittaker. 1901-1961. American journalist and onetime member of the Communist Party who testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee (1948), where he implicated Alger Hiss.
- Cham·bers (chām'bərz), Robert. 1802-1871. Scottish publisher and writer known for his Vestiges of the Natural History of Creation (published anonymously in 1844), a controversial exposition of the theory of evolutionary development.
- Cham·bers·burg (chām'bərz-bûrg') A borough of southern Pennsylvania southwest of Harrisburg. It was burned by the Confederate cavalry in July 1864 after the townspeople refused to pay an indemnity of $100,000 in gold. Population, 16,647.
- Cham·bé·ry (shāN-bā-rē') A city of eastern France east-southeast of Lyons. It is a manufacturing center in a popular tourist area. Population, 53,427.
- Cham·bly (shām'blē, shāN-blē') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the Richelieu River east of Montreal. Its fort, built by the French in 1665, was captured by the British in 1760 and held briefly by the Americans during the Revolutionary War. Population, 12,190.
- Cham·bord (shāN-bōr') A village of north-central France northeast of Tours. It is noted for its magnificent Renaissance château built by Francis I.
- cham·bray (shām'brā') n. A fine, lightweight fabric woven with white threads across a colored warp. [Alteration of French cambrai, cambric, after Cambrai, a city of northern France.]
- cha·me·leon (kə-mēl'yən, -mē'lē-ən) n. 1. Any of various tropical Old World lizards of the family Chamaeleonidae, characterized by their ability to change color. 2. See anole. 3. A changeable or inconstant person: "In his testimony, the nominee came off as... a chameleon of legal philosophy" (Joseph A. Califano, Jr.). [Middle English camelion, from Latin chamaeleōn, from Greek khamailēōn: khamai, on the ground; see dhghem- in Appendix + leōn, lion (loan translation of Akkadian nēš qaqqari, ground lion, lizard); see LION.] —cha·me'le-on'ic (-lē-ōn'ik) adj.

WORD HISTORY: The words referring to the animal chameleon and the plant chamomile are related etymologically by a reference to the place one would expect to find them, that is, on the ground. The first part of both words goes back to the Greek form khamai, meaning “on the ground.” What is found on the ground in each case is quite different, of course. The khamailleōn is a “lion [leōn] on the ground,” a term translating the Akkadian phrase nēš qaqqari. The khamaimēlon is “an apple [mēlon] on the ground,” so named because the blossoms of at least one variety of this creeping herb have an applelike scent. Both words are first found in Middle English, chameleon in a work composed before 1382 and chamomile in a work written in 1373.

Cha·me·leon (kə-mēl'yən, -mē'lē-ən) n. Variant of Chamaeleon.

cham·fer (chäm'fər) v. tr. cham·fered, cham·fer·ing, cham·fers. 1. To cut off the edge or corner of; bevel. 2. To cut a groove in; flute. — n. 1. A flat surface made by cutting off the edge or corner of a block of wood or other material. 2. A furrow or groove, as in a column. [Probably back-formation from chamfering, from French chanfrein, bevelled edge, from past participle of Old French chanfreindre, to bevel : chant, edge (from Latin canthus, iron tire); see CANT¹ + fraindre, to break (from Latin frangere); see bhreg- in Appendix.]

cham·fron (chäm'frən) n. Armor used to protect the front of a war horse's head in medieval times. [Middle English shamfron, from Old French chanfrein : Latin cāmus, horse-muzzle, heavy necklace (from Greek kēmos) + Latin frēnum, bridle, bit; see FRENUM.]

cha·mi·se (chə-mēz') also cha·mi·so (-mē'sō) n. pl. cha·mi·ses also cha·mi·sos. An evergreen shrub, (Adenostoma fasciculatum) in the rose family, native to California, having small needlelike leaves in fascicles and clusters of small white flowers. [Spanish chamisa, from Galician chamiça, dry brush, firewood, from chama, flame, from Latin flamma. See FLAME.]

Cha·mi·zal (shäm'ī-zäl', chäm'ī-säl') An area on the northern bank of the Rio Grande near El Paso, Texas. It became part of the United States after the river shifted course in the 19th century and was returned to Mexico in 1963.

cham·ois (shäm'ē) n. pl. cham·ois (shäm'ēz). 1. An extremely agile goat antelope (Rupicapra rupicapra) of mountainous regions of Europe, having upright horns with backward-hooked tips. 2. Also cham·my or sham·my (shäm'ē). pl. cham·mies. a. A soft leather made from the hide of this animal or other animals such as deer or sheep. b. A piece of such leather, or a cotton fabric made to resemble it, used as a polishing cloth or in shirts. 3. Color. A moderate to grayish yellow. [French, from Old French, from Late Latin camōx.]

cham·o·mile or cam·o·mile (käm'ə-mīl', -mēl') n. a. An aromatic perennial herb (Chamaemelum nobile) in the composite family, native to Europe and the Mediterranean region, having feathery foliage and flower heads with white rays and yellow centers. b. A similar, related Eurasian annual plant (Matricaria recutita). c. The dried flower heads of either one of these plants, used to make an herbal tea and yielding an oil used in commercial flavorings and perfumery. [Middle English camomille, from Old French, from Late Latin chamomilla, alteration of Latin chamaemēlon, from Greek khamaimēlon : khamai, on the ground; see dhghem- in Appendix + mēlon, apple.]

Cha·mo·nix (shām'ə-nē', shā-mô-) A valley of eastern France at the foot of Mont Blanc. It is a major winter sports resort and was the site of the 1924 Winter Olympics.

champ¹ (chämp) v. champed, champ·ing, champs. — v. tr. To bite or chew upon noisily. See Synonyms at bite. — v. intr. To work the jaws and teeth vigorously. — idiom. champ at the bit. To show impatience at being held back or delayed. [Probably imitative.]

champ² (chämp) n. Informal. A champion.

cham·pagne (shām-pān') n. 1. a. A sparkling white wine produced in Champagne. b. A similar sparkling wine made elsewhere. 2. Color. A pale orange yellow to grayish yellow or yellowish gray. [French, short for (vin de) Champagne, (wine from) Champagne, from Late Latin campānia, flat open country. See CAMPAIGN.]

Cham·pagne (shām-pān', shāN-pān'yə) A historical region and former province of northeast France. It was incorporated into the French royal domain in 1314. The sparkling wine champagne was first produced here c. 1700.

cham·paign (shām-pān') n. A stretch of level and open country; a plain. [Middle English champain, from Old French champainge, from Late Latin campānia. See CAMPAIGN.] — cham·paign' adj.

Cham·paign (shām-pān') A city of east-central Illinois adjoining Urbana. It was founded in 1855 with the coming of the railroad. Population, 63,502.

cham·pak also cham·pac (chäm'pāk, chüm'pük) or cham·pa·ca (chäm'pə-kə, chüm'-) n. An evergreen timber tree (Michelia champaca) native to India and having fragrant orange-yellow flowers that yield an oil used in perfumery. [Hindi campak, from Sanskrit campakah.]

cham·per·ty (chäm'pər-tē) n. pl. cham·per·ties. Law. A sharing in the proceeds of a lawsuit by an outside party who has promoted the litigation. [Middle English champartie, from Old French champart, the lord's share of the tenant's crop, from Medieval Latin campars, campīpars : Latin campī, genitive of campus, field + Latin pars, part; see PART.] — cham'per·tous (-təs) adj.

cham·pi·gnon (shām-pīn'yən) n. An edible mushroom, especially the much cultivated species Agaricus bisporus. [French, alteration of Old French champigneul, probably from Vulgar Latin *(fungus) campiniolus, (fungus) growing in the fields, from Late Latin campānia, countryside. See CAMPAIGN.]

Cham·pi·gny-sur-Marne (shāN-pē-nyē'sūr-mār'n', -sūr-) A city of northern France, a suburb of Paris. Population, 76,176.

cham·pi·on (chäm'pē-ən) n. 1. One that wins first place or first prize in a competition. 2. One that is clearly superior or has the attributes of a winner: a champion at teaching. 3. An ardent defender or supporter of a cause or another person: a champion of the homeless. 4. One who fights; a warrior. — v. tr.

cham·pi·oned, cham·pi·on·ing, cham·pi·ons. 1. To fight for, defend, or support as a champion: championed the cause of civil rights. See Synonyms at support. 2. Obsolete. To defy or challenge. — adj. 1. Holding first place or prize: a champion show dog. 2. Superior to all others: “the champion playboy of the Western World” (John Millington Synge). [Middle English champioun, combatant, athlete, from Old French champion, from Medieval Latin campiō, campiōn-, from Latin campus, field.]

Cham·pi·on (chämp'yən), Gower. 1921-1980. American dancer who choreographed and directed many musicals, including Hello Dolly! (1964).

cham·pi·on·ship (chäm'pē-ən-shīp') n. 1. The position or title of a winner. 2. Defense or support; advocacy: her championship of the elderly and their rights. 3. A competition or series of competitions held to determine a winner.

Cham·plain (shäm-plän'), Lake. A lake of northeast New York, northwest Vermont, and southern Quebec, Canada. It was the site of important battles in the French and Indian War, the American Revolution, and the War of 1812. The region has many popular resorts.

Cham·plain (shäm-plän', shän-plän'), Samuel de. 1567?-1635. French explorer who founded Port Royal, now Annapolis Royal, in Nova Scotia (1605) and established a settlement (1608) on the site of present-day Quebec.

champ·le·vé (shän-lə-vā') n. A technique of decorating metal in which areas that have been hollowed out, as by incising, are filled with colored enamel and fired. [French : champ, field (from Old French, from Latin campus) + levé, raised; see LEVEE².] — champ·le·vé' adj.

Cham·pol·lion (shän-pô-lyôn'), Jean François. 1790-1832. French Egyptologist. Working from the Rosetta stone, he became the first person to decipher Egyptian hieroglyphics (1821).

Champs É·ly·sées (shän zā-lē-zā') A tree-lined thoroughfare of Paris, France, leading from the Place de la Concorde to the Arc de Triomphe.

chan. abbr. Channel.

chance (chäns) n. 1. a. The unknown and unpredictable element in happenings that seems to have no assignable cause. b. A force assumed to cause events that cannot be foreseen or controlled; luck: Chance will determine the outcome. 2. Often chances. The likelihood of something happening; possibility or probability: Chances are good that you will win. Is there any chance of rain? 3. An accidental or unpredictable event. 4. A favorable set of circumstances; an opportunity: a chance to escape. 5. A risk or hazard; a gamble: took a chance that the ice would hold me. 6. Games. A raffle or lottery ticket. 7. Baseball. An opportunity to make a putout or an assist that counts as an error if unsuccessful. — adj. Caused by or ascribable to chance; unexpected, random, or casual: a chance encounter; a chance result. — v. chanced, chanc-ing, chanc-es. — v. intr. To come about by chance; occur: It chanced that the train was late that day. — v. tr. To take the risk or hazard of: not willing to chance it. — phrasal verb.

chance on (or chance upon). To find or meet accidentally; happen upon: While in Paris we chanced on two old friends. — idioms. by chance. 1. Without plan; accidentally: They met by chance on a plane. 2. Possibly; perchance: Is he, by chance, her brother? on the off chance. In the slight hope or possibility. [Middle English, unexpected event, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin cadentia*, from Latin cadēns, cadent- present participle of cadere, to fall, befall. See kad- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: chance, random, casual, haphazard, desultory. These adjectives apply to what is determined not by deliberation or method but by accident. Chance stresses lack of premeditation: a chance meeting with a friend. Random implies the absence of a specific pattern or objective and suggests a lack of direction that might or could profitably be imposed: struck by a random shot; took a random guess. Casual stresses lack of deliberation and often suggests an absence of due concern: made a casual observation. Haphazard implies a carelessness or a willful leaving to chance: offered a haphazard plan of action. Desultory suggests a shifting about from one thing to another that reflects a lack of method: engaged in a desultory conversation. See also Synonyms at happen opportunity chance-ful (chāns/'fəl) adj. 1. Eventful: spent two chanceful months in England during the war. 2. Archaic. Casual.

chan-cel (chǎn/'səl) n. The space around the altar of a church for the clergy and sometimes the choir, often enclosed by a lattice or railing. [Middle English chauncel, from Old French chancel, from Late Latin cancellus, latticework, sing. of Latin cancelli. See CANCEL.]

chan-cel-ler-y or chan-cel-lor-y (chǎn/'sə-lə-rē, -slə-rē) n. pl.

chan-cel-ler-ies. 1. The rank or position of a chancellor. 2. a. The office or department of a chancellor. b. The building in which such an office or department is located. 3. The official place of business of an embassy or consulate. [Middle English chancelrie, from Old French chancelerie, from chancelier, chancellor. See CHANCELLOR.]

chan-cel-lor (chǎn/'sə-lər, -slər) n. Abbr. C. 1. Any of various officials of high rank, especially: a. A secretary to a monarch or noble. b. Chiefly British. The chief secretary of an embassy. c. The chief minister of state in some European countries. 2. a. The president of certain American universities. b. Chiefly British. The honorary or titular head of a university. 3. Law. The presiding judge of a court of chancery or equity in some states of the United States. [Middle English chaunceler, from Old French chancelier, from Late Latin cancellārius, doorkeeper, from Latin cancellī, bars, latticework. See CANCEL.] —chan'cel-lor-ship' n.

Chan-cel-lor of the Exchequer (chăn'sə-lər ÷v thē ebreve/ks'chĕk'ər, -slər) n. The senior finance minister in the British government and a member of the prime minister's cabinet.

Chan-cel-lors-ville (chăn'sə-lərz-vīl', -slərz-) A former town of northeast Virginia west of Fredericksburg. It was the site of a major Civil War battle (May 2-4, 1863) in which the Confederates under Robert E. Lee defeated the Union forces commanded by Joseph Hooker. Stonewall Jackson was mortally wounded in the battle.

chan-cel-lor-y (chăn'sə-lə-rē, -slə-rē) n. Variant of chancellery.

chance-med-ley (chăns'mĕd'lē) n. A random, haphazard action or occurrence. [Middle English chaunce medley, manslaughter, from Norman French chance medlee, mixed accident : Old French chance, accident; see CHANCE + Old French medlee, mixed; see MEDLEY.]

chan-cer-y (chăn'sə-rē) n. pl. chan-cer-ies. 1. Law. a. A court of chancery.

b. The proceedings and practice of a court of chancery; equity. c. A court of public record; an office of archives. d. One of the five divisions of the High Court of Justice of Great Britain, presided over by the Lord High Chancellor.

2. The office or department of a chancellor; a chancellery. [Middle English chan-terie, alteration of chancelrie. See CHANCELLERY.]

Chan Chan (chăn' chăn') A ruined pre-Incan city of northern Peru, probably built after A.D. 800. It may once have had a population of 200,000.

Chan-chiang (jăn'jyäng') See Zhanjiang.

chan-cre (shăng'kər) n. 1. A dull red, hard, insensitive lesion that is the first manifestation of syphilis. 2. An ulcer located at the initial point of entry of a pathogen. [French, from Old French, from Latin cancer, tumor, crab. See kar- in Appendix.] —chan'crous (-krəs) adj.

chan-croid (shăng'kroid') n. A soft, highly infectious, nonsyphilitic venereal ulcer of the genital region, caused by the bacillus Hemophilus ducreyi. Also called soft chancre [French chancroïde, from chancre, chancre. See CHANCRE.]

—chan'croid'al (-kroid'l) adj.

chanc-y (chăn'sē) adj. chanc-i-er, chanc-i-est. 1. Uncertain as to outcome; risky; hazardous. 2. Random; haphazard. 3. Scots. Lucky; propitious.

—chanc'i-ness n.

chan-de-lier (shăn'də-līr') n. A branched, decorative lighting fixture that holds a number of bulbs or candles and is suspended from a ceiling. [Middle English chandeler, from Old French chandelier, from Vulgar Latin candēlārium*, alteration of Latin candēlābrum, candelabrum. See CANDELABRUM.]

chan-delle (shǎn-děi/) n. A sudden, steep climbing turn of an aircraft, executed to alter flight direction and gain altitude simultaneously. [French, from chandelle, candle, from Old French, from Latin candēla. See CANDLE.]

Chan-di-garh (chŭn'dē-gər, chŭn'dī-gŭr/) A city of northern India north of Delhi. It was laid out by a European team of architects led by Le Corbusier. Population, 373,789.

chan-dler (chǎnd'lər) n. 1. One that makes or sells candles. 2. A retail dealer in specified goods or equipment: a ship chandler. [Middle English chaundeler, from Old French chandelier, from Vulgar Latin candēlārius*, from Latin candēla. See CANDLE.] —chan'dler-y (chǎnd'lə-rē) n.

Chan-dler (chǎnd'lər) A city of south-central Arizona southeast of Phoenix. It is a residential community and winter resort. Population, 90,533.

Chan-dler (chǎnd'lər), Charles Frederick. 1836-1925. American chemist and public-health pioneer known for his contributions to industrial chemistry.

Chan-dler (chǎnd'lər), Raymond Thornton. 1888-1959. American novelist noted for creating the character Philip Marlowe, a tough and cynical detective. His works include The Big Sleep (1939) and Farewell, My Lovely (1940).

Chan-dra-gup-ta (chŭn'drə-gōp'tə), Died c. 297 B.C. King of northern India (322?-298) and founder of a dynasty of Hindu kings of India that ruled until c. 185 B.C.

Chan-dra-se-khar (shǎn'drə-sā'kār, chŭn'drə-shā'kər), Subrahmanyam. 1910-1995. Indian-born American astrophysicist. He shared a 1983 Nobel Prize for research on the evolution of stars.

Cha-nel (shə-něi/), Gabrielle Bonheur. Known as “Coco.” 1883-1971. French fashion designer famous for her tailored suits and dresses and for her line of perfumes, particularly Chanel No. 5.

Cha-ney (chā'nē), Lon. 1883-1930. American actor known for his performances as monsters in horror movies, particularly The Hunchback of Notre Dame (1923) and The Phantom of the Opera (1925).

Chang-chow (chǎng'jō/) See Changzhou.

Chang-chun (chǎng'chōon/) Formerly Hsin-king (shĭn'kĭng/, -gĭng/). A city of northeast China south-southwest of Harbin. It was the capital of the Japanese puppet state of Manchukuo from 1932 until 1945. Changchun is the capital of Jilin province. Population, 1,480,000.

change (chānj) v. changed, chang-ing, chang-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause to be different: change the spelling of a word. b. To give a completely different form or appearance to; transform: changed the yard into a garden. 2. To give and receive reciprocally; interchange: change places. 3. To exchange for or replace with another, usually of the same kind or category: change one's name; a light that changes colors. 4. a. To lay aside, abandon, or leave for another; switch: change methods; change sides. b. To transfer from (one conveyance) to another: change planes. 5. To give or receive the equivalent of (money) in lower denominations or in foreign currency. 6. To put a fresh covering on: change a bed; change the baby. — v. intr. 1. To become different or undergo alteration: He changed as he matured. 2. To undergo transformation or transition: The music changed to a slow waltz. 3. To go from one phase to another, as the moon or the seasons.

4. To make an exchange: If you prefer this seat, I'll change with you. 5. To transfer from one conveyance to another: She changed in Chicago on her way to the coast.

6. To put on other clothing: We changed for dinner. 7. To become deeper in tone: His voice began to change at age 13. — n. 1. The act, process, or result of altering or modifying: a change in facial expression. 2. The replacing of one thing for another; substitution: a change of atmosphere; a change of ownership. 3. A transformation or transition from one state, condition, or phase to another: the change of seasons. 4. Something different; variety: ate early for a change. 5. A different or fresh set of clothing. 6. Abbr. chg. a. Money of smaller denomination given or received in exchange for money of higher denomination. b. The balance of money returned when an amount given is more than what is due.

c. Coins: had change jingling in his pocket. 7. Music. A pattern or order in which bells are rung. 8. A market or exchange where business is transacted.

—phrasal verb. change off. 1. To alternate with another person in performing a task. 2. To perform two tasks at once by alternating or a single task by alternate means. —idioms. change hands. To pass from one owner to another.

change (one's) mind. To reverse a previously held opinion or an earlier decision. change (one's) tune. To alter one's approach or attitude. [Middle English changen, from Norman French chaunger, from Latin cambiāre, cambīre, to exchange, probably of Celtic origin.]

change·a·ble (chānj'jə-bəl) adj. 1. Liable to change; capricious: changeable weather. 2. Being such that alteration is possible: changeable behavior.

3. Varying in color or appearance when seen from different angles: changeable silk. —change'a·bil'i·ty, change'a·ble·ness n. —change'a·bly adv.

change·ful (chānj'fəl) adj. Having the tendency or ability to change; variable. —change'ful·ly adv. —change'ful·ness n.

change·less (chānj'līs) adj. Unchanging; constant.

change·ling (chānj'lɪŋ) n. 1. A child secretly exchanged for another. 2. Archaic. A changeable, fickle person. 3. Archaic. A person of deficient intelligence.

change of heart (chānj ũv härt) n. pl. changes of heart. A reversal of one's opinion, attitude, or feelings.

change of life (chānj ũv lif) n. Menopause.

change·o·ver (chānj'ō'vər) n. A conversion to a different purpose or from one system to another, as in equipment or production techniques.

chang-er (chānj'ər) n. 1. One that changes something: an inveterate changer of decor. 2. A record changer.

change ring-ing (chānj rīng'ing) n. Music. The ringing of a set of chimes or bells with every possible unrepeated variation.

change-up (chānj'üp') n. Baseball. A pitch intended to look like a fastball, which actually approaches the plate at a slow speed, thereby causing the batter to swing prematurely. [Alteration of change-of-pace.]

Chang Jiang (chäng' jyäng') See Yangtze River.

Chang-sha (chäng'shä') A city of southern China on the Xiang Jiang west-southwest of Shanghai. It was founded in the early third century B.C. and was long noted as a literary center. Changsha is the capital of Hunan province. Population, 1,123,900.

Chang-zhou also Chang-chow (chäng'jō') A city of eastern China on the Grand Canal west-northwest of Shanghai. It is an industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 425,000.

Chan-kiang (chän'kyäng', jän'jyäng') See Zhanjiang.

chan-nel¹ (chän'əl) n. Abbr. chan. 1. The bed of a stream or river. 2. The deeper part of a river or harbor, especially a deep navigable passage. 3. A broad strait, especially one that connects two seas. 4. A trench, furrow, or groove. 5. A tubular passage for liquids; a conduit. 6. A course or passage through which something may move or be directed: new channels of thought; a reliable channel of information. 7. Often channels. A route of communication or access: took her request through official channels. 8. Electronics. A specified frequency band for the transmission and reception of electromagnetic signals, as for television signals. 9. The medium through which a spirit guide purportedly communicates with the physical world. 10. A rolled metal bar with a bracket-shaped section. — v. tr. chan-neled also chan-nelled, chan-nel-ing also chan-nel-ing, chan-nels also chan-nels. 1. To make or cut channels in. 2. To form a groove or flute in. 3. To direct or guide along some desired course: channels her curiosity into research. 4. To serve as a medium for (a spirit guide). [Middle English chanel, from Old French, from Latin canālis. See CANAL.] — chan'nel-er n.

chan-nel² (chän'əl) n. Nautical. A wood or steel ledge projecting from a sailing ship's sides to spread the shrouds and keep them clear of the gunwales. [Alteration of obsolete chainwale : CHAIN + WALE.] channel bass (chän'əl bäs) n. See red drum.

channel black (chän'əl bläk) n. A type of carbon black formed by exposing an iron plate to a natural gas flame and collecting the deposited soot. [From CHANNEL¹.]

channel catfish (chän'əl kät'fish') n. A freshwater food fish (Ictalurus punctatus) common to the central United States. Also called channel cat chan·nel·ing (chǎn'ə-lǐng) n. Purported communication by a disembodied entity through a living person, as by voice during a trance.

Chan·nel Islands (chǎn'əl ī'ləndz) A group of British islands in the English Channel off the coast of Normandy, France. Settled by Norse mariners, the islands became part of the duchy of Normandy in the tenth century and passed to England with the Norman Conquest of 1066.

chan·nel·ize (chǎn'ə-līz') v. tr. chan·nel·ized, chan·nel·iz·ing, chan·nel·iz·es. 1. To make, form, or cut channels in. 2. To direct through a channel. —chan'nel·i·za'tion (chǎn'ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

Chan·nel·view (chǎn'əl-vyōō') A community of southeast Texas, a suburb of Houston. Population, 25,564.

Chan·ning (chǎn'ɪŋg), Edward. 1856-1931. American historian whose major work was A History of the United States (six volumes, 1905-1925). The last volume, covering the Civil War, won a Pulitzer Prize (1926).

Chan·ning (chǎn'ɪŋg), William Ellery. 1780-1842. American religious leader whose writings and sermons led to the emergence of Unitarianism.

cha·no·yu (chǎ'nō-yōō') n. The Japanese tea ceremony, an ancient ritual for the preparation, serving, and drinking of tea. [Japanese : cha, tea + no, possessive particle + yu, hot water.]

chan·son (shǎn-sôn') n. pl. chan·sons (-sôn', -sônz'). Music. A song, especially a French cabaret song. [French, from Old French, from Latin cantiō, cantion-, from cantus, past participle of cantāre, to sing. See CHANT.]

chanson de geste (shǎn-sôn' də zhĕst') n. pl. chansons de geste. Any of more than 80 Old French epic poems of the 11th to the 14th centuries celebrating the deeds of historical or legendary figures, especially the exploits of Charlemagne and his successors. [French : chanson, song + de, of + geste, heroic exploit.]

chant (chǎnt) n. 1. Music. a. A short, simple melody in which a number of syllables or words are sung on or intoned to the same note. b. A canticle or prayer sung or intoned in this manner. c. A song or melody. 2. A monotonous rhythmic call or shout, as of a slogan: the chant of the crowd at the rally. — v.

chant·ed, chant·ing, chants. — v. tr. 1. Music. To sing or intone to a chant: chant a prayer. 2. Music. To celebrate in song: chanting a hero's deeds. 3. To say in the manner of a chant: chanted defiant slogans. — v. intr. 1. Music. To sing, especially in the manner of a chant: chanted while a friend jumped rope. 2. To speak monotonously. [Probably from French, song, from Old French, from Latin cantus, from past participle of canere, to sing. V., from Middle English chaunten, to sing from Old French chanter, from Latin cantāre, frequentative of canere. See kan- in Appendix.] —chant'ing·ly adv.

chant·er (chǎn'tər) n. 1. Music. A person, such as a chorister, who chants.

2. Music. The pipe of a bagpipe on which the melody is played. 3. A priest who sings in a chantry.

chan·te·relle (shǎn'tə-rĕl', shǎn'-) n. An edible mushroom (Cantharellus cibarius) that is yellow to orange in color, trumpet-shaped, and sometimes fragrant. [French, from New Latin cantharella, feminine diminutive of Latin cantharus, cup (from its shape), from Greek kantharos.]

chan·teuse (shǎn-tœz') n. Music. A woman singer, especially a nightclub singer. [French, feminine of chanteur, singer, from chanter, to sing. See CHANT.]

chan·tey also chan·ty (shǎn'tē, chǎn'-) or shan·tey or shan·ty (shǎn'tē) n. pl. chan·teys also chan·ties. Music. A song sung by sailors to the rhythm of their movements while working. [Probably from French chantez, imperative pl. of chanter, to sing, from Old French. See CHANT.]

chan·ti·cleer (chǎn'tī-klĭr', shǎn'-) n. A rooster. [Middle English chauntecler, from Old French chantecler, the name of the rooster in the tale of Reynard the Fox : chanter, to sing; see CHANT + cler, clear; see CLEAR.]

Chan·til·ly (shǎn-tĭl'ē, shǎn-tē-yē') A village of northern France north of Paris. It was long noted for its fine porcelain and delicate lace. Population, 10,065.

chan·try (chǎn'trē) n. pl. chan·tries. Ecclesiastical. 1. An endowment to cover expenses for the saying of masses and prayers, usually for the soul of the founder of the endowment. 2. An altar or chapel endowed for the saying of such masses and prayers. [Middle English chanterie, from Old French, from chanter, to sing. See CHANT.]

chan·ty (shǎn'tē, chǎn'-) n. Music. Variant of chantey.

Cha·nu·kah (KHǎ'nə-kə, hǎ'-) n. Variant of Hanukkah.

Cha·nute (shə-nōt'), Octave. 1832-1910. French-born American engineer and aviation pioneer. His experiments and designs were acknowledged by the Wright brothers.

Chao K'uang-yin (jou' kwāng'yĭn') See Zhao Kuangyin.

Chao Phra·ya (chou prä-yä') A river of Thailand formed by the Nan and Ping rivers and flowing about 225 km (140 mi) southward past Bangkok to the Gulf of Thailand.

cha·os (kā'ös') n. 1. A condition or place of great disorder or confusion. 2. A disorderly mass; a jumble: The desk was a chaos of papers and unopened letters. 3. Often Chaos. The disordered state of unformed matter and infinite space supposed in some cosmogonic views to have existed before the ordered universe.

4. Physics. The aperiodic, unpredictable behavior arising in a system extremely sensitive to variations in initial conditions and exhibited by phenomena such as turbulent flow, long-range weather patterns, and cardiac arrhythmias.

5. Obsolete. An abyss; a chasm. [Middle English, formless primordial space, from Latin, from Greek khaos.] —cha·ot'ic (-öt'ik) adj. —cha·ot'i·cal·ly adv.

Chao Tzu-yang (jou' dzōō-yäng') See Zhao Ziyang.

chap¹ (chăp) v. chapped, chap-ping, chaps. — v. tr. To cause (the skin) to roughen, redden, or crack, especially as a result of cold or exposure: The head-wind chapped the cyclist's lips. — v. intr. To split or become rough and sore: skin that chaps easily in winter. — n. A sore roughening or splitting of the skin, caused especially by cold or exposure. [Middle English chappen.]

chap² (chăp) n. Informal. A man or boy; a fellow. [Short for CHAPMAN.]

chap. abbr. Chapter.

Cha-pa-la (chə-pä'lə) A lake of west-central Mexico southeast of Guadalajara. It is the largest lake in the country and a popular resort area.

chap-ar-ral (shăp'ə-räl') n. 1. Ecology. A biome characterized by hot, dry summers and cool, moist winters and dominated by a dense growth of mostly small-leaved evergreen shrubs, as that found in the foothills of California. 2. A dense thicket of shrubs and small trees. [Spanish, from chaparro, evergreen oak, from Basque txapar, diminutive of saphar, thicket.]

chaparral bird (shăp'ə-räl' būrd) n. See roadrunner.

chaparral cock (shăp'ə-räl' kōk) n. See roadrunner.

cha-pa-ti also cha-pat-ti (chə-pä'tē) n. A traditional flat, disk-shaped bread of northern India, made of wheat flour, water, and salt. [Hindi capātī.]

chap-book (chăp'boōk') n. A small book or pamphlet containing poems, ballads, stories, or religious tracts. [CHAP(MAN) + BOOK (so called because it was originally sold by chapmen).]

chape (chāp, chăp) n. A metal tip or mounting on a scabbard or sheath. [Middle English, from Old French, hood, head covering, from Late Latin cappa, hooded cloak.]

cha-peau (shă-pō') n. pl. cha-peaus or cha-peaux (-pōz'). A hat. [French, from Old French chapel, from Vulgar Latin cappellus, diminutive of Late Latin cappa, hooded cloak.]

chap-el (chăp'əl) n. 1. a. A place of worship that is smaller than and subordinate to a church. b. A place of worship in an institution, such as a prison, college, or hospital. c. A recess or room in a church set apart for special or small services. d. A place of worship for those not belonging to an established church. e. The services held at a chapel: Students attend chapel each morning. 2. Music. A choir or orchestra connected with a place of worship at a royal court. 3. a. A funeral home. b. A room in a funeral home used for conducting funeral services. [Middle English chapele, from Old French, from Medieval Latin capella, chapel, canopy, cape (perhaps from a shrine containing the cape of St. Martin of Tours), diminutive of capa, from Late Latin cappa, hooded cloak.]

Chap-el Hill (chăp'əl hīl) A town of north-central North Carolina at the edge of the Piedmont west-northwest of Raleigh. It is the seat of the University of North Carolina (chartered 1789). Population, 38,719.

chap·er·on or chap·er·one (shăp'ə-rōn') n. 1. A person, especially an older or married woman, who accompanies a young unmarried woman in public. 2. An older person who attends and supervises a social gathering for young people. 3. A guide or companion whose purpose is to ensure propriety or restrict activity: “to see and feel the rough edges of the society... without the filter of official chaperones” (Philip Taubman). — v. tr. chaper·oned, chaper·on·ing, chaper·ones. To act as chaperon to or for. See Synonyms at accompany. [French, from chaperon, hood, from Old French, diminutive of chape, cape, head covering. See CHAPE.] —chap'er-on'age (-rō'nĭj) n.

WORD HISTORY: The chaperon at a high-school dance seems to have little relationship to what was first signified by the English word chaperon, “a hood for a hawk,” and not even that much to what the word later meant, “a protectress of a young single woman.” The sense “hood for a hawk,” recorded in a Middle English text composed before 1400, reflects the original meaning of the Old French word chaperon, “hood, headgear.” In order to understand why our chaperon came to have the sense “protectress,” we need to know that in French the verb chaperonner, meaning “to cover with a hood,” was derived from chaperon and that this verb subsequently developed the figurative sense “to protect.” Under the influence of the verb sense the French noun chaperon came to mean “escort,” a meaning that was borrowed into English, being found first in a work published in 1720. In its earlier use English chaperon referred to a person, commonly an older woman, who accompanied a young unmarried woman in public to protect her. The English verb chaperon, “to be a chaperon,” is first recorded in Jane Austen’s Sense and Sensibility, begun in 1796 as a sketch called “Elinor and Marianne” and published as a novel in 1811.

chap·fall·en (chăp'fô'lən) also chop·fall·en (chöp'f-) adj. Being in low spirits; dejected and disheartened. [From obsolete chaps, alteration of CHOPS.]

chap·i·ter (chăp'ĭ-tər) n. Architecture. The capital of a column. [Middle English chapitre, chapter, chapter. See CHAPTER.]

chap·lain (chăp'lĭn) n. Abbr. Ch., ch. 1. A member of the clergy attached to a chapel. 2. a. A member of the clergy who conducts religious services for an institution, such as a prison or hospital. b. A member of the clergy who is connected with a royal court or an aristocratic household. 3. A member of the clergy attached to a branch of the armed forces. [Middle English chapelein, from Old French chapelain, from Medieval Latin capellānus, from capella, chapel. See CHAPEL.] —chap'lain·cy, chap'lain·ship' n.

chap·let (chăp'lĭt) n. 1. A wreath or garland for the head. 2. Roman Catholic Church. a. A rosary having beads for five decades of Hail Marys. b. The prayers counted on such a rosary. 3. A string of beads. 4. Architecture. A small molding carved to resemble a string of beads. [Middle English chapelet, from Old French, diminutive of chapel, hat, wreath. See CHAPEAU.] —chap/let-ed adj.

Chap·lin (chăp'lin), Sir Charles Spencer. Known as “Charlie.” 1889-1977.

British-born actor, director, and producer who gained fame for his role as a tramp in baggy trousers and a bowler hat. His productions include The Kid (1921), The Gold Rush (1925), and City Lights (1931).

chap·man (chăp'mən) n. 1. Chiefly British. A peddler. 2. Archaic. A dealer or merchant. [Middle English, from Old English cēapman : cēap, trade; see CHEAP + man, mann, man; see MAN.]

Chap·man (chăp'mən), Frank Michler. 1864-1945. American ornithologist who was curator of ornithology (1908-1942) at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City and compiled a number of bird studies, including A Color Key to North American Birds (1903).

Chap·man (chăp'mən), George. 1559?-1634. English writer, dramatist, and translator noted for his translations of Homer's Iliad (1598-1611) and Odyssey (1616).

Chap·man (chăp'mən), John. Known as “Johnny Appleseed.” 1775?-1845. American pioneer and subject of many legends. He traveled widely in the Ohio River valley, planting apple seeds and pruning apple trees.

Chap·man (chăp'mən), John Jay. 1862-1933. American writer best known for his essays. His works include Emerson and Other Essays (1898) and New Horizons in American Life (1932).

chaps (chăps, shăps) pl.n. Heavy leather trousers without a seat, worn over ordinary trousers by ranch hands to protect their legs. [Short for American Spanish chaparreras, from Spanish chaparro, chaparral. See CHAPARRAL.]

Chap Stick (chăp stĭk) A trademark used for a medicinal preparation for the prevention or treatment of chapped lips.

chap·ter (chăp'tər) n. Abbr. chap., ch., c., C. 1. One of the main divisions of a relatively lengthy piece of writing, such as a book, that is usually numbered or titled. 2. A distinct period or sequence of events, as in history or a person's life: Steamboat travel opened a new chapter in America's exploration of the West. 3. A local branch of an organization, such as a club or fraternity: The Chicago chapter is admitting new members this year. 4. Ecclesiastical. a. An assembly of the canons of a church or of the members of a religious residence. b. The canons of a church or the members of a religious residence considered as a group. 5. A short Scriptural passage read after the psalms in certain church services. [Middle English chaptre, variant of chapitre, chapter, chapiter, from Old French, alteration of chapitle, from Latin capitulum, diminutive of caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.]

chapter and verse (chăp'tər ənd vûrs) n. 1. Full, detailed information on a subject or an issue: recited the client's complaints by chapter and verse. 2. Bible. A specific passage.

chapter house (chăp'tər hous) n. 1. A building in which the chapter of a church or religious residence assembles. 2. A house in which a chapter of a fraternity or sorority lives and holds its meetings.

Cha-pul-te-pec (chə-pōol'tə-pĕk') A rocky hill south of Mexico City, Mexico. It was the site of a major American victory (September 12-13, 1847) during the Mexican War.

char¹ (chär) v. charred, char-ring, chars. — v. tr. 1. To burn the surface of; scorch. 2. To reduce to carbon or charcoal by incomplete combustion. — v. intr. 1. To become scorched. 2. To become reduced to carbon or charcoal. See Synonyms at burn¹. — n. A substance that has been scorched, burned, or reduced to charcoal. [Back-formation from CHARCOAL.]

char² also charr (chär) n. pl. char or chars also charr or charrs. Any of several fishes of the genus Salvelinus, especially the arctic char, related to the trout and salmon. [Origin unknown.]

char³ (chär) Chiefly British. n. A charwoman. — v. intr. charred, char-ring, chars. To work as a charwoman. [Middle English, a piece of work, from Old English cierr, a turning.]

char. abbr. Charter.

char-a-banc (shär'ə-băng') n. Chiefly British. A large bus, typically used for sightseeing. [From French char à bancs: char, coach, carriage (from Old French, cart); see CHARIOT + à, with (from Latin ad, toward); see AD- + bancs, benches, pl. of banc (from Old French); see BANK³.]

char-a-cin (kär'ə-sĭn) also char-a-cid (-sĭd) n. See tetra. [From New Latin Characinidae, former family name, from Greek kharax, kharak-, a kind of fish.]

char-ac-ter (kär'ək-tər) n. 1. The combination of qualities or features that distinguishes one person, group, or thing from another. See Synonyms at disposition. 2. A distinguishing feature or attribute, as of an individual, a group, or a category. See Synonyms at quality. See Synonyms at type. 3. Genetics. A structure, function, or attribute determined by a gene or group of genes. 4. Moral or ethical strength. 5. A description of a person's attributes, traits, or abilities. 6. A formal written statement as to competency and dependability, given by an employer to a former employee; a recommendation. 7. Public estimation of someone; reputation: personal attacks that damaged her character. 8. Status or role; capacity: in his character as the father. 9. a. A notable or well-known person; a personage. b. A person, especially one who is peculiar or eccentric: a shady character; catcalls from some character in the back row. 10. a. A person portrayed in an artistic piece, such as a drama or novel. b. Characterization in fiction or drama: a script that is weak in plot but strong in character. 11. A mark or symbol used in a writing system. 12. Computer Science. a. One of a set of symbols, such as letters or numbers, that are arranged to express information.

b. The multibit code representing such a character. 13. A style of printing or writing. 14. A symbol used in secret writing; a cipher or code. — adj. 1. Of or relating to one's character. 2. a. Specializing in the interpretation of often minor roles that emphasize fixed personality traits or specific physical characteristics: a character actor. b. Of or relating to the interpretation of such roles by an actor: the character part of the hero's devoted mother. 3. Dedicated to the portrayal of a person with regard to distinguishing psychological or physical features: a character sketch. 4. Law. Of or relating to a person who gives testimony as to the moral and ethical reputation or behavior of one engaged in a lawsuit: a character witness. — v. tr. charac-tered, charac-ter-ing, charac-ters. Archaic. 1. To write, print, engrave, or inscribe. 2. To portray or describe. — idioms. in char- acter. Consistent with someone's general character or behavior: behavior that was totally in character. out of character. Inconsistent with someone's general character or behavior: a response so much out of character that it amazed me.

[Middle English carecter, distinctive mark, imprint on the soul, from Old French caractere, from Latin charactēr, from Greek kharaktēr, from kharassein, to inscribe, from kharax, pointed stick.] — char'ac-ter-less adj.

character assassination (kär'ək-tər ə-sās'ə-nā'shən) n. A vicious personal verbal attack, especially one intended to destroy or damage a public figure's reputation. — character assassin n.

char-ac-ter-ful (kär'ək-tər-fəl) adj. Having or displaying remarkable, memorable character: "It was easy to forget what a sensitive and characterful performance he could deliver" (Charles Champlin).

char-ac-ter-is-tic (kär'ək-tə-rīs'tik) adj. Being a feature that helps to distinguish a person or thing; distinctive: heard my friend's characteristic laugh; the stripes that are characteristic of the zebra. — n. 1. A feature that helps to identify, tell apart, or describe recognizably; a distinguishing mark or trait.

2. Mathematics. The integral part of a logarithm as distinguished from the mantissa: The characteristic of the logarithm 6.3214 is 6. — char'ac-ter-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

char-ac-ter-i-za-tion (kär'ək-tər-ī-zā'shən) n. 1. The act or an instance of characterizing. 2. A description of qualities or peculiarities: a list of places of interest, with brief characterizations of each. 3. Representation of a character or characters on the stage or in writing, especially by imitating or describing actions, gestures, or speeches.

char-ac-ter-ize (kär'ək-tə-rīz') v. tr. character-ized, character-iz-ing, character-iz-es. 1. To describe the qualities or peculiarities of: characterized the warden as ruthless. 2. To be a distinctive trait or mark of; distinguish: the rash characterized the warden as ruthless. 2. To be a distinctive trait or mark of; distinguish: the rash and high fever that characterize this disease; a region that is characterized by its dikes and canals. —char'ac-ter-iz'er n.

char-ac-ter-y (kär'ək-tə-rē, kə-räk'-) n. pl. character-ies. A system of characters or symbols used to express or convey thought and meaning.

cha-rade (shə-rād') n. 1. Games. a. charades. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) A game in which words or phrases are represented in pantomime, sometimes syllable by syllable, until they are guessed by the other players. b. An episode in this game or a word or phrase so represented. 2. A readily perceived pretense; a travesty: went through the charade of a public apology. [French, probably from Provençal charrado, chat, from charra, to chat, chatter, perhaps from Italian ciar-lare.]

char-broil (chär'broil') v. tr. char-broiled, char-broil-ing, char-broils. To broil over charcoal: charbroil a steak. [CHAR¹ + BROIL¹.]

char-coal (chär'kōl') n. 1. A black, porous, carbonaceous material, 85 to 98 percent carbon, produced by the destructive distillation of wood and used as a fuel, filter, and absorbent. 2. a. A drawing pencil or crayon made from this material. b. A drawing executed with such a pencil or crayon. 3. Color. A dark grayish brown to black or dark purplish gray. — v. tr. char-coaled, char-coal-ing, char-coals. 1. To draw, write, or blacken with a black, carbonaceous material. 2. To charbroil. [Middle English charcol: char (perhaps from Old French charbon, from Latin carbō); see CARBON + col, charcoal, coal; see COAL.]

Char-cot (shär-kō'), Jean Baptiste Étienne Auguste. 1867-1936. French explorer who led two missions to the Antarctic (1903-1905 and 1908-1910). He died when the Pourquoi Pas? sank off Iceland.

Char-cot (shär-kō'), Jean Martin. 1825-1893. French neurologist known for his research into diseases of the nervous system. Sigmund Freud was one of his pupils.

char-cu-ter-ie (shär-kōō'tə-rē', -kōō'tə-rē) n. 1. Sausages, ham, pâtés, and other cooked or processed meat foods. 2. A delicatessen specializing in such foods. [French, from chaircuicterie: chair, meat (from Latin carō, flesh); see CAR-NAGE + cuict, cuit, cooked (from Latin coctus, past participle of coquere); see COOK.]

chard (chärd) n. Swiss chard. [Alteration (possibly influenced by French chardon, thistle), of French carde, from Provençal cardon, cardoon. See CARDOON.]

char-don-nay also Char-don-nay (shär'dn-ā', shär'dn-ā') n. A dry white table wine, originally from Burgundy, France.

Char-dzhou (chär-jō', chīr-) A city of east-central Turkmenistan on the Amu Darya southwest of Tashkent. It is an inland port and a manufacturing center. Population, 157,000.

Cha-rente (shə-rānt', shā-rānt') A river of France rising in the foothills of the Massif Central and flowing about 354 km (220 mi) westward to the Bay of Biscay.

charge (chārij) v. charged, charging, charges. — v. tr. 1. To impose a duty, responsibility, or obligation on: charged him with the task of watching the young swimmers. 2. To set or ask (a given amount) as a price: charges ten dollars for a haircut. 3. To hold financially liable; demand payment from: charged her for the balance due. 4. To postpone payment on (a purchase) by recording as a debt: paid cash for the stockings but charged the new coat. 5. a. To load to capacity; fill: charge a furnace with coal. b. To saturate; impregnate: The atmosphere was charged with tension. 6. To load (a gun or other firearm) with a quantity of explosive: charged the musket with powder. 7. To instruct or urge authoritatively; command: charged her not to reveal the source of information. 8. Law. To instruct (a jury) about the law, its application, and the weighing of evidence. 9. To make a claim of wrongdoing against; accuse or blame: The police charged him with car theft. Critics charged the writer with a lack of originality. 10. To put the blame for; attribute or impute: charged the accident to the driver's inexperience. 11. To attack violently: The troops charged the enemy line. 12. Electricity. a. To cause formation of a net electric charge on or in (a conductor, for example). b. To energize (a storage battery) by passing current through it in the direction opposite to discharge. 13. To excite; rouse: a speaker who knows how to charge up a crowd.

14. To direct or put (a weapon) into position for use; level. 15. Heraldry. To place a bearing on. — v. intr. 1. To rush forward in or as if in a violent attack: dogs trained to charge at intruders; children charging through the house. 2. To demand or ask payment: did not charge for the second cup of coffee. 3. To postpone payment for a purchase. 4. Accounting. To consider or record as a loss. Often used with off. — n. 1. Abbr. chg. a. Expense; cost. b. The price asked for something: no charge for window-shopping. 2. a. A weight or burden; a load: a freighter relieved of its charge of cargo. b. The quantity that a container or apparatus can hold. 3. A quantity of explosive to be set off at one time. 4. An assigned duty or task; a responsibility: The commission's charge was to determine the facts. 5. One that is entrusted to another's care or management: the baby sitter's three young charges. 6. a. Supervision; management: the scientist who had overall charge of the research project. b. Care; custody: a child put in my charge. 7. An order, a command, or an injunction. 8. Law. Instruction given by a judge to a jury about the law, its application, and the weighing of evidence. 9. A claim of wrongdoing; an accusation: a charge of murder; pleaded not guilty to the charges. 10. a. A rushing, forceful attack: repelled the charge of enemy troops; the charge of a herd of elephants. b. The command to attack: The bugler sounded the charge. 11. Abbr. chg. A debt or an entry in an account recording a debt: Are you paying cash or is this a charge? 12. Abbr. chg. A financial burden, such as a tax or lien. 13. Symbol q Physics. a. The intrinsic property of matter responsible for all electric phenomena, in particular for the force of the electromagnetic interaction, occurring in two forms arbitrarily designated negative and positive.

b. A measure of this property. c. The net measure of this property possessed by a body or contained in a bounded region of space. 14. Informal. A feeling of pleasant excitement; a thrill: got a real charge out of the movie. 15. Heraldry. A bearing or figure. —idioms. in charge. 1. In a position of leadership or supervision: the security agent in charge at the airport. 2. Chiefly British. Under arrest. in charge of. Having control over or responsibility for: You're in charge of making the salad. [Middle English chargen, to load, from Old French chargier, from Late Latin carricāre, from Latin carrus, cart, of Celtic origin. See kers- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: charge, freight, imbue, impregnate, permeate, pervade, saturate, suffuse. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cause to be filled with a particular mood or tone”: an atmosphere charged with excitement; a pause freighted with meaning; poetry imbued with grace; a spirit impregnated with lofty ideals; optimism that permeates a group; letters pervaded with gloom; a novel saturated with imagination; a heart suffused with love. See also Synonyms at care price charge-a-ble (chär'jə-bəl) adj. 1. Suitable to be charged, as to an account: chargeable expenses. 2. Liable to be accused or indicted. —charge'a-ble-ness n.

charge account (chärj ə-kount') n. A credit arrangement in which a customer receives purchased goods or services before paying for them.

charge card (chärj kărd) n. See credit card.

charge conjugation (chärj kŏn'jə-gă'shən) n. Symbol C Physics. 1. A mathematical operator that changes the sign of the charge and of the magnetic moment of every particle in the system to which it is applied. 2. The theoretical conversion of matter to antimatter or of antimatter to matter.

charge-coupled device (chärj'küp'əld dī-vīs') n. A device made up of semiconductors arranged in such a way that the electric charge output of one semiconductor charges an adjacent one.

char-gé d'affaires (shär-zhā' də-fâr', də-) n. pl. char-gés d'affaires (-zhā', -zhāz'). 1. A diplomat who temporarily substitutes for an absent ambassador or minister. 2. A diplomat of the lowest rank, accredited by one government to the minister of foreign affairs of another. [French : chargé, charged, in charge + de, with, of + affaires, affairs.]

charge density (chärj dĕn'sī-tē) n. The electric charge per unit area or per unit volume of a body or of a region of space.

charged particle (chärjd pār'tī-kəl) n. An elementary particle, such as a proton or an electron, with a positive or negative electric charge.

charg·er¹ (chär'jər) n. 1. One that charges, such as an instrument that charges or replenishes storage batteries. 2. A horse trained for battle; a cavalry horse.

charg·er² (chär'jər) n. A large shallow dish; a platter. [Middle English chargeour, from Old French chargeor, from chargier, to load. See CHARGE.]

Cha·ri (shä'rē, shä-rē') See Shari.

Char·ing Cross (chär'ing krôs) A district of London, England, where Edward I erected (c. 1290) the last of a series of crosses in memory of his wife, Eleanor of Castile.

char·i·ot (chär'ē-ət) n. 1. An ancient horse-drawn two-wheeled vehicle used in war, races, and processions. 2. A light four-wheeled carriage used for occasions of ceremony or for pleasure. — v. tr. intr. chari·ot·ed, chari·ot·ing, chari·ots. To convey or ride in a chariot. [Middle English, vehicle, from Old French, from char, cart, from Latin carrus, of Celtic origin. See kers- in Appendix.]

char·i·o·teer (chär'ē-ə-tîr') n. The driver of a chariot.

Char·i·o·teer (chär'ē-ə-tîr') n. See Auriga.

char·ism (kär'iz'əm) n. Theology. Charisma.

cha·ris·ma (kə-riz'mə) n. pl. cha·ris·ma·ta (-mə-tə). 1. a. A rare personal quality attributed to leaders who arouse fervent popular devotion and enthusiasm. b. Personal magnetism or charm: a television news program famed for the charisma of its anchors. 2. Theology. An extraordinary power, such as the ability to perform miracles, granted to a Christian by the Holy Spirit. [Greek kharisma, divine favor, from kharizesthai, to favor, from kharis, favor. See gher-² in Appendix.]

char·is·mat·ic (kär'iz-măt'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by charisma: "the warmth of a naturally charismatic leader" (Joyce Carol Oates).

2. Theology. Of, relating to, or being a type of Christianity that emphasizes personal religious experience and divinely inspired powers, as of healing, prophecy, and the gift of tongues. — n. Theology. A member of a Christian charismatic group or movement.

char·i·ta·ble (chär'i-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Generous in giving money or other help to the needy. 2. Mild or tolerant in judging others; lenient. 3. Of, for, or concerned with charity: a charitable organization. See Synonyms at benevolent.

—char'i·ta·ble·ness n. —char'i·ta·bly adv.

Char·i·ton (shär'i-tn) A river rising in southern Iowa and flowing about 451 km (280 mi) east then south to the Missouri River in northern Missouri.

char·i·ty (chär'i-tē) n. pl. chari·ties. 1. Provision of help or relief to the poor; almsgiving. 2. Something given to help the needy; alms. 3. An institution, an organization, or a fund established to help the needy. 4. Benevolence or generosity toward others or toward humanity. 5. Indulgence or forbearance in judging others. See Synonyms at mercy. 6. Often Charity. Theology. The virtue defined as love directed first toward God but also toward oneself and one's neighbors as objects of God's love. [Middle English charite, from Old French, Christian love, from Latin cāritās, affection, from cārus, dear. See kā- in Appendix.]

cha·ri·va·ri (shĭv'ə-rē', shĭv'ə-rē') n. pl. cha·ri·va·ris. See shivaree. See Regional note at shivaree. [French, from Old French, perhaps from Late Latin carībaria, headache, from Greek karēbaria : karē, head; see ker-¹ in Appendix + barus, heavy; see g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

char·kha also char·ka (chûr'kə, chār'-) n. A spinning wheel used in India for spinning cotton. [Hindustani carikhā, from Persian charkha, diminutive of charkh, wheel, from Old Persian carka-*. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

char·la·tan (shār'lə-tən) n. A person who makes elaborate, fraudulent, and often voluble claims to skill or knowledge; a quack or fraud. See Synonyms at impostor. [French, from Italian ciarlatano, probably alteration (influenced by ciarlare, to prattle), of cerretano, inhabitant of Cerreto, a city of Italy once famous for its quacks.] —char'la-tan'ic (-tän'ĭk), char'la-tan'i-cal adj.
—char'la-tan-ism, char'la-tan-ry n.

WORD HISTORY: A charlatan and chatter are inseparable, even perhaps in the etymology of charlatan. According to one explanation, charlatan goes back through French to Italian ciarlatano, “mountebank, fraud,” from the word ciarlare, “to chatter.” Another explanation would derive charlatan from the Italian word cerretano, “an inhabitant of Cerreto, a quack,” the village of Cerreto being noted for its charlatans. It seems, however, that both ciarlare and cerretano have been involved in the formation of the Italian word. The first example of the English word and of its earliest recorded sense, “huckster, especially of medicines, who gives his pitch to a crowd; mountebank,” is found in 1618. The sense familiar to us, “a person pretending to skill or knowledge,” is first recorded in 1809.

Char·le·magne (shār'lə-mān'), Also called Charles I or “Charles the Great.” 742?-814. King of the Franks (768-814) and founder of the first empire in western Europe after the fall of Rome. His court at Aix-la-Chapelle became the center of a cultural rebirth in Europe, known as the Carolingian Renaissance.

Char·le·roi (shār'lə-roi', shār-lə-rwä') A city of southern Belgium south of Brussels. It was founded in 1666 and is now a commercial center and rail junction. Population, 216,144.

Charles (chārlz), Prince of Wales. Born 1948. The eldest son of Elizabeth II and heir to the British throne. He was invested as Prince of Wales in 1969.

Charles I¹ (chārlz), 1600-1649. King of England, Scotland, and Ireland (1625-1649). His power struggles with Parliament resulted in the English Civil War (1642-1648) in which Charles was defeated. He was tried for treason and beheaded in 1649.

Charles I² (chärlz), 1887-1922. Emperor of Austria (1916-1918) and king of Hungary as Charles IV (1916-1918). Deposed after World War I, he twice failed to regain the Hungarian throne (1921).

Charles I³ (chärlz) See Charlemagne.

Charles II (chärlz), 1630-1685. King of England, Scotland, and Ireland (1660-1685) who reigned during the Restoration, a period of expanding trade and colonization as well as strong opposition to Catholicism.

Charles V (chärlz), 1500-1558. Holy Roman emperor (1519-1558) and king of Spain as Charles I (1516-1556). He summoned the Diet of Worms (1521) and the Council of Trent (1545-1563).

Charles VII (chärlz), 1403-1461. King of France (1422-1461). He ended the Hundred Years' War (1453) by driving the English from most of France.

Charles IX (chärlz), 1550-1574. King of France (1560-1574). His mother, Catherine de Médicis, controlled most of his decisions and persuaded him to order the massacre of French Protestants on Saint Bartholomew's Day in 1572.

Charles X (chärlz), 1757-1836. King of France (1824-1830) who attempted to restore absolutism by dissolving the Chamber of Deputies and terminating freedom of the press. He abdicated as a result of the July Revolution of 1830 and later fled to England.

Charles XIV (chärlz), Originally Jean Baptiste Jules Bernadotte. 1763-1844. King of Sweden and Norway (1818-1844). He served under Napoleon Bonaparte in the Italian campaign (1796-1797) and was elected crown prince in 1810, founding the present Swedish royal dynasty.

Charles (chärlz), Jacques Alexandre César. 1746-1823. French physicist and inventor who formulated Charles's law (1787) and was the first to use hydrogen in balloons (1783).

Charles (chärlz), Ray. Born 1930. American musician and composer whose songs, such as "I Can't Stop Loving You," are rooted in gospel music, blues, and jazz.

Charles-bourg (chärlz'bûrg', shärl-boör') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, near Quebec City. It was settled in 1659. Population, 68,326.

Charles Ed-ward Stu-art (chärlz ëd'wärd stō'ärt, styō'-'-) See Charles Edward Stuart.

Charles Lou-is (chärlz lō'ē), 1771-1847. Austrian archduke and military leader who modernized the Austrian army, creating a formidable force that contributed to the downfall of Napoleon I.

Charles Mar-tel (chärlz mär-tël'), Known as "the Hammer." 688?-741. Frankish ruler of Austrasia (715-741) who in 732 halted the European invasion of the Moors. His grandson was Charlemagne.

Charles River (chärlz rīv'ər) A river, about 97 km (60 mi) long, of eastern Massachusetts flowing into Boston harbor and separating Boston from Cambridge.

Charles's law (chärl'ziz lô) n. The physical law that the volume of a fixed mass of gas held at a constant pressure varies directly with the absolute temperature. [After Jacques Alexandre C CHARLESÉSAR.]

Charles's Wain (chärl'ziz wān) n. See Big Dipper. [Middle English charles-wen, Charles' (Charlemagne's) wain, probably reinterpreted from Old English carles wægn, churl's wain : carl, churl (from Old Norse karl) + wægn, wain; see WAIN.]

Charles-ton¹ (chärl'stən) 1. A city of eastern Illinois east-southeast of Decatur. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 20,398. 2. A city of southeast South Carolina northeast of Savannah. Charleston has been a major commercial and cultural center since colonial times. Population, 80,414. 3. The capital and largest city of West Virginia, in the west-central part of the state. The city grew around the site of Fort Lee in the late 1780's. Population, 57,287.

Charles-ton² (chärl'stən) n. A fast ballroom dance in 4/4 time, popular during the 1920's. [After Charleston¹, South Carolina.]

Charleston Peak (chärl'stən pēk) A mountain, 3,635.3 m (11,919 ft) high, of southeast Nevada in the Spring Mountains west of Las Vegas.

Charles-town (chärlz'toun') A former city of eastern Massachusetts, the oldest part of present-day Boston. It was settled c. 1629. The Battle of Bunker Hill was fought here at Breed's Hill on June 17, 1775.

Char-le-ville-Mé-zières (shärl-vēl'mā-zyēr') A city of northeast France on the Meuse River east-northeast of Paris. Mézières was founded in the ninth century and Charleville in 1606. The cities merged in 1966. Population, 58,667.

char-ley horse (chär'lē hōrs) n. Informal. A cramp or stiffness in a muscle, especially of the upper leg, caused by injury or excessive exertion. [Originally baseball slang, of unknown origin.]

char-lock (chär'lək, -lök') n. An annual weed (Sinapis arvensis) in the mustard family, native to Eurasia and naturalized in North America, having racemes of yellow flowers and hairy stems and foliage. [Middle English cherlok, from Old English cerlic.]

char-lotte (shär'lət) n. A dessert consisting of a mold of sponge cake or bread with a filling, as of fruits, whipped cream, or custard. [French, from the personal name Charlotte.]

Char-lotte¹ (shär'lət), 1896-1985. Grand duchess of Luxembourg. Ascending to the throne in 1919, she took her government into exile during the Nazi occupation of Luxembourg and supported her people through regular radio broadcasts. She returned triumphantly in 1945 and ruled until 1984.

Char·lotte² (shär'lät) A city of southern North Carolina near the South Carolina border south-southwest of Winston-Salem. Settled c. 1750 and named for the wife of King George III of England, it is the largest city in the state. Population, 395,934.

Charlotte A·ma·lie (shär'lät ə-mäl'yə) The capital of the U.S. Virgin Islands, on St. Thomas Island in the West Indies east of Puerto Rico. It was called St. Thomas from 1921 to 1937. Population, 11,842.

charlotte russe (shär'lät rōōs') n. A cold dessert of Bavarian cream set in a mold lined with ladyfingers. [French : charlotte, charlotte + russe, Russian.]

Char·lottes·ville (shär'läts-vil') An independent city of central Virginia northwest of Richmond. It is the seat of the University of Virginia (founded 1819). Thomas Jefferson's estate, Monticello, is nearby. Population, 40,341.

Char·lotte·town (shär'lät-toun') The capital and largest city of Prince Edward Island, Canada, on the southern coast of the island. It was founded by the French c. 1720. Population, 15,282.

charm (chärm) n. 1. The power or quality of pleasing or delighting; attractiveness: a breezy tropical setting of great charm. 2. A particular quality that attracts; a delightful characteristic: A mischievous grin was among the child's many charms. 3. A small ornament, such as one worn on a bracelet. 4. An item worn for its supposed magical benefit, as in warding off evil; an amulet. 5. An action or formula thought to have magical power. 6. The chanting of a magic word or verse; incantation. 7. Abbr. C Physics. A quantum property of the charm quark whose conservation explains the absence of certain strange-particle decay modes and that accounts for the longevity of the J particle. — v. charmed, charm·ing, charms. — v. tr. 1. To attract or delight greatly: the simple elegance of the meal charmed the guests. 2. To induce by using strong personal attractiveness: charmed the guard into admitting them without invitations. 3. To cast or seem to cast a spell on; bewitch. — v. intr. 1. To be alluring or pleasing. 2. To function as an amulet or charm. 3. To use magic spells. [Middle English charme, magic spell, from Old French, from Latin carmen, incantation. See kan- in Appendix.] — charm'ing·ly adv. — charm'less adj.

SYNONYMS: charm, beguile, bewitch, captivate, enchant, entrance, fascinate. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to attract strongly or irresistibly”: grace and manners that charmed the old curmudgeon; delicacies that beguile even the most discerning gourmet; a performance that bewitched the audience; a novel that captivates its readers; an evening that enchanted all the guests; music that entrances its listeners; a celebrity who fascinated his fellow guests.

ANTONYM: repel charmed life (chärmd līf) n. A life that seems to have been protected by a charm or spell.

charmed particle (chärmd pär'tī-kəl) n. Physics. A particle with nonzero total charm.

charm·er (chär'mər) n. 1. One that charms, especially a disarmingly attractive person. 2. One who casts spells; an enchanter or a magician.

char·meuse (shär-mōōz', -mōōs', -mœz') n. A satin-finished silk fabric. [French, trade name, from charmeuse, charmer, seductress, from charmer, to charm, from charme, charm. See CHARM.]

char·mo·ni·um (chär-mō'nē-əm) n. Any of various elementary particles consisting of a charm quark and an antiquark. [From CHARM.]

charm quark (chärm kwôrk) n. Abbr. c A quark with a charge of + $\frac{2}{3}$, a mass about 2,900 times that of the electron, and a charm of +1.

char·nel (chär'nəl) n. A repository for the bones or bodies of the dead; a charnel house. — adj. Resembling, suggesting, or suitable for receiving the dead. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin carnāle, from neuter of Latin carnālis, of the flesh, from carō, carn-, flesh. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

charnel house (chär'nəl hous) n. 1. A building, room, or vault in which the bones or bodies of the dead are placed; a charnel. 2. A scene or place of great physical suffering and loss of life: The bombing turned the barracks into a charnel house.

Char·on (kâr'ən) n. Greek Mythology. 1. The ferryman who conveyed the dead to Hades over the river Styx. 2. The only satellite of Pluto.

char·qui (chär'kē) n. See jerky². [American Spanish, from Quechua ch'arki.]

charr (chär) n. Variant of char².

chart (chärt) n. 1. A map showing coastlines, water depths, or other information of use to navigators. 2. An outline map on which specific information, such as scientific data, can be plotted. 3. A sheet presenting information in the form of graphs or tables. 4. See graph¹ (n., sense 2). 5. Often charts. A listing of best-selling recorded music or other items. Often used with the. — v. tr.

chart·ed, chart·ing, charts. 1. To make a chart of. 2. To plan (something) in detail: is charting a course to destruction. [Obsolete French charte, from Latin charta, sheet of paper made from papyrus. See CARD¹.]

char·ter (chär'tər) n. Abbr. char. 1. A document issued by a sovereign, legislature, or other authority, creating a public or private corporation, such as a city, college, or bank, and defining its privileges and purposes. 2. A written grant from the sovereign power of a country conferring certain rights and privileges on a person, a corporation, or the people: A royal charter exempted the Massachusetts colony from direct interference by the Crown. 3. A document outlining the principles, functions, and organization of a corporate body; a constitution: the city charter. 4. An authorization from a central organization to establish a local branch or chapter. 5. Special privilege or immunity. 6. a. A contract for the commercial leasing of a vessel or space on a vessel. b. The hiring or leasing of an aircraft, a vessel, or other vehicle, especially for the exclusive, temporary use of a group of travelers. 7. A written instrument given as evidence of agreement, transfer, or contract; a deed. — v. tr. char·tered, char·ter·ing, char·ters.

1. To grant a charter to; establish by charter. 2. To hire or lease by charter: char·ter an oil tanker. 3. To hire (a bus or an airplane, for example) for the exclusive, temporary use of a group of travelers. [Middle English chartre, from Old French, from Latin chartula, diminutive of charta, paper made from papyrus. See CARD¹.] —char·ter·er n.

char·tered accountant (chär'tərd ə-koun'tənt) n. Abbr. C.A., c.a. Chiefly British. A member of one of the institutes of accountants granted a royal charter.

char·ter·house (chär'tər-hous') n. A Carthusian monastery. [By folk etymology from Anglo-Norman chartrouse, from Old French chartreus. See CHAR·TREUSE.]

charter member (chär'tər mēm'bər) n. An original member or a founder of an organization.

Chart·ism (chär'tiz'əm) n. The principles and practices of a party of political reformers, chiefly workingmen, active in England from 1838 to 1848. [From Medieval Latin charta, charter (referring to the "People's Charter" of 1837), from Latin, paper, document. See CARD¹.] —Char'tist adj. & n.

chart·ist (chär'tist) n. A stock-market specialist who uses charts and graphs to interpret market action, predict trends, or forecast price movements of individual stocks.

Char·tres (shärt, shär'trə) A city of northern France southwest of Paris. Its 13th-century cathedral is a masterpiece of Gothic architecture noted for its stained glass and asymmetrical spires. Population, 37,119.

char·treuse (shär-trōöz', -trōos', -trœz') n. Color. A strong to brilliant greenish yellow to moderate or strong yellow green. [From CHARTREUSE.] —char·treuse' adj.

Char·treuse (shär-trōöz', -trōos', -trœz') A trademark used for a usually yellow or green liqueur.

char·tu·lar·y (kär'chə-lēr'ē) n. Variant of cartulary.

char·wom·an (chär'wōm'ən) n. A woman hired to do cleaning or similar work, usually in a large building.

char·y (châr'ē) adj. char·i·er, char·i·est. 1. Very cautious; wary: was chary of the risks involved. 2. Not giving or expending freely; sparing: was chary of compliments. [Middle English chari, careful, sorrowful, from Old English cearig, sorrowful, from cearu, sorrow. See CARE.] —char'i·ly adv. —char'i·ness n.

Cha·ryb·dis (kə-rīb'dīs) n. Greek Mythology. A whirlpool off the Sicilian coast, personified as a ship-devouring sea monster and located opposite the cave of Scylla.

chase¹ (chās) v. chased, chas-ing, chas-es. — v. tr. 1. To follow rapidly in order to catch or overtake; pursue: chased the thief. 2. To follow (game) in order to capture or kill; hunt: chase foxes. 3. Informal. To seek the favor or company of persistently: still chasing members of the opposite sex. 4. To put to flight; drive: chased the dog away. — v. intr. 1. To go or follow in pursuit. 2. Informal. To go hurriedly; rush: chased all over looking for us. — n. 1. The act of chasing; pursuit. 2. a. The hunting of game: the thrill of the chase. b. Something that is hunted or pursued; quarry. 3. Chiefly British. a. A privately owned, unenclosed game preserve. b. The right to hunt or keep game on the land of others.

—idiom. give chase. To engage in pursuit of quarry: Police gave chase to the speeding car. [Middle English chasen, to hunt, from Old French chacier, from Vulgar Latin captiāre*, from Latin captāre, to catch. See CATCH.]

chase² (chās) n. Printing. A rectangular steel or iron frame into which pages or columns of type are locked for printing or plate making. [Perhaps from French châsse, case, reliquary, from Old French chasse, from Latin capsa.]

chase³ (chās) n. 1. a. A groove cut in an object; a slot: the chase for the quarrel on a crossbow. b. A trench or channel for drainpipes or wiring. 2. The part of a gun in front of the trunnions. 3. The cavity of a mold. — v. tr. chased, chas-ing, chas-es. 1. To groove; indent. 2. To cut (the thread of a screw). 3. To decorate (metal) by engraving or embossing. [Possibly from obsolete French chas, groove, enclosure, from Old French, from Latin capsa, box. V., variant of ENCHASE.]

Chase (chās), Mary Ellen. 1887-1973. American writer and educator known for her novels about the seacoast of Maine, including Silas Crockett (1935).

Chase (chās), Salmon Portland. 1808-1873. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1864-1873). He presided over the trial of President Andrew Johnson (1868).

Chase (chās), Samuel. 1741-1811. American jurist and Revolutionary War leader who was a delegate to the Continental Congresses, signed the Declaration of Independence, and served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1796-1811).

Chase (chās), Stuart. 1888-1985. American economist whose work concerns the problems of a wealthy, technologically oriented society.

chas·er¹ (chā'sər) n. 1. One that chases or pursues another: a chaser of criminals. 2. Informal. A drink, as of beer or water, taken after hard liquor.

chas·er² (chā'sər) n. 1. One who decorates metal by engraving or embossing. 2. A steel tool for cutting or finishing screw threads.

chasm (kăz'əm) n. 1. A deep, steep-sided opening in the earth's surface; an abyss or a gorge. 2. A sudden interruption of continuity; a gap. 3. A pronounced difference of opinion, interests, or loyalty. [Latin chasma, from Greek khasma.]

—chas'mal (kăz'məl) adj.

chas·mog·a·mous (kăz-mög'ə-məs) adj. Of or relating to a flower that opens to allow for pollination. [Greek khasma, an opening + -GAMOUS.]

chas·sé (shă-să') n. A ballet movement consisting of one or more quick, gliding steps with the same foot always leading. — v. intr. chas·séd, chas·sé·ing, chas·sés. To perform this movement. [French, from past participle of chasser, to chase, from Old French chacier. See CHASE¹.]

chasse·pot (shăs'pō') n. A breechloading rifle introduced into the French army in 1866. [French, after Antoine Alphonse Chassepot (1833-1905), French gunsmith.]

chas·seur (shă-sûr') n. 1. Any of certain light cavalry or infantry troops trained for rapid maneuvers. 2. A hunter. 3. A uniformed footman. [French, from Old French chaceor, from chacier, to pursue. See CHASE¹.]

Chas·sid (KHă'sīd, KHô'-, hä'-) n. Variant of Hasid. —Chas·si'dic adj.
—Chas·si'dism n.

chas·sis (shăs'ē, chăs'ē) n. pl. chas·sis (-ēz). 1. The rectangular steel frame, supported on springs and attached to the axles, that holds the body and motor of an automotive vehicle. 2. The landing gear of an aircraft, including the wheels, skids, floats, and other structures that support the aircraft on land or water. 3. The frame on which a gun carriage moves forward and backward. 4. The framework to which the components of a radio, television, or other electronic equipment are attached. [French châssis, frame, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin capsīcium*, from Latin capsa, box.]

chaste (chăst) adj. chast·er, chast·est. 1. Morally pure in thought or conduct; decent and modest. 2. a. Not having experienced sexual intercourse; virginal. b. Abstaining from unlawful sexual intercourse. c. Abstaining from sexual intercourse; celibate. 3. Pure or simple in design or style; austere. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin castus. See kes- in Appendix.] —chaste'ly adv.

—chaste'ness n.

chas·ten (chă'sən) *v. tr. chas·tened, chas·ten·ing, chas·tens. 1. To correct by punishment or reproof; take to task. 2. To restrain; subdue: chasten a proud spirit. 3. To rid of excess; refine or purify: chasten a careless writing style. [Alteration of obsolete chaste, from Middle English chasten, chastien, from Old French chastiier, from Latin castigāre. See CASTIGATE.] —chas'ten·er *n.

chaste tree (chăst trē) n. Any of several shrubs or trees of the genus Vitex, especially two cultivated Old World species (V. agnus-castus and V. negundo), having aromatic, palmately compound leaves and clusters of usually lilac flowers.

chas·tise (chäs-tīz', chäs'tīz') v. tr. chas-tised, chas-tis-ing, chas-tis-es.

1. To punish, as by beating. See Synonyms at punish. 2. To criticize severely; rebuke. 3. Archaic. To purify. [Middle English chastisen, alteration of chasten, chastien. See CHASTEN.] —chas-tis'a-ble adj. —chas-tise'ment (chäs-tīz'mənt, chäs'tīz-mənt) n. —chas-tis'er n.

chas-ti-ty (chäs'tī-tē) n. 1. The condition or quality of being pure or chaste.

2. a. Virginity. b. Virtuous character. c. Celibacy. [Middle English chastite, from Old French chastete, from Latin castitās, from castus, pure. See CHASTE.]

chastity belt (chäs'tī-tē bēlt) n. A beltlike device of medieval times designed to prevent the woman wearing it from having sexual intercourse.

chas-u-ble (chäh'ə-bəl, chähz'ə-, chäs'ə-) n. A long, sleeveless vestment worn over the alb by a priest during services. [French, from Old French, from Late Latin casubla, hooded garment, from casupula*, diminutive of casa, house.]

chat (chăt) v. intr. chat-ted, chat-ting, chats. To converse in an easy, familiar manner; talk lightly and casually. — n. 1. An informal, light conversation.

2. Any of several birds known for their chattering call, as of the genera Saxicola or Icteria. —phrasal verb. chat up. To engage (someone) in light, casual talk: “He would be... chatting up folks from Kansas” (Vanity Fair). [Middle English chatten, to jabber, alteration of chateren. See CHATTER.]

cha-teau also châ-teau (shă-tō') n. pl. cha-teaus or cha-teaux (-tōz').

1. a. A French castle. b. A French manor house. 2. A large country house. [French château, from Old French chastel, from Latin castellum, castle. See CASTLE.]

Cha-teau-bri-and also cha-teau-bri-and (shă-tō'-brē-än') n. A double-thick, tender center cut of beef tenderloin, sometimes stuffed with seasonings before grilling. [After Vicomte François René de CHÂTEAUBRIAND.]

Châ-teau-bri-and (shă-tō'brē-än', shă-), Vicomte François René de. 1768-1848. French political leader, diplomat, and writer considered a forerunner of romanticism. His works include Atala (1801), The Genius of Christianity (1802), and Memoirs from beyond the Tomb, published posthumously.

Châ-teau-guay (shăt'ə-gā', shă-tō-gā') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, southwest of Montreal. It is a port of entry and manufacturing center. Population, 36,928.

Châ-teau-roux (shă-tō-rōō') A city of central France southeast of Tours. It is a commercial center with textile and food-processing industries. Population, 51,942.

Châ-teau-Thier-ry (shă-tō-tyě-rē') A town of northern France on the Marne River east-northeast of Paris. It was the site of the second Battle of the Marne (June 3-4, 1918), which ended the last major German offensive in World War I. Population, 14,557.

chat·e·lain (shăt'ī-ān') n. The master of a castle; a castellan. [Middle English chatelein, from Old French chastelain, from Latin castellānus, from castellum, castle. See CASTLE.]

chat·e·laine (shăt'ī-ān') n. 1. a. The mistress of a castle. b. The mistress of a large, fashionable household. 2. A clasp or chain worn at the waist for holding keys, a purse, or a watch. [French châtelaine, feminine of châtelain, chatelain, from Old French chastelain. See CHATELAIN.]

Chat·ham (chăt'əm) 1. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the Thames River east-northeast of Windsor. It is an industrial center in an agricultural region. Population, 40,952. 2. A municipal borough of southeast England east of London. Elizabeth I established the first dockyard here in 1588. Population, 142,800.

Chat·ham (chăt'əm), First Earl of. See William Pitt¹.

Chatham Islands (chăt'əm ī'ləndz) An island group of New Zealand in the southwest Pacific Ocean east of South Island. The islands were discovered in 1791.

cha·toy·ant (shə-toi'ənt) adj. Having a changeable luster. — n. A chatoyant stone or gemstone, such as the cat's-eye. [French, present participle of chatoyer, to shimmer like cats' eyes, from chat, cat. See CAT.] — cha·toy·an·cy n.

chat show (chăt shō) n. Chiefly British. A talk show.

Chat·ta·hoo·chee (chăt'ə-hōō'chē) A river rising in northern Georgia and flowing about 702 km (436 mi) generally southwest then south to the Flint River on the Georgia-Florida border.

Chat·ta·noo·ga (chăt'ə-nōō'gə) A city of southeast Tennessee on the Georgia border southeast of Nashville. A port of entry on the Tennessee River, it was strategically important during the Civil War and was finally taken by Union forces in November 1863. Population, 152,466.

chat·tel (chăt'l) n. 1. Law. An article of personal, movable property. 2. A slave. [Middle English chatel, movable property, from Old French, from Medieval Latin capitāle. See CATTLE.]

chattel mortgage (chăt'l mōr'gij) n. A mortgage using movable personal property rather than real estate as security.

chat·ter (chăt'ər) v. chat·tered, chat·ter·ing, chat·ters. — v. intr. 1. To talk rapidly, incessantly, and on trivial subjects; jabber. 2. To utter a rapid series of short, inarticulate, speechlike sounds: birds chattering in the trees. 3. To click quickly and repeatedly: Our teeth chattered from the cold. 4. To vibrate or rattle while in operation: A power drill will chatter if the bit is loose. — v. tr. To utter in a rapid, usually thoughtless way: chattered a long reply. — n. 1. Idle, trivial talk. 2. The sharp, rapid sounds made by some birds and animals. 3. A series of quick rattling or clicking sounds. [Middle English chateren, of imitative origin.] — chat'ter·er n.

chat-ter-box (chăt'ər-böks') n. An extremely talkative person.

chatter mark also chat-ter-mark (chăt'ər-märk') n. 1. A riblike marking on wood or metal, caused by vibration of a cutting tool. 2. Geology. One of a series of short scars made by glacial drift on a surface of bedrock.

Chat-ter-ton (chăt'ər-tən), Thomas. 1752-1770. British poet who fooled scholars by ascribing his poetry to a 15th-century monk, Thomas Rowley. Unable to support himself by writing, Chatterton became dejected and took his own life at age 18. His work and example influenced the romantic poets.

chat-ty (chăt'ē) adj. chat-ti-er, chat-ti-est. 1. Inclined to chat; friendly and talkative. 2. Full of or in the style of light informal talk: a chatty letter.

—chat'ti-ly adv. —chat'ti-ness n.

Chau-cer (chô'sər), Geoffrey. 1340?-1400. English poet regarded as the greatest literary figure of medieval England. His works include The Book of the Duchess (1369), Troilus and Criseyde (c. 1385), and his masterwork, The Canterbury Tales (1387-1400). —Chau-cer'i-an (chô-sîr'ē-ən) adj. & n.

chauf-feur (shō'fər, shō-fûr') n. One employed to drive a private automobile. — v. chauf-feured, chauf-feur-ing, chauf-feurs. — v. tr. 1. To serve as a driver for (another). 2. To transport in (a motor vehicle); drive: chauffeured the guests around town. — v. intr. To serve as a driver for another. [French, stoker, from chauffer, to heat, stoke, from Old French chaufer. See CHAFE.]

chaul-moo-gra (chôl-mōō'grə) n. Any of several tropical Asian trees of the genus Hydnocarpus, whose seeds contain an oil formerly used to treat skin lesions caused by leprosy and other diseases. [Bengali cāulmugrā.]

chant (chônt, chânt) n. & v. Archaic. Variant of chant.

Chau-tau-qua Lake (shə-tô'kwə lāk, chə-) A lake of extreme southwest New York. The Chautauqua movement of adult education, offering a range of cultural, religious, and recreational activities, was founded in 1874 at the resort village of Chautauqua on the northwest shore of the lake.

Chau-temps (shō-tän'), Camille. 1885-1963. French politician who served as premier (1930, 1933-1934, and 1937-1938).

chau-vin-ism (shô'və-nîz'əm) n. 1. Militant devotion to and glorification of one's country; fanatical patriotism. 2. Prejudiced belief in the superiority of one's own gender, group, or kind: "the chauvinism... of making extraterrestrial life in our own image" (Henry S.F. Cooper, Jr.). [French chauvinisme, after Nicolas Chauvin, a legendary French soldier famous for his devotion to Napoleon.] —chau'vin-ist n. —chau'vin-is'tic adj. —chau'vin-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

Cha-vannes (shä-vän'), Pierre Puvis de. See Pierre Puvis de Chavannes.

Cha-vez (chä'vez', shä'-), Cesar Estrada. 1927-1993. American labor organizer who founded the National Farm Workers Association (1962).

Chá·vez (chä'vëz', -vës'), Carlos. 1899-1978. Mexican conductor and composer who founded the Mexican Symphony Orchestra (1928). His works include Xochipilli Macuilxochitl (1940).

chaw (chô) Regional. v. intr. tr. chawed, chaw·ing, chaws. To chew. — n. A chew, especially of tobacco. [Variant of CHEW.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The use of chaw for chew, in both the verb and the noun, is remarkably wide in its U.S. distribution, occurring in pronunciations from New England south to the Gulf States, throughout the Midwest, and westward to Colorado and California. Chaw has a wide range of senses in regional expressions. One meaning of the verb is “to bawl someone out”: He chawed her good. A Southern sense is “to get the best of someone in a bantering contest” or simply “to embarrass”: “That compliment sort of chawed me” (Publication of the American Dialect Society). The noun chaw can mean “a twist of chewing tobacco” or “an attachment or hold (on someone)”; for example, a flirtatious girl in South Midland states is “tryin' to git a chaw on a feller” (Dialect Notes). In areas where Irish immigrants were seeking work at the turn of the century, chaw was a derogatory term for an Irishman.

Cha·yef·sky (chī-ëf'skē, chā-), Paddy. 1923-1981. American playwright and screenwriter who adapted several of his acclaimed television dramas into movies. He won an Academy Award for Marty (1955) and Hospital (1971).

cha·yo·te (chä-yō'tā) n. 1. A tropical American perennial herbaceous vine (Sechium edule) having tendrils, tuberous roots, and an edible, pear-shaped fruit cooked as a vegetable. 2. The fruit of this plant. Regional. Also called mirliton [Spanish, from Nahuatl chayotli.]

cha·zan or haz·zan also chaz·zen (khä'zən) n. A cantor in a synagogue. [Late Hebrew hazzān.]

Ch.E. abbr. Chemical engineer.

cheap (chēp) adj. cheap·er, cheap·est. 1. a. Relatively low in cost; inexpensive or comparatively inexpensive. b. Charging low prices: a cheap restaurant. 2. a. Obtainable at a low rate of interest. Used especially of money. b. Devalued, as in buying power: cheap dollars. 3. Achieved with little effort: a cheap victory; cheap laughs. 4. Of or considered of small value: in wartime, when life was cheap. 5. Of poor quality; inferior: a cheap toy. 6. Worthy of no respect; vulgar or contemptible: a cheap gangster. 7. Stingy; miserly. — adv. cheaper, cheapest. Inexpensively: got the new car cheap. — idioms. cheap at twice the price. Extremely inexpensive. on the cheap. By inexpensive means; cheaply: traveled to Europe on the cheap. [From Middle English (god) chep, (good) price, purchase, bargain, from Old English cēap, trade, from Latin caupō, shopkeeper.] — cheap·ly adv. — cheap·ness n.

cheap-en (chē'pən) v. cheap-ened, cheap-en-ing, cheap-ens. — v. tr.

1. To make cheap or cheaper. 2. To lower in public estimation; debase or degrade: misconduct that cheapened a high office. — v. intr. To become cheap or cheaper. —cheap'en-er n.

cheap-ie (chē'pē) n. Slang. 1. A cheap item. 2. A stingy person.

cheap-jack (chēp'jăk') n. A peddler or dealer of cheap goods. — adj. Inferior in quality or value; tawdry: "the cheapjack moviemaking... that feeds on the low taste of the mob" (Judith Crist).

cheap shot (chēp shōt) n. An unfair or unsporting verbal attack on a vulnerable target.

Cheap-side (chēp'sid') A street and district in the City of London, England. It was the market center of medieval London and the site of the Mermaid Tavern, a gathering place for Elizabethan poets and playwrights.

cheap-skate (chēp'skāt') n. Slang. A stingy person; a miser.

cheat (chēt) v. cheat-ed, cheat-ing, cheats. — v. tr. 1. To deceive by trickery; swindle: cheated customers by overcharging them for purchases. 2. To deprive by trickery; defraud: cheated them of their land. 3. To mislead; fool: illusions that cheat the eye. 4. To elude; escape: cheat death. — v. intr. 1. To act dishonestly; practice fraud. 2. To violate rules deliberately, as in a game: accused of cheating at cards. 3. Informal. To be sexually unfaithful: young marrieds who cheat on their spouses. — n. 1. An act of cheating; a fraud or swindle. 2. One that cheats; a swindler. 3. Law. Fraudulent acquisition of another's property. 4. Botany. An annual European species of brome grass (Bromus secalinus) widely naturalized in temperate regions. [Middle English cheten, to confiscate, short for acheten, variant of escheten, from eschete, escheat. See ESCHEAT.] —cheat'er n.
—cheat'ing-ly adv.

che-bec (chī-bĕk') n. See least flycatcher. [Imitative of its call.]

Che-bok-sa-ry (chī-bōk-sär'ē) A city of west-central Russia on the Volga River west of Kazan. It is a commercial and cultural center. Population, 389,000.

check (chĕk) n. 1. An action or influence that stops motion or expression; a restraint: Heavy rains were a check on the army's advance. 2. The condition of being stopped or held back; restraint: kept my temper in check; holding agricultural pests in check with sprays. 3. An abrupt stop in forward movement or progress; a halt. 4. The act or an instance of inspecting or testing, as for accuracy or quality; examination: the careful check of each unit before sale; gave the car an oil check. 5. A standard for inspecting or evaluating; a test. 6. A check mark. 7. A ticket or slip of identification: a baggage check. 8. A bill at a restaurant or bar. 9. Games. A chip or counter used in gambling. 10. Abbr. ch., ck. A written order to a bank to pay the amount specified from funds on deposit; a draft. 11. A small crack; a chink. 12. a. A pattern of small squares, as on a chessboard. b. One of the squares of such a pattern. c. A fabric patterned with squares: a dress of pale green check. 13. Abbr. ch Games. a. A move in chess that directly attacks an opponent's king but does not constitute a checkmate. b. The position or condition of a king so attacked. 14. Sports. The act of blocking or impeding an opponent in control of the puck in ice hockey, either with one's body or one's stick. — interj. 1. Games. Used to declare that a chess opponent's king is in check. 2. Informal. Used to express agreement or understanding. — v.

checked, check·ing, checks. — v. tr. 1. To arrest the motion of abruptly; halt: checked the flow by shutting a valve. 2. To hold in restraint; curb: check an impulse to laugh. See Synonyms at restrain. 3. To slow the growth of; retard. 4. To rebuke; rebuff. 5. To inspect so as to determine accuracy, quality, or other condition; test: checked the brakes and lights for defects; checked out the system to make sure there were no errors in the software. 6. To verify by consulting a source or authority: checked her facts before speaking; check a spelling in the dictionary. 7. To put a check mark on or next to: checked off each item on the shopping list. 8. To deposit for temporary safekeeping: checked his coat at the door. 9. To consign (luggage, for example) for shipment on a transportation vehicle: checked her bags and boarded the plane. 10. To make cracks or chinks in: Sunlight dried and checked the paint. 11. Games. To move in chess so as to put (an opponent's king) under direct attack. 12. Sports. To block or impede (an opposing player with the puck) in ice hockey by using one's body or one's stick. — v. intr. 1. To come to an abrupt halt; stop. 2. To agree point for point; correspond: The fingerprints checked with the ones on file. 3. To be verified or confirmed; pass inspection: The suspect's story checked out. 4. To make an examination or investigation; inquire: phoned to check on the departure time; checked into the rumor. 5. To write a check on a bank account. 6. To undergo cracking in a pattern of checks, as paint does. 7. Games. To place a chess opponent's king in check. 8. a. To pause to relocate a scent. Used of hunting dogs. b. To abandon the proper game and follow baser prey. Used of trained falcons. 9. Sports. To block or impede an opposing player carrying the puck in ice hockey. — phrasal verbs. check in. To register, as at a hotel. check out. 2. To settle one's bill and leave a hotel or other place of lodging. 3. To withdraw (an item) after recording the withdrawal: check out books. 4. To record and total up the prices of and receive payment for (items being purchased) at a retail store: The cashier checked out and bagged my order. check over. To look over; examine: The teacher checked the students' papers over. [Middle English chek, check in chess, from Old French eschec, from Arabic shāh, from Persian, king, king in chess. See SHAH.] — check/a·ble adj.

WORD HISTORY: The words check, chess, and shah are all related. Shah, as one might think, is a borrowing into English of the Persian title for the monarch of that country. The Persian word shāh was also a term used in chess, a game played in Persia long before it was introduced to Europe. One said shāh as a warning when the opponent's king was under attack. The Persian word in this sense, after passing through Arabic, probably Old Spanish, and then Old French, came into Middle English as chek about seven hundred years ago. Chess itself comes from a plural form of the Old French word that gave us the word check. Checkmate, the next stage after check, goes back to the Arabic phrase shāh māt, meaning “the king is stymied.” Through a complex development having to do with senses that evolved from the notion of checking the king, check came to mean something used to ensure accuracy or authenticity. One such means was a counterfoil, a part of a check, for example, retained by the issuer as documentation of a transaction. Check first meant “counterfoil” and then came to mean anything, such as a bill or bank draft, with a counterfoil—or eventually even without one.

check·book (chĕk'böök') n. A book containing blank checks issued by a bank.

checked (chĕkt) adj. 1. Having a pattern of checks or squares: checked cloth.

2. Held in check; restrained. 3. Linguistics. Situated in a stopped or closed syllable: a checked vowel.

check·er (chĕk'ər) n. 1. a. One, such as an inspector or examiner, that checks. b. One that receives items for temporary safekeeping or for shipment: a baggage checker.

2. Games. a. checkers. (used with a sing. verb). A game played on a checkerboard by two players, each using 12 pieces. b. One of the round, flat pieces used in this game. 3. a. A pattern of checks or squares. b. One of the squares in such a pattern. 4. A cashier. — v. tr. check·ered, check·er·ing, check·ers.

1. To mark with a checked or squared pattern. 2. To diversify (something) in color, shading, or character; variegate. [Middle English cheker, chessboard, alteration of escheker, from Old French eschequier, from eschec, check in chess. See CHECK.]

check·er·ber·ry (chĕk'ər-bĕr'ē) n. See wintergreen (n., sense 1a).

[CHECKER(BOARD) + BERRY.]

check·er·bloom (chĕk'ər-blōōm') n. An ornamental herb (Sidalcea malviflora) native to the western coast of North America and cultivated for its showy clusters of pink to purple flowers. [CHECKER(BOARD) + BLOOM¹.]

check·er·board (chĕk'ər-bōrd', -bōrd') n. Games. A board on which chess and checkers are played, divided into 64 squares of two alternating colors.

check·ered (chĕk'ərd) adj. 1. Divided into squares. 2. Marked by light and dark patches; diversified in color. 3. Marked by great changes or shifts in fortune: a checkered career.

check·ing account (chĕk'ɪŋ ə-kount') n. A bank account in which checks may be written against amounts on deposit.

check·list (chĕk'lɪst') n. A list of items to be noted, checked, or remembered.

check mark (chĕk märke) n. A mark placed next to an item to show that it has been noted, verified, or approved.

check-mate (chĕk'māt') v. tr. check-mat-ed, check-mat-ing, check-mates. 1. Games. To attack (a chess opponent's king) in such a manner that no escape or defense is possible, thus ending the game. 2. To defeat completely. — n. 1. Abbr. chm. Games. a. A move that constitutes an inescapable and indefensible attack on a chess opponent's king. b. The position or condition of a king so attacked. 2. Utter defeat. — interj. Games. Used to declare the checkmate of an opponent's king in chess. [Middle English chekmat, from Old French eschec mat, from Arabic shāh māt, the king is dead : shāh, king (from Persian); see SHAH + māt, dead.]

check-off (chĕk'ôf', -ôf') n. Collection of dues from members of a union by authorized deduction from their wages.

check-out (chĕk'out') n. 1. The act, time, or place of checking out, as at a hotel, library, or supermarket. 2. A test, as of a machine, for proper functioning. 3. An investigation; an inspection.

check-point (chĕk'point') n. A point where a check is performed: Vehicles are stopped at several checkpoints along the border.

check-rein (chĕk'rān') n. 1. A short rein that extends from a horse's bit to the saddle to keep the horse from lowering its head. 2. A rein joining the bit of one of a span of horses to the driving rein of the other horse.

check-room (chĕk'rōom', -rōom') n. A place where hats, coats, packages, or other items can be stored temporarily.

check-up (chĕk'ŭp') n. 1. An examination or inspection. 2. A general physical examination.

Ched-dar also ched-dar (chĕd'ər) n. Any of several types of smooth, hard cheese varying in flavor from mild to extra sharp. [After Cheddar, a village of southwest England.]

cheek (chĕk) n. 1. The fleshy part of either side of the face below the eye and between the nose and ear. 2. Something resembling the cheek in shape or position. 3. Either of the buttocks. 4. Cool impertinence. See Synonyms at temerity. — v. tr. cheeked, cheek-ing, cheeks. Informal. To speak impudently to. — idiom. cheek by jowl. Side by side; close together. [Middle English cheke, from Old English cēace.]

cheek-bone (chĕk'bōn') n. See zygomatic bone.

cheek pouch (chĕk pouch) n. A pocketlike fold of skin in the cheeks of various animals, such as squirrels, gophers, and monkeys, that functions as a means of carrying food.

Cheek-to-wa-ga (chĕk'tə-wă'gə) An unincorporated community of western New York east of Buffalo. It is mainly residential. Population, 84,387.

cheek-y (chĕ'kē) adj. cheek-i-er, cheek-i-est. Impertinently bold; impudent and saucy. — cheek'i-ly adv. — cheek'i-ness n.

cheep (chēp) n. A faint, shrill sound like that of a young bird; a chirp. — v. intr. cheeped, cheep-ing, cheeps. To make a faint, shrill sound or sounds; chirp. [Imitative.] —cheep'er n.

cheer (chîr) n. 1. Lightness of spirits or mood; gaiety or joy: a happy tune, full of cheer. 2. A source of joy or happiness; comfort. 3. a. A shout of approval, encouragement, or congratulation. b. A short, rehearsed jingle or phrase, shouted in unison by a squad of cheerleaders. 4. Festive food and drink; refreshment. — v. cheered, cheer-ing, cheers. — v. tr. 1. To make happier or more cheerful: a warm fire that cheered us. 2. To encourage with or as if with cheers; urge: The fans cheered the runners on. See Synonyms at encourage. 3. To salute or acclaim with cheers; applaud. See Synonyms at applaud. — v. intr. 1. To shout cheers. 2. To become cheerful: had lunch and soon cheered up. [Middle English chere, expression, mood, from Old French chiere, face, from Late Latin cara, from Greek kara, head. See ker-¹ in Appendix.] —cheer'er n.

—cheer'ing-ly adv.

cheer-ful (chîr'fəl) adj. 1. Being in good spirits; merry. See Synonyms at glad¹. 2. Promoting a feeling of cheer; pleasant: a cozy, cheerful room. 3. Reflecting willingness or good humor: cheerful labor. —cheer'ful-ly adv. —cheer'ful-ness n.

cheer-i-o (chîr'ē-ō') interj. Chiefly British. Used in greeting or parting. [Alteration of CHEER.]

cheer-lead (chîr'lēd') v. intr. cheer-led (-lēd'), cheer-lead-ing, cheer-leads. 1. To lead organized cheering, as at sports events. 2. To express or promote automatic or servile praise: We want someone not just to cheerlead but to help us revamp our organization. [Back-formation from CHEERLEADER.]

cheer-lead-er (chîr'lē'dər) n. 1. One who leads the cheering of spectators, as at a sports contest. 2. One who expresses or promotes thoughtless praise; an adulator.

cheer-led (chîr'lēd') v. Past tense and past participle of cheerlead.

cheer-less (chîr'līs) adj. Lacking cheer; depressing. —cheer'less-ly adv. —cheer'less-ness n.

cheers (chîz) interj. Used as a toast.

cheer-y (chîr'ē) adj. cheer-i-er, cheer-i-est. Showing or suggesting good spirits; cheerful: a cheery hello. —cheer'i-ly adv. —cheer'i-ness n.

cheese¹ (chēz) n. 1. a. A solid food prepared from the pressed curd of milk, often seasoned and aged. b. A molded mass of this substance. 2. Something resembling this substance in shape or consistency. [Middle English chese, from Old English cȳse, from Germanic kasjus*, from Latin cāseus.]

cheese² (chēz) v. tr. cheesed, chees-ing, chees-es. Slang. To stop. —idiom. cheese it. Slang. 1. To look out. Often used in the imperative. 2. To get away fast; get going. Often used in the imperative. [Origin unknown.]

cheese³ (chēz) n. Slang. An important person. [Perhaps from Urdu chīz, thing, from Persian, from Old Persian ciš-ciy*, something. See k^wo- in Appendix.]

cheese-burg-er (chēz/bûr'gər) n. A hamburger topped with melted cheese.

cheese-cake (chēz/kāk') n. 1. A cake made of sweetened cottage cheese or cream cheese, eggs, milk, sugar, and flavorings. 2. Informal. Photographs of minimally attired women.

cheese-cloth (chēz/klôth', -klôth') n. A coarse, loosely woven cotton gauze, originally used for wrapping cheese.

cheese-par-ing (chēz/pâr'ing) adj. Miserly; stingy. — n. 1. Something of little or no value. 2. Stinginess; parsimony.

chees-y (chē'zē) adj. chees-i-er, chees-i-est. 1. Containing or resembling cheese. 2. Informal. a. Tasteless and showy, often in a vulgar manner. b. Having an appreciation for what is tasteless and showy. 3. Informal. Of poor quality; shoddy. [Sense 2, possibly from cheesy, showy, from CHEESE³.] — chees/i-ness n.

chee-tah also che-tah (chē'tə) n. A long-legged, swift-running wild cat (Acinonyx jubatus) of Africa and southwest Asia, having black-spotted, tawny fur and nonretractile claws. The cheetah, the fastest animal on land, can run for short distances at about 96 kilometers (60 miles) per hour. [Hindustani cītā, from Sanskrit citrakāyah, tiger, leopard : citra-, variegated + kāyah, body; see k^wei-² in Appendix.]

Chee-ver (chē'vər), John. 1912-1982. American writer who depicted life in American suburbs with humor and compassion in his short stories and novels. He won a Pulitzer Prize for The Stories of John Cheever (1978).

chef (shĕf) n. A cook, especially the chief cook of a large kitchen staff. [French, short for chef (de cuisine), head (of the kitchen). See CHIEF.]

chef-d'oeu-vre (shā-dœ'vrə, -dûrv') n. pl. chefs-d'oeuvre (shā-). A masterpiece, especially in literature or art. [French : chef, head, beginning + de, of + oeuvre, work.]

chef's salad (shĕfs sāl'əd) n. A tossed green salad that usually includes raw vegetables, hard-boiled eggs, and julienne strips of cheese and meat.

cheiro- pref. Variant of chiro-.

Che-ju (chĕ'jōō') An island of South Korea separated from the southwest coast of the mainland by Cheju Strait, a channel linking the Yellow Sea and Korea Strait.

Che-khov also Che-kov (chĕk'ôf, -ôf, -ôv, chyĕ'KHəf), Anton Pavlovich. 1860-1904. Russian writer whose dramas, such as The Seagull (1896, revised 1898), and stories, including "A Dreary Story" (1889), concern the inability of human beings to communicate with one another. — Che-kho/vi-an (chĕ-kō'vĕ-ən) adj.

Che-kiang (chŭ'kyäng', jə'gyäng') See Zhejiang.

Che·kov (chĕk'ôf, -ôf, -ôv, chyĕ'KHəf), Anton Pavlovich. See Anton Pavlovich Chekhov.

che·la (kĕ'lə) n. pl. che·lae (-lĕ). A pincerlike claw of a crustacean or an arachnid, such as a lobster, crab, or scorpion. [New Latin, from Greek khēlē, claw.]

Che·lan (shə-lăn'), Lake. A narrow lake of north-central Washington in the Cascade Range. It is the third-deepest freshwater lake in the United States.

che·late (kĕ'lāt') adj. Zoology. Having chelae or resembling a chela. — n.

Chemistry. A chemical compound in the form of a heterocyclic ring, containing a metal ion attached by coordinate bonds to at least two nonmetal ions. — v. tr.

che·lat·ed, che·lat·ing, che·lates. 1. Chemistry. To combine (a metal ion) with a chemical compound to form a ring. 2. Medicine. To remove (a heavy metal, such as lead or mercury) from the bloodstream by means of a chelate, such as EDTA. — che'lat·a·ble adj. — che·la'tion n. — che'la'tor n.

che·lic·er·a (kĭ-lis'ər-ə) n. pl. che·lic·er·ae (-ə-rĕ'). Either of the first pair of fanglike appendages near the mouth of an arachnid, such as a spider, often modified for grasping and piercing. [New Latin : CHELA + Greek keras, horn; see ker-1 in Appendix.]

che·li·form (kĕ'lĭ-fôrm') adj. Having the shape of a chela; pincerlike.

Chel·li·an or Chel·le·an (shĕl'ĕ-ən) adj. Abbevillian. [After Chelles, a city of north-central France.]

Chelms·ford (chĕmz'fərd) 1. A municipal borough of southeast England northeast of London. Guglielmo Marconi began the world's first broadcasting service here in 1920. Population, 58,500. 2. A town of northeast Massachusetts near Lowell. It is chiefly residential. Population, 32,388.

che·loid (kĕ'loid') n. Variant of keloid.

che·lo·ni·an (kĭ-lō'nĕ-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the order Chelonia, which includes the turtles and tortoises. — n. A reptile of the order Chelonia. [From New Latin Chelonia, order name, from Greek khelōnē, tortoise.]

Chel·sea (chĕl'sē) 1. A district of western London, England, on the north bank of the Thames River, popular since the 18th century with writers and artists. 2. A city of eastern Massachusetts, a suburb of Boston. It was settled in 1624 and set off from Boston in 1739. Population, 28,710.

Chel·ten·ham (chĕlt'nəm, chĕl'tən-əm) A municipal borough of west-central England south of Birmingham. It has been a popular resort since the discovery of mineral springs in 1716. Population, 86,100.

Che·lya·binsk (chĕl-yä'bĭnsk, chĭ-lyä'-) A city of southwest Russia south of Sverdlovsk. Founded in 1736 as a Russian frontier outpost, it is a major metallurgical and industrial center. Population, 1,096,000.

Che·lyus·kin (chĕl-yōō'skĭn, chĭ-lyōō'-), Cape. A cape of north-central Russia on the Taimyr Peninsula. It is the northernmost point of Asia.

chem. abbr. Chemical; chemist; chemistry.

chem- or chemi- pref. Variant of chemo-.

chem-ic (kĕm'ĭk) adj. 1. Chemical. 2. Archaic. Alchemic. — n. Obsolete. An alchemist.

chem-i-cal (kĕm'ĭ-kəl) adj. Abbr. chem. 1. Of or relating to chemistry. 2. Of or relating to the properties or actions of chemicals. — n. 1. A substance with a distinct molecular composition that is produced by or used in a chemical process. 2. A drug, especially an illicit or addictive one. [Obsolete chimical, from chimic, alchemist, from New Latin chimicus, from Medieval Latin alchimicus, from alchymia, alchemy. See ALCHEMY.] —chem'ĭ-cal-ly adv.

chemical abuse (kĕm'ĭ-kəl ə-byōōz') n. See substance abuse.

chemical bond (kĕm'ĭ-kəl bōnd) n. Any of several forces or mechanisms, especially the ionic bond, covalent bond, and metallic bond, by which atoms or ions are bound in a molecule or crystal.

chemical dependency (kĕm'ĭ-kəl dī-pĕn'dən-sē) n. A physical and psychological habituation to a mood- or mind-altering drug, such as alcohol or cocaine.

chemical engineering (kĕm'ĭ-kəl ĕn'jə-nĭr'ĭng) n. The branch of engineering that deals with the technology of large-scale chemical production and the manufacture of products through chemical processes. —chemical engineer n.

Chem·i-cal Mace (kĕm'ĭ-kəl mās) A trademark used for a temporarily disabling liquid packed in aerosol form and sprayed in self-defense into the face of an attacker, thereby causing dizziness, irritation of the eyes, and immobilization.

chemical warfare (kĕm'ĭ-kəl wōr'fâr') n. Warfare and associated military operations involving the employment of lethal and incapacitating munitions and agents, typically poisons, contaminants, and irritants.

chem·i·lu·mi·nes·cence (kĕm'ə-lōō'mə-nĕs'əns) n. Emission of light as a result of a chemical reaction at environmental temperatures.

—chem'ĭ-lu'mi-nes'cent adj.

che·min de fer (shə-măn' də fâr') n. Games. A variation of baccarat. [French chemin de fer, railroad : chemin, way + de, of + fer, iron.]

che·mise (shə-mēz') n. 1. A woman's loose, shirtlike undergarment. 2. A loosely fitting dress that hangs straight, sometimes worn with a belt; a shift. [Middle English, from Old French, shirt, from Late Latin camisia.]

chem·i·sette (shĕm'ĭ-zĕt') n. 1. A short, sleeveless bodice, formerly worn by women. 2. A blouse front formerly worn by women; a dickey. [French, diminutive of chemise, shirt, from Old French. See CHEMISE.]

chem·i·sorb (kĕm'ĭ-sōrb') also chem·o·sorb (-ə-sōrb') v. tr.

chem·i·sorbed, chem·i·sorb·ing, chem·i·sorbs. To take up and chemically bind (a substance) onto the surface of another substance. [CHEMI- + (AB)SORB.]

—chem'ĭ-sorp'tion (-sōrp'shən) n.

chem·ist (kēm'ist) n. Abbr. chem. 1. A scientist specializing in chemistry.

2. Chiefly British. A pharmacist. 3. Obsolete. An alchemist. [Obsolete chimist, from New Latin chimista, from Medieval Latin alchymista, alchemist, from alchymia, alchemy. See ALCHEMY.]

chem·is·try (kēm'ī-strē) n. pl. chem·is·tries. Abbr. chem. 1. The science of the composition, structure, properties, and reactions of matter, especially of atomic and molecular systems. 2. The composition, structure, properties, and reactions of a substance. 3. The elements of a complex entity and their dynamic interrelation: "Now that they had a leader, a restless chemistry possessed the group" (John Updike). 4. Mutual attraction or sympathy; rapport: The chemistry was good between the partners.

Chem·nitz (kēm'nīts) See Karl-Marx-Stadt.

che·mo (kē'mō, kēm'ō) n. Informal. Chemotherapy or a chemotherapeutic treatment.

chemo- or chemi- or chem- pref. Chemicals; chemical: chemotherapy. [From CHEMICAL.]

che·mo·au·to·troph (kē'mō-ō'tə-trōf', -trōf', kēm'ō-) n. An organism, such as a bacterium or a protozoan, that obtains its nourishment through the oxidation of inorganic chemical compounds as opposed to photosynthesis.

—che'mo·au'to·tro'phic (-trō'fīk, -trōf'īk) adj.

—che'mo·au'to·tro'phi·cal·ly adv. —che'mo·au·tot'ro·phy (-ō-tōt'rə-fē) n.

che·mo·pre·ven·tion (kē'mō-prī-vēn'shən, kēm'ō-) n. The use of chemical agents, drugs, or food supplements to prevent disease. Also called chemoprophylaxis —che'mo·pre·ven'tive adj. & n.

che·mo·pro·phy·lax·is (kē'mō-prō'fə-lāk'sīs, kēm'ō-) n. See chemoprevention. —che'mo·pro·phy·lac'tic (-lāk'tīk) n. & adj.

che·mo·re·cep·tion (kē'mō-rī-sēp'shən, kēm'ō-) n. The physiological response of a sense organ to a chemical stimulus. —che'mo·re·cep'tive adj.

—che'mo·re·cep·tiv'i·ty (-rē'sēp-tiv'ī-tē) n.

che·mo·re·cep·tor (kē'mō-rī-sēp'tər, kēm'ō-) n. A sensory nerve cell or sense organ, as of smell or taste, that responds to chemical stimuli.

che·mo·sen·so·ry (kē'mō-sēn'sə-rē, kēm'ō-) adj. Relating to the perception of a chemical stimulus by sensory means. Used especially of olfactory reception.

chem·o·sorb (kēm'ə-sōrb') v. Variant of chemisorb.

che·mo·sphere (kē'mə-sfīr', kēm'ə-) n. The region of the atmosphere from 30 to 190 kilometers (20 to 120 miles) above Earth's surface, in which photochemical reactions initiated by solar radiation occur.

che·mo·sur·ger·y (kē'mō-sûr'jə-rē, kēm'ō-) n. Selective destruction of tissue by use of chemicals, as for removing malignant skin lesions.

—che'mo·sur'gi·cal (-jī-kəl) adj.

che·mo·syn·the·sis (kē'mō-sīn'thī-sis, kēm'ō-) n. Synthesis of carbohydrate from carbon dioxide and water using energy obtained from the chemical oxidation of simple inorganic compounds. This form of synthesis is limited to certain bacteria and fungi. —che'mo·syn·thet'ic (-sīn-thēt'ik) adj.

—che'mo·syn·thet'i·cal·ly adv.

che·mo·sys·tem·at·ics (kē'mō-sīs'tə-măt'iks, kēm'ō-) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See chemotaxonomy.

che·mo·tax·is (kē'mō-tăk'sis, kēm'ō-) n. The characteristic movement or orientation of an organism or cell along a chemical concentration gradient either toward or away from the chemical stimulus. —che'mo·tac'tic (-tăk'tik) adj.

—che'mo·tac'ti·cal·ly adv.

che·mo·tax·on·o·my (kē'mō-tăk-sŏn'ə-mē, kēm'ō-) n. Classification of organisms based on differences at the biochemical level, especially in the amino acid sequences of common proteins. Also called chemosystematics —che'mo·tax'o·nom'ic (-tăk'sə-nŏm'ik) adj.

—che'mo·tax'o·nom'i·cal·ly adv. —che'mo·tax·on'o·mist n.

che·mo·ther·a·py (kē'mō-thēr'ə-pē, kēm'ō-) n. 1. The treatment of cancer using specific chemical agents or drugs that are selectively destructive to malignant cells and tissues. 2. The treatment of disease using chemical agents or drugs that are selectively toxic to the causative agent of the disease, such as a virus, bacterium, or other microorganism. —che'mo·ther'a·peu'tic (-pyōō'tik) adj.

—che'mo·ther'a·peu'ti·cal·ly adv. —che'mo·ther'a·pist n.

che·mot·ro·pism (kī-mŏt'rə-pīz'əm) n. Movement or growth of an organism or part of an organism in response to a chemical stimulus. —che'mo·trop'ic (kē'mō-trŏp'ik, kēm'ō-) adj.

chem·ur·gy (kēm'ər-jē, kī-mûr'-) n. The development of new industrial chemical products from organic raw materials, especially from those of agricultural origin. —che·mur'gic (kī-mûr'jik), che·mur'gi·cal adj.

Chen also Ch'ên (chŭn) A Chinese dynasty that ruled from 557 to 589.

Che·nab (chə-năb') A river, about 1,086 km (675 mi) long, of northern India and eastern Pakistan. It is one of the five rivers of the Punjab.

Cheng·chow (jŭng'jō', jœng'-) See Zhengzhou.

Cheng·du also Cheng·tu (chŭng'dōō') A city of south-central China west-northwest of Chongqing. Founded before 770 B.C., it is one of China's oldest cities. Population, 1,590,000.

Ché·nier (shā-nyā'), André Marie de. 1762-1794. French poet who was a master of classical verse. The majority of his work was published 25 years after his death by guillotine during the Reign of Terror.

che·nille (shə-nēl') n. 1. A soft, tufted cord of silk, cotton, or worsted used in embroidery or for fringing. 2. Fabric made of this cord, commonly used for bedspreads or rugs. [French chenille, caterpillar, chenille, from Latin canicula, diminutive of canis, dog. See kwon- in Appendix.]

Che-nin Blanc (shĕn'ĭn blāngk') n. 1. A grape used in making white wine. 2. The white wine so made.

Chen-nault (shə-nôlt'), Claire Lee. 1890-1958. American air force officer active in China (1941-1945), where he organized American volunteer aviators as the Flying Tigers and later commanded official U.S. forces during World War II.

che-no-pod (kĕ'nə-pŏd', kĕn'ə-) n. Any plant of the goosefoot family, which includes spinach, beets, and pigweed. [From New Latin Chenopodiaceae, family name, from Chenopodium, type genus : Greek khĕn, goose; see ghans- in Appendix + -podium, neuter of -podius, -pod.]

Che-ops (kĕ'ŏps), Originally Khu-fu (kōō'fōō') 2590-2567 B.C. Second king of the IV Dynasty of Egypt, renowned as the builder of the Great Pyramid at Giza.

cheque (chĕk) n. Chiefly British. Variant of check.

cheq-uer (chĕk'ər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of checker.

Cher (shĕr) A river of central France flowing about 354 km (220 mi) to the Loire River near Tours.

Cher-bourg (shâr'bŏorg', shĕr-bŏor') A city of northwest France on the English Channel. The site has been occupied since ancient times and was frequently contested by the French and English because of its strategic location. Population, 28,442.

Che-ren-kov also Ce-ren-kov (chə-rĕng'kôf, -kəf, chĭ-ryĭn-kôf'), Pavel Alekseevich. Born 1904. Russian physicist. He shared a 1958 Nobel Prize for work leading to the development of a cosmic-ray counter.

Che-ren-kov effect (chə-rĕng'kôf ĭ-fĕkt', -kəf) n. Variant of Cerenkov effect.

Cherenkov radiation (chə-rĕng'kôf rā'dĕ-ā'shən) n. Variant of Cerenkov radiation.

Che-re-po-vets (chĕr'ə-pə-vĕts', chĭ-rĭ-pŭ-vyĕts') A city of east-central Russia north of Moscow. It grew around a monastery established in the 14th century. Population, 299,000.

cher-i-moy-a (chĕr'ə-moi'ə) n. 1. A tropical American tree (Annona cherimola) having heart-shaped, edible fruits with green skin and white, aromatic flesh. 2. The fruit of this plant. [American Spanish chirimoya, from Quechua chirimuya.]

cher-ish (chĕr'ĭsh) v. tr. cher-ished, cher-ish-ing, cher-ish-es. 1. To treat with affection and tenderness; hold dear: cherish one's family; fine rugs that are cherished by their owners. 2. To keep fondly in mind; entertain: cherish a memory. See Synonyms at appreciate. [Middle English cherishen, from Old French cherir, cheriss-, from cher, dear, from Latin cārus. See kā- in Appendix.]

—cher'ish-a-ble n. —cher'ish-er n. —cher'ish-ing-ly adv.

Cher·kas·sy (chər-kä'sē) A city of central Ukraine on the Dnieper River south-southeast of Kiev. It was an important Cossack outpost before passing to Russia in the 1790's. Population, 273,000.

Cher·ni·gov (chər-nē'gəf, -nyē'-) A city of north-central Ukraine north-northeast of Kiev. First mentioned in 907, it was the capital of the Chernigov principality in the 11th century and later passed to Lithuania, Poland, and Russia. Population, 278,000.

Cher·no·byl (chər-nō'bəl, chy'r-nô'bīl) A city of north-central Ukraine north-northwest of Kiev. It was the site of a major nuclear power plant accident on April 16, 1986. Population (in 1986), 12,000.

Cher·nov·tsy (chər-nôft'sē, chy'r-nŭf-tsi') A city of southwest Ukraine in the foothills of the Carpathian Mountains near the Romanian border. It was a center of the Ukrainian nationalist movement in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Population, 244,000.

cher·no·zem (chěr'nə-zēm', chîr'nə-zyôm') n. A very black topsoil, rich in humus, typical of cool to temperate semiarid regions, such as the grasslands of European Russia. [Russian chernozëm: chěrnyĭ, black + Old Russian zemĭ, earth; see dhghem- in Appendix.] —cher'no·zem'ic adj.

Cher·o·kee (chěr'ə-kē', chěr'ə-kē') n. pl. Cherokee or Cher·o·kees. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting the southern Appalachian Mountains from the western Carolinas and eastern Tennessee to northern Georgia, with present-day populations in northeast Oklahoma and western North Carolina. The Cherokee were removed to Indian Territory in the 1830's after conflict with American settlers over rights to traditional lands. b. A member of this people. 2. The Iroquoian language of the Cherokee. [From Cherokee tsalaki.] —Cher'o·kee' adj.

Cherokee rose (chěr'ə-kē' rōz) n. A prickly, climbing, evergreen rose (Rosa laevigata) native to China and naturalized in the southeast United States, having showy, white, fragrant flowers.

Cherokee Strip or Cherokee Outlet (chěr'ə-kē' strĭp) A plot of land in present-day northern Oklahoma. Purchased from the Cherokee Nation by the United States in 1891, it was opened to settlement in 1893.

che·root also she·root (shə-rōōt') n. A cigar with square-cut ends. [French cheroute, ultimately from Tamil curruṭṭu, from curi, to be spiral.]

cher·ry (chěr'ē) n. pl. cher·ries. 1. a. Any of several trees or shrubs of the genus Prunus, especially P. avium or P. cerasus, native chiefly to northern temperate regions and having pink or white flowers and small, juicy drupes. b. The yellow, red, or blackish fruit of any of these plants. c. The wood of any of these plants, especially black cherry. d. Any of various plants, such as the Barbados cherry or the cornelian cherry, having fruits resembling a cherry. 2. Color. A moderate or strong red to purplish red. 3. Vulgar Slang. The hymen considered as a symbol of virginity. — adj. 1. Containing or having the flavor of cherries. 2. Made of the wood of a cherry tree: a cherry cabinet. 3. Color. Of a moderate or strong red to purplish red. [Middle English cheri, from Anglo-Norman cherise, variant of Old French cerise, from Vulgar Latin ceresia*, from cerasia*, from Greek kerasia, cherry tree, from kerasos, of Semitic origin; akin to Assyrian karšu.] cherry birch (chĕr'ē būrch) n. See sweet birch.

cherry bomb (chĕr'ē böm) n. A red, ball-shaped firecracker that explodes with a loud bang.

Cher-ry Hill (chĕr'ē hīl) An urban township of west-central New Jersey east-southeast of Camden. It is mainly residential. Population, 69,319.

cherry laurel (chĕr'ē lôr'əl) n. A frequently cultivated Eurasian evergreen shrub or small tree (Prunus laurocerasus) in the rose family, having showy clusters of white flowers and glossy foliage that yields an oil similar to bitter almond oil.

cherry picker (chĕr'ē pĭk'ər) n. A mobile crane having a maneuverable vertical boom, at the top of which a passenger can do such work as tree pruning and street-light maintenance.

cherry plum (chĕr'ē plŭm) n. A deciduous ornamental Eurasian shrub or small tree (Prunus cerasifera) in the rose family, having white flowers and small red to yellow edible fruits. Also called myrobalan, myrobalan plum.

cher-ry-stone (chĕr'ē-stŏn') n. The quahog clam when half-grown and of comparatively small size.

cherry tomato (chĕr'ē tə-mā'tō) n. A variety of tomato (Lycopersicon esculentum var. cerasiforme) having small red to yellow fruits.

cher-so-nese (kûr'sə-nēz', -nēs') n. A peninsula. [Latin chersonēsus, from Greek khersonēsos: khersos, dry land + nēsos, island; see snā- in Appendix.]

chert (chûrt) n. 1. A variety of silica that contains microcrystalline quartz. 2. A siliceous rock of chalcedonic or opaline silica occurring in limestone. [Origin unknown.] —chert'y adj.

Chert-sey (chûrt'sē) An urban district of southeast England on the southern bank of the Thames River. It has engineering works. Population, 73,100.

cher-ub (chĕr'əb) n. 1. pl. cher-u-bim (chĕr'ə-bĭm', -yə-bĭm'). a. A winged celestial being. b. One of the second order of angels. 2. pl. cher-ubs. a. A representation of a small angel, portrayed as a child with a chubby, rosy face. b. A person, especially a child, with an innocent or chubby face. [Middle English, from Late Latin, from Hebrew kĕrûb.] —che-ru'bic (chə-rōō'bĭk) adj.

—che-ru'bi-cal-ly adv.

Che-ru-bi-ni (kĕr'ə-bē'nē, kĕ'rōō-), (Maria) Luigi Carlo Zenobio Salvatore. 1760-1842. Italian composer whose 29 operas, including Les Deux Journées (1800), helped form the transition in music from classicism to romanticism.

cher-vil (chûr'vəl) n. 1. An annual Eurasian herb (Anthriscus cerefolium) in the parsley family, having aromatic parsleylike leaves that are used as a seasoning or garnish. 2. Any of several related plants, such as those of the genus Chaerophyllum. [Middle English, from Old English cerfille, from Latin chaerephyllum, from Greek khairephullon : khairain, to greet, delight in; see gher-² in Appendix + phullon, leaf; see bhel-³ in Appendix.]

Ches·a·peake (chēs'ə-pēk') An independent city of southeast Virginia south of Norfolk. Its vast area includes residential communities, farmland, and a section of the Great Dismal Swamp. Population, 151,976.

Chesapeake Bay (chēs'ə-pēk' bā) An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean separating the Delmarva Peninsula from mainland Maryland and Virginia. Explored and charted by John Smith in 1608, it is an important link in the Intracoastal Waterway.

Chesapeake Bay retriever (chēs'ə-pēk' bā rī-trē'vər) n. A hunting dog of a breed developed in the United States, and having a thick, short, wavy coat ranging from dark brown to tan in color and known for its skill in retrieving game from water.

Chesh·ire¹ (chēsh'ər, -îr') A town of south-central Connecticut north of New Haven. It is mainly residential. Population, 25,684.

Chesh·ire² also chesh·ire (chēsh'ər) n. A hard, yellow English cheese made from cow's milk. [After Cheshire, a county of west-central England.]

Ches·hunt (chēs'ənt) An urban district of southeast England, a residential suburb of London. Population, 79,700.

Ches·nutt (chēs'nüt'), Charles Waddell. 1858-1932. American writer whose works, such as The Wife of His Youth (1899), concern racial prejudice and life among Black Americans.

chess¹ (chēs) n. Games. A board game for two players, each beginning with 16 pieces of six kinds that are moved according to individual rules, with the objective of checkmating the opposing king. [Middle English ches, short for Old French eschec, pl. of eschec, check in chess. See CHECK.]

chess² (chēs) n. Any of several species of brome grass, especially the cheat. [Origin unknown.]

chess³ (chēs) n. pl. chess or chess-es. One of the floorboards of a pontoon bridge. [Middle English ches, tier, perhaps from Old French chasse, frame, from Latin capsa, box.]

chess·board (chēs'bôrd', -bôrd') n. Games. A board marked with 64 squares, used in playing chess.

chess·man (chēs'măn', -mən) n. Games. One of the pieces used in playing chess.

ches·sy·lite (shēs'ə-līt', chēs'-) n. See azurite. [After Chessy, a town of east-central France.]

chest (chĕst) n. 1. The part of the body between the neck and the abdomen, enclosed by the ribs and the breastbone; the thorax. 2. a. A sturdy box with a lid and often a lock, used especially for storage. b. A small closet or cabinet with shelves for storing supplies: a medicine chest above the bathroom sink. 3. a. The treasury of a public institution. b. The funds kept there. 4. a. A box for the shipping of certain goods, such as tea. b. The quantity packed in such a box. 5. A sealed receptacle for liquid, gas, or steam. 6. A bureau; a dresser. —idiom. get (something) off (one's) chest. To vent one's pent-up feelings. [Middle English, from Old English cest, box, from West Germanic kistā*, from Latin cista, from Greek kistē.] —chest'ed (chēs'tīd) adj.

Ches·ter (chēs'tər) 1. A borough of west-central England on the Dee River south-southeast of Liverpool. The Romans built a fort here to defend the river crossing into Wales and named the settlement Deva. Chester is known for its Rows, a double tier of shops and houses along its main streets. Population, 58,100. 2. A city of southeast Pennsylvania on the Delaware River, an industrial suburb of Philadelphia. Established as Upland, it was the site of William Penn's first landing in America (1682) and is the oldest city in the state. Population, 41,856.

ches·ter·field (chēs'tər-fēld') n. 1. A single- or double-breasted overcoat, usually with concealed buttons and a velvet collar. 2. Chiefly Northern California & Chiefly Canada. A large, overstuffed sofa with upright armrests. [After a 19th-century earl of Chesterfield.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Chesterfield, a term for any type of sofa, was probably brought down from Canada, where it is common. According to Craig M. Carver in American Regional Dialects, this regionalism is “unique to northern California.” The word probably comes from the name of a 19th-century earl of Chesterfield and originally referred “specifically to a couch with upright armrests at either end.” It appears to have come into use in Canada around 1903 and in Northern California at about the same time.

Ches·ter·field (chēs'tər-fēld') A city of north-central England south of Sheffield. It is an important industrial center. Population, 96,300.

Ches·ter·field (chēs'tər-fēld'), Fourth Earl of Title of Philip Dormer Stanhope. 1694-1773. English politician and writer best known for Letters to His Son (1774), which portrays the ideal 18th-century gentleman.

Ches·ter·le·Street (chēs'tər-lī-strēt') An urban district of northeast England south-southeast of Newcastle. It is in a mining area. Population, 51,800.

Ches·ter·ton (chēs'tər-tən), Gilbert Keith. 1874-1936. British writer and critic known for his Roman Catholicism and his conservative political views. His works include essays, a series of detective novels featuring Father Brown, and volumes of criticism and polemics.

Chester White (chēs'tər hwīt) n. Any of a breed of large white hogs with drooping ears that were originally bred in Chester County in southeast Pennsylvania.

chest-nut (chēs'nüt', -nət) n. 1. a. Any of several deciduous trees of the genus Castanea native to northern temperate regions, having alternate, simple, toothed leaves, and nuts enclosed in a prickly husk. b. The often edible nut of any of these trees. c. The wood of any of these trees. 2. Any of several other plants, such as the horse chestnut. 3. Color. A moderate to deep reddish brown. 4. A reddish-brown horse. 5. A small, hard callus on the inner surface of a horse's foreleg. 6. An old, frequently repeated joke, story, or song. — adj. Color. Of a moderate to deep reddish brown. [Earlier chesten (from Middle English chesteine, from Old French chastaigne, from Latin castanea, from Greek kastanea, chestnut tree) + NUT.]

chestnut blight (chēs'nüt' blīt) n. A disease of chestnut trees caused by a fungus (Cryphonectria parasitica) that is especially destructive to the American chestnut, characterized by cankers that eventually kill the branches and trunk.

chestnut oak (chēs'nüt' ōk) n. Either of two eastern North American deciduous oak trees (Quercus prinus and Q. muehlenbergii) having leaves that resemble those of the American chestnut.

chest of drawers (chěst üv drô'ərz) n. pl. chests of drawers. A piece of furniture consisting of a set of drawers that fit within a frame.

chest-y (chēs'tē) adj. chest-i-er, chest-i-est. Informal. 1. Having a large or well-developed chest or bust. 2. Arrogant or proud; conceited. —chest'i-ness n.

che-tah (chē'tə) n. Variant of cheetah.

chet-rum (chē'trəm, chēt'rəm) n. A unit of currency in Bhutan. See Table at currency. [Native word in Bhutan.]

che-val-de-frise (shə-väl'də-frēz') n. pl. che-vaux-de-frise (shə-vō'-).

1. An obstacle composed of barbed wire or spikes attached to a wooden frame, used to block enemy advancement. 2. An obstacle made of jagged glass or spikes set into masonry on top of a wall. [French, Frisian horse (from its use in Friesland to compensate for a lack of cavalry) : cheval, horse + de, of + Frise, Friesland.]

che-val-et (shə-väl'ā, shēv'ə-lā') n. Music. The bridge of a stringed instrument. [French, from diminutive of cheval, horse, from Latin caballus.]

che-val glass (shə-väl' glās) n. A long mirror mounted on swivels in a frame. [From French cheval, support, horse. See CHEVALET.]

chev-a-lier (shēv'ə-lîr') n. 1. A member of certain male orders of knighthood or merit, such as the Legion of Honor in France. 2. a. A French nobleman of the lowest rank. b. Used as a title for such a nobleman. 3. A knight. 4. A chivalrous man. [Middle English chevaler, from Old French chevalier, from Late Latin caballārius, horseman, from caballus, horse.]

Che·va·lier (shə-väl'yā, shə-vä-lyā'), Maurice. 1888-1972. French actor and singer best known for his cabaret appearances and his role in the musical film Gigi (1958).

che·vaux·de·frise (shə-vō'də-frēz') n. Plural of cheval-de-frise.

che·ve·lure (shəv-lür') n. A head of hair. [Middle English cheveler, from Old French cheveleure, from Latin capillātūra, from capillus, hair.]

Chev·i·ot (shěv'ē-ət, chěv'-) n. 1. Any of a breed of hornless sheep with short, thick wool, originally raised in the Cheviot Hills. 2. Also cheviot. A woolen fabric with a coarse twill weave, used chiefly for suits and overcoats and originally made from the wool of this breed of sheep. [After the Cheviot (Hills).]

Cheviot Hills (chěv'ē-ət hīlz, shiv'-, chē'vē-) A range of hills extending about 56 km (35 mi) along the border between England and Scotland. The Cheviot, 816.2 m (2,676 ft), is the highest elevation.

chèv·re (shěv'rə) n. Cheese made from goat's milk. [French, from Old French, from Latin capra, she-goat, feminine of caper, goat.]

chev·ron (shěv'rən) n. 1. A badge or insignia consisting of stripes meeting at an angle, worn on the sleeve of a military or police uniform to indicate rank, merit, or length of service. 2. Heraldry. A device shaped like an inverted V. 3. A V-shaped pattern, especially a kind of fret used in architecture. [Middle English cheveron, from Old French chevron, rafter (from the meeting of rafters at an angle), probably from Vulgar Latin capriō*, capriōn-, from Latin caper, capr-, goat.]

chev·ro·tain (shěv'rə-tān') n. Any of several small, deerlike, hornless ruminants of the genera Hyemoschus and Tragulus native to the tropical rain forests of central Africa, India, and southeast Asia. Also called mouse deer [French chevrotin, from Old French, diminutive of chevrot, kid diminutive of chevre, goat, from Latin capra, she-goat, feminine of caper, goat.]

Chev·y Chase (chěv'ē chās') A village of west-central Maryland, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 12,232.

chew (chō) v. chewed, chew·ing, chews. — v. tr. 1. To bite and grind with the teeth; masticate. 2. To meditate on; ponder: chew a problem over. — v. intr. 1. To make a crushing and grinding motion with the teeth. See Regional note at chaw. 2. To cogitate; meditate: chewed on the difficulties ahead.

3. Informal. To use chewing tobacco. — n. 1. The act of chewing.

2. Something held in the mouth and chewed, especially a plug of tobacco.

—phrasal verb. chew out. Slang. To reprimand; scold. —idioms. chew the cud. Slang. To ponder over; meditate. chew the fat (or chew the rag).

Slang. To talk together in a friendly, leisurely way; chat at length. [Middle English cheuen, from Old English cēowan.] —chew'a·ble adj. —chew'er n.

Che-wa (chā'wä) n. A Bantu language spoken in Malawi, closely related to Nyanja.

chew-ing gum (chōō'ing gŭm) n. A sweetened, flavored preparation for chewing, usually made of chicle.

che-wink (chī-wīngk') n. See towhee (n., sense 1). [Imitative of its call.]

chew-y (chōō'ē) adj. chew-i-er, chew-i-est. Needing much chewing: chewy candy. —chew/i-ness n.

Chey-enne¹ (shī-ěň', -ăn') n. pl. Cheyenne or Chey-ennes. 1. a. A Native American people, divided after 1832 into the Northern and Southern Cheyenne, inhabiting respectively southeast Montana and southern Colorado, with present-day populations in Montana and Oklahoma. The Cheyenne became nomadic buffalo hunters after migrating to the Great Plains in the 18th century and figured prominently in the resistance by Plains Indians to white encroachment.

b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Cheyenne.

[Canadian French, from Dakota šahiyela.] —Chey-enne' adj.

Chey-enne² (shī-ăn', -ěň') The capital of Wyoming, in the southeast part of the state near the Nebraska and Colorado borders. It was founded in 1867 as a division point for the Union Pacific Railroad. Population, 50,008.

Cheyenne River (shī-ěň' rīv'ər) A river rising in eastern Wyoming and flowing about 848 km (527 mi) east then northeast to the Missouri River in central South Dakota.

Cheyne-Stokes respiration (chān'stōks' rēs'pə-rā'shən, chā'nē-stōks') n. An abnormal type of breathing seen especially in comatose patients, characterized by alternating periods of shallow and deep breathing. [After John Cheyne (1777-1836), Scottish physician, and William Stokes (1804-1878), Irish physician.]

chez (shā) prep. At the home of; at or by. [French, from Old French, from Latin casa, cottage, hut.]

chg. abbr. 1. Change. 2. Charge.

chi also khi (kī) n. The 22nd letter of the Greek alphabet. [Greek khi.]

chi-a (chē'ə) n. An aromatic annual plant (Salvia columbariae) in the mint family, native to Mexico and the southwest United States and having clusters of blue or violet flowers and edible seedlike fruits. [American Spanish chia, from Nahuatl chiah.]

Chi-ai or Chia-i (jē-ī', jyä'ē') A city of southwest Taiwan north of Kaohsiung. It is an agricultural market center. Population, 252,376.

Chia-ling (jyä'līng') See Jialing.

Chia-mus-su (jyä'mōō'sōō') See Jiamusi.

Chiang Kai-shek (chāng' kī'shěk', jyāng'), 1887-1975. Chinese military and political figure who led the Nationalists against the rising Communist forces and was driven from the mainland to Taiwan (1949), where he served as president of Nationalist China until his death.

Chi-an-ti (kē-än'tē, -än'-) n. A dry table wine, usually red, originally produced in northwest Italy. [After the Chianti Mountains, a range of the Apennines in central Italy.]

chiao (chyou) n. pl. chiao. Variant of jiao.

chi-a-ro-scu-ro (kē-är'ə-sköör'ō, -skyöör'ō) n. pl. chi-a-ro-scu-ros. 1. The technique of using light and shade in pictorial representation. 2. The arrangement of light and dark elements in a pictorial work of art. Also called claire-obscure [Italian : chiaro, bright, light (from Latin clārus, clear); see kelə-² in Appendix + oscuro, dark (from Latin obscurus); see (s)keu- in Appendix.]

—chi-a'ro-scu'rist n.

chi-as-ma (kī-äz'mə) also chi-asm (kī'äz'əm) n. pl. chi-as-ma-ta (-mə-tə) or chi-as-mas also chi-asms. 1. Anatomy. A crossing or intersection of two tracts, as of nerves or ligaments. 2. Genetics. The point of contact between paired chromatids during meiosis, resulting in a cross-shaped configuration and representing the cytological manifestation of crossing over. [Greek khiasma, cross-piece, from khiazein, to mark with an X, from khi, chi (from the letter's shape).]

—chi-as'mal, chi-as'mic, chi'as-mat'ic (-mät'ik) adj.

chi-as-ma-ty-py (kī-äz'mə-tī'pē) n. The meiotic twisting between paired chromatids that produces chiasmata. [CHIASMA + TYP(E) + -Y².]

chi-as-mus (kī-äz'məs) n. pl. chi-as-mi (-mī'). A rhetorical inversion of the second of two parallel structures, as in “Each throat/Was parched, and glazed each eye” (Samuel Taylor Coleridge). [New Latin, from Greek khiasmōs, syntactic inversion, from khiazein, to invert or mark with an X. See CHIASMA.]

chi-as-to-lite (kī-äs'tə-līt') n. A mineral variety of andalusite with carbonaceous impurities regularly arranged along the longer axis of the crystal. [From Greek khiaistos, crossed, past participle of khiazein, to mark with an X. See CHIASMA.]

chiaus (chous, choush) n. An official Turkish messenger, emissary, or sergeant. [Turkish çāvuş, from Old Turkic chāv, announcement.]

Chi-ba (chē'bä') A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, on the northeast shore of Tokyo Bay. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 788,920.

Chib-cha (chīb'chə) n. pl. Chibcha or Chib-chas. 1. A member of an extinct Indian people once inhabiting central Colombia. 2. The extinct language of the Chibcha.

Chib-chan (chīb'chən) n. 1. A member of a widely scattered Indian people of Colombia and Central America. 2. A language family comprising the Chibchan languages.

Chi-bem-ba (chī-bēm'bə) n. See Bemba.

chi-bouk also chi-bouque (chĭ-bōōk', shĭ-) n. A Turkish tobacco pipe with a long stem and a red clay bowl. [Turkish dialectal çibuk, from çubuk, shoot, twig, staff, from Old Turkic chubuq, chībīq, diminutive of chīp, chīb-, branch.]

chic (shĕk) adj. chic-er, chic-est. 1. Conforming to the current fashion; stylish: chic clothes; a chic boutique. 2. Adopting or setting current fashions and styles; sophisticated: chic, well-dressed young executives. See Synonyms at fashionable. — n. 1. The quality or state of being stylish; fashionableness. 2. Sophistication in dress and manner; elegance. [French, probably from German Schick, skill, fitness, elegance, from Middle High German (sich) schicken, to outfit (oneself); fit in.] —chic'ly adv. —chic'ness n.

Chi-ca-go (shĭ-kä'gō, -kô'-) The largest city of Illinois, in the northeast part of the state on Lake Michigan. It is a major port and the commercial, financial, industrial, and cultural center of the Middle West. The city was nearly destroyed by a disastrous fire in 1871. Population, 2,783,726. —Chi-ca/go-an n.

Chi-ca-go (shĭ-kä'gō, -kô'-), Judy. Born 1939. American artist best known for The Dinner Party (1979), a ceramic and needlepoint project depicting the social history of women in the Western world.

Chicago Heights (shĭ-kä'gō hīts) A city of northeast Illinois south of Chicago. It is an industrial center. Population, 33,072.

Chicago River (shĭ-kä'gō rĭv'ər) A river formed at Chicago by the junction of northern and southern branches that total about 55 km (34 mi) in length. It is an important link in the Illinois Waterway.

Chi-ca-na (chĭ-kä'nə, shĭ-) n. Usage Problem. A Mexican-American woman or girl. See Usage Note at Chicano. [American Spanish, feminine of chicano, chicano. See CHICANO.] —Chi-ca'na adj.

chi-cane (shĭ-kān', chĭ-) v. chi-caned, chi-can-ing, chi-canes. — v. intr. To resort to tricks or subterfuges; use chicanery. — v. tr. To trick; deceive. — n. 1. Chicanery. 2. Games. A bridge or whist hand without trumps. [French chicaner, from Old French, to quibble.] —chi-can'er n.

chi-can-er-y (shĭ-kā'nə-rē, chĭ-) n. pl. chi-can-er-ies. 1. Deception by trickery or sophistry. 2. A trick; a subterfuge.

Chi-ca-no (chĭ-kä'nō, shĭ-) n. pl. Chi-ca-nos. Usage Problem. A Mexican-American. — adj. Of or relating to Mexican-Americans or their culture. [American Spanish, dialectal variant of Mexicano, Mexican, from México, Mexico.]

USAGE NOTE: Care should be taken in using the term Chicano when referring to Mexican-Americans. In some regions of the Southwest the term suggests ethnic pride; in others it may be felt to be derogatory. See Usage Note at Hispanic.

Chich·a·gof Island (chĭch'ə-gōf' ī'lənd, -gōf') An island of southeast Alaska in the northern Alexander Archipelago. It was named after a Russian admiral.

Chi·chén It·zá (chē-chĕn' ē-tsä', ēt'sə) An ancient Mayan city of central Yucatán in Mexico. It was founded c. A.D. 514 and abandoned in 1194. There are extensive well-preserved ruins on the site.

Chich·es·ter (chĭch'ĭ-stər) A municipal borough of southern England near the English Channel east of Southampton. Called Regnum by the Romans, it was a major port in the Middle Ages. Population, 24,300.

chi·chi (shē'shē) adj. chi·chi·er, chi·chi·est. Ostentatiously stylish; deliberately chic. — n. Ostentatious stylishness. [French.]

chick (chĭk) n. 1. a. A young chicken. b. The young of any bird. 2. A child. 3. Slang. A girl or young woman. [Middle English chike, variant of chiken, chicken. See CHICKEN.]

chick·a·dee (chĭk'ə-dē') n. Any of several small, plump North American birds of the genus Parus, having predominantly gray plumage and a dark-crowned head. [Imitative of its call.]

Chick·a·mau·ga (chĭk'ə-mô'gə) A city of extreme northwest Georgia south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Confederate troops led by Braxton Bragg defeated Union forces here on September 19-20, 1863. Population, 2,232.

chick·a·ree (chĭk'ə-rē') n. A small squirrel (Tamiasciurus douglasi) of the evergreen forests of northwest North America, resembling and closely related to the red squirrel. [Imitative.]

Chick·a·saw (chĭk'ə-sô') n. pl. Chick·a·saw or Chick·a·saws. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting northeast Mississippi and northwest Alabama, now located in south-central Oklahoma. The Chickasaw were removed to Indian Territory in the 1830's. b. A member of this people. 2. The Muskogean language of the Chickasaw. — Chick·a·saw' adj.

Chick·a·sa·whay (chĭk'ə-sô'wā) A river, about 338 km (210 mi) long, of southeast Mississippi.

Chick·a·sha (chĭk'ə-shā') A city of central Oklahoma southwest of Oklahoma City. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 15,828.

chick·en (chĭk'ən) n. 1. a. The common domestic fowl (Gallus domesticus) or its young. b. Any of various similar or related birds. c. The flesh of the common domestic fowl. 2. Slang. A coward. 3. Any of various foolhardy competitions in which the participants persist in a dangerous course of action until one loses nerve and stops. — adj. Slang. Afraid; cowardly. — v. intr. chick·ened, chick·en·ing, chick·ens. Slang. To act in a cowardly manner; lose one's nerve: chickened out at the last moment. [Middle English chiken, from Old English cīcen.]

chicken breast (chĭk'ən brĕst) n. Pathology. See pigeon breast. — chick·en·breast'ed (chĭk'ən-brĕs'tĭd) adj.

chicken feed (chĭk'ən fēd) n. Slang. A trifling amount of money.

chicken hawk (chĭk'ən hōk) n. 1. Any of various hawks that prey on or have the reputation of preying on chickens. 2. Vulgar Slang. A man who seeks out young boys as his sexual partners.

chick-en-heart-ed (chĭk'ən-hār'tīd) adj. Lacking courage; cowardly.

—chick'en-heart'ed-ness n.

Chick-en Little (chĭk'ən lit'l) n. A confirmed pessimist, particularly one who warns of impending disaster. [After a character in a story who is hit on the head by an acorn and believes the sky is falling.] chick-en-liv-ered (chĭk'ən-līv'ərd) adj. Cowardly.

chick-en-pox or chicken pox (chĭk'ən-pōks') n. An acute contagious disease, primarily of children, that is caused by the varicella-zoster virus and characterized by skin eruptions, slight fever, and malaise. Also called varicella chicken run (chĭk'ən rŭn) n. An enclosed area in which chickens are allowed to walk and run about.

chicken shit (chĭk'ən shīt) Obscene. n. Contemptibly petty, insignificant nonsense. — adj. 1. Contemptibly unimportant; petty. 2. Cowardly; afraid.

chicken snake (chĭk'ən snāk) n. See rat snake.

chicken wire (chĭk'ən wīr) n. A light-gauge galvanized wire fencing usually made with hexagonal mesh.

chick-pea (chĭk'pē') n. 1. An annual Asian plant (Cicer arietinum) in the pea family, widely cultivated for the edible seeds in its short, inflated pods. 2. A seed of this plant. Also called garbanzo [Obsolete chichpease: Middle English chiche, chickpea (from Old French, from Latin cicer) + pease, pea; see PEA.]

chick-weed (chĭk'wēd') n. Any of various herbs of the genera Cerastium and Stellaria, especially S. media, a European weed naturalized worldwide. The herb has small white flowers, petals with two deep lobes, and opposite leaves. [So called because it is eaten by chickens.]

Chi-cla-yo (chĭ-klä'yō, chē-) A city of northwest Peru north-northwest of Lima. Situated on the coastal desert between the Andes and the Pacific Ocean, the city may go years at a time without rainfall. Population, 213,095.

chic-le (chĭk'əl) n. The coagulated milky juice of the sapodilla, used as the principal ingredient of chewing gum. [Spanish, from Nahuatl chictli.]

Chic-lets (chĭk'līts) A trademark used for chewing gum in the form of small, square, candy-coated pieces.

Chi-co (chē'kō) A city of northern California northwest of Oroville. It is a processing and packing center in an almond-growing region. Population, 40,079.

Chic-o-pee (chĭk'ə-pē) A city of southwest Massachusetts on the Connecticut River near Springfield. It was founded c. 1641 and set off from Springfield in 1848. Population, 56,632.

chic·o·ry (chĭk'ə-rē) n. pl. chic·o·ries. 1. A perennial herb (Cichorium intybus) of the composite family, native to the Old World, widely naturalized in North America, and having rayed flower heads with blue florets. Also called succory. 2. Any of various forms of this plant having edible leaves, such as radicchio. 3. The dried, roasted, ground roots of this plant, used as an adulterant of or substitute for coffee. [Middle English cicoree (from Old French cichoree), and French chicorée both from Latin cichorium, cichorēum, from Greek kikhoreia, pl. diminutive of kikhora, kikhorē.]

Chi-cou-ti-mi (shĭ-kōō'tə-mē) A city of south-central Quebec, Canada, on the Saguenay River north of Quebec City. A Jesuit mission was established here in 1676. Population, 60,064.

chide (chĭd) v. chid·ed or chid (chĭd), chid·ed or chid also chid·den (chĭd'n), chid·ing, chides. — v. tr. To scold mildly so as to correct or improve; reprimand: chided the boy for his sloppiness. — v. intr. To express disapproval. [Middle English chiden, from Old English cīdan, from cīd, strife, contention.] — chid'er n. — chid'ing·ly adv.

chief (chēf) n. Abbr. ch., Ch., C. 1. One who is highest in rank or authority; a leader. 2. Often Chief. a. A chief petty officer. b. Nautical. The chief engineer of a ship. 3. Slang. A boss. 4. Heraldry. The upper section of a shield. 5. The most important or valuable part. — adj. 1. Highest in rank, authority, or office. 2. Most important or influential. See Usage Note at perfect. — adv. Archaic. Chiefly. [Middle English chef, from Old French, from Latin caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.] — chief'dom n. — chief'ship' n.

SYNONYMS: chief, principal, main, leading, foremost, primary, prime. These adjectives refer to what is first in rank or in importance. Chief applies to a person of the highest authority: a chief magistrate. Used figuratively, chief implies maximum importance or value: Her children were her chief joy. Principal applies to someone or something of the first order in rank, power, or significance: the principal cellist in an orchestra; their principal source of entertainment. Main applies to what exceeds others in extent, size, or importance: the main building on the campus; the main subject of conversation. Leading suggests personal magnetism, a record of achievement, or suitability or capacity for influencing others: She is one of the leading physicians of the city. Foremost is closely related to leading but more strongly emphasizes first position and the sense of having forged ahead of others: the foremost research scientist of the day. Primary stresses first in the sense of origin, sequence, or development: attending primary school. It can also mean first in the sense of “basic” or “fundamental”: The primary function of a house is to provide warmth and shelter. Prime applies to what is first in comparison with others and to what is of the best quality: a theory of prime significance; prime veal; a prime chief executive (chĕf ĭg-zĕk'yə-tĭv) n. 1. Chief Executive. The President of the United States. 2. A principal executive official, such as the leader of a nation's government or the governor of a state.

chief executive officer (chĕf ĭg-zĕk'yə-tĭv ô'fĭ-sər) n. Abbr. CEO, C.E.O. The highest-ranking executive in a company or organization, responsible for carrying out the policies of the board of directors on a day-to-day basis.

chief justice also Chief Justice (chĕf jÿs'tĭs) n. Abbr. C.J. The presiding judge of a high court having several judges, especially the U.S. Supreme Court.

chief-ly (chĕf'lĕ) adv. 1. Above all; especially. 2. Almost entirely; mainly. — adj. Of or relating to a chief: chiefly responsibilities.

chief master sergeant (chĕf mäs'tər sār'jənt) n. Abbr. CMSGT 1. A non-commissioned rank in the U.S. Air Force that is above senior master sergeant. 2. One who holds this rank.

chief of staff (chĕf ŭv stăf) n. pl. chiefs of staff. Abbr. CS, C. of S. 1. Often Chief of Staff. The ranking officer of the U.S. Army or Air Force, responsible to the secretary of his or her branch and to the President. 2. The senior military staff officer at the division level or higher.

chief of state (chĕf ŭv stāt) n. pl. chiefs of state. The formal head of a nation, distinct from the head of the government.

chief petty officer (chĕf pĕt'ē ô'fĭ-sər) n. Abbr. CPO 1. An enlisted rank in the U.S. Navy that is above petty officer first class and below senior chief petty officer. 2. One who holds this rank.

chief-tain (chĕf'tən) n. The leader or head of a group, especially a clan or tribe. [Middle English cheftain, from Old French chevetain, from Late Latin capitāneus, from Latin caput, head. See kaput- in Appendix.] —chief'tain-cy n. —chief'tain-ship' n.

Ch'ien-lung (chyĕn'lŏŏng') See Qianlong.

Chie-ti (kyā'tē) A city of central Italy near the Adriatic coast. It occupies the site of an ancient Roman settlement. Population, 55,207.

chiff-chaff (chĭf'chăf') n. A small European warbler (Phylloscopus collybita) with yellowish-green plumage. [Imitative of its song.]

chif-fon (shĭ-fŏn', shĭf'ŏn') n. 1. A fabric of sheer silk or rayon. 2. Ornamental accessories, such as ribbons or laces, for women's clothing. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling the fabric chiffon. 2. Made light and fluffy by the addition of beaten egg whites or gelatin: a lemon chiffon pie. [French, rag, chiffon, from chiffe, old rag, perhaps variant of Old French chipe, of Germanic origin.]

chif-fo-nier (shĭf'ə-nĭr') n. A narrow, high chest of drawers or bureau, often with a mirror attached. [French, from chiffon, rag. See CHIFFON.] chif-fo-robe (shif'ə-rōb', shif'rōb') n. Regional. A tall piece of furniture typically having drawers on one side and space for hanging clothes on the other.

[CHIFFO(NIER) + (WARD)ROBE.]

Chif-ley (chif'lē), Joseph Benedict. 1885-1951. Australian politician who served as prime minister (1945-1949) and attempted to nationalize the country's banks (1947).

chig-ger (chĭg'ər) n. 1. Any of various small, six-legged larvae of mites of the family Trombiculidae, parasitic on insects, humans, and other vertebrates. The chigger's bite produces a wheal that is usually accompanied by severe itching. Also called chigoe, harvest bug, harvest mite, *jigger*², red bug. 2. See chigoe (n., sense 1). [Alteration of CHIGOE.]

chi-gnon (shēn-yōn', shēn'yōn') n. A roll or knot of hair worn at the back of the head or especially at the nape of the neck. [French, from Old French chain-gnon, chain, collar, nape, from Vulgar Latin catēniō*, from Latin catēna, chain.]

chig-oe (chĭg'ō, chē'gō) n. 1. A small tropical flea (Tunga penetrans), the fertilized female of which burrows under the skin of animals and humans, causing intense irritation and sores that may become severely infected. Also called chigger, *jigger*², sand flea. 2. See chigger (n., sense 1). [Possibly from Galibi chico, or of African origin. See JIGGER².]

Chig-well (chĭg'wĕl, -wəl) An urban district of southeast England, a residential suburb of London. Population, 51,290.

Chi-hua-hua¹ (chə-wā'wā, chē-) A city of northern Mexico south of Ciudad Juárez. It is the rail and commercial center for the vast northern section of the country. Population, 385,603.

Chi-hua-hua² (chĭ-wā'wā, -wə) n. A very small dog of a breed originating in Mexico, having pointed ears and a smooth coat. [After Chihuahua, a city and state of northern Mexico.]

Chi-ka-ma-tsu Mon-za-e-mon (chē'kā-mät'sōō môn'zä-ě-môn'), 1653-1724. Japanese playwright whose numerous plays, mostly written for the puppet theater, deeply influenced Japanese drama.

chil-blain (chĭl'blān') n. An inflammation followed by itchy irritation on the hands, feet, or ears, resulting from exposure to moist cold. [CHIL(L) + BLAIN.]
—chil/blained' adj.

child (chĭld) n. pl. chil-dren (chĭl'drən). Abbr. ch. 1. A person between birth and puberty. 2. a. An unborn infant; a fetus. b. An infant; a baby. 3. One who is childish or immature. 4. A son or daughter; an offspring. 5. Often children. Members of a tribe; descendants: children of Abraham. 6. a. An individual regarded as strongly affected by another or by a specified time, place, or circumstance: a child of nature; a child of the Sixties. b. A product or result of something specified: "Times Square is a child of the 20th century" (Richard F. Shepard).

—idiom. with child. Pregnant. [Middle English, from Old English cild.]

—child/less adj. —child/less-ness n.

Child (chīld), Julia. Born 1912. American cookery expert known for her books and her instructional television and video series.

Child (chīld), Lydia Maria Francis. 1802-1880. American abolitionist and writer of novels, children's books, and reform works, such as Appeal in Favor of That Class of Americans Called Africans (1833).

child·bear·ing (chīld'bâr'ĭng) n. The human act or process of giving birth; parturition. —child/bear'ing adj.

child·bed (chīld'bĕd') n. The condition of a woman in the process of giving birth.

childbed fever (chīld'bĕd' fĕ'vər) n. See puerperal fever.

child·birth (chīld'bŭrth') n. Parturition.

child-care or child·care (chīld'kâr') adj. Of, relating to, or providing care for children, especially preschoolers: a child-care center; child-care professionals.

—child/care' n.

childe (chīld) n. Archaic. A child of noble birth. [Middle English childe, child, child. See CHILD.] child·free (chīld'frĕ') adj. Without children, especially by choice: childfree couples.

child·hood (chīld'hōöd') n. 1. The time or state of being a child. 2. The early stage in the existence or development of something: the childhood of Western civilization.

child·ish (chīl'dĭsh) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or suitable for a child or childhood: a high, childish voice; childish nightmares. 2. a. Marked by or indicating a lack of maturity; puerile: tired of your childish pranks. b. Not complicated; simple.

c. Affected mentally by old age; senile. —child/ish·ly adv. —child/ish-ness n.

child labor (chīld lā'bər) n. The full-time employment of children who are under a minimum legal age.

child·like (chīld'lĭk') adj. Like or befitting a child, as in innocence, trustfulness, or candor.

child·proof (chīld'prōōf') adj. 1. Designed to resist tampering by young children: a childproof aspirin bottle. 2. Made safe for young children, as by the removal or alteration of potential hazards: a childproof kitchen. — v. tr.

child·proofed, child·proof·ing, child·proofs. To make childproof: childproof a house.

child·dren (chīl'drən) n. Abbr. ch. Plural of child.

child restraint (chīld rĭ-strānt') n. A device, such as a seat belt or small car seat with a seat belt, used to control and protect a child in a motor vehicle.

child's play (chīldz plā) n. 1. Something very easy to do. 2. A trivial matter.

Chil·e (chĭl'ē, chē'lē) A country of southwest South America with a long Pacific coastline. Colonized by Spain in 1541, it declared its independence in 1818. Santiago is the capital and the largest city. Population, 11,329,736. —Chil'e·an adj. & n.

Chil·e salt·peter (chĭl'ē sôlt'pē'tər) n. See sodium nitrate.

chil·i (chĭl'ē) n. pl. chil·ies. 1. The pungent fresh or dried fruit of any of several cultivated varieties of capsicum, used especially as a flavoring in cooking. Also called chili pepper 2. Chili con carne. [Spanish chile, chili, from Nahuatl chilli.]

chil·i·ad (kĭl'ē-äd', -əd) n. 1. A group that contains 1,000 elements. 2. One thousand years; a millennium. [Late Latin chilias, chiliad-, from Greek khilias, from khilioi, thousand. See gheslo- in Appendix.]

chil·i·asm (kĭl'ē-ăz'əm) n. Theology. The doctrine stating that Jesus will reign on earth for 1,000 years. [New Latin chiliasmus, from Late Latin chilias, chiliad. See CHILIAD.] —chil'i·ast' (-ăst', -əst) n. —chil'i·as'tic adj.

chil·i·bur·ger (chĭl'ē-bŭr'gər) n. A hamburger covered with chili con carne.

chili con car·ne (chĭl'ē kŏn kăr'nē) n. A highly spiced dish made of red peppers, meat, and often beans. [Spanish : chili, chile, chili + con, with + carne, meat.]

chil·i·dog (chĭl'ē-dŏg', -dŏg') n. A hot dog covered with chili con carne, served in a long roll.

Chi·lin (jē'lĭn') See Jilin.

chili pepper (chĭl'ē pĕp'ər) n. See chili (n., sense 1).

chili powder (chĭl'ē pou'dər) n. A condiment consisting of ground chilies mixed with several seasonings, such as cumin, oregano, and garlic.

chili sauce (chĭl'ē sŏs) n. A spiced sauce made with chilies and tomatoes.

chill (chĭl) n. 1. A moderate but penetrating coldness. 2. A sensation of coldness, often accompanied by shivering and pallor of the skin. 3. A checking or dampening of enthusiasm, spirit, or joy: bad news that put a chill on the celebration. 4. A sudden numbing fear or dread. — adj. 1. Moderately cold; chilly: a chill wind. 2. Not warm and friendly; distant: a chill greeting. 3. Discouraging; dispiriting: "Chill penury repressed their noble rage" (Thomas Gray). — v.

chilled, chill·ing, chills. — v. tr. 1. To affect with or as if with cold. 2. To lower in temperature; cool. 3. To make discouraged; dispirit. 4. Metallurgy. To harden (a metallic surface) by rapid cooling. — v. intr. 1. To be seized with cold. 2. To become cold or set: jelly that chills quickly. 3. Metallurgy. To become hard by rapid cooling. [Middle English chile, from Old English cele. See gel- in Appendix.] —chill'ing·ly adv. —chill'ness n.

Chil·lán (chē-yăn') A city of central Chile east-northeast of Concepción.

Founded in the 16th century, it was twice destroyed by earthquakes (1835 and 1939). Population, 118,163.

chill-er (chīl'ər) n. 1. One that chills. 2. A frightening story, especially one involving violence, evil, or the supernatural; a thriller.

chill factor (chīl fāk'tər) n. Wind-chill factor.

Chil-li-coth-e (chīl'ī-kōth'ē, -kô'thē) A city of south-central Ohio south of Columbus. It became capital of the Northwest Territory in 1800 and served as Ohio's capital from 1803 to 1810 and from 1812 to 1816. Population, 21,923.

Chil-li-wack (chīl'ə-wăk') A city of southwest British Columbia, Canada, on the Fraser River east of Vancouver. It is a processing center. Population, 40,642.

chill-y (chīl'ē) adj. chill-i-er, chill-i-est. 1. Cool or cold enough to cause shivering. See Synonyms at cold. 2. Seized with or feeling cold; shivering. 3. Distant and cool; unfriendly: a chilly look. —chill'i-ly adv. —chill'i-ness n.

Chi-lo-é (chīl'ō-ā', chē'lô-ě') An island off south-central Chile. It is the largest of the Chilean islands and the only one to be successfully settled.

chi-lo-pod (kī'lə-pōd') n. Any of various arthropods of the class Chilopoda, which includes the centipedes. [From New Latin Chilopoda, class name : Greek kheilos, lip + -poda, -pod (so called because the foremost pair of legs are jawlike appendages).]

Chil-tern Hills (chīl'tərn hīlz) A range of chalk hills in south-central England northeast of the upper Thames River.

Chiltern Hundreds (chīl'tərn hūn'drīdz) n. (used with a sing. verb). Chiefly British. A merely formal office applied for by members of Parliament when they wish to resign from the House of Commons. [Short for Stewardship of the Chiltern Hundreds, tracts of crown lands in south-central England including the Chiltern Hills.]

Chi-lung (jē'lōŋg', chē'-) See Keelung.

chi-mae-ra (kī-mîr'ə, kī-) n. 1. A deep-sea cartilaginous fish of the family Chimaeridae, having a smooth-skinned tapering body and a whiplike tail.

2. Genetics. Variant of chimera. [New Latin Chimaera, type genus, from Latin chimaera, chimera. See CHIMERA.]

Chi-mae-ra (kī-mîr'ə, kī-) n. Greek Mythology. Variant of Chimera.

Chim-bo-ra-zo (chīm'bə-ră'zō, -ră'-, chēm'bô-ră'sô) An inactive volcano, 6,271.1 m (20,561 ft) high, in central Ecuador. The highest elevation of the Cordillera Real, it was first scaled in 1880.

Chim-bo-te (chīm-bō'tē, chēm-bô'tě) A city of western Peru on the Pacific Ocean north-northwest of Callao. It suffered severe earthquake damage in 1970. Population, 223,341.

chime¹ (chīm) n. 1. An apparatus for striking a bell or set of bells to produce a musical sound. 2. Often chimes. Music. A set of bells tuned to scale and used as an orchestral instrument. 3. A single bell, as in the mechanism of a clock. 4. The sound produced by or as if by a bell or bells. 5. Agreement; accord: a flawless chime of romance and reality. — v. chimed, chim-ing, chimes. — v. intr.

1. a. To sound with a harmonious ring when struck. b. To make a musical sound by striking a bell or set of bells. 2. To be in agreement or accord: harmonize: Their views chimed with ours. The seafood and wine chimed perfectly. — v. tr.

1. To produce (music) by striking bells. 2. To strike (a bell) to produce music.

3. a. To signal or make known by chiming: The clock chimed noon. b. To call, send, or welcome by chiming. 4. To repeat insistently. —phrasal verb. chime in.

1. To interrupt the speech of others, especially with an unwanted opinion.

2. To join in harmoniously. 3. To go together harmoniously; agree. [From Middle English chimbe (belle), from Old French, variant of cimble, cymbal, from Latin cymbalum. See CYMBAL.] —chim'er n.

chime² (chīm) n. The rim of a cask. [Middle English chimb, from Old English cim-, cimb-. See gembh- in Appendix.]

chi-me-ra also chi-mae-ra (kī-mîr'ə, kī-) n. Genetics. 1. An organism consisting of two or more tissues of different genetic composition, produced as a result of mutation, grafting, or the mixture of cell populations from different zygotes.

2. An organism produced by genetic engineering, in which DNA from distinct parent species is combined to produce an individual with a double chromosome complement. [Middle English chimere, Chimera, from Old French, from Latin chimaera, from Greek khimaira, chimera, she-goat. See ghei- in Appendix.]

Chi-me-ra also Chi-mae-ra (kī-mîr'ə, kī-) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A fire-breathing she-monster usually represented as a composite of a lion, goat, and serpent. 2. An imaginary monster made up of grotesquely disparate parts.

chi-mer-i-cal (kī-mēr'ī-kəl, -mîr'-, kī-) also chi-mer-ic (-mēr'ik, -mîr'-) adj.

1. Created by or as if by a wildly fanciful imagination; highly improbable.

2. Given to unrealistic fantasies; fanciful. —chi-mer'i-cal-ly adv.

chi-mer-ism (kī-mîr'iz'əm, kī'mə-rîz'-) n. The condition of being a genetic chimera.

chim-i-chan-ga (chīm'ē-chäng'gə) n. A deep-fried burrito. [American Spanish.]

Chim-kent (chīm-kěnt') A city of south-central Kazakhstan north of Tashkent. Founded in the 12th century, it was taken by Russia in 1864. Population, 369,000.

chim-ney (chīm'nē) n. pl. chim-neys. 1. a. A passage through which smoke and gases escape from a fire or furnace; a flue. b. The usually vertical structure containing a chimney. c. The part of such a structure that rises above a roof.

2. Chiefly British. A smokestack, as of a ship or locomotive. 3. A glass tube for enclosing the flame of a lamp. 4. Something, such as a narrow cleft in a cliff, resembling a chimney. [Middle English chimenei, from Old French cheminee, from Late Latin camīnāta, fireplace, from Latin camīnus, furnace, from Greek kaminos.]

chim-ney-piece (chīm'nē-pēs') n. 1. The mantel of a fireplace. 2. A decoration over a fireplace.

chimney pot (chĭm'nē pŏt) n. A short, usually earthenware pipe placed on the top of a chimney to improve the draft.

chimney sweep (chĭm'nē swēp) n. A worker employed to clean soot from chimneys.

chimney swift (chĭm'nē swĭft) n. A small, dark, swallowlike New World bird (Chaetura pelagica) that frequently nests in chimneys.

chimp (chĭmp) n. Informal. A chimpanzee.

chim·pan·zee (chĭm'păn-zē', -pən-, chĭm-păn'zē) n. A gregarious anthropoid ape (Pan troglodytes) of tropical Africa, having long dark hair and somewhat arboreal habits and exhibiting humanlike behavior and a high degree of intelligence. It is now considered vulnerable to extinction in the wild. [Portuguese, from Kongo (Vili) ci-mpenzi.]

chin (chĭn) n. The central forward portion of the lower jaw. — v. chinned, chin-ning, chins. — v. tr. 1. To pull (oneself) up with the arms while grasping an overhead horizontal bar until the chin is level with the bar. 2. Music. To place (a violin) under the chin in preparation to play it. — v. intr. 1. To chin oneself. 2. Informal. To make idle conversation; chatter. [Middle English, from Old English cin. See genu-² in Appendix.] — chin/less adj.

Chin (jĭn) See Jin.

Chin. abbr. China; Chinese.

Ch'in (chĭn) See Qin.

chi·na (chĭ'nə) n. 1. High-quality porcelain or ceramic ware, originally made in China. 2. Porcelain or earthenware used for the table. [Short for chinaware.]

WORD HISTORY: Our term china for porcelain or ceramic ware is a shortening of chinaware and probably china dishes. Although the word china is identical in spelling to the name of the country, there are 16th- and 17th-century spellings like chiney, cheny, and cheney that reflect the borrowing into English of the Persian term for this porcelain, chīnī. The Persian word and the Sanskrit word cīnāḥ, “Chinese people,” which gave us the English name for the country, go back to the Chinese word Qin, the name of the dynasty that ruled China from 221 to 206 B.C.

Chi-na (chĭ'nə) Abbr. Ch., Chin. A country of eastern Asia. Its ancient civilization traditionally dates to c. 2700 B.C. After a bitter civil war (1946-1949) a people's republic led by Mao Zedong was established on the mainland, and the Nationalists fled to Taiwan. Beijing is the capital and Shanghai the largest city. Population, 1,008,175,288.

China, Republic of. See Taiwan.

China aster (chĭ'nə əs'tər) n. An annual Chinese plant (Callistephus chinensis) in the composite family, widely grown in several forms for its showy, variously colored flower heads.

chi-na-ber-ry (chī'nə-běr'ē) n. A deciduous Asian tree (Melia azedarach), widely cultivated and naturalized in the southern United States and having bipinnately compound leaves, clusters of purplish flowers, and yellow, globose, poisonous fruits. Also called China tree

China jute (chī'nə jōōt) n. See velvetleaf.

Chi-na-man (chī'nə-mən) n. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for a Chinese man.

China rose (chī'nə rōz) n. A Chinese rose (Rosa chinensis) having mostly red, pink, or white flowers. It is an ancestor of many cultivated hybrid roses.

China Sea (chī'nə sē) The western part of the Pacific Ocean extending along the eastern coast of Asia from southern Japan to the Malay Peninsula. It is divided by Taiwan into the East China Sea and the South China Sea.

China syndrome (chī'nə sīn'drōm') n. The accidental melting of a nuclear reactor core so that its contents sink through the bottom of its container and into the earth.

Chi-na-town (chī'nə-toun') n. A neighborhood or section of a city that is inhabited chiefly by Chinese people.

China tree (chī'nə trē) n. See chinaberry.

chi-na-ware (chī'nə-wâr') n. Tableware made of china.

Chi-na-wood oil (chī'nə-wōōd' oil) n. See tung oil.

chinch (chīnch) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. & Chiefly Midland U.S. See bedbug. [Spanish chinche, from Latin cīmex, cīmic-, bug.]

chinch bug also cinch bug (chīnch bŭg) n. 1. A small black and white insect (Blissus leucopterus) that is very destructive to grains and grasses. 2. Chiefly Southern U.S. & Chiefly Midland U.S. See bedbug.

chin-che-rin-chee (chīn'chə-rīn-chē', chīng'kə-) n. A southern African bulbous plant (Ornithogalum thyrsoides) in the lily family, whose fragrant cluster of showy white blossoms is popular as a cut flower. [Probably Afrikaans tjienkerientjee.]

chin-chil-la (chīn-chīl'ə) n. 1. a. A squirrellike rodent (Chinchilla laniger) native to the mountains of South America and widely raised in captivity for its soft, pale gray fur. b. The fur of this animal. 2. A thick, twilled cloth of wool and cotton used for overcoats. [Spanish, probably alteration of a native word in Aymara.]

Chin-chow (jīn'jō') See Jinzhou.

chinch-y (chīn'chē) adj. chinch-i-er, chinch-i-est. Chiefly Southern U.S. Stingy; tightfisted; cheap. [Alteration of CHINTZY.]

Chin-co-teague Bay (shīng'kə-tēg' bā, chīng'-) A long, narrow bay off northeast Virginia and southeast Maryland. Chincoteague Island is at the southern end of the bay.

Chincoteague pony (shĭng'kə-tĕg' pō'nĕ) n. A type of small, inbred North American horse that runs wild on certain islands off the Virginia coast. [After Chincoteague Island.]

Chin·dwin (chĭn'dwĭn') A river rising in the hills of northern Burma and flowing about 1,158 km (720 mi) generally south to the Irrawaddy River.

chine (chĭn) n. 1. a. The backbone or spine, especially of an animal. b. A cut of meat containing part of the backbone. 2. A ridge or crest. 3. Nautical. The line of intersection between the side and bottom of a flatbottom or V-bottom boat. [Middle English, from Old French eschine, of Germanic origin. See skei- in Appendix.]

Chi·nese (chĭ-nĕz', -nĕs') adj. Abbr. Chin. Of or relating to China or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. pl. Chinese. Abbr. Chin. 1. a. A native or inhabitant of China. b. A person of Chinese ancestry. c. See Han¹. 2. a. A branch of the Sino-Tibetan language family that consists of the various dialects spoken by the Chinese people. b. Any of the dialects spoken by the Chinese people. 3. Informal. Chinese food.

Chinese anise (chĭ-nĕz' ăn'is) n. An evergreen tree (Illicium anisatum), native to Japan and Korea and having aromatic leaves and fragrant white or yellow flowers.

Chinese artichoke (chĭ-nĕz' ăr'tĭ-chōk') n. A perennial Chinese herb (Stachys affinis) in the mint family, cultivated for its edible, tuberous underground stems that somewhat resemble a string of large, whitish beads.

Chinese black mushroom (chĭ-nĕz' blăk mŭsh'rōom') n. See shiitake.

Chinese cabbage (chĭ-nĕz' kăb'ij) n. Any of several forms of a plant (Brassica rapa var. pekinensis) of the mustard family, having an elongated head of overlapping, crinkled, broad-stalked leaves and eaten as a vegetable in eastern Asian cuisine. Also called celery cabbage, napa, pe-tsai.

Chinese calendar (chĭ-nĕz' kăl'ən-dăr) n. The traditional lunisolar calendar of the Chinese people, based on 24 seasonal segments each about 15 days long. An intercalary month is occasionally necessary to reconcile the lunar year with the solar year.

Chinese checkers (chĭ-nĕz' chĕk'ərz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb).

Games. A board game in which each player tries to move a set of marbles arranged in holes from one point of a six-pointed star to the opposite point by means of single moves or jumps.

Chinese chestnut (chĭ-nĕz' chĕs'nŭt') n. A chestnut (Castanea mollissima) native to China and Korea, resistant to chestnut blight and cultivated as an ornamental and for its edible nuts.

Chinese chive (chĭ-nĕz' chĭv) n. An eastern Asian herb (Allium tuberosum) having flat leaves, small white flowers, and elongated bulbs covered with a fibrous coat. Often used in the plural. Also called garlic chive, Oriental garlic.

Chinese date (chī-nēz' dāt) n. See jujube (n., sense 1).

Chinese evergreen (chī-nēz' ěv'ər-grēn') n. A Chinese evergreen plant (Aglaonema modestum) cultivated as a houseplant for its dark green or occasionally variegated foliage.

Chinese export porcelain (chī-nēz' ik-spôrt' pôr'sə-līn) n. See Canton porcelain.

Chinese gooseberry (chī-nēz' gōōs'bēr'ē) n. See kiwi (n., sense 2).

Chinese houses (chī-nēz' hous'yz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Any of several chiefly Californian plants of the genus Collinsia, especially C. heterophylla, which has several widely spaced whorls of purple and white flowers suggestive of a pagoda.

Chinese ink (chī-nēz' ĭngk) n. See India ink (n., sense 2).

Chinese kale (chī-nēz' kāl) n. A Chinese vegetable (Brassica oleracea var. alboglabra) of the mustard family, related to the cabbage and grown for its leafy shoots used in eastern Asian cuisine.

Chinese lantern (chī-nēz' lǎn'tərn) n. A decorative collapsible lantern of thin, brightly colored paper.

Chinese lantern plant (chī-nēz' lǎn'tərn plānt) n. See winter cherry.

Chinese mustard (chī-nēz' mŭs'tərd) n. Any of several cultivated varieties of the Indian mustard, grown for their leafy shoots and eaten as a vegetable especially in eastern Asian cuisine.

Chinese parsley (chī-nēz' pǎr'slē) n. See coriander (n., sense 2).

Chinese pear (chī-nēz' pâr) n. See sand pear.

Chinese puzzle (chī-nēz' pŭz'əl) n. 1. A very intricate puzzle. 2. Something very difficult or complex.

Chinese radish (chī-nēz' rǎd'ish) n. See daikon.

Chinese red (chī-nēz' rĕd) n. Color. See vermilion (n., sense 2).

Chinese restaurant syndrome (chī-nēz' rĕs'tər-ənt sĭn'drŏm') n. A group of symptoms, including dizziness, facial pressure, sweating, and headache, that may occur after the ingestion of food containing large amounts of monosodium glutamate.

Chinese tallow tree (chī-nēz' tăl'ō trē) n. An ornamental tree (Sapium sebiferum), native to China and Japan and naturalized in the southern United States and having a thick, waxy seed coat that is used in making candles and soap. Also called vegetable tallow

Chinese wall (chī-nēz' wŏl) n. A barrier, especially one that seriously hinders communication or understanding: “still believe a Chinese wall can exist between public and private selves” (Gail Sheehy). [After the Great Wall of China.]

Chinese water chestnut (chī-nēz' wŏ'tər chĕs'nŭt') n. See water chestnut (n., sense 2).

Chinese white (chī-nēz' hwĭt) n. See zinc oxide.

Chinese windlass (chī-nēz' wīnd'ləs) n. See differential windlass.

Ch'ing (chǐng) See Qing.

Ching-hai (chǐng'hī') See Qinghai.

Chin Hills (chǐn hīlz) A range of hills in western Burma rising to 3,055.5 m (10,018 ft). Much of the range is covered with pine and teak forests.

Chin-ju (jǐn'jōō') A city of southern South Korea west of Pusan. It is a transportation center in an agricultural region. Population, 219,000.

chink¹ (chǐngk) n. A narrow opening, such as a crack or fissure. — v. tr.

chinked, chink-ing, chinks. 1. To make narrow openings in. 2. To fill narrow openings in. [Probably alteration of obsolete chine, from Middle English, crack, from Old English cine.] — chink'y adj.

chink² (chǐngk) n. A slight, metallic sound, as of coins rattling in a pocket. — v. intr. tr. chinked, chink-ing, chinks. To make or cause to make a slight, metallic sound. [Imitative.]

Chink (chǐngk) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Chinese person. [Probably alteration of CHINESE.]

Chin-kiang (chǐn'kyǎng', jǐn'gyǎng') See Zhenjiang.

chi-no (chē'nō, shē'-) *n. pl. chi-nos. 1. A coarse, twilled cotton fabric used for uniforms and sometimes work or sports clothes. 2. Trousers made of a coarse, twilled cotton. Often used in the plural. [American Spanish, mestizo, yellowish (from its original tan color), probably from Spanish chino, Chinese, from China, China.]*

Chi-no (chē'nō) A city of southern California east of Los Angeles. It was founded in 1887. Population, 59,682.

chi-noi-se-rie (shēn'wāz-rē') n. 1. A style in art reflecting Chinese influence through use of elaborate decoration and intricate patterns. 2. An object reflecting Chinese artistic influence. [French, from chinois, Chinese, from Chine, China.]

Chi-nook (shǐ-nōōk', chī-) n. pl. Chinook or Chi-nooks. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting the lower Columbia River valley and adjoining coastal regions of Washington and Oregon, now located in western Washington. The Chinook traded widely throughout the Pacific Northwest. b. A member of this people. c. The Chinookan language of the Chinook. 2. a. Any of various Chinookan-speaking peoples formerly inhabiting the Columbia River valley eastward to The Dalles and now located in southern Washington and northern Oregon. b. A member of any of these peoples. 3. chinook. a. A moist, warm wind blowing from the sea on the northwest U.S. coast. b. A warm, dry wind that descends from the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains, causing a rapid rise in temperature. [Chehalis (Salishan) c'inuk.]

Chi-nook-an (shǐ-nōōk'ən, chī-) n. A North American Indian language family of Washington and Oregon. — Chi-nook'an adj.

Chinook Jargon (shĭ-nōōk' jär'gən) n. A pidgin language combining words from Nootka, Chinook, Salishan languages, French, and English, formerly used as a lingua franca in the Pacific Northwest.

Chinook salmon (shĭ-nōōk' sām'ən) n. A very large, commercially valuable salmon (Oncorhynchus tshawytscha) of northern Pacific waters, characterized by irregular black spots on its back. Also called king salmon, quinnat salmon.

chin-qua-pin (chĭng'kə-pĭn') n. 1. Any of several deciduous shrubs or small trees related and similar to the chestnut, especially Castanea pumila, native to the eastern United States. 2. A large evergreen tree (Castanopsis chrysophylla) of the Pacific Coast of North America. Also called giant chinquapin, golden chinquapin. 3. The nut of any of these plants. [Of Algonquian origin; akin to Virginia Algonquin chechinkamin, chestnut.]

chinquapin oak (chĭng'kə-pĭn' ōk) n. A deciduous oak shrub (Quercus prinoides) of the eastern and central United States, having toothed leaves that resemble those of the chinquapin.

chintz (chĭnts) n. A printed and glazed cotton fabric, usually of bright colors. [Obsolete chints, pl. of chint, calico cloth, from Hindi cīṅṭ, from Sanskrit citra-, shiny, variegated.]

chintz-y (chĭnt'sē) adj. chintz-i-er, chintz-i-est. 1. Of, relating to, or decorated with chintz. 2. a. Gaudy; trashy: chintzy merchandise. b. Stingy; miserly.

chin-up (chĭn'ŭp') n. The act or an instance of chinning oneself, practiced especially as a fitness exercise. Also called pull-up Chin-wang-tao (chĭn'wäng'tou') See Qinhuangdao.

Chiog-gia (kē-ō'jə, kyôd'jä) A city of northeast Italy on an island in the Venetian lagoon. It is connected with the mainland by a bridge. Population, 38,200.

Chi-os (kĭ'ôs', -ōs', kē'-, KHĕ'ôs) also Khí-os (kē'ôs, KHĕ'-) An island of eastern Greece in the Aegean Sea off the western coast of Turkey. It was noted in antiquity for its school of epic poets.

chip¹ (chĭp) n. 1. A small piece, as of wood, stone, or glass, broken or cut off.

2. A crack or flaw caused by the removal of a small piece. 3. a. Games. A small disk or counter used in poker and other games to represent money. b. chips.

Slang. Money. 4. a. Electronics. A minute slice of a semiconducting material, such as silicon or germanium, doped and otherwise processed to have specified electrical characteristics, especially before it is developed into an electronic component or integrated circuit. Also called microchip b. An integrated circuit.

5. a. chips. A thin, usually fried slice of food, especially a potato chip. b. Often chips. A very small piece of food or candy: chocolate chips. c. chips. Chiefly British. French fries. 6. Wood, palm leaves, straw, or similar material cut and dried for weaving. 7. A fragment of dried animal dung used as fuel.

8. Something worthless. 9. Sports. A chip shot. — v. chipped, chip-ping, chips. — v. tr. 1. To chop or cut with an ax or other implement. 2. a. To break a small piece from: chip a tooth. b. To break or cut off (a small piece): chip ice from the car window. 3. To shape or carve by cutting or chopping: chipped her name in the stone. — v. intr. 1. To become broken off into small pieces.

2. Sports. To make a chip shot in golf. — phrasal verb. chip in. 1. To contribute money or labor: We all chipped in for champagne. 2. To interrupt with comments; interject. 3. Games. To put up chips or money as one's bet in poker and other games. — idioms. chip off the old block. A child whose appearance or character closely resembles that of one or the other parent. chip on (one's) shoulder. A habitually hostile or combative attitude. [Middle English, from Old English cyp, beam, from Latin cippus.]

chip² (chĭp) v. intr. chipped, chip-ping, chips. To cheep, as a bird. [Imitative.] — chip n.

chip³ (chĭp) n. Sports. A trick method of throwing one's opponent in wrestling. [Origin unknown.]

Chip-e-wy-an (chĭp'ə-wĭ'ən) n. pl. Chipewyan or Chip-e-wy-ans. 1. a. A Native American people made up of numerous autonomous bands inhabiting a large area of northern Canada north of the Churchill River. Formerly nomadic caribou hunters, the Chipewyan became settled fur traders during the 18th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The Athabaskan language of the Chipewyan. [Cree čĭpwayān, parka wearer : cĭpw-, pointed + ayān, skin.]

chip-mak-er (chĭp'mā'kər) n. A manufacturer of electronic and integrated circuit chips.

chip-munk (chĭp'mŭngk') n. Any of several small, striped, terrestrial squirrels of the genera Tamias and Eutamias, especially T. striatus of eastern North America. [Alteration of obsolete chitmunk, perhaps from Ojibwa ajidamoon?, red squirrel.]

chipped beef (chĭpt bĕf) n. Dried beef smoked and sliced very thin.

Chip-pen-dale (chĭp'ən-dāl') adj. Of or relating to an 18th-century English style of furniture characterized by flowing lines and often rococo ornamentation. [After Thomas CHIPPENDALE.]

Chip-pen-dale (chĭp'ən-dāl'), Thomas. 1718-1779. British cabinetmaker noted for his graceful neoclassical furniture, particularly chairs, which had wide influence on his contemporary artisans.

chip-per¹ (chĭp'ər) n. One that chips or cuts: a wood chipper.

chip-per² (chĭp'ər) v. intr. chip-pered, chip-per-ing, chip-pers. 1. To chirp or twitter, as a bird. 2. To babble. [Frequentative of CHIP².]

chip-per³ (chĭp'ər) adj. In lively spirits; cheerful. [Possibly alteration of British dialectal kipper, lively.]

Chip-pe-wa (chĭp'ə-wō', -wä', -wā', -wə) n. pl. Chippewa or Chip-pe-was. See Ojibwa.

Chippewa River (chĭp'ə-wô' rĭv'ər) A river rising in the lake region of northern Wisconsin and flowing about 290 km (180 mi) generally south to the Mississippi River.

chip-ping sparrow (chĭp'ĭng spär'ō) n. A small North American sparrow (Spizella passerina) having a reddish-brown crown.

chip-py (chĭp'ē) n. pl. chip-pies. 1. A chipping sparrow. 2. Slang. A woman prostitute. [From CHIP².]

chip shot (chĭp shōt) n. Sports. A short, lofted golf stroke, used in approaching the green.

chi·ral (kĭ'rəl) adj. Of or relating to the structural characteristic of a molecule that makes it impossible to superimpose it on its mirror image. [CHIR(O)- + -AL¹.]

—chi·ral/i·ty (kĭ-räl'ĭ-tē) n.

Chi-Rho (kĭ'rō', kē'-) n. A monogram and symbol for Christ, consisting of the superimposed Greek letters chi (X) and rho (P), often embroidered on altar cloths and clerical vestments. Also called Christogram [CHI + RHO first two letters of Greek Khristos, Christ.]

Chir-i-ca-hua (chĭr'ĭ-kä'wə) n. pl. Chiricahua or Chir-i-ca-huas. 1. A formerly nomadic Apache tribe inhabiting southern New Mexico, southeast Arizona, and northern Mexico, with present-day populations in Oklahoma and New Mexico. 2. A member of this tribe.

Chi-ri-co (kĭr'ĭ-kō', kē'rē-kō'), Giorgio de. 1888-1978. Italian painter whose works are characterized by deep shadow and perspective, barren landscapes, and elements of classical architecture and sculpture.

chirk (chûrk) v. tr. intr. chirked, chirk-ing, chirks. To make or become cheerful. [Middle English chirken, to chirp, chirrup, from Old English cearcian, to chatter, alteration of cracian, to resound. See CRACK.]

chiro- or cheiro- pref. Hand: chiropractic. [Latin, from Greek kheir, hand. See ghesor- in Appendix.]

chi·rog·ra·phy (kĭ-rög'ra-fē) n. Penmanship. —chi·rog'ra·pher n.

—chi'ro·graph'ic (kĭ'rə-grăf'ĭk), chi'ro·graph'i·cal adj.

chi·ro·man·cy (kĭ'rə-măn'sē) n. Palmistry. —chi'ro·man'cer n.

Chi·ron (kĭ'rōn') n. Greek Mythology. The wise centaur who tutored Achilles, Hercules, and Asclepius.

chi·rop·o·dy (kĭ-röp'ə-dē, shĭ-) n. See podiatry. [CHIRO- + -POD + -Y².]

—chi·rop'o·dist n.

chi·ro·prac·tic (kĭ'rə-prăk'tĭk) n. A system of therapy in which disease is considered the result of abnormal function of the nervous system. The method of treatment usually involves manipulation of the spinal column and other body structures. [CHIRO- + Greek praktikos, practical; see PRACTICAL.] —chi'ro·prac'tor n.

chi-rop-ter-an (kī-rōp'tər-ən) also chi-rop-ter (-rōp'tər) n. A mammal, such as the bat, that is a member of the order Chiroptera and has forelimbs modified as wings. [From New Latin Chiroptera, order name : CHIRO- + -PTER.]

—chi-rop'ter-an adj.

chirp (chûrp) n. A short, high-pitched sound, such as that made by a small bird or an insect. — v. intr. chirped, chirp-ing, chirps. To make a short, high-pitched sound. [Middle English chirpen*, of imitative origin.]

chirr (chûr) n. A harsh, trilling sound, such as that made by crickets. — v. intr. chirred, chirr-ing, chirrs. To make a harsh, trilling sound. [Imitative.]

chir-ren (chîr'ən) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. Children.

REGIONAL NOTE: The linguistic process of ellipsis allows for the deletion within words of some internal sounds, such as weakly stressed syllables and less prominent consonants. This process caused Old English heafod ultimately to become Modern English head, losing its internal v sound (spelled f in Old English). Ellipsis is still an active process in American regional dialects. For example, in chir-ren both the l and the d of children are omitted in favor of the more conspicuous r.

chir-rup (chûr'əp, chîr'-) v. chir-ruped, chir-rup-ing, chir-rups. — v. intr.

1. To utter a series of chirps. 2. To make clucking or clicking sounds with the lips, as in urging on a horse. — v. tr. 1. To sound with chirps. 2. To make clucking sounds to. — n. 1. A series of chirps. 2. A series of clucks or clicking sounds, such as those made to urge on a horse. [Variant of CHIRP.]

chi-rur-geon (kī-rûr'jən) n. Archaic. A surgeon. [Middle English cirurgien, from Old French, from Latin chirurgia, surgery. See SURGERY.]

chis-el (chîz'əl) n. A metal tool with a sharp beveled edge, used to cut and shape stone, wood, or metal. — v. chis-eled or chis-elled, chis-el-ing or chis-el-ling, chis-els or chis-els. — v. tr. 1. To shape or cut with a chisel.

2. Informal. a. To cheat or swindle. b. To obtain by deception. — v. intr. 1. To use a chisel. 2. Informal. a. To use unethical methods; cheat: “who’s up, who’s down and who’s chiseling on the side” (James Reston). b. To intrude oneself without welcome: always tries to chisel in on our conversations. [Middle English, from Old French cisiel, from Vulgar Latin cīsellus*, cutting tool, from diminutive of Latin caesus, past participle of caedere, to cut. See kaə-id- in Appendix.]

—chis'el-er n.

chis-eled or chis-elled (chîz'əld) adj. Made or shaped with or as if with a chisel: a finely chiseled nose.

Chis-holm (chîz'əm), Shirley Anita Saint Hill. Born 1924. American politician who as a U.S. representative from New York State (1969-1983) sought an end to the Vietnam War and advocated educational and social reforms.

Chisholm Trail (chĭz'əm trāl) A former cattle trail from San Antonio, Texas, north to Abilene, Kansas. It was important after the Civil War until the expansion of the railroads and the introduction of barbed-wire fencing all but closed the trail.

chi-square (kī'skwâr') n. A test statistic that is calculated as the sum of the squares of observed values minus expected values divided by the expected values.

chi-square test (kī'skwâr' tĕst) n. A test that uses the chi-square statistic to test the fit between a theoretical frequency distribution and a frequency distribution of observed data for which each observation may fall into one of several classes.

chit¹ (chĭt) n. 1. A statement of an amount owed for food and drink; a check.

2. A short letter; a note. 3. A Brownie point: earned vital chits with his party by making fundraising speeches. [Obsolete chitty, from Hindi ciṭṭhī, note, letter, from Sanskrit citrikā*, citritā*, note.]

chit² (chĭt) n. 1. A child. 2. A saucy girl or young woman. [Middle English, young animal.]

Chi-ta (chĭ-tă') A city of southeast Russia east of Irkutsk. It was founded in 1653. Population, 336,000.

chit-chat (chĭt'chăt') n. 1. Casual conversation; small talk. 2. Gossip. — v. intr. chit-chat-ted, chit-chat-ting, chit-chats. To engage in small talk or gossip. [Reduplication of CHAT.]

